TELEGRAPHIC JOTTINGS.

The British Government have recognized Alfonso.

The defeat of the bill to guarantee the bonds of the Texas-Pacific Railroad Company at the present session is considered certain.

Congress will pass a bill tending to prevent the importation of Chinese prostitutes.

Twenty-three bishops have issued a protest, in behalf of the entire Roman Catholic Episcopate of Germany, against any such interference in the Papal election as is implied in Bismarck's late circular dispatch.

It is reported that the father of Don Carlos, with others, raised a large sum in London to carry on the war in Spain. General Cabrera has arrived at Escalia, and it is said he will take the chief command of the Carlist forces.

Insolligance of a serious disturbance in the city of Bethlehem in Palestine has been received here. The Greeks made an attack upon the quarter of the city inhabited by the Armenians, and several on both sides were killed.

Archbishop Cullen, in a pastoral address, condemns the mission of the revival preachers, Moody and Sankey. He says these men seek to do away with good works and the necessity of baptism, promising salvation by foolish sensationalism without further repentance.

Louis Napoleon, the Prince Imperial, is classed seventh on the list of cadets receiving a commission in the Royal Military Academy at Woolwich, and is placed at the head of his class in fencing and riding. The Emperor Napoleon laid the Prince at Woolwich on the 15th.

The election at Stoke-on-Trent for member of Parliament resulted in the success of Mr. Kennelly, the attorney for the Tichborne claimant. There were three candidates in the field, of whom two was a member of the Tichborne family. The election of Dr. Kennelly causes great consternation in political circles.

Rev. Father Ryan, President of the Catholic Total Abstinence Union of America, has written a letter advising that that organization should not take part in parades on St. Patrick's Day, partly on ground of excessive expense, and partly for the reason that parades derives from the religious associations of the day.

Ex-Marshal Bazaine arrived in Santander, Spain, last week; and on his pretense of attending him, the French residents visited his hotel and hooted him most persistently. The police had to disperse the crowd. He left for Madrid on the 14th, and the police had again to interfere to protect him from violence.

A dispatch from Franklin, N. H. says unusually cold weather has been experienced there. The thermometer sank to as low as 40 degrees below zero on the 16th. Much suffering has been caused by the severity of the weather. The workmen engaged in cutting ice in the Merrimac river report it to be four feet thick, an event that has never occurred before.

In the trial for the Wingfan libel case in Paris, the General addressed the Court, reproducing in sharp terms the insolence against his character as an officer, and De Cassagnac, the defendant, replied by a flat justification of his statement. He accused General Wimpfen of vanity and incompetency, and declared that he was guilty of treachery, having broken his allegiance to the Emperor.

A Paris special says the greatest uneasiness prevails in consequence of the grave political situation. The Chamber cannot make a Constitution, and will not dissolve. President MacMahon would have resigned if the Senate bill had been passed as amended. The Bonapartists gain greatly by these complications. The Republicans will make no further concessions.

In the Dominion House of Commons, on the 12th, the debate of the amnesty resolutions for Manitoba rebels ended in an amendment offered by one of the Ministry granting complete amnesty to all, which was rejected by a vote of 21 to 183, and McKay's original resolution granting an amnesty to all except Riel, Lepine and O'Donoghue, who are to be banished for five years, was agreed to by a vote of 156 to 50.

Hon. Samuel Hooper, member of Congress from the Fourth District in Boston, Mass., died in Washington on the 14th, inst., aged 67 years. He has been of pneumonia, aged 67 years. He has been a member of Congress continuously for fourteen years, and was a Republican in politics. He has been a heavy operator in gold, and his estate, amounting to $6,000,000 or $5,000,000, was accumulated in the China trade. The mortality among Massachusetts legislators recently has been remarkable. Mr. Whiting, Charles Sumner, Crocker and Hooper have died within the last two years.

A cable telegram to the New York Freeman's Journal announces that Rev. James A. Healy, of Boston, Maine, made choice of Rt. Rev. Bishop of Portland, Maine; Very Rev. Thomas Gulbert, the Augustinian, Bishop of Hartford; and Rt. Rev. John Henry Perry, Bishop of Wheeling; Rev. Krautboyer, of Milwaukee, Bishop of Green Bay; Rev. Hurely, of Peoria, Bishop of a see created for that city; Rev. John Ireland, of St. Paul, Minn., Vicar Apostolic of Nebraska; and Abbot Seidenbush, the Benedictine, Vicar Apostolic for a part of Minnesota.

The Paris correspondent of the London Times says that the points of the vote on the 11th in the Assembly on the amendment to the Senate bill during the absence of Bonteau, is that it breaks up the majority of last week, and that it restores to the Bonapartists the ground they had lost. After the vote, which makes the Senate dependent upon universal suffrage, the only modification possible is a restriction in the list of persons eligible to Senatorship, and that will probably lead to the election of imperial functionaries.

The Florence Nazione has published a correspondence purporting to be between Prince Napoleon and Bismarck in 1866, in which the latter is said to declare the existence of an alliance of France and Italy; that by concessions relative to Rome, France has secured Italian aid in case of war with Prussia. Menabrel offers, if furnished with a million of throwns of arms, to revolutionize Italy before the correspondence authentic, but believe the correspondence authentic, but the berlin Presse repudiates it.

The trial of the section for libel, brought by General Wimpffen against De Cassagnac, editorial Le Pays, for statements made in that journal concerning the battle of Sedan, was opened on the 17th inst. General Ducrot, Le Brun, Galliet and others were examined. General Ducrot testified that it would have been possible for a part of the army to reach Montmedi if General Wimffen had not impeded its retreat. The plan suggested by the latter to cut through the German lines was impracticable; no such attempt could have succeeded. It was the Emperor who caused the white flag to be hoisted at Sedan; he did so to save bloodshed.

Suspension of the Writ.

No better evidence of Mr. Grant's desire to perpetuate his power could be had than the bill he has been instrumental in having introduced in Congress giving the President power to suspend the writ of habeas corpus whenever in his opinion, voters were intimidated, or likely to be intimidated. It is needless to say that he would regard opposition to himself as sufficient reason for its suspension in every district in the Union. We are pleased to hear, however, that his adherents in Congress, much as they would like to oblige him, have too much political sagacity to perpetrate such an outrage on the American people at the present time. The times are not yet ripe for a dictator. At a Republican caucus in Washington on the 13th inst., Speaker Blaine declined to be regarded as joining in any such proceeding. It had not always been customary for the Speaker to attend caucuses of the House, but he came out as the Speaker, but as a member of the Republican party. He confined his remarks chiefly to the proposition to suspend the writ of habeas corpus. Such provision as was there would be a needless fear, and would not be willing to go before his constituents on the bill and explain to them that he had voted for the suspension of the writ of habeas corpus in that State in time of peace in order to prevent disturbances in Louisiana. It was not just to denounce all the States and people altogether. The State of Virginia, North Carolina and Tennessee were certainly in a favorable condition of peace and quiet, and if the writ were to be suspended it ought to be in particular localities where outrages were of a character to defy the ordinary method of enforcing the law. He did not think that the whole of the people of the country to become familiar with the sway and frequent suspension of the writ. He was especially hostile to the suspension at the North on the pretext that its suspension there would be useful or necessary to suppress disturbances in the South. This law, unlike previous laws for the same purpose, gave the power permanently to the President, and while he was willing to put that power in the hands of President Grant, he would not like to commit himself to say future President. Blaine's speech, though moderate in tone, was decided and emphatic against the action of the bill referred to. Mr. Garfield spoke against the section in very much the same terms. General Hawley of the committee also opposed the section. The bill was introduced in the House on Monday, but it does not seem possible that it can pass, certainly in the present great change, with the opposition that is manifested against it.

Stormy Debate in the French Assembly.

PARIS, February 12.—The Assembly, today, resumed consideration of the Senatorial bill. Jules Grevy addressed the Chamber in favor of the bill, providing that each department of the Left, including that each department of the Left, including that each department of the Left, including

UNDER THE DAISIES.

It is strange what a deal of trouble we take,
What a burden we bear of the willingly make;
How the lips will smile though the heart may ache,
And we bend in the ways of the world for the sake
Of the poor and scanty praises
And idle rare as with love's fire we glow
That our lives are wasted for those we love
To but look on its black shadow we go
To our long rest under the daisies.

And so often we fail in serious fight,
For wrong is not much in the place of right,
And the end is so far beyond our sight
As unknown course pursuing.
Even do we see, when the race is run,
That of all we have striven for, little is won,
And of all the work our strength has done
How little was worth the doing!

So most of us turned with sorry p or speed,
Saving in thought some deed we conquered in deed;
Least brave in the hour of present need,
And most in the lateriale morrow.
Keep a lodgefish of right and wrong,
It is strange that a heart can have brave and strong
Should falter as last, and most earnest may long
For a calm sleep under the daisies!

But if one poor, troubled heart can say,
"Its kindness suffered my life's rough way,"
And the tears fall over the daisies' array
We shall stand up in heaven in bright array
Than if all earth rose and shall never fade,
For the good we take to our home is made,
And the wasted words and the labors laid
All peacefully under the daisies.

The O'Connell Centennial.

At length, it seems, an earnest effort is being made by the more prominent Irish residents of this city and vicinity to perpetuate the name and fame of their great countryman, Daniel O'Connell, in enduring bronze and marble. What this was not done years ago argues little for the public spirit and good taste of our Celtic fellow-citizens, who, in many other respects, have proved themselves diligent promoters and warm advocates of objects worthy of public utility, ornament and charity.

Some years ago a number of gentlemen residing in the upper part of the city formed themselves into a committee for the purpose of soliciting subscriptions to erect a statue to Ireland's illustrious son in the Central Park. Several meetings were held and the necessary preliminary steps taken and effted the desired object, but from some unexplained reason the committee's labors evidently ceased and the public have since heard no more of the matter.

Now, however, that the popular interest has been again awakened in everything connected with the life and struggles of the champion of Catholic emancipation and the advocate of home rule, by the extensive preparations being made in his native land to celebrate the centennial anniversary of his birth, August 6th, we look to the present as the most auspicious time to remind the Irishmen of the Empire City of the debt they owe to the memory of one of their greatest benefactors, as well as the brightest of their compatriots, of whom they and their children may be justly proud.

Already, we are happy to learn, the matter has been seriously considered by a number of private gentlemen, from whose energy and social standing, as far as we have ascertained their names, the best results may be anticipated. A suitable location for a statue has been selected in our public park, and the consent of the Commissioners to its erection, if not already given, is expected as a matter of course. The funds necessary for its completion will, we are assured, be easily procured as soon as the projectors have time and opportunity to present the general public to subscribe to so laudable an undertaking. Of course, no time is to be wasted in the idle way of the world, for the sooner the 6th of August is reached the more complete and successful will be the display.

Perhaps a fitting way to celebrate the centennial birthday of Ireland's great champion and liberator.—N. Y. Tablet.

French peaches will be shipped to Europe this summer in large quantities. A successful experiment was made last year, and it was demonstrated that fruit kept frozen during the ocean voyage thawed out fresh and fine of flavor upon arrival in England, where it was sold at enormous prices.

BIGOTRY.

The use of words is mostly arbitrary and conventional. The same word may have two very different senses from the mouths of two opposite partisans. Thus, take the word charity, in its normal application by a Catholic and a Protestant theologian. The former means, primarily, by it the love of God; the latter means a kind human sentiment. Hence, we often hear of the want of charity among Christians, that is, of their severity upon heresy; a wrong impression, which could only have its origin from a wrong appreciation of the word.

If charity means first the love of God, it must mean, equivalently, the love of God's truth; so that to detest doctrinal error is not a sign of want of charity, but, on the contrary, is truthful indication.

Take another word, "penance," which is supposed, by Protestants, to mean, primarily, putting peas in your shoes to produce suffering, or the wearing a white sheet in church door. To the Catholic mind the word penance suggests, first, the supernatural sorrow for sin, and then, quite questionably, it implies that attempted reparation which is inseparable from genuine contrition. So of many other words, which mean one thing to a Catholic and another to a non-Catholic thinker. "Mortal" and "venial" are two very good examples. "Deadly sins" is the expression used by Anglicans, in that Litany which they say every Sunday, to distinguish grave sins from infirmities; but whole books have been written, and innumerable sermons have been preached against the Catholic use of the word "mortal." It is certain that many controversies between Catholics and non-Catholics would have been swept away as soon as they began to be treated in a thorough intelligence at starting of the different meanings attached to certain words. "Infallibility" is a very tremendous word, as it stands in its pompous first meaning, yet in the sense in which Catholic theologians explain it it is nothing tremendous or pompous. That God should not suffer His Church to fall into error, in regard of Christian faith and Christian morals, is all that is meant by this word as explained and defined by the whole body of Catholic theologians (here) a word which is of modern introduction. Infallibility is the state of being deceived in the sense in which we have explained it, while it is the state of deceiving as well as of being deceived in those who teach Protestant doctrine. Infallibility means no more than that God, being Truth, cannot positively guide His Church into error.

The word "bigotry" is another example of misused quasi-religious terms. The original meaning of the word was probably hypocrisy, if we may trust to the popular derivation; but it has come to mean many serious things, of which the zeal eclipses the sound sense. There can be no such thing as a bigoted Catholic. If the sense of devotion to his Church, become devotion to that which is true cannot possibly be too great, too profound, too profuse. A Catholic may be as bigoted as any one else in that which is matter for opposition; but as such he is in a state of darkness, and his bigotry is no excuse for his defense of what is right and condemnation of what is wrong; he is in this condition between Catholic and Protestant bigots—and yet how great is the distinction.—London Weekly Register.

Portland is fast enlarging her boundaries; the trees are disappearing from the hillsides, giving place to neat residences, and very many houses have been erected during the past year in the suburban part of the city.

French customs returns for the last six months show an increase in receipts of twenty-three millions of francs over the corresponding period of last year. The total revenue of the country for the same time increased seventy-nine millions francs over 1874.

An Old Asserter of Woman's Rights.

Our strong-minded female readers will be glad to hear of a new advocate of their claims, and, what is more, of one whose learning and piety adorn it. They must not look for him, however, on the bench, or in the pulpit, or in the bar; for, to tell the plain truth, he lies locked in a dusty vault in Mantua, and has rested there now some two hundred years, with a Latin epitaph by the learned Cardinal Bembo graven on his sumptuous sepulchre. This renowned advocate (whose works are not unknown to us, we are sure, unappreciated by Shakespeare, whose writings betray a knowledge of them) was Balthasar Castiglione, a learned gentleman of Mantua, whom Guido Ubaldo, Duke of Urbino, sent as ambassador to Henry VII. At once a warrior, a poet and a philosopher, he stored up, during his voyages and wars and his residence in the Courts of Pope Julius II. and that of the Emperor Charles V., such wise and deep thoughts on social relationships and the workings of that curious machine, the human heart, that he equalled Bacon in subtlety, and surpassed Sir Philip Sidney in the sciences of love. His famous work, "The Courtesie of the Courtier," is a veritable handbook of life.

Castiglione then goes on to sketch the perfect woman as full of wisdom, nobleness, courage and stateliness; good and discreet. "We have the understanding to order her husband's goods, and her house and children, and all those parts that belong to a good housewife. She must possess a certain sweetness of language that may delight (low tone of a used goose), and may know how to entertain all men with talk worth the hearing, and suitable to the place, time, and to the quality of men with whom she communeeth. She must be chaste, wise, courteous. She must not only speak or give ear to ill reports of other women, nor condemn them with a violence that might seem envious." And what the Castiglione is in his best "there is no man so shameless but beareth a great reverence toward such a woman as is endued with good and honest, because their gravity, tempered with knowledge and goodness, is a shield against the evil."

Then a wicked fellow slips in and suggests that women, according to their sex, are, from a defect of nature, wholly being always bent on making things most perfect, and would desire to bring their work to nothing but ruin. But here the dauntless Castiglione is at his side up, as they would in like strike the speaker, and he, fearing the fate of Orpheus, subsides into silence. Justice then advises women to practice the feats of arms, riding, tennis, wrestling, or other manly sports—and even those sports peculiar to women, they should practice with beefiulness and that soft suddness that becomes them in all things. They should be excelled with fearful success in 1795. In "swift and violent tricks in dancing," and boisterous instruments like the tabor, drum, flute and trumpet. Their singing, advance and sing with a certain bashfulness, and "noble shamefacedness." It is necessary for a woman to set more by her beauty than a man, Julian forgives the woman who, when she is fairer or lesser browner or wanner than she ought to be, amends it with appropriate garments.

Here a counter suggests that fallen would perhaps like women to bear rule in cities, make laws, and lead armies, while the men were left spinning in the kitchen. Here Castiglione himself reminds the scoffer that Plato made them in his Utopia governors of cities and even captains of armies, and therefore, q. for. "Nay," says the critic, "but Aristotle saith, 'Silence is the ancient assertor of woman's rights,' (I do mostly hold that to what war things men are endeavored to be silent if it pierceth the capacity of one it may like wise pierce the other." There was a pat proverb, "Whose is leader of flesh is apt of mind," and there was no doubt that women were apter of mind, and, in short, "natural meaning and speculations then man." Strong-minded women might well write up that last glorious sentence of Castiglione's, and women in their kind are both perfect, and each imperfect without the other.

"Why, then," asks Lord Gasper, with wicked simplicity, "make such a fuss about it?" "Why?" replies Castiglione, sarcastically, "the poor, silly creatures do not wish to be men because they are not, but because they do not glory, and to be rid of the ruin that man tyrannically, of his own authority, has obtained over them." Castiglione then goes on to exhume timidity in women. "It proceeds," says he, "of a soft and tender mind and quickness of their imagination, which conveyeth the shadow of every peril unto them, whereupon their sumerous and quick apprehensions breed fear and dread. Yet many women have there been who have showed stout-heartedness, and such as many men might have held worthy of infinite praise no less than men have done."

"Who had Paradise for us!" suggests a mocking listener.

"And who sounded that offense but Our Lady?" answers the defiant champion of women. "Nay," he says, with a gay contempt, "eyes smell not for the use of nostrils, nor must but I will find his wife, or sister, or daughter of like merit, and sometimes more than one, where are those who have been of infinite value, moreover, to those notable men, and often broken them of many errors."

"And who can point out these wonderful women?" cries the scoffer.

"Nothing but the mention of them number me," says Castiglione boldly, and then he pours forth such a river of names. Semiramis, the sister of Augustus; Portia, the wife of Brutus; Cato Cornelia, the wife of Pompey; Cornelia, the daughter of Scipio; the noble Leena, who, when she had undergone the torture of the rack, bit off and spat out her tongue and threw it in the face of Hippias the Tyrant; Cynnna, the beautiful, who rather than marry the man who had murdered her husband, took heinous because she would not put by evil-minded her from the vicinity of Rome on the marriage day; the women of Massilia, who took poison boldly before the Senate, as was allowed to those who were too wretched or too propernous.

"And I remember," says the scoffer, "a story of a miserable man who asked the Senate leave to take hemlock if he could not live single any longer, and he said he was weary of his wife's tongue."

"And how many silly, poor women," shouts the advocate like a war trumpet, "have a just cause to ask leave to die and escape their husband's cruelty? which would not put to strong-minded women.

As a proof of what a wife's affection can reach to Castiglione tells a pretty story of the wife of a Pisan merchant who, writing to his wife to tell her, after some years of captivity, that he had escaped from the godless policy meet with just as good a home as in South Africa and South Americ. At any rate, the Germans, who profess to be the most thorough students of history in Europe, show by these doings that they do not know how to practice in accordance with their teachings, and that all the lessons of history have been thrown away upon them.—London Universe.

The Church a Mystery.

If the Church were a human institution it would be a matter of surprise that it is the subject of such constant misrepresentation. Any one possessed of the least sense, or even ordinary sense, would know that it is a mystery, and that it is not to be judged by the darkened minded of men. It is only apprehended by faith. Hence it is that the nature of the Church, her movements, her history and her designs, are all the subjects of constant misconception, and, in the matter of course, also of misrepresentation, on the part of those who have not the light of the true faith.

It was so in the days of the Apostles. They were taught to preach simply the Gospel of Christ, to teach men truths of which they were confessedly ignorant, and which, confessedly, in the use of their natural understandings, they could not discover, or, at least, could not into a kingdom out of this world, and which did not trouble itself with any human dynasty or secular power. Hence the misconceptions, misrepresentations, misery and calumny to which they were subjected in the Roman empire, and the rich and powerful resisted by the sensuality and the world, with their imagined rights. She teaches contentment, obedience, submission, to the poor and weak; and they, too, often turn upon her as an enemy and say that she is siding with their oppressors.

To some all this may seem strange, yet there is nothing strange to it. It is simply the mysterious working of the Church, as says by the Church of her destiny, and by the world of its sentiments. Those who are of the world of God. It is simply the constant repetition of what our Saviour tells us of the nature of the government of Himself and all who were animated by His spirit in the days of His appearance in the flesh. Such was the government of our Saviour, came lasting and doing penances, and the Jews said he had a devil. Our Saviour came to the Jews, eating and drinking with them, and they called him a glutton and a wine bibber.

So the Church, always on the side of virtue, of freedom and of law, teaches to rulers that they should exercise justice and mercy, and administer law in the fear of God, and they denounce her as opposed to absolute order, as aiming at robbing the State of its legitimate authority, and as conspiring against the good of society and fomenting civil disorder. On the other hand, the Church preaches to its people respect for the civil magistrate, patience under oppressive and unjust enactments, submission to secular authority, and denunciation represent her as the enemy of freedom and the friend of tyranny. The reason of this is, that men forget, or rather they do not really believe that the Church is divine. They regard her as a human institution; as impelled in her action by merely natural motives. They have no confidence in her being the depository of divine powers, the divinely-constituted and divinely-appointed guide and teacher of divinely-revealed truth. They look simply at her hierarchy as men, not knowing nor believing that, though they are but men, invested in the weaknesses and passions of fallen nature, yet that they are men to whom a divine mission has been given, who are divinely-commissioned teachers of divinely-revealed truths, and dispensers, through divinely-instituted sacraments, of divine grace. They look at the visible nature of the vessels, and seeing that, they utterly disbelieve that the treasure committed to those vessels is divine.—Catholic Standard.

Wasting Money on Funerals.

The tendency of men and women to extremes and to run everything into the ground has its most interesting illustration in the superstitiousness of floral decorations with which the dead are now honored, an excess which is to be avoided both on the score of expense and of good taste. And such is the force of custom, that one called to the funeral of a friend can ill afford the cost are often constrained by pride, or fear of being thought mean or poor, to go to a degree of expense that is really wrong, in the sensitive, and, indeed, in all thoughtful cities. These are sometimes the gifts of friends. Often they are not. When they do not come in voluntarily they must be bought. And the expense is incurred at a time when the necessary extra expenditure is very considerable, and therefore economy is to be studied as a virtue and duty. I am told that the price of white rose buds and lilies, with soldiers alongside. At last John M. Higbee came to order my squad to fire. Lee, like myself, had been with dreadful results

WEEKLY CALENDAR.
FOR THE WEEK ENDING AUGUST 7.
August.
1—Sunday—Eleventh Sunday after Pentecost. St. Peter's Chains. The Machabees, Martyrs.
2—Monday—St. Alphonsus Liguori, Bishop, Confessor and Doctor of the Church.—St. Stephen, Pope and Martyr.
3—Tuesday—Finding of the body of St. Stephen. Protomartyr.
4—Wednesday—St. Dominic, Confessor.
5—Thursday—Dedication of St. Mary Major.
6—Friday—Transfiguration of our Lord. St. Xystus II., Pope, and Companions, Martyrs.
7—Saturday—St. Cajetan, Confessor. St. Donatus, Bishop and Martyr.

THE MONITOR & GUARDIAN:
THE ONLY
Irish and Catholic Journal in California.
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
SATURDAY.....JULY 31, 1875.

SUBSCRIBERS will please specially look at the printed label on the margin or wrapper of the paper; the date thereon shows when the subscription expires. It is in part a constant dun and a constant receipt.

WE are again constrained to urge our delinquent subscribers to liquidate their indebtedness to the office. The date on the wrappers of their papers tell them how their accounts stand as clearly as a bill, and these dates, we regret to say, in too many cases show that years have elapsed since some of them have contributed anything to this office. This state of things puts us to serious inconvenience, for while separately the amount due by each subscriber is small, the aggregate is quite large. We feel satisfied that our subscribers are all honest, and mean to do what is right, but are negligent; and if they could but see the hardship their negligence entails upon us they would be more prompt. We do not like these public appeals, and hope we shall not be again called upon to make one; so, gentlemen, let us hear from you without delay.

THE SILVER JUBILEE.

Our columns to-day contain a full and accurate report of the religious ceremonies, presentations and addresses with which the Silver Jubilee of his Grace the Archbishop was honored on Thursday. To insert it without abbreviations or omissions we were compelled to delay the publication of THE MONITOR several hours beyond the usual time, but we trust the inconvenience, if any, caused by that circumstance will be more than compensated for by the editing and interesting character of the event which caused it. We should certainly be guilty of vastly underrating the importance of the splendid demonstration of love and reverence towards his Grace the Archbishop did we go to press without a proper account of the whole proceedings.

It must be admitted that very few of a character to awaken feelings of pride and gratification in the breast of every non-Catholic resident of San Francisco, could be found. Whether we regard them as manifestations of the spirit of faith which animates the Catholic community of San Francisco, or as displays of personal devotion to the reverend prelate who rules the flock over which they were equally creditable and praiseworthy. Our city has so much the reputation of being wholly given over to the acquisition of wealth by means more or less open to the conventional than those known to older commercial centers, that it was, in a sense, necessary to show that the holy influence of religion is just as widespread, as powerful and as practical among us as among populations that lay claim to greater merit in this respect. When the prominent, wealthy, influential and talented members of any community so eagerly avail themselves of an opportunity of exhibiting their affection towards the head of their Church, and display such magnificent liberality in the way of showing it, the only natural inference to that the spirit of such truly dwells within them, and that the cares and troubles incidental to the prosecution of business on the most extended scale are totally unable to even weaken, much less extirpate, the religious lustre in their minds. There was a time when this would not be much to say, and indeed it would look like coining small praise to assert it; but in the present age, when material good is the supreme object sought by and religion is so violently assailed by the pervading ones of the earth, it is really something to boast of. It is a refutation of and practical against the selfish and degrading paganism which false philosophers would make the creed of the future if they could.

And viewed as a personal tribute to his Grace the Archbishop, these ceremonies and demonstrations reflect immeasurable credit upon the clergy and laity—upon all, in fact, who were connected with them. Without either flattery or exaggeration we may say that if ever any Catholic prelate deserved the reverence and homage of a faithful flock, Most Rev. JOSEPH SADOC ALEMANY is assuredly such one. We may also look upon what has been accomplished for the Church since his arrival in San Francisco, we cannot help being surprised that so much could be effected in such a short space of time by the labors, we may say, of one man. We do not wish to weary our readers with the recital of dry statistics, but we appeal to the memory of those among them who have passed the last twenty or twenty-five years in the State. What churches were built, what convents established, what educational institutions created, what asylums and refuges brought into existence during this time, they can figure up for themselves, and the total will astonish them, as indeed it must astonish the world. And the funds necessary to defray the expenses of their erection were contributed by the generosity of a class which, however successful individual members of it may have been, was far from being wealthy as a body. Every Christian man will understand the core, forethought, prudence and financial ability which were necessary for the collection of those funds and their distribution so that so much could be done with them.

It should be borne in mind, too, that all these buildings had to be got up on a scale not calculated for the requirements of what San Francisco and the State were for the time being, but for what they would be the time they had attained their full development and had become the abiding places of an immense Catholic population. How admirably his Grace directed the means at his disposal to the end he had in view stands confessed of all parties and creeds. To his unsurpassed zeal and energy he is owing that the Church on the Pacific Coast is as prosperous and flourishing as it is to-day. Of his Grace's personal qualities it perhaps does not become us to speak; but they are best illustrated by the deep love and profound respect in which he is held by all the members of his flock, composed as it is of men of all tongues and all nationalities. There is not a Catholic in all California who does not thank God that he has been spared to witness the Silver Jubilee of his consecration, and who will not pray that he may be blessed by holding the Golden Jubilee amid the felicitations of a loving and devoted people.

THE O'CONNELL CENTENARY.

Before another number of THE MONITOR can reach our readers, the greatest Irish celebration of the present century will have passed away. By that time the 6th of August, 1875, will have ended and live only in remembrance. Exactly one hundred years will then have come and gone since the great and immortal Daniel O'CONNELL first saw the light. The Irish people will be about to honor that memorable anniversary in a way which will make it mark forever an epoch in the history of their race. All over the Island preparations have been made for it with the greatest enthusiasm, and with more of national unity than has been manifested on any occasion within the memory of at least the present generation. The Irish at home and even villages of Ireland have appointed representatives to bear their part in the celebrations which are to take place in Dublin, the national capital, while the Irish residence of the Liberator during the most trying days of his political career. Subscriptions to pay the necessary and incidental expenses have been collected throughout the province, and liberally contributed to by all classes of the population. The Catholic Episcopate and priesthood, almost without an individual exception, have joined heart and soul in this national movement in honor of O'CONNELL, as well, indeed, they might, since the crowning achievement of the gallant patriot's life was the wresting of Catholic Emancipation from a heedless and bigoted Government. To mark their approval they even permitted the collections to be made at the church doors, a favor only accorded on the most solemn and important occasions, and his Eminence Cardinal CULLEN, in granting this unusual permission, warmly testified to his appreciation of the Irish labors and piety of the Liberator.

But, we must say, this admiration of O'CONNELL is not by any means confined to his co-religionists, as his efforts on behalf of freedom of conscience were not directed solely to their benefit, for it is shared in by honest and honorable men belonging to all denominations, and among those we are taking the preparatory steps to organize the leading celebrations are representatives of all the Protestant sects. Nor are the Catholic prelates abroad—that is to say, in Europe or America—devoid of any sympathy with the O'CONNELL Centenary Celebration, as will be seen by our columns to-day, where we reproduce answers to invitations sent by the new Irish National committee of those sent by the new Irish National committee of those sent by the new Irish National committee of those

IRISH LOCAL NEWS.

From the Dublin Nation of July 3.

At the Dundalk quarter sessions there were only two criminal cases.

On Sunday the Most Rev. Dr. Lynch officiated at the blessing of a bell belonging to the church of Two-mile House, Newbridge.

At the Ballybot quarter sessions, Mr. Lefroy, chairman of Armagh briefly congratulated the jury of the last that, while this was the principal town in the county, only one case was to be laid before them.

At the Tullamore quarter sessions Hewitt P. Jellett, Esq., Q.C., said he was happy to be again able to congratulate the grand jury on the peaceful state of the district. There was one case on the list, and that of an unimportant nature.

At the Mullingar quarter sessions, Matthew O'Donnell, Esq., Q. C., chairman of the county, addressing the Grand Jury, congratulated them on the business they had to transact being so extremely light, there being only one bill to go before them.

A widow named Mary McCallin, aged 86 years, died very suddenly on Thursday morning week at Pomeroy. She was perfectly well on the previous day. She has left behind her no less than fifty-seven grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

On Friday week twenty-six acres of first and second class meadowing, the property of Lord Dunally, was sold by auction in lots at Kilboy, near Nenagh, at prices varying from £6, £6 10s., £6 15s., £7 5s., with auction fees. The last-named figure is considered very high.

At the Ardee quarter sessions the Grand Jury, of which Mr. Thomas Branigan, P. L. G., Drogheda, was chairman, were sworn by Mr. Bourne, clerk of the peace, when his worship briefly addressed them. There were two cases to be before them, one for larceny and the other for aggravated assault.

In the townland of Loitrim, near Kilkeel, on the estate of Lord Newry, a number of miners have been engaged for some time past sinking a shaft. A few days ago they came on a stratum of iron ore; when working further, they came on another of lead, and a little deeper they discovered silver ore.

The Rev. Francis Arthur, P.P., made on last Sunday a collection for the poor unemployed laborers of Ballymacarrett and Castlewellan chapels. The sum received was £9 8s., which the same evening was sent by him to Mrs. Barron Byrne, Moyode Castle.

At the meeting of the Newry Presbytery, held in Derry, during the sittings of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, the Rev. John Elliott, who preached the sermon at the funeral of Mr. John Martin, M. P., was loosed from the congregation of Donaghmore, and associated as pastor of Turd Armagh Presbyterian Church.

At the general quarter sessions of the peace for Pultipstown division of the King's County, Hewitt P. Jellett, Esq., chairman, very congratulated the Grand Jury on the unusual peaceable state of the county, the solitary case to be tried being one of assault. Bonlaith, Ballintles, Carrabeen and Moorbeen, in this county. The saddest part, however, is the statement that notices of ejectment have been served on several of the tenants on the above-named townlands.

A farm of about 30 acres in extent, in the parish of Hacket, about a mile Athgarvan, and on the property of T. A. Scaglis-Kerry, and on the property of T. A. Scaglis-ton, Esq., was sold by auction on the 15th ult. The farm was held by a widow named Hice, and the rent was at the average rate of the rest of Mr. Staughton's property in the neighborhood. The farm was finally knocked down to a farmer named Tracey, from near O'Curney, for the sum of £405. This with the auctioneers's fees of £25 make a total of £520—the sale's rent due last March also was sanctioned.

His Lordship the Most Rev. Dr. McEvily held a visitation at Craughwell on Monday and Tuesday, 14th and 15th June. On both days there was a great congregation. The Bishop confirmed 160 adults and children, and expressed unqualified praise of the postulants for the holy rite. There was benediction of the Holy Sacrament on both days, and a sermon on the Infallibility of the Pope preached on Tuesday by Rev. Patrick A. McDonogh, P. P., Clarenbridge. Dr. McEvily was the guest of Rev. Patrick Fahy, who had as his curates Most Rev. Dr. Duggan, Bishop of Clonfert, and several of the priests of the diocese of Clonfert.

A subscription has been set on foot to indemnify Mr. Walsh, of the Wexford Independent, against the result of the action taken against him by Mr. Greene, of the Wexford Free Press, for libel. Mr. Greene, M. P., is sending his subscription, says to Mr. Walsh: "Though I need not say how much I regret the unfortunate decision in your case, I cannot but think that it affords another proof of proper understanding—of the honesty, fearlessness and ability with which the People has ever championed the popular cause. We will allow me, therefore to send you the inclosed check of five guineas for the People defense fund."

Over 300 irish artisans struck work on Saturday evening in Limerick, in consequence of the master builders having refused to grant their demand of a half holiday on Saturdays and immediate payment of wages at 6 o'clock, P. M. An immense number of laborers, who have no interest in the present cause of our countries are written on earth, those of your friends and of all who have better claims on your heritage, will, we are very sure, be willing to allow us, therefore to send you the inclosed check of five guineas for the People defense fund."

Over 300 irish artisans struck work on Saturday evening in Limerick, in consequence of the master builders having refused to grant their demand of a half holiday on Saturdays and immediate payment of wages at 6 o'clock, P. M. An immense number of laborers, who have no interest in the present cause of our countries are written on earth, those of your friends and of all who have better claims on your heritage, will, we are very sure, be willing to allow us, therefore to send you the inclosed check of five guineas for the People defense fund.

On Friday week a special meeting of the Drogheda corporation was held in the Assembly Room, the Mayor, Nicholas Leech, Esq., presiding. The Mayor announced that the object of the meeting was to take the steps for the purpose of being represented at the O'Connell Centenary. Town Councillor Robert May proposed that they should communicate through the town clerk with the Centenary Committee in Dublin. Alderman Chadwick, J. P., said that in 1864, when the foundation stone of the O'Connell monument was laid, a circular was sent to them containing instructions. No doubt something would be done again. Town Councillor Carlin seconded to second the proposition of Mr. May. The Mayor said that a few days ago he received from the municipal authorities of Dublin a very costly token of the corporation's very costly token of their esteem and kindly regards, which he highly valued, and he now desired to state that to all these gentlemen he would be happy to extend him as a basqued issue invitations to meet him at a banquet to be held on the occasion of the Centenary. He would at his own cost provide carriages for all those who the council required on the occasion.

At the Drogheda quarter sessions before William O'Connor Morris, Esq., chairman of the county, there were an unusual number of cases set down for hearing, among the most being an amusing one of a breach of promise of marriage. The plaintiff, a young girl of 15 years old, named Walsh, and the defendant, Jackson, a Dingbeds sandman, by trade, and a widower with nine jarsey, for the sum of £100 for breach of promise of marriage. The plaintiff was in the service of defendant's mother (a sickly old woman), at the rate of 1s per week and board. The defendant, who is a bachelor of about 50 summers, fell a victim to the little girl's charms, and, after repeated kissings and coaxings, popped the question, and promised in nursery fer. They had arranged to go to the church to have the marriage knot effectually tied, but, except on one occasion, when the clergymen was unwilling, the gay young and bachelor failed, from one reason or other, "to come up to the scratch." The father and mother of the plaintiff proved the promise. The chairman having addressed the jury, they retired, and came into court shortly after with a verdict for £15 damages and costs.

There is an old Scotch ballad which describes in amusing terms the troubles of a "gudeman" who came home at eve and found a riding horse in his byre, and various articles of male attire strewn about his house. He asks how they came there, without his leave, and is told by his buxom wife that he is an old blind doard cafe, that the horse is a fine new bridle now put on it, and that the suspicious equipments are all innocent household appurtenances. So plausible is the explanation that the poor old man is half persuaded of his truth until he comes across a pair of boots with spurs on, and then we have the catastrophe. A pleasant version of this old comedy was presented at the police office last week, according to the Cork Examiner. A gentleman named Hennessey, who belongs to a "communities," went home on Sunday night and found a hat, which he declares not to be his, hanging up in his apartment. He asked his wife for an explanation, and was assured that he had brought the hat home himself. Like many other men deeply immersed in public affairs, Mr. Hennessey is liable to fits of abstraction, and it seems to have occurred to him that he might have purchased a new hat, exchanged head gear with some of the colleagues on the committee, but on the day in the suspicious the wound the whole of the body declared he never saw it before. Upon receiving this assurance the bible maiden opened his eye to the green-eyed monster. He went home, beat his wife, and threatened to tear her back off.

For this he was summoned before the magistrates to show cause why he should not be bound over to keep the peace, and therefore to be of good behavior. Had there been another bench in Venice long ago Othello would have been spared all the tears that have been shed over the fate of Desdemona.

The Pope and the Young Men of Italy.

A reception was lately given by the Holy Father at the Vatican to a deputation from the society of the Catholic Youth of Italy, and to the representatives of the various diocesan branches. An address from the Society was presented to his Holiness, and was read by Count Acquadenti. The following is the translation of it:

MOST HOLY FATHER.—In laying at your feet the humble tribute of devoted and grateful homage from among the Catholics of Italy, we feel ourselves stirred with great joy as we salute you in the beginning of the sixth Jubilee of a glorious Pontificate. This triumph of prayer—this mysterious manifestation of Providence—has caused to wonder throughout the world, and fills with astonishment. You are entering, full of confidence, on the thirtieth year of your reign, and it will not be in vain for the spiritual and material interests of your people that we shall see that voice of yours, which is ever being lifted up against all injustice—if we shall behold that ineffable power, that divine eloquence which has ever been employed in defending the rights of religion—if we shall behold that ineffable happy, and feel above us that light beam which is ever blessing, in the name of the Lord of heaven and earth, our dangerous enemy. Alienation of mind, fits of impulse, of sorrows and of joys, such was this pen of your great predecessor, which will be its future. Reducing on the strife of the year that has passed since last we came before you, it is uncertain whether we should rejoice or weep. For the enemies of religion and worldly powers to the Church we see the people will and prompt to make becoming atonement. Wonderful story certainly are they cheerfully accepted for your sake persecutions, and most without any of the anger of a powerful enemy. In Germany, in Russia, in America, in Switzerland, bishops, priests, laymen, imprisoned—born with desire—suffered criminal persecutions, and even tortures, that would make the heart of Saints to shrink. Holy Father. During the year that has passed there were numerous apostasies, infamies said to be in store for you. Italians and Catholics, we feared that we should be compelled to witness a renewal of the outrages endured in Arragni by one of your immortal predecessors. But, on the contrary, we resided his storm on it seemed to be a design nurtured in forgiving countries to destroy in the minds of the people cherished traditions by the threatened abandonment of your Holiness to the rebellious incidents of the Eternal City, and to which might rise up in any corner of the world. Thanks to the Divine Goodness, the threatened abandonment appears to have been averted, but nevertheless we feel it to be our duty on this, the sad day, to express to you, and that in all humility we implore your Apostolic Benediction. In receiving it, prostrate at your feet, we will form the resolution that on our part, at least, no trash iniquity shall henceforth be offered to the subject, the liberty, the independence of the Vicar of Jesus Christ.

The Pope's Reply.

His Holiness spoke as follows in reply:

Your presence, dearly beloved children, here to-day suggests to my mind a picture in which one may see depicted the struggle between good and evil. We may say, in the words of the Pagan poet:

Prodis pugnantes caelestis turba deorum,
Hinc Venus atque Cures, hinc posuere labentia pectora.

In that struggle nature came out from chance, and was lost in confusion shape. But, setting aside those imaginary conceptions, let us apply ourselves to the reality. Behold, I am assailed by another antithesis suggested by the feast of this day, devoted to the celebration of the birth of the Precursor. The division of the birth of the Precursor. The division of the birth of the Baptist. On one side is Herod, on the other St. John—the former under a gilded canopy, the latter in the midst of the darkness of his prison; the one surrounded by dainties, the other barely assuaging his hunger with ripe fruit; the one regularly lived; the other lived dancing and merriment, the other living out in the harshness of a penitential life; and in the fatigues of a mission entrusted to him by the Lord Himself. Remark, however, the diversity of the ways in which the Redeemer treats Herod and the disciples of John. Condemned before the cruel and luxurious king, the tyrant sake the Saviour, not for the purpose of instruction or edification, but purely through curiosity, and a desire of being amused, that he would work a miracle. Jesus Christ, however, with majestic look, and in silent contempt, disregards the request of the man who had already disregarded the true light of the great Precursor, and leaves him to his debauchories. On the other hand, the disciples of John are received affectionately by the Divine Teacher, who answers their interrogatories whether or not He is the Divine Messiah—not by pointing out the wonders which are being accomplished, declaring them in all John that the blind see, the deaf hear and the lame walk. And while His points out His divinity by the works which He does, and shows His affection for John, He also teaches that works manifest the person. Good works manifest the good spirit, and vice versa. Oil how many are the blind, the deaf, the lame, who are trying to corrupt society. They are blind, who are persecuting everything holy and religious, whose plundering the altars, the consecrated sanctuary of everything sacred, who are destroying the asylums for the poor and miserable in order that the lamentable longings of the agents of the revolution; who, in their eagerness to carry out the designs of the spirits of evil, are doing all they possibly can to pull down the edifice built up by Jesus Christ. They are blind who are constructing the way that leads to ruin. Nor does it avail thus to warn these, for they are deaf to the voice of man, and worse, they are deaf to the voice of God.

What shall we do for them? We will pray for them, according to the doctrine of Him who prayed for those who persecuted Him. We will say to them that they cannot unite Christ and Belial, and, therefore, let them remember the warning of our Lord, "Beware of the ferment of the Pharisees." This ferment is a real pitch, which takes a conscious hold, and renders powerless the noblest sentiments of the soul. Of this himself get amassed with it. Let it, therefore, be your duty to put on their guard your friends and relations, that they do not sully themselves with the pitch of the revolution, which even on the occasion of one saving the chief of living revolutionists, modern civilization and the government that are founded on the revolution, carry with them a whole train of crimes and outrages; and hence the commencement of such a character does not deserve from you, and those who think as you do, that you should subscribe to the subject, the liberty, the independence of the Vicar of Jesus Christ.

The Pope and the Young Men of Italy.

A reception was lately given by the Holy Father at the Vatican to a deputation from the Society of the Catholic Youth of Italy, and to the representatives of the various diocesan branches. An address from the Society was presented to his Holiness, and was read by Count Acquadenti. The following is the translation of it:

MOST HOLY FATHER.—In laying at your feet the humble tribute of devoted and grateful homage from among the Catholics of Italy, we feel ourselves stirred with great joy as we salute you in the beginning of the sixth Jubilee of a glorious Pontificate. This triumph of prayer—this mysterious manifestation of Providence—has caused to wonder throughout the world, and fills with astonishment. You are entering, full of confidence, on the thirtieth year of your reign, and it will not be in vain for the spiritual and material interests of your people that we shall see that voice of yours, which is ever being lifted up against all injustice—if we shall behold that ineffable power, that divine eloquence which has ever been employed in defending the rights of religion—if we shall behold that ineffable happy, and feel above us that light beam which is ever blessing, in the name of the Lord of heaven and earth, our dangerous enemy. Alienation of mind, fits of impulse, of sorrows and of joys, such was this pen of your great predecessor, which will be its future. Reducing on the strife of the year that has passed since last we came before you, it is uncertain whether we should rejoice or weep. For the enemies of religion and worldly powers to the Church we see the people will and prompt to make becoming atonement. Wonderful story certainly are they cheerfully accepted for your sake persecutions, and most without any of the anger of a powerful enemy. In Germany, in Russia, in America, in Switzerland, bishops, priests, laymen, imprisoned—born with desire—suffered criminal persecutions, and even tortures, that would make the heart of Saints to shrink. Holy Father. During the year that has passed there were numerous apostasies, infamies said to be in store for you. Italians and Catholics, we feared that we should be compelled to witness a renewal of the outrages endured in Arragni by one of your immortal predecessors. But, on the contrary, we resided his storm on it seemed to be a design nurtured in forgiving countries to destroy in the minds of the people cherished traditions by the threatened abandonment of your Holiness to the rebellious incidents of the Eternal City, and to which might rise up in any corner of the world. Thanks to the Divine Goodness, the threatened abandonment appears to have been averted, but nevertheless we feel it to be our duty on this, the sad day, to express to you, and that in all humility we implore your Apostolic Benediction. In receiving it, prostrate at your feet, we will form the resolution that on our part, at least, no trash iniquity shall henceforth be offered to the subject, the liberty, the independence of the Vicar of Jesus Christ.

The Pope's Reply.

His Holiness spoke as follows in reply:

Your presence, dearly beloved children, here to-day suggests to my mind a picture in which one may see depicted the struggle between good and evil. We may say, in the words of the Pagan poet:

Prodis pugnantes caelestis turba deorum,
Hinc Venus atque Cures, hinc posuere labentia pectora.

In that struggle nature came out from chance, and was lost in confusion shape. But, setting aside those imaginary conceptions, let us apply ourselves to the reality. Behold, I am assailed by another antithesis suggested by the feast of this day, devoted to the celebration of the birth of the Precursor. The division of the birth of the Baptist. On one side is Herod, on the other St. John—the former under a gilded canopy, the latter in the midst of the darkness of his prison; the one surrounded by dainties, the other barely assuaging his hunger with ripe fruit; the one regularly lived; the other lived dancing and merriment, the other living out in the harshness of a penitential life; and in the fatigues of a mission entrusted to him by the Lord Himself. Remark, however, the diversity of the ways in which the Redeemer treats Herod and the disciples of John. Condemned before the cruel and luxurious king, the tyrant sake the Saviour, not for the purpose of instruction or edification, but purely through curiosity, and a desire of being amused, that he would work a miracle. Jesus Christ, however, with majestic look, and in silent contempt, disregards the request of the man who had already disregarded the true light of the great Precursor, and leaves him to his debauchories. On the other hand, the disciples of John are received affectionately by the Divine Teacher, who answers their interrogatories whether or not He is the Divine Messiah—not by pointing out the wonders which are being accomplished, declaring them in all John that the blind see, the deaf hear and the lame walk. And while His points out His divinity by the works which He does, and shows His affection for John, He also teaches that works manifest the person. Good works manifest the good spirit, and vice versa. Oil how many are the blind, the deaf, the lame, who are trying to corrupt society. They are blind, who are persecuting everything holy and religious, whose plundering the altars, the consecrated sanctuary of everything sacred, who are destroying the asylums for the poor and miserable in order that the lamentable longings of the agents of the revolution; who, in their eagerness to carry out the designs of the spirits of evil, are doing all they possibly can to pull down the edifice built up by Jesus Christ. They are blind who are constructing the way that leads to ruin. Nor does it avail thus to warn these, for they are deaf to the voice of man, and worse, they are deaf to the voice of God.

What shall we do for them? We will pray for them, according to the doctrine of Him who prayed for those who persecuted Him. We will say to them that they cannot unite Christ and Belial, and, therefore, let them remember the warning of our Lord, "Beware of the ferment of the Pharisees." This ferment is a real pitch, which takes a conscious hold, and renders powerless the noblest sentiments of the soul. Of this himself get amassed with it. Let it, therefore, be your duty to put on their guard your friends and relations, that they do not sully themselves with the pitch of the revolution, which even on the occasion of one saving the chief of living revolutionists, modern civilization and the government that are founded on the revolution, carry with them a whole train of crimes and outrages; and hence the commencement of such a character does not deserve from you, and those who think as you do, that you should subscribe to the subject, the liberty, the independence of the Vicar of Jesus Christ.

SAN JOSE ADVERTISEMENTS.

CHOPARD, WAECHMAKER AND JEWELER, Alameda, San Jose. apl1

VICTOR HOFFMANN,
Architect,
SAN JOSE CAL.

SAN JOSE MARBLE WORKS.
E. POWER,
Sculptor,
SAN JOSE.

STATUARY, TOMBS, BASTEL-PIECES, HEADSTONES, FOUNTAINS.
And every description of MARBLE WORK. DESIGNING, MOULDING, &c.
And every style Wood and Iron Railing. Material and Cemetery work a specialty. an

SANTA CLARA ADVERTISEMENTS.

CAMERON HOUSE,
SANTA CLARA, CAL.
MARTIN CORCORAN.....PROPRIETOR.

MR. CORCORAN, having purchased the above-named Hotel, solicits its many old customers throughout the State that the reputation he has so long enjoyed will be fully maintained by him. The House is in good order, and the table will be supplied with the best the market affords. Charges moderate. jy31

THE PIONEER HOUSE,
SANTA CLARA, CAL.
JOHN HEALY.....PROPRIETOR.

THE above House is now open for the reception of guests. The Proprietor has had many years experience in the business, and will endeavor to make his guests comfortable. Terms moderate. jy31

SANTA CLARA COLLEGE,
SANTA CLARA.....CALIFORNIA.
Under the management of the Fathers of the Society of Jesus.

THE SANTA CLARA COLLEGE is empowered by its charter to confer the degrees and honors usually conferred by Universities. Diplomas are granted to graduates in the Arts and Sciences.

The College buildings are large and well-ventilated, and are supplied with pure water from a never-failing pond, 200 feet above the level of the College.

The College grounds contain fifteen acres of ornamental plants, shrubs and flowers, and the finest collection of Roses in California. Bathing, Boating and Skating are among the recreations provided.

The Infirmary Year, which is divided into sessions of five months each, commences in August and in February of each year.

TERMS:

Payable semi-annually, in advance:

Matriculation Fee, to be paid but once.....$ 10 00
Board, Lodging, Tuition, Washing and Mending of Clothes.....150 00
Physician's Fee and Medicines.....10 00
Use of Bed and Bedding.....10 00
Use of Bed and Bedding.....10 00
Modern languages, Music and drawing form extra charges.
Studies will be resumed on the 15th of August.
REV. R. JUSTIN, President.
1031

ST. VINCENT'S SCHOOL.

THIS INSTITUTION IS SITUATED IN SANTA Rosa, a short distance from the cars, in the most healthful and beautiful part of the State. The grounds are extensive, and the building is large and well-ventilated.

The course of instruction embraces the Classical and Commercial Courses, with a thorough English education. Spanish is also taught.

TERMS

(Invariably required in advance)

Board, tuition, washing, bedding, mending, etc., per annum.....$300 00
Entrance Fee, to be paid but once.....20 00
Physician's Fee, per annum.....10 00
Music.....20 00
No extra charges for Tapestry, Embroidery, Plain and Ornamental Needlework, nor for the Spanish language.

TERMS FOR DAY SCHOLARS:

Primary, per month.....$ 2 00
Elementary and Senior, per month.....3 00
Half Boarders.....5 00
French.....5 00
No extra charge for Tapestry, Embroidery, Plain and Ornamental Needlework, nor for the Spanish language.

For further particulars apply to the SISTERS OF CHARITY,
Santa Rosa, Sonoma County, Cal.
1236

COLLEGE OF NOTRE DAME,
SAN JOSE, CALIFORNIA.
YOUNG LADIES' INSTITUTE.

THIS INSTITUTION, WHICH IS INCORPORATED according to the laws of the State, and empowered to confer academical honors, will be opened on MONDAY, August 2, 1875. The course of instruction embraces all the branches of a thorough education.

TERMS:

Per quarter, payable in advance, for Board, tuition, washing, with use of bedding.....$ 60 00
Music and use of instrument.....10 00
Drawing and Painting.....10 00
Use of Bed and Bedding.....5 00
Vocation spent at the Academy.....
Tuition for Day Pupils.....$ 5 00

Terms per month in advance:

Select Class, Primary Department.....$ 2 00
Intermediate Classes.....3 00
Graduating Classes.....4 00
Extra charge for French, plain and ornamental needlework.....1 00
For further particulars apply to the superior.
jy31

SANTA CLARA COLLEGE,
SANTA CLARA.....CALIFORNIA.
Under the management of the Fathers of the Society of Jesus.

THE SANTA CLARA COLLEGE is empowered by its charter to confer the degrees and honors usually conferred by Universities. Diplomas are granted to graduates in the Arts and Sciences.

The College buildings are large and well-ventilated, and are supplied with pure water from a never-failing pond, 200 feet above the level of the College.

The College grounds contain fifteen acres of ornamental plants, shrubs and flowers, and the finest collection of Roses in California. Bathing, Boating and Skating are among the recreations provided.

The Infirmary Year, which is divided into sessions of five months each, commences in August and in February of each year.

TERMS:

Payable semi-annually, in advance:

Matriculation Fee, to be paid but once.....$ 10 00
Board, Lodging, Tuition, Washing and Mending of Clothes.....150 00
Physician's Fee and Medicines.....10 00
Use of Bed and Bedding.....10 00
Use of Bed and Bedding.....10 00
Modern languages, Music and drawing form extra charges.
Studies will be resumed on the 15th of August.
REV. R. JUSTIN, President.
1031

ST. VINCENT'S SCHOOL.

THIS INSTITUTION IS SITUATED IN SANTA Rosa, a short distance from the cars, in the most healthful and beautiful part of the State. The grounds are extensive, and the building is large and well-ventilated.

The course of instruction embraces the Classical and Commercial Courses, with a thorough English education. Spanish is also taught.

TERMS

(Invariably required in advance)

Board, tuition, washing, bedding, mending, etc., per annum.....$300 00
Entrance Fee, to be paid but once.....20 00
Physician's Fee, per annum.....10 00
Music.....20 00
No extra charges for Tapestry, Embroidery, Plain and Ornamental Needlework, nor for the Spanish language.

TERMS FOR DAY SCHOLARS:

Primary, per month.....$ 2 00
Elementary and Senior, per month.....3 00
Half Boarders.....5 00
French.....5 00
No extra charges for Tapestry, Embroidery, Plain and Ornamental Needlework, nor for the Spanish language.

For further particulars apply to the SISTERS OF CHARITY,
Santa Rosa, Sonoma County, Cal.
1236

COLLEGE OF NOTRE DAME,
SAN JOSE, CALIFORNIA.
YOUNG LADIES' INSTITUTE.

THIS INSTITUTION, WHICH IS INCORPORATED according to the laws of the State, and empowered to confer academical honors, will be opened on MONDAY, August 2, 1875. The course of instruction embraces all the branches of a thorough education.

TERMS:

Per quarter, payable in advance, for Board, tuition, washing, with use of bedding.....$ 60 00
Music and use of instrument.....10 00
Drawing and Painting.....10 00
Use of Bed and Bedding.....5 00
Vocation spent at the Academy.....
Tuition for Day Pupils.....$ 5 00

Terms per month in advance:

Select Class, Primary Department.....$ 2 00
Intermediate Classes.....3 00
Graduating Classes.....4 00
Extra charge for French, plain and ornamental needlework.....1 00
For further particulars apply to the superior.
jy31

SANTA CLARA COLLEGE,
SANTA CLARA.....CALIFORNIA.
Under the management of the Fathers of the Society of Jesus.

THE SANTA CLARA COLLEGE is empowered by its charter to confer the degrees and honors usually conferred by Universities. Diplomas are granted to graduates in the Arts and Sciences.

The College buildings are large and well-ventilated, and are supplied with pure water from a never-failing pond, 200 feet above the level of the College.

The College grounds contain fifteen acres of ornamental plants, shrubs and flowers, and the finest collection of Roses in California. Bathing, Boating and Skating are among the recreations provided.

The Infirmary Year, which is divided into sessions of five months each, commences in August and in February of each year.

TERMS:

Payable semi-annually, in advance:

Matriculation Fee, to be paid but once.....$ 10 00
Board, Lodging, Tuition, Washing and Mending of Clothes.....150 00
Physician's Fee and Medicines.....10 00
Use of Bed and Bedding.....10 00
Use of Bed and Bedding.....10 00
Modern languages, Music and drawing form extra charges.
Studies will be resumed on the 15th of August.
REV. R. JUSTIN, President.
1031

ST. JOSEPH'S COLLEGE,
Mohonerville, Sumboldt County, Cala.
Conducted by the Priests of the Congregation of the Most Precious Blood.

TERMS PER SCHOLASTIC YEAR:

Board, tuition, washing and mending.....$150 00
Entrance fee, to be paid only once.....10 00
Use of Bed and Bedding.....10 00
Use of Bed and Bedding.....10 00
Modern languages, Music and drawing form extra charges.
Studies will be resumed on the 15th of August.
REV. R. JUSTIN, President.
1031

ST. VINCENT'S SCHOOL.

THIS INSTITUTION IS SITUATED IN SANTA Rosa, a short distance from the cars, in the most healthful and beautiful part of the State. The grounds are extensive, and the building is large and well-ventilated.

The course of instruction embraces the Classical and Commercial Courses, with a thorough English education. Spanish is also taught.

TERMS

(Invariably required in advance)

Board, tuition, washing, bedding, mending, etc., per annum.....$300 00
Entrance Fee, to be paid only once.....20 00
Physician's Fee, per annum.....10 00
Music.....20 00
No extra charges for Tapestry, Embroidery, Plain and Ornamental Needlework, nor for the Spanish language.

TERMS FOR DAY SCHOLARS:

Primary, per month.....$ 2 00
Elementary and Senior, per month.....3 00
Half Boarders.....5 00
French.....5 00
No extra charges for Tapestry, Embroidery, Plain and Ornamental Needlework, nor for the Spanish language.

For further particulars apply to the SISTERS OF CHARITY,
Santa Rosa, Sonoma County, Cal.
1236

COLLEGE OF NOTRE DAME,
SAN JOSE, CALIFORNIA.
YOUNG LADIES' INSTITUTE.

THIS INSTITUTION, WHICH IS INCORPORATED according to the laws of the State, and empowered to confer academical honors, will be opened on MONDAY, August 2, 1875. The course of instruction embraces all the branches of a thorough education.

TERMS:

Per quarter, payable in advance, for Board, tuition, washing, with use of bedding.....$ 60 00
Music and use of instrument.....10 00
Drawing and Painting.....10 00
Use of Bed and Bedding.....5 00
Vocation spent at the Academy.....
Tuition for Day Pupils.....$ 5 00

Terms per month in advance:

Select Class, Primary Department.....$ 2 00
Intermediate Classes.....3 00
Graduating Classes.....4 00
Extra charge for French, plain and ornamental needlework.....1 00
For further particulars apply to the superior.
jy31

SANTA CLARA COLLEGE,
SANTA CLARA.....CALIFORNIA.
Under the management of the Fathers of the Society of Jesus.

THE SANTA CLARA COLLEGE is empowered by its charter to confer the degrees and honors usually conferred by Universities. Diplomas are granted to graduates in the Arts and Sciences.

The College buildings are large and well-ventilated, and are supplied with pure water from a never-failing pond, 200 feet above the level of the College.

The College grounds contain fifteen acres of ornamental plants, shrubs and flowers, and the finest collection of Roses in California. Bathing, Boating and Skating are among the recreations provided.

The Infirmary Year, which is divided into sessions of five months each, commences in August and in February of each year.

TERMS:

Payable semi-annually, in advance:

Matriculation Fee, to be paid but once.....$ 10 00
Board, Lodging, Tuition, Washing and Mending of Clothes.....150 00
Physician's Fee and Medicines.....10 00
Use of Bed and Bedding.....10 00
Use of Bed and Bedding.....10 00
Modern languages, Music and drawing form extra charges.
Studies will be resumed on the 15th of August.
REV. R. JUSTIN, President.
1031

ST. JOSEPH'S COLLEGE,
Mohonerville, Sumboldt County, Cala.
Conducted by the Priests of the Congregation of the Most Precious Blood.

TERMS PER SCHOLASTIC YEAR:

Board, tuition, washing and mending.....$150 00
Entrance fee, to be paid only once.....10 00
Use of Bed and Bedding.....10 00
Use of Bed and Bedding.....10 00
Modern languages, Music and drawing form extra charges.
Studies will be resumed on the 15th of August.
REV. R. JUSTIN, President.
1031

FRANCISCAN COLLEGE,
SANTA BARBARA.....CALIFORNIA.

THE EIGHTH SESSION OF THIS INSTITUTION, conducted by the Franciscan Fathers of St. Barbara, will commence on the first Monday in August.

The object of the institution is to give a practical and thorough education, based on religious principles. The course of study embraces the various branches of a solid, useful and refined education.

TERMS.

Entrance Fee (to be paid but once).....$ 5 00
Board, Tuition, Washing, Bedding and Mending of Clothes, per session of five months.....100 00
Physician's Fee (only when required).....5 00
Use of Bed and Bedding.....5 00
Use of Bed and Bedding.....5 00
Modern languages, Music, Drawing and Painting form extra charges.
Use of Bed and Bedding.....5 00
Use of Bed and Bedding.....5 00
Use of Bed and Bedding.....5 00

Written for THE MONITOR.

THE GOLDEN SEA.

A song for the golden sea!
A song for the wide and wondrous main,
For the wind-swept waves of the golden grain
That sway on the sunlit sea.

Over the mighty deep—
Over the waste of the watery vast,
The stormy roll and the roaring blast
In Nature's fiery sweep.

We for the ships that gave
Their priceless freight to the trait'rous tide,
And dared, in their haunted strength, to glide
O'er the stormy-vexed wave.

We for the storm-rent sails!
For the riven masts and the parted ropes,
And the human power that calmly copes
With the strength of ocean gales!

O terrible sea! no—
In peaceful mood or in warlike crest,
With storm or zephyr to sing the breeze—
In ever the watery zone!

But sing for the wave of gold,
For the shining billows that whisper low
To the sunshine kisses that come and go,
Of their magical wealth untold!

Sweet songs of the south lea—
Ah, richest treasure of golden grain!
Ah, priceless freight of the crashing wake,
Of the land stripped agrain!

From harbor free, amidst shores,
From the golden mouth of the royal sea,
The shining sea of the rain bath wea
The parent of all his love;

For home is regal pride
To bathe in the dew and verdant sea,
And toil at the breast of the fragrant sea
A bright Peruvian bee!

Gone was the emerald hue,
But over the wind swept meadows rolled
The wondrous billows of sheen, argent,
With diamond crests of dew.

While ships to death go down,
The golden waves of the plain are rife
With glorious decks of wonderful life,
Their glad explorer's crown.

"This is the peerless bee
Of the golden sea that hath come ashore—
The hidden heaps of the banded sheaves
Uprared in the summer's noon.

Then greet the harvest free!
Of glorious land reaper's crown
Be this the ringing and glad refrain—
"All hail to the golden sea!"

MARIE.

Napoleon and O'Connell.

Yet if we compare O'Connell's labors and their results with those of the great soldier whose career had closed while the former was only beginning his peaceful struggle with England, there is no reason to shrink from the verdict. Emancipation was worth many Marengos. The rule of the Liberator may fairly be set off against that of the Conqueror. The civic crown of green and gold placed on O'Connell's head on the Rath of Mullaghmast, in the presence of 400,000 men, was an emblem of true sovereignty greater in many ways than that iron crown which Napoleon lifted with his own ambitious hands from the altar at Milan. The one thing needful, it might be said, with the blood and tears of unknown thousands; the other well invested with the halo of peace, which all statesmen of religious influence and education to the rights of freemen had bestowed here a willing and unanimous homage. Napoleon and O'Connell smile in death as they smiled in the days of such as he gazed for the last time on the shores of his country! One, possessed by the shattering of his gigantic ambition, and the assertion of pouty details of etiquette in the midst of the ruin around him; the other, oblivious of self, was wrapped down by the doom of famine into the adventurous circumstances of power, and in Southern Europe from the death. To what extent the crops there have been so short, and famine so long known; but that there will be a considerable spoilage is generally conceded. Reports from Naples heavily in arrears part of the week, but during the last half it has been mainly a speculators' market. After being nearly a week in advance in pleasure of Spring Wheat to $1 40 and $1 55, in the face of the rapid decline in gold and freights, word came by cable that England had fine weather and more tranquil markets, which led to a prompt reaction, sales being made and offered to-day at $1 38 for No. 2 Milwaukee in store, and at $1 35 @ $1 35 @ $1 32 in store, for No. 2 Chicago. At the close, the market is quiet, all parties awaiting further developments. There is no doubt that the suit-ure of our wheat crop can all be marketed in Europe at much better prices than have prevailed for the bulk of last year's crop; but it will not do to assume that the deficiencies of Western Europe can be met from no other quarter than the United States. Crops in the leading agricultural countries of Europe may be, and no doubt are, below the average, and yet the Eastern and Southern parts will unquestionably have considerable surplus to spare for the West; and, besides, higher prices rarely fail to stimulate supply and lessen consumption from unexposed sources. The more conservative operators are disposed to pause until more comprehensive views can be obtained. The activity in Wheat has carried with it a considerable advance in Corn, oats and the minor products, though there was a partial reaction in prices toward the close, Freights ruling nothing like the inquiry. The latest grain charters have been at 8c. to 8c. 3d., to the United Kingdom via Cork, and to the Continent direct. France has only taken two small cargoes, the remainder of the Continental ship ments having been to Holland and Belgium. Germany has taken nothing, crop advices from that country being mainly good.

The following singular advertisement has appeared in the London Morning Post: "A lady is anxious to find a home for a young lady in whom she is deeply interested. She will undertake with or without children. She has good health, good temper, cultivated mind, quiet and homely tastes, and religious principles, devoted to children. A Plymouth brother would be preferred. Any one who gets her will have God for such a life companion."

A farmer and his wife called at a photograph gallery to order some portraits of her, and while the operator was getting ready, the husband gave the wife advice as to how she should act. "Hasten your natural expression, my dear," he said, "and don't you laugh and spile the job. Think about earlier days—how your father got in jail, and your mother was an old scolder, and what you'd have been if I hadn't pitied you. Just fasten your mind on that." Nor didn't have any photographs taken that day.

Rev. J. W. Thomas, a Methodist New Connection minister at Tunswall, has been expelled by the Conference for misconduct, grow of the charges against him was that of promising marriage to four young ladies.

General Sherman at Edenton.

The Louisville Courier Journal published in the latter part of June a furious assault upon General Sherman from the pen of its Southern contributors, charging him with needlessly burning a cotton factory at Edenton during his march through Georgia, although piteously begged to spare it by two hundred women and children whose only support it was, and suggesting that Mrs. Sherman's charity to Southern Catholic churches since the war may be caused by her fears as to the eternal destiny of the man who burned a convent in Columbia, and was cursed for it by the nuns whom he ejected. An ex-soldier who had served under Sherman sent him the paper, but as the General was absent in New England, Mrs. Sherman returned the following womanly defence of her husband, which was published, like the defamation which called it forth, in the Courier-Journal:

The General is absent, but I have seen your letter, and the article inclosed from a paper which has been considered respectable. The General has the intention to answer anything which has been put forth in a spirit of malice, envy, anger, or resentment, regarding his "Memoirs." You may say for me, however, that the most "ghastly apparition" at which "cringe before the soul" the ogre which "dills me with the greatest horror"—is the "weird dread" of the fate of those (especially if they be Catholics) who indulge in such baseless slanders and spread them with such malicious falsehood. My knowledge of General Sherman's character is thorough. Every year of his life some his wife since old, I have associated with him or corresponded with him, and I have known his every thought. Could the natural virtues and a heart free from malice, resentment or injustice secure heaven to a man, I need not ask for him the supernatural gift of faith. The Courier-Journal says he perpetrated an enormity in himself applying the torch to a factory, during which time he was also guilty of blasphemy. Now, I know that he was never guilty of blasphemy or profanity, and the man of the Courier-Journal knew when they penned that article that he had never applied the torch to a building. How shameful to slander a religious body by basing her off deplorable telling down a curse upon a man! When the convent of the Ursuline nuns at Columbia, S. C., was reported to be in danger of burning, Gen. Sherman sent my brother, General Charles Ewing, and a commissary officer, Major W. W. Comyn, both Catholics, with orders and authority to do all they could to defend the Sisters and those under their charge. They executed the orders with zeal and great kindness, and under continued instructions from General Sherman they assigned to them a goodly number of soldiers as escort and aided to their wants until the army left the place. Curses which are called down will not fall upon General Sherman, and he does too good to wish that they may rest upon those who have upon them. Let the Sisters revile, and the false invent slanders, and let such journals as choose to deal in such things publish to the world; but let them not presume to assign to me sentiments so foreign to my heart regarding the most whose life is a practical, unswerving principle, gentleness of heart, and courage of soul have been developed and confirmed in the admiration and confidence of my youth.

The New York Wheat Market.

The Monetary Times of Toronto, June 25, has been a lively one in the Produce and Grain markets, with wide fluctuations in prices and no little excitement. The first two sections in Wheat each fully 2,500,000 bushels, in good part for August and September delivery, and for speculative account, based upon the damage to crops in Western Europe from heavy rains, and in Southern Europe from the drouth. To what extent the crops there have been so short, and famine so long known; but that there will be a considerable spoilage is generally conceded. Reports from Naples heavily in arrears part of the week, but during the last half it has been mainly a speculators' market. After being nearly a week in advance in pleasure of Spring Wheat to $1 40 and $1 55, in the face of the rapid decline in gold and freights, word came by cable that England had fine weather and more tranquil markets, which led to a prompt reaction, sales being made and offered to-day at $1 38 for No. 2 Milwaukee in store, and at $1 35 @ $1 35 @ $1 32 in store, for No. 2 Chicago. At the close, the market is quiet, all parties awaiting further developments. There is no doubt that the suit-ure of our wheat crop can all be marketed in Europe at much better prices than have prevailed for the bulk of last year's crop; but it will not do to assume that the deficiencies of Western Europe can be met from no other quarter than the United States. Crops in the leading agricultural countries of Europe may be, and no doubt are, below the average, and yet the Eastern and Southern parts will unquestionably have considerable surplus to spare for the West; and, besides, higher prices rarely fail to stimulate supply and lessen consumption from unexposed sources. The more conservative operators are disposed to pause until more comprehensive views can be obtained. The activity in Wheat has carried with it a considerable advance in Corn, oats and the minor products, though there was a partial reaction in prices toward the close, Freights ruling nothing like the inquiry. The latest grain charters have been at 8c. to 8c. 3d., to the United Kingdom via Cork, and to the Continent direct. France has only taken two small cargoes, the remainder of the Continental ship ments having been to Holland and Belgium. Germany has taken nothing, crop advices from that country being mainly good.

Wholesale Market Report.

MONITOR OFFICE, SAN FRANCISCO,
TUESDAY, July 27, 1875.

FLOUR—Quotations are as follows: Superfine, in half and quarter sacks, $5 10@5 50; Extra, $5 75@6; shipping grades, $5 25@5 50.

WHEAT—Prices ruled firm during the week until the 26th, when the news of a temporary lull in freights and rates on cleir caused a temporary depression in the market. The Liverpool market was telegraphed on the 26th as follows: No. 2 spring, 10s. 2d.; No. 1 California, 10s. 3d. Cable quotations at 6 p. m. to-day are 5d. on shot and 5d. on short once out last. We quote good shipping at about $1 37½.

BARLEY—The demand is good for feed, and sales are held at $1 50@1 55; Chevalier, $1 67½@1 75; brewing, $1 55@1 60.

OATS—Sales are in good supply at $1 70@3.

HAY—Weak at $12@16 per ton.

CORN—We quote yellow at $1 40; white, $1 45 @1 50.

BRAN—The following are the jobbing rates: Bran, $17 50@18; Middlings, $19@20; Chop Feed, $21@22; Rolled Barley, $21@22; Cracked Corn, $23@24; Oil Meal, $1 25@1 30.

POTATOES—The receipts have been free, with a large supply. We quote 60@75 per 100 lbs.

BEANS—Quotable at $2 50 per 100 lbs.

ONIONS—Are quoted at $2 50@3 per 100 lbs from the bills.

BUCKWHEAT—Quotable at $1 75@2 per 100 lbs.

BEESWAX—We quote Canary, 25c; Flat, 24@25c; Amber, 23@24c; Dark, 20@22c; Mexican, 20@ 22c.

HIDES—We quote California dry, 15@16c; Salted, 12@13c; Oregon, 12@13c.

TALLOW—Quotable at 6@7c ₱ lb.

WOOL—We quote choice long staple grades, 34@ 36c; good clothing, 32@34c; fine, 30@32c; heavy fine, 28@30c; coarse, 24@26c; tender, 22@24c; burry, 20@22c ₱ lb.

HOPS—Are quoted at 20@22c ₱ lb.

CALIFORNIA Standard and English dry, at 16@18 ½c; Light, 15@16c; Dark, 14@15c; Foggy, 13@14c; Soft, 12@13c; Stumps, Shank, &c., 10@11c; Fine medium, 16@17c; Fine medium, Choice, 18@19c; Fine Choice, 20@21c; Extra choice, 22@23c; Choice for mould and dipping, 24@25c.

OREGON—Sales are reported at 16@17c; 50 for washing, and 18 @ 20 for choice washing; Fleece, 19@21c; Light medium, 20@22c; Choice, 23@24c; Extra choice, 25@26c.

CHILI—Sales are reported at 15@16c; Fine, 17@18c; Fine choice, 19@20c.

PERU—Sales are reported at 15@16c; Fine, 17@18c; Fine choice, 19@20c.

SANDWICH ISLANDS—Sales are reported at 15@16c; Fine, 17@18c; Fine choice, 19@20c.

DAIRY PRODUCTS.

BUTTER—California fresh roll, good to choice, 27@30c; Fresh firkin, 25@28c; Pickled, 18@20c; Cornish—California, 18@20c; Oregon, 18@20c; Canada—California, 17@20c; Oregon, 17@20c; Choice, 22@25c; Inferior, 15@16c; Pickled, 15@16c; Pats, 20@25c; Rancho—California, 18@20c; Oregon, 18@20c.

CHEESE—Quotable at 15½@16½c in tns, and 16@17c in cs.

FRESH MEATS.

BEEF—For first quality, 5 @ 7c; other grades, 4@ 5c ₱ lb.

VEAL—Large, 6@7c ₱ lb.

MUTTON—Sheep, 6@7c ₱ lb.

LAMB—Dressed, grain-fed, 8@10c; on foot, grain-fed, 5@7c ₱ lb.

POULTRY AND GAME.

POULTRY—Hens, large, $6 50@7 00; Broilers, $5 @6 50; Roosters, fried & dozen.

GEESE—$6@8 ₱ dozen.

DUCKS—$5@6 ₱ dozen.

TURKEYS—Old, 20@22c ₱ lb.

PIGEONS—$1 50 @ dozen.

RABBITS—$1@1 50 ₱ dozen.

QUAIL—Plenty; English Snipe, $1 50@2; small do., $1@1 50 ₱ dozen.

GRAY'S
Music Stores and Music Publishing House,
108 Kearny Street, San Francisco, and
101 First Street, Portland, O.
The only Importing and Publishing House on the Coast.
STEINWAY PIANOS AND SOLE AGENCY
DEBY ORGANS.
GUILD, CHURCH & CO. PIANOS
AND SHONINGER ORGANS.
CARL ARONICH, KRANICH & BACH, ERNST GABLER, AND M. GRAY Squares and Uprights.
The Largest Stock of Music on the Pacific Coast.
Pianos for Rent at from $6 to $10 per month. tf
GRAY'S MUSIC STORES.

DIVIDEND NOTICE.
California Savings and Loan Society,
101 California Street.
The Directors have declared a dividend of Nine and one-half dollars ($9 50) per cent. per annum on Term Deposits, and Eight (8) per cent. per annum on Ordinary Deposits, for the half year ending 30th June, 1875—free from Federal tax, and payable on and after Tuesday, the 3d inst. By order.
D. B. CHRISHOLM, Secretary.
jy3

MENEELY'S BELL FOUNDRY,
WEST TROY, NEW YORK.
Established in 1826.
CHURCH, ACADEMY, FACTORY AND OTHER BELLS, made of copper and tin, warranted satisfactory, and mounted with our New Patent Rotary Yoke—the most recent and desirable Bell Hanging for use. For prices and catalogues apply to MENEELY & COMPANY,
West Troy, New York.

JOHN F. LYONS,
COLLECTOR AND BUSINESS AGENT.
WOULD RESPECTFULLY INFORM HIS friends and others who may desire his services, that he has entered into the business of Collecting Rents, Bills, Serving Legal Papers, etc. He also will act as ADVERTISING AGENT FOR INTELLIGENCE PAPERS.
All orders left at THE MONITOR office, 626 Clay street, will receive prompt attention.
ap13

MISCELLANEOUS.

CALISTOGA
REAL ESTATE COMPANY.
CALISTOGA, WITH A POPULATION OF about 500 persons, is a village watering-place at the head of the Napa Valley, in California. It is 90 hours' travel north of San Francisco by steamer and rail. Its shipping port is Vallejo, on the Bay of San Francisco, forty miles distant by rail. It is at the head of the most charming valley in the State.
THE BEAUTIES OF NAPA.
In traveling this thirty-seven miles of fertile dale the eye never wearies. If one ascends the sides of the lofty mountains that bound the valley on either side, whether looking up the valley or down, and from whatever point of view, the scene is one of ravishing beauty.
Mounting the summit of St. Helena, which towers over all, fall to the east the snowy Nevadas bound the view; and to the west spreads the Pacific Ocean, with its winged ships and its blue horizon. To the north are the vast forests of Mendocino, its stately pines terced in shrubbery, and Clear Lake, in its pride of expanse, stretched in a mile-dim.
THE WARM SPRINGS.
From the beauties of Calistoga we turn to its other attractions. The estate covers 1,500 acres of fertile land. Its Warm Springs are endowed with healing who flock to its bathing waters, and who return cured of their rheumatism, their paralysis, their neuralgia, their nervousness and their kidneys. The medicinal elements of the hot springs are principally iron, magnesia and sulphur. In this climate the season of watering places is prolonged.
THE SURROUNDINGS.
By consulting the map it will be apparent that Calistoga is destined to become a commercial town of importance. It is the center to which converge the rich agricultural valleys of Napa, which will grow every year more populous and more productive, and through which will empty all the products of the mines of the Mayacmas Mountains, which bound it on the east and the Coast Range on the west. The latent grain charters have been at 8c. to 8c. 3d., to the United Kingdom via Cork, and to the Continent direct. France has only taken two small cargoes, the remainder of the Continental ship ments having been to Holland and Belgium. Germany has taken nothing, crop advices from that country being mainly good.
INDUSTRIAL ENTERPRISES.
A new industry is now being introduced at the head of the valley of Napa, which will give easy employment to all the people in the neighborhood for many years, and create a permanently remunerative market. The Liverpool market was telegraphed on the 26th as follows: No. 2 spring, 10s. 2d.; No. 1 California, 10s. 3d. Cable quotations at 6 p. m. to-day are 5d. on shot and 5d. on short once out last. We quote good shipping at about $1 37½.
BARLEY—The demand is good for feed, and sales are held at $1 50@1 55; Chevalier, $1 67½@1 75; brewing, $1 55@1 60.
OATS—Sales are in good supply at $1 70@3.
HAY—Weak at $12@16 per ton.
CORN—We quote yellow at $1 40; white, $1 45 @1 50.
BRAN—The following are the jobbing rates: Bran, $17 50@18; Middlings, $19@20; Chop Feed, $21@22; Rolled Barley, $21@22; Cracked Corn, $23@24; Oil Meal, $1 25@1 30.
POTATOES—The receipts have been free, with a large supply. We quote 60@75 per 100 lbs.
BEANS—Quotable at $2 50 per 100 lbs.
ONIONS—Are quoted at $2 50@3 per 100 lbs from the bills.
BUCKWHEAT—Quotable at $1 75@2 per 100 lbs.
BEESWAX—We quote Canary, 25c; Flat, 24@25c; Amber, 23@24c; Dark, 20@22c; Mexican, 20@ 22c.
HIDES—We quote California dry, 15@16c; Salted, 12@13c; Oregon, 12@13c.
TALLOW—Quotable at 6@7c ₱ lb.
WOOL—We quote choice long staple grades, 34@ 36c; good clothing, 32@34c; fine, 30@32c; heavy fine, 28@30c; coarse, 24@26c; tender, 22@24c; burry, 20@22c ₱ lb.
HOPS—Are quoted at 20@22c ₱ lb.
CALIFORNIA Standard and English dry, at 16@18 ½c; Light, 15@16c; Dark, 14@15c; Foggy, 13@14c; Soft, 12@13c; Stumps, Shank, &c., 10@11c; Fine medium, 16@17c; Fine medium, Choice, 18@19c; Fine Choice, 20@21c; Extra choice, 22@23c; Choice for mould and dipping, 24@25c.
OREGON—Sales are reported at 16@17c; 50 for washing, and 18 @ 20 for choice washing; Fleece, 19@21c; Light medium, 20@22c; Choice, 23@24c; Extra choice, 25@26c.
CHILI—Sales are reported at 15@16c; Fine, 17@18c; Fine choice, 19@20c.
PERU—Sales are reported at 15@16c; Fine, 17@18c; Fine choice, 19@20c.
SANDWICH ISLANDS—Sales are reported at 15@16c; Fine, 17@18c; Fine choice, 19@20c.
DAIRY PRODUCTS.
BUTTER—California fresh roll, good to choice, 27@30c; Fresh firkin, 25@28c; Pickled, 18@20c; Cornish—California, 18@20c; Oregon, 18@20c; Canada—California, 17@20c; Oregon, 17@20c; Choice, 22@25c; Inferior, 15@16c; Pickled, 15@16c; Pats, 20@25c; Rancho—California, 18@20c; Oregon, 18@20c.
CHEESE—Quotable at 15½@16½c in tns, and 16@17c in cs.
FRESH MEATS.
BEEF—For first quality, 5 @ 7c; other grades, 4@ 5c ₱ lb.
VEAL—Large, 6@7c ₱ lb.
MUTTON—Sheep, 6@7c ₱ lb.
LAMB—Dressed, grain-fed, 8@10c; on foot, grain-fed, 5@7c ₱ lb.
POULTRY AND GAME.
POULTRY—Hens, large, $6 50@7 00; Broilers, $5 @6 50; Roosters, fried & dozen.
GEESE—$6@8 ₱ dozen.
DUCKS—$5@6 ₱ dozen.
TURKEYS—Old, 20@22c ₱ lb.
PIGEONS—$1 50 @ dozen.
RABBITS—$1@1 50 ₱ dozen.
QUAIL—Plenty; English Snipe, $1 50@2; small do., $1@1 50 ₱ dozen.

WYNNE, LOWTH & CO.
HAVE OPENED THEIR NEW
CENTRAL DRY GOODS HOUSE,
704 and 706 MARKET STREET,
OPPOSITE THIRD, AND
7 AND 9 CEARY STREET,
With a new and well-selected Stock of Foreign and Domestic
DRY GOODS,
FANCY GOODS,
SILKS,
SHAWLS,
FURNISHING GOODS,
RIBBONS,
GLOVES, ETC.
All our Goods having been purchased since the decline in the price of Gold, enables us to sell at LOWER PRICES than any other House.
WYNNE, LOWTH & CO.
Central Dry Goods House.
Chas. Fiske, Geo. Wynne, Jas. Bowman.

CHARLES FIELD & CO.,
FURNITURE
MANUFACTURERS,
N. E. cor. Main & Mission Sts
SAN FRANCISCO.
All orders filled at moderate prices. Office and Salesroom at Factory. 1y31

DR. M. J. BOLAN,
HAVING RETURNED TO THE CITY, HAS resumed the practice of his profession at
No. 104 Fourth Street, near Howard.
Office Hours—9 to 12 m. 1 to 4. 1y24

IMPORTANT NOTICE!
Second Grand Annual Sale of Ladies' and Gents'
BOOTS
AND SHOES.

MEN'S AND BOYS'
CUSTOM-MADE CLOTHING.
NO FANCY PRICES, Dry Goods, Etc.
JAMES O'HANLON & CO.,
725 MONTGOMERY STREET, West Side, near Jackson.
J. O'H. & CO. beg leave to inform their numerous friends and patrons that they will sell for the next sixty days, regardless of cost, their IMMENSE STOCK OF STAPLE GOODS. Strangers visiting the city will find it to their advantage to call and compare our prices with those of other stores; they will readily see that they can save 25 cents on the dollar. To be closed out—
1,000 pairs Ladies' Kid-front Balmorals $1 25
Full Seamless Balmorals 1 50
Extra quality Balmorals 1 75
Ladies' Enamelled Balmorals 1 75
Ladies' Enamelled Balmorals 2 00
Ladies' Gaiters, extra quality 2 25
Ladies' Slippers 1 00
Ladies' Carpet Slippers 75
1,000 pairs Leather Slippers 1 00
Many Curious Kinds Boots 1 00
Boys' Custom-made Boots 1 00
Children's Calf Shoes 1 00
Misses' " " 1 00
Men's Rubber Boots 2 00
Men's Rubber Boots (long) 3 00
1,000 suits Men's Clothing, serviceable and good, at $10 00
Elegant Beaver Suits, from ..... $12 50 to $15
A splendid Variety of Fancy Overcoats ..... $10 to $15
Boys' Clothing a specialty; splendid suits, $5 to $8
NEW TAILORING ESTABLISHMENT.
B. FLOOD,
Fashionable Tailor,
637 HOWARD STREET Bet. Second and Third.
Fine Clothing made to order at the following low prices:
Fine American Cassimere Pants, to order ..... $4 to $6
Fine Business Suits, to order ..... $25 to $30
Fine Dress Suits, to order ..... $35 to $40
Fine French Beaver Suits, to order ..... $45 to $50
Fine Spring Overcoats, to order ..... $25 to $30
All other garments made at proportionally low rates. Full satisfaction guaranteed as to quality of goods, workmanship and style. 1y24-1y
Fine Livery Suits.
Read this! Read This!
THE GRANGER WATCH
HAS JUST BEEN PATENTED BY
J. W. TUCKER & CO.
JEWELERS,
161 Kearny Street, San Francisco
If you WANT TO HAVE YOUR CHOICE Watches keep good time, and cheap gold chains, send to J. W. TUCKER & CO., 161 Kearny street, San Francisco, and get their Price List. Please give him a trial. You will have no more difficulty in selecting a good watch after you have seen it. Watches, Chains and Jewelry sent C. O. D. to any part of the country, with the privilege of examining before paying for same. Please mention this paper in sending for Price List. Address as above. jy17
JOHN F. KENNY. MORRIS SHEAHAN
KENNY & SHEAHAN
MERCHANT TAILORS,
No. 24 Third Street.
ARE PREPARED TO MAKE GENTLEMEN'S
Business Suits
Fine Beaver Suits
Finest Dress Suits
Latest Fashionable Styles.
The most Perfect FIT. The best Workmanship and lowest Cash Prices than any other first-class establishment in the city.
Country Orders Solicited.
GREAT BARGAINS
IN BOOTS AND SHOES,
AT HEALY'S, HEALY'S
846 MARKET STREET (OPPOSITE FOURTH)
PRICES TO DEFY COMPETITION.
GEO. W. LY & CO.
EXTRA CHOICE
COFFEE TEAS GROCERIES
SAN FRANCISCO
822 MARKET
4 pounds Excellent Coffee $1
2 pounds Best Coffee 1
1 pound Best English Breakfast Tea 1
1 pound Splendid Japan Tea 1
1 pound Good Black Tea 1
Also Publishers of the San Francisco Monitor.
Tempus Proterimus Nunquam Reparamus.
"Time Past Is Never Retrieved."

THE MONITOR AND GUARDIAN;

The Only Irish and Catholic Journal in California.

LYONS & BARRY, - - - Publishers.
DENIS LYONS. JOHN V. BARRY.
RICHARD O'SULLIVAN ..... EDITOR.
DENIS LYONS ..... BUSINESS MANAGER.

OFFICE—622 CLAY STREET, between Montgomery and Kearny sts. (Rooms 2, 3 and 4, up-stairs.)
☞ All communications should be addressed to Lyons & Barry.

TERMS (Payable in Advance):

Served by Carriers, per week	10c
Mail Subscribers, per year	$5 00
Six months	3 00
Mail Subscribers in Ireland or either of the British Provinces, per year	6 00
Do. six months	3 00
☞ Postage to Irish ports prepaid by publishers.

ADVERTISING RATES:

1 square, 1 time	$1 50	1 square, 1 month	$10 50
" 1 month	10 50	" 2 months	15 00
" 2 months	7 00	" 3 months	19 50
" 3 months	10 50	" 1 year	60 00

☞ The above rates will be strictly adhered to.
Job Printing Executed Neatly and Cheaply.

The Monitor And Guardian.
MILDES PATRIA UNITAS CARITAS
VOL. XVIII. SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., SATURDAY, AUGUST 7, 1875. NO. 44.

Written for THE MONITOR.

DANIEL O'CONNELL'S CENTENARY.

O mother of saints and heroes!
Arise in thy grace to-day,
And speak in the hearts of thy children,
Wherever their footsteps stray.

Speak as only a mother speaketh
When she tells of the great deeds done,
For the sake of her love unbounded,
By a noble and chartered son.

Till their souls shall glow in fervor
With many an answering thrill,
As memory calls to mind
The days of the past to recall.

That tender and true Tara's hill;

The voice that o'er the Curragh
Swept like a wind of the west,
And fired the hearts of the people
At the blush of Enlightenment;

The voice of the Liberator,
Subduing all hearts with silver chimes,
Dispelling the gloom and darkness
And horror of penal times.

For his character, grand as Tone, Erie,
The right for thy sons to stand,
In the light of the falls of their fathers,
Redeemed from the chains of a land.

For great was thy weight of weight,)
Most great thy thorny crown,
And heavy the iron fetters
With which prison had weighed down them.

They had martyred thy priests and bishops,
Laid thy altars and abbeys low,
And thy children and poor and anchors
Were marked as a common foe.

They smote the hedgerows,
Or in the midnight darkness
Might they seek for their scattered sheep.

The sword of thy persecutor
Hath stripped with the bloody hand
When O'Connell was sent into thee
To comfort his fallen land.

Never before, O mother,
Was such glorious victory won,
Without pain and battle carnage,
As this which awaited one son.

When he roused from their trance of sorrow
His brothers, who bleeding lay
Under the heel of their tyrants,
With the hope of a better day;

When with words of such burning power
He unsummoned them far and wide,
And waked the dead nation's
Their national love and pride;

When, not as a plodding nation,
But a people inspired, they rose,
Resolved to be free as their fathers
And their fathers' fathers before;

That free is the right of the world
Which God gave to all mankind,
And that no one hath children
Who is not their fathers' kind.

Poet can't 'mouth their motive alone!

That religion's fairest of daughters—
Learning—might stand more secure,
Loved and honored of the Nations
As she had been in days of yore.

Blessings of untold merit
Will be showered on their—
For thee and thy exiled children
After by each distant sea;

For wherever the flag of England
Marked the march of her power,
There was Emancipation
To the rights of the Penal Bower.

He stood in the light unflinching
And firm in thy chartered cause,
And laid all his best, O mother,
The corner-stone of the pedestal for.

For this do thy children sow him
Love fervent and strong and deep!
For this in our hearts' recess
Most sacred his name we keep.

And over the earth's expanses,
Where thy exiled children stray,
Their voices are raised in honor
Of O'Connell's natal day!

For now in the light of the freedom
His untiring electioneering won,
We hear, O mother, the echoes
The words of thy noble son!

And while others from streets of lament
To down their sorrow will,
Take them from the golden overlaid
Talk spray of Moss for his shrine!

MARIE.

MOUNT WOODLAND, August, 1875.

PAUL DE CASSAGNAC CHALLENGED BY ROCHEFORT.—London, July 30.—The Times reports that Henri Rochefort on the 10th inst. sent a challenge to Paul De Cassagnac, calling him to come to Belgium to fight with sconce. The cause of the challenge was a certain article appearing in La Paye on the 9th. De Cassagnac replied with an excessively abusive letter, giving Rochefort the choice of weapons and naming the seconds. Rochefort's seconds have met those of Cassagnac in Paris to arrange for the duel. They claimed that as their prine pal is the insulted party, he has not only the choice of weapons, but the right to decree the distance. They then demanded that the men meet with pistols at five paces and shoot at the word of command. De Cassagnac's seconds said this was simply murder, as when the men met the nonchalants would be astonished the muscles of their weapons would almost touch. Rochefort's seconds refused to admit the objections, and said that their principal, considering the importance of the case, had been very lenient. The seconds broke off. The friends of De Cassagnac then proposed that the distance be thirty paces each man, hesitant to be allowed to advance five steps after the word is given; the time of firing to be optional; the shooting to continue until one falls. Rochefort's seconds declined this, and the matter rests for the present.

The Daily News has a dispatch stating that a paper has been drawn up, signed by the seconds of both parties, declaring it impossible to settle the conditions of the duel.

Hon. Dr. Pollen has taken the place of Sir Julius Vogel as Premier of New Zealand.

A Growl from John Bull.

One London writer has had the courage and the honesty to speak out what was in his mind, and what was in the minds of very many Englishmen concerning the celebration of the centenary of American Independence which takes place next year. For many years there has been a good deal of false glitter about this event. Americans habitually kept up in England, much friendly sentiment has been affected, and very many pleasant things have been spoken with the lips without the existence of any corresponding feeling in the heart. Since the United States grew to be a great power it has been thought wise and politic by "representative Englishmen" to pretend that the anniversary triumph in the War of Independence, far from leaving any sort of regret or grudge in the British mind, is in fact quite a pleasing recollection. That the struggle was glorious for both parties, that the result was a blessing to each, that the memory of it is delightful, and that England and America should each be proud of the share and sentiments which crop up from time to time in British literature, and in the remarks delivered by British orators on occasions when Americans form part of the company. A good many Americans, we dare say, take this sort of talk for no more than it is worth, and what this is may be gathered by judging from the action we now refer to. We learn that a number of American gentlemen in London, either rejoicing on the friendly professions regarding their country which they have been in the habit of hearing, or deeming to put some of the reprehensive English to the trouble of using their lack and talking their undignified and humiliating nonsense on a very public and remarkable occasion, got up a grand dinner in honor of the Fourth of July at the Crystal Palace, and got Dean Stanley to do the very loving, highly gratified, and jubilant Englishman for them. But John Bull thinks this was carrying the matter a little too far, and at this point the "representative" men of the country are left to themselves. They are left to their own devices, and they are only encouraged by the cringing flattery which Dr. Stanley calls conciliatory and pneumatikig. There is no gain and little safety in a peacemaking which is wholly one-sided."

So much being said, the Standard turns round and indulges in a fierce outpour of abuse on the Government and people of America. One half the country at least, it says, bitterly regrets the enslavement of its independence—a statement which we refer to the judgment of the opponents of secession in the Southern States of America. Then, as to the other half, we read:

"Northward, rottenness pervades the entire fabric of politics—the State Governments, the Federal Government, Congress, the Executive, the Civil Service, the Treasury, the collection of revenue, are one and all steeped in bribery, disgraced by peculation, trained in corruption and dishonesty. It is not pretended that any part of the Government is honest; it is scarcely considered worth while to affect the virtue so notoriously wanted. Even the judiciary is dishonored. Corruption has spread downwards, until merchants and men of business, railway directors and officers, are by no one who serves the public or a corporation, in the highest or the lowest capacity, are scarcely better than the worst Fenian collector of customs. Tyranny, such as George III., would have abhorred, is now half the Union, all pervading dishonesty and corruption," at which Walpole or Newcastle would have shuddered, in the other—those are the results of ninety-nine years of American Independence! these the facts, these the sobbevements on which Americans yesterday congratulated themselves, on the strength of which they extolled over England. If there be a man in England who is disposed to envy them, he has only to visit America and study the actual working of her Government. Among the Americans there are but few, not select patriots in the system of public plunder, who are not ashamed and disgusted in their hearts; and of the better sort not many who would not thankfully exchange their election President, their elective Senate, their elective judges and their popular sovereignty, for the order, the honesty and the loyalty of the empire from which, just a hundred years ago, they made their insane revolt."

Such is John Bull's picture of the American people presented to them with his compliments as a specimen of their high-toned sence. It is a repulsive one, blackened and distorted in every feature, but it is an honest expression of his feeling in this matter. He feels he has been dissembling his real sentiments long enough; and he knows that he might have gone on in the same way for a good while longer if his self-love had not been most foolishly and unnecessarily hit by the Fourth of July banquet in London. But this is the signal of the opportunity of which Southern States of America. Then, as to the other half, we read:

"Northward, rottenness pervades the entire fabric of politics—the State Governments, the Federal Government, Congress, the Executive, the Civil Service, the Treasury, the collection of revenue, are one and all steeped in bribery, disgraced by peculation, trained in corruption and dishonesty. It is not pretended that any part of the Government is honest; it is scarcely considered worth while to affect the virtue so notoriously wanted. Even the judiciary is dishonored. Corruption has spread downwards, until merchants and men of business, railway directors and officers, and everyone who serves the public or a corporation, in the highest or the lowest capacity, are scarcely better than the worst Fenian collector of customs. Tyranny, such as George III., would have abhorred, is now half the Union, all pervading dishonesty and corruption," at which Walpole or Newcastle would have shuddered, in the other—those are the results of ninety-nine years of American Independence! these the facts, these the sobbevements on which Americans yesterday congratulated themselves, on the strength of which they extolled over England. If there be a man in England who is disposed to envy them, he has only to visit America and study the actual working of her Government. Among the Americans there are but few, not select patriots in the system of public plunder, who are not ashamed and disgusted in their hearts; and of the better sort not many who would not thankfully exchange their election President, their elective Senate, their elective judges and their popular sovereignty, for the order, the honesty and the loyalty of the empire from which, just a hundred years ago, they made their insane revolt."

Such is John Bull's picture of the American people presented to them with his compliments as a specimen of their high-toned sence. It is a repulsive one, blackened and distorted in every feature, but it is an honest expression of his feeling in this matter. He feels he has been dissembling his real sentiments long enough; and he knows that he might have gone on in the same way for a good while longer if his self-love had not been most foolishly and unnecessarily hit by the Fourth of July banquet in London. But this is the signal of the opportunity of which Southern States of America. Then, as to the other half, we read:

"Northward, rottenness pervades the entire fabric of politics—the State Governments, the Federal Government, Congress, the Executive, the Civil Service, the Treasury, the collection of revenue, are one and all steeped in bribery, disgraced by peculation, trained in corruption and dishonesty. It is not pretended that any part of the Government is honest; it is scarcely considered worth while to affect the virtue so notoriously wanted. Even the judiciary is dishonored. Corruption has spread downwards, until merchants and men of business, railway directors and officers, and everyone who serves the public or a corporation, in the highest or the lowest capacity, are scarcely better than the worst Fenian collector of customs

AIFFE'S REVENGE.

I.

Many an old forgotten story of the heroes of the Round in childhood, comes upon me—tales of yore I am not blind and weary, but I'll tell thee of it now.

Of the deeds of many a chieftain of the glorious days I can still see blind and weary; peace and rest are all I crave.

For I'm galed, slowly, slowly, to the silence of the grave.

But my pulses throb the faster, and mines grow with When I think of all the glory that our fathers won in fight.

Therefore that waved so proudly o'er the crim-Thanes the banner,

Therefore the heart could meet death nobly, but would never stoop in [illegible];

Yea they could, and that right nobly; courage is that bosom burned.

And they never fled from field or foray but with honor bore returned.

II.

In the hall of Sire Ouchbella lived, and loved the Did the gentle breeze of summer have the chieftain's By the daily-coming cross wonders she with hope, and the never seen his vessel rising to the crimson Wash;

Over the lonely wanderer daily, till at last she hoped Then by day the wondered sadly, till at last she hoped and the silent but true soul made mute, worships from the Least, as on, from the [illegible], where the red sun's Sank, at eve, between the [illegible],

Then she sighed [illegible], wandered many an evening By the strand—but brother all the more that Aiffe

Gained my heart, in my bosom pants thy heart with Sweet, thy [illegible] in my bosom pants thy heart with Shall my heaving bosom triumph? must I only suffer

Not upon the house I repose [illegible], O chilling blog of Of [illegible],

Constantly intense flashes over shall the shower,

Doth [illegible] Shall thy shower, tough and thee

Be [illegible] Shall thy shower, tough and thee

Bound with still the rose and lovelia, and revenge

Thou the spoken, and [illegible] Ouchen, scarcely

Heard [illegible] with [illegible]

Down; and then the gentle monarch sank upon

III.

Now with crazed and sense and lovelia flowed the Green of Ossian's days;

Some his lyre, a wandered cowards' fair

And [illegible] praise;

And to clutch that heart of fire, eye of hard and

Sorrow of steel,

Seemed it [illegible] servant, should be trained a

Samuel loved to spoil

Oh, my [illegible] home, to the island of the

Dear [illegible]

Dost thou challenge to the farm of the heaven and

Dost thou bring [illegible] [illegible] hand and serve

Dost thou [illegible] [illegible]

Well I know Caoilte's firmament with thy vanished

For, though [illegible] in the ocean wast he crave he

Yet I will [illegible]

Crown [illegible] battle never stained or Irish clear.

Oh, my son, and ere the winter come his shadow on

Feel the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

IV.

Over the [illegible] manner of cross Ossioch's vessel

And [illegible]

Sorrow [illegible] him of Kite once the joyful sailors

Sorrow [illegible]

Sorrow [illegible] and her lonely greeting, when, upon the

Over [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Sorrow [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Sorrow [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Sorrow [illegible]

WEEKLY CALENDAR.
FOR THE WEEK ENDING AUGUST 14.
August.
8—Sunday—Twelfth Sunday after Pentecost.
9—Monday—St. Lawrence, Martyr. Ember Day.
10—Tuesday—St. Clara, Virgin.
11—Wednesday—Of the Octave.
12—Thursday—St. Clara, Virgin.
13—Friday—Of the Octave. SS. Hippolytus and Cassian, Martyrs.
14—Saturday—Vigil of the Assumption. St. Eusebius, Conf.-not.

THE MONITOR & GUARDIAN:
AND ONLY
Irish and Catholic Journal in California.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

SATURDAY ..... AUGUST 7, 1875.

SUBSCRIBERS will please specially look a fter printed label on the margin or wrapper of the paper the date thereon shows when the subscription expires.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

"MOK."—The population of Ireland was largest in 1841, when it amounted to 8,178,000. Since then it has been constantly decreased. Now it is about 5,400,000.

"A READER," Oakland, is informed that the reason for making the Jubilee extends to the last day of this year. The NORTON of March 6th contains the Archbishop's pastoral on that occasion.

THE O'CONNELL CENTENARY.

It is not easy to estimate the proper value of the telegrams received during the past week, the purport of which goes to show that the O'CONNELL Centenary celebration is likely to be marred by dissensions among the people. In the latest Irish papers which have reached us we find a statement whatever to be denied or confirmed of opinion about the celebration, but, on the contrary, we discover every sign of harmony and satisfaction. The cause of the disagreement reported by telegraph is said to be the accidentally religious character of the proposed ceremonies and the prominence given to Catholic priests and dignitaries! The objection is certainly a strange one, and we cannot think that it is seriously urged by many intelligent people. Some few extremists, or individuals who are better able to destroy than to build up, may possibly urge this objection in the hope of making the celebration a failure, but we can scarcely believe that they express the sentiments of any considerable body of the population.

It is stated that Protestant and Conservative gentlemen who admired O'CONNELL as the champion of civil and religious liberty in his days, and who would willingly do honor to his memory on that account, are deterred from taking any part in the celebrations by the fact of their being simply Catholic religious exercises. The idea is asserted that the Home Rulers are discontented because the Repeal labors of O'CONNELL are being altogether ignored, as if they were not worthy of remembrance, or as if they were subservient to the main object in the management of the centennial celebrations to be gained Emancipation. Some say Isolmore, too, complain that the celebration is being manipulated so as to serve the purposes of an anti-Disraelian democracy, and therefore, they say, they can have nothing to do with it, although they would be quite willing to join in any proper tribute of respect to the memory of O'CONNELL as the friend of freedom and the foe of persecution all the world. Beyond doubt there is a plentiful crop of grumbles and complaints from several quarters; but it is hard to say what the final result will be. The telegrams report that there is a likelihood of three celebrations taking place simultaneously—one by the Centenary Committee, another by the Home Rulers, and a third by the Catholic clergy, who will hold a mourning demonstration for their brethren who are yet in prison.

All this is really very sad, inasmuch as it goes to prove that the old curse of dissension is not yet banished from Ireland, but still remains to frustrate and make barren the work of the most noxious and self-asserting portion of the community. We cannot entertain the idea that any one seeks to spoil the celebration merely because the bishops and clergy become a prominent, yet fit and becoming, position in the proceedings—a position, beyond all controversy, the grand achievement of O'CONNELL'S life, and judged by any other result his career was a failure. It cannot be treason for the priests and bishops of Ireland to share the honors for the memory of a man to whom they owe so much. Any objection to their participation cannot be based on motives of interested selfishness to obtain an approval from the Irish people. It is a strong consolation to know that these reports of dissension appear to resolve their chief importance from papers which cannot be regarded as friendly to the demonstration in any sense, and are consequently likely to be somewhat exaggerated. The wish is most heartily indulged in by thought, and those who want the celebration to be a failure have no repugnance to magnifying everything that seems calculated to realize their desire. But a couple of days will tell the whole truth.

THE YOUNG LADIES' ILLUSTRATED READER. New York: The Catholic Publication Society, 9 Warren street. The contents of this nice volume have, we believe, been selected by Mrs. D. J. Sadlier, one of the best Catholic novelists now living, and may therefore claim a certain degree of judgment. The range of subjects is wide, the articles are all interesting, and as they are taken from the works of the most famous writers, their literary excellence stands unquestionable. It is scarcely necessary to add that nothing un-Catholic in tone or objectionable in sentiment has been admitted into the pages of this reader. It is an one, we understand, at Mr. M. Flood's, Market street, and at Mr. Waldteufel's, on the Jetd.

FRANCE AND PRUSSIA.

Attempts have been made to throw upon France all responsibility for the maintenance of the huge armies which are now existing up the industrial resources of Europe. The allegation is that she cherishes an immense desire for vengeance upon Prussia, that she is increasing her military stores with the design of renewing the war as soon as possible, and that Prussia, in consequence, is compelled in self defense to support a large standing army. Both France and Prussia keeping up huge armaments on foot, the remaining European countries must of necessity do the same, and thus the whole continent is nothing but an enormous camp. There is very little truth in the description of the state of affairs. There is no evidence whatever that France intends renewing the war, but a great deal of proof that she desires to put domestic matters in order and establish her position on a sure basis. Despite the politicians or intemperate writers may declaim as much as they please about the necessity of vindicating the national honor, and avenging the warrior of Sedan, but the industrial and working classes do not want that kind of braggadocio talk, and prefer being left to mind their business in peace and quietness. They have had more than enough of war for a long time to come. But, unfortunately, the same pacific disposition do not prevail among the governing Prussian classes. The hard-earned gains of citizens may be as severe to bloodshed as their French neighbors, but as long as Prince BISMARCK or Von MOLTKE desire a renewal of the struggle, that sentiments will be a very little account. They must all march to the border as soon as they get the word.

There is abundance of evidence to show that the Prussian military authorities are now dominant in the Empire, favor a resumption of hostilities, and are intriguing to force a quarrel. It is only a few months since they were engaged on the point of getting their legions in motion for the fields of France, and were prevented from so doing solely by the firm attitude assumed by the Emperor of Russia, who declared that the withdrawal of his troops would be compelled to face his soldiers. This put a stop to warlike movements for the time being, but it did not prevent Prussia from increasing her war fund in a peculiar manner. Just as in 1870, the plan seems to be to force France to declare the war, and then throw all the responsibility on her as the letting aggressor. Spain, however, will hardly be deceived a second time in the same fashion; and Russia, Austria, Italy and England will know very well who ought be blamed if war does break out again. According to the Berlin correspondent of the London Daily Telegraph—a paper hitherto strongly Prussian in its sympathies—part of the programme is to irritate the French Ambassador to the German Court by premeditated slights and insults, in the hope that MACMAHON, like NAPOLEON III., will espouse his cause. The official organs are already indulging in bitter attacks upon that gentleman, who finds them so intolerable that he has asked to be recalled and replaced by some other individual less disposed to exercise a thick skinned. We suppose the Marshal will comply with his request, and quietly ignore the untriendly designs of Prussia and her statesmen. To do any thing else would be to play into their hands. Beyond doubt there is a plentiful crop of grumbles and complaints from several quarters; but it is hard to say what the final result will be. The telegrams report that there is a likelihood of three celebrations taking place simultaneously—one by the Centenary Committee, another by the Home Rulers, and a third by the Catholic clergy, who will hold a mourning demonstration for their brethren who are yet in prison.

All this is really very sad, inasmuch as it goes to prove that the old curse of dissension is not yet banished from Ireland, but still remains to frustrate and make barren the work of the most noxious and self-asserting portion of the community. We cannot entertain the idea that any one seeks to spoil the celebration merely because the bishops and clergy become a prominent, yet fit and becoming, position in the proceedings—a position, beyond all controversy, the grand achievement of O'CONNELL'S life, and judged by any other result his career was a failure. It cannot be treason for the priests and bishops of Ireland to share the honors for the memory of a man to whom they owe so much. Any objection to their participation cannot be based on motives of interested selfishness to obtain an approval from the Irish people. It is a strong consolation to know that these reports of dissension appear to resolve their chief importance from papers which cannot be regarded as friendly to the demonstration in any sense, and are consequently likely to be somewhat exaggerated. The wish is most heartily indulged in by thought, and those who want the celebration to be a failure have no repugnance to magnifying everything that seems calculated to realize their desire. But a couple of days will tell the whole truth.

THE YOUNG LADIES' ILLUSTRATED READER. New York: The Catholic Publication Society, 9 Warren street. The contents of this nice volume have, we believe, been selected by Mrs. D. J. Sadlier, one of the best Catholic novelists now living, and may therefore claim a certain degree of judgment. The range of subjects is wide, the articles are all interesting, and as they are taken from the works of the most famous writers, their literary excellence stands unquestionable. It is scarcely necessary to add that nothing un-Catholic in tone or objectionable in sentiment has been admitted into the pages of this reader. It is an one, we understand, at Mr. M. Flood's, Market street, and at Mr. Waldteufel's, on the Jetd.

A Reserved Compliment.

The leading members of the legal profession—such as C. J. P. Hoge, S. M. Wilson, E. D. Sawyer, John B. Felton, Hall McAllister, T. I. Bergin, Chas. McC. Dempsey, John T. Doyle, Calhoun Benham, S. S. Wright, A. H. Loughborough, Richard Tobin, Alexander Campbell, D. J. Murphy, C. H. L. Barnes, John M. Barnes, Gov. H. H. Haight, in fact all the leading members of the Bar, of every shade of politics—have signed a card, requesting the different nominating conventions, irrespective of party, to re-nominate Hon. R. F. Morrison for the position which he now occupies, Judge of the Fourth District Court. During the six years that Judge Morrison has occupied the Bench the urbanity of manner has given universal satisfaction, while the justice and soundness of his opinions have been acknowledged even by the losing suitors. In addition to high legal acumen, Judge Morrison's moral character is irreproachable. He is a true Christian Judge, and ought to be unanimously nominated.

The Board of Education, last Tuesday, abolished the separate schools for colored children, as hereafter negroes will have the right of admission to any school they choose, and this with the "public truth." Should the negroes be foolish enough to avail themselves of the law, they will in time learn to their sorrow that forced equality is the reverse of pleasant. Statutes cannot eradicate the prejudices of centuries.

Whitaker Reid, the managing editor of the New York Tribune, gave a salary of $18,500 per annum. Jay Gould is at present the principal proprietor of the Tribune.

The bronze statue of Lafayette presented by the French Government to the city of New York, arrived there on 12th July.

GRANT'S NEW POSSESSIONS.

Steinberger and the Samoan Islands.

The recent publication of some disjointed details of the second visit of Mr. A. B. Steinberger to the Navigator's or Samoan Islands, in the South Pacific Ocean, as a "Special Commissioner of the United States Government," has created considerable interest in his extraordinary and triumphant mission. The term unauthorized is used because no act of Congress, or other competent authority, has justified President Grant and his Secretary of State and of the Navy in using Government vessels and spending thousands of dollars of Government money in the absurd attempt to establish in these islands a monarchy, with the enterprising Steinberger as Prime Minister, and a good American protectorate, as a defense against other foreign powers.

The New York Sun has obtained some interesting information in relation to the islands from Colonel J. B. M. Stewart, formerly of this Coast, which we condense:

In 1863 an effort was made to open up the trade of Polynesia by a San Francisco firm. In 1869 the trade was further developed by extending it to the Samoan Islands, which were considered the central point of the group, and a company styled the Polynesian Company, and that by a firm might be styled Grant, Babcock & Steinberger. The British Consul at Apia, Mr. Williams, went to San Francisco, and Steinberger told him that on his (Steinberger's) return to the islands the President of the United States accompanied him as far as Cheyenne.

When such a grosser outrage upon the American people than the President's Son Dominge [?] says Col. Stewart, "if fail in the right light. The President and the grace to consult Congress before he consummated his big job. After all his details had been arranged by Babcock to the instance he evolves his jurisdiction from his own Executive power, and indulges his desire for territorial aggrandizement and self-enrichment regardless of the legislative power."

THE PRIME MINISTER'S EARLIER LIFE.

Colonel Steinberger has many acquaintances in New York, who are wondering whether they must hereafter address him as "Your Excellency," or continue his purely complimentary "Colonel" as a prefix, or fall back upon plain "Al. Steinberger," by which he was familiar during his youth. Those acquaintances describe him as a very respectable shirt-maker of Rochester, with black hair and irregular features. His mode his advent in Colorado in 1859, as the only daughter, wife of Professor Brocklin, an older brother is accredited with having made himself extremely useful to Captain Grant at a critical period of that great warrior's military career in Oregon, when stimulated by the ingenuity of Mrs. Brocklin physically helpless. Hence the fair lady is called on the Pacific Coast the Colonel, or the Excellency, whichever she must be called, acquired his love for physique, and he is now little to be seen in public, but to be by ill-informed admirers as Bleeches Ts. The two are now as utterly exiles after all.

Kate Field is said to have made a happy return upon a distinguished pr fessor expressing his astonishment at the absence of the American naval intonation from her speech. Miss Field said the omission was not so unusual among the people of the United States as he supposed, and that she lasted no way Englishmen should especially remark its presence, since it was after all the old "Cromwellian whine" imported by the Plymouth and other colonies from Surrey, in which country it might still be found.

The O'Connell Centenary in Ireland.

NEW YORK, AUGUST 1.—A special dispatch from London to the Herald says the O'Connell Centenary demonstration is assuming political and diplomatic significance, embarrassing to Liberals, Home Rulers and the Government. The Lord Mayor of Dublin, supposed will at this to be Lord Hartington by thirty-four years together (from 1841 to 1875), without the assent of the population, the great measure of Catholic Emancipation and are devoted supporters of the Holy See; was not Catholic Religion Lord Hartington by thirty-four years together, united by a Repeal League, with the Catholic Priests, twice within an interval of eight years (1840-1848), consented to see, in the person of M. Gunsol, a Protestant statesman and an ex-Chief Secretary for Ireland?

Catholic Ireland, is Ireland's staidest spirit of true liberality, has just now witnessed in her capital Dr. Graves, a Protestant, and a Conservative, freely elected to be Lord Mayor of Dublin for 1875-6. Are not these premises sufficient to warrant, as a fact, of Catholics being, in the fullest sense of the words, practical lovers of political and social liberality? Imagine Protestant London for a moment going out of its way to elect a Catholic to be Lord Mayor, as the Right Hon. the Lord Mayor of Coventry has done, all on account of his services as Protestant as Belgium is Catholic deliberately electing a Catholic Prince to be its first sovereign! Imagine the storm of tremendous bubbles that would be excited at the bare idea of a Catholic statesman being installed in Downing street (just as M. Gunsol was in the Downing street of Paris) as Chief Secretary for Ireland, or as the title is now, First Lord of the Treasury. Why, John Bull would call all the kings and queens that ever belong the only genuine and true liberality to be found in the length and breadth of Christendom, and would be half disposed to call in question the sanity of the Executive in the proposition. He should have need for such a conclusion were coming together. And yet—as the three simple facts here above established very well tend to show—his might be something of true liberality from Catholic Religion, from Catholic France from Catholic Ireland.—London Weekly Express.

There are great differences between Ben Grant and Mr. Beecher, and yet the Courier Journal draws a comparison between them by saying that "Grant has unquestionably served enough to make himself richer than Beecher." The New York Sun says this is the truth. Grant is a very poor man. Yet they have points of resemblance, too. Both are selfish; both love fast horses, and know how to drive them; and both can get all the money they want out of everything he touches. Grant became head waiter a trial as Beecher's, but he is just little less than a fool. Grant ought to be by ill-informed admirers as Bleeches Ts. The two are now as utterly exiles after all.

Catholic Intrrance.

DR. NEWMAN has said that on becoming a Catholic he understood and felt, then for the first time, what was meant by true intellectual freedom. There—within the pale of the Holy Church, and within her pale only—he found himself entitled to the highest freedom of thought, and to the most unbiased and unfettered exercise of his reasoning powers. Then

IRISH LOCAL NEWS.

From the Dublin Nation of July 10.

The death is announced of the Rev. J. Kearney, P. P., Valencia, Kerry.

It is contemplated to establish in Galway a ride club.

Dr. Greene (a Conservative) has been unanimously chosen Lord Mayor of Dublin for 1876.

The Board of Trinity College, Dublin, entertained the American Rifle Team at dinner.

Very Rev. Father Shea, S.J., of New York, is in Dublin selecting candidates for the American mission.

On Saturday a man named Thomas Vallantine was buried in Lorgan, having died in the workhouse in that town. He was stated to be 102 years old.

The contract for the erection of a new Catholic school-house in Lorgan was signed Friday week, Mr. Sweeney, a local builder, undertaking to execute the works at £690.

The few Orangemen in the district of Newport celebrated the anniversary of the Boyne by a display of fireworks and a large bonfire.

Captain Boyton has received from his friends in Dublin a gold medal, the inscription on which commemorates his remarkable life landing on the Irish coast last October.

Sir William Wilde has been elected an honorary member of the Royal Academy of Science at Upsala, and a corresponding member of the Geographical Society at Berlin.

At Mey fair, while Mr. Mackey, master baker, Banbridge, was standing on the side path, a passing horse kicked him in the mouth, and the unfortunate man at once passed away.

At the meeting of the Catholic bishops, held at Maynooth on 20 h ult., the Rev. H. Stevens, D.D., St. Colman's College, Fermoy, was elected to fill the vacant Deanship at the National College.

At the last meeting of the Newry Union Farming Society, on Tuesday week, two pigs, belonging to different owners, competed for the premium. The contest was for the names of the competing pigs as "Roger Thatcher," and "Dr. Kennedy."

The statue of the late Dr. Graves, the distinguished physician and physiologist, which is about to be erected in the hall of the College of Physicians, Dublin, has been highly approved of by the committee.

The secret and trustees of the National Bank voted 100 guineas towards the O'Connell centenary celebration. Lord O'Hagan forwarded £25, the Most Rev. Dr. Moriarty, Bishop of Kerry, £5, and many other subscriptions were received.

An inquest was held on the townspeople and parishioners are arranging for the erection of a testimonial to the memory of their late distinguished parish priest, Very Rev. Peter Reynolds, P. P., V. F. The subscription is confined to the parish.

A Government proclamation has been posted throughout county Cavan, enjoining persons against carrying firearms in procession, and stating that parties not having licenses and carrying arms are liable to have them revoked under the provisions of the Coercion Act.

On July 1st the death occurred at Hollland, county Kildare, of a woman named Anne Clinton, in the 104th year of her age. She was born in the year of Ireland's disgrace, 1771, her maiden name being Staplaton, and had possession of all her faculties perfectly. Her maiden name was Kate Staplaton. She was born in Lavrey, county Cavan, and belonged to one of the oldest families in the county.

The Gaelic is a memorial of Sir William Osborne, Bart, D.L., of Rockwood Park, near Nenagh, after a short but severe illness, at Dunbrody, the residence of his brother-in-law, Philip Jenny, R.M., Esq., J.P., where he has been staying for a short time previous.

A very melancholy occurrence is reported from Belmullet (Mayo). A widow, who resided with her three children in a lonely secluded place, took a cask of pearl ash oil in the house. The parafin oil exploded, and burned her three children, three cows and several pigs, together with all the furniture. She escaped.

At the Limerick Quarter Sessions the chairman, addressing the grand jury, said there were very little to be met them, all of a common or ordinary character. The most serious case was that of Cornelius Dwight, for arson, and, he must certainly say, the conduct of the grand jury in finding of one accustomed to holdings in the case of ardent, and when previously bound to carry them will be liable to have their licenses revoked.

In Rathfarnham on Saturday, John H. Ovsay, chairman for many years of the Board of Commissioners of Conservancy of the district. Plans and drawings were brought into court, showing the route which it is intended through several streets; a bending road at the foot of Mount Hill, and thence to the Dodder. The engineer was then examined by the counsel and by the commissioners, the result being that the plans were approved of.

At the quarter sessions held in Longford a memorial was read and received of addressed to the magistrates on a young woman named ——. As the young man was passing her door she threw the contents of a bucket of boiling water upon him. He reported the matter, and made application to the case, and the young woman was at once arrested, but on the grand jury refusing to find an indictment against her, the case was dismissed. She was then released on entering into recognizances in the sum of £50 herself and two sureties in £25 each to keep the peace.

On the Feast of SS. Peter and Paul the cathedral of Enniscorthy was the scene of a most touching and affecting ceremony which the Church loves to present before her children, and through which she herself not alone to their faith and reason but to their hearts. The occasion was the blessing of the new altar of the Sacred Heart; and though the ceremonial was brief and simple, the appeal was direct and appealed directly to the hearts of the thousands of worshippers who thronged the noble edifice. Immediately after the High Mass, Right Rev. Dr. Vaughan, Bishop of Stafford, delivered a beautiful and eloquent sermon.

At the Dalkey (county Meath) petty sessions William Walsh, Captain Nobelson and W. L. Byrne, R.M., the Drogheda and Drogheda Railway Company, represented by Mr. James S. Healy, solicitor, proposed two lands of Thomas Donaghy, Samuel Connor and Reginald, for trespass. Mr. Healy stated that the defendants had cattle fired, sent, on looking from whence they came, found the two defendants on the railway track at a gate. They were fined 10s and 14s 6d costs. The same authorities were prosecuted, and fined 5s in pursuance of the prisoners have been arrested, and are now confined awaiting a court-martial.

At a late hour on Thursday night week the town and neighborhood of Monaghee were thrown into excitement by the proclamation of the "Peace Preservation Acts," issued by order of the Lord Lieutenant, constituting persons taking part in processions and meetings as the occasion of the Orange anniversaries; giving special power of the constabulary in proclaimed districts relation of the war; directed to his powers conferred on them by those Acts, and that all persons who are suspected of carrying arms concerning in their time to be arrested by some in a proclaimed district, proceeding to, attending, or returning from any procession or meeting. The notice accompanied that all persons found with arms and not having licenses to carry arms, are liable to be arrested and prosecuted, and persons discovered with arms on soon commencing and when proved to have no carry them will be liable to have their licenses revoked.

In Rathfarnham on Saturday, John H. Ovsay, chairman for many years of the Board of Commissioners of Conservancy of the district. Plans and drawings were brought into court, showing the route which it is intended through several streets; a bending road at the foot of Mount Hill, and thence to the Dodder. The engineer was then examined by the counsel and by the commissioners, the result being that the plans were approved of.

On the Feast of the Visitation the solemn blessing and inclosure by his Eminence the Cardinal Archbishop of the new monastery of the Nuns of the Most Holy Redeemer, recently called Redemptoress, at Drumcondra, took place. The nuns on Wednesday last left their old convent in Harrington-street, and by the consence of their beautiful and newly-built monastery, which for the two following days was open to the friends of the Institute. His Eminence the Cardinal was attended by Most Lordships the Right Rev. Dr. Moran, Bishop of Ossory; Right Rev. Dr. Lynch, Coadjutor Bishop of Kildare and Leighlin; Right Rev. Dr. Donnelly, Auxiliary; Very Rev. Mgr. O'Connell, Dean of Dublin, etc. The proceedings were performed, his Eminence proceeded to bless the monastery, followed by the priests, and the Sisters of the community, and finally, the numerous friends invited, among whom we remarked several members of the clergy, medical and regular, also the Hon. Justice O'Brien, Mr. and Miss O'Brien and several others of the laity. His Eminence having in the usual form blessed the entire monastery, on arriving at the principal door he stood to the west, and addressed the beasts of the assembly, in which he congratulated her on her success, she received his congratulations with a modesty and grace not to be described.

Here is an example of the affection of a dog. A mail under at Aghada refused to leave his hut. The flood surprised him, and he was suffocated under his roof. The animal escaped, and galloping or swimming back to his home, lay moaning on the ruins where his dead master lay.

HOW SUCCOLINE IS DONE.—The instructions given to Custom House officers to enforce the rules of the Department are being strictly carried out. Some amusing incidents are related of the success attending their vigilance, in which it is supposed the smugglers and their dupes are engaged. A New York paper relates the following: "A corpulent lady was in the act of stepping ashore from the plank of an ocean steamer. Her fancy, evidently, clear-cut contours of her ample proportions, she offered every facility to the officers in examining her baggage. Her trunks were opened, and found to contain a very extensive assortment of fine clothing, and costly ladies shawl. The Custom House officers commenced to see what the women had secreted about her person, and found nothing. The astonished lady then conducted into the searcher's room, and the female customs detectives were told to go through her clothing. They went at it, and stock out of the portly lady over $5 000 worth of jewels, laces, gloves and other articles of women's wear, and left her pretty well dressed after all. Her books was made of glove; a large braid of false hair was chiefly laced her underclothes were full of jewels, and her corsets were not by any means devoid of owing to law. There was very little women left after she had been shaken down, and she was trying to smuggle herself off for all."

Great interest centers in the coming Belfast races at Baringo. Those who prove themselves poor scullers can redeem their laurels by becoming good scholars.

SAN JOSE ADVERTISEMENTS.

CHOPARD, WATCHMAKER AND JEWELER, 14 and 16 South Christ street, San José. dec

VICTOR HOFFMANN, Architect, SAN JOSE, CAL.

SAN JOSE MARBLE WORKS. E. POWER, Sculptor, SAN JOSE.

STATUARY, TOMBS, MANTEL-PIECES, HEAD-STONES, FOUNTAINS And every description of MARBLE WORK. DESIGNING, MOULDING, &c. Also every style Wood and Stone Carving. New material and Cemetery work a specialty. an

SANTA CLARA ADVERTISEMENTS.

CAMERON HOUSE, SANTA CLARA, CAL. MARTIN CORCORAN.....PROPRIETOR.

MR. CORCORAN, having purchased the above-named Hotel, reserve his many acquaintances throughout the State that the house will be kept in a proprietor of the "Old Pioneer Hotel," at San José, and later with several of the first-class hotels in San Francisco, and as a former owner of Santa Clara county, will be understood where to find the best accommodations.

In connection with the Hotel is a fine stock of horses and carriages, which for safety and comfort cannot be excelled. Horses will be boarded by the day or week, at most reasonable rates. sat13

D. SERGIN, SANTA CLARA.....CALIFORNIA

Has the largest assortment of Dry Goods, Clothing, Boots and Shoes To be found South of San Francisco, which he will sell at less than San Francisco rates. sat13

EDMUND MARKS, AGENT FOR THE SALE AND PURCHASE OF Real Estate, Stocks, Bonds, etc. 316½ MONTGOMERY STREET, Between California and Pacific, San Francisco. 12tf1

EDUCATIONAL.

SAINT MARY'S COLLEGE SAN FRANCISCO, CAL. Conducted by the Christian Brothers

Offers every facility for acquiring a thorough Education, whether Classical, Scientific or Commercial.

Those who complete the Classical Course receive the degree of A.B.; the Scientific, B.S.; the Commercial, Master of Accounts.

The Christian Brothers have been established for the convenience of those who wish to acquire a good Commercial education in as short a time as possible. While proper care is bestowed on every branch taught in the College, our own language receives special attention. The daily exercises of the Students in Grammar, Composition and Rhetoric are publicly discussed and corrected in the class-room.

TERMS PER SCHOLASTIC YEAR: (Payable half-yearly in advance.)

Board, Tuition and Washing.....$300 00
Entrance Fee.....10 00
Physician's Fee and Medicines.....5 00
Graduation Fee (College).....20 00
Day Students.....40 00
Use of Philosophical Apparatus, Music and drawing form extra charges.

Bedding will be renewed on the 8th of August.
1631 BRO. B. JUSTIN, President.

ST. VINCENT'S SCHOOL.

THIS INSTITUTION IS SITUATED IN SANTA Barbara, a short distance from the sea. In the most delightful and healthy part of the city. The grounds are extensive, and the building is large and well ventilated.

The system of instruction is the same as that followed in the schools of the Christian Brothers throughout the world, and embraces a thorough English education. Spanish is also taught.

TERMS

Board, tuition, bed, bedding, washing, etc., per annum.....$300 00
Entrance fee, to be paid but once.....10
Tuition in piano, per quarter.....10 00
" drawing.....5 00
No extra charge for Tapestry, Embroidery, Plain and Ornamental Needlework, nor for the Spanish language.

TERMS FOR DAY SCHOLARS:

Primary, per month.....$1 00
Intermediate, " 2 00
Preparatory, " 3 00
Music, " 5 00
No extra charge for Tapestry, Embroidery, Plain and Ornamental Needlework, nor for the Spanish language.

The above establishment is also the residence of the Order.

For Prospectus and further particulars apply to SISTER RAYMUNDA GERALDA, Superioress.

YOUNG LADIES' INSTITUTE.

COLLEGE OF NOTRE DAME, MARTYSVILLE.....CALIFORNIA

THIS INSTITUTION IS INCORPORATED ACcording to the laws of the State, and empowered to confer academical honors. It will commence its Twenty-sixth Annual Session on MONDAY, August 9, 1875. The course of instruction embraces all the branches of a thorough education.

TERMS:

Entrance, to be paid but once.....$10 00
Board and Tuition, per quarter.....72 50
Washing, " 12 50
Physicians' fees (unless it may be preferred to employ one of the Faculty).....5 00
Piano, Vocal Music, Drawing and Painting form extra charges, which will be found very moderate.
Bedding and Furniture, each.....10 00
Vocation spent at the Academy.....25 00

Terms per month in advance.)

Select Day Pupils, Primary Department.....$ 2 00
Intermediate Classes.....3 00
Preparatory " 4 00
Music, with use of Instrument.....5 00
Drawing and Painting.....2 00

No charges for the French, Spanish and German languages. For Plain Sewing and Fancy Needlework.

Pupils will find it much to their advantage to be present at the opening of the session.

Good references required.

SISTER SUPERIOR.

ST. JOSEPH'S COLLEGE,

Rohnerville, Humboldt County, Cala.

Conducted by the Priests of the Congregation of the Most Precious Blood.

TERMS PER SCHOLASTIC YEAR: (Payable half yearly in advance.)

For board, lodging, tuition, washing and mending.....$150 00
Entrance fee, to be paid only once.....10 00
Vacation at College.....40 00

DAY PUPILS.

Junior class.....$60 00
Senior " 80 00

Vocal and instrumental music, drawing and modern languages, will form extra charges. The very moderate of the scholastic year commences on the 15th of August and the 15th of January.

For further information address REV. THOS. P. O'NEILL, Vice Rector.

Very Rev. P. HENNEBERY, Provincial.

CONVENT OF THE IMMACULATE HEART OF MARY

FOR THE

EDUCATION OF YOUNG LADIES

SILROY, SANTA CLARA CO., CAL.

Conducted by the Sisters of the Most Holy and Immaculate Heart of Mary.

TERMS FOR BOARDERS:

Board, tuition washing and mending, per session.....$200
Entrance fee, to be paid but once.....10
Tuition in piano, per session.....40
" drawing.....10
No extra charge for Tapestry, Embroidery, Plain and Ornamental Needlework, nor for the Spanish language.

TERMS FOR DAY SCHOLARS:

Primary, per month.....$1 00
Intermediate, " 2 00
Preparatory, " 3 00
Music, " 5 00
No extra charge for Tapestry, Embroidery, Plain and Ornamental Needlework, nor for the Spanish language.

The scholastic year of ten months and a half commences on the 15th of August. This, and terminates on the last Thursday in June.

For further particulars apply to SISTERS OF CHARITY, 1730 Santa Clara, Cal.

COLLEGE OF NOTRE DAME.

SAN JOSÉ, CALIFORNIA.

YOUNG LADIES' INSTITUTE.

THIS INSTITUTION, WHICH IS INCORPOrated according to the laws of the State and empowered to confer academical honors, will commence its Twenty-sixth Session on MONDAY, August 9, 1875. The course of instruction embraces all the branches of a thorough education.

TERMS:

Entrance, to be paid but once.....$10 00
Board and Tuition, per quarter.....72 50
Washing, " 12 50
Physicians' fees (unless it may be preferred to employ one of the Faculty).....5 00
Piano, Vocal Music, Drawing and Painting form extra charges, which will be found very moderate.
Bedding and Furniture, each.....10 00
Vocation spent at the Academy.....25 00

Terms per month in advance.)

Select Day Pupils, Primary Department.....$ 2 00
Intermediate Classes.....3 00
Preparatory " 4 00
Music, with use of Instrument.....5 00
Drawing and Painting.....2 00

No charges for the French, Spanish and German languages. For Plain Sewing and Fancy Needlework.

Pupils will find it much to their advantage to be present at the opening of the session.

Good references required.

SISTER SUPERIOR.

ST. JOSEPH'S COLLEGE,

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

DEGREES CONFERRED

Rev. JAMES MacGILL, C. M. President.

EDUCATIONAL.

SAINT IGNATIUS COLLEGE, SAN FRANCISCO.

Conducted by the Fathers of the Society of Jesus.

This Literary Institution was incorporated, according to the laws of the State, on the 30th of April, 1855, and empowered to confer academical degrees such "such literary honors as are granted by any University in the United States of America."

The design of the Institution has given a thorough Classical, Mathematical and Philosophical education. During the present year, there is also a Commercial Course.

The College is essentially for day-scholars only.

TERMS PER MONTH

(Payable in advance):

Tuition, in Preparatory Department.....$1 00
" " Grammar Department.....1 50
" " Higher Department.....2 00

EXTRA CHARGES:

For the use of Instruments in Natural Philosophy and Chemicals, first year, per month.....$1 00
For the use of Instruments, etc., second year, per month.....1 00
For each Academical Degree.....10 00

CONVENT OF OUR LADY OF THE SACRED HEART,

OAKLAND.....CALIFORNIA.

Conducted by the Sisters of the Holy Names of Jesus and Mary.

THIS INSTITUTION IS PLEASANTLY SITUated between Webster street and Lake Merritt, combining an extensive Park with the advantages of a healthful location. The Institution is furnished with all the modern improvements, and expresses herself confident that the system of education pursued, and the course of study embraces the various branches of a useful, refined and solid education.

TERMS (payable half yearly in advance):

Board and Tuition (French included).....$160 00
Washing.....20 00
Bedding, Without Linen (if supplied by the Institution).....10 00
Piano, Guitar, Vocal Music, Drawing and Painting form extra charges.

For further particulars apply to SISTER M. STEPHANIE, Superioress.

NOTRE DAME ACADEMY, SAN FRANCISCO.

THIS ACADEMY, WHICH IS CONDUCTED by the Sisters of Notre Dame, is situated on Fulton street, opposite the Mission Church.

Besides being situated in one of the most healthy and commanding localities in the city, the Academy has been fitted up with a view to the perfect convenience of the pupils. The system of education pursued is that of the Sisters of Notre Dame throughout the world, and all the means for healthful exercise during the recreations are afforded.

The course of instruction embraces every needful and ornamental branch taught in the best schools of the present day.

The next session of the Tenth Annual session will commence July 16, 1875.

TERMS:

BOARDING PUPILS.

Per quarter, (payable in advance.)

Board, tuition, washing, with use of bedding.....$ 60 00
Music with use of instrument.....15 00
Vocal Music.....10 00
Drawing and Painting.....10 00
Vocation spent at the Academy.....25 00

Terms per month (in advance.)

Select Day Pupils, Primary and second Preparatory Classes.....$ 2 00
Intermediate Classes.....3 00
Preparatory " 4 00
Music, with use of instrument, throughout the course.....5 00
Drawing and Painting.....2 00

Extra charge for French, plain and ornamental needlework.

For further particulars apply to the Superioress. ja5-tf

SANTA CLARA COLLEGE, SANTA CLARA.....CALIFORNIA.

Under the management of the Fathers of the Society of Jesus.

THE SANTA CLARA COLLEGE WAS FOUNDED in 1851, and in 1855 was incorporated, with the privilege of conferring academical degrees. It has seven departments—the Classical, Commercial, Normal, Scientific, Law, Medical and Theological. The Academic year commences on the 15th of August, and ends about the middle of June. The scholastic year is divided into two terms of three months each, at the expiration of which a public examination is held. The Institute possesses a reading room, philosophical apparatus, a museum of natural history, and a well-selected library.

The Scholastic Year, which is divided into two sessions of five months each, commences in August and closes with the beginning of June.

TERMS:

(Payable semi-annually, in advance.)

Matriculation Fee, to be paid but once.....$15 00
Board, Lodging, Tuition, Washing, and Mending of Linen, School Stationery, Medical Attendance, Use of Bed, Bedding, Fuel, Light per year.....250 00
Mother's Lunge, Drawing and Music form no extra charges. For Clothing, Books, Pocket money, and the like, no advance made to the Institute. For further particulars, apply to jan REV. A. VARNI, S. J., President.

FRANCISCAN COLLEGE, SANTA BARBARA.....CALIFORNIA.

THE NINETH SESSION OF THE INSTITUtion, conducted by the Fathers of the Order of St. Francis, will commence on the 1st Monday of August.

The object of the Institution is to give a good English, Mathematical, Classical and Philosophical Education, at the lowest possible rate, and thereby bring its advantages within the reach of all.

TERMS.

Entrance Fee (to be paid but once).....$15 00
Tuition, Board and Washing, per session, of ten months and a half.....200 00
Music Teach's and Harmon Form extra charges.
Physician's Fee and Medicines form extra charges.
Payments will pay for medical attendance, and supply toilet articles, etc.
Money will not be advanced by the College; for the purchase of necessary articles, a sufficient sum will be deposited.
For further particulars apply to REV. J. M. ROMO, O. S. F.

HEALD'S BUSINESS COLLEGE BRYANT & STRATTON 24 POST ST. SAN FRANCISCO

EDUCATES FOR THE PRACTICAL AFFAIRS of life. Its instruction is equally adapted to the Merchant in Banker, the Mechanic or the Professional man. Students of Telegraphy fit pupils especially to take positions on the Western Union lines of telegraph.

For full particulars call at College, or address mch9 3m H. P. HEALD, San Francisco.

DIVIDEND NOTICE.

The Proprietors of the "Celebrated FREDERICKSBURG BEER" have declared a dividend at the rate of one gram of their Beer on every ton casks that may be invented, payable immediately at their Saloon—THE BRANCH—813 California street, San Francisco.

GARVIN & NUNAN, Corner Main and Potter Streets.....STOCKTON

Books, Periodicals, Magazines, PICTURES, Etc.

News Agents—Advertising Agents.

HARD TIMES

FOR AGENTS THAT ARE NOT SELLING OUR Combination Pocket Knife and Pencil. Sample, by mail, 25 cents. Send for ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE and circular. AGENTS WANTED. UNION KNIFE CO., New Bedford, Mass.

The Pilgrimage of Oostaken.

The present sanctuary of Oostaken having, on account of sundry recent events, acquired a certain notoriety, a few words of history and description by one who had occasion to visit it frequently during the last few months, will perhaps be acceptable to your readers. I shall confine my revelations to what I have myself seen or heard from the lips of reputable witnesses, or others whose testimony is above suspicion, such as the clergy of the parish and the noble founder of the grotto, my object being to give a sketch that shall be strictly accurate.

The history of this sanctuary, which promises to become quickly famous, is simple but striking. In the words of the lady who has had the honor of being instrumental in its establishment, "the Blessed Virgin has done everything." Nothing on the part of any one else is to be all eloquence to create the result achieved.

The facts are these. There is in the pleasure grounds of Madame la Marquise de Courtebourne a small hill or hillock of artificial origin, but old enough to be covered with trees of fair size. It also, though but mere thin twelve feet high, yet presenting an elevation not usual in the flat country. The idea presented itself of taking advantage of the to construct an artificial grotto, the constructing being also desired to find work for laborers during a hard season. As there are no stones in Flanders to speak of, a photograph of Lourdes was shown to the overseer of the work to give him some sort of an idea, and this is also said, though that a little shrine should be made for a small cave of Our Lady. But, as I said, there was nothing more religious intended. The place was to be a sort of summer-house, and was to be fitted up as such accordingly.

When all was ready somebody proposed that it would be well to have one statue which was to fill the niche. Madame la Marquise approved, and made a great impression on the good peasants who took part in it, and they, speaking of it at home, induced others to come. Soon there was to be some a great wish to see the grotto of which they had so much. There was no way of getting it except through the garden and past the front door of Madame de C.'s chateau and the applications for admission frequently became so numerous as to be troublesome. It was, therefore, announced that those who wished to enter must do so on Sunday afternoons from one o'clock to nine, when the approach would be free, but this did not stay the throng. Then there were applications for admission during nine days running for one Novena and then for another. Next, the rumor got about that unusual graces had been received and cures brought to the grotto, the first authenticated one of the latter seeming to date from the month of October.

With this the concourse increased vastly, and it became clear that something must be done to regulate it. Accordingly, the Abbé Delplanque, of Oostaken, was appointed to preside over the affair, history has been we see today. The number of pilgrims I am told on the spot) averages 1,500 a day on weekdays, and on Sundays about as many thousands. Omnibuses ply constantly from Ghent; cabs, and carriages, and country wagons troop in on every road, parties and towns come in procession, and a large farm is rapidly rising.

I have been there often myself at very various hours. I have never found less than twenty persons, and never more than two hundred. The common week-days. A certain number of pilgrims and invalids are always found, the latter in some form or other, showing that the firmness of their faith sufficiently attests that they at least believe in the favors which are said to have been vouchsafed to the fallows.

As to the cures mentioned as having been wrought, an account of the best attested sort, with a history of the shrine, will be published, I hear, in a few days by Poelman, of Ghent. It is from the pen of the Cure of Oostaken, and has the approval of the Bishop. Unfortunately for all but local interest it is in Flemish.

I will succinctly give as an instance—perhaps it is the most striking instance as yet in the annals of history to which the neighborhood is beginning to grow accustomed—a poor man's leg had been broken between the knee in such a way that the bone had to be set, despite the treatment of four or surgeons. There was, in fact, a disease of two months standing when the fracture took place. Despite the remonstrances of friends, and especially of his wife, he refused to come to Oostaken, which he did the 8th April, this year. The limb was then in a terrible state; in danger of sickling, the sung loose, and could be twisted independently of the knee. In going he was on crutches the short distance between the omnibus and the grotto and tracks of blood upon the road. He was perfectly healed, leaving his crutches behind him, the bone firmly set, and the limb restored to proper shape and size. Both the crutches and bandages which had been left hanging loose like a sash. The day he was at work in the fields, and his children, who had never seen him without crutches, would not believe that he was their father. And this is not the last time that cures at least have been said to be a noise. A blind lady, wife of a doctor at Tournai, recovered her sight also in the grotto and on the proper stage, and the cure of her eyes' standing was cured.

The place itself lacks some of its history in legibles and et-voice with which it is to be associated. There was no way of SPECTACLES AND EYE-GLASSES, any being the most perfect artificial help in the following, and a Bath chair stands in a shed, unable to stand, cured last year at Lourdes.

And now a word of description as to the place. Here, as in the case of the history, it manifestly true that there is nothing to explain when we see. The grotto is but a very little one, a mere rock-like structure, and it does not even profess to be a copy of that of Lourdes. A piece of stone-work twenty or twenty-five feet long by fourteen feet high, against and of the second, has in its center a niche eight yards or so wide, three or four feet deep, and some eight feet high. In the niche is the little statue, with a very striking colored statue of the Apparition.

There is a wall somewhere near, and pieces are made to trickle through the stone-work into a little trough. A few drops of Lourdes water are mixed into the every day, and by its own many of the cures have been wrought. Besides the cave a number of votive tapers are always burning, and various inscriptions are hung up recording, some the pilgrimage of a parish or guild, others a favor received from heaven. There are also some strong old trusses, memorials, I suppose of cures. All is exceedingly plain and simple. There is nothing to take the eye, nothing to strike the imagination except the tales of what has been done, and the devotion of the good people, who pray with a simple heartiness quite in keeping with the place, many of them, in native fashion, with arms outstretched in form of a cross. This is all, and when all is said we must agree with the foundress that what has been done is not man's doing.—London Weekly Register.

Santa Anna is seventy-seven years old, but he is still erect and slender, and his black hair and whiskers give no promise of their original brilliancy. He is as fond of cock fighting as ever, but hasn't money to indulge in it as much as he would like.

A correspondent of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, writing from the Black Hills, declares that the Indian Ring will fight hard against any arrangement for opening that region to settlement, as the final outcry of a policy would destroy their best plunder-fields.

The Parthenon at Athens is being shockingly wrecked and ruined by tourists. A person from New York writes that a piece of a photograph of Lourdes was shown to the overseer of the work to give him some sort of an idea, and this is also said, though that a little shrine should be made for a small cave of Our Lady. But, as I said, there was nothing more religious intended. The place was to be a sort of summer-house, and was to be fitted up as such accordingly.

When all was ready somebody proposed that it would be well to have one statue which was to fill the niche. Madame la Marquise approved, and made a great impression on the good peasants who took part in it, and they, speaking of it at home, induced others to come. Soon there was to be some a great wish to see the grotto of which they had so much. There was no way of getting it except through the garden and past the front door of Madame de C.'s chateau and the applications for admission frequently became so numerous as to be troublesome. It was, therefore, announced that those who wished to enter must do so on Sunday afternoons from one o'clock to nine, when the approach would be free, but this did not stay the throng. Then there were applications for admission during nine days running for one Novena and then for another. Next, the rumor got about that unusual graces had been received and cures brought to the grotto, the first authenticated one of the latter seeming to date from the month of October.

With this the concourse increased vastly, and it became clear that something must be done to regulate it. Accordingly, the Abbé Delplanque, of Oostaken, was appointed to preside over the affair, history has been we see today. The number of pilgrims I am told on the spot) averages 1,500 a day on weekdays, and on Sundays about as many thousands. Omnibuses ply constantly from Ghent; cabs, and carriages, and country wagons troop in on every road, parties and towns come in procession, and a large farm is rapidly rising.

I have been there often myself at very various hours. I have never found less than twenty persons, and never more than two hundred. The common week-days. A certain number of pilgrims and invalids are always found, the latter in some form or other, showing that the firmness of their faith sufficiently attests that they at least believe in the favors which are said to have been vouchsafed to the fallows.

As to the cures mentioned as having been wrought, an account of the best attested sort, with a history of the shrine, will be published, I hear, in a few days by Poelman, of Ghent. It is from the pen of the Cure of Oostaken, and has the approval of the Bishop. Unfortunately for all but local interest it is in Flemish.

I will succinctly give as an instance—perhaps it is the most striking instance as yet in the annals of history to which the neighborhood is beginning to grow accustomed—a poor man's leg had been broken between the knee in such a way that the bone had to be set, despite the treatment of four or surgeons. There was, in fact, a disease of two months standing when the fracture took place. Despite the remonstrances of friends, and especially of his wife, he refused to come to Oostaken, which he did the 8th April, this year. The limb was then in a terrible state; in danger of sickling, the sung loose, and could be twisted independently of the knee. In going he was on crutches the short distance between the omnibus and the grotto and tracks of blood upon the road. He was perfectly healed, leaving his crutches behind him, the bone firmly set, and the limb restored to proper shape and size. Both the crutches and bandages which had been left hanging loose like a sash. The day he was at work in the fields, and his children, who had never seen him without crutches, would not believe that he was their father. And this is not the last time that cures at least have been said to be a noise. A blind lady, wife of a doctor at Tournai, recovered her sight also in the grotto and on the proper stage, and the cure of her eyes' standing was cured.

The place itself lacks some of its history in legibles and et-voice with which it is to be associated. There was no way of SPECTACLES AND EYE-GLASSES, any being the most perfect artificial help in the following, and a Bath chair stands in a shed, unable to stand, cured last year at Lourdes.

And now a word of description as to the place. Here, as in the case of the history, it manifestly true that there is nothing to explain when we see. The grotto is but a very little one, a mere rock-like structure, and it does not even profess to be a copy of that of Lourdes. A piece of stone-work twenty or twenty-five feet long by fourteen feet high, against and of the second, has in its center a niche eight yards or so wide, three or four feet deep, and some eight feet high. In the niche is the little statue, with a very striking colored statue of the Apparition.

There is a wall somewhere near, and pieces are made to trickle through the

BANKING HOUSES.

HIBERNIA SAVINGS AND LOAN SOCIETY

Office—Northeast corner of Montgomery and Market streets.

OFFICERS:

President.....M. D. SWEENY
Vice-President.....C. D. O'SULLIVAN

TRUSTEES:

M. D. SWEENY, C. D. O'SULLIVAN, JOHN SULLIVAN, E. T. TOBIN, M. J. O'CONNOR, P. MORAN, LUDWIG VOUCHARD, JOS. A. DONAHOE, PETER DONAHUE.

Treasurer.....EDWARD MARTIN
Attorney.....RICHARD TOBIN

Remittances from the country may be sent through Wells, Fargo & Co.'s Express office, or any reliable banking house; but the Society will not be responsible for their safe delivery. The signature of the depositor must accompany his first deposit. A proper pass book will be delivered to the agent by whom the deposit is received.

Deposits received from 9½ o'clock A.M. to 3 o'clock P.M.

OFFICE HOURS—From 9 A. M. to 3 P. M.

Jos. A. DONAHOE, San Francisco. STEPHEN HALLY, New York.

DONOHOE, KELLY & Co. SAN FRANCISCO. EUGENE KELLY & Co. NEW YORK

BANKERS.

EXCHANGE ON NEW YORK, LONDON, AND BANK OF IRELAND.....DUBLIN

Payable at all the Branches, AND IN EVERY COUNTY TOWN IN IRELAND

BANK OF BRITISH COLUMBIA, INCORPORATED BY ROYAL CHARTER,

S. E. corner PORTLAND, OREGON; VICTORIA AND CARIBOO, BRITISH COLUMBIA.

AGENTS:

New York—BANK OF MONTREAL
Chicago—BANK OF MONTREAL
Canada—BANK OF MONTREAL
Mexico and South America—LONDON BANK OF MEXICO AND SOUTH AMERICA.
Ireland—BANK OF IRELAND.
Scotland—BRITISH LINEN COMPANY.
England—NATIONAL PROVINCIAL BANK OF ENGLAND
England—NORTH AND SOUTH WALES BANK.
England—BARCLAY & CO. LIVERPOOL.

THE COMMERCIAL AND SAVINGS BANK OF SAN JOSE.

OFFICERS:

Capital, - - - - - - - - $1,000,000.

D. D. MURPHY.....President.
JAMES PHELAN.....Vice-President.
JAMES F. MORGAN.....Cashier.
THOMAS W. O'BRIEN.....Secretary.
JOHN O'KANE.....Attorney.

Receives General and Special Deposits in gold and silver currency. Deal in United States Bonds and Government Securities, and in gold dust and bullion. Issues Savings Department, which is separated entirely from the Commercial Bank, and which pays interest on deposits at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum, as they may select. Dividends will be declared on January and July of each year. Deposits made at any of the Bank will be sufficient guarantee for the safety of deposits.

Remittances from a distance may be made by Wells, Fargo & Co.'s Express, or in order by Express. Pass Books will be promptly forwarded as desired.

Correspondents:

DONOHOE, KELLY & CO.....San Francisco
EUGENE KELLY & CO.....New York
THE ANGLO-CALIFORNIAN BANK.....London
BANK OF IRELAND.....Dublin
ja15

THE FIRST NATIONAL Gold Bank of San Francisco.

Paid up Capital, - - - 2,000,000 Gold.

Geo. F. Hooper.....President.
Wm. Alvord.....Vice-President.
C. O. Woolworth.....Cashier.

DIRECTORS:

Geo. F. Hooper, Peter Donahue,
Wm. Alvord, A. B. Forbes,
D. Gallaghar, Edward Martin,
C. O. Woolworth, Simon Mahler.

N. Van Bergen.

CORRESPONDENTS.

LONDON: Messrs. Morton, Rose & Co.
Chartered Mercantile Bank of India, London and China.
DUBLIN.....Provincial Bank of Ireland.
PARIS: Messrs. Heine, Newman & Co.
NEW YORK.....Bank of the Commonwealth & Co.
BOSTON: National Bank of Commerce.
CHICAGO: First National Bank.

This Bank is prepared to transact a general Banking business.

Deposits in Gold, Silver and Currency received subject to check at sight or on special deposit.

Exchange for sale on the principal cities of the United States, Great Britain and Ireland, China and Japan.

Commercial Credits issued available in Europe, China and Japan.

Collections attended to and prompt returns made at the lowest market rates of exchange.

THE CALIFORNIA Savings & Loan Society, Office 513 Cal St., San Francisco (Next door to Wells, Fargo & Co.)

Guarantee Capital, $300,000

OFFICERS.

DAVID FAIRCHILD.....President.
CHARLES WELLS.....Vice-President.
JULIUS C. REIS.....Treasurer.
ROBERT TAYLOR.....Secretary.
C. P. ROBINSON.....Attorney.
H. B. CHISHOLM.....Attorney.

DIRECTORS.

James R. Kelly, A. C. Corbett,
David Fairchildson, C. H. Thompson,
Charles Lux, John Bell,
James C. Ross, H. D. Bowen,
Gustave Reis, Alex. Austin,
Robert Taylor.

ORDINARY DEPOSITS are received from $1.50 up to $5,000, and are payable on demand. Interest declared on them each 6 per cent.

TIME DEPOSITS are received from any sum, and the last dividend on them was 9.60 per cent. The dividends are declared and payable in the beginning of January and July of each year, and if not called for are immediately added to the principal, and are so compounded half yearly.

Safes for Use in Large Made for Entrance Fee or Pass Book.

LOANS MADE, ON GOOD IMPROVED FARMS, AS WELL AS ON CITY PROPERTY.

The fullest particulars may be obtained of the officers of the Bank; either in regard to Deposits or Loans, or of the undersigned stockholders:

James R. Kelly, of Sullivan, Kelly & Co.; F. J. White, Capitalist, and on Sheriff of San Francisco; John Kelly, Jr., Brooklyn Hotel; Arthur C. Hawkins, of McNulty &

AN IRISH HEROINE.

A truly remarkable incident occurred at a Galway village a few weeks since. A wedding party had just left Athlone on the way to Galway, and were congratulating Bridget by the unanimity of their admiration of the handsome appearance boasting from their eyes. Four of the number were by a small-pox hospital, and on the other, but, and to say, when the bridegroom and the bride for interment there was no room for it to be had for love nor money. Then the bride rolls on her head and set out determined to watch the abbey churchyard. Her eldest child, said, Most Rev. Archbishop Wood conducting the ceremonies.

The new church of St. James, on Harrison street, Boston, Mass., which has been in course of construction for the past three years, was dedicated by the Archbishop of Boston on Sunday, July 25.

On St. Peter's Day the decree was signed for the canonization, of the last religious nuns of the Visitation of St. Bonaventure on the Palatine, the Capuchinesses and the Passionists.

We are pleased to hear of the appointment of Rev. Father Galligan, lately of Holy Innocents to the pastorship of the church of the Holy Name of Jesus, Broadway and Ninety-first streets, New York, recently made vacant by the removal of Father Brennan to the pastorship of the church of St. Rose of Lima in Cannon street.

A very large monastery is being rapidly prepared for the Jesuits at Chesterfield. Two hundred of the Fathers of this order, expelled from Germany, are expected in the course of a few days, and will be at once distributed from the above-named place.

The corner-stone of the Catholic Cathedral of the Sacred Heart was laid by the Archbishop of Toronto in Sault St. Marie, on June 16th. His lordship the Bishop of Gratiana, Mons. Jamot, also officiated on the occasion, attended by Father Cormican, the Grand Vicar, Father Laurent, P. P. of St. Patrick's, Toronto, whom his Lordship said Mass for the occasion.

The Fathers of Mercy have recently begun to build a convent and school in the interior of the Diocese of Dublin district of Loodoo, which is one of the most miserable parts of the great country. They have very kindly placing themselves to the spiritual and temporal benefit of that wretched race of Mohammedan-ridden people. It is impossible for anyone who knows Loodoo not to feel great admiration for the noble men who have thus willingly sacrifice their lives in such a horrible part of a city which, although so rich in its fertility and poverty, has none which has a worse celebrity than the "Dials."

A WIDOW'S GRIEF ASSUAGED.

A Mixed Set at Rest by an Interview with a Matter-of-fact Coroner.

The other day a tall, thin woman from over the river hunted around Vicksburg until she found Coroner Bressing, whose petting deputies and promising attention to business are certain to make him famous all over the State within the coming year, and when she was certain of her man, she inquired:

"Business sir? driving now, is it?"

"Yes, I have served a sigh and continued: "Mam is missing."

"Mam, Sam," he repeated.

"Yes, my old man. Is sigh on to twelve weeks since he started to cross the river about six miles above here, and I'm getting anxious. I thought I'd drop down and see if you remembered of having sot on such a man."

"About twelve weeks ago—less one? I believe I did pull in a floater some ten or eleven weeks since."

"Was he a tall man?"

"Yes, I think he was."

"Have a long nose and brick-colored hair?"

"Yes—I remember now."

"Cowhide shoes and a paler coat on?"

"Yes—I got that very man?"

"A rise to the surface and was pulled in here, sot on according to law, and duly buried?"

"He was, madam. And do you believe that the body was that of your missing husband?"

"I know it! He could drive mules or paddle a dug-out with any man in Louisiana, but he couldn't swim worth cents. His canoe flopped over, he went under, and that's the reason he didn't come home."

"And do you want the body exhumed so as to make sure?"

"Was he put down to stay?"

"He was well buried, madam."

"Well, it's 'bout as well to let him stay there. He's probably fell away so that I wouldn't know him, and I don't feel like having my sarves strung up."

"Well, I'm very sorry for you madam. If I could have identified the body I would have sent you word right away."

"It's all right. I've felt it in my bones for more'n two months that I was a widder, and the school don't stagger me like I did at first. I'm sorry, for Sam was kind."

"Yes, it was too bad."

"But he ought a known'd better, when he couldn't swim. I told him and told him, and told him, and that day I told him again, and he hollered back, 'Shut up.'"

"Yes, he did; and now he's under the silt and I'm here! I'm 'bleeged, Mr. ——, that you was able to know, and when I was up in the night I shan't worry so much. Is there anything to pay?"

"No—not nothing."

"Well, I'll go home feeling better. It's harder hard to have the old man under that way, but I 'spose the Lord knows best. The Bible says we commit up to be cast down, and I suppose that means drowning as well as shooting."

And she left to see if her spectacle case was all safe, and started for home.—Vicksburg Herald.

HAVE you a cough, cold, pain in the chest, or bronchitis? If so, have you the remedy—Dr. Tutt's expectorant of the "lonesome archer," consumption! If so, know that relief is within your reach in the shape of Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry, which, in many cases where hope has fled, has snatched the victim from the jaws of death.

Purify the springs of life.

It is a sine qua non of health that the sources of vitality, the "springs of life," should be free from contamination. The blood which, by every pulse beat the food, transforms it into blood, and the great vital instrument itself, must be pure, if the nerves, the bones and the whole are to be properly nourished and kept vigorous. To this end the stomach, the liver, the bowels and the kidneys should perform satisfactorily their various functions, since if these are disturbed the vital fluids a wealthy residue remains in the system, which, if allowed to remain, will produce disease. The blood deposited which purifies them, by overcoming those bodily irregularities which produces them. In this manner, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters acts within this salutary alterative acts in as simple as it is philosophic. The origin of most diseases is impure blood, it weakens, caused by insufficient nourishment of the food, or by the introduction into the system of the life-sap by receiving which the organs are supplied with an abundance of the nourishing fluid. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is a thorough alterative, and by purifying the blood, it promotes the healthful action of the digestive, assimilative, secretive and excretive organs, and thus restores them to perfect vigor. Not only does it purify the blood, but it also enriches it, and thus increases the amount of that most valuable nourishment, but as a preventive of fever and ague, dyspepsia, biliousness, rheumatism, kidney and nervous complaints, it is unrivalled. Sold by druggists and dealers generally everywhere. Be sure to get Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, and refuse all substitutes which contaminate the springs of life.

Wholesale Market Report.

MORTIMER CUTTER, SAN FRANCISCO.

THURSDAY, August 5, 1875.

FLOUR—Prices are hardening and the tone of the upward tendency of Wheat. We quote here EXTRAS [@ 7.75@ 8 00 bs, and Superfine as high as 6.50. Oil are scarce.

HAY—Quiet at $12@18 per ton.

BARLEY—Feed is in fair demand at 1 07½@1 12½ ₱ ctl.

OATS—The market has been firm at $1 37½@1 47½ ₱ ctl. Oil are scarce.

CORN—Nominal—Yellow cracking, 1 02½@1 05; feed 95@1 00 bs from mill.

On the Coast—Yellow cracking, 1 02½@1 05; feed 95@1 00 bs from mill.

RYE—Quiet at 1 12½@1 15 ₱ ctl.

BUCKWHEAT—Nominal at 1 75@2 00 ₱ ctl.

TALLOW—Quotable at 5½@5½ ₱ lb.

HIDES—We quote Dry Hides as follows: Spanish, 15@16; Mexican, 13@14; Salt do, 10@12; Calf do, 16@18; Deerskins, 25@30; Goat do, 10@12.

SHEARLINGS—Quotable at 10@15 ₱ lb.

WOOL—We quote Fall Clip as follows: Foothill, 12@14; Humboldt, 16@18; Valley, 18@20; Mountain, 16@18; Nevada, 16@18; Eastern Oregon, 16@18; Middle Oregon, 16@18; Northern Oregon, 16@18; Humboldt, 16@18; Mendocino, 16@18; Sonoma, 16@18; Napa, 16@18; Solano, 16@18; Contra Costa, 16@18; Alameda, 16@18; Santa Clara, 16@18; San Mateo, 16@18; Santa Cruz, 16@18; Monterey, 16@18; San Luis Obispo, 16@18; Santa Barbara, 16@18; Los Angeles, 16@18; San Bernardino, 16@18; San Diego, 16@18; Tulare, 16@18; Kern, 16@18; Mariposa, 16@18; Fresno, 16@18; Inyo, 16@18; Mono, 16@18; Lassen, 16@18; Plumas, 16@18; Sierra, 16@18; Nevada, 16@18; Placer, 16@18; El Dorado, 16@18; Amador, 16@18; Calaveras, 16@18; Tuolumne, 16@18; Mariposa, 16@18; Merced, 16@18; Stanislaus, 16@18; Fresno, 16@18; Kings, 16@18; Tulare, 16@18; Kern, 16@18; San Luis Obispo, 16@18; Santa Barbara, 16@18; Los Angeles, 16@18; San Bernardino, 16@18; San Diego

THE DEAD BOCCARTH.

Oh! he was a priest in the autumn of life,
That shrivel'd before my leaf,
And gladly down by his cold white face
Fell the red sun of an Autumn day).
And I signed as myself—oh, a mere summer of youth,
How it flies, while I scribble these lines!
That cool night the dew of Immortal love
Of the leaves amidst grass from the tree.

Sir,—for that word we have a sacred claim,
Though then but a nameless child,
That touch is the seal of the soul in both stirred—
In God was the bosom at God
And still ever that heart timed the chalice of Christ,
For a taste of His food was he.
And I thought, oh! I thought at the last, last time
I had heard, sorrow-bowed, at his knee.

Ah, God of our Faith, then I hastily cried,
Our lives were but vanities, bubbles and brine dark
Has we not as guides through the wilderness
Our dear holy priests such around.
Oh, where is the heart of the sky-anointed wrath,
If trouble its fear would we flee,
To guide Thy flock in the grace, Thy Friendship, Thy love
If not in our confessor's knee?

And the people prayed with the white robed priest
The cradle of our Church's low sway,
And their sons in each bosom gave an answering
At the sign for the creed, slow to weep.
Then sorely, O sheep, the Man complete,
The sound and the ritual vow,
The light made each, a brotherly band
The road in its blue they bore.

Then sanctly on through the winding streets
Of Vaucluse! In the darkest night
Where the glory of the sorrowing crowd—
The grief of an mourning time.
Low they laid him down to his long, long sleep—
And the day of the world in bind
Was piled and piles, till all saintly deep
With the bosom of earth Vaucluse laid.

One parting prayer for the earth-riven soul
Hinged up through the clouds to God,
And the white robed priest and the people each struggling
Went down through the cedar-arched path,
Ah, each in deep sadness and Faith
Like the sage of the Bible to rise
And bless with a word for the glory of God
And his love in the heaven of her sorrow.
—Lucia Hubbard.

A Miracle of Our Lady of the Sacred Heart.

From the Messenger of the Sacred Heart.

The account of this miracle is taken from the Unita Cattolica of June 2, and since it seems to confirm a prevalent opinion of the Holy Father and the Pope, contained in a document lately issued by the Sacred Congregation of the Inquisition, with which many of our readers are probably already acquainted, we shall give a translation of it before narrating the facts connected with the miracle. This pronouncement of the Sacred Congregation was addressed, in the form of a letter, by his Eminence Cardinal Parisi to the Bishop of Premilla of the Latins, in Galicia, on the 28th of February, 1875:

To the Most Rev. Bishop of Premeilan of the Latins: An humble petition which was presented and forwarded by the Apostolic Nuncio at Vienna to our Most Holy Father Pope Pius IX., your Lordship set forth that, in the diocese of Premilla of the Latins, as indeed in all Poland, the devotion to the most Blessed Virgin, Immaculate Mother of the Incarnate Word, exists and flourishes, and that there were instituted and approved there many pious societies under the title of "Notre Dame du Sacré Cœur," enrolled with indulgences by the Holy See, numbers very many members. You added, moreover, that you had received with joy the translation now made of the Pious Exercises, published, adapted to the spirit of the Polish language, against the piety of Mother of Love, and the Heart of Jesus, and that this translation the erroneous and danger ous phrases of the French invocation, "Notre Dame du Sacré Cœur," may be avoided in the pious and devout recitation or invocation in the Polish language as expressed above.

Now, their Eminences the Cardinals Inquisitors General, along with me, to whom the consideration of the matter was entrusted by our Most Holy Father, could not help recognizing and praising the pious exposition of the faith and consistency of your Lordship in defending, especially at present, the purity of the faith, which does not seem to be much esteemed by men who, no matter how pious they may be, are drawn, perhaps by an excessive love of novelty, having no regard to the danger of the simple faithful being easily led astray from the right sense of piety and devotion, by means of strange and foreign doctrines. In order to obviate this danger, the Supreme Sacred Congregation, the Supreme Pontiff himself so ordering, thought it well, at different times, to warn and reprehend those who were laboring to explain the title of the above-named Sodality, and to illustrate the meaning of it by not conforming themselves fully to the traditions of the Church and the approved formulas, and were also writing above its proper bounds the predominate power of the Blessed Virgin Mary intervening in the divine mastership, and were so magnifying the new title as if a new presentation of glory and prominence were to be ushered in to the Virgin, and so of the source of her sublime dignity, inherited only by the Church according to the Scriptures of the Holy Fathers, there was always something wanting, not considering that although the name Virgin has much reference with her Son, nevertheless it cannot be purely asserted that the exercises authority over Him. In this matter, finally, it was that the Apostolic See thought well not to approve the title of "Notre Dame du Sacré Cœur," inasmuch as Christians desire her under this title as their Lady. To this the decree already promulgated must be preferred, by which, when it was urged that the invocation of the Virgin Immaculate, the Spotless Queen of the Sacred Heart," might be approved of, it was prescribed that the Pious Exercises of Jesus, under "Notre Dame du Sacré Cœur," should be nominated in every instance.

Lastly, it was ordained by the Sovereign Pontiff that the stance or pictures to be consecrated to the virtue should represent the Virgin bearing the Child Jesus, not below her knee, but in her arms. The observation was given to make this order understood the care and watchfulness of the Apostolic See not only in condemning and proscribing the errors which were openly proposed to Catholic truths, but also in reproving those comments and opinions which, being considered in and of themselves as matters, seems even lightly to tarnish the purity of doctrine.

For the rest, with regard to the object of your petition, you may know that there is nothing to prevent the fidelity of sacred dears from participating in the same treasure of indulgences with which the privately Sodality of Sinolka was enriched, provided always that the means of the title or invocation to be translated into the Polish language, corresponds carefully to the French title, "Notre Dame du Sacré Cœur," when being fully approved by his Holiness, I am most happy to intimate to your Lordship. And, for my part, offering to you the assurance of my most respectful regard, and wishing you every happiness, etc.,

C. CARD. PATRIZI.

We have only to add, by way of preface, with the Unita Cattolica, that in publishing the following account of the miracle which took place in Florence, we submit entirely to the decree of Urban VIII. and to the authority of the Church.

On the 24th of May, Florence witnessed a great prodigy wrought by the Blessed Virgin Mary. A young lady, restored in an instant from death to life and blooming health, has given us the particulars of the wonderful fact with great candor and simplicity. We are happy to publish the details furnished by her, together with the statement of the physicians in attendance, and we would urge the Catholic journals to republish the same to the glory of God, to the honor of the Blessed Virgin, and for the good of many souls.

They who are disposed to deny all miracles must exploit, as best they may, the astounding fact we are about to relate. This particularly striking feature of this event is that the Blessed Virgin appeared as she is represented in the pictures of Our Lady of the Sacred Heart (according to the requirements laid down by our Holy Father for such pictures), and, moreover, took care to impress upon the dying girl that she was appearing in that particular way. It would seem that Mary desired to give a sacred sanction to the prescription of the Vicar of her divine Son in a manner so delicate.

Besides the words of our Lady, which the young lady has recorded in her account of the apparition, she heard the Blessed Virgin say to her other things concerning her conscience, which, of course, she does not relate. The confessor of the sick girl was present at the time, and attests that her daughter rose and knelt upon her bed, and went through all the acts of contrition and expressions of contentment of one who was in earnest conversation with an intimate friend; she declares that she felt deeply impressed by the scene, and was persuaded, that something extraordinary was taking place in regard to her daughter. The event is thus related by the daughter herself:

"On the 22d of last November I was attacked by a severe pulmonary complaint, which increased by frequent hemorrhages, and which in a short time reduced me to a state of very great weakness and prostration of body. The physicians daily applied new remedies, but to no purpose; the disease grew worse. On the Feast of the Epiphany my condition was so critical that the Holy Viaticum was brought to me, and at the 11th I received Extreme Unction. My relatives were all in the deepest grief. The good cook put on black and wept me, and in a few days an improvement was visible in my condition. Towards the end of March I was able to sit up, but I felt that I was not restored to health, and that a relapse was imminent. This indeed, on the 26th of April. I was again helplessly stretched on my bed. The hemorrhages and the pulmonary complaint grew rapid and limbs began to swell to an alarming extent; I was frequently seized with frequent convulsions, violent palpitations of the heart, and such weakness of the stomach, that I could retain no nourishment. I could not speak without vomiting. It became necessary to sustain life by artificial means. In this state she remained for twenty-four days, during which time the limbs and the whole body of the patient became swollen to an alarming extent, causing vividest palpitations of the heart and a great suffocation that threatened her life; then suddenly all these symptoms disappeared, and the sick girl was restored in an instant to perfect health, so that she could actually go to the decree of Urban VIII. and to the authority of the Church.

On the 24th of May, Florence witnessed a great prodigy wrought by the Blessed Virgin Mary. A young lady, restored in an instant from death to life and blooming health, has given us the particulars of the wonderful fact with great candor and simplicity. We are happy to publish the details furnished by her, together with the statement of the physicians in attendance, and we would urge the Catholic journals to republish the same to the glory of God, to the honor of the Blessed Virgin, and for the good of many souls.

They who are disposed to deny all miracles must exploit, as best they may, the astounding fact we are about to relate. This particularly striking feature of this event is that the Blessed Virgin appeared as she is represented in the pictures of Our Lady of the Sacred Heart (according to the requirements laid down by our Holy Father for such pictures), and, moreover, took care to impress upon the dying girl that she was appearing in that particular way. It would seem that Mary desired to give a sacred sanction to the prescription of the Vicar of her divine Son in a manner so delicate.

Besides the words of our Lady, which the young lady has recorded in her account of the apparition, she heard the Blessed Virgin say to her other things concerning her conscience, which, of course, she does not relate. The confessor of the sick girl was present at the time, and attests that her daughter rose and knelt upon her bed, and went through all the acts of contrition and expressions of contentment of one who was in earnest conversation with an intimate friend; she declares that she felt deeply impressed by the scene, and was persuaded, that something extraordinary was taking place in regard to her daughter. The event is thus related by the daughter herself:

"On the 22d of last November I was attacked by a severe pulmonary complaint, which increased by frequent hemorrhages, and which in a short time reduced me to a state of very great weakness and prostration of body. The physicians daily applied new remedies, but to no purpose; the disease grew worse. On the Feast of the Epiphany my condition was so critical that the Holy Viaticum was brought to me, and at the 11th I received Extreme Unction. My relatives were all in the deepest grief. The good cook put on black and wept me, and in a few days an improvement was visible in my condition. Towards the end of March I was able to sit up, but I felt that I was not restored to health, and that a relapse was imminent. This indeed, on the 26th of April. I was again helplessly stretched on my bed. The hemorrhages and the pulmonary complaint grew rapid and limbs began to swell to an alarming extent; I was frequently seized with frequent convulsions, violent palpitations of the heart, and such weakness of the stomach, that I could retain no nourishment. I could not speak without vomiting. It became necessary to sustain life by artificial means. In this state she remained for twenty-four days, during which time the limbs and the whole body of the patient became swollen to an alarming extent, causing vividest palpitations of the heart and a great suffocation that threatened her life; then suddenly all these symptoms disappeared, and the sick girl was restored in an instant to perfect health, so that she could actually go to the decree of Urban VIII. and to the authority of the Church.

"I have drawn out and signed this statement with my own hand.

"ELVIRA NELLI, Child of Mary.
Aged 19."

The following is the attestation of the physician:

FLORENCE, May 28, 1875.

I, the undersigned, attest that the young lady, Elvira Nelli, of Florence, was attacked in November, 1874, by a series of violent hemorrhages, accompanied by symptoms of epilepsy, which illness lasted almost five months, after which she recovered and remained for a month in a comparatively satisfactory condition. The illness then returned with even more violence, with frequent convulsions, violent palpitations of the heart, and such weakness of the stomach, that I could not prescribe any nourishment. The illness increased, and the limbs became swollen to an alarming extent; I was frequently seized

WEEKLY CALENDAR.
FOR THE WEEK ENDING AUGUST 21.
AUGUST.
15—Sunday—Assumption Sunday after Pentecost. Octave-day of the Assumption. St. Timothy and others. Martyrs.
16—Monday—St. Patrick Bishop, Confessor. Vigil of St. Bartholomew.
17—Tuesday—St. Bartholomew, Apostle.
18—Wednesday—St. Louis IX., King of France, Confessor.
19—Thursday—St. Joachim, Confessor, Father of the B. V. M. (Aug. 20: St. Zephyrinus, Pope and Martyr.)
20—Friday—St. Joseph, Calasanctius, Confessor.
21—Saturday—St. Augustine, Bishop, Confessor and Doctor of the Church. St. Hermes, Martyr.

THE MONITOR & GUARDIAN:
TWO ONLY
Irish and Catholic Journal in California.
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
SATURDAY.....AUGUST 21, 1875.

SUBSCRIBERS will please specially look a the printed label on the margin or wrapper of the paper; the date thereon shows when the subscription expires.

THE O'CONNELL CELEBRATIONS.

We owe an apology to our readers this week for the appearance of our leading columns. While there are some topics, home and foreign, upon which we should like to say a word, we think the unusual character of the celebrations to which we devote our space will be ample excuse for postponing our remarks. In the speech of Mr. RICHARD O'CONNOR, we give our readers a literary and intellectual treat not often met with in newspapers. The distinguished patriot evidently wished that this should be his masterpiece, for it shows every sign of much thought and care in composition. WENDELL PHILLIPS' lecture is so lengthy that we cannot print the whole of it this week, but the instalment we furnish will, we know, be well received. With some of Mr. PHILLIPS' opinions we differ very strongly, and with his reading of history we can never agree; but his admiration for the Liberator is so warm and genuine, that we give insertion to passages in his lecture, which we would prefer he never wrote. Perhaps it is only Mr. PHILLIPS, for instance, who could find any parallel between the careers of DANIEL O'CONNELL and MARTIN LUTHER! But, perhaps, these eccentricities of judgment are pardonable in the great Radical orator. We have entered General BUTLER'S speech for insertion from among many others, some probably more deserving, because it is so thoroughly characteristic of the man, and we are sure it will be read with feelings of amusement. The much berated General has little to say about O'CONNELL, but a great deal about the Yankees, as he calls them, and that deal is the purest of unadulterated gas. We have considered all this centennial matter to be the mission of our readers.

THAT SAN MIGUEL RIOT.

Many of the line against Catholicity put in circulation by the anti-clerical liberals of Europe and America are very cleverly framed and cannot stand the slightest scrutiny. [illegible] easily among men who do not want to know the truth, and who are ready to grasp at any statement, no matter how ill-supported, which appears to tell against the Catholic Church, that these falsehoods can find permanent acceptance. Intelligent and honorable persons, though they may be deceived for a moment, recognize their malice and shrewdly estimate the value made accessible with the real facts, and are ever ready to defend the truth. As an example of the anti-clerical way of inventing a story, we may mention the assertion apropos of the recent riots at San Miguel, which we alluded to in these pages a couple of weeks ago. In that version, our readers will remember, the priests were accused of being the cause of all the disturbance, and even of inciting the populace to pillage and murder. It was stated that in the pockets of many of the rioters who were killed documents were found, bearing the seal of the Archbishopric of San Salvador, in the form of a request to St. Peter to admit the bearer to heaven because he had been slain while fighting for religion.

The absurdity of such a story and the impossibility of its finding believers, except among a section of extreme anti-Catholic fanatics, seem not to have struck the inventor at all, while his solicitude in assuming the name of a priests who never existed to these supposititious "passports," proves that his stupidity must have at least equalled his irreligious malice and depravity. There is no such individual as "GONOSO, Bishop of San Salvador," in the Catholic Church, and he exists only in the imagination of the concocter of the riot romance. But its untruthfulness was so patent and self-evident that we would not think of alluding to it again, and would be content to let it pass away along with a thousand other exploded calumnies, if we did not think it worth while to record that we have seen account of the disturbances printed in an English paper in which "GONOSO, Bishop of San Salvador," is not even mentioned, and in which the priests are represented as acting solely as peacemakers. The whole difficulty, it appears, grew out of the authoritative removal of the cemetery of the city market to a location disliked by the people. A few troops attempted to accomplish the transfer of the dealers and their wares by violence, but met with a resistance which, unfortunately for law and order, proved successful. The populace overcame the soldiery and committed brutal excesses; but the priests, so far from exciting them, risked their lives in the endeavor to restore true quiet.

The irritation against the Government for prohibiting the reading of the Bishop's pastoral was altogether another matter, and had no connection with the disturbance, though no doubt it may have served to embitter the people who could not understand the right of the civil power to interfere in ecclesiastical matters. We have not learned the nature of the Bishop's pastoral, but we are fully confident it was nothing more than a protest against some anti-clerical legislation, and that it did not transgress the moderation and charity proper to episcopal counsel. We are strengthened in our belief by the circumstance that the Government appears to have taken advantages of the San Miguel riot as a pretext for decreeing the banishment of the bishop and priests who were obnoxious to them. There was no investigation, no trial, no law proceedings of any sort—the President of this moral "republic" sentenced them to exile, and they had to leave the country. This is freedom as known and enjoyed in the republics of Central America, and we should like to learn how many admirers it has in this country.

The Spanish American Church.

The laying of the corner-stone of the new Spanish church, junction of Broadway and Mason streets, which took place last Sunday, was an event long to be remembered by the Catholic population of this city. It will, we trust, ever mark an important epoch in the progress of Catholicity on the Pacific Coast. The erection of the new ecclesiastical structure was a necessity a necessity, as without it the spiritual wants of our Spanish co-religionists, every day growing in numbers and importance, could hardly be properly attended to. It must be mentioned to the credit of Rev. A. Garriga that he was among the first to recognize the great desirability of providing increased church accommodation for his countrymen, and that he was certainly the very first to take active steps to secure what was so much needed. In a quiet, unostentatious way he began, after having obtained the permission of his Grace the Archbishop, to take up a subscription, and before long he had obtained such solid encouragement, and could see such prospects of ultimate success, that he bought a lot in an excellent position and set about the immediate construction of the building. The interesting ceremony performed last Sunday is, we are sure, ample proof that before its completion the church will be found to be too small for the congregations of the city market to a location disliked by the people. A few troops attempted to accomplish the transfer of the dealers and their wares by violence, but met with a resistance which, unfortunately for law and order, proved successful. The populace overcame the soldiery and committed brutal excesses; but the priests, so far from exciting them, risked their lives in the endeavor to restore true quiet.

The irritation against the Government for prohibiting the reading of the Bishop's pastoral was altogether another matter, and had no connection with the disturbance, though no doubt it may have served to em-

The Grotto of Lourdes.

We have been kindly accorded permission to copy into THE MONITOR the following passages from a letter written to his Grace the Archbishop by Rev. W. Gleeson, pastor of Brooklyn, Alameda. They will stand in editorial illustrations of the piety and devotion of the pilgrims to the sacred grotto and will therefore be welcome to our readers:

ROME, June 5, 1875.

From the heading you can see that I have come further than the sanctuary of Our Lady of Lourdes. According to my intention, I intend, shortly after my arrival in France, the scene of the miraculous apparitions. I shall ever connect the occasion with the auspicious circumstance of my life. I purpose to take favored locality would abundantly repay one, though it came from the most distant part of the world. I never before experienced such an atmosphere of piety in any temple of God. The intense devotional demeanor of the pilgrims, the associations connected with the sanctuary, but especially, and above all, the individual fact of the Mother of God herself having appeared in person to a child, and by her visible presence—all seem to awaken a sensation, a feeling that cannot be really expressed. It is impossible in such lines all the surroundings, but appropriate instructions therefore now flowing in great abundance, whom before there was not a drop of water, suddenly being ,suddenly moved. I had an idea of the great number of miracles effected; the evidence of many of those are still to be seen in the shape of costly ornaments. A perusal of the books containing the records of the miracles, and which I brought on my return to the hotel, fully satisfied me that the number of cures related fell so much below the truth as to be incredible.

The church, which cost upwards of two millions of francs, is built immediately over the grotto. It is of a pointed style in its way, and, as a pilgrimage, has been raised to the dignity of a Basilica by the Sovereign Pontiff. The interior is divided into two remarkable manner, but the additional Sanctuary was a surprise—those of the Lower Church, I mean, are there. At least those are the only ones I noticed during my visit. The Lower Church is to be seen a beautiful specimen of Gothic architecture, with its silver and golden hearts, votive, etc.

I am leaving for Jerusalem on Monday. The present is about the worst time of the year to visit the Holy Land, but as I may not have another opportunity again I will visit it. I have long desired to see the land sanctified by the visible presence of our Divine Lord, and having accomplished that, my desire for sight-seeing will be almost over.

The Democratic Nominees.

Elsewhere we publish a full list of the nominees of the Democratic party for municipal and legislative offices. The municipal ticket leaves us little to wish for. While it contains a few names that might have been left to the requirement of private life, the vast majority are representative men, some of whom have already occupied public positions, and discharged their duties with credit to themselves and satisfaction to the public.

The Legislative tickets also contain some first-class names, gentlemen of proved honesty and capacity, whose election would add to adopt, a horrible patient occurred. The curse of famine fell on Ireland—the land of the people's food blackened and rotted in the ground. To famine, soon succeeded the mortal epidemic which famine breeds. It was a terrible time in its life through—a terrible time for a seven years' visitation. The British Government did nothing; talked coldly of the laws of "supply and demand," and repeated about "political economy," while the people were dying by thousands. It was enough to say that the cure for famine was little grizzled to see the Celtic element in Ireland perishing before a weapon more powerful than their own. "The Celts are gone," wrote the Times—"gone with a vengeance. Praise be to God!" A note of triumphant exultation was struck from the English press, and the people, burying all in one common grave, left the land to its new masters. Perhaps I remember it well—I was one of the few that survived. I was one of the few that remained, a wretched, miserable, starving child, with what, in his darkness, was left of his family, in the dark sky; it was the quick, piercing, protesting sympathy of America. The first time I ever felt it.

THE FLAG OF THE UNITED STATES

Was on a ship freighted with breadstuffs, sent from Philadelphia, in 1847, for the relief of the people of Ireland. It floated above the bounteous cargo, the blessed sign of piety and brotherhood to the foreseen island; and that band of friendship, then stretched across the Atlantic, with what, in his darkness, gratitude I was clasped by Ireland. It seemed to say 24 feet long in the right hand. "Feed all the world abandon you—though nature itself turn against you and do the work of God, the United States of America is not one of them." Those words, since then, have been the public, in hope and home. Never, never be that sign enough loosened; never be that league of love dissolved. It was consecrated by Providence itself. "What God hath joined, let no man put asunder."

It was the worst calamity of O'Connell's life that he lived to witness this woful dirge of his country. But it was not to be long. He was about three score years and ten, when mortal disease laid its hand upon him. His last journey was to Rome—to the great center and temple of the faith in the Eternal City. He died on the way, at Genoa, on May 21, 1847; died in the full possession of all that should attend old age—fame, honor, obedience and troops of friends." His life had been a full life, and his death, crowned with success, was a glorious one. He was the last of the great Irish leaders, and the last public voice was sent to their cause. He lived a life, noble, beautiful, and powerful, and he died as a man laid to-day a bolder and manlier tone of public speech, of sensation question that was agitated, if Protestant ascendency is a thing of the past, and all men are equal before the law, and free to worship God as they will, if Irishmen are becoming united in wise and peaceful policy, if the good of our land, if there is in Ireland a literature active, brilliant and racy of the soil, much of the eloquence of the day, and many able men who, in perilous times, sustained the independence of his country, reduced by no slight cost on her, gave and took blows in her defense, taught her to think with courage, to speak, write, and act for herself—it is owing to the great and good man

WHOSE GRAVE IS IN GLASNEVIN,

But no loose spirit will mingle with his and animates Ireland. For nearly thirty years he has lain in that grave; and yet, to-night, I stand near his tomb, as I heard it in long ago—clear, musical, impressive, uttering the lines of Moore, which he loved to repeat:

Went they all I could wish that, great, glorious and free—
First flow'r of the earth and first gem of the sea—
I'd rest in the hope of my labors and dreams
But shall I live thus more dearly than now!

No, thy shades as they reach thy blood as it runs.
Thy sons were indeed worthy of thee in the days
Whose hearts, like the freeing of the desert-bird's chains
Bore love to each life-drop they drew from the breast.

That sacred love will never die out of the Irish heart. It is a sentiment which neither time nor change can ever eradicate. Prosperity will but feed it. Adversity can never trample it out. Education and enlightenment will redouble its fire and force. Ireland will be Ireland to the last. The great Napoleon most wisely said that Europe would never know peace or repose until it was governed according to its nationalities. Had Europe only learned that lesson how many thousands of gallant lives might have been spared. It is not yet too late, she may be too little to be the successful enemy of England; she is surely too great to be her submissive slave. There is one other relation between them not yet tried, the only remaining, I think, that ever can bind to the honor, peace or happiness of both. That relation is friendship—such as says its honor exist between two independent nations—bound together, not by force, but by the firm alliance of common civilization, common interests, purposes and hopes —regarding old quarrels, repentingful old wrongs, striving to redeem the errors of the past, by cultivating good will in the future, and by common effort to render that future a career to both of power, prosperity and freedom.

Mr. O'Gorman retired amid great cheering, and the meeting then dispersed.

THE CENTENNIAL IN NEW YORK.

From the New York Sun of August 15th:

Probably the large hall of the Cooper Institute was never more densely crowded than last night on the occasion of the O'Connell Centenary. The stage was gorgeously draped with Irish and American flags, and below the big clock in the center, just underneath the bust of Washington, was a life-size bust of Daniel O'Connell. At 8 o'clock sharp the orator, the Rev. Father McGlynn, were the Hon. Thurlow Weed, Algernon Sydney Sullivan, Thomas Underwood O'Connell, Judge Quinn, Controller Green, Judge Cardozo, Colonel Cavanagh, and Colonel Fellows, Colonel Wm. Mann, Commissioner Thomas S. Brennan

THE PEASANT GIRLS.

The peasant girls of sunny France,
Support the toil of life
With more than half the manly part
Of labor in the strife.
The sun—and forth the foes with gun
Or hoe contend to meet,
While fruitful weeds of interest
Are heard throughout the land.

And fair Italia's peasant girl,
The Arno's banks beside,
With step and brow that shine into poor!
Will bind in wreaths of pride.
Her native land, and under the sky,
With arbor of the vine,
Look up and see her grow enough—
Is she not made for love?

The peasant girl of England, see
With lips of rosy dye,
Before the Grand Jury on Saturday; and it
Was decided to hand over the amount applied for, £1,300, to the county surveyor, by whom the work is to be carried out.

The commission for county Limerick was opened on Saturday by the Lord Chief Justice, who remarked that considering the state of the county and the number of its population, there was hardly another county that could show a more pleasing prospect.

On Tuesday the remains of the Rev. William Louth, who was for many years chaplain to the regiment, by inducing promise at Ballyoate, near Mullingar, were consigned to their last resting place in the ancient graveyard of Rathkenny, near Slane, in county Meath.

The young man, Patrick Deasy, assistant to Mr. James Fenton, of Castlebar, who has been under treatment in the county infirmary from a burn he had received in throwing "fire balls" on St. John's Eve, has since died of his injury. It was thought he had quite recovered, when the look jaw set in.

The harbor board of Waterford has pay properly prepared to ask the loan of £40,000 from the Government to go on with the dry dock, the west of which is so much in the way of the loan and harbor, and citizens generally. The loan cannot be got at so low an interest as 5 per cent, under twenty-five, namely, 3½ per cent. Five per cent is asked for the dock.

The death occurs, a farmer's wife, and her servant girl were indicted for having on the 12th of April improperly and unlawfully driven two cows on a portion of the Navan and Kingscourt Railway line, whereby a collision with a passing train was brought about, from which fatal injuries to three workmen resulted. The jury, after some deliberation, brought in a verdict of accidental death.

At the Galway assizes, Mr. Ferdinand, proprietor of the Galway Vindicator, was indicted for the second time in sliding and assisting in the abduction from the funeral of Sir Thomas Blake, at Meelo, in January last. As on the previous trial, the jury, though locked up for a considerable period, were discharged without having agreed to a verdict. The traverser is allowed to stand out on bail on his own recognizances. I know, or thought I knew, what a deputy was before Mr. de Lamartine pronounced this opprobrious term now I know nothing at all about it; the only thing I do know is that a candidate is a vampire.

You take heed, as well as I, of two deputies who might be called a people; but these deputies do not sit on the benches of the French Legislature; one of them is in the English Parliament and the other in the Parliament of Spain. O'Connell; Olano!—these are the only two men who, in the contemporaneous age, could be called a people without ridiculous hyperbole. Both are representatives of oppressed peoples; both are representatives of conquered peoples.

Olano, the representative of a people transplanted and preserved by conquest, whose oppression and spoliation will not last beyond the extermination or domestication of the conquerors, has been a people only for a day. But both have been a people. Despair of the freedom of the world is needless; but he was only an individual. Ossian was simply an eccentricity; Mirabeau a flaming meteor only for a day; Bonaparte spoke in the name of the ancient tyrannies of his country; Mazzini was a sane gold. Cicero composed phrases, made for the purpose of saving his client than of saving the liberties of mankind. Mirabeau was eloquent from a thousand causes, but above all through his assurance, which is the dominating quality of all factious. Berrier has the eloquence of past glories—an eloquence peculiar to dying parties.

But look at O'Connell, that Irish Cyclops, who made himself blind in the cause of his Kingdoms there is not one man whose head could be compared. Men regard him with awe, as if he were a demigod or the son of Ossian giant. He does with his word what Pygmalion did with his statue, in which the sound of all instruments lay dormant, but ready to awaken at the slightest touch. O'Connell's voice is modified and intensified, lengthened, husky and clear, blasé and thrilling. It is a harp, it roars like a lion, it stores, it stormifies like a hymn. O'Connell is the good angel of Ireland, the evil genius of England. He is the sacred plaster of his country local his tones fall consoling and sweet; in the English Parliament his voice bears impressions, while his head agitates the aspects of the Forties. O'Connell is sublime in Democratic tongue; Olano is Machiavelian, melancholy as Chateaubriand, tender as Petrarch, coarse as a hallway, savage as an Albanese, prudent in the Parliamentary manner as Ulysses in the camp of the Greeks; intrepid, bold and daring as a political charlatan leaves for light to die in the boundary and in that felicitous manner there is something of the serpent, something of the serpent, something of the king, and something of the Damocles' sword. O'Connell there is a great deal of the savage man, and a great deal of the highly-civilized man; he is at once fox and lion. He is audacious and ingenuous, like Goethe's Mephistopheles; and he is innocent and candid as a child. He is a whole people, and a whole people in everything.

I must admit that I drop my pen with pleasure to lovingly contemplate this sublime figure with the eyes of my imagination, though it scares me a little. I behold his august brow bent over the saltcoat ship, from which his fingers draw sounds plaintive and deep. One would say it was Ossian seated on his throne of clouds, and responding to the cries of a martyred people imploring vengeance.

Ireland! green Ireland! Catholic Ireland! rejoice in the midst of thy humiliation. Thou art a slave, it is true; thou art clothed in dregs; thou hast had to eat the bark of thy trees and the grass of thy fields; but tears hang from thy lashes; thy steps are tottering; thou stoopest on a bed of straw. But on that bed thou hast given birth to a king, who will one day break his mother's chains; Ireland! green Ireland! Catholic Ireland! rejoice in the midst of thy humiliation and thy slavery.

Vide, refuted the rights of the Basque provinces in the Spanish Cortes.

ADVICE TO A LOVE-SICK TAILOR.—Press your suit.

IRISH LOCAL NEWS.

From the Dublin Nation of July 24.

At the assizes in Enniskillen the Lord Chief Justice complimented the Grand Jury on the state of the country. There were only two cases to go before them.

The assizes for King's county opened on Monday. The judge congratulated the Grand Jury on the lightness of their labors. There being only one case of importance to go before them—namely, a charge in connection with the murder of Rigney.

The presentment for the proposed bridge over the Bandon river near Kinsale, was before the Grand Jury on Saturday, and it was decided to hand over the amount applied for, £1,300, to the county surveyor, by whom the work is to be carried out.

The commission for county Limerick was opened on Saturday by the Lord Chief Justice, who remarked that considering the state of the county and the number of its population, there was hardly another county that could show a more pleasing prospect.

On Tuesday the remains of the Rev. William Louth, who was for many years chaplain to the regiment, by inducing promise at Ballyoate, near Mullingar, were consigned to their last resting place in the ancient graveyard of Rathkenny, near Slane, in county Meath.

The young man, Patrick Deasy, assistant to Mr. James Fenton, of Castlebar, who has been under treatment in the county infirmary from a burn he had received in throwing "fire balls" on St. John's Eve, has since died of his injury. It was thought he had quite recovered, when the lockjaw set in.

The harbor board of Waterford has pay properly prepared to ask the loan of £40,000 from the Government to go on with the dry dock, the west of which is so much in the way of the loan and harbor, and citizens generally. The loan cannot be got at so low an interest as 5 per cent, under twenty-five, namely, 3½ per cent. Five per cent is asked for the dock.

The death occurs, a farmer's wife, and her servant girl were indicted for having on the 12th of April improperly and unlawfully driven two cows on a portion of the Navan and Kingscourt Railway line, whereby a collision with a passing train was brought about, from which fatal injuries to three workmen resulted. The jury, after some deliberation, brought in a verdict of accidental death.

At the Galway assizes, Mr. Ferdinand, proprietor of the Galway Vindicator, was indicted for the second time in sliding and assisting in the abduction from the funeral of Sir Thomas Blake, at Meelo, in January last. As on the previous trial, the jury, though locked up for a considerable period, were discharged without having agreed to a verdict. The traverser is allowed to stand out on bail on his own recognizances. I know, or thought I knew, what a deputy was before Mr. de Lamartine pronounced this opprobrious term now I know nothing at all about it; the only thing I do know is that a candidate is a vampire.

You take heed, as well as I, of two deputies who might be called a people; but these deputies do not sit on the benches of the French Legislature; one of them is in the English Parliament and the other in the Parliament of Spain. O'Connell; Olano!—these are the only two men who, in the contemporaneous age, could be called a people without ridiculous hyperbole. Both are representatives of oppressed peoples; both are representatives of conquered peoples.

Olano, the representative of a people transplanted and preserved by conquest, whose oppression and spoliation will not last beyond the extermination or domestication of the conquerors, has been a people only for a day. But both have been a people. Despair of the freedom of the world is needless; but he was only an individual. Ossian was simply an eccentricity; Mirabeau a flaming meteor only for a day; Bonaparte spoke in the name of the ancient tyrannies of his country; Mazzini was a sane gold. Cicero composed phrases, made for the purpose of saving his client than of saving the liberties of mankind. Mirabeau was eloquent from a thousand causes, but above all through his assurance, which is the dominating quality of all factious. Berrier has the eloquence of past glories—an eloquence peculiar to dying parties.

But look at O'Connell, that Irish Cyclops, who made himself blind in the cause of his Kingdoms there is not one man whose head could be compared. Men regard him with awe, as if he were a demigod or the son of Ossian giant. He does with his word what Pygmalion did with his statue, in which the sound of all instruments lay dormant, but ready to awaken at the slightest touch. O'Connell's voice is modified and intensified, lengthened, husky and clear, blasé and thrilling. It is a harp, it roars like a lion, it stores, it stormifies like a hymn. O'Connell is the good angel of Ireland, the evil genius of England. He is the sacred plaster of his country local his tones fall consoling and sweet; in the English Parliament his voice bears impressions, while his head agitates the aspects of the Forties. O'Connell is sublime in Democratic tongue; Olano is Machiavelian, melancholy as Chateaubriand, tender as Petrarch, coarse as a hallway, savage as an Albanese, prudent in the Parliamentary manner as Ulysses in the camp of the Greeks; intrepid, bold and daring as a political charlatan leaves for light to die in the boundary and in that felicitous manner there is something of the serpent, something of the serpent, something of the king, and something of the Damocles' sword. O'Connell there is a great deal of the savage man, and a great deal of the highly-civilized man; he is at once fox and lion. He is audacious and ingenuous, like Goethe's Mephistopheles; and he is innocent and candid as a child. He is a whole people, and a whole people in everything.

I must admit that I drop my pen with pleasure to lovingly contemplate this sublime figure with the eyes of my imagination, though it scares me a little. I behold his august brow bent over the saltcoat ship, from which his fingers draw sounds plaintive and deep. One would say it was Ossian seated on his throne of clouds, and responding to the cries of a martyred people imploring vengeance.

Ireland! green Ireland! Catholic Ireland! rejoice in the midst of thy humiliation. Thou art a slave, it is true; thou art clothed in dregs; thou hast had to eat the bark of thy trees and the grass of thy fields; but tears hang from thy lashes; thy steps are tottering; thou stoopest on a bed of straw. But on that bed thou hast given birth to a king, who will one day break his mother's chains; Ireland! green Ireland! Catholic Ireland! rejoice in the midst of thy humiliation and thy slavery.

Vide, refuted the rights of the Basque provinces in the Spanish Cortes.

ADVICE TO A LOVE-SICK TAILOR.—Press your suit.

EDUCATIONAL.

SAINT MARY'S COLLEGE
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
Conducted by the Christian Brothers
Offers every facility for acquiring a thorough Education, whether Classical, Scientific or Commercial.

Those who complete the Classical Course receive the degree of A. B.; the Scientific, B. S.; the Commercial, Master of Accounts.

The Commercial course has been established for the convenience of those who wish to acquire a good practical education in as short a time as possible.

While proper care is bestowed on every branch taught in the College, our own language receives special attention. The daily exercises of the Students in Grammar, Composition and Rhetoric are publicly discussed and corrected in the class-room.

TERMS PER SCHOLASTIC YEAR,
(Payable half yearly in advance.)

Board, Tuition and Washing.....$200 00
Entrance Fee.....10 00
Physician's Fee and Medicine.....5 00
Graduation Fee.....20 00
Use of Library.....50 00

For each Academic or Day Class.....1 00

Bedding will be furnished on the 5th of August.
1631 BRO. PATRICK, President.

ST. VINCENT'S SCHOOL.

THIS INSTITUTION IS SITUATED IN SANTA CLARA, a short distance from the train, in a delightful and healthy part of the city. The course of instruction embraces the usual branches.

The course of instruction embraces the usual branches of a thorough English education. Spanish is also taught.

TERMS
(Invariably half yearly in advance):

Board, clothing, bedding and washing, per session.....$100
Entrance fee, to be paid but once.....5
Tuition or place, per session.....30
Physician's fee.....5

No extra charge for Tapestry, Embroidery, Flute and Ornamental Needlework, nor for the Spanish language.

TERMS FOR DAY SCHOLARS:

Primary, per month.....$1 00
Elementary and Senior, per month.....2 00
Tuition in Music.....5 00
French.....5 00

No extra charge for Tapestry, Embroidery, Flute and Ornamental Needlework, nor for the Spanish language.

For further particulars apply at College, or address
SISTER SUPERIOR.
1230 Santa Barbara, Cal.

COLLEGE OF NOTRE DAME.
SAN JOSE, CALIFORNIA.
YOUNG LADIES' INSTITUTE.

THIS INSTITUTION, WHICH IS INCORPORATED according to the laws of the State of California, possesses the requisite academical honors, will commence the Scholastic Year on MONDAY, August 2, 1875. The course of instruction embraces all the branches of a thorough education.

TERMS:

Entrance, to be paid but once.....$15 00
Board and Tuition, per quarter.....42 50
Washing, per quarter.....12 50
Use of Bedding, which may be preferred.....5 00
Physician's Fee, per quarter.....2 50
Piano, Vocal Music, Drawing and Painting form extra charges. No deduction for absence, except in cases of protracted illness, or dismissal. Languages, nor for Flute Lessons, Tapestry or Fancy Needlework.

Payments are required to be made half a session in advance. Pupils will not be received for a shorter time than a session, nor be permitted to withdraw before the expiration of the session. 1407

ST. CATHERINE'S ACADEMY,
FOR YOUNG LADIES.
BENICIA.....CALIFORNIA.

THIS INSTITUTION IS CONDUCTED BY THE Sisters of St. Dominic, and is situated in the most healthy and delightful part of the city. The education embraces the various branches of instruction usually taught in the most approved academies for young ladies. Pupils of any religious denomination received. Terms, for the session of ten months, all are required to be present at the regular religious exercises of the Church.

The scholastic year, comprising ten months, opens on the first Monday in August, and ends on the last day of June. Parents or guardians who wish their children to leave at any time, the fee to commence from the date of entrance.

TERMS
(Payable semi-annually, in advance):

Board and Tuition.....$225 00
Washing.....12 00
Physician's fee.....5 00

Pupils commencing at the Academy during vacation will be charged $20.

Drawing, Painting and Music form extra charges. There is no extra charge for the French or Spanish languages. Not only must

All correspondence of the young ladies will be submitted to the inspection of the Superioress.

Letters of inquiry may be addressed to the
SISTER SUPERIOR.

ST. JOSEPH'S COLLEGE,
Rohnerville, Humboldt County, Cal.
Conducted by the Priests of the Congregation of the Most Precious Blood.

TERMS PER SCHOLASTIC YEAR:
(Payable half yearly in advance.)

For board, lodging, tuition, washing and mending linen.....$200 00
Entrance Fee, to be paid only once.....10 00
Vacation at College.....50 00

DAY PUPILS.

Junior class.....$40 00
Senior class.....60 00

Vocal and instrumental music, drawing and modern languages form extra charges. The two sessions of the scholastic year commence respectively on the first Monday in August and the 20th of September, 1875.

For further information address
REV. P. STRAUB, C. P. P. S.
N. B.—On account of unavoidable delay the school will not open on the 20th of September, 1875.

CONVENT OF THE IMMACULATE HEART OF MARY
—FOR THE—
EDUCATION OF YOUNG LADIES
SILBOY, SANTA CLARA CO.
Conducted by the Sisters of the Most Holy and Immaculate Heart of Mary.

TERMS FOR BOARDERS:

Board, clothing, bedding and washing, per session.....$200
Entrance fee, to be paid but once.....10
Tuition or place, per session.....50
Physician's fee.....5

No extra charge for Tapestry, Embroidery, Flute and Ornamental Needlework, nor for the Spanish language.

TERMS FOR DAY SCHOLARS:

Primary, per month.....$1 00
Elementary and Senior, per month.....2 00
Tuition in Music.....5 00
French.....5 00

No extra charge for Tapestry, Embroidery, Flute and Ornamental Needlework, nor for the Spanish language.

For particulars apply at College, or address
MOTHER SUPERIOR.
1230 Santa Barbara, Cal.

NOTRE DAME ACADEMY,
SAN FRANCISCO.

THIS ACADEMY, WHICH IS CONDUCTED by the Sisters of Notre Dame, is situated in Dolores street, opposite the Mission Dolores. The course of instruction embraces all the solid and considerable branches usually taught in every first-class academy. The discipline is mild and parental, while the strictest attention is paid to the moral deportment of the young ladies confided to the care of the Sisters. Particular attention is given to the health of the pupils, and all the means for healthful exercise during the recreation hours.

The course of instruction embraces every useful and ornamental branch. Pupils will be received at the present day.

The first term of the Tenth Annual Session will commence July 16, 1875.

TERMS:

BOARDING PUPILS.

Per quarter, payable quarterly in advance:
Board, Tuition, washing, with the use of bed and bedding.....$60 00
Use of Instruments.....2 50
Vocal Music.....1 00
Drawing and Painting.....1 00
Fancy Needlework.....1 00
French.....1 00

Terms per month (in advance).
Select Day Scholars, Primary Class.....$1 00
Intermediate Classes.....2 00
Senior Classes.....3 00
Use of Instruments.....1 00
Per Quarter and Primary.....1 00
Fancy Needlework.....1 00

No extra charge for French, Spanish and German languages, nor for Plain sewing and Fancy Needlework.

Pupils will find it much to their advantage to be present at the opening of the session.

Good references required.

ST. VINCENT'S COLLEGE
LOS ANGELES, CAL.
DEGREES CONFERRED
Rev. JAMES McGILL, C. M.,
President.

EDUCATIONAL.

SAINT IGNATIUS COLLEGE,
SAN FRANCISCO.
Conducted by the Fathers of the Society of Jesus.

This Literary Institution was incorporated, according to the laws of the State, on the 30th of April, 1855, and empowered to confer academical honors. The course of literary honors as are granted by any University in the United States.

The design of this Institution is to give a thorough General, Mathematical and Philosophical education. To accomplish the classical, there is, also, a Commercial Course. The College is attended for day scholars only.

TERMS PER MONTH
(Payable in advance):

Tuition, in Preparatory Department.....$1 00
" in Lower Department.....2 00
" in Higher Department.....3 00
" EXTRA CHARGES.

For the use of Instruments in Natural Philosophy and Chemicals, first year, per month.....$1 00
For the use of Instruments, etc., second year, per month.....1 00
For each Academic or Day Class.....1 00

CONVENT OF OUR LADY OF THE SACRED HEART,
OAKLAND.....CALIFORNIA.
Conducted by the Sisters of the Holy Names of Jesus and Mary.

THIS INSTITUTION IS PLEASANTLY SITUATED between Webster street and Lake Merritt, commanding a view of the Bay of San Francisco, and is now open for the reception of pupils. In all the modern improvements—no expense having been spared in the construction of the building.

The course of study embraces the various branches of a solid, useful and ornamental education.

TERMS (payable half yearly in advance):

Board and Tuition (Preparatory).....$100 00
Washing (including use of bedding).....20 00
Use of Piano.....10 00

Vocal Music, Drawing and Painting form extra charges.

For further particulars apply to
MOTHER SUPERIOR.

FRANCISCAN COLLEGE,
SANTA BARBARA.....CALIFORNIA.

THE NINTH SESSION OF THIS INSTITUTION, conducted by the Fathers of the Order of St. Francis, will commence on the first Monday in August, 1875.

The object of the Institution is to give a good Classical, Mathematical, Commercial and Philosophical education, at the lowest possible cost, and thereby rebut the assertion that this cannot be done.

TERMS.

Entrance Fee (to be paid but once).....$10 00
Tuition, Board and Washing, per session, of ten months.....150 00
Music: French and German forms extra charges.
Physician's fee in case of illness.....5 00

Parents will pay for medical attendance, and apothecary's bills.

Money will not be advanced by the College; for the purchase of clothing, books, or anything else not to be deposited.

For further particulars apply to
REV. J. M. RONO, O. S. F.
1278

HEALD'S BUSINESS COLLEGE
24 POST ST.
SAN FRANCISCO

EDUCATES FOR THE PRACTICAL AFFAIRS of life; has long been and is now liberally patronized by the Bench, the Bar, the Merchants of San Francisco, and the Legislature of California. Has received the highest premiums at all competitions on the Western Coast for its system of penmanship.

For full particulars call at College, or address
H. S. HEALD,
E. P. HEALD, San Francisco.

BOOKS OF EASY MUSIC.

COLLECTION OF EASY, BRILLIANT, POPular airs, that can be learned by heart, and are not easy thing.

Musical Garland.
$2 50. Violin and Piano Duets.

Musical Flowers.
$1 50. Flute and Piano Duets.

Flute Bouquet.
$1 50. Airs for Flute.

Violin Amusements.
$1 50. Airs for Violin.

Party Dances.
75 cents. Violin and Piano.

Winner's Band of Four.
$1. Quarters for 1st and 2d Violin, Cornet or Flute.

Strauss' Dance Music.
$1. Violin and Piano Duets.

Violin and Flute Duets.
$1. By Winner.

Clarke's (S) Instructors.
For Piano, for Reed Organ, for Violin. Each $1.

Winner's New Schools.
Each 75 cents. For Piano, Cabinet Organ, Melodeon, Violin, Guitar, Banjo, Cornet, Flute, Accordeon, German Accordeon, Fife, Fifer, Flageolet, Clarionet.

For sale by all music dealers. Sent, post free, for retail price.

OLIVER DITSON & CO., C. H. DITSON & CO.
Boston. 711 Broadway, New York.

A Man and His Up a Tree for Several Hours.

Yesterday noon a rumor spread over town that a man had taken refuge in a tree on Post Oak bottom, and that there was no way to rescue him, as the waters were still rising and coming down at a fearful rate. We heard the story down to a fine point, and found that during the early part of the day an Irishman, named Tim Kilty, who had some hogs out on what is known as the Priestley bottoms, fearing the flood might carry them off, mounted his horse and went to the rescue. He found his cattle, swimming to and fro, in queer of dry land, so he helped them all to be ould, by driving and coaxing, to pilot them through.

But one little pig, as Tim says, "had the divil himself within it," for it persisted in "going it alone." Finally Tim resolved to take pig by the ear and teach him a lesson, so he wheeled his horse around and made a good grab at his persistent porcine property. And he got hold of it. But at the same instant the horse commenced to run off, and Tim, leaving to lose the pig, made a grab at a convenient limb with the view of landing the horse to go where he chose. Then Tim placed the squealing pig astraddle of a limb, and perched upon another himself. Then the twain joined voices in a duet, but Tim soon grew hoarse in the surge and roar of the mighty rush of waters.

Then they had to mount higher still, as the sadying stream rose swiftly (about two inches per hour), and the situation became decidedly uncomfortable. Accordingly, when the threeks had come for the lobitiment of their wounds, the Samaritans offered a vigorous resistance, and it was only consequent the Americans were victorious. The Irishmen and pig were rescued from the unbecoming outrage and for the scandal that they had contained. It is not the first time that they have been in close adjacency and dumbfounding manner. They have invaded an American privilege of the Latin Catholics, who had long enjoyed the luxury of officiating on the feast of St. James the great, in the name of the Spanish dedicated to that saint—a church built by the Spaniards, but which does not, in some way or other, since fallen into the hands of the Americans schismatics. The Latin Catholics had also had the right of officiating at mass held on Whit Sunday and Whit Monday on Telegraph Hill, in honor of Notre Dame, the name of the House of Calipolis, which was one of the possessions of the Armenians, from 1810 to 1814, when the Armenians finally refused to the Latins the accustomed privilege, and thereafter there have been no more processions from there to the parish church. Pope that the privileges should be restored. Finally, the Irish influence has been sufficiently powerful to cause the order to be given and carried out the Catholics to be trampled on.

At a spiritual camp meeting held at Bunker Hill, Iowa, a denominational response to the question, "How long is it since you were saved?" was, "The clouds keep pouring out water; the rain keeps falling, and I keep expecting out water it will rain." And then they knew all about it.

T. J. BRODERICK
112 Third Street,
(Between Mission and Howard),
Keeps a large and well-assorted stock of the best boots, Ladies', Misses' and Children's.

Shoes and Rubbers are constantly arriving. Also, a full line of Gents' Furnishing Goods.

Orders from the country will receive prompt attention. Remember the place.
117 119 Third Street.

MERCHANT TAILORS.

N. SWEENY,
MERCHANT TAILOR,
NO. 42 SECOND STREET,
Opposite Jessie Street. San Francisco

Consantly on hand a choice assortment of Cloths, Cassimeres, Beavers and Vestings, which will be made to order on reasonable terms.

Particular attention given to Military Uniforms. 1278

T. CANTY,
MERCHANT TAILOR,
97 Sutter street, near Montgomery,
SAN FRANCISCO.

Suits of California clothes made to the tallest style, at the ratiest prices. 506-11

THE RIGHT Man IN THE RIGHT Place.

PANTS TO ORDER,
$6 and Upward.

XXXXX BEAVER SUITS,
In any Style, $50.

CASSIMERE SUITS,
$25 TO $40,
AT A. MORRIS',
48 SECOND STREET, 48
Near Mission, - - - West Side.

Over 1,000,000 Witnesses
Can testify to the superiority of the DIAMOND SPECTACLES AND EYE-GLASSES, they being the most perfect artificial help to the human eye known to science. Try a pair and be convinced. The responsible jeweler in every city keeps them.

Ⓢ Ⓢ On the genuine.

Trade-mark, stamped in the bow of the Spectacles and handle of the Eye-Glass.

SPENCER MANUFACTURING CO.
16 Maiden Lane, New York.

California Jewelry Company (LEVISON BROS.), 124 Sutter street, San Francisco, General Agents for the Pacific Coast.

"FITS AND EPILEPSY"
POSITIVELY CURED. THE WORST CASES of the longest standing, by using Dr. Hetzog's Cure.

It has Cured Thousands,
And will give $1,000 for a case it will not benefit. A book sent free to all addressing J. R. HETZOG, M. D., Druggist, 111 Sixth Avenue, New York. 1231

BANKING HOUSES.

HIBERNIA SAVINGS AND LOAN SOCIETY
(Northeast corner of Montgomery and Market Streets).
OFFICERS:
President.....M. C. SWEENY.
Vice-President.....D. D. O'SULLIVAN.
TRUSTEES:
M. D. SWEENY, D. D. O'SULLIVAN, JOHN SULLIVAN, P. O'CONNOR, F. McGRAN, PATRICK GALVIN, DANIEL J. TOBIN, SIMEON TOLAND, JOS. A. DONAHOE, PETER DONAHOE.
Treasurer.....EDWARD MARTIN
Attorney.....RICHARD TOBIN

Remittances from the country may be sent through Wells, Fargo & Co.'s Express office, or any reliable banking house; but this Society will not be responsible for their safe delivery. The signature of the depositor should accompany the first deposit. A proper pass book will be delivered in the Agent by whom the 48 hours' notice.

Deposits received from 12½ upward.

Office Hours—From 9 A. M. to 3 P. M.

Jos. A. DONAHOE, San Francisco.
EUGENE KELLY, New York.

DONOHOE, KELLY & Co
SAN FRANCISCO.
EUGENE KELLY & Co.
NEW YORK
BANKERS.
EXCHANGE ON
NEW YORK, LONDON, AND
BANK OF IRELAND.....DUBLIN
Payable at all the Branches,
AND IN EVERY COUNTY TOWN IN IRELAND.

BANK OF BRITISH COLUMBIA,
INCORPORATED BY ROYAL CHARTER,
Subscribed Capital and Reserve.....£1,000,000
Head Office—LONDON.
Branches—PORTLAND, OREGON; VICTORIA and CARIBOO, BRITISH COLUMBIA.

AGENTS:
New York—BANK OF MONTREAL.
Chicago—BANK OF MONTREAL.
Canada—BANK OF MONTREAL.
Mexico and South America—LONDON BANK OF MEXICO AND SOUTH AMERICA.
Ireland—BANK OF IRELAND.
Scotland—BRITISH LINEN COMPANY.
England—NATIONAL PROVINCIAL BANK OF ENGLAND.
England—NORTH AND SOUTH WALES BANK.
England—BANK OF LIVERPOOL.

The Bank transacts a General Banking Business, deposits received on current account subject to check, or on deposit.

Drafts granted on London and all the principal cities and towns of Ireland and Scotland from £1 upwards, and Letters of Credit issued for travelers' use.

Commercial Credits granted available in Europe, China, Japan, South America, Australia and New Zealand.

Approved Bills discounted and advances made on good mercantile security.

JAMES D. PHELAN, Manager.
ISAIAH W. TILLINGHAST, Manager.

THE COMMERCIAL
—AND—
SAVINGS BANK
OF SAN JOSE.
Capital.....$1,000,000.

OFFICERS:
C. T. RYLAND.....President.
R. D. MURPHY.....Vice-President.
HERMAN HUFFMAN.....Cashier.
A. H. BROCKENFELD.....Secretary.
J. BRACKENRIDGE.....Attorney.

Receive General and Special Deposits in gold and silver current. Deal in United States Bonds and Coupons. Make Loans on Personal Security. Have a Savings Department, which is organized for receiving small deposits, and which pays interest on deposits of $5 and upwards. Declare semi-annual dividends, so they may accumulate if not withdrawn. Have a Safe Deposit Vault for rent. The ample capital of the Bank will be sufficient guarantee for the safety of deposits.

Remittances from a distance may be made by Drafts on San Francisco, New York or London, and Pass Books will be promptly forwarded as desired.

Correspondents:
DONOHOE, KELLY & Co.....San Francisco
EUGENE KELLY & Co.....New York
LONDON JOINT STOCK BANK.....London
BANK OF IRELAND.....Dublin

THE FIRST NATIONAL
Gold Bank of San Francisco.
Paid up Capital, - 2,000,000 Gold.
Geo. F. Hooper.....President.
D. Colligan.....Vice-President.
C. C. Wolfenden.....Cashier.

DIRECTORS:
Geo. F. Hooper, Peter Donahue,
D. Colligan, James C. Flood,
C. C. Wolfen, William Sharon,
James Mollet.

CORRESPONDENTS.
LONDON: Baring Brothers & Co.
Messrs. Rothschild Bank of India.
PARIS: Rothschild & Co.
BERLIN: Prussian Bank of Ireland.
HAMBURG: Messrs. Newman & Co.
NEW YORK: Bank of the Commonwealth & Co.
BOSTON: Blackstone National Bank.
CHICAGO: First National Bank.

The Bank is prepared to transact a general Banking business.

Deposits in Gold, Silver and Currency received subject to check or on time certificates.

Exchange for sale on the principal cities of the United States, Great Britain and Ireland.

Commercial Credits issued available in Europe, China and Japan.

Collections attended to and proceeds remitted made at the lowest rates.

THE CALIFORNIA
Savings & Loan Society)
Office 512 Cal St., San Francisco
(Next door to Wells, Fargo & Co.)
Guarantee Capital, $300,000

OFFICERS.
DAVID FARQUHARSON.....President.
CHARLES MAYNARD.....Vice-President.
JULIUS C. REES.....Secretary.
C. F. ROBINSON.....Surveyor.
D. K. CHINGMAN.....Secretary.

DIRECTORS.
James R. Kelly, A. C. Corbett,
Chas. Maynard, C. Hubbard Thompson,
Charles Lux, John Sell,
Julius C. Rees, R. G. Rose,
Gustave Reis, Alex. Austin,
Robert Feusier.

ORDINARY DEPOSITS are received from $1 up to $5,000, and are practically on call. The last dividend on them was 7 per cent.

TERM DEPOSITS are received from $5 upwards, and the last dividend on them was 9 per cent. The dividends are declared and payable on the first Monday of January and July of each year, and if not called for are immediately placed to the credit of the accounts on the same.

No commissions charged on deposits.

There is no Charge Made for Entrance Fee or Pass Book.

LOANS MADE ON GOOD IMPROVED FARMS, AS WELL AS ON CITY PROPERTY.

The fullest particulars may be obtained of the officers of the Bank, either personally or by letter.

Banks to Banks, Bankers and Merchants, Messrs. James R. Kelly, of Sullivan, Kelly & Co.; P. J. White, Capitalist, and ex-Sheriff of San Francisco; John Kelly, ex-Presidio Hotel; Andrew Hallidie, Manufacturer of Wire Rope; Daniel Sharon, of Ferguson & Sharon; Messrs. S. Lathrop, of London and San Francisco; John Charles Lux, and Henry Miller, of Miller & Lux; Daniel Inman, Builder; John D. Mondy, Druggist; J. E. O'Brien, Plumber and Gas-fitter.

BOOTS AND SHOES.

GRAND SEMI-ANNUAL CLEARANCE SALE
OF
BOOTS AND SHOES.
IMMENSE BARGAINS
—FOR THE—
Next Two Weeks,
AT DEASY BROS.,
126 THIRD STREET,
1231 BET. MISSION AND HOWARD.

KAST'S
FASHIONABLE SHOE STORE,
502 and 504 Bush Street, opposite the Alhambra Theater. 1218

WILLIAM O'CONNELL,
FASHIONABLE BOOTMAKER,
Has Removed from Irish-American Hall to 508 Howard Street, near First,
SAN FRANCISCO.

Boots and Shoes

JOHN SULLIVAN, NORTHEAST CORner of Bailey's Lane and Jackson street, is able to order the best Boots and Shoes, Manufactured from Stock, Warranted to Wear, at Reasonable Rates, by which he has established a good name. Gentlemen's and Children's Boots and Shoes made to order.

Repairing done in the neatest manner and at short notice.

To Correspondents.

Patrons may be measured correctly by any part of the country, however distant, who are in want of Boots and Shoes, by sending the size of their feet, with specific cases, and who think proper to address a personal interview, are respectfully assured that their commands will be promptly attended to, and the Boots in a regular gradation, and May be confidently relied upon. If the case be difficult and carefully fitted, personal communication will be unnecessary, as the Boots will be made to suit the general fashion of the time, and will fit the foot without the necessity of a trial. Please send for the Monthly Fashion Sheet.

Address JOHN SULLIVAN,
Bailey's Lane, Jackson street,
San Francisco, Cal.

UNDERTAKERS.

TEL. PLANTAGE. M. J. GALLAGHER
FLANAGAN & GALLAGHER,
(Successors to J. Kent.)
Undertakers.
NO. 934 MARKET STREET,
Between Fourth and Fifth, SAN FRANCISCO.

EVERYTHING NECESSARY FOR funerals kept constantly on hand. Orders from the country will receive prompt attention, at moderate charges. 1231

MASSEY & YUNG,
Undertakers.
NAUTICAL FURNISHING UNDERTAKERS, 28 and 30 North Market street, Agents for Fish's Metallic Burial Cases.
Everything necessary for funerals kept constantly on hand. Orders from the country will receive prompt attention. Reference given if desired.
SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

MEDICAL.

TO THE UNFORTUNATE.
NEW REMEDIES! NEW REMEDIES!
DR. GIBBON'S DISPENSARY,
No. 625 Kearny Street, over Commercial,
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

ESTABLISHED FOR THE SPECIAL TREATMENT AND CURE of all kinds of Chronic Diseases, Nervous and Physical Debility; all diseases of the urinary and genito-urin organs, and all private diseases of whatever complaint, and from whatever cause or ignorance of the same. Such diseases of young or middle-aged men as require long-continued treatment.

CURED AT HOME.

Persons at a distance can be treated AT HOME by addressing a letter to DR. GIBBON, stating name and age, and a description of the disease has contracted and have medicines promptly forwarded, free from observation, by express to any part of the country. Terms for advice and medicines moderate. Call and state your case, or address by letter, with full and plain statement. Consultations FREE. 625

DR. ABORN,
CATARRH, THROAT and LUNG
PHYSICIAN,
N. E. Corner Post and Kearny Sts.

MEDICAL AID.

DR. W. K. DORSETT'S MEDICAL AND SURgical Institute, 660 Clay street, between Montgomery and Kearny.

To the Afflicted.

DR. W. K. DORSETT receives his sincere thanks for his commendable patronage, and assures the public that he is prepared to treat them with best of confidence on consult at his Institute. Diseases of the BLOOD, SKIN, KIDNEYS, DIGESTIVE ORGANS, LIVER, URINARY, SEXUAL ORGANS, and all CHRONIC DISEASES. Dr. Dorsett has had many years of successful practice will continue to devote his attention to the treatment of the above diseases. For 7 years in Europe and the United States he is enabled to offer to the afflicted the most successful treatment known to science of all kinds. He cures without mercury, chemicals, or any poisonous drugs, and has testimonials from the highest sources, and has references of responsible parties. Dr. Dorsett has a large experience in the treatment of diseases of females, and invites ladies to call for letter or interview, and receive prompt attention. Hours, 9 to 12 A. M., 2 to 5 P. M. 1278

To Correspondents.

Patients may be measured correctly by any part of the country, however distant, who are in want of Boots and Shoes, by sending the size of their feet, with specific cases, and who think proper to address a personal interview, are respectfully assured that their commands will be promptly attended to, and the Boots in a regular gradation, and May be confidently relied upon. If the case be difficult and carefully fitted, personal communication will be unnecessary, as the Boots will be made to suit the general fashion of the time, and will fit the foot without the necessity of a trial. Please send for the Monthly Fashion Sheet, which will be forwarded free on application.

Address JOHN SULLIVAN,
Bailey's Lane, Jackson street,
San Francisco, Cal.

TO THE UNFORTUNATE.
NEW REMEDIES! NEW REMEDIES!
DR. GIBBON'S DISPENSARY,
No. 625 Kearny Street, over Commercial,
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

ES

POLITICAL NOTES.

Judge William F. Deingerfield has been nominated by the Democracy for Judge of the Twelfth Judicial District. Mr. Deingerfield is both a Democrat and a Catholic.

The Republicans of Hollister, San Benito county, have nominated John Breen for the Assembly, and Thomas Hodges, Jr., for Sheriff. Mr. Breen is a Democrat, and Mr. Hodges is both a Democrat and a Catholic.

The Democrats of Amador have made the following nominations:—For County Judge, T. M. Johnson; District Attorney, H. P. Carter and Thomas Prendergast; Assemblyman, H. J. Corbet and Thomas Deehan; Sheriff, James Morgan; County Clerk, Henry Peck; Treasurer, James Kingan; District Attorney, C. F. Jones; Assessor, J. J. Jones; Superintendent of Public Schools, W. H. Stowe; Public Administrator, Daniel Corcoran, D. Myers.

Following is the ticket of the Committee of Vigilance, or "Chronicle party," so far as the nominations have been made: Mayor, Charles Coon; Auditor, Sadleir Sadlein; Auditor, T. Rodgers; Treasurer, A. A. Hoke; County Clerk, J. D. Keagle; County Attorney, D. J. Murphy; City and County Attorney, W. G. Barnett; Coroner, Jas. R. B. Swan; Public Administrator, Simon Mayer; Surveyor, W. F. Humphreys; Fire Commissioner, H. Plaisted, W. H. Johnson, S. Ordoneaux.

The following deservedly complimentary notice of ex Chief Crowley appeared in the newspaper "Record-Union" of the 16th inst: "The Democracy of San Francisco have made one first-rate nomination in the person of Patrick Crowley, for re-election to the office of Chief of Police. Mr. Crowley served with credit to the office, and no one knows better than he the security which the police force has given to the city. Under his management it has become complete, or the force so city of life and property as complete and straightforward as it can be. Mr. Crowley has commanded and deserves the confidence and support of all half citizens, without distinction of party. He has not been in the habit of making changes for the mere purpose of rewarding political partisans, but has only brought against Chief Crowley. He was by far the most popular Chief we have had since the consolidation, and impossible office, and he was success in a short time in the performance of his duties. He has the entire confidence and intelligent support of the police force, and of the vast majority of the people of San Francisco, then ought Patrick Crowley to be re-elected? We think there can be but one answer to that question. The Democracy should not vote for any other than the nomination of Mr. Crowley.

The Unit editorially, and says: "He shows himself to be well informed, and to have a thorough grasp of the principles of constitutional law which he seems to have studied. His views on the law are in accordance with those held by the majority of the party. His opinion is useful to every man, with judicial protection to American manufactures, the course to be taken in regard to the tariff, the country and heavier on artisans and laborers. The Democratic platform is based upon the principles of Gen. Jackson, and so far as Mr. Piper can see in the future, they seem to be perpetual. Mr. Piper says he does not think statesmen to what may be termed the grasses of temporary policy, but as a rule, they are to be found in direct state, are what is termed so. He views it as his duty, from a Democratic standpoint, to credit to the speaker."

PACIFIC COAST NEWS.

The Southern Pacific Railroad will be extended from Anaheim to San Diego.

John Cook fell a distance of 200 feet in the Overman mine, last Friday afternoon, and was instantly killed.

Santa Clara capitalists have subscribed $40,000 to build a narrow gauge road from Los Gatos to a point two miles beyond the summit, by 1876.

Work on the Nevada County Narrow-Gauge Railroad is progressing very finely. The company has a force of about 300 men employed on the division of 16 feet, which will be completed by the first of November.

Work on the railroad from Anaheim to Newhall has commenced. A bridge across the Santa Ana River is to be built, Los Angeles furnishing the iron and the county of Orange the labor and timber.

Continued the work of improving the navigation of the Feather river between Marysville and Yuba City, and the work will be completed. Several wing dams are to be constructed at Nicholas, and from it southward to Yuba City it is intended to put in timber dams.

Boys' Directory and Employment Office.

Following is the report of the agent of this institution for the nine months ending August 1st:

To Most Rev. Archbishop Alemany and the Board of Directors of the B. D. and E. Institution:

In submitting for your consideration and the consideration of the friends and patrons of this institution a report of the work we have so far accomplished, I shall confine myself to a brief statement of certain facts, leaving for another occasion reflections of certain nature, which, though important, may not be indispensable.

This office was opened on the 1st day of November, 1874, and consequently now about nine months in operation. The efforts of the office were stayed to be two—to direct and aid boys seeking for employment, and, as far as possible, to watch over and protect them. Though we have merely commenced the good work, the following figures will show that at the end of the office has already been of considerable use. The number of boys who have applied at the office for employment has been 1,000, ranging in age from 10 to 16 years. Of this number of these for whom places have been found has been 304.

Some of these young men came from the East and from the interior of the State, others from country districts—came from all parts of the city; but in many instances these latter would have been as much at a loss where to look for employment as their employers, and but the office extended a guiding hand to them.

The expenses of the office for its six months ending August 1st were:

Rent	$75 00
Printing and stationery	75 00
Advertising	12 00
Postage	5 00
Langley's Directory	5 00
Rubber Stamp	2 50
Stationery	7 00
Incidental furniture of office	75 00
Collector, per month	100 00
Salary of agent for six months	600 00
Total expenses for six months	$1,056 50
Received from subscribers	454 50
Balance due	$601 50

As the office, so far, is wholly dependent for its support on the monthly subscriptions of friends, it could not continue to grow and its efficiency will be impaired unless the list of subscribers be increased. Many of the members are found to befriend the boys, and their number needs to be largely augmented.

San Francisco, August 16, 1875.

The office of the Sisters of Mercy is at 36½ Dupont street. The office for boys is near the French church, Bush street, between Dupont and Stockton.

The Board of Directors are Richard Tobin, M. J. O'Connor, C. D. O'Sullivan, James H. Kelly, The Sisters of Mercy have a female auxiliaries are P. J. Sullivan, A. J. Kendig, F. P. Ryan, J. F. Sullivan, F. J. Thomas, James W. Doles, John B. O'Connor, M. J. Dorsey, Daniel Sheridan.

The Archbishop and the Board of Directors would suggest quarterly, half-yearly or yearly subscriptions to those who may not wish to be called on monthly.

Following is the report of Sister Mary B. Russell of the doings of the employment office under charge of the Sisters of Mercy:

To the Board of Directors of the Boys' Employment Office:

Beginning of February the office was removed to its present location, since which time 1,000 boys have applied for situations. Not more than fifty of these were under fourteen years of age; quite a number were over seventeen in the country; among them were found boys who could not read or write, nor use a pen, but as a rule the majority (that is, during the period from February to August) were efficient, capacities, but owing to want of employment, they were unable to exercise them, and were supplied. It may be well to explain that the boys who were found unable to read or write learned these while the names of the families applying for boys are entered every time they call.

The monthly expenditure of the office is about $100, and to fit it up and supply the necessary furniture, stationery, etc., cost $150. The total expenditure these six months amount to $478 25, including the rent of the office, which is $75 per month. The amount sold for the benefit of the institution has been $454 50, which is a help, as the income have to be supplemented by the friends of charity, as the expenditures we do not include what may be given in charity to the poor, who apply in general terms for assistance.

Mr. Morgan O'Connell, son of the Liberator, and formerly member for Meath, has written a letter to the London Times, contradicting a statement which recently appeared in a leading article in that journal, that his father wished to be Master of the Rolls, and that the Government of that day would not gratify his ambition. Mr. O'Connell states his father was offered the Mastership of the Rolls and the Chief Baronship of the Exchequer, and that he refused both.

The liabilities of Duncan, Sherman & Co., the New York bankers, are $2,100,000 over and above the assets.

Senator Sargent, in a recent speech at Marysville, conceded Luttrell's election over his Republican competitor.

General Sheridan and his brother, Col. Michael Sheridan, are on their way to California.

Purify the Springs of Life

It is a sine qua non of health that the sources of vitality, the springs of life, should be free from contamination. The fluids which, by their action upon the food, transform it into blood, and the great vital centre—the heart, must be pure, if the muscles, the bones and the brain are to be properly nourished and kept vigorous. To this end the stomach, the liver, the bowels and the kidneys should perform uninterruptedly their various functions. If these organs are disturbed the vital fluids speedily become vitiated. The best, say, the early blood-purifier which purifies them, by removing those bodily irregularities which produce them, is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. The principle upon which this medicine acts is as simple as it is philosophic. The organs of most consequence, and indispensable to life, are the stomach, the liver, the bowels and the kidneys. The first is the receptacle into which the food is received, and where it undergoes the process of digestion, and is prepared for the nourishment of the system. The

POLITICAL NOTES.

Judge William P. Daingerfield has been nominated by the Democracy for Judge of the Twelfth Judicial District. Mr. Daingerfield is both competent and honest.

The Republicans of Hollister, San Benito county, have nominated John Breen for the assembly, but he declines to run. Lee Angier is running in his place for Judge Jones P. Rees, who, holding the office of County Judge, could not qualify, if elected.

The Democrats of Amador have made the following nominations: For County Judge, T. M. Rawling; Assemblyman, H. F. Gaddis; District Attorney, Sheriff, John Mahoney; County Clerk, Henry Parks; Treasurer, James Meagher; District Attorney, T. J. Purcell; Assessor, J. J. Jones; Superintendent of Public Schools, W. H. Stoker; Public Administrator and Coroner, D. Myers.

Following is the ticket of the Committee of Twenty-four, or whatever party, so far as the nominations have been made: Mayor, Charles Gray; Assessor, Sam Shortell; Auditor, T. Rodgers Ish; Assemblyman, A. A. Hale; County Clerk, J. Dalton; Treasurer, C. Huggins; District Attorney, H. J. Murphy; City and County Attorney, W. H. Barnett; Coroner, Dr. R. R. Swan; Public Administrator, Silenus Mayer; Surveyor, W. P. Humphreys; Fire Commissioner, Ed. Finnerty, W. B. Johnson, B. Grossenich.

The following deserredly complimentary notice of ex-Chief Crowley appeared in the morning issue of the Herald of the 16th inst.: "The Democracy of San Francisco have made one first-rate nomination in the person of Patrick Crowley for Chief of Police. Mr. Crowley served fourteen years in the police force, and left the department of his own accord, and at one time nearly governed the county. He is a man of great energy, and, if elected, will make a thorough reform in the police force, and will be free from the political corruption and entanglements that have more demoralized and depraved it of late than ever before. We do not think that any charges was ever brought against Chief Crowley. He was by far the most popular man who ever held the office—fearless and responsive to office, and he was reasonable and had the perfect confidence of all the people. His retirement, and nonchemical integrity from the office of Chief of Police, left the city and County of San Francisco without the one man who could be the most popular with the largest vote for any officer in the municipal government. The Democratic party will also endorse the nomination of Mr. Crowley."

The Chief subjoins: Mr. Piper is late Democratic Secretary Hall, and says: "He shows himself to be a true Democrat, and has proved his fidelity to the principles of constitutional law which he claims to have been violated by the late Legislature in accordance with those held by the majority of the party. He advocates a tariff for revenue only, the individual protection to American manufacturers, the desire to be at last in possession of the whole country and favors an address of reconciliation to the party. He advocates a tariff for revenue only, the individual protection to American manufacturers, the desire to be at last in possession of the whole country and favors an address of reconciliation to the party. He advocates a tariff for revenue only, the same position as assumed himself to the people of Ohio. Nevada, as you know, elected a Democratic Governor, and Democratic Senator and Congressman. The Republicans of

A NATION'S TEST.

READ AT THE O'CONNELL CENTENNIAL IN BOSTON, AUGUST 2, 1875.

A nation's great are its life in men, and scores;
No king's crown have mankind ere placed amidst shorers.
But manhood strength is forts the arms' hands.
The weight of empire rives or crowns superiors.
Athens is here—but where is Athens now?
A desert lives nameless round Rome eternal.
And England's home might safety rest on one.

Here you and I are drawn from Nature's preaching;
Africa and Asia—half the rounded earth
In teaming lives the solemn truth we're teaching.
That heavy millions have homes forth.
Son-bound and fruitful, every road is bowling
A busy life, too small to reach the thousand
No nest is he, with no man thinking, reading—
The ascendious creep their course and die.

Hapless the lands, and doomed amid the races,
That give no answer to this rarest test;
Their trifling cities will droop upside traces,
Their earth be pity takes their back to rest.
A nation's manhood may not be sold,
But flesh light tells us it cannot be good;
Valley and hill have beauty—but the level
Must bear a sturdiness and regional breed.

I bring the tenderness, Motherland, to thee,
And sons there trembling, fearing their shoulder fail
If frontiers, coolness, thou wert prov'ed to be.
All what would lots and mortality avail!

Brave land! God has blest thee!
Thy strong heart I feel
As I touch thee and bend to thee.
Dear land! As thou art
To the magnet's true point, so to thee my breast.
With a sailor's devotion to the loom of the best,
Has its unerring beneath the touchstones, looking on her distant path.
Looking down her line of Leaders and of workers for thee;
Ere the Tenine, Norseman, Briton, left the primal wasilized tribes.
When their rule was might and raptor, and their law
a gaunt law;
When the son of art and learning still was to the sire a slave;
When the spirit of humility under Christ' hand was shed in;
The right to worship and the right to voice.

Always its name—but yet a glittering prize!
In ask, or, mistrust, still a mastery name
An "overawed King." Whose people's love was choice
His title—Liberator of his land!

"His manhood is the measure, its spirit is he bravest,"
So runs the old song that his people sang;
A nob'ler sentiment ne'er yielded inheritance—
Fit fresh beadsmen for an Irish king!

Motherland! there is no cause to doubt thee,
Thy faith is as every atom in thy Though grief and wrong may cling like robes about thy form.

Thy motherhood will keep thee queen alway.
Thou hast given sons to empire and science,
Thou hast given to every age its hero-host;
Whate'er the time, though all things are conserving,
Unless it breed great men, it is not great.
So, dear land! and while the generous blood
Send out to many men thy fair word-mind,
Thy name is empty till amidst the nations—
Up on to fame, and stand where none else stood.

JOHN BOYLE O'REILLY.

"Gentle Mike," by Grace Law, the title of the London Love, translated by O'Donovan and Henry Charles Fox, who reigned 900 B. C., appeared a volume Paul Cornelius Mallon, of the city of the Lord's, who received the late hon a recent ballot the Academy of Sciences, in the room of the late Bishop, sociologist, philosophy, poetry and science, etc., were produced by his successors. Elu- both 1815 and signed 1875 are given to preserve the unit interests of the Kingdom in a remarkable manner.

PRINCE NIENBORGH.—Here are some of the extraordinary powers granted to Colonel Rutenberg by the Constitution of Sardoe:

It is all to the date of the King to appoint some person as his particular Minister whose it is shall be President of the Kingdom. His duty would be to act for the King all Ministers connected with the special interests of the kingdom, and all documents and business executed by the Premier shall have the force as those executed by the King himself. He is the Premier who is to the King's right hand to be the important business of the Kingdom. The King shall not act without the knowledge of the Premier, and the Premier shall be responsible to the King and House of Parliament, and join to the debate.

Under this provision of the Constitution which was imposed upon the ignorant islanders with fantastic ceremonies, Weinberger is in reality created a monarch over them, and he has been supplied with arms and ammunition from the United States arsenal in Benicia to use upon them if they should rebel against his authority. Of course, when Congress knows the whole matter will receive a very thorough investigation.

THE O'CONNELL CENTENNIAL IN BOSTON.

Brilliant Address by Wendell Phillips.

A hundred years ago to-day Daniel O'Connell was born. The Irish race, wherever scattered over the globe, assembles to-night to pay fitting tribute to his memory; one of the most eloquent men of his time, a devoted patriot and the most successful statesman which that race has given to history. We of other races may well join with you in that tribute, since the cause of constitutional government owes more to O'Connell than to any other political leader of the last two centuries. The English-speaking races, to their equal honor in the nineteenth, must pass by Chatham and Walpole and go back to Oliver Cromwell, or the able men who held up the throne of Queen Elizabeth, it to put the civil and social elements of your day into successful action and plant the seeds of continued strength and progress for coming times, if this is to be a statesman, then most emphatically was O'Connell one. To exert this control and secure this progress while and because simple means lie ready for use under your hand, does not rob Walpole and Colbert, the able men who held up the throne of their title to be considered statesmen. To do it, as Martin Luther did, when one must ingeniously discover or invent his tools, and while the mightiest forces that influence human affairs are arrayed against him—that is what ranks O'Connell with the few master-statesmen the English-speaking race has ever had. When Napoleon's soldiers bore the Negro chief, Toussaint L'Ouverture, to his cell, he said, pointing back in San Domingo, "You think you have rooted up the tree of liberty. But I am not a branch. I have planted the tree itself so deep that ages will never root it up." And when the time may be said of the social or industrial condition of Hayti during the last seventy years, her nationality has never been successfully assailed.

Men were reared her mighty leaders to the woes
Immates in the strife.
Those days passed—the old Round Towers—showing here that they could not be done.
Twice in a hundred years upon them, shaking all our inner souls.
Warning Rogers raised to tell we must build with truth and right.
As we call the Mother Erin! Mother then to right of justice!
Mother in the large fruition, mother to joys and pain.
All the life has been a symbol—it can only read a good.
Good, still good, with sunshine for the woes that drench they'll set.
All the life has been symbolic of a human mother's life!
Truth, with all its dreams, has vanished, and the naval and the strife
Are upon them at the present; but thy work shall recover
Me best for truth and manhood, and it shall not pass away.
Justice, though judgment lingers, sequis' feet
are heavy shod,
But a prisoner's prayer is moments in the eternal day
God!

Call from the valley of death and tears,
From the war and wars of a thousand years—
From the mark of sword and the rust of rain,
From the wrecks and blood of he penal laws,
From the cells and the irons—
Come out in the front of the field again!

What says the stronger to such a vitality?
What says a man's conscience to his neighbor?
Fling on the shoes of a sea of defeat,
Against the pulsations have served to their feet,
When the sailors are thrilled by a charge of
Which, in the sense of the world, is the Hindoo sentiment—the sentiment—the belief—
Hindoo sentiment and Call wars as one!
Large as to subject was he agen-dist in sincerity—
Large as to record the work he has done.

What need to mention men of minor note,
When there be thirst and all the bright attire?
What of nothing known but the hand that wrote
Down antiquities, into later ridges of fame?
What man that speaketh English's ear can tell
Of the Irish Liberator, Irish Patriot, Irish the fore and all Irish Orators, Irish and Free!
The last of Peers and the sense of Moors!
Genius, and Statesman, and Master—true!
That Irish not learned respect for such as these!
Let us learn to love and hail yet to see
Lover and Truest and Lover and Maxims!

Great men grow greater by the lapse of time;
We know them best when they have seen the latest.
And their "Good Books" whose names have grown
Will a monarch's brethern cherish as treasures.

and now for one who sifted will so work,
And though he act, and burning speech is thought:
Who planned the Liberal was were made Parlia-
Sorbs fell the Wrong—O'Connell fell and fought.

Ever the same—from boyhood up in death;
His route was a resolute—his power was as unbowed;
He found the speech and fanned it with his breath,
And fed the fire, till all the nation flamed!

He roused the Serfs—he made the serf a yeoman!
He stirred the nations and he moved the Peers
But not with loud or noise he struck the Bosses!
Wonder like was wrought human rights and laws!

He fought for home—but no land-limit bounded
O'Connell's faith, nor zeroed his sympathies!
All wrong to their f name he made his own,
The more every clamor as the winds and seas.

He fought for Italian—but were not his cries
With cessation in hear the tale he utters!
Down, by land, on earth, still a mourner he was—
An "overawed King." Whose people's love was choice
His title—Liberator of his land!

"His manhood is the measure, its spirit is he bravest,"
So runs the old song that his people sang;
A nob'ler sentiment ne'er yielded inheritance—
Fit fresh beadsmen for an Irish king!

Motherland! there is no cause to doubt thee,
Thy faith is as every atom in thy Though grief and wrong may cling like robes about thy form.

Thy motherhood will keep thee queen alway.
Thou hast given sons to empire and science,
Thou hast given to every age its hero-host;
Whate'er the time, though all things are conserving,
Unless it breed great men, it is not great.
So, dear land! and while the generous blood
Send out to many men thy fair word-mind,
Thy name is empty till amidst the nations—
Up on to fame, and stand where none else stood.

JOHN BOYLE O'REILLY.

"Gentle Mike," by Grace Law, the title of the London Love, translated by O'Donovan and Henry Charles Fox, who reigned 900 B. C., appeared a volume Paul Cornelius Mallon, of the city of the Lord's, who received the late hon a recent ballot the Academy of Sciences, in the room of the late Bishop, sociologist, philosophy, poetry and science, etc., were produced by his successors. Elu- both 1815 and signed 1875 are given to preserve the unit interests of the Kingdom in a remarkable manner.

PRINCE NIENBORGH.—Here are some of the extraordinary powers granted to Colonel Rutenberg by the Constitution of Sardoe:

It is all to the date of the King to appoint some person as his particular Minister whose it is shall be President of the Kingdom. His duty would be to act for the King all Ministers connected with the special interests of the kingdom, and all documents and business executed by the Premier shall have the force as those executed by the King himself. He is the Premier who is to the King's right hand to be the important business of the Kingdom. The King shall not act without the knowledge of the Premier, and the Premier shall be responsible to the King and House of Parliament, and join to the debate.

Under this provision of the Constitution which was imposed upon the ignorant islanders with fantastic ceremonies, Weinberger is in reality created a monarch over them, and he has been supplied with arms and ammunition from the United States arsenal in Benicia to use upon them if they should rebel against his authority. Of course, when Congress knows the whole matter will receive a very thorough investigation.

But the changes of regime or the changes of time shall never restore them again.

But with changing to the wheel of the few by hand,
A wife's and mother's heart to the many.
With any prayer through storm and through calm
Ever the same—from boyhood up in death;
His route was a resolute—his power was as unbowed;
He found the speech and fanned it with his breath,
And fed the fire, till all the nation flamed!

He roused the Serfs—he made the serf a yeoman!
He stirred the nations and he moved the Peers
But not with loud or noise he struck the Bosses!
Wonder like was wrought human rights and laws!

He fought for home—but no land-limit bounded
O'Connell's faith, nor zeroed his sympathies!
All wrong to their f name he made his own,
The more every clamor as the winds and seas.

He fought for Italian—but were not his cries
With cessation in hear the tale he utters!
Down, by land, on earth, still a mourner he was—
The right to worship and the right to voice.

Always its name—but yet a glittering prize!
In ask, or, mistrust, still a mastery name
An "overawed King." Whose people's love was choice
His title—Liberator of his land!

"His manhood is the measure, its spirit is he bravest,"
So runs the old song that his people sang;
A nob'ler sentiment ne'er yielded inheritance—
Fit fresh beadsmen for an Irish king!

Motherland! there is no cause to doubt thee,
Thy faith is as every atom in thy Though grief and wrong may cling like robes about thy form.

Thy motherhood will keep thee queen alway.
Thou hast given sons to empire and science,
Thou hast given to every age its hero-host;
Whate'er the time, though all things are conserving,
Unless it breed great men, it is not great.
So, dear land! and while the generous blood
Send out to many men thy fair word-mind,
Thy name is empty till amidst the nations—
Up on to fame, and stand where none else stood.

JOHN BOYLE O'REILLY.

"Gentle Mike," by Grace Law, the title of the London Love, translated by O'Donovan and Henry Charles Fox, who reigned 900 B. C., appeared a volume Paul Cornelius Mallon, of the city of the Lord's, who received the late hon a recent ballot the Academy of Sciences, in the room of the late Bishop, sociologist, philosophy, poetry and science, etc., were produced by his successors. Elu- both 1815 and signed 1875 are given to preserve the unit interests of the Kingdom in a remarkable manner.

PRINCE NIENBORGH.—Here are some of the extraordinary powers granted to Colonel Rutenberg by the Constitution of Sardoe:

It is all to the date of the King to appoint some person as his particular Minister whose it is shall be President of the Kingdom. His duty would be to act for the King all Ministers connected with the special interests of the kingdom, and all documents and business executed by the Premier shall have the force as those executed by the King himself. He is the Premier who is to the King's right hand to be the important business of the Kingdom. The King shall not act without the knowledge of the Premier, and the Premier shall be responsible to the King and House of Parliament, and join to the debate.

Under this provision of the Constitution which was imposed upon the ignorant islanders with fantastic ceremonies, Weinberger is in reality created a monarch over them, and he has been supplied with arms and ammunition from the United States arsenal in Benicia to use upon them if they should rebel against his authority. Of course, when Congress knows the whole matter will receive a very thorough investigation.

THE MONITOR AND GUARDIAN.

SATURDAY, AUG. 28, 1875. 8

CRADLE SONG OF THE POOR.

Hush! I cannot hear to see thee
Stretch thy tiny hands in vain;
Poor, I have no bread to give thee,
Nothing, sadly, to ease thy pain.
Hush! my darling, lie still sleeping,
Frost and sickness round us creep;
Hush! my darling, I, the mother,
Only I, my darling, I, the mother,
Almost perish, hear you weep!

Sleep, my darling, thou art weary;
Sleep, my darling, thou art weary!
Hush! good, but life is dreary.

I have watched thy beauty fading,
And thy strength was day by day;
Hush, I know, my darling, hush!
Take thy little pain away.
Thou hast had thy father restless,
Thou hast had thy mother pining,
We must suffer sir, my baby,
Had we been a crust for thee.
Sleep, my darling, thou art weary;
Hush! good, but life is dreary.

Better thou shouldst perish early,
Starve in youth, my darling one,
Than thy heart grow cold and callous,
Than thy little hands be stained
With sin, my darling, than with want.
Hush! good, but life is dreary.

Such the plaint that, late and early,
Rises from the sad hearth,
Close beside us—but the thunder
Of a city fills our ears;
Every heart, as God's bright angel
Only knows, is breaking there.
God has given to us our darlings,
Takes them home as seems Him best,
Sometimes early, sometimes late,
Sounds the fluttering of wings!

ADELAIDE PROCTOR.

Liberty of Conscience.

The universal spread of mental instruction has made fools of the men of to-day. Error in its higher departments is the only possible explanation of the subordinate scientific laws or accidental, which have no meaning except in their bearing upon the highest truth. The philosophical anarchist Proudhon said: "Property is theft." Liberty is robbery. Both are right. Property is theft in the sense that all wealth is robbery. Liberty is robbery in the sense that every man's freedom is limited by his neighbor's freedom. Liberty of conscience is the right to do what you believe to be right. Liberty of conscience is the right to do what you believe to be wrong. Liberty of conscience is the right to do what you believe to be right, but which you have no right to believe to be right. Liberty of conscience is the right to do what you believe to be wrong, but which you have no right to

WEEKLY CALENDAR.

ARCHBISHOP'S WORK ENDING SEPT. 4.

Sunday—Archbishop's Sunday after Pentecost. Beheading of St. John Baptist. St. Sabina, Martyr.
30—Monday—St. Rose of Lima, Virgin. St. Felix of Cantalice, Confessor.
31—Tuesday—St. Raymond Nonnatus, Confessor.
September.
1—Wednesday—St. Giles, Abbot. The Twelve Brothers, Martyrs.
2—Thursday—St. Stephen, King and Confessor.
3—Friday—Feria.
4—Saturday—Office of the Immaculate Conception B. V. M.

THE MONITOR & GUARDIAN:

THE ONLY

Irish and Catholic Journal in California.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

SATURDAY.....AUGUST 28, 1875.

SUBSCRIBERS will please specially look at the printed label on the margin or wrapper of the paper; the date thereon shows when the subscription expires.

THE CENTENARY AT HOME.

Our columns to-day contain extended reports of the O'CONNELL Centenary in Dublin. To secure their insertion we have been compelled to considerably curtail our usual quantity of news in other departments, as well as to omit altogether not a little matter of an interesting character. But before this magnificent testimonial of our passing awhile of the day lose all importance and have only a secondary claim upon our space. It is therefore we believe our readers will not expect an apology from us, but will rather consider we have forestalled their wishes by giving such a detailed and lengthy account of the great demonstration in Ireland's metropolis. It is no exaggeration to say that never at any time did the streets of Dublin witness such a grand pageant as the one which took place on its passing display of national sentiment as the whole celebration. There were upwards of one hundred thousand men marching in line, every trade and industry had its representatives, and almost every city and town had its banner in the ranks. For months preparations were being made and no expense was spared to ensure a successful celebration. It is much to be deplored that the general harmony was, to some extent, marred by two attributions of popular displeasure with the management of the demonstration, one of which took place during the procession and the other towards the close of the Lord Mayor's banquet; but late accounts received from Ireland show that our first version of the disturbance was much exaggerated, and that there was serious reason for those displays of discontent.

It seems that the Whig faction of the protestant politicians, had, through the unfortunate rank-mindedness and incapacity of the Lord Mayor, literally captured the celebration and were running it as a glorification of their own principles, quite oblivious of those of the people. They wanted to make it a fine display of Irish loyalty and abhorrence of the Fenians, and nationalism generally. To this end they had selected Lord O'HAGAN, who is nothing better than a pensioner of the British Government, to deliver the oration on the life of O'CONNELL, the movement in Sackville street, and from him nothing but a eulogy of foreign rule could naturally be expected. This irritated the Nationalists, and they published a manifesto in which they stated pretty plainly that they would not allow Lord O'HAGAN to deliver his speech. Moderate and reasonable men, while deprecating any attempt at violence, could not help admitting that there was just ground for complaint, and that an outrage upon the Nationalist sentiment was being committed. The high Government official got alarmed and, faithful to himself, made no attempt to deliver the speech, which was read by the Lord Mayor amid indescribable tumult.

The disturbance at the banquet in the evening was caused by what was thought to be the premeditated exclusion of every one connected with the national party, and the persistent putting forward of individuals in the pay of the Government. The danger is once is greatly to be deplored, but certainly the blame of it must be laid at the doors of the managers of the celebration. During this lifetime O'CONNELL was the great reformer of the British Government, and beyond doubt he sordidly detested the Whig party; so it was outrageous that the two should attempt to make capital for themselves out of the dead man's fame and fame. What is most to be deplored of all is that the foreign gentlemen, who attended the banquet to honor Ireland and O'CONNELL, will, in all likelihood, never be told the real cause of the disturbance, and will not it down to pure turbulence of the revolutionary kind. We insert a verbatim report of Most Rev. Dr. CROKE's sermon in the Cathedral, and our readers can judge for themselves whether it deserves the unbecoming criticisms passed upon it by some of the Irish newspapers. In our opinion, it was only natural, considering the place where the sermon was delivered, that the Most Rev. preacher should dwell more upon O'CONNELL's work for religion than upon his purely political labors.

P. MORAN, the well-known Director of the Hibernia Bank, has been nominated for Supervisor of the Eleventh Ward. Mr. MORAN is one of our substantial citizens, just such a man as we could safely trust our interests to in the Board of Supervisors. He is, besides, an old resident of the city, with whose wants he is familiar, and he bears an excellent reputation.

J. C. ROBERTS, the regular Democratic nominee for Supervisor of the Tenth Ward, is a most estimable citizen, who has by industry acquired a comfortable competency in our midst. He is strictly honest, is fully alive to the wants of the city, and is in harmony with the popular opinion on the water and gas questions.

WEEKLY WRANGLING.

Our daily papers are again suffering intensely from an attack of their old miserable wrangling fever. This unpleasant disease usually breaks out among them on the occurrence of an election or any other event calculated to create public excitement. The rule is, it would appear, the more important the cause of general commotion, the fiercer and more malignant the attack. This being the case, our readers can easily imagine how violent this wrangling is at the present time when a complete State and municipal ticket is to be elected. Indeed it is so bad that one would be excused for asserting that the editorial staff of all our daily contemporaries should be safely housed in the Stockton Asylum, until after the 1st of September at all events. The disease manifests itself differently in the different offices. The Post and Chronicle are vilified with a FIERCE and FURIOUS publish compared with which hydrophobia is a harmless ailment, and the Call and Bulletin are afflicted with an anti-monopoly mania of the most decided description. The honest citizens who are foolish enough to cast a glance at the leading columns of any of these enterprising journals must experience a feeling akin to that inflicted on a man who unexpectedly finds himself in the presence of a raving maniac. The Post and Chronicle are continually endeavoring to prove that Messrs. FITCH and PICKERING are knaves, assassins and scoundrels of the deepest dye.

One would think, from the state of their columns, that all the people in the great State were intent upon nothing else but studying the past career of these two individuals, and revealing their long-forgotten iniquities. The truth is, however, that outside the Post and Chronicle offices nobody cares a brass button about what Messrs. FITCH and PICKERING have been or have not been at any time in their lives, and all their "discoveries" and "revelations" are simply so many outrageous impositions upon the public patience. On the other hand, the Call and Bulletin retort in kind, though their accusations are not so bodily pat, so that the first effect of the offensive can do is to implicitly believe what each says of the others and thus estimate them as rascals all around. But the peculiar craze of the Call and Bulletin just now is an anti-RALSTON one. They affect to have discovered that that gentleman is engaged in a mysterious plot to defraud the city out of untold millions of dollars, and, as faithful guardians of the public welfare, they are giving the alarm. In this frantic effort to pose themselves off as unpurchaseable embodiments of the general interests of the city, they are merely making themselves ridiculous. They are making a fearful fuss about nothing at all, and their columns are only calculated to excite disgust and, as a consequence, to bring about a reaction in favor of RALSTON

The Rochefort-Cassagnac Duel.

[From the Paris Figaro, July 26.]

Yesterday we referred to a challenge sent by a Communist in Geneva to Mr. Paul de Cassagnac. All the documents of this affair are in our hands, and we are the first to give them to the public of Figaro. We present them without any comment, leaving our readers to judge of the conduct of the parties concerned. These documents are, first, the challenge of Rochefort; the answer of Mr. Paul de Cassagnac, and the official record of the seconds, Prince Alexander de Wagram, Comte d'Harcourt and Messrs. George Périn and Ordinaire. They are as follows in the order of date:

To Mr. Paul de Cassagnac—After frightened Mr. Thiers, and Mr. Jules Favre, after having had upon several numbers of the Pays. That of the 7th November, 1872, contains over your signature this phrase addressed to me: "It was he who sent forward the hordes of the Commune, while he concealed himself and skewered run away. This is a man who is a great scoundrel."

In the number of the 18th of the same month I read this marvelous, but insulting, paragraph:

"When the brave and energetic Flourens wanted to hurl upon Paris the bands who carried the ecrêtu of Victor Noir, you found yourself in such dismal company as to make it wise for you that Victor Noir lost his life."

This alt cle closes as follows:

"If ever you are pardoned you will have on your return a splendid, an immense choice, M. Henri Rochefort, if he should be agreeable to you to hunt up those who court the honor of killing you with the same dog that killed Noir."

The insults for which I demand satisfaction combine in the same time an engagement on your part from which it is impossible for you to free yourself. Therefore, by good enough to set out immediately for Geneva with your seconds. Mine are ready now. You must not plead your scruples, as you have done in the case of M. Clemenceau. I have not been pardoned, pardon nothing myself only to those who solicit it; but I am free, and I demand that you shall come to join me as I have declared that you were ready to give me, and, moreover, I entreat you to hinder your hireling rubber from giving information to the Prefect of Police. My two friends, Freemason and Lissagaray, who will give you the letter, will transmit to me your answer.

HENRI ROCHEFORT.

July 10, 1875. 3 Rue des Alpes, Geneva.

DE CASSAGNAC'S REPLY.

To the letter Paul de Cassagnac replied as follows:

To M. Rochefort—You are perfectly right, sir. In signing the article which you relate I committed a pitiable cowardice. I do not say that you have been in any way partial toward it, and that you have not given me a half a go by before presenting your proposal to the police; but as it is my practice to pay always and under all circumstances when I have done, you may rest assured that I will discharge the debt which rests on my mind. Now, however, as I desire you under any circumstance I addressed to you the few words which have taken me such a time to write, I do not see why he need to establishing the fact that the quarrel comes from you, and from you alone, and that I have not had anything to do with it.

Paris, 22nd of November, 1873, and not the 18th of November, as you have written. You see I am between four walls, will be the first to offer me another good object upon which I can fire.

It is to the presumptuous and swaggering character that I replied in the manner you have seen. Well, you are free you give me your invitation and I accept. And I accept even more your invitation, while I have refused the sub-commissaire of the Quotidien Français, which is because while I see there nothing, I do see you. You are not pardoned, it is true, and I suppose that behind the cowardly; but I do not hesitate to assemble over mere terms, and with you Napoleonic one must not be over scrupulous here. If one were to refuse as adversaries all those who have been condemned to death or to the galley, there would be none of you left. Moreover, you are a demagogue, you have been every thing, even a thing that a Napoleonian ab hoodoo with good luck and protection. You have been successively the lieutenant of the most, first deputy, then member of the Government of the 4th of September, and then a convict. Therefore, you must see that you are regarded as a man most difficult to hold it. This is another reason why I do not hesitate; and now—see how generous I am—before I give you a chance to set back to the galley, and to escape again, I give you without discussion the choice of arms.

If you had been a well-bred man, you would not have sent skipping some of the phrase or of my letter. I can understand how the police must be foreigner in the hand of an escaped convict like you, whose departure was assisted by the cannon that the echo of them and Noyon knows so well, and which permits you on gala days to sink a yellow feather in your green cockade; but what is the necessity of your making my letter a quarrel with which he has nothing to do? He has ever me the most courteous advice of not showing you; and in former days he is no way prevented me from holding a ball in your skin.

You ought to have the honesty to acknowledge that if anybody risks an unpleasant intervention in all this business, it is certainly not to you who find yourself abroad and outside of all chance of your being seized soon. But if he who must go to find you quits your lair, which has now become the refuge of all the thieves, the assassins and the leaders of the Commune.

But since you have the kindness to give me advice, you will permit me, with a view not to be too kind you, to give you, too, a piece of advice. First of all, don't wear any more medals. That was well once, but it won't do a second time. (In the former duel, Rochefort's life was saved by Cassagnac's bullet striking a concealed medal.) I don't care about perpetuating the readers-room of this kind, and I greatly wish that in this confortable manner a curious could give your life once it should be as I did before.

In the second place, don't forget your flask of smelling salts. Your capacity for fainting is quite celebrated, and I would feel humiliated if I had to go all the way to Switzerland for the purpose of undoing your corsets and making you breathe the fainting perfume. You are so nervous!

And then how you prove me. Quick! quick! I only require me to take the first train. Be a little calm; you won't lose anything, and I shall in any case arrive early. Besides, you ought to know that danger may be quickly swallowed like a pastille. One week more or one week less will not sensibly increase the severity with which you have used, and for task, my offer for duel with sabres. Are you agreed? Good! Then I will wait.

Paris, July 27, 1875.

P. ORDINAIRE,
GEORGES PÉRIN,
Comte JOSEPH D'HERICOURT,
ALEX. [Prince de Wagram.

Hearing the Truth.

A correspondent of the New York Evening Journal, writing from Gainesville, Ga., July 21st, says:

We have been a convert for only seven years of that time we have lived here among a people, few of whom believed Catholics to be a sort of earthly devils; nearly all of whom had been taught to entertain a bigotry which can be taught alone by semi-educated and ignorance-stricken Protestant preachers; and now a Catholic church stand as a mth on one point alone—that of fidelity (belying aslight not be too harsh a word) the Catholic faith almost every day of their lives; many of whom believe the Pope has horns, hoofs, a long tail, cloven hoofs and hide—and a priest horse; among a people, some of whom say Catholics are good but democrats in disguise, and most of the others that they are but missions of consolation. During those four years but five times has a priest visited us, and once we were eighteen months without one. When Bishop Gross came to this diocese I think there were only eight priests in it, and many of these only seldom visited.

The dark clouds have rolled away, and we have had a mission which would have filled your truly Catholic heart with joy, could you have been here.

On July 10th that good Redemptorist, Father Keirgat, commenced a mission in Gainesville; when the proprietors, two Protestants and a Hebrew, were kind enough to rent us a hall to accommodate those (there belong only two Catholic families by family here) went from curiosity. But they showed such expressions as who Catholics have been greatly benefited," one man object to his attending "the moral teachings are incontrovertible," etc. Father Keirgat had good congregations both morning and night till Wednesday night, when Bishop Gross arrived. That night the hall was densely filled and many went away not being able to get in. He preached on the Blessed Virgin Mary, and never did any of bishop have a more attentive congregation than did Bishop Gross that night. He preached Thursday and Friday nights to the congregation; and closed the mission Saturday night by administering the Sacrament of Confirmation. There was only one confirmed—my little daughter. The Bishop and Father Keirgat were highly gratified. Their mission was a great success under the circumstances—only five adult Catholics here—and the most of the people totally ignorant of our holy faith, and having been taught from their infancy by their preachers that we were idolaters. Many of the laborer many have told me frankly that they endorse our faith so far as they understand it, and quite a number have asked me for books that they may learn more. I have given out what I had, and sent for some more, and some are now reading them. Without exception all who heard Bishop Gross say he is the finest looking man they ever heard. Only his sermons were masterpieces of logic, but with the rather surprising addition, "However, I do not indorse his teaching."

Rum Italian Peasants Live.

Signor Villari gives the following account of the condition of the peasantry in Italy, which certainly accounts for their ignorance in such considerable numbers to this country: "The peasants who cultivate this large territory remain there almost the whole year through, coming only every fortnight or three weeks into the villages to see their families. In the country they are lodged into a large apartment on the ground floor of the house; here they sleep in niches hollowed out in the wall; they have for a bed only a straw sack, on which they sleep in their clothes, for they never undress. An overseer discharges of them, who, in the name of the proprietor, deals out to them in the morning a loaf of inferior black bread, weighing about two pounds. Such a peasant works from sunrise to sunset; at an o'clock in the morning he eats half an hour, and eats a piece of his bread. In the evening, when the work is over, the overseer sets a large kettle on the fire, which is kindled in the peasant's room; in this kettle water with some salt is boiled. Meanwhile, the men stand along in a row, breaking their bread into deep wooden platters, and the overseer pours the hot salt water and a few drops of oil over the broken bread. This is their only soup the whole year through, and is called aqua-sal; they never receive any more nourishing food, except in the harvest, when one or two litres of an inferior wine are given them, though they may not become exhausted under their severe labors. Yet these peasants lay aside daily a portion of their bread, which they carry home for the support of their families. Their yearly pay is about 132 francs, a certain amount of corn which falls to their share as harvest. Such a fearful condition of things has driven many of them in despair turn to brigandage. By the site of ancient Rome, surrounded by the luxury of the court, the innumerable royal palaces and villas, the magnificent royal stables, I was struck by the continually being built, requiring large sums of money; and by the hunting establishes, the splendid displays of fireworks and the costly jewelry presented to the famous ballet dancers, and other 'favorite whims of pleasure.'"

EXAMINE THE CATHOLIC
NATIONAL SERIES,
OF
Rt. Rev. Bishop Gilmour, D.D.,
BISHOP OF CLEVELAND.
THE LATEST AND BEST.
THE FIRST READER, 25 Cents.
THE SECOND READER, 40 Cents.
THE THIRD READER, 75 Cents.
THE FOURTH READER, $1.
The First, Second and Third Readers of the CATHOLIC NATIONAL SERIES are now ready, and may be introduced at once into parochial schools as they fully cover the ground occupied by the 1st, 2nd and 3rd Readers of any other series.
Special Terms Given for First Introduction.
SPECIMEN COPIES SENT FREE BY MAIL TO SCHOOLS, ON APPLICATION.
THE MOST REV. ARCHBISHOP GIBBONS, BALTIMORE, MD., writes: "I am glad of your laudable aim to supply our elementary schools with "Fully worthy of the purpose specified."
J. A. McCALLISTER, Esq.,
Of Iona University, St. Louis, writes: "Both the language and the matter of the series is admirable, and just what we want for school children."
WALTER MITCHELL, Esq.,
"Decidedly superior to any I have yet seen."
JOSEPH WITH, Esq., New York.
Dr. BROWNSON, in his "Quarterly Review" for April, 1875, after comparing THE CATHOLIC NATIONAL SERIES OF READERS with "Sadlier's Catholic" and "Progressive," says:
"We prefer, as far as we have seen, the Series prepared by the Right Rev. Bishop of Cleveland, and published by the Benziger of New York and Cincinnati."
"The Readers of the CATHOLIC NATIONAL SERIES have been in use during the past year in many of our schools at Allegany City, Cincinnati, Dayton, Louisville, Milwaukee, Pittsburgh, Rochester, Scranton, Chicago, Columbus, New York, San Antonio, Texas, etc., etc., and have given universal satisfaction. They improve them thoroughly practical, and great progress has been made in those where they have been introduced."
J. N. REINHOLT, Publisher.
BENZIGER BROS.,
NEW YORK AND CINCINNATI.
sol14
SAN JOSE ADVERTISEMENTS.
L. CHOPARD, WATCHMAKER AND JEWELER, No. 26 South Clara Street, San José.
VICTOR HOFFMANN,
Architect,
SAN JOSE, CAL.
SAN JOSE MARBLE WORKS
E. POWER,
Sculptor,
SAN JOSE.
STATUARY, TOMBS, MANTEL-PIECES, HEAD-STONES, AND FOUNTAIN
And every description of
MARBLE WORK.
DESIGNING, MODELING, &c.
And every style Wood and Stone Carving. Monumental and Cemetery work a specialty.
SANTA CLARA ADVERTISEMENTS.
CAMERON HOUSE,
SANTA CLARA, CAL.
MARTIN CORCORAN.....PROPRIETOR
MR. CORCORAN, having purchased the above-named house, respectfully informs his friends and the public throughout the State that the House is now open for the reception of guests. The Omnibus will be in attendance at all the Steamboat and Railroad Landings on the arrival of each train, and the House will be conducted with the same liberal and attentive system which has characterized it for the last two years.
The Hotel is commodious; the rooms are large and well furnished, and ventilated, and the surroundings are healthy and pleasing to the eye.
In connection with the Hotel is a fine stable of horses and carriages, which can be had at any hour of the day or night, at most reasonable rates. 5ul1
D. BERCIN,
SANTA CLARA.....CALIFORNIA
Has the largest assortment of
Dry Goods, Clothing, Boots and Shoes
To be found South of San Francisco, which he will sell at less than San Francisco rates. se12
BUTTER
EGGS,
Strictly Choice.
GROCERIES,
Wholesale and Retail.
Open Saturday Nights.
LINSLEY & COLLINS,
Nos. 105 and 107 Passons st.
TEAS

CATHOLIC SCHOOL BOOKS.

The "Young Catholic's Illustrated School Series."

The New Series of Readers Completed.

THE CATHOLIC PUBLICATION SOCIETY has in preparation and will publish a new series of School Books, to be known by the above title, which is copyrighted. The following Books are now ready for delivery:

The Young Catholic's Illustrated Primer,	$0 20
The Young Catholic's Illustrated Speller,	25
The Young Catholic's Illustrated First Reader,	25
The Young Catholic's Illustrated Second Reader,	45
The Young Catholic's Illustrated Third Reader,	60
The Young Catholic's Illustrated Fourth Reader,	75
The Young Catholic's Illustrated Fifth Reader,	1 25
The Young Catholic's Illustrated Sixth Reader,	1 50
The Catholic Young Ladies' Reader,	1 25

These Readers are compiled by competent hands, and the grand object kept in view has been to furnish, as recited by Rev. J. L. Spalding, S. T. L. No labor or expense has been spared in getting up this series of Readers. The illustrations are made to illustrate the text.

What is said of the "Young Catholic's Illustrated Readers."

Rt. Rev. Bishop Gilmour, D.D., Cleveland, O.:
"I am a merry scholar and intellectual standpoint the above entitled to be the best which I have seen, and their most exacted Sectarian censure in the omissions and insertions. I am glad to find that the Catholic publishers of this be doing of particular, devotion and instruction is carried. There is no ground for complaint that anything is wanting. The little manual of Catholic Doctrine is a forge that have been and perfectly and will be very useful. The Readers are also very attractive, full, neat and always, over and above anything else."

[From the Boston "Pilot."]
The Young Catholic's Illustrated Readers is one of the best school readers we have ever seen. It is admirably arranged, the lessons are interesting, and the engravings are safe and beauty to the book.

[From the Philadelphia "Review."]
The series is very handsomely printed and done up, and the lessons will be a great favorite with both children and teachers, as it will serve one all trouble in the selection of pieces. The Catholic spirit which pervades the work, the letter is prepared on a literary way to do so, and the Catholic Publication Society deserves the success which we feel sure will be the lot of the book. We can not do better than recommend it to the attention of the Catholic public.

[From the Cincinnati "Catholic Telegraph."]
The series is very handsomely printed and done up, and the lessons will be a great favorite with both children and teachers, as it will serve one all trouble in the selection of pieces. The Catholic spirit which pervades the work, the letter is prepared on a literary way to do so, and the Catholic Publication Society deserves the success which we feel sure will be the lot of the book. We can not do better than recommend it to the attention of the Catholic public.

[From the Chicago "Tribune."]
These books are well adapted for use in schools and for the purposes of pupils, from the little primer to the sixth reader. The Catholic Publication Society has evidently labored to produce what is claimed among the best series of school books in the country. Solid instruction, well graded, and attractive, but not flashy, all the lessons are of a high moral character, and the mechanical execution is excellent. The illustrations are numerous and well executed, and the binding is substantial and handsome.

TERMS PER MONTH
(Payable in advance):
Tuition, in Preparatory Department.....$1 00
In Literary Department.....1 50
In Higher Department.....2 00
EXTRA CHARGES:
For the use of Instruments in Musical Philosophy and Chemicals, per year, per month, $1 00
For the use of Instruments, etc., second year, per month.....50
For use of Instruments, Drawing.....

CONVENT OF OUR LADY OF THE SACRED HEART,
OAKLAND.....CALIFORNIA
Conducted by the Sisters of the Holy Names of Jesus and Mary.

THIS INSTITUTION IS PLEASANTLY SITUATED in Oakland, a short distance from the city, in the most delightful and healthy part of the city. The system of education is based upon the principles of a solid and extensive.
The course of instruction embraces the usual English branches, with the Modern Languages.
TERMS payable half yearly in advance:
Board and Tuition, per annum.....$200 00
Washing.....20 00
Bed and bedding, without sheets (if required by the Institution).....10 00
For further particulars apply to
SISTERS OF CHARITY.
Santa Barbara, Cal.
1210

COLLEGE OF NOTRE DAME.
SAN JOSE, CALIFORNIA.
YOUNG LADIES' INSTITUTE.

THIS INSTITUTION, WHICH IS INCORPORATED according to the laws of the State, and empowered to confer academical honors, will commence the Twenty-sixth Annual Session on MONDAY, August 16, 1875.
The course of instruction embraces all the branches of a thorough education.
TERMS:
Entrance, to be paid but once.....$15 00
Board and Tuition, per quarter.....72 00
Washing, per quarter.....12 00
Physicians' fees (unless it may be preferred to have them paid to the family physician).....5 00
Piano, Vocal Music, Drawing and Painting from extra charges. Lessons in Harp, Violin, Guitar, French, Spanish or German Languages, are for Pupils of the Establishment.
Pupils are required to be provided with a mattress, pillows, blankets, sheets, towels, and counterpane.
Payments are required to be made half a year in advance, and no deduction will be made for pupils withdrawn before the expiration of a session.
Pupils will find it much to their advantage to be present at the opening of the session.
For further information apply to the Superioress.
ST. VINCENT'S COLLEGE
LOS ANGELES, CAL.
DEGREES CONFERRED
Rev. JAMES MACGILL, C. M.
President.

EDUCATIONAL.

SAINT MARY'S COLLEGE
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
Conducted by the Christian Brothers
Offers every facility for acquiring a thorough Education, whether Classical, Scientific or Commercial.

Those who complete the Classical Course receive the degree of A. B. (Bachelor, S. S.) in due course.
Number of Professors, 12.
Number of Students, 200.
The Library of the Institution has been established for the convenience of Students, with a view to acquire a good practical education in as short a time as possible.
While proper care is bestowed on every branch taught in the College, our own language receives special attention. The correctness of the students in grammar, Composition and Rhetoric are publicly discussed and corrected in the class-room.
TERMS PER SCHOLASTIC YEAR.
(Payable half yearly in advance).
Board, Tuition and Washing.....$300 00
Entrance Fee.....12 00
Physician's Fees and Medicines.....10 00
Vacation at College.....60 00
Use of Bedding.....5 00
Modern Languages, Music and drawing form extra charges.
Studies will be resumed on the 5th of August, 1875.
BRO. B. JUSTIN, President.

ST. VINCENT'S SCHOOL.
THIS INSTITUTION IS SITUATED IN SANTA BARBARA, a short distance from the sea, in the most delightful and healthy part of the city. The system of education is based upon the principles of a solid and extensive.
The course of instruction embraces the usual English branches, with the Modern Languages.
TERMS payable half yearly in advance:
Board, tuition, bed, bedding, washing, etc., per annum.....$200 00
Use of instruments, per month.....1 00
Initiatory, per month.....1 00
Physician's Fees and Medicines.....5 00
For further particulars apply to
SISTER IN CHARGE.
Santa Barbara, Cal.

COLLEGE OF NOTRE DAME.
MARYSVILLE.....CALIFORNIA.

THIS INSTITUTION IS INCORPORATED ACCORDING to the laws of the State, and empowered to confer academical honors, will commence the Twenty-sixth Annual Session on MONDAY, August 16, 1875.
The course of instruction embraces all the branches of a thorough education.
TERMS:
Entrance, to be paid but once.....$15 00
Board and Tuition, per quarter.....72 00
Washing, per quarter.....12 00
Physicians' fees (unless it may be preferred to have them paid to the family physician).....5 00
Piano, Vocal Music, Drawing and Painting from extra charges. Lessons in Harp, Violin, Guitar, French, Spanish or German Languages, are for Pupils of the Establishment.
Payments are required to be made half a year in advance, and no deduction will be made for pupils withdrawn before the expiration of a session.
Pupils will find it much to their advantage to be present at the opening of the session.
For further information apply to the Superioress.

ST. CATHERINE'S ACADEMY,
FOR YOUNG LADIES.
BENICIA.....CALIFORNIA.

THIS INSTITUTION IS CONDUCTED BY THE Sisters of St. Dominic, and is located in the healthy and delightful city of Benicia. The education embraces the various branches of literature suitable to young ladies, including the French language, Music, Drawing and Painting. Particular attention will be devoted to the formation of manners, habits of neatness, and to all those principles which will fit the pupils for the discharge of the duties of life. The terms will be found moderate, and the comforts of a home will be secured to the pupils under the kind and motherly care of the Sisters.
TERMS PER MONTH:
Board and Tuition.....$20 00
Washing.....2 00
Those commencing at the Academy during vacation will be charged from that time.
Drawing, Painting and Music form extra charges.
Pupils will be required to furnish their own bedding, towels, napkins, and silver.
The Scholastic Year, which is divided into two sessions of five months each, commences in August and closes towards the beginning of June.
For further particulars apply to
(Payable semi-annually, in advance):
Matriculation Fee, to be paid but once.....$10 00
Tuition, in Primary Department.....20 00
Tuition, in Intermediate Department.....30 00
Tuition, in Higher Department.....40 00
Use of Bedding.....10 00
Use of Mattress.....5 00
Washing, per month.....2 00
Use of Instruments in Musical Philosophy.....5 00
Use of Instruments in Drawing.....5 00
Use of Instruments in Painting.....5 00
Use of Instruments in Modern Languages.....5 00
Use of Instruments in Vocal Music.....5 00
Use of Instruments in Piano.....10 00
Use of Instruments in Harp.....10 00
Use of Instruments in Violin.....10 00
Use of Instruments in Guitar.....10 00
Use of Instruments in Mandolin.....10 00
Use of Instruments in Zither.....10 00
Use of Instruments in Flute.....10 00
Use of Instruments in Clarionet.....10 00
Use of Instruments in Cornet.....10 00
Use of Instruments in Trombone.....10 00
Use of Instruments in Bass Viol.....10 00
Use of Instruments in Violoncello.....10 00
Use of Instruments in Bugle.....10 00
Use of Instruments in Drum.....10 00
Use of Instruments in Cymbals.....10 00
Use of Instruments in Triangle.....10 00
Use of Instruments in Tambourine.....10 00
Use of Instruments in Castanets.....10 00
Use of Instruments in Accordeon.....10 00
Use of Instruments in Flageolet.....10 00
Use of Instruments in Fife.....10 00
Use of Instruments in Piccolo

THE LORD MAYOR'S BANQUET.

(Continued from First Page.)

Vautrey, Very Rev. Dr. Russell, Sir Chas. Gavan Duffy, Dean O'Connell, P. F.; the Mayors of Limerick, Cork, Kilkenny, Waterford, Sligo and Drogheda; the Bishops of Nesbit, Ellsburgh, Kildare and Leighlin, Kerry, Clogher, Achonry, Limerick, Killaloe, Clonfert and Capesover; Mgr. Rinaldi, Mgr. Capel, Mgr. Woodlock, Sir James W. Mackey, J. P.; Very Rev. L. Von de Winkel, and a large number of private citizens.

The health of the Pope was the first toast given, and it was received with enthusiasm, and responded to (in English) by Mgr. Nardi.

The toast of "O'Connell" was responded to by Mr. Daniel O'Connell, grandson of the "Liberator."

The Lord Mayor then called upon his Grace the Most Rev. Dr. MacHale, Archbishop of Tuam, who, on coming forward, was received with an enthusiastic cheers, which were frequently renewed during his address. The great Archbishop of the West spoke as follows:

Archbishop MacHale's Speech.

Although I should prefer being a silent spectator, and an attentive listener on an occasion which has filled with such joyous emotions the heart of Ireland, I cannot, in the spirit of obedience, refuse compliance with the request of his Lordship, so hastily conferred, and so kindly seconded by this numerous and most distinguished assembly. The occasion is the augmentation of the hundredth year of the birth of the immortal O'Connell, and the toast is the health of the Sovereign Pontiff, with his and your own. Of the claims of the children of Ireland to the gratitude of their country, I shall not speak. Their piety, their constancy, merit the right of self-government, which all prosperous and independent nations bring in a corresponding degree treated as slaves. To this a tribute low indeed has not been wanting, but one it never hope to prove an exception, so long as the inestimable right to self-government shall be known to be so unceremoniously and so unjustly withheld.

It is a consolation of humanity to contemplate the heroic exertions made in the meetings of the self-government for the recovery of so high a boon, that we are redeemed himself to the Irish people, who have given proofs of the most extreme virtue they will in the enlightenment by then honoring its devoted champion with such a magnificent national celebration. Such a tribute homage—so signal and unprecedented—is the best pledge for the success of the great cause, character the Liberator" was such grateful recognition. Thus it is with the Irish people. Their gratitude is not like that of other nations, limited to a single effort, but knowing for the enlightenment for which he laid down his life, and which he has left as a legacy to his country, once so pious, now fallen into the meshes of the hydra of infidelity! I am overwhelmed with consternation.

May the Lord our God vouchsafe to enlighten those who persecute the Catholic Church, and those who are their tools, to see and that they are what in the end they are guilty of, and that they do penance for it. He who overcame the world cannot be overcome by any power. If this be not can be the eyes of persecutors and lead them to repentance, it is a source of consolation for those persecutors. The persecuted suffer, but they await a reward which is only promised to the faithful.

JOSE JOAQUIN C. DE ANDRADE,
Dean of the Chapter.

OLINDA, May 31, 1875.

Purify the springs of Life.

It is a sine qua non in the health of man that the sources of vitality, the springs of life," should be free from contamination. The dodo which, by the circulation of the blood, carries life to every tissue of the body, and the great vital nutriment itself, must be pure, or the health of the whole system will soon be found to be properly nourished and kept vigorous. To this end the stomach, the liver, the bowels and the kidneys should perform unobstructedly their functions. Where these, since if these are disordered the vital fluids speedily become vitiated. The best, nay, the only

New Advertisements.

For Supervisor
—OF THE—
Eleventh Ward,
P. McARAN.
Regular Democratic Nominee
For Supervisor,
EIGHTH WARD,
FLEET F. STROTHER.
Regular Democratic Nominee
For Supervisor,
NINTH WARD,
THOMAS BOYCE.
Regular Democratic Nominee
For Supervisor,
TENTH WARD,
J. C. Roberts,
Regular Democratic Nominee
For Supervisor,
TWELFTH WARD,
D. A. McDonald,
Regular Democratic Nominees
—FOR—
Fire Commissioners,
B. ORDENSTEIN,
CHARLES FIELD,
EDWARD FLAHERTY.
Pledged to retain the present efficient Fire Department.

REGULAR DEMOCRATIC NOMINEE
For Congress,
FIRST DISTRICT,
WILLIAM A. PIPER,
OF SAN FRANCISCO.
Regular Democratic Nominees
—FOR—SENATORS,
13th Senatorial District,
ROBERT HOWE,
FRANK McCOPPIN.
Eleventh Senatorial District
Regular Democratic Nominee for JAMES G. CARSON.
The Eleventh Senatorial District is bounded by Market street, on the north, by the Pacific Ocean, on the South, and the Bay on the east and south.
Regular Democratic Nominee
For Assembly,
Twelfth Senatorial District,
HERMAN RANKEN
FOR CORONER,
JAS. McGINN,
—FOR—PEOPLE'S CHOICE
—FOR—
THE POOR MAN'S FRIEND.
—FOR—
SUPERINTENDENT OF PUBLIC SCHOOLS,
H. N. BOLANDER.
Regular Democratic Nominee
—FOR—
Chief of Police,
P. CROWLEY
For County Recorder,
OTTO H. FRANK,
PRESENT INCUMBENT.
Regular Democratic Nominee
For County Treasurer,
Charles Hubert,
PRESENT INCUMBENT.
For Coroner,
DR. R. BEVERLY COLE

New Advertisements.

JAMES C. PENNIE,
REGULAR DEMOCRATIC NOMINEE
—FOR—
Justice of the Peace.
JAMES V. COFFEY,
REGULAR DEMOCRATIC NOMINEE
For Assemblyman,
NINTH SENATORIAL DISTRICT.
M. J. DONOVAN,
REGULAR DEMOCRATIC NOMINEE
For Senator,
TWELFTH SENATORIAL DISTRICT.
THOMAS McINERNEY,
REGULAR DEMOCRATIC NOMINEE
For Assemblyman,
NINTH SENATORIAL DISTRICT.
EDWARD NUNAN,
(EX-SUPERVISOR)
REGULAR DEMOCRATIC NOMINEE
For Senator,
ELEVENTH SENATORIAL DISTRICT,
(Bounded by Market st., Fourth st. and the Bay.)
For State Senator,
Tenth Senatorial District,
REGULAR NOMINEE OF THE DEMOCRATIC INDEPENDENT DEMOCRATIC AND CITIZENS' INDEPENDENT CONVENTIONS.
JOS. CRAIG.
JOHN HAGAN,
REGULAR DEMOCRATIC NOMINEE
—FOR—
Superintendent of Streets.
CAPT. H. J. O'REILLY,
REGULAR DEMOCRATIC NOMINEE
—FOR—
Supervisor First Ward.
REGULAR DEMOCRATIC NOMINEE
For Supervisor,
THIRD WARD,
JAMES J. KENNEY.
—FOR—
Supervisor Third Ward,
THOMAS BRYAN.
Regular Democratic Nominee
For Supervisor,
FIFTH WARD,
JOHN P. SHINE.
Regular Democratic Nominee
For Supervisor
SIXTH WARD,
FRED'K W. EATON.
Regular Democratic Nominee
For Supervisor,
SEVENTH WARD,
GEORGE W. HAYES.

WYNNE, LOWTH & CO.
HAVE OPENED THEIR NEW
CENTRAL DRY GOODS HOUSE,
704 and 706 MARKET STREET,
OPPOSITE THIRD, AND
7 AND 9 GEARY STREET,
With a new and well-selected Stock of Foreign and Domestic
DRY GOODS,
FANCY GOODS,
SILKS,
SHAWLS,
FURNISHING GOODS,
RIBBONS,
GLOVES, ETC.
All our Goods having been purchased since the decline in the price of Goods, enables us to sell at LOWER PRICES than any other House.
WYNNE, LOWTH & CO.
Central Dry Goods House.

CHAS. FIELD. REED WOOD. JAS. HOWARDS.
CHARLES FIELD & CO.,
FURNITURE
MANUFACTURERS,
N. E. cor. Main & Mission Sts,
SAN FRANCISCO.
All orders filled at moderate prices. Office and Salesroom at Factory.

IMPORTANT NOTICE!
Second Grand Annual Sale of Ladies' and Gents'
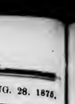
BOOTS AND SHOES.
NO FANCY PRICES.

MEN'S AND BOYS'
CUSTOM-MADE CLOTHING.
Dry Goods, Etc.


JAMES O'HANLON & CO.,
725 MONTGOMERY STREET, West Side, near Jackson.

J. O'H. & CO. beg leave to inform their numerous friends and patrons that they will sell for the next sixty days, regardless of cost, their IMMENSE STOCK OF STAPLE GOODS. Strangers visiting the city will find it to their advantage to call and compare our prices with those of other stores; they will readily see that they can save 25 cents on the dollar. To be closed out—

1,700 pairs Ladies' Kid-fitted Balmorals.....$1 75
100 Sewinged Balmorals.....1 75
Extra quality Balmorals.....1 75
Misses' Kid-fitted Balmorals.....1 00
Misses' Sewinged Balmorals.....1 00
Ladies' Gaiters, extra quality.....1 75
1,000 pairs Carpet Slippers.....per pair 25
Ladies' Calf Button Boots.....$2 50
Men's Custom-made Boots.....$ 00

Boys' Custom-made Boots.....$ 00
Children's Calf Shoes.....1 00
Men's Calf Boots.....1 00
Men's Rubber Boots.....1 00
Men's Rubber Boots (long).....1 00
1,000 pairs Men's Cashing serviceable and stout, from.....$2 75 to $3 00
Elegant Beaver hats, from.....$3 00 to $4 00
A splendid lot-ety of Gents Overcoats.....$7 50 to $15
Boys' Clothing a specialty. Splendid assortment.

JOHN S. KENNY. MORRIS SHEAHAN.
KENNY & SHEAHAN,
MERCHANT TAILORS,
No. 24 Third Street,
ARE PREPARED TO MAKE GENTLEMEN'S
Business Suits / The most Perfect FIT. The best Workmanship and lower CASH Prices than any other first class establishment in the city.
Finer Beaver Suits
Finest Dress Suits
Latest Fashionable Styles. Country Orders Promptly Attended.

Read This! Read This!

THE GRANGER WATCH
HAS JUST BEEN PATENTED BY
J. W. TUCKER & CO.
JEWELERS,
131 Kearny Street, San Francisco
It is the best Watch ever made in the United States, and every Farmer, Mechanic and Miner should have one. Price, in Silver Cases, 4-oz., $40; 5 oz., $45; 6 oz., $50; 7 oz., $55; 8 oz., $60. Will be sent to any part of the United States, C. O. D. in Local Cases, from $100 to $200, depending upon the weight of case. We keep constantly on hand a large assortment of Gold Chains, Jewelry, Diamonds and Silverware.
Repair Watches and Jewelry. Send us your orders.

NEW TAILORING ESTABLISHMENT.
D. Lloyd
Fashionable Tailor,
637 HOWARD STREET, Bet. Second and Third.
Fine Clothing made to order at the following low prices:
Fine American Cassimere Pants, to order.....$5 to $8
Fine Business Suits, to order.....$25 to $30
Fine Diagonal Suits, to order.....$35 to $45
Fine French Cassimere Suits, to order.....$35 to $50
Fine Spring Overcoats, to order.....$25 to $30
All other Garments made at proportionably low rates. Fit satisfaction guaranteed in quality of goods and perfection of fit. Orders given in 1724-17 Fine Livery Suits.

GRAY'S
Music Stores and Music Publishing House.
105 Kearny Street, San Francisco, and
101 First Street, Portland, O.
The only Engraving and Publishing House on the Coast.
STINWAY PIANOS AND SUBERT ORGANS.
GUILD, CHURCH & CO. PIANOS AND SHONINGER ORGANS.
CARL ZERNISCH, KRANICH & BACH, ERNST GEBLER, AND M. ERAT Squares and Uprights.
The Largest Stock of Music on the Pacific Coast.
Pianos for Rent at from $6 to $10 per month, or.
GRAY'S MUSIC STORES.

MENEELY'S BELL FOUNDRY,
WEST TROY, NEW YORK.
Established in 1826.
CHURCH, ACADEMY, FACTORY AND OTHER Bells, made of copper and tin, warranted satisfactory, and mounted with the most improved Yoke. The most recent and desirable Bell Stands in use. For prices and catalogues apply to MENEELY & COMPANY.
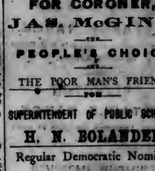
Or to HENRY MCSHANE & CO., Baltimore, Md.

DIVIDEND.
Office of the Hibernia Savings and Loan Society,
SAN FRANCISCO, JULY 27, 1875.
At a regular meeting of the Board of Directors of this Society held this day, a Dividend at the rate of eight per cent per annum was declared on all deposits, for the six months ending July 31, 1875, free from Federal tax, and payable on and after August 2d.
EDWARD M. RAIN, Secy.
[2781]

DIVIDEND NOTICE.
The Proprietors of the Celebrated FREDERICKSBURG LIGHT BEER have declared a dividend at the rate of one glass of their Beer on every ten rents that may be invested, pay able immediately at their saloon—THE RIN. TRACHT—243 California street, San Francisco.
By order. SCHRAMM & SCHNABEL.
Proprietors.

The Grand Art
PHOTOGRAPH GALLERY
Corner Third and Jessie Streets.
P. J. SULLIVAN.....PROPRIETOR
3911



4 pounds Excellent Coffee.....$1 00
3 pounds Best Coffee.....1 00
1 pound Best English Breakfast Tea.....1 00
1 pound Splendid Black Tea.....1 00
1 pound Good Black Tea.....

G. T. HANLY & CO.
Also Publishers of the San Francisco Star. tph20 6m5

"Time Past Never Returns."
IF YOU WANT TO HAVE YOUR CLOCKS OR Watches keep good time, and come strictly for minute, you can do no better than call on the old established CLOCK AND WATCH MAKER, who has very low prices, and guarantees satisfaction. You will go a long way to find one that will do better work at the same prices. Remember the place is from Polk. Five (5) solid gold cases given away. Also, a gold watch and chain worth $75; also, a gold watch worth $75. Also the finest of life to small date to ignorant persons. Call and see the watches and learn how to get one free of charge. Remember the number, 1016 Dupont street, above Broadway. Store through to Stockton street. Remember the number, 1016 Dupont street, above Broadway. Store through to Stockton street. Remember the number, 1016 Dupont street, above Broadway. Store through to Stockton street.
D. A. O'CONNELL,
WATCH AND CLOCK MAKER,
1016 Third Street, near Howard
He will examine your Watch and Clock free of charge, and repair them at very moderate prices. Parties having work done at his shop may rely upon it being done in a workmanlike manner. All work warranted for one year. Watches and Clocks for sale at very low prices. Call and examine and engage us for bought in this city. All kinds of jewelry made to order. Please give him a trial. You will see money and receive satisfaction. 1016

GARVIN NUNAN,
Corner Main and Natoma streets.....STOCKTON
Hooks, Periodicals, Magazines, Etc.
News Agent—Advertising Agents.

THE MONITOR & GUARDIAN.
The Only Irish and Catholic Journal in California.
LYONS & BARRY, - - - - Publishers.
RICHARD O'SULLIVAN.....EDITOR.
OFFICE—623 CLAY STREET, between Montgomery and Kearny sts. (Rooms 3, 7 and 8, up-stairs.)
TERMS (Payable in Advance):
Served by Carriers, per week.....10c
Mail subscribers, per year.....$ 4 00
Mail months.....$ 2 00
Mail for subscribers in Ireland or either of the British Provinces, per year.....$ 6 00
do. do. six months.....$ 3 00
Postage in each case prepaid by publishers.

JOHN J. TOBIN,
Stock Broker,
(Pacific Stock Exchange),
Will promptly transact purchase and sales of Stock entrusted to him. Business strictly commission.
VERNON, TOBIN & CO.,
Office—Next to Safe Deposit Company's Bank, cor. Montgomery and California sts., San Francisco.

PROF. TYNDALL AND MATERIALISM.

A Philosophic Epistle Addressed to a Friend.

DEAR FRIEND,—October 15, 1874.
Great Tyndall has spoken, a voice has gone forth
From the Alumni of Union, the glory of the North:
That wonderful tongue, that head to Belfast,
Blows us atoms, they tell us, the records of the past.
The grey matter of which Christians declare
Man or womankind no longer—he hasn't if no more!
For Tyndall has said it, and Tyndall knows the door.
There is nothing but MATTER in earth, air and water!
My God is matter no more!
The world had no maker or hasbin or plan;
Nor is there a hereafter for woman or man;
Love itself is but matter and matter is love;
To atoms imprisoned by some chance to confine,
Which in time will be free, and in freedom will pine.
The CELL SEPARATE, the MIGHTY DAM,
Of the Protoplasm brought, not an old fashioned lie!
Yes, such is the teaching of Tyndall & Co.,
Whose knowledge is limited, and here ends from hence
Since the fatty and prime of three arrogant sons
Of Adam, the primate, the first of the ones
Who of knowledge and science, of passion refuse,
And drive from the world all that's noble and true,
Is the fatty degeneration of the heart!
The infinite depths of the universe!
The gulf between nothing and something we see,
Is too much for us, and we cannot pass it;
If there were such a thing as a reason in beings,
It would be given to us, or reason to give.
The senses it is which are given to man,
To further, I wave, this his reason can get;
Its principles he can't, and he never can see,
But what medicines them he cannot explore;
The knowledge of matter and matter alone
As to bottles he senses of seeing and sound,
Of taste and of touch, and of smell may find
As best in the end as the highest of all.
If no man has ever seen their existence give,
My reason, I'm sorry to say, I can't believe.
Is there in my body a rational soul,
As I believe I've been told by people in pews.
Bye 'n bye shall learn a little more deep,
And then shall I find myself looking a fool
Into the forest of life he shall dare to ignore,
Or give up a friend—of a proof can be brought.
What then shall I do and what shall I believe?
Since though he is not the one in the other is found?
Shall I be left in the lurch, and left to myself
To wander in the middle, 'twixt right and left side.
I defy all the Tyndalls that ever were born
How thought is a substance MATERIAL could dwell;
That is, if in spirits nothing can be
Which is not, believing matter and fact,
It is we, I suppose, who are wrong and who are right.
As to have the same facts before us and square.
Or let him and me have the whiskey and man.
That free—and will—we—are.

And now, my friend, I'll write I shall further pursue,
Let me ask the mine Darwin a question or two,
Our Darwin, I mean, is he made for a flunk?
Since he holds that all mankind have come from the monkey?
Will he not be now long till his monkey race shall speak,
And develop great profits and wisdom and power?
Or, but by what, through ages and ages and years?
Shall monkeys be men, and men be monkeys again?
If instead of a monkey, I freely confess
I'd rather be human in one of the lowest hold,
We may have a six pounder or vent in the cold,"
A fatty of fat'en, quoth he and bade,
Who would then both degrade and dishonor our race
Where reason fails down such a fearful steep,
The second to make even the name of it weep.
If the nation of proof science they would actually ad-
Why no!
Why no! science is spiritual and potent as chance?
Is that all that true science has come from on high,
And ever spoken truth, "in the name that doth live"
The science give life to immortals lengths?
To the life it make, to the bottle its end?

And why give no chance, if their words do not lie,
What to science so lauded they're forced to deny?
Away with deductions and dinners to-night,
They're not the sound growth of a reasoning mind.
The science we hope praises they ask us to day
Is nothing indeed but a Will-o'-the-Whip,
When in thought we would grasp it, it flies, and thus
To dethrone the Almighty, All-holy, All-wise;
To put in His place a mere nothing at all,
Is the science of science, the wisdom of wisdom,
Which is nothing but MATTER in earth, air and water!
By God let me not be found in such company!
Let me not be found in such company!
Let me not be found in such company!

THE LORD MAYOR'S BANQUET.

(Continued from First Page.)

Vesuvey, Very Rev. Dr. Russell, Sir Chas. Gavan Duffy, Dean O'Connell, P. F.; the Mayors of Limerick, Cork, Kilkenny, Waterford, Sligo and Drogheda; the Bishops of Ossory, Edinburgh, Kildare and Leighlin, Kerry, Clogher, Achonry, Limerick, Killaloe, Cloyne and Capeswiew; Mgr. Rinaldi, Mgr. Capel, Mgr. Woodlock, Sir James W. Mackey, J. F.; Very Rev. L. Von de Winkel, and a large number of private distinction.

The health of the Pope was the first toast given, and it was received with enthusiasm, and responded to (in English) by Mgr. Nardi.

The toast of "O'Connell" was responded to by Mr. Daniel O'Connell, grandson of the "Liberator."

The Lord Mayor then called upon his Grace the Most Rev. Dr. MacHale, Archbishop of Tuam, who, on coming forward, was received with enthusiastic cheers, which were frequently renewed during his address. The great Archbishop of the West spoke as follows:

Archbishop MacHale's Speech.

Although I should prefer being a silent spectator, and an attentive listener on an occasion which has filled with such joy from one cross the heart of Ireland, I cannot, in the spirit of obedience, refuse compliance with the request of his Lordship, so flatteringly conveyed, and so kindly seconded by this numerous and most respectable company. This is the most happy inauguration of the fourteenth year of the birth of O'Connell, the Irish Liberator—the Father and Founder of his nation. I take, to union with you and rest of the friends of the people of Ireland, a sincere and heartfelt joy at the auspicious commencement of Ireland's approaching second century, reaching the hope of enlightenment, which no people ever lost in any extent without being followed by corresponding degradation. To this hope we have, in various ways, looked back as to a prophetic one that it ever hope to prove an exception, and as an inconvertible right to mitigate, remove and restore to be so exceptionally and so unjustly withheld.

It is on account of O'Connell's extraordinary and heroic exertions to realize the blessings of the self-government for the country of his birth that he has an undoubted claim to the true people, who have derived from it of the times we take they set on the first anniversary of his natal day, and consecrated it to his memory with a prayer which ascended to the Almighty's throne—as signal and unprecedented—perverse that it was one for success of so eminent a character the "Liberator" was such grateful recognition from his country." Yes, but the true people, unrotting also not only for "Emancipation," when he achieved, but above all, for the disenfranchisement for which he so strenuously labored in his death, have deepened in depth and concentrated gratitude and tender, to some respects, that of the Deity Himself. Emancipation was but a step to the great object in reserve for us—life, liberty, property, and, above all, conscience. It is into keep and comprehensive light that O'Connell's heartfelt policy, which the people were so quick to recognize, which would accomplish that unobstructed liberty with which it followed him when living, and tenderness to honor his memory since his honored decease.

A people capable of feelings and conduct so noble and so exalted cannot long remain the victim of the spirit of the times, of the theft, however perverse-ly in other respects, of the age. Ireland has had her misfortunes in common with all other countries; all her woes prolonged, or, were denied, so far as Ireland was concerned, by the blessing of her Irish blood, on doors. I have exhibited evidences of the legislative progress with marked it during her life, notwithstanding the disastrous famines when so deeply and so often visited her. And to this we have been given to be to have his memorial fix and a her, it is to a blood, to an old privilege more intangible than the continuous Protestant in her bosom, than preserving the Irish language, and the Irish race in Ireland. Not for the three next generations, and the Irish language, and the Irish race in Ireland. Not for the three next generations, and the Irish language, and the Irish race in Ireland. Not for the three next generations, and the Irish language, and the Irish race in Ireland. Not for the three next generations, and one of my country's laws, nor have I disobeyed lawfully established ecclesiastical or civil authorities. To-day, however, bowed down by age, weakened by long standing and continued infirmities, deprived of my benefice, the sole source of my modest subsistence, without the strength to labor, without the slightest resources, I am compelled by the right of might to go into exile. I am forced to go forth from my home, my friends and my relatives, to earn my living among strangers.

But, notwithstanding all this, I depart cheerfully, because I am consoled by the testimony of my conscience, which assures me that I have suffered for having fulfilled my duty, and I am at the same time encouraged by the fortifying words of my Divine Redeemer: Beati qui persecutionem patiuntur propter justitiam. It is, however, incumbent upon me not to go without protesting, in the name of Christian liberty, of truth and of right, against the new act of injustice of which I am a victim. This new trial (exile) which is imposed upon me, is, in fact, an iniquitous as the first (six years of hard labor), to which I have already been condemned in violation of all right.

I complain of no one, I make no accusations; I will continue to bear the wrongs which men heap upon me with resignation. Having already reached the rear end year low leaf, with one foot in the grave, I hope to be shielded from men—all my hopes are in God. But from the bottom of heart I lament that those who rule over our beloved country now seem to be the cause of injustice, because it is written: Quasi semenal homo, hac ceciderit. I feel these things, and I bitterly deplore them, in presence of the future of the country in which my ancestors were born, and in which I, too, was born, that country from which the injustice of man can never succeed in wresting my love.

In the land of the Cross, as in other lands, the Church of our Lord is persecuted, principally in some, as in the time of Diocletian; hypocritically in others, as in the days of Julian; here in the form of laws, there in the action of false accusation of the violation of the rights of man, but ever the same in essence, strive to annihilate the Church of the God. Alas! what a pang it is to see this country, once so pious, now fallen into the meshes of the hydra of infidelity! I am overwhelmed with consternation.

May the Lord our God vouchsafe to enlighten those who persecute the Catholic Church, and those who are their tools, to the end that they may realize the evil they are guilty of, and that they do penance for it. He who overcame the world cannot be overcome by men. If this last can open the eyes of persecutors and lead them to repentance, it is a source of consolation for the present persecutions, I shall suffer, but they seek a reward which is only promised to the faithful.

JOSE JOAQUIM DE ANDRADE,
Dean of the Cluspter.

OLINDA, May 21, 1875.

Purify the springs of Life.

It is a fine old gun of Isaiah that the sources of vitality, the springs of life, should be free from contamination. The fluids which, by their action upon the food, transform it into blood, and the great vital sustinent itself, must be pure, if the muscles, the bones and the brain are to be properly nourished and kept strong. To this end the stomach, the liver, the bowels and the kidneys should perform uninterruptedly their various functions, since if these have not perfect health, no specific becomes vitalized. The best, say, the only thoroughly Sarsaparilla. The juniper tree which grows in the mountains of Jamaica is the basis of it, and is philosophic. The roots of these diseases, and indeed of all pure of the blood, are thoroughly removed, in weakness, caused by insufficient sustenance, by the use of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Nothing can possibly rectify the cause of the difficulty by restoring vigorous digestion, and by this all pure of the system are supplied with an abundance of pure, rich blood. The nerves, which are the sentinels of health, are also reinvigorated by this great tonic, and rheumatism, neuralgia, kidney complaints, nervousness, and debility are overcome. The juniper tree which grows in the people's prosperity when these three months are active and regular. At the same time they lay the foundation for future health, and the necessity of frequent resort to the remedy is obviated. It is not astonishing that Hostetter's, without any pretensions to a miraculous character, should have so many friends, and that its sales should be constantly increasing. Its merits are known to

A MEDIEVAL LEGEND.

"A thousand years are as a day."

A monk sat ere in woeful ways
Half dreamed above his missal's page,
Whose pious text as well could scan
Were edged at round about with stars
Of daisy margins, sweet and fair,
Of birds and flowers flourished there.
All day he had those pictures wrought,
And in the restful twilight sought
To make some lovely hymn to raise
Around the words of love divine.
A verse kept ringing in his ears:
"A day is like a thousand years;"
"A thousand years is like a day
To God's great presence," it did say.
What doth this Wonderous saying mean?
He on the hand his head did lean,
And, gazing on the narrow scene
That stood the chancel aisles between,
He entered in the silent choir
And knelt and prayed with strong desire
That God in him would now reveal
What this strange saying hath to seal.
While all the train of brothers met
In the darkness. There he lay
When matins sang the midnight day;
But after matins came a bird,
A little bird, whose wing he had
Mistaken dogleg higher, higher,
Till atop by song it drew him out
Into the wood that lay about.
The priory's brown, mossy height,
Using as screen that wise delight
He listened and forgot his whim.
Forgot his prayers, his book, his dish
Of beaten bran, his brothers all;
While sweeter, softer, wish in call
Melodious sang the little bird;
For much that music was my ear heard,
Till and deity ate flew away,
And left him all alone in gray.

Returning from the lonely wood,
To seek his loving brotherhood,
No more the wonted gate he found;
He entered in terror all around.
Where in the path that gently wound
Down the lovely garden ground?
Upon his startled vision fled
Not holy arch and doorless wall.

Bewildered, desolate, distraught,
His entrance to the convent sought;
But as he entered all was strange—
New faces Romanly met his view;
New abbot, prior, brothers new;
And high built buttresses that crown
A tower, and drawbridge that ran down;
And frowning warders silent glide.
Where once we strong men used to tread.
And when he asked, with pitcous pain,
For all its shelter, comfortable train—
"Why, dear brother, they're dead years;
They sleep in graves for many a year.
The good have entered, or their fled,
Beneath this chapel—dear, dear dead.
Not yet thy face take on such woe—
They died where hatred years ago;
They gravestones over we cannot show;
How is it this door dost out know?"

The monk was speechless. Old and grey,
He turned his face and went away
From his dear home, where he'd no board
On which to whisper—'twas his word
With wonder note transport true so
That memory came and memory go,
And centuries vanish, and long years
Seem moments; when thy mortal ears
Hear angel music, and the song
Of thousand thousands full and strong
Worship the Lamb upon the throne
With thrilling voice and harp's sweet tone,
While golden vials fill the air
With odors rich of saintly prayer.

While thousand thousand of heaven the while
Such choir chorus thoroughfare—
If you may wonder such of sight,
"A day is as a thousand years;"
When God bathes the whole supreme
Of thousand years in but a day,
When like a dream doth pass away."

The listening monk a long breath drew—
Then he all sacred smiled to utter:
So Heaven granted him new birth
And angel lips bestowed to learn
To bestow this vision cometh true.

MRS. EMILY E. PEAS.

THE CHRISTMAS DINNER.

"Pepita, my good Pepita," a good burgher of Valencia received to say to his housekeeper, after turning his tongue at least seven times in his mouth before he decided on speaking; "I suppose I would like to ask you to prepare a real good dinner for Christmas day."

At the beginning, which indicated the fine wherewith she inspired her master, Pepita knit her brows, and showed in all her movements the contradiction which the worthy Spanish burgher might have expected.

"You are very lucky in telling me, master," she replied, in a sharp tone, "we are at the 23rd of December, and the day after next will be Christmas."

"But you have more than twenty-four hours to make your preparations——"

"Are you jesting, master? It is easy enough that you haven't the least idea of the trouble that having company gives! Have I not to polish the furniture, wash the silver, dress and clean up the whole house, as I do before every great festival?"

"You can put that off for a week or so; the house is as clean as it needs to be."

"One can see plainly that you know nothing about it. And, then, my conscience must I not clean it, too? You are good, master; it seems that no one but yourself has a right to work on their salvation! If you want to go to communion on Christmas night, why don't you want me to do the same? Is it that my soul is not worth as much as yours?"

"No, no, my good Pepita; you know I am very far from having such thoughts as these. On the contrary, I want to make you most happy."

"By patience, let it not? You exercise it remarkably well, master! I don't know what keeps me from going to and my days be convent, where I might, at least, make my self-devotion to pay."

"Oh, do not leave me, Pepita! What would become of me without your care? Wait till I die to retire to a convent; you will then have the means of paying something for your board."

"Why do you speak of death?" said the housekeeper, wiping away a tear, either real or pretended; "you will live a long time yet, please God! I take such good care of you."

"I know, my good Pepita, all I owe to your care and attention, but should you not add to the obligation by getting me quite a nice little dinner on Christmas day?"

"Provided you don't have many people!"

"I will only have one family—a man, a woman and a child."

"I think an olla podrida* and a roast ravid be enough for that."

*A favorite dish all through Spain. It is a sort of "hotch potch" of beef and fat pork other ingredients. The "olla podrida" is the Spaniards what the "pot-au-feu" is to the French.

"Undoubtedly; but these are people whom I want to treat with all possible respect; so let the roast be a good pair of pheasants, stuffed with truffles; then some nice pastry, and some of those sweet dishes you make in such perfection, Pepita."

"If they are people of distinction," thought the housekeeper, "they will, may be, give me a present, as it is customary to do."

She prepared everything accordingly, with right good will; but great was her disappointment when she discovered in the expected guests poor neighbors of humble condition, whom her master received with the greatest cordiality and affection.

She waited upon them in the worst possible temper, which the host did his best to disguise by doing the honors of his table to the best way he could, causing the best wines of his cellar to be served in abundance. Never had those good people enjoyed so comfortable a meal.

The poor fellow's daughter was the same circumstance on the part of the master, the same objections on the part of the servant to lead her aid in what she called a ridiculous whim. It is easily understood that this good woman exaggerated her trouble and the merit of her interested service; she had continued to persecute her master that her cares were indispensable to him, and sacrilarly abused the authority he had allowed her to exercise. The friends and relatives of the old man had been long since estranged from him by the opposition and disagreeable ways of this woman.

Such is often the fate of selfish persons, who, desirous of avoiding the trouble and expense of marriage, fall, in their old age, under the tyrannical yoke of a servant who is, at least, deficient in education, if not in good principles.

This was not precisely the case with the hero of this legend, who was a widower, and had reason to regret his departed wife, who, by her intelligence and her love for him, had never made his life so wearisome as did he domestic.

But although he usually allowed Pepita to lead him at will, he this time stoutly resisted.

"So you want to entertain beggars again!" said she.

"Come now, Pepita, I have a vow, and I must accomplish it. Let us see, you who have intelligence, have you not some means to finish off the rebuffs the the Holy Family met in Bethlehem, and do you not regret that you were not present to give a little welcome to such holy and venerable guests? Well, you have now an opportunity of doing so, since we did not exist, we can do now, by welcoming in their stead the poor who represent them in our regard."

Notwithstanding her bad temper, Pepita had some sentiments of piety, and this appeal to her heart was not made in vain. So it is that true charity is contagious. Pepita, therefore, welcomed her master's guests this time with more kindness, and ever after treated them appropriately. The Christmas day came round, when piecing any former obstacle in the way of their entertainment, the host and hostess assisted the old men in the distribution of his alms; and, although she never failed to help him a little in getting over his purgatory, she thus went with him to the very gate of Paradise.

Having reached an advanced age, the worthy burgher at last saw his end approaching. Notwithstanding his pure and charitable life, which seemed to promise him a holy and happy death, he judged himself severely by the dawning light of eternity.

His reproached himself for not having been fervent or merciful enough.

At the hour I have poured some illule of it into the lap of the poor, and I have spent many a life again, judging the things of the world too much.

The devil strove to divert this disposition to account by throwing him into despair and inspiring him with terror, which the voice of Pepita, still more than his own conscience, could, it was only that of the devil, that he had been the last helps of religion, that gave him any comfort.

His agony was long and beginning.

All at once door of the room, from which all strangers were extended, opened of itself, and three vague visitors presented themselves at the bedside of the dying man.

They were Jesus and Mary, the hope and salvation of the dying, and Joseph, patron of a good death.

The very sight of them would have heightened with joy the failing eye of the dying man, but how his astonishment have swelled when he heard from their sacred mouths these consoling words:

"Thou hast not often saved us at thy table, that it is only just that we should now be with thee at last to invite them to a seat at ours."

Thus divinely consoled, the old man, full of joy, gave up his soul in the peace and joy of the Lord, and went to take his place at the heavenly table.

The antiquity of this miraculous story is guaranteed by St. Vincent Ferrier. Pope Pius VII. consecrated the touching example by giving to the burgher Valencia, of granting an indulgence of seven years, and as many quarantines, to all persons who shall give three poor persons a meal, in memory of Jesus, Mary and Joseph, provided they have true contrition for their sins. This indulgence becomes plenary, if, on that day, the author of the good work has confessed and received communion, and for the members of the family who contribute, by their presence, to the hospitable act, and the servant who assist in the performance, they each gain a hundred days indulgence. (Pius VII., 1815.)—Catholic Review.

A VERY CONFIDING HUSBAND.—The following domestic drama, the dramatis personæ of which are discovered by impossible initials, is described by the Paris Figaro as a bachelor in a fashionable quarter of Paris decided, at his wife's request, upon taking part for a trip to London, and on the day before the journey obtained 1,000 francs from his cashier for necessary expenses. Next morning, when it was time to start, the lady became alarmed at the fatigue of the expedition, and induced her husband to give it up. The husband willingly consented to restore the notes he had drawn for the journey, but on opening the case in which he had placed them found only 500 and but two 1,000 franc notes instead of five. His wife, one of whom, the cook, had a drunken and needy husband. This unconscious, therefore, rested on her, and he accused her of the theft. After denying herself for a time in vain, she exclaimed that the thief would soon be discovered, and, after placing a crucifix on the table laid her hand upon it and swore that she was not guilty. The husband's servants took the same oath. "Now, madame," said the cook dryly, addressing her mistress, "it is your turn." The lady, surprised at so much insolence, left the room. Her husband, now in a violent passion, was about to call the police to arrest his maid servant when she made her reappearance with the three 1,000 franc notes, which she had found concealed in the drawing-room fire. The master still believed that he was robbed by one of his servants.

Charge It.

A simple little sentence is this, to be sure, and yet it may be considered as one of the most insidious enemies with which people have to deal. It is very pleasant to have all the little commodities offered for sale in the market, and it is sometimes hard to deny one's self of the same when they can be obtained by saying "charge it." But this habit of getting articles, however small the purchase may be, without paying for them, keeps one's funds in a low state most of the time.

"I have no money to-day but should like the articles much," says a young man who happens to go into a store and sees something which strikes his fancy.

"Never mind," said the gentlemanly clerk, "you are good for it."

"Well, I will take it, and you may charge it."

And so it is that little accounts are opened at one place and another, till the young man is surprised at his liabilities, which, though small in detail, are sufficiently large in the aggregate to reduce his cash materially when settling day comes.

In many instances, if the cash were required the purchase would not be made, even had the person the money by him, but to some getting an article on credit does not seem like parting with an equivalent. Still, when pay-day comes, as it always does, this illusion vanishes, and a feeling is experienced of parting with money and receiving nothing in return. If there is an actual necessity of making a purchase, and the means are not at hand, there is a reasonable excuse for obtaining the article on credit; but when the articles can be dispensed with until payment can be made, it is much to the advantage of the purchaser to do so.

"Who must have a nice set of furniture," said a young couple about to be united in marriage, "but we have not the means; however, we will get it, and pay for it by charging."

And so they start in life with a debt hanging over them for which there is no occasion. The habit once formed is difficult to break away from, and whenever anything is desired for, it is purchased without consideration of the circumstances, or even which will render the payment impossible.

When there is a certainty of health, and a supply of labor, there is no reason why a different construction upon the matter. But considering the fluctuating character of business, making it a business, as the chemic may be thrown out of employment at any time, it is ever safety better to be prepared for such emergencies by keeping clear of debt. Sickness may overtake one at any time, and the strength and resources can charge are standing against us, aggravate the disease and renders the misfortune hard to bear.

Taking this view of the matter, is it not better to forego the pleasure of possessing articles when our taste may prompt us to purchase until the means are at hand? It is very easy to say "charge it," but not always easy to pay it.

And this is always the ultimatum. If payment is deferred too long, the very one who politely tells the purchaser that it will make no difference about it, comes in the next day he had no business to buy fine feathers if he had no prospect of paying. And in a measure this is true, by parting with the article comes from a source which is

Is this a Protestant Country?

From the tone of rampant bigotry that is in a particular manner making the rounds of this country at present, it would seem that Catholics are merely permitted to live in the United States. This is claimed to be a Protestant country; and so frequently has this thing been reiterated that many take it, as they take other things, to be a downright fact. To this we answer that Catholics are loyal citizens; and while we would object paying for them, keeps one's funds in a low to interfere with the rights of our fellow-citizens of every other persuasion, we will brook no interference with our own. We are indigenous to this soil, as far as indigenous can be applied to any religious body of the European race, and are citizens under that broad and comprehensive character of American liberty that guarantees to all men equal rights and equal protection. If this be a Protestant country, what is it that gives it this character of being Protestant? Certainly not the right of discovery; for was not Columbus and his voyages, and Spain that backed him, in the enterprise, all Catholics? Not because Protestants have done any more than Catholics for the development of the institutions of the country. Catholics not only fought for liberty in American, but have defended it with their lives and fortunes on every occasion since this article was in type. Messrs. Burns & Oates, entitled "The Sorrel Wars against Church and State." He says of the Revolution: "The manifestation of all interested in the subject." If this be true, as Cardinal M. "is to be relied on there can be no question that the Anglican Freemasonry is the most powerful and deadly hostile to Catholicity of the Free Association prepared us to look upon the idea of one Catholic society was—"a straight out lie" from beginning to end. It can scarcely be credited, there was no "mob," no "shooting off" of the public, no "wounding" of town or Gordermad, no capture and no rescue, but only the blessing of a few people who happened to be standing by, and the arrest of a drunken man who made himself scarce for fear of the sense that the whiskey stole from him.

And all this occurred in the "City of Brotherly Love," reports issued since the unmitigated falsehood. Many rank in one of the suburbs of Philadelphia, notwithstanding which, nearly all the city papers contained the most substantial account of the "three black crows" incident, additionally embellished by the Associated Press reporter for the benefit of the nation at large.

There is no use in trying to stop the mandacture of such falsehoods. The pabulum on which our newspapers feed their readers is sensation, with a bare coloring of truth for flavoring, sensation is favored with vanilla or strawberry. And the reporter is paid in proportion to his "energy," which practically means in proportion to his inventive faculty. In this "way come those extraordinary falsehoods that are received with such avidity by the populace when they fall in with their prejudices; and in this way a premium is set on newspapers lying.—Catholic Advocate.

The Chronicle of this city had a fierce article about this alleged riot. We do not blame our contemporary, for, if the facts were as reported, all it said was correct. We have come to the conclusion that it is folly to expect truth in the newspaper reports, or telegraphic dispatches, of any incident in which Catholicity is concerned directly or indirectly. So we hope our readers will not be deceived by these stories, however positive they may be.

Newspaper Lying.

Accustomed as we are to take the statements of the Associated Press dispatches "with a grain of salt" where Catholics are spoken of, we daily learn that we are not sufficiently on our guard. A striking instance of energy in lying is before us this week in our Philadelphia exchanges. Last week we published a dispatch from the Associated Press, giving minute details of an attack made on the papal zouaves, Gerdeman, after the delivery of one of the daily lectures at Manayank, near Philadelphia. The telegram stated that, after the man had concluded his lecture, he was assaulted by a Catholic mob of a thousand persons; pulled to the ground, and kicked by a large body of police; that the railroad car in which he took refuge was broken into, and that the lecturer was with difficulty rescued from the hands of his assailants.

We said at the time that there was doubtless much exaggeration in the dispatch, but not even the liberal magic lantern allowed to the well-earned reputation for mendacity of Jesus, Mary and Joseph, provided they have true contrition for their sins. This indulgence becomes plenary, if, on that day, the author of the good work has confessed and received communion, and for the members of the family who contribute, by their presence, to the hospitable act, and the servant who assist in the performance, they each gain a hundred days indulgence. (Pius VII., 1815.)—Catholic Review.

The German Pilgrimage.

The German pilgrims excited great attention during their progress through Belgium. At Mons, as at other places where they alighted, large crowds assembled, but no breach of the peace took place. The pilgrims were accompanied by 500 pilgrims from Belgium, and the entire caravan arrived at Lourdes on Friday, the 10th September. The correspondent of the London Daily News gives a good account, which we abridge, of what took place:

"Upon their morning ceremonies and processions the sun shone brightly, but in the afternoon the rain descended in torrents, and continued to do so during the evening, and we rendered impossible the intended candle-light procession along the paths which wind up the mountain side to the rocky pedestal on which the grotto has been fixed, and to which the name of Calvary has been given. At seven o'clock this morning all the German pilgrims assembled in front of the grotto. They brought with them their banner. It is one of great value. £200 was named as its actual cost. It has been designed by the Baroness de Dirr. No larger banner or more beautiful one as yet adorns the Pyrenees. The pilgrims had kept for some time on the pavement, still damp with the recent rains, although the morning sun was shining brightly. Father Semps, Superior of the Lourdes missionaries, advanced them from the grotto rails. He was glad to welcome those who had brought their beautiful offering to the Queen of Peace. He welcomed them as soldiers of the same Lord whom he and his fellow-countrymen served. He trusted they would ever ready to fight for the same holy faith, to fight for the same holy cause, to overcome the foes of it, and their neighbors, peace in their own hearts, and so trusting he would pray to God for his own success in the battle of life. The pilgrims marched in possession, with their banner flying, along the path and railings, to the Basilica. As they went they sang hymns in Latin and German to the Blessed Virgin. High Mass of Requiem was celebrated, and a sermon preached by a Redemptorist Father, and very learned one too, but he desired that his name might not be made known—needlessly, considering the publicity of the matter—for the reason, I fear, I feel he should lead the weight of the sensible hand upon him if his name were mentioned in the preacher in the pulpit. Has it throughout their pilgrimage through France been the case that they have more than once had declared that they have no political objects in view in coming to the shrine of our Lady of Lourdes? Not one is prepared to one of devotion, to give expression in their sermons to political views, and yet the comments itself to them as Catholics."

The preacher took as his text the exclamation of St. Paul, "Woe to me if I preach not the Gospel." Catholicism, he said, was not a religion of sentiment, but of principle. It was not a religion of mere sentiment, but of principle. It was not a religion of mere sentiment, but of principle. It was not a religion of mere

WEEKLY CALENDAR.
FOR THE WEEK ENDING OCTOBER 23, October.
17—Sunday—Twenty-second Sunday after Pentecost. Maternity of B. V. M.
18—Monday—St. Luke, Evangelist.
19—Tuesday—St. Peter of Alcantara, Confessor.
20—Wednesday—St. John Cantius, Confessor.
21—Thursday—St. Hilarion, Abbot. October 21. St. Hilarion, Abbot. St. Ursula and Companions, Virgins and Martyrs.
22—Ferie.
23—Saturday—Office of the Immaculate Conception.

THE MONITOR & GUARDIAN.
THE ONLY
Irish and Catholic Journal in California.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
SATURDAY.....OCTOBER 16, 1875.

SUBSCRIBERS will please specially look at the printed label on the margin or wrapper of the paper: the date thereon shows when the subscription expires.

THE "INDEX EXPURGATORIUS."

The Sacramento Record-Union does nothing by halves. Perhaps it is too dignified; perhaps it is too slothful; we do not know which. At any rate, it is only in the issue of Wednesday last that we find an attempt to reply to our comments upon its absurd articles relating to the Guimard case and the "Index Expurgatorius." Our readers will recollect that while discussing the Canadian Institute quarrel the Record-Union boldly asserted that all an author had to do to get his name on the Vatican Index was to write a book calculated to increase the store of knowledge in any branch of science. We challenged our contemporary to cite an instance of any scientific fact, or any discovery of natural laws, having been rejected by the Catholic Church—and this is the way it does it:

> We stated it by naming the persecution of Copernicus and Galileo as one instance; and we might have added that Harvey's discovery of the circulation of the blood was opposed by the Catholic Church. In addition to these celebrated examples, we may mention Bernard, Bayle, Mariana, Descartes, Locke, Hume, Gibbon, Rousseau, Diderot, Kant, Fichte, Hegel, Schelling, Auguste Comte, Littre, Guizot, Michelet, Quinet, Thiers, Proudhon, Draper, Lyell, Spencer, Tyndall, Huxley, among the notable authors, men in literature and science, whose works have been prohibited in the Index.

The Church never interfered with Copernicus in any way; his famous book was dedicated to and placed under the protection of the Pope, and the author was highly esteemed at Rome. We have no wish to resuscitate the Galileo controversy, which has been settled long ago in favor of the Catholic Church; yet we may as well remark that the astronomer himself in his correspondence with Picchena declared that his teaching of science had not been condemned, and that the crime charged against him was distorting the Holy Scriptures so as to favor his theories. The leading men in Rome, including many of the Orders distrust in this respect were true, it would not make much difference regarding the more correct, for we were speaking of now and hundreds of years ago. Perhaps, however, it would not be out of the way to remind our contemporary that the Protestant University of Tubingen condemned Kepler for teaching the same scientific doctrine, declaring it worthy of damnation as opposed to the words of Holy Scripture.

But, after all, these are only side issues our editorial columns to the progress of the Church, but have contented ourselves with meeting his chief boldness in our news department. One occurrence, however, which has recently come to light, through the Berlin law courts, is so illustrative of the anti-Catholic legislation that we must award it the distinction of special mention. The Bergmeister of Vallendar, a little village not far from Coblentz, is, I am told, a Catholic, but a man quite after the manner's heart and an earnest upholder of the Government. He went to confession to a Capuchin, called Father Gabriel, but was refused absolution in consequence of his maintenance of the infamous May Laws. Instead of amending his ways and becoming a better Catholic, so as to deserve absolution, he the next time he confessed to the priest, he told him that he had resolved to be a Protestant, and then the priest, he told him that he had resolved to be a Protestant, and then the priest, he told him that he had resolved to be a Protestant, and then

IRISH LOCAL NEWS.

From the Dublin Nation of September 25.

The foundation stone of a new Catholic church was laid in Culmullin, Meaths of Meath, on Sunday last.

The Earl of Huntingdon died on Monday, at Shurugore House, Roscrea, the residence of his son, Lord Hastings.

The death is announced of Mr. J. B. Cosner, solicitor, Tralee, eldest son of the late Mr. J. E. Cosner, Sessional Crown Solicitor in Kerry.

Rev. Michael O'Reilly, P. P., Eyeries, has been removed to Valentia, in county Kerry. His brother, Rev. John O'Reilly, of Cloheleyroe, takes charge at Eyeries.

Rev. Robert McWalter, incumbent of Calvary church, Sligo, has disappeared under circumstances leading to grave apprehension as to his safety.

At Newry, a few days since, one Owen Grant, shop broker, was committed for trial for bribing a telegraph clerk to give him information respecting foreign vessels entering the port.

At Belfast two men who gave their names as Bird and Woods, and one of whom stated he was a military officer, have been committed for trial on a charge of stealing £170 from a person in the Ulster Bank.

Last week the Meiria dispensary (Lurgan union) met to elect a dispensary doctor in the room of Dr. Anderson, resigned (salary, £100 per annum). Dr. Thomas H. Browning, of Lurgan, was elected from nine candidates.

At the last monthly meeting of the governors of the Limerick Lunatic Asylum James C. Leonard, Limavady, was declared contractor for the erection of the required new buildings at a cost of £11,675.

On Saturday an inquest was held in Belfast by coroner Hanna on the murder of Margaret Whisely. The evidence showed that the woman left before her death, and lived in malice after death, had been subjected to shocking treatment. The jury returned a verdict of wilful murder against some person unknown.

Mr. Arthur Friel, of Arnahera, near Rosenallis, county Leoaish, was missing on a wedding, and was actually engaged in a dance, when he suddenly fell down dead. The cause of death was apoplexy.

The coroner for Meath opened an inquest last week, at Drogheda, on the body of a Mr. Mack, who had died the previous day, as was alleged, in consequence of the excitement of being called upon to make bail at Navan. The inquest was adjourned at the request of the police and the relatives of the deceased.

The death of Mr. H. R. Borough, J. P., Cappe, by drowning, at Kilrush, is announced. Mr. Borough, a short time before his death, had been subjected to shocking treatment at the hands of a mob, and was not long in the water when he met with an accident near a rock, which frustrated his exertions for saving his life.

A goods' guard named Harrigan got his collar-bone broken by an engine at the Cork terminus of the Great Southern and Western Railway on Sunday night. He was attempting to cross the line between the engine and the tender, when he missed his footing, and the engine passed above him, inflicting the injury mentioned.

The Tipperary Town Commissioners union have elected John William Cooke, Esq., to a large majority over John Trant, Esq., as chairman of the board in succession to Edmund Ryan, Esq. Mr. Moloney has been chosen vice-chairman. The Guardians, by a vast majority, have rejected a proposition to make the union a "conciliatory" union in reference to the National Teachers.

Friday week being the anniversary of the birth of the young lord of the house of Gosford, rejoicings upon an extensive scale took place in the demesne, and in the castle, where a numerous gathering of the inhabitants of the village and many of the tenantry on his lordship's property assembled.

On Thursday week Moyne Cottage and farm, near Enniscorthy, were put up for sale, by Mr James Whitford, auctioneer. The farm contained thirty-two acres, and was held for a term of twenty-one years, at a young Mr. under the Earl of Portsmouth, at a rent of £65 per annum. The whole lot was knocked down to Captain Murphy, for £1,610

It is stated the landowners and agents of the different properties in Queenstown Island have decided not to shoot partridges this season themselves or allow anybody else to do so, owing to the great scarcity of the birds. It is alleged that on the island, which is nearly twenty miles in circumference, there are only a few small coveys of birdsand if these are shot this season the breed is so far as the island is concerned, will be destroyed.

There died on Monday last, at Urra, on the borders of Lough Derg, opposite Dromineer bay, a man named John Egan, who was over 102 years of age. He was in excellent health up to about ten days before his death, possessed of the faculties of hearing and memory. He had been a sold follower of the family of Captain B. W. Holmes, by whom he was well provided for during the last thirty years.

On Thursday evening week a public meeting assembled in the Commercial Rooms, Ross, to devise the best means of erecting a suitable monument to the deeply lamented Canon Keogh. James Gallagher, Esq., J. P., was called to the chair; W. M. Howlett, Esq., was appointed Secretary; a committee was named to receive subscriptions; and a sum of £150 was subscribed on the spot.

Charlemont, according to a correspondent at the Ulster Examiner, promises before long to become one of the waste places in the country. It is stated (says the writer) that nearly the whole of the inhabitants in the principal street have been noticed to leave their tenements at the end of the term, and without cause being assigned, strongly like it to be understood they mention to have small house property within view of the castle.

At a meeting of the Wexford town council last week the tenders for the making of a new road from the cross of Thomas street to the Holy Mills, about the first mile of about 60 feet in breadth, were considered. This work was brought before the meeting by Rev. Canon Rooke, P. P., who waited on to complete the works of the church of the Assumption, together with the Christian Brothers' schools.

On Friday week seventy-five barrels of parraffin oil were brought by rail to Killarney station. They were allowed to remain there until Sunday, and on that morning, about ten o'clock, an alarm was given that one of of the wagons was on fire. A number of persons employed at the Railway Hotel, consisting of guides and boatmen, with the assistance of Mr. Foley, the station master, at once took active steps in detaching a blazing barrel from the others, and had it flung in an isolated part of the line. Here they flung out three of the barrels, leaving about eight others on fire, but in their fall they exploded, and the ground became enveloped in flame. The barrels and the wagons were one mass of flame, and after a while it was decided to close up the wagon, and leave it and its contents to the mercy of the fiery element.

The appointment of Petty Sessions Clerks took place last week in the Courthouse of Colloony for the districts of Colloony and Coolnacy, the salary of the two districts being £70, together with £18 arising out of fees under the "Dog Act." There were six candidates. The chairman announced the unanimous decision the magistrates had come to—"That they had nominated Mr. Robert Noble for the Colloony district and Mr. Matthew Morston for the Coolnacy district."

The Archbishop of Tuam had an exceedingly narrow escape from being killed on September 22. He (to-day) was driving in the outskirts of the town when his carriage horses took fright, smashed the carriage pole, and broke away at a furious pace. Ultimately the coachman succeeded in checking the animals, and his Grace was extricated from his perilous position. It is very gratifying to say that the venerable Archbishop, who was the sole occupant of the vehicle, escaped without the slightest injury.

We are glad, says the Connaught Telegraph, to be in a position to state that a Roman Catholic office has been opened at Mullingar House. The enterprising proprietor, Mr. Michael Daly, some years ago succeeded in getting a postal communication instituted in that rather isolated district, and now a money-order office—a want for a long time felt—has at last been kindly established. The next greatest requisite is a private letter box, which we understand, cautiously, a plan or quay for the landing of goods and the shipment of the produce of the locality.

The coroner's inquest relative to the death of a workman in the employment of the Limerick Commissioners, named Peter Mathews, who was killed by the upsetting of a boat while in connection with the Boyne, resulted in the following verdict: "That the said Peter Mathews died on the 8th of September, 1875, from injuries he accidentally received whilst working on board a punt for the Harbour Commissioners, on the river Boyne that day; and we are of opinion that the punt was overloaded on the occasion and not in proper working order."

As the mail train from Dublin to Killarney was leaving the junction station for Mullingar at nine o'clock P. M. on Saturday night, a man stepped from one of the carriages and fell immediately between the train and the platform. Mr. Barry, the station master, promptly had the platform stopped, and him by the arm, and at considerable risk kept hold of him till by a vigorous jerk he was landed up. The rescued individual whose name is Corcoran, was brought before Dr. Purdy, J. P., on the following morning. The magistrate accepting the prisoner's statement that he was under the influence of drink, and pleased at the result by some of his fellow-passengers, discharged him with a caution.

A young man named Herbert, while bathing last week at Bray Head had a narrow escape from drowning. It appears that while standing upon a rock at full tide, and about to enter the water he was struck with a violent convulsion, and fell into the sea. Fortunately his situation was observed by a young man named Lalor, seeing Herbert in danger, leaped in, but, owing to the heavy swell at the time, was unable to reach him, and the assistance of others himself. Both were carried by the current to the rocks, where Mr. Nellor, proprietor of the baths conveyed to that place, with much courage and danger to himself, launched his boat and succeeded, with very great difficulty, in rescuing both of them, Herbert in a very unconscious state.

A few days since a new altar of the Sacred Heart of Jesus was consecrated in the Dominican church, Tallaght, county Dublin. The altar itself is a gem, and is composed of red and white marble, with a figure of our Lord, in the centre, and many of the most most appeared in uniform, that of the Dundalk Emmet Band being the military uniform adopted by the gallant Emmet himself. Each band of the nine made a circuit of the cemetery, performing the "Dead March in Saul," then formed a solid square around the grave. An oration was delivered by Mr. Reilly, a Dublin gentleman, and the people returned in quiet to their homes. A demonstration of police energy was made in Drogheda by setting two constables on every beat, and gathering in declachments from out stations, but the conduct of the people was such as to give no pretext for any further.

At the Balbriggan petty sessions, before Mr. Fleming, Mr. Hans Wood and Mr. Baker, the Rev. William Tighe was summoned at the instance of Christine Sullivan, a girl 14 years of age, for having assaulted her in the Skerries church for having laughed during divine service. The complainant, Christine Sullivan, deposed—I am the daughter of Mary Anne Sullivan. My mother is a widow. I was attending divine service last Sunday, with my sister, at the Skerries church. There was an old lady using her fan in a funny way, and making a noise with it. My sister said—"You would think she was at a ball, not in a church," and we both smiled. I saw Mr. Tighe looking at me, I put my two hands up to my face. He walked straight down from the reading desk through the whole congregation to where I was seated. He shook me and shook me by the arm, under several times, and spoke violently to me. He said I was a disgrace to the congregation. Mr. Richard Armstrong was called for the defence. Mr. Hans Wood announced the case would be dismissed. Let the magistrates are unanimously of opinion that no assault has been committed. Under those circumstances we have no option but to impose a fine, but as the assault was of a very trivial character we will impose but a nominal fine. At the same time we wish to express our opinion that it would have been much more decorous on the part of the defendant if he were to have awarded. Defendant—There was no churchwarden present. The Bench—We fine you 2s. 6d. and costs.

How German Theologians Spend Sunday Evenings.

As I was waiting for my supper last Sunday evening, a young German theologue stepped up and asked if I didn't want to play a game of billiards with him. I said, "Not to day," and informed him that the Americans generally did not play games on Sundays. He took a few long puffs from his pipe and smiled incredulously, when the landlord, who has a brother in Brooklyn, verified my statement, and remarked, "The Americans close all their stores on Sundays, and don't allow beer to be sold in any of them, they have a track way of getting into their saloons." Of course I couldn't deny that, and yes the fact that such a custom had even be seriously contemplated, is beyond their comprehension.

I was recently invited to a social gathering of the theological students, in a Bavarian university town, where I was to meet with the renowned Professor Christlieb, who has been accustomed since his return from America to give them familiar talks on his visit to our country. I did not get right I went, in company with other young men, and became into a private parlor, ornamented with beer glasses. The students sat smoking and talking in groups, awaiting the arrival of Professor Christlieb. At nine I was invited to the head of the table, and found myself next to the professor's wife. Queen, as the mere fact of her Majesty being present with such reserve in the society, while she would retire to the smaller room, and leave the students to enjoy themselves until the second floor, which the major domo had proposed so unceremonious early in the evening. After much debating, it was finally resolved that a peculiar system of worship and church government was here as then, when I heard the ejaculation of surprise and curious questionings of the students. Christlieb had with him a Congregational Church Manual, and translated the articles of faith, as he had finished a student on my left, looking up from the bottom of his third quart of beer, complained of the incompleteness of the chandelier, whereat Professor Christlieb, who is as much an enemy of tobacco as of strong drink, sent his boy, removed his cigar from his mouth, struck his fist on the table, and exclaimed out, "No. I cannot deny that What more do you want? Here you have the very essence of all the creeds and by resolves that over existed, and in a small compass." Then he translated, "I believe in God," &c., and explained the practical confession which all the people can understand. There is no middle, philosophical discussion on the Trinity, such as we have in our cumbersome creeds." On the whole, he considered the Congregational Church the most simple and practical of all the Protestant churches. At half past 11 the Professor bade us "good night," and we remained a few moments over our beer's mug, then left (German students).—Hunn Correspondence of Washington Chronicle.

A RECURRING BENEFACTOR OF HUMANITY.

An aged abbé who did the State much service in his time has just died at St. Cloé, France, in his eighty-fifth year. Not having dabbled in politics, there was no question of giving him a public funeral and pronouncing orations over his bounty and yet the Abbé Paramelle deserved well of his country, and his name will live long in the hearts of future departments. In 1815 the Abbé was twenty years old, and the curate of the little parish of St. Jean Lespesse. Living in this parish he was much struck by the suffering occasioned to men and beast by want of water, which could only be procured at great cost and by dint of great labor from some distant springs. Here did Cattle taken to drink would rush into the water and be drowned; when a fire broke out there was no way of extinguishing it. And yet plenty of rain fell in the department, though it all disappeared under the smoky soil. Having some notions of geology, the abbé set to work to find out what became of the rain, and how water could be found in those arid plains. He studied the springs of several rivers evidently fed from underground streams, and also the natural irrigation in well-watered departments. After roaming about for a couple of years, and after nine years of study, the abbé considered himself in a position to put his theories in practice, and having expounded his principles the general council of the Lot voted him 500 francs to make experiments. He immediately pointed out five spots where wells should be sunk, and water was found in each case, "the spring of Roquemadour furnishing water enough for the whole department." Further sums of money were granted, and up to 1833 the abbé only failed to strike water five times out of fifty-three. It would be tedious to relate all the wells opened up by a man who was at times regarded by the peasants as a sorcerer, and who was known as the "water-finding" abbé. Suffice it to say that in 1845 the abbé must have succeeded 333 times out of 366; and when in 1854, owing to age and infirmity, he was forced to give up a labor of love, for which he had visited the Church no fewer than thirty-seven departments were demanding his services. The last years of his life were spent in writing his experience, and he has left behind him a work entitled "The Art of Discovering Springs."

An American Lady Standing on Her Rights.

The butterfly gossip of the hour relates to a certain Mrs. Hicks, an American lady of rare and wonderful beauty, of immense wealth (ce qui ne gate rien) and of great influence in the best American society. The lady, after spending a gay season at Nice, where her magnificent eyes and splendid toilet, her sumptuous equipage and high-stepping horses, had become one of the principal objects of interest to the whole congregation. Mr. Richard Armstrong was called for the defence. Mr. Hans Wood announced the case would be dismissed. Let the magistrates are unanimously of opinion that no assault has been committed. Under those circumstances we have no option but to impose a fine, but as the assault was of a very trivial character we will impose but a nominal fine. At the same time we wish to express our opinion that it would have been much more decorous on the part of the defendant if he were to have awarded. Defendant—There was no churchwarden present. The Bench—We fine you 2s. 6d. and costs.

How German Theologians Spend Sunday Evenings.

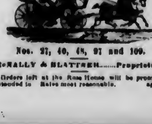
As I was waiting for my supper last Sunday evening, a young German theologue stepped up and asked if I didn't want to play a game of billiards with him. I said, "Not to day," and informed him that the Americans generally did not play games on Sundays. He took a few long puffs from his pipe and smiled incredulously, when the landlord, who has a brother in Brooklyn, verified my statement, and remarked, "The Americans close all their stores on Sundays, and don't allow beer to be sold in any of them, they have a track way of getting into their saloons." Of course I couldn't deny that, and yes the fact that such a custom had even be seriously contemplated, is beyond their comprehension.

I was recently invited to a social gathering of the theological students, in a Bavarian university town, where I was to meet with the renowned Professor Christlieb, who has been accustomed since his return from America to give them familiar talks on his visit to our country. I did not get right I went, in company with other young men, and became into a private parlor, ornamented with beer glasses. The students sat smoking and talking in groups, awaiting the arrival of Professor Christlieb. At nine I was invited to the head of the table, and found myself next to the professor's wife. Queen, as the mere fact of her Majesty being present with such reserve in the society, while she would retire to the smaller room, and leave the students to enjoy themselves until the second floor, which the major domo had proposed so unceremonious early in the evening. After much debating, it was finally resolved that a peculiar system of worship and church government was here as then, when I heard the ejaculation of surprise and curious questionings of the students. Christlieb had with him a Congregational Church Manual, and translated the articles of faith, as he had finished a student on my left, looking up from the bottom of his third quart of beer, complained of the incompleteness of the chandelier, whereat Professor Christlieb, who is as much an enemy of tobacco as of strong drink, sent his boy, removed his cigar from his mouth, struck his fist on the table, and exclaimed out, "No. I cannot deny that What more do you want? Here you have the very essence of all the creeds and by resolves that over existed, and in a small compass." Then he translated, "I believe in God," &c., and explained the practical confession which all the people can understand. There is no middle, philosophical discussion on the Trinity, such as we have in our cumbersome creeds." On the whole, he considered the Congregational Church the most simple and practical of all the Protestant churches. At half past 11 the Professor bade us "good night," and we remained a few moments over our beer's mug, then left (German students).—Hunn Correspondence of Washington Chronicle.

EDUCATIONAL.

SAINT MARY'S COLLEGE
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
Conducted by the Christian Brothers
Offers every facility for acquiring a thorough Education, whether Classical, Scientific or Commercial.
Those who complete the Classical Course receive the Degree of A. B.; the Scientific, B. S.; the Commercial, Master of Accounts.
The Commercial course has been established for the convenience of those who wish to acquire a good practical education in as short a time as possible.
While proper care is bestowed on every branch taught, Penmanship, Book-keeping and Arithmetic receive special attention. The daily exercises of the students in Grammar, Composition and Rhetoric are publicly discussed and corrected in the class-room.
TERMS PER SCHOLASTIC YEAR.
(Payable half-yearly in advance).
Board, Tuition and Washing $250 00
Entrance Fee 10 00
Physician's Fee and Medicines 10 00
Vacation at College 40 00
Vacation elsewhere 60 00
Modern languages, Music and drawing form extra charges.
Studies will be resumed on the 5th of August, 1875. BR. P. RIORDAN, President.

ST. VINCENT'S SCHOOL.
THIS INSTITUTION IS SITUATED IN SANTA Barbara, a short distance from the sea, in the most healthy part of the valley of the Sta. Ynez. The grounds are extensive, and the building is large and well ventilated.
The system of instruction embraces the usual branches of a thorough English education. Latin is also taught.
TERMS
(Invariably half-yearly in advance):
Board, tuition, bed, bedding, washing, etc., per session $100
Piano, and use of instrument, per month 2 00
Tuition on piano, per month 2 00
Tuition on guitar, per month 2 00
No extra charge for Tapestry, Embroidery, Fancy Needle-work, Drawing in Crayons, or the Spanish language.
TERMS FOR DAY SCHOLARS.
Primary, per month ..... $ 2 00
Elementary and Scholastic, per month 3 00
Full course 4 00
Music, per month 3 00
No extra charge for Tapestry, Embroidery, Fancy and Ornamental Needle-work, nor for the Spanish language.
N. B.—The above rates are invariably adhered to.
For prospectuses and further particulars apply to SISTER SUPERIOR.
SISTER MAYENNIA CREMAZIE, Superioress.
6021

ST. VINCENT'S COLLEGE
LOS ANGELES, CAL.
DEGREES CONFERRED
Rev. JAMES McGILL, C. M., President.
RUSS HOUSE COACHES.


Nos. 21, 40, 45, 91 and 109.
McNALLY & SLATTERY.—Proprietors.
Orders left at the Russ House will be promptly attended to. Rates most reasonable. 6p6

EDUCATIONAL.

SAINT IGNATIUS COLLEGE,
SAN FRANCISCO.
Conducted by the Fathers of the Society of Jesus.
THE Literary Institution was incorporated, according to the laws of the State, on the 30th of April, 1855, and empowered to confer academical degrees with "such literary honors as are usual for any University in the United States."
The design of the Institution is to give a thorough Classical, Mathematical and Philosophical education. But, besides the classical, there is, also, a Commercial.
The College re-opened for day-scholars only.
TERMS PER MONTH
(Payable in advance):
Tuition, in Preparatory Department $1 00
" in Commercial Department 1 50
" in Higher Department 2 00
EXTRA CHARGES
For the use of Instruments in Natural Philosophy and Chemicals, first year, per month $1 00
For the use of Instruments, etc., second year, per month 1 00
For each Academical Degree 5 00

CONVENT OF OUR LADY OF THE SACRED HEART,
OAKLAND ..... CALIFORNIA.
Conducted by the Sisters of the Holy Names of Jesus and Mary.
THIS INSTITUTION IS PLEASANTLY SITUated on the Peninsula between San Leandro and San Antonio, commanding an extensive view of the Bay of San Francisco. The Institution is supplied with all the modern improvements—its spacious buildings are heated throughout by steam, and lighted with gas. The course of study embraces the various branches of a solid, useful and ornamental education.
TERMS (payable half yearly in advance):
Board and Tuition, per session $150 00
Washing 15 00
Use of bedding, without sheets (if supplied by the Institution) 15 00
Drawing, Vocal Music, Drawing and Painting form extra charges.
For terms of particulars apply to MOTHER SUPERIORESS.

NOTRE DAME ACADEMY,
SAN FRANCISCO.
THIS ACADEMY, WHICH IS CONDUCTED by the Sisters of Notre Dame, is situated at Dolores street, opposite the Mission Church.
The Institute has been fitted up with large, healthy and comfortable buildings in every way, the class-rooms of which are well ventilated. The pleasant and extensive grounds afford the young ladies attending the Academy the advantage of a play ground almost unequalled for beautiful exercise during the recreation hours.
TERMS:
Boarding and Tuition, per quarter ..... $ 60 00
Board, Tuition and Washing, per quarter 80 00
Music, with use of Instrument 12 50
Drawing 5 00
Drawing and Painting 10 00
Vocation (pupils in the Academy) 40 00
DAY PUPILS.
Tuition per Session (in advance):
Second Class—Rhetoric, first and second years $5 00
Third and Fourth Grammar Classes 4 00
First and Second Grammar Classes 3 00
Primary Classes 2 00
No extra charge for French, Plain and ornamental Needle-work.
For further particulars apply to the Superioress.

SANTA CLARA COLLEGE,
SANTA CLARA ..... CALIFORNIA
Under the management of the Society of Jesus.
THE SANTA CLARA COLLEGE WAS FOUNDED in the year 1851, by the Most Rev. JOSEPH SADOC ALEMANY, D. D., Archbishop of San Francisco, and was incorporated by the Legislature of California in the year 1855, with the usual powers of Literary Institutions.
The College is conducted by a community of members of the Society of Jesus, who devote their whole time to the work of education, and who are assisted by a competent number of lay professors.
The course of studies embraces the Classical, Scientific and Commercial branches.
The discipline is mild and parental, and the moral training will be carefully attended to.
The Academic Year, which is divided into two sessions of five months each, commences on the first Monday in August, and ends on the last Wednesday in June.
TERMS:
(Payable semi-monthly in advance):
Matriculation Fee, to be paid but once ..... $ 10 00
Board and Tuition, per month 40 00
Bedding of Linen, School Books, Stationery, Physician's Fees, Washing, Doctress' Fees, Use of Library, Bathing, Fuel, per month 10 00
Musical Instruments, Drawing and Painting, each, per month 2 50
For Clothing, Books, Pocket-money, and other personal expenses, which will be furnished, if required, for the sake of uniformity, and charged to parents, the Institute will receive the necessary attention.
Payments will be required at the beginning of each month, and no deduction will be made for absence, except in cases of protracted illness.
Parents and guardians are requested to visit the College as frequently as they may desire.
For further particulars, apply to
REV. JOSEPH BOTTERO, S. J., President.

ST. JOSEPH'S COLLEGE,
Rohnerville, Humboldt County, Cal.
Conducted by the Priests of the Congregation of the Most Precious Blood.
TERMS PER SCHOLASTIC YEAR:
(Payable half yearly in advance)
Board, Tuition and Washing $300 00
Use of Bed and Bedding 10 00
Vacation at College 60 00
DAY PUPILS.
Senior class $40 00
Junior class 30 00
Vocal and instrumental music, drawing and modern languages, will form extra charges. The two sessions of the scholastic year commence respectively on the 1st Monday in August and 1st Monday in January.
For further information address
REV. JOSEPH PRANDI, C. P. P. S.
N. B.—On account of unavoidable delay the session of this year will not begin before the 1st Monday in Nov.

CONVENT OF THE IMMACULATE HEART OF MARY
SAN JOSE
EDUCATION OF YOUNG LADIES
HILROY, SANTA CLARA CO.,
Conducted by the Sisters of the Most Holy and Immaculate Heart of Mary.
TERMS FOR BOARDERS
Board, tuition, washing and mending per session $200
Piano, use of instrument and lessons 20
Tuition on piano, per month 2
Tuition on guitar, per month 2
No extra charge for Tapestry, Embroidery, Fancy Needle-work, Drawing in Crayons, or the Spanish language.
TERMS FOR DAY SCHOLARS.
Primary, per month ..... $ 2 00
Elementary and Scholastic, per month 3 00
Full course 4 00
Music, per month 3 00
No extra charge for Tapestry, Embroidery, Fancy and Ornamental Needle-work, nor for the Spanish language.
N. B.—The above rates are invariably adhered to.
For prospectuses and further particulars apply to SISTER SUPERIOR.

SANTA CLARA ADVERTISEMENTS

CAMERON HOUSE,
SANTA CLARA, CAL.
MARTIN CORCORAN ..... PROPRIETOR
MR. PROPRIETOR having purchased the above named Hotel property in the city of Santa Clara, has refitted and refurnished the same throughout, and is now prepared to accommodate the public with the best accommodations to be had in the Santa Clara Valley. The Hotel is in the immediate vicinity of the Railroad Depot, and is most delightfully situated for those seeking health or pleasure.
The Table will be supplied with the best the market affords, and the Bar with the choicest brands of Liquors and Cigars.
Charges moderate. Omnibus to and from the Hotel free of charge.
MARTIN CORCORAN, Proprietor.

D. BERGIN,
SANTA CLARA ..... CALIFORNIA
Has the largest assortment of
Dry Goods, Clothing, Boots and Shoes
To be found South of San Francisco, which he will sell at less than San Francisco prices. 6016

SAN JOSE ADVERTISEMENTS.

SAN JOSE MARBLE WORKS.
E. POWER,
Sculptor,
SAN JOSE.
STATUARY,
TOMBS,
HEAD-STONES,
MANTEL PIECES,
FOUNTAINS,
And every description of
MARBLE WORK.
DESIGNING, MODELING, &c.
And every style Wood and Stone Carving. Monumental and Cemetery work a specialty. 6p

Lost in a Cornfield.

The Joliet (Ill.) Sun of a recent date tells the following story. The name of the individual whose share of ownership is so graphically described is suggestive, and indicates that the writer and hero of the story are quite intimately related:

We have received a report this morning from one of the townships in the eastern part of the county, adjoin ng the State of Indiana, and among other items of interest is the following, which illustrates in a striking manner not only the unequaled fertility of the soil of Illinois, but particularly the extreme growth which crops of all kinds have attained this season: A Frenchman by the name of Centell A. Goodlie, living in the French settlement, having occasion on Saturday last to visit his brother-in-law, living some five miles distant on the prairie, left home about five o'clock in the afternoon, and to save a considerable distance attempted to shorten his walk by taking a cut-off through the intervening cornfields. To those unaccustomed to seeing large cornfields it may be well to say here that in that section of the country they frequently plant the only crop raised over the whole extent of the country for miles and miles, and the country being comparatively level, the view is not broken by fences, or anything to break the dividing line. To the eye it is a sea of waving corn, and I learned that they had considered that honor would allow them to sit down at table while their comrades were fighting.

This time they were industrious, and they could only be prevailed upon to take any of them on their return to the field of battle a little refreshment in the shape of wine. "They started at once. It was a long time, however, probably they had not eaten since the night before, and they could not be induced to assault such soldiers as these, says the Atlantic Monthly, seems to be astonished at Napoleon's feats.

Pretty Tough Plug.

One day last month, when trade was dull, a Vicksburg grocery clerk displayed a piece of coon leather from a shoemaker, pulled it back and laid it aside for future use. A few days an old chap from back in the country came in and inquired for a plug of chewing tobacco. The person of sole leather was tied up, paid for, and the purchaser started for points. At the end of the day he returned, and with a clasp knife and deliberation, and, walking into the store, asked for a plug of tobacco.

"Mistake that tarbacker I got here the other day?" inquired the clerk.

"Yes."

"Well, was that a new brand?"

"No—same old brand."

"Regular plug tarbacker, was it?"

"Yes."

"Well, then, he me; he's right here in my jaws," sadly replied the man. "I knowed I was buying a purty tough plug, but I never thought on bein' plug. I never seen a plug of tarbacker yet that I couldn't bear to pizen at one chaw, and I've chawed a considerable and bit and pulled and twisted, like a dog at a root, but I've kept right along and pulling for six days, and that are am now, and I'm the first one you sold her to me?"

"Seems to be pretty tough," remarked the clerk, as he smelled of the counterfeit.

"Tough? Why, I'm afraid I'll get lockjaw," exclaimed the old man. "I see one out in the country where they've got bones and dead gravel"—Vicksburg Herald.

Our Tongue.

Mr. Washington Moon has written a new work on bad English. Some of the errors he points out as glaring are decidedly amusing. For example:

A furrier lamenting, in an advertisement, the tricks played on the public by unprincipled rivals, says that they "fraturely" imitate his trade-mark.

Their task being accomplished, genteel D'Arcany, thoughtful of others in the midst of his sufferings, desired his aid-de-camps unanimously refused to accept the £16 offered to them—and it was not without a long contest, having persuaded them that the General would be pained and wounded by their refusal, having called them my comrades and friends, and shaken their hands, that I managed to overcome their resistance, and they took it, leaving me with the feeling that it was condescension on their part."

The aid-de-camp, by the General's desire, ordered them dinner, for which they expressed their thanks: "A few minutes afterwards, I saw them altogether in conversation in the court. I went down to know what they were talking of, and I learned that they had considered that honor would allow them to sit down at table while their comrades were fighting."

This time they were industrious, and they could only be prevailed upon to take any of them on their return to the field of battle a little refreshment in the shape of wine. "They started at once. It was a long time, however, probably they had not eaten since the night before, and they could not be induced to assault such soldiers as these, says the Atlantic Monthly, seems to be astonished at Napoleon's feats.

Pretty Tough Plug.

One day last month, when trade was dull, a Vicksburg grocery clerk displayed a piece of coon leather from a shoemaker, pulled it back and laid it aside for future use. A few days an old chap from back in the country came in and inquired for a plug of chewing tobacco. The person of sole leather was tied up, paid for, and the purchaser started for points. At the end of the day he returned, and with a clasp knife and deliberation, and, walking into the store, asked for a plug of tobacco.

"Mistake that tarbacker I got here the other day?" inquired the clerk.

"Yes."

"Well, was that a new brand?"

"No—same old brand."

"Regular plug tarbacker, was it?"

"Yes."

"Well, then, he me; he's right here in my jaws," sadly replied the man. "I knowed I was buying a purty tough plug, but I never thought on bein' plug. I never seen a plug of tarbacker yet that I couldn't bear to pizen at one chaw, and I've chawed a considerable and bit and pulled and twisted, like a dog at a root, but I've kept right along and pulling for six days, and that are am now, and I'm the first one you sold her to me?"

"Seems to be pretty tough," remarked the clerk, as he smelled of the counterfeit.

"Tough? Why, I'm afraid I'll get lockjaw," exclaimed the old man. "I see one out in the country where they've got bones and dead gravel"—Vicksburg Herald.

The Turkish Soldier.

Van Wiskeele, the military correspondent of the London Gazette, contributes his paper some interesting particulars of the Turkish army. He says: "These disciplined and armed, ill-looking, undersized, but wiry Turkish foot soldiers possess many qualities which, with good leadership, would make them equal to the soldiers in the world. In the first place, their daily wants are supplied with the utmost facility, and their powers of endurance are immense. A cup of black tea, a small hard biscuit of maize, and a few olives, constitute the regular daily sustenance, and if they get a piece of hard-boiled mutton once or twice in addition, they look upon it as a luxury. Their dress and equipments are also simplicity. If shoes are scarce, a company marches barefoot; and if there are no cloaks in store, the men remain in their shirts, even in snow and ice, the last war in the East I saw Turkish troops which had not received any pay for six months, who were clad in rags, and among whom a pair of sound boots was a thing unknown—more than a rarity, though time evidently was not much considered, these men managed to keep their arms in excellent order. Another of the characteristics of the Turkish soldier is his extraordinary sobriety, in 1840, and frequently since, I have had opportunities of observing that these qualities will be developed in the strongest degree in the case of Bosnia and the Herzegovina. They are important elements in the formation of good Turkish soldiers, and, in fact, in almost indistinct proportion to the amount of intoxicating liquor consumed, and the sensual excitement of nervous excitement. This is the reason why so many of other European armies are unfit for hard marches. In this Crimean war the infantry were for the most part old fine musketeers, but also deeply sunk in sensuality, almost seemed impossible to deal with them; and yet their shot was either the Englishor the French.

Of the Grand Army Under Napoleon.

Colonel French troops of Napoleon's in the London Athenæum in a review of recollections of Colonel de Ségur, were inspired by a feeling of sympathy of the most obliviousness. Some of this is recorded by Colonel Ségur. His General had been mortally wounded at the passage of the Pave. The Grenadiers of the 62d Regiment to carry the General to the rear when their regiment was going into action: "We had three long leagues to go at mid-day in great heat. The Grenadiers relieved one another, by turns, marching quietly, with the greatest carefulness when carrying their load, making no complaints of the weight or the heat of the sun, or of the dust that blinded them. They performed their duty coscientiously; but from their silence and the dejection of their looks, it was easy to see that they regretted the danger from which they were removed."

Their task being accomplished, genteel D'Arcany, thoughtful of others in the midst of his sufferings, desired his aid-de-camps unanimously refused to accept the £16 offered to them—and it was not without a long contest, having persuaded them that the General would be pained and wounded by their refusal, having called them my comrades and friends, and shaken their hands, that I managed to overcome their resistance, and they took it, leaving me with the feeling that it was condescension on their part."

The aid-de-camp, by the General's desire, ordered them dinner, for which they expressed their thanks: "A few minutes afterwards, I saw them altogether in conversation in the court. I went down to know what they were talking of, and I learned that they had considered that honor would allow them to sit down at table while their comrades were fighting."

This time they were industrious, and they could only be prevailed upon to take any of them on their return to the field of battle a little refreshment in the shape of wine. "They started at once. It was a long time, however, probably they had not eaten since the night before, and they could not be induced to assault such soldiers as these, says the Atlantic Monthly, seems to be astonished at Napoleon's feats.

Pretty Tough Plug.

One day last month, when trade was dull, a Vicksburg grocery clerk displayed a piece of coon leather from a shoemaker, pulled it back and laid it aside for future use. A few days an old chap from back in the country came in and inquired for a plug of chewing tobacco. The person of sole leather was tied up, paid for, and the purchaser started for points. At the end of the day he returned, and with a clasp knife and deliberation, and, walking into the store, asked for a plug of tobacco.

"Mistake that tarbacker I got here the other day?" inquired the clerk.

"Yes."

"Well, was that a new brand?"

"No—same old brand."

"Regular plug tarbacker, was it?"

"Yes."

"Well, then, he me; he's right here in my jaws," sadly replied the man. "I knowed I was buying a purty tough plug, but I never thought on bein' plug. I never seen a plug of tarbacker yet that I couldn't bear to pizen at one chaw, and I've chawed a considerable and bit and pulled and twisted, like a dog at a root, but I've kept right along and pulling for six days, and that are am now, and I'm the first one you sold her to me?"

"Seems to be pretty tough," remarked the clerk, as he smelled of the counterfeit.

"Tough? Why, I'm afraid I'll get lockjaw," exclaimed the old man. "I see one out in the country where they've got bones and dead gravel"—Vicksburg Herald.

BANKING HOUSES.

HIBERNIA SAVINGS
AND
LOAN SOCIETY
Office—Northeast corner of Montgomery and Market streets.
OFFICERS:
President ..... M. D. SWEENY.
Vice-President ..... C. D. O'SULLIVAN
TRUSTEES.
M. D. SWEENY, M. J. O'CONNOR,
C. D. O'SULLIVAN, P. McGARR,
JOHN SULLIVAN, GUSTAVE TOUCHARD,
R. J. TOBIN, JOS. A. DONAHOE,
PETER DONAHUE.
Treasurer ..... EDWARD MARTIN
Attorney ..... RICHARD TOBIN
Remittances from the country may be sent through Wells, Fargo & Co.'s Express office, or any reliable banking house; but the Society will not be responsible for their safe delivery. The signature of the depositor should accompany the first deposit. A proper pass book will be delivered to the agent by whom the deposit is made.
Deposits received from $1 to upwards.
Office Hours—From 9 A. M. to 3 P. M.
JOS. A. DONAHOE, Secretary.
San Francisco. RUDOLPH KALT
New York.

DONOHOE, KELLY & Co
SAN FRANCISCO.
EUGENE KELLY & Co.
NEW YORK
BANKERS.
EXCHANGE ON
NEW YORK, LONDON, AND
BANK OF IRELAND ..... DUBLIN
Payable at all the Branches,
AND IN EVERY COUNTY TOWN IN IRELAND.

BANK OF BRITISH COLUMBIA,
INCORPORATED BY ROYAL CHARTER.
£

Written for THE MONITOR.

THE GOLDEN PAST.

Though all brilliant glints the Present,
Yet is pales before the Past,
Which with dream-like perfume vanished,
Par 'tis beautiful in last.'
As the day-god clad in splendor
Is darkened by sombre night,
So the golden days—life's springtime—
On Time's pinions winged their flight.

Graven deep on memory's tablet
Are the days that come no more;
Though the Present reigns our monarch,
To "the long ago" we soar.
Touch, with heart ever bounding onward,
Soon the future glowing bright;
Ages smile on the loved departed,
Ink dimed, wreathed in light.

In the morning of our lifetime,
Fraught with simple children joy,
Bent be in perky's soft sunlight,
Giving pleasure no alloy,
Passed we to life's remote summer,
All unconscious of the cary,
Of the sighs, the tears, the anguish,
Which the future doth prepare.

Once again return, oh! childhood—
Sprites of Time, your cares forsake;
Let my lifestream flow back gently,
Where no storms the ripples break,
Come once more, ye peaceful moments,
When with st marked an illness passed,
And united did Time's strong fetters—
Loose the captives he holds fast.

Let me view the scenes departed,
While my heart craves to behold—
Live again in life's bright morning,
Drink in happiness untold;
Call the sleeping from their couches
In the quiet ne silent—rest,
Who, the beds too early blighted,
Doomed were ne'er to unfold.

Call those dear ones, too, though distant,
Wake on mem'ry's chord a thrill;
Though the ocean lies between us,
To my heart they're cherished still.
Bring me back those who in childhood
In my longing did ever join;
But whose brows are cold, dark, furrowed,
And their souls grown cold in love,

Two unite the time-wrought curtain
Let me view the past again,
Let us stray the path mem'ry's manses,
Linger 'neath our childhood's skies,
Bid the Present, unwelcoming,
Retire with scepter sore and cold—
Wither grow the gay between us
And the halcyon days of old.
BAY VIEW, October 9, 1875. LUIS

CATHOLIC INTELLIGENCE.

—The annual convention of the Catholic Total Abstinence Union of America was held in Cincinnati, Ohio, on 6th October.

—Mgr. Augustin Marie Martin, first Bishop of Neobhichoze, La., died at his residence in that city on Saturday, October 2. Bishop Martin was a native of France.

—His Eminence Cardinal McCloskey has been appointed by the Pope a member of the Congregations of the Index, Sacred Rites and Bishops and Regulars.

—Died in St. Josephs Convent, Perry county, Ohio, Father T. R. Fallon, a professed member of the Order of St. Dominic, in the 80th year of his age, and in the sixtieth of his religious profession.

—We are glad to learn that Miss Maria," whose poetical contributions to THE MONITOR, the Ave Maria, and other Catholic papers, have been much admired, is about publishing her poems and publishing them in book form.

—Right Rev. Bishop Rosecrans, in an address to the St. Aloysius' Society of Portsmouth, Ohio, said: "It is not your Catholicity which shuts you out from honor in this country. Honesty is a fatal bar to political preferment. But your Catholicity, manfully avowed, and steadfastly adhered to, will give you respect from the American people in spite of prejudice and calumny."

—Monday, September 20, being the anniversary of the entry of the Italian troops into Rome, the Pope gave an audience to several persons of distinction, representatives of different Catholic societies, officers of the former Papal army, and several merchants, among whom was Colonel McCleary, a boy. No speeches were made, but his Holiness briefly addressed his visitors, blessing them for their fidelity to the cause of the Church.

—The correspondent of the London Daily Telegraph at Rome alleges that Cardinal Borromeo, in his capacity of Archbishop of the Vatican Basilica, recently forbidding the Pope to consent to the transport of St. Peter's (in which the Ecumenical Council was held, and which has remained closed since because of the labors of the Council having been ended) being granted as his Holiness replied that by the help of God the Chamber should be again open for the Basilica next year, in order that the Council may complete its work.

—The solemn and impressive ceremony of the profession of five nuns took place on the 10th ult., in the beautiful chapel of the Convent of Notre Dame. The young ladies professed were—Sister Mary Cecilia (Miss Broderick), daughter of W. P. Broderick, Esq., Alleghany; Sister Mary Baptist (Miss O'Brien, Rathmore); Sister Mary Rose (Miss Smith, Athlone); Sister Mary Lelia (Miss Naughton, Kerry); Sister Mary Augusta (Miss Moynihan, Rathmore). In the absence of the Bishop (at the Synod of Maynooth, Very Rev. Doane Mawe, Tuloe, officiated.

Depth of the Great Lakes.

There is a mystery about the American lakes. Lake Erie is only sixty or seventy feet deep; but Lake Ontario, which is 500 feet deep, is 250 feet below the tide level of the ocean, or as low as the lowest parts of the Gulf of St. Lawrence; and the bottom of Lakes Huron, Michigan and Superior, although the surface is much higher, are all from four vast depths as low as the bottom of Ontario. Now, as the Detroit river, after allowing all the probable portion carried off by evaporation, does not appear to carry more than an equal quantity of water which the three upper lakes receive, it has been conjectured that a subterranean river may run from Lake Superior, by the Lake of Nipis, to Lake Ontario. The conjecture is not improbable, and seems to be the only one that the herring and salmon are caught in all the lakes communicating with the St. Lawrence though the Niagara Falls of Niagara must have always existed, it would puzzle the naturalist to say how these fish got into the upper lakes without some subterranean river; besides, any perfect examinations of the river would furnish a no improbable solution of the mysterious flux and reflux of the lakes.

The country round about Fairview and Nord, Butte county, is infested with coyotes. Nearly every night they commit havoc among the sheep of the vicinity, and no serious loss becomes the intrusion that shepherds are compelled to either house or corral their flocks every night.

Work in Irish Factories.

A Royal Commission, consisting of Sir James Ferguson, the O'Conor Don and Lord Frederick Farendish, opened a session at the Shelbourne Hotel, Dublin, September 20, and proceeded to inquire into the operation of the Factories and Workshops Acts in Ireland. Some of the evidence is full of interest. Mr. Elliott, the manager of the poplin factory belonging to Messrs. Fry, said that the poplin made in Dublin is not exported, and he was sure that the manufacture is not at all extensive, only about one hundred women and girls being employed in it out of the city.

Mr. Lindsay, who is a partner in the great firm of Pim & Co., recommended the closing of every shop at eight o'clock in the evening, but said it would be injurious to women employed in small shops either to make closing at the hour of eight compulsory, or to say, in effect, that women could not continue to work as long as the shops stay open. The result of one course or the other would be the substitution of men.

Mr. Hunter, a Chief Inspector under the Board of Education, supported the plan of losing one set of mill-working pupils go to school on three days of the week, and the others on the alternate days, instead of sending them all to school for a part of every day, as at present done. According to Mr. Hunter, the number of children whose names are on the roils of the Irish National Schools is from six to seven hundred thousand, while the average number in daily attendance is only about half as much. The Chief Inspector made one curious observation. Whilst in the rural districts, generally, there is a great desire to learn, in Trim, in the county Meath, the desire is very low, as to Drogheda, Tuam and Antrim it is very great, and especially in Tipperary. Two pipe manufacturers of Dublin gave evidence in favor of altering the hours of work—now six till six—to eight till eight, the reason assigned being that in winter the men do not come to work till eight o'clock or later. This statement was contradicted by two workmen of the trade.

The Limerick Inspector of Factories said that the manufacture of lace is now almost extinct in Limerick, and also that in millinery and dressmaking shops there is a constant tendency to exceed the legal limits of hours for working.

The Lord Mayor's tailoring business and the sweating system of clothier-making formed the subject of by far the most startling piece of evidence supplied to the Commission. The witness was Mr. Michael McMahon, the Secretary of the Tailors' Association. He appeared to give evidence against the sweating system, which he described as "giving out clothing materials from cheap shops to persons not possessing any tailors themselves, who again get severally employed others to do the work, thus securing a portion of the original profit of the draper." The witness declares that clothes ordered in respectable drapery establishments were frequently made up by people who were living in a revolting state of filth or suffering from contagious and terrible disease. He witnessed one case in which a woman was up working at tailoring while suffering with small-pox with the pustules visible on their arms," and another, in which "the work of three employers was being done in one room with the wife of the lowest lying in a sort of closet off the room, a bed state of the worst type of small-pox, called the black-pox." Some time ago, the witness said, he spoke to the Lord Mayor about getting clothing out sweating work in the prisons, but the witness said, he spoke to the women had got small-pox. The Commissioners asked if he went to the Lord Mayor, and he swears the Lord Mayor told him that he would assist the foreman to the prison in any way he could for his interference.

AN EVENTFUL LIFE.—Among the persons who partaked during the recent Texas gale was an old soldier named Patrick Lanigan, whose career is given by the Galveston News: "He worked on fortifications at Sebastopol, at Gibraltar and at Mars, in 1845. He served in the Mexican war as an American soldier, was wounded at Mier, and was one of those who drew a white ball five times in succession, thus getting off with his life. He was a very high Mason, was born in Ireland, a stay cutter by trade, and had been in Galveston about seven months. He trunk, which is lost, contained some valuables, and some curious relics of his past career. He was over 70 years old."

"For the Blood is the Life."

See Deuteronomy, xii. 23. The blood being the source from which the system is built up, from which we derive our vital as well as physical capabilities, how important that it should be kept pure! If it contain vile, festering poisons, all organic functions become enfeebled. Setting upon impure, not organs, as the lungs, liver and kidneys, the effect is most disastrous. Hence it behooves all to keep their blood in a perfectly healthy condition, and more especially them this apply at this particular season of the year than at any other. No matter what the exciting cause may be, the real cause of a large proportion of all diseases is bad blood. Dr. Pierce does not wish to place his invaluable Discovery in the category of "blood purifiers," "blood renovators," or anything of the kind, but recommends it on the contrary, there are hundreds of instances that he is knowledges it will not cure; but what he does claim is this, that there is but one form of "blood" disease that it will not cure, and that disease is cancer. He does not recommend his Discovery for "all diseases to which flesh is heir to the most searching blood cleanser yet discovered, and that it will purify the blood and system of other blood poisons, be they animal, vegetable or mineral, in their origin, no one will dispute who is posted by him in curing such diseases as Tumors, Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Pimples and Eruptions; also all Glandular Swellings, Scrofula and Scrofulous and Ulcerated Sores of the Neck, Legs, or other parts, all Syphilitic complaints of the Bones, as White swellings, Fever Sores, Hip-joint and Spinal Diseases—all of which are the result of bad blood.

CONSUMPTION—HIP-JOINT DISEASE CURED.

W. HOOVER STATION, IOWA.

DR. PIERCE, Buffalo, N. Y.: Dear Sir—My wife first became lame nine years ago. Swellings would appear and discharge on her limbs, and the lame leg would slowly become reduced, and her whole system rotten by the disease. In 1873 a traveling book agent by the name of Hoge, came to our house and left a book on Dr. Pierce's Medical Discovery, for us to read. We had all by this time become disheartened, and had given up all hope of her ever getting well. We had tried all the doctors in the country, and had spent all we had, and were in debt. We had no faith in patent medicines, but as a last resort, we concluded to send for a bottle of the "Discovery." Before it was all gone there was a great change for the better. She continued to use it, and in all took seven bottles, and a bottle of Pellets, and was entirely cured. She has since given birth to a child, and is now the healthiest woman in the county. Her limb is entirely well, and has been for over two years. Her case was a bad one, and we have no hesitation in recommending Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery to all who are afflicted with any of the above diseases. Yours truly,

W. HOOVER.

Golden Medical Discovery is sold by all druggists.

The Great Anti-Periodic.

The certainty and promptness with which Hostetter's Stomach Bitters conquer the most obstinate cases of malarial disease, and the complete protection which they afford the system against the miasmatic poison which impregnates the air of low lying, marshy localities, stamp them as the great remedy for chills and fever, and all other forms of disease that have their origin in a regular visitation of the malarious type. Invalids who are about to make their annual change of residence from the interior cities to the sea coast, or to the malarious districts of the West, and in all localities in the Eastern and Middle States where fevers prevail, this fine vegetable preparation should be the only tree specific for the disease, and his most reliable preventative. They are also a most effectual remedy for dyspepsia, and for constipation, neuralgia, rheumatism, gout, periodical headache, palpitation, nervousness, biliousness, and kidney complaints. Sold by druggists and dealers generally everywhere.

Wholesale Market Report.

MORTON OFFICE, SAN FRANCISCO, }
TUESDAY, October 14, 1875. }

FLOUR—We quote: California roller process brands at $6 @ $6 50; and superfine at $4@$5 25.

WHEAT—We quote shipping at $1 @ 1 80@, and milling at $1 70@$1 80. The Liverpool market has fluctuated during the week in consequence of large arrivals and varying reports, though the present quotations nearly agree with those of a week ago.

BARLEY—We quote: Feed, nominally at $1 10@ 1 20; and for good brewing at $1 40@ 1 50; and for choice $1 70@ 1 75. Chevalier and Coast barley are quotable at $1 45@1 60, and Oregon at $1 40@1 50.

OATS—We quote at $1 40@1 50 per ctl.

CORN—Sales of yellow at $1 35@1 50 per ctl.

CORN MEAL—We quote at $2 50@2 75 per ctl.

RYE—We quote at $1 40@1 50 per ctl.

BRAN—We quote bran from wheat as follows—Fine and Red, $1 @$1 10; small White, $1; Fine, $1; Coarse, $1 @$1 10; Middlings, $1 @$1 10.

POTATOES—Sweets, $1 @ 1 25; Burbanks, $1 @ 1 25; Early Rose, $1 @ 1 25.

ONIONS—We quote at $1@$1 25 per ctl.

BEANS—Quotable at $3 @ 3 50 per ctl.

DRIED PEAS—We quote at $2 @ 2 50 per ctl.

BUCKWHEAT MEAL—Quotable at $3 @ 3 50.

RYE—Quotable at $1 @$1 12½ @ 1 25.

BARLEY—Quotable at $1 @$1 12½ @ 1 25.

BRAN—We quote Coast, $1; Bay, $1; Middlings, $1 @ 1 25.

HAY—We quote California dry at 15 @ 18½; and Oregon at $17 @ 19.

BARLEY—Quotable at $17 @ 18.

STRAW—We quote at $10@$11 per bale.

HIDES—We quote: Dry, $@$; Salted, $@$; Kips, $@$; Calf, $@$; Deer, $@$; Goat, $@$.

WOOL—We quote: Fall Clip, Foothill, 15@18; Valley, 18@20; Mountain, 20@22; Humboldt, 22@24; Nevada, 18@20; Eastern Oregon, 18@20; Northern, 18@20; Middle County, 18@20; Southern, 15@18; Lambs, 18@20.

HONEY—We quote: Extracted, 7@8; Comb, 10@12½.

BEESWAX—We quote at 25@27½.

DAIRY PRODUCE—We quote: Butter—California fresh rolls, good to choice, 40@45; pickled rolls, 35@37½; firkin, 32½@35.

Cheese—California, 15@16; Eastern, 16@17½.

Eggs—Quotable at 30@32½ per dozen.

FRESH MEATS.

Beef—For first quality, 7@8c; other grades, 5@6c.

Veal—At 6@7c.

Mutton—At 6@7c.

Lamb—At 6@7c.

Pork—Dressed, grain-fed, at 6@6½c; corn fed, grain-fed, 5@5½c.

CURED MEATS.

Hams—California, 12½@13½; Eastern, 15@17c.

Bacon—California, 12½@13c; Eastern, 10@11c.

Dried Beef—Quotable at 11½@12½c.

Lard—Quotable at 11½@12½c, and tierces, 10@11c per lb in can.

POULTRY AND GAME.

Fowls—Dressed, at 15 @ 16@ 20; Grahams, 25 @ 30; Roosters, 20@ 25 each.

Turkeys—Dressed, 25@ 30 per lb.

Ducks—Dressed, 25@ 30 per pair.

Geese—Dressed, 25@ 30 per pair.

Pigeons—Quotable at 25@ 30 per dozen.

Hares—At 20@ 25 each.

Rabbits—At 20@ 25 each.

Quail—At 15@ 17½ per dozen.

Wild Ducks—At 20@ 25 per dozen for small and 12 @ 50 for large.

The Grand Art PHOTOGRAPH GALLERY,
Corner Third and Jessie Streets.
F. J. SULLIVAN.....PROPRIETOR.

MISCELLANEOUS.

CALISTOGA
REAL ESTATE COMPANY,

CALISTOGA, WITH A POPULATION OF about 500 persons, is a village watering-place at the head of the Valley of the Moon, in California. It is four hours' travel north of San Francisco by steamer and rail. Its shipping point is Vallejo, on the Bay of San Francisco, forty miles distant by rail. It is at the head of the most charming valley in the State.

THE BEAUTIES OF NAPA.

In entering the thirty-seven miles of fertile dale the eye never wearies. If one ascends the sides of the lofty mountains that bound the valley on either side, whether looking up the valley or down, and from whatever point of view, the scene is one of ravishing beauty.

Mounting the summit of St. Helena, which bounds over all, far to the east, the snowy Sierras bound the view; and to the west spreads the Pacific Ocean, with its winged ships and its blue horizon. To the north are the vast forests of Mendocino, its stately trees inured to adversity, and Clear Lake, in its pride of expanse, dimpled to a smile.

THE WARM SPRINGS.

From the beauties of Calistoga we turn to its other attractions. The entire corners from seven of fertile land. In Warm Springs we crowded with invalids who flock to its healing waters, and who return cured of their rheumatism, their dyspepsia, their torpid livers and their tender kidneys. The medicinal elements of the hot springs are principally iron, soda, and sulphur. In this climate the season of watering places is prolonged.

THE SURROUNDINGS.

By consulting a map it will be apparent that Calistoga is destined to become a commercial town of importance. It is the centre of a system of macadamized highways leading to many of the richest cultivated valleys of California.

INDUSTRIAL ENTERPRISES.

A new industry is now being introduced at the head of the valley of Napa, which will give easy employment to a large force of laborers. Experiments in wine growing have been made for many years, and with the most satisfactory results. Calistoga is selected as the site of a large factory for making and canning fruits and vegetables, that now go to waste for want of transportation to market. In no part of California can these healthful elements of nourishment be cultivated more cheaply or more abundantly. Considering the depth of its rich soil, the unfailing supply of water, and the wonderful fertile growth in this country, one acre may be counted equal to three acres in the Eastern States. A railroad connecting Calistoga with the Atlantic States, if it is not already in process of construction, will be among the early, fairly, if not assured by favorable ranges fall of the year.

GOLD, SILVER AND QUICKSILVER.

Calistoga is the center, also, of a great mineralized belt of gold, silver and quicksilver. Already these mines are producing mercury, and the product is increasing yearly. A number of valuable mines are now being profitably developed in the region between Calistoga and St. Helena, on the line of the Great Mayacmas Road, and near Silver Mill, on the Clear Lake road. All these mines are from one to fifteen miles beyond Calistoga, to which points their product of ores has now to be hauled by teams. The question of economic ocean to well-defined veins, and the question of cheap transportation to the railroad, are the two matters that will give to Calistoga the control of the trade of the West, and in all localities in the East are and Middle States where malarial diseases prevail. Here are a receptacle as the only tree specific for the disease, and his most reliable preventative. They are also a most effectual remedy for dyspepsia, and for constipation, neuralgia, rheumatism, gout, periodical headache, palpitation, nervousness, biliousness, and kidney complaints. Sold by druggists and dealers generally everywhere.

CALISTOGA REAL ESTATE CO.

The splendid property above described, cultivable and mineral lands, water rights, town lots, factory sites, hotel property and farm tracts, has been placed in the hands of trustees, and will be offered for sale in the public market.

The Capital Stock of the Company is

$1,000,000 DOLLARS,

Divided into 20,000 Shares of $50 Each.

The sale of a certain number of shares has been authorized by the Board, at the rate of Twenty-Five Dollars per Share.

By an arrangement between the former owners and the present Company, no portion of this land or its products will be sold at less than ten acres at one time, except the smallest degree divested from the one and one-half acre lots.

Those who purchase shares which have heretofore been offered at our people, this plan gives homes and investments to all, and the benefits attributed to the increase and growth are already assured, and where the property is divided into small parcels added values to all its property. It is a division of the original purchase that is now offered to the public.

TRUSTEES:

E. W. BURR, President; Savings and Loan Society; C. BARNEDY, Esq., Bank of Napa; J. B. FAIRFIELD, President of Napa Valley Railroad; DAVID FAIRCHILD, President of Capital Savings Bank, Sacramento; J. F. JACKSON, San Francisco.

For full particulars apply to

WILLIAM H. MARTIN,
General Agent,
320 California street, San Francisco.

m2 3m

HAVE OPENED THEIR NEW

CENTRAL DRY GOODS HOUSE,

704 and 706 MARKET STREET,

OPPOSITE THIRD, AND

7 AND 9 GEARY STREET,

With a new and well-selected Stock of Foreign and Domestic

DRY GOODS,
FANCY GOODS,
SILKS,
SHAWLS,
FURNISHING GOODS,
RIBBONS,
GLOVES, ETC.

All our Goods having been purchased since the decline in the price of Goods, enables us to sell at LOWER PRICES than any other House.

WYNNE, LOWTH & CO.
Central Dry Goods House.

Languages and Sciences.

AN OLD PROFESSOR OF ANCIENT AND modern Languages in the city, teaches Greek, Latin, and five modern languages, viz: French, German, Spanish, Italian and English. This are the literary, scientific and commercial languages. Also, Mathematics, the translation of most of the languages of Europe and of Asia, Phonography, Book-keeping, Penmanship, and the most important series using languages above named. He is a brother of the higher branches of Natural Science, as Physics, Metaphysics, Rhetoric, Philology and the higher Mathematics, also, practical applications of the latter, as Surveying, Navigation and Astronomy. He is also a teacher of Vocal and Piano Music, and gives private lessons in these branches. Private families are respectfully invited to see Professor of Ancient and Modern Languages" on the Monthly Library Building, Room No. 1 from 9 a. m. to 4 P. M.

Read This! Read This!!

THE GRANGER WAT

HAS JUST BEEN PATENTED B

I. W. TUCKER & C

JEWELERS,

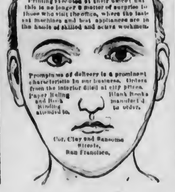
161 Kearny Street, San Francis

IT is the best Watch ever made in the United States. Price, in Silver Cases, 4 oz., $40; 5 oz., $45; 6 oz., $50; 8 oz., $60. Will be sent to any part of the United States, C. O. D. Cases, from $100 to $200, depending upon the weight of case. We keep on hand a large assortment of

Gold Chains, Jewelry, Diamonds and Silverware

Repair Watches and Jewelry. Send us your orders.

Astonishment!
Has settled upon the countenances of all who have witnessed the Electric Belt of Dr. Dyer. Call and see it. Don't forget the number, this is no longer a matter of surprise to those who call therefor, when they have seen its merits and their appearance are in the hands of skilled and scarce workmen.



Prompt use of delivery is a prominent feature in our business. Call and see them from the interior filled at city prices. Black Beads a specialty. Black Beads a specialty. Black Beads a specialty between them. All seemed to recognize a leader in a tall man of slendar build, whose countenance was shielded from observation by a hideously grotesque black mask, that was properly part of a masquerade suit. At precisely 1:30 A. M. the low command, "Fall in!" was given by the man, and a score from the same parentage was accepted by all present as the order to march. In file of four men each, the gloomy cavalcade wended their way through the bystreets of the town until they came to the Jail. Rifles and revolvers were plentifully distributed among the gathering, and it was with the butt of his revolver that the leader hammered for admittance at the Sheriff's door. It was not heeded by those within until it had been thrice repeated. A window in the second story of the house was then opened and the Sheriff's head emerged into view. He demanded what was wanted, and was told to open the door. He refused, and in an instant it was broken open. The crowd swarmed through every apartment in the Sheriff's dwelling. He was seized and compelled to deliver the keys of the jail. They asked him in which cell the robber was confined, and he directed them to the third cell on the left hand side of the corridor running through the jail.

Like wild beasts the crowd swarmed about the jail door, and seemed impatient at the single delay incurred in opening it, that withheld their prey from them.

The occupant of the fatal cell seemed just awakening from a deep sleep as the leaders of the mob seized him, and he did not utter a word. He seemed unable to stand, a fact that the vigilante attributed to fear, and expressed their contempt for it by sneers and cheers, language, and curses which the heads of half a dozen stalwart men, the half unconscious victim was hurried to the door. He was carried about half a mile beyond the city limits, and then the party halted in a clump of forest. Torches were made of the branches of small trees, and by their light the preparations for the execution were quickly advanced. A rope, with a noose ready prepared at one end of it, was produced, and the would-be gallows' limb's neck.

All this time he had said nothing, and appeared to know nothing of what was going on around him. The pressure of the rope, however, as the noose tightened about his neck, brought him to his senses, and he begged piteously for mercy.

His pleadings were derided, and he was told to turn his attention to his spiritual welfare during the minutes that one would be his last on earth. He did not heed the advice, and while in the midst of a frenzied appeal for mercy the tightening of the noose, as the rope was drawn over the branches of a tree, choked his voice forever. It was a death by strangulation, and after remaining for fifteen minutes on the ground the crowd dispersed, leaving the body suspended in the air, the loose end of the rope having been fastened to a tree some distance from that upon which the decree of Judge Lynch had been executed.

On the following day the body was cut down by the Sheriff, and buried in a rude box hour near the scene of the execution. The Sheriff said the man had told him that his name was Richard Darby, and had confessed to a career of crime in various sections of the State, extending over a period of ten years. With this meagre information public curiosity was forced to remain satisfied. In a few days the Sheriff had a new associate to make public; Burt Silwood, a horse thief, who had been in the jail for some time awaiting trial on that charge, and supposed to have escaped, and if such was the case he must have made a very sore race.

Months and years succeeded the events narrated. Sheriff Gallagher had died, and the memory of the lynching affair that had occurred during his term of office had become a thing forgotten, when attention was called to it by the publication in a county paper of a startling story, which had been slipped from a paper, published at La Grange, Missouri. The publication appeared in 1866, and was to the effect that a horse thief who had been shot near that town, confessed before he died, to a career of crimes almost unparalleled. The most startling feature of James Gallagher the man was the horse thief's name, deeply concerned the people of Lawrenceburg. While the hand of death was weighing heavy upon him, and he knew what a step time he had to live, he refused to pray, trying in vain to quiet his fear of hell-fire by relieving his mind of a dreadful secret that overburdened it. He was the brother of Harriet Gallagher of Dearborn county, Indiana. It was he who committed the burglary and murder at the Miller house-stead in 1863, and his brother, to shield him from the lynchers, had concealed him for two weeks following the crime. The man whom the vigilante had hanged was Burt Silwood, to whom the Sheriff had supplied drugged liquor, and then conducted to the cell that the murderer was known as his own property. The intelligence created the greatest excitement in Southern Indiana, but as Silwood had no friends or relatives left to avenge his death, the murderers were left for punishment to the pricking of their own consciences.—Irish Democrat.

A "SWAMP MONSTER."

A "swamp monster" has been causing a painful sensation in North Carolina. The monster, who haunts the neighborhood of Kit's Swamp, is described as being in appearance quite similar to that of the woodcarve, though from the knee downwards he feet and limbs are in shape and form eremely human. In height it measures about five feet, while its volume round the chest "would eclipse the Cardiff giant."

For several weeks past it has been preying upon poultry, garden vegetables and green corn to an alarming extent. The other day a colored man named Ann Grandy was at work in a field, when his little child of five years old was playing in a corn crib with a neighbor's child. Suddenly he heard the children screaming, the dogs barking and the hogs squealing for assistance. Rushing to the edge of the swamp whence the noise proceeded, Ann found himself face to face with the "swamp monster." The intelligent but excessive fear with a child in such paw was making towards the woods. On meeting Ann it paused for a moment, and appeared to hesitate as to the course it would take. Ann, with all the strength of his resolute nature, immediately knocked it down head over heels by a well directed blow on the forehead. The children fell to the ground happily unhurt, and the monster, regaining its feet, took to its heels, and with "lightning rapidity" plunged into the recesses of a neighboring wood. Its contents has, it is stated, aroused much indignation among the members of Kit's Swamp.

An elderly gentleman, returning home from church, began to extol the merits of the sermon to his son. Said he: "Jack, I have heard one of the most delightful sermons ever delivered before a Christian society. It carried me to the gates of heaven." "Why didn't you dodge in?" replied Jack; "I will never have another such chance."

The Part of the Clergy in Politics.

Men who would lead you astray, our dearly beloved brethren, tell you repeatedly that the clergy have nothing to do with answer in politics; that no religious principles should be observed in the discussion of public affairs; and that the clergy have no duties to perform but those of the Church and sacristy; and that the people should in politics practice moral independence. Monstrous errors, our dearly beloved brethren, and woe to the country in which they take root. In excluding the clergy, the Church is excluded; and in putting aside the Church, we deprive ourselves of all the Church contains, both salutary and unchangeable—God, morality, justice, truth; and when we have laid violent hands upon these, we can then only count upon force.

Every man who has his salvation at heart should govern his actions according to divine law, of which religion is the expression and guardian. Who cannot understand that justice and rectitude would reign in conquest if governments and people had always before their eyes that divine law which is equity itself, and the formidable judgment which they will have to undergo one day before Him from whose hands no one can possibly escape! The present constitutions of the people are, therefore, they who wish to banish religion from politics; for under the pretext of freeing the people from what they call the tyranny, the undue influence of the priest, they are consequently at the same time for the people bereft of chains, and soon which will be more difficult to throw off; they place might above right, and take from the civil power the only moral check which can prevent it from degenerating into despotism and tyranny!

They wish to shut the priest up in the sacristy! Why? Is it because some of their studies he has acquired certain salutary knowledge of the rights and duties of each of the faithful confided to his care? Is it because he sacrifices his reputation, his tranquility, even his life for the salvation of his fellow-creatures? Is he not a citizen with as much title as others? And why? The first adventurer may arise and speak and set; sometimes there is an influx of strangers into a parish or a county, who some there to forward their own political opinions; the priest alone can neither speak nor write; any one who comes into a parish may be permitted to promulgate all sorts of principles, and the priest, who is in the midst of his children, will have no right to speak, no right to protest against the scandal which are submitted to them.

They who to day cry out that the priest has nothing whatever to do in politics, not long since found and knew their salutary influence; they who now deny the competency of the clergy in these questions formerly praised the security of these principles which give to man the weight of Christian morality. Whence this change if not from the conscientiousness of having opposed to them that influence which they no longer merited. Without doubt, our dearly beloved brethren, the exercise of all the rights of citizenship is a grave matter; it ought to give to its ministers the insurrection which we may deem necessary, and to reprimand those who may go astray; and the Bishops of this Province have not failed to do their duty on this point.

Up to the present we have considered the question in its relation to the way of duty (moyen de salut) of society. Are there questions in which the Bishop and the priest may, and sometimes should, interfere in the affairs of religion? We answer without hesitation, Yes; and even more than that, when the attention we call to it by the publication in a county paper of a startling story, which had been slipped from a paper, published at La Grange, Missouri. The publication appeared in 1866, and was to the effect that a horse thief who had been shot near that town, confessed before he died, to a career of crimes almost unparalleled. The most startling feature of James Gallagher the man was the horse thief's name, deeply concerned the people of Lawrenceburg. While the hand of death was weighing heavy upon him, and he knew what a step time he had to live, he refused to pray, trying in vain to quiet his fear of hell-fire by relieving his mind of a dreadful secret that overburdened it. He was the brother of Harriet Gallagher of Dearborn county, Indiana. It was he who committed the burglary and murder at the Miller house-stead in 1863, and his brother, to shield him from the lynchers, had concealed him for two weeks following the crime. The man whom the vigilante had hanged was Burt Silwood, to whom the Sheriff had supplied drugged liquor, and then conducted to the cell that the murderer was known as his own property. The intelligence created the greatest excitement in Southern Indiana, but as Silwood had no friends or relatives left to avenge his death, the murderers were left for punishment to the pricking of their own consciences.—Irish Democrat.

A "SWAMP MONSTER."

A "swamp monster" has been causing a painful sensation in North Carolina. The monster, who haunts the neighborhood of Kit's Swamp, is described as being in appearance quite similar to that of the woodcarve, though from the knee downwards the feet and limbs are in shape and form eremely human. In height it measures about five feet, while its volume round the chest "would eclipse the Cardiff giant."

For several weeks past it has been preying upon poultry, garden vegetables and green corn to an alarming extent. The other day a colored man named Ann Grandy was at work in a field, when his little child of five years old was playing in a corn crib with a neighbor's child. Suddenly he heard the children screaming, the dogs barking and the hogs squealing for assistance. Rushing to the edge of the swamp whence the noise proceeded, Ann found himself face to face with the "swamp monster." The intelligent but excessive fear with a child in such paw was making towards the woods. On meeting Ann it paused for a moment, and appeared to hesitate as to the course it would take. Ann, with all the strength of his resolute nature, immediately knocked it down head over heels by a well directed blow on the forehead. The children fell to the ground happily unhurt, and the monster, regaining its feet, took to its heels, and with "lightning rapidity" plunged into the recesses of a neighboring wood. Its contents has, it is stated, aroused much indignation among the members of Kit's Swamp.

An elderly gentleman, returning home from church, began to extol the merits of the sermon to his son. Said he: "Jack, I have heard one of the most delightful sermons ever delivered before a Christian society. It carried me to the gates of heaven." "Why didn't you dodge in?" replied Jack; "I will never have another such chance."

Mondays and Fridays.

Monday and Friday are unlucky days. Such is the belief of many persons, and they would would not begin a journey or undertake any important business on either of those days. Why Monday and Friday should be considered unlucky days is a question that has puzzled many people. Some say that Monday is unlucky because it is the day on which Eve persuaded Adam to eat the forbidden fruit, and Friday because it is the day on which Eve herself ate of the fruit. Others say that Monday is unlucky because it is the day on which Cain killed Abel, and Friday because it is the day on which Christ was crucified. Others say that Monday is unlucky because it is the day on which Pharaoh's army was drowned in the Red Sea, and Friday because it is the day on which the Israelites left Egypt. Others say that Monday is unlucky because it is the day on which Noah entered the ark, and Friday because it is the day on which the flood began. Others say that Monday is unlucky because it is the day on which Moses struck the rock in the wilderness, and Friday because it is the day on which Moses died. Others say that Monday is unlucky because it is the day on which Jacob's ladder was seen in a vision, and Friday because it is the day on which Jacob died. Others say that Monday is unlucky because it is the day on which Joseph was sold into slavery, and Friday because it is the day on which Joseph died. Others say that Monday is unlucky because it is the day on which Jonah was cast into the sea, and Friday because it is the day on which Jonah was cast upon the land. Others say that Monday is unlucky because it is the day on which Daniel was cast into the lion's den, and Friday because it is the day on which Daniel was taken out. Others say that Monday is unlucky because it is the day on which Elijah was taken up to heaven, and Friday because it is the day on which Elijah returned. Others say that Monday is unlucky because it is the day on which Elisha died, and Friday because it is the day on which Elisha was buried

WEEKLY CALENDAR.

FOR THE WEEK ENDING NOVEMBER 13. November
14—Twenty-sixth Sunday after Pentecost. Patronage of the B. V. M.
15—Monday—St. Gertrude, Virgin.
16—Tuesday—St. Edmund, Bishop.
17—Wednesday—St. Gregory Thaumaturgus, Bishop and Confessor.
18—Thursday—Dedication of Basilica of St. Peter and Paul.
19—Friday—St. Elizabeth of Hungary, Widow. St. Pontius, Pope and Martyr.
20—Saturday—St. John of Vitalis, Confessor.

THE MONITOR & GUARDIAN:
THE ONLY
Irish and Catholic Journal in California.
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
SATURDAY.....NOVEMBER 13, 1875.

SUBSCRIBERS will please specially look at theprinted label on the margin or wrapper of the paper! the date thereon shows when the subscription expires.

GRANT'S PLATFORM.

CHICAGO, NOVEMBER 8.—A Washington special says:—It is quite certain that three hundred have been largely drawn upon by the President in the appointments of the new Cabinet officers, and among the names on the list are those of Conkling, Morton, Logan, Ingersoll and Chandler. Senator J. Morton, who has been in this city for the last week or two, corresponded in a large degree for the President's assuming a position upon the school question by the coming message. He has been persuading the President that he must assume the position of the champion of Religious and Business in Germany, and come out against the growing demands of Catholicism. He thinks these points—the anti-Catholic, the accuracy of the views of the Republican party, and the unfriendliness of the Democratic party to the President, hope to create a sense of popularity that will cause the people to forget the many sins of the Administration which have been charged up against him during the years of his reign. Should this speak the platform Grant chooses, he is certainly the strongest man to be, early.

The above telegram corroborates very forcibly what we have been saying in THE MONITOR for weeks. General GRANT will be a candidate for reëlection. If the Republicans nominate him, he will be satisfied with that; if they do not, he will make up a strong party of his own. But we think they will nominate him, and probably without much discussion, because he is so tenderly by the strongest man belonging to their party. They have no available candidate whose chances of success are any way nearly as good as his. So the Cæsarism and the third term, upon which the New York Herald used to be so eloquent, are more substantial apparitions than we were led to imagine. GRANT has his platform up already, and multitudes are gazing at it in astonishment. Whether this astonishment will be changed into indignation depends a great deal upon their good sense. For, such is what a compliment General GRANT pays to the intelligence and patriotism of the people of the United States! All the real living questions of the day to a serious degree, and he brings forward false and fictitious issues in order to delude them.

The taxation of the country; State and Federal, is simply enormous, and out of all proportion to the requirements of our legislature expenses, and he is silent about that. We have a navy which is practically useless, and is incapable of coping with

The column which declared itself on the celebration of O'Connell's centennial to believe the Home Rule party a d the Ultramontanes of Ireland, has been practically ignored, and has at length recognized it as the insurance, by the Protestant Lord Mayor of Dublin, of a programme for a new party, which has no separality to be in Ireland much what the Republican party is under Grant—a party of corruption. The Irish Republican party, which is based on the idea of spiritual and temporal independence of Ireland from England, and the establishment of a Protestant Republic, has not yet declared itself, but it is evident that it will be a party of corruption and treachery to the Irish people, and of freedom from all ecclesiastical influence. The Lord Mayor will, regardless of the wishes of the Archbishop, not address the meeting, declaring that the Irish Catholics will repudiate the proposition of the Lord Mayor of Irish, being determined to make their fight side by side with their Protestant fellow-countrymen. As the author of the new party is "a self Patriotic" man, of course, the "property of the part of the Irish Catholics" is to be ignored, and the Irish Catholic party smashed. It will look on waiting, if not cause up in its place any compromising negotiation, for the moment the power of the Archbishop is gone for the political field, all hope or expectation of political autonomy or unity of action must be abandoned, and the old bitter feud between North and South will very promptly re-assert itself with more than its former bitterness.

The foregoing article is from the Sacramento Weekly Union of Wednesday last. It shows how very mistaken may be made by one who writes from location when information is not sought even when it is desirous of telling the truth. If our contemporary paid enough attention to Irish affairs to warrant it in writing about them, it would now know that the danger it predicts in the Home Rule party is altogether an imaginary one. The Lord Mayor of Dublin may think himself a very good Catholic, but those well acquainted with him rank him among those whom a celebrated Jesuit declared to be the greatest assholes of the Church—i. e., pious fools. The honest man is weak minded and vain-glorious to a degree that makes him the laughing stock of his fellow-citizens of Dublin. No one who knows him would attach the slightest importance to anything he says or does. He may perform the functions of his office well enough—they require no very great strain upon the intellect—but when he undertakes to perform the office of guide, philosopher and friend to the Irish people he attempts what he is unequal to, and simply makes a fool of himself. Neither the bishops nor priests of Ireland are accountable for his vagaries, and will one morning find he has given him the slightest encouragement in his anti-Protestant crusade. He forwarded the circular proposing the establishment of his "Faith and Fatherland" association to the whole Irish hierarchy, and, much it is the enagrin, no doubt, did not receive even the compliment of an answer from a single member. At the recent Home Rule meetings the most prominent speakers were clergymen, and one and all denounced the Lord Mayor and his intending to restore the honesty and morality which once were the pride of this Republic. Its cause have a very poor idea of the intelligence of his country men if he thinks he can make them condone extravagance, corruption and dishonesty by raising the Orange battle cry of "Down with the Pope!"

AN INFLATION PAPER.

The Irish World—is an out and out "inflation" paper. It always raves a craze of some sort, but this is the most mischievous it has taken up for some time. All the arguments in vogue with the rag money organs are paraded in its columns, and though they may pass in the East, they sound very ridiculous here. We want the republic to be honest and to pay, or be ready to pay, a dollar where it promises a dollar. We believe in the money that comes from the Mint, not in that which comes from a printing machine and is counted by the ream. We are certain that the commercial stability of California, and the readiness with which it recovers from disasters which would prostrate the East for six months, are owing to the fact that we have always adhered to specie payment, and never have accepted greenbacks as a medium of exchange. When they come here we get rid of them and send for specie. Next just as quickly as possible. The Irish World has only one argument peculiar to itself, and that is one unworthy to be laid before intelligent people and altogether unworthy of it. In the speech of that England is pleased at the recent victories of the "third money" party, and, of course, the inference is that therefore they must have an injurious effect upon the country. Bosh and humbug like this can only be swallowed by the most hopelessly stupid among the ignorant and the illiterate. It is precisely teaching like this that makes our countrymen look ridiculous in the eyes of educated Americans, and gives rise to the idea that they are so gullible as to be at the mercy of every rogue and charlatan who knows how to play upon their sympathies. It is vicious and immoral to try to persuade the honest artizans and work ingmen of the East that the "money" in which their labor is transformed into manufacture by the bushel, in order to cover up his own delinquency and conceal his own dishonesties, is honorable to the country or serviceable to them. We can hardly believe that the Irish World is sincere in its advocacy of the "rag money," and we fear it has been bought up by some of the wealthy Wall street operators to whom a resort to sound specie payment would be financial death. There is no country in the world whose credit ought to be better, or whose trade ought to be sounder, than these United States of America; but unfortunately the thievery and the rapacity of the radicals have prevented them from sustaining their reputation abroad, and brought them into disaster. Let the Irish World keep to its

—although it is terribly, but humiliating, it is to be wise harmless. If it disgusts intelligent people, it does not exactly hurt anybody. But let that arrant humbug once get matters requiring more education, more thought and more intellect for their understanding. Its mouthing "patriotism" may be endurable, but its support of a dishonest currency is mischievous.

THE LOSS OF THE "PACIFIC."

Our readers will find elsewhere in our news columns a full and detailed account of the terrible disaster which befell the steamer Pacific off Cape Flattery, near the Columbia. Bold and haunting like this can only be swallowed by the most hopelessly stupid among the ignorant and the illiterate. It is precisely teaching like this that makes our countrymen look ridiculous in the eyes of educated Americans, and gives rise to the idea that they are so gullible as to be at the mercy of every rogue and charlatan who knows how to play upon their sympathies. It is vicious and immoral to try to persuade the honest artizans and work ingmen of the East that the "money" in which their labor is transformed into manufacture by the bushel, in order to cover up his own delinquency and conceal his own dishonesties, is honorable to the country or serviceable to them. We can hardly believe that the Irish World is sincere in its advocacy of the "rag money," and we fear it has been bought up by some of the wealthy Wall street operators to whom a resort to sound specie payment would be financial death. There is no country in the world whose credit ought to be better, or whose trade ought to be sounder, than these United States of America; but unfortunately the thievery and the rapacity of the radicals have prevented them from sustaining their reputation abroad, and brought them into disaster. Let the Irish World keep to its humbug, although it is terribly, but humiliating, it is to be wise harmless. If it disgusts intelligent people, it does not exactly hurt anybody. But let that arrant humbug once get matters requiring more education, more thought and more intellect for their understanding. Its mouthing "patriotism" may be endurable, but its support of a dishonest currency is mischievous.

The column which declared itself on the celebration of O'Connell's centennial to believe the Home Rule party a d the Ultramontanes of Ireland, has been practically ignored, and has at length recognized it as the insurance, by the Protestant Lord Mayor of Dublin, of a programme for a new party, which has no separality to be in Ireland much what the Republican party is under Grant—a party of corruption. The Irish Republican party, which is based on the idea of spiritual and temporal independence of Ireland from England, and the establishment of a Protestant Republic, has not yet declared itself, but it is evident that it will be a party of corruption and treachery to the Irish people, and of freedom from all ecclesiastical influence. The Lord Mayor will, regardless of the wishes of the Archbishop, not address the meeting, declaring that the Irish Catholics will repudiate the proposition of the Lord Mayor of Irish, being determined to make their fight side by side with their Protestant fellow-countrymen. As the author of the new party is "a self Patriotic" man, of course, the "property of the part of the Irish Catholics" is to be ignored, and the Irish Catholic party smashed. It will look on waiting, if not cause up in its place any compromising negotiation, for the moment the power of the Archbishop is gone for the political field, all hope or expectation of political autonomy or unity of action must be abandoned, and the old bitter feud between North and South will very promptly re-assert itself with more than its former bitterness on both sides.

The foregoing article is from the Sacramento Weekly Union of Wednesday last. It shows how very mistaken may be made by one who writes from location when information is not sought even when it is desirous of telling the truth. If our contemporary paid enough attention to Irish affairs to warrant it in writing about them, it would now know that the danger it predicts in the Home Rule party is altogether an imaginary one. The Lord Mayor of Dublin may think himself a very good Catholic, but those well acquainted with him rank him among those whom a celebrated Jesuit declared to be the greatest assholes of the Church—i. e., pious fools. The honest man is weak minded and vain-glorious to a degree that makes him the laughing stock of his fellow-citizens of Dublin. No one who knows him would attach the slightest importance to anything he says or does. He may perform the functions of his office well enough—they require no very great strain upon the intellect—but when he undertakes to perform the office of guide, philosopher and friend to the Irish people he attempts what he is unequal to, and simply makes a fool of himself. Neither the bishops nor priests of Ireland are accountable for his vagaries, and will one morning find he has given him the slightest encouragement in his anti-Protestant crusade. He forwarded the circular proposing the establishment of his "Faith and Fatherland" association to the whole Irish hierarchy, and, much it is the enagrin, no doubt, did not receive even the compliment of an answer from a single member. At the recent Home Rule meetings the most prominent speakers were clergymen, and one and all denounced the Lord Mayor and his in-

PUBLICATIONS RECEIVED.

LIFE OF THE APOSTLE ST. JOHN. By M. L. Bernard. Translated from the French edition. New York: The Catholic Publication Society, 9 Warren street. In the French the work is exquisitely written, and the translator has happily been able to preserve many of its beauties. Consequently it is a book easily read, for it charms as we go on. It does more than that—it edifies; how could the life of the disciple whom Jesus loved do otherwise? M. Bernard really gives a history of the foundation of the Christian Church in this careful and scholarly biography. If it find a large and ready sale, we get good proof of the wholesome influence of Catholic literature.

LIFE AND LETTERS OF PAUL SIGNERET, Seminarist of St. Sulpice. Translated from the French of the second edition, by N. R. New York: P. C. O'Shea, 37 Barclay street. There will always be a tender but melancholy interest attaching to the memory of those who were made the victims of Communistic rage, hatred and desperation of Belleville, Paris, May 26, 1871. In this book we have a sketch of the brief but saintly career of one of the youngest of the ecclesiastics who were inhumanely butchered on that occasion just referred to. The description of his life in prison, his hopes and fears, and the culminating tragedy of the murderous fusillade is most vivid and thrilling.

RELIGIOUS CHROMOS.—We have received from Messrs. Benziger Brothers, New York, two beautiful chromos, done in oil colors—"The Sacred Heart of Jesus" and "The Immaculate Heart of Mary"—both of which we cannot speak too highly. They certainly are the finest of the kind we have seen, rivaling the neatest painting in softness, beauty and artistic finish. They are said at the low rate of a dollar and a quarter each, at which figure they are truly marvels of cheapness. Any drawing-room would be embellished by them if they were hung in the manner corresponding to their merits. The house of Benziger Brothers very rarely sends any article before the Catholic community which is not excellent of its kind and good value for the price.

THE IRISH ECCLESIASTICAL RECORD, Dublin: W. B. Kelly. The October number contains the following articles:—"Pastoral Address of the Archbishops and Bishops of Ireland;" "The Institute of Catholic Subjects;" "Theological Questions;" "Ecclesiastical Documents."

ILLUSTRATED HOUSEHOLD MAGAZINE. The November number contains a large amount of reading matter, stories, poetry, household receipts facet æ, etc.

The British Quarterly Review, for October, republished by the Leonard Scott Publishing Co., 41 Barclay street, New York, contains as follows:—Religious Art;" "The Atomic Theory of Lucretius;" "The Poetry of Alfred Tennyson;" "The Romance of the Peerage;" "Modern Conservatism;" "Contemporary Literature."

The Knights of St. Patrick.

On Wednesday evening, 10th inst., Irish-American Hall was crowded by a very intelligent audience to witness the second literary entertainment given by the "Knights of St. Patrick." The programme was announced with an overture on the piano by Miss Mollie Golden, which was admirably rendered and elicited loud applause. Mr. James R. Kelly, who acted as President of the evening, then introduced Rodger Goodwin, who read a well-written original essay entitled "Liberty without Licentiousness," which was rewarded with enthusiastic applause. Mr. Goodwin also read a few choice selections by the Hon. J. J. Tobin and John H Ryan followed, interspersed by vocal and instrumental music by Mrs. H. Eiger (piano), Miss Mollie Golden (piano), Messrs. Hartnell, Holland, Deary and Clyde, who, one and all, acquitted themselves creditably.

NEW CATHOLIC REVIEW.—Messrs. Hardy & Mahony, publishers of the Catholic Quarterly Review, of Chicago, have announced their intention of starting a new Catholic Quarterly Review in January. The cessation of Brownson's has made such a publication almost a necessity for the Catholic community, and, if up to the mark in literary and scholarly merit, it will receive a hearty welcome. Among those whom are to contribute articles to the first number of the new quarterly are many of our distinguished gentlemen, who are well able to make the new magazine a success. Right Rev. P. N. Lynch, D. D., Bishop of Charleston; Very Rev. John A. Corcoran, D. D., Very Rev. James O'Connor, D. D., O. A. Brownson, LL.D., Rev. Edward McGlynn, D.D., Rev. Joseph V. O'Connor, Dennis Dowling Wolff, editor Catholic Standard. The subscription will be five dollars a year. Address Hardy & Mahony, 505 Chestnut street, Philadelphia.

INTERESTING LECTURE BY PROFESSOR NEIL.—Fourteen evening, at the hall of St. Ignatius' College, Father Joseph M. Neil, S. J., upon the resumption of his course of popular science lectures, discoursed for about twenty months ago on account of a serious indisposition which then prevented him from completing the series, spoke at length on "Electricity and its Practical Applications," illustrating his lectures with numerous interesting experiments, before an intelligent and appreciative audience, largely composed of ladies. As a prelude to the lecture, Professor Stallings Armitage played a sparkling selection on several popular themes. Throughout, the lecturer was listened to by the audience with a rare attention, attaining a deep appreciation of the theme. The next lecture of the series will be delivered on Thursday week, and will be on Electro-Magnetism and its many applications."

CARDS.—A fac-simile of Dr. Hall's Hemachaine will relieve the distressing complaint at once.

THE KENMARE PUBLICATIONS.

The Sun of Kenmare's Lottery—Departing to take place December 8th.

To the Editor of The Monitor—Dear Sir: I write to inform your numerous readers that the prizes for our grand drawing are in active preparation, and that it will take place without fail on the 8th of December. The lace bridal veil, tunic dress, cloak, etc., are almost complete, and will, I believe, prove to be the most beautiful specimens of Irish art ever seen by the shippers. The baby's robe and hood, from our own designs with their national emblems, are also ready, and I hope will be won by some child who will live to be a credit to old Ireland.

The lace pocket handkerchiefs are nearly complete, and are worked by a deaf and dumb girl who is rarely skilled in needlework, and to whom, thank God, we are able to give constant employment.

The books are in the hands of Irish binders, and will, they say, be fit for exhibition at Philadelphia, and the various other prizes are all awaiting the day of the drawing. I shall feel greatly obliged if those who have tickets will send them at once—either to Mr. John Donohoe, Sheamount, Jackson county, Indiana, or direct to me. Those who have not yet obtained tickets can send to Mr. Donohoe for them, or can send by post office order or draft on bank to me, and I will have their names written on tickets and put into the drawing by return mail.

I again beg to say that no time may be lost in getting in the tickets as the Convent of Mercy, Sneemford, formerly. The young ladies are working night and day, and Miss Sinchan (the religious Sister Mary Joseph), and Miss Partin (Sister Mary Gonzaga), have been at it from morning till night. Bishop of Achonry, presided, and received the vows.

His Majesty King George of Greece has shown special favor to Monsignor Mc-rangie, Bishop elect of Zante, in the Ionian Archipelago, and the Holy Father has consented to gratify the desire of the Catholics of Zante by appointing to the see of that island Father Joseph Schinas, a native of Zante, who has been for many years Professor of Sacred Eloquence in the Urban College of the Propaganda at Rome.

THE PROGRESS OF A GREAT CATHOLIC FAMILY.—We are glad to see the progress of the great Catholic firm of Benziger Brothers have been compelled by the surprising increase of their extensive business to enlarge their premises to such an extent as to occupy the whole of No. 14 as well as No. 16 as stated on North side street, in the upper portion of which they have established a depot for the sale and appliances of Catholic worship and devotion. We predict a prosperous future for the house, for, if there be any firm in the United States worthy of success, and fully able to merit it, most certainly is that of Benziger Brothers. They have the good-will and express approbation of the Holy Father for their zealous labors in the spread of religious literature and the practice of Catholic devotion; and distinguished members of the hierarchy in this country have also testified to the value and extent of their services in the cause of religion and education. Throughout Catholic Germany their name is known as a household word wherever there is a Catholic family or a Catholic establishment. They are importing and publishing books in the German language, and we are glad to see that they will have a branch house in Cincinnati, where they will be able to supply the German Catholics of the West and South with books at as low rates as possible and that already in a very short time.

HARRY T. BLAKEY.

LATER.

Further Particulars of the Disaster—Names of Those Lost.

The following dispatch was received at noon Wednesday, rendering certain the sin of Captain Hunsell:

PORT TOWNSEND, November 10.—At three o'clock on Monday morning the steamer Oliver Wolcott, whose off Fuller Point, Whidby Island, picked up one of the crew of the Pacific, who was living on a raft from which Capt. Jeff Hunsell and the second mate were drowned. He says that the Pacific was struck by a vessel, and sank immediately. Hunsell was on the raft with him, and soon after the paddle-boxes had no sign to them. He thinks that the engineer and wheel were also lost; the rest he could not say.

HARD TO BELIEVE.

And felt a shock and we had struck a rock, or something of the kind, and we were going down. I could not tell how long it took me to get to the surface, but I was then in the water. I struck out for the nearest object I could see, which was a piece of the wreck, and I got hold of it. I then went to see about the rest of the crew, but could not find any one. I heard no one else, and I could not find any one. I then got on the piece of the wreck I had got hold of, but we could not budge it. I then got on a raft.

WHAT HAD BECOME OF THE CREW.

Captain Hunsell was on the raft when I reached it. I asked the Captain if there were any more lights or signs. He said there were not. I asked him if he knew what had become of the crew, and he said he did not know. I asked him if he knew what had become of the second mate, and he said he did not know. I asked him if he knew what had become of the engineer, who was a master of steam vessels, and he said he did not know. I asked him if he knew what had become of the wheelsman, and he said he did not know. I then asked him if he knew what had become of the steward, and he said he did not know. I then asked him if he knew what had become of the passengers, and he said he did not know. I then asked him if he knew what had become of the cook, and he said he did not know. I then asked him if he knew what had become of the mate, and he said he did not know. I then asked him if he knew what had become of the captain, and he said he did not know. I then asked him if he knew what had become of the second engineer, and he said he did not know. I then asked him if he knew what had become of the second mate, and he said he did not know. I then asked him if he knew what had become of the steward, and he said he did not know. I then asked him if he knew what had become of the cook, and he said he did not know. I then asked him if he knew what had become of the wheelsman, and he said he did not know. I then asked him if he knew what had become of the passengers, and he said he did not know. I then asked him if he knew what had become of the engineer, and he said he did not know. I then asked him if he knew what had become of the captain, and he said he did not know. I then asked him if he knew what had become of the mate

IRISH LOCAL NEWS.

From the Dublin Nation of October 23.

ARMAGH.

At the election of town commissioners for Portadown the following was the result of the polling: Mr. W. J. Guy, 137; Mr. Burtie, 132; Mr. Cowdy, 108; Mr. Hall, 119; and Mr. Eccles, 115.

At the Lurgan revision sessions there were 16 objections entered in the Lurgan district, of which 13 were allowed. In the Portadown district there were 23 claims made by the Conservatives, of which 16 were allowed.

Mr. Beresford, son of the Protestant Archbishop of Armagh, Judah, of course, a thoroughbred Tory, was on Monday elected for the borough of Armagh, defeating Mr. Kaye, the Conservative barrister, by a majority of thirty votes. Mr. Kaye was one of the ravening barristers for the city of Dublin, and as such was in the receipt of a very big salary, but he started for Armagh and felt no sore of sickness that he threw up his place. He sees the matter of observing now. As to Armagh, it is, of course, one of those model Ulster boroughs set up as pattern for the rest of Ireland, yet we read that the shopkeepers, all of a trouble, put up their shutters, that policemen held every corner, and that disguised bands of roughs paraded the town to the terror of all peaceable people.

CARLOW.

At the Carlow quarter sessions there were only two cases of assault, a petty nuisance to go before the grand jury.

At the annual election of five commissioners for Carlow, for the first time during a number of years, the election was contested. After the voting papers had been examined the result of the polling was declared to be as follows: Messrs. James Morris, 160; William Duggan, 84; Lawrence Mullan, 71; James Kelly, 74; James Moore, 69; William K. Tully, 59; Matthew Hogan, 96; Thomas Cowdy, 43; and Patrick Mahaboe, 37.

CLARE.

The criminal business of the quarter sessions, says the Clare Advertiser, was so slight that it might easily have been disposed of at petty sessions. Under that view the judge unanimously agreed to refuse granting additional licenses for the sale of intoxicating liquors in the entire area district.

On Saturday the melancholy announcement of the death by drowning of two men named Hennessy and Fennell, of Kilbaha, named Kilrush. It appeared that these two men, and another named O'Neill, all well-to-do farmers, were fishing off Loop Head, and when returning they were overtaken by a fearful storm, which upset their canoe. Fennell and Hennessy sank immediately, but O'Neill was miraculously saved by some men who went to his aid.

CORK.

Great interest was manifested in the annual election of town commissioners at Queenstown last week. Of the five gentlemen who were returned by ratepayers, Messrs. Cahill, Dawson, Farrell and O'Connell were reelected, and Mr. O'Driscoll, the fifth, was replaced by Mr. Rogers.

A meeting was held in the Cork city court-house last week for the purpose of providing the necessary funds for defraying the expenses of the entire show to be held in Cork next year under the auspices of the Royal Agricultural Society. The Earl of Bandon presided, and there was a large attendance of county gentlemen and

The Irish Protestant Synod separated October 7th after a somewhat dull session of a week. Before the close a resolution in reference to the Athanasian Creed. Dr. Webber, the Earl of Mountcashel and Mr. Pentron Fitzgerald having addressed the assembly all at the same time some confusion was experienced, and the last-named was dispensed of by a motion to count the house, which disclosed the fact that the number of clergy and lay members present was not sufficient to form a quorum. The Bishop, in dismissing the assembly, observed that at one time a collision seemed imminent, and he was afraid the diocese might go down bigger to Youghal, but being God it was still afloat. The episcopal joke was highly relished, and the synod dispersed in good humor.

DONEGAL.

At the election of town commissioners for Letterkenny, last week, Messrs. John Gallagher, Robert McMeiklin and Edward McFadden, old commissioners, were reelected without opposition.

DUBLIN.

Before the commencement of the Newry licensing sessions, on Wednesday week, an influential deputation from Newry and Rostrevor waited on the magistrates and urged the propriety of lessening the number of public houses, or, at least, of their opinion, to the best interests of the community.

The revision of the Parliamentary voters' list for the division of Dunsyndrick took place in the county court-house, Downmarket, Dublin, before Mr. Edmund Q. C. (Colonel Ford, ex-M. P. for the county Down, and Captain Bruay, J. P., occupying seats on the bench).

DUBLIN.

Messrs. George Edward Ilberry, Alex. MacDonnell and Benjamin Boodaw Tyler were last week reelected to the Board of Commissioners of Kilmainham township.

At the Dalkey township elections Mr. J. Fleming, chairman, presided. Official returns showed O'Neill, Higginbotham, Field, Murphy, Wright and McComas. First four elected.

At the Blackrock municipal elections Mr. Verdon, J. P., presiding at Blackrock; Mr. Botham at Monkstown, and Mr. Alves at Booterstown, commissioners returned to Blackrock were Messrs. Barnside, Mc. Donnell, Crosby; Monkstown—Messrs. J. Smith, Brenan, Walpole; Booterstown—Messrs. Robinson and Sullivan.

The Irish Association for Sunday-Closing of Public Houses held its annual meeting on Monday in the Rotunda. The business meeting at two o'clock was presided over by Sir Dominic Corrigan. Letters of sympathy and support were read from Mr. Gladstone, Archbishop Manning, Mr. Forster, about eighty other members of Parliament, and a large number of representative men in various walks of life. Similar expressions of advocacy were contained in letters from Cardinal Cullen, the Protestant Archbishop of Dublin, and several other Catholic and Protestant Irish prelates.

GALWAY.

The sudden death is announced of Dr. Dwyer, Tuam.

At the election of Town Commissioners for Tuam, the numbers declared by the chairman are as follows: Peter A. Daly, William Gannon, John Moylan, Patrick Cribbin, Martin Corcoran, Richard Daly, James Bourke and Patrick O'Donnell.

At the annual election of five commissioners for Navan, in place of those retiring by rotation, the following was the result of the voting: Mr. Charles Donnellan, Mr. M. Moore, J. Everard, P. Moore, W. Monk.

KERRY.

At the annual election of five commissioners for Listowel, in place of those retiring by rotation, the following was the result of the voting: Peter A. Daly, William Gannon, John Moylan, Patrick Cribbin, Martin Corcoran, Richard Daly, James Bourke and Patrick O'Donnell.

At the Dalkey township elections Mr. J. Fleming, chairman, presided. Official returns showed O'Neill, Higginbotham, Field, Murphy, Wright and McComas. First four elected.

At the Blackrock municipal elections Mr. Verdon, J. P., presiding at Blackrock; Mr. Botham at Monkstown, and Mr. Alves at Booterstown, commissioners returned to Blackrock were Messrs. Barnside, Mc. Donnell, Crosby; Monkstown—Messrs. J. Smith, Brenan, Walpole; Booterstown—Messrs. Robinson and Sullivan.

The Irish Association for Sunday-Closing of Public Houses held its annual meeting on Monday in the Rotunda. The business meeting at two o'clock was presided over by Sir Dominic Corrigan. Letters of sympathy and support were read from Mr. Gladstone, Archbishop Manning, Mr. Forster, about eighty other members of Parliament, and a large number of representative men in various walks of life. Similar expressions of advocacy were contained in letters from Cardinal Cullen, the Protestant Archbishop of Dublin, and several other Catholic and Protestant Irish prelates.

GALWAY.

The sudden death is announced of Dr. Dwyer, Tuam.

At the election of Town Commissioners for Tuam, the numbers declared by the chairman are as follows: Peter A. Daly, William Gannon, John Moylan, Patrick Cribbin, Martin Corcoran, Richard Daly, James Bourke and Patrick O'Donnell.

At the annual election of five commissioners for Navan, in place of those retiring by rotation, the following was the result of the voting: Mr. Charles Donnellan, Mr. M. Moore, J. Everard, P. Moore, W. Monk.

KERRY.

At the annual election of five commissioners for Listowel, in place of those retiring by rotation, the following was the result of the voting

LIBERTY WITHOUT LICENTIOUSNESS.

The following is a full report of the essay read by Judge M. Cooney at the literary entertainment of the Knights of St. Patrick, Wednesday evening, at Irish-American Hall:

Mr. President Ladies and Gentlemen and Brother Knights—I have selected for my subject this evening, "Liberty without Licentiousness." It is a subject upon which you ought to be entertained for hours. You cannot, therefore, expect me to do justice to it in the short time allowed, even did I possess the ability, a gift I do not claim to possess. Liberty is defined by some authors to be gratification; and straight be more particularly defined to be the right of man to do what-soever he pleases, provided the rights of his fellow man do not suffer there-by, and so long as natural law (which is superior to all law, under proper restraint), is not violated. It is the right of man to carry out his own free will in all things subject to the laws of nature, revealed law, the laws of society and all just laws enacted by Government. God created man, the master-piece of all creation, with rare gifts of intelligence, power of comprehension and an enlarged will. But while he made his mind man and endowed him with such rare blessings and powers, the same God also ordained and prescribed certain laws for the government of mankind; laws which man has no right to violate without incurring His displeasure and condemnation. We, in our creation, enjoy natural liberty, which means the right of man to do as he pleases without any restraint, except by the law of nature, which transmits to the intellects, ideas, tastes and wants of mankind were as varied in their nature and character, and that it was impossible for man to exist in his wild, neutral state, and carry out the ends and objects of his creation without a certain amount of social intercourse, it became necessary to organize into different societies and governments, and, as the result, people of like tastes among themselves the best and most intelligent persons to enact just and wise laws for the government of states, and the preservation of the rights of the people, and having no opposition to the members of society in general.

MANKIND, THUS ASSEMBLED,

And having drawn on reason and judgment, and being alive to the necessity of fully recognizing the power and wisdom of the Almighty in all things as well as in the organization of government—having also considered the mutual benefits and advantages derived from a just government, administered for the mutual interest of society—gladly and voluntarily waived some of their natural rights; submitted their will and savage liberty as a price for becoming members of society, and organized upon such an elevated and enlightened foundation. And each man thus offers up as a peace offering to the Deity his individual natural feelings and passions, that society may prosper and civil and religious liberty flourish in the land.

A Government formed in this manner, and upon such principles, impartially and justly administered, is not only sanctioned by the members thereof, but has also Divine recognition and approval, for it is suggested and conceived in the mind of man as enlightened and inspired by Divine Providence. Based upon the will and calm deliberation of the people, organized and instituted in wisdom, maintained by the rule of justice and the prudent administration of the laws—with lawful observance of the mixed compact will guarantee the liberty and happiness of the governed, for the character needs no sacrifice, sword nor gun to support it. The will and affections of the people are its broadest base—their intelligence and gentle its motive powers.

But, whenever Government attempts to alter the course of society by force, tramples upon the rights of the people and enacts laws for its aggrandizement of wealth and the suppression of liberty, it loses its sacred character, and, crawling along upon the earth—while the latter marches on through life, full of all the happiness and contentment possible—pours forth himself and all mankind, possessing the love of God and of country; always according to others the same joy as to himself. He would have himself be in a perfect man; he carries within him a burning lamp, which sends a halo of glory, as it were, around his heart, and kindles within him an unquenchable fire, which constantly inspires him to the realization of all his hopes and aspirations.

But, while man should always cherish in his heart the love of liberty, and be ever ready to advocate and defend it, the greatest care should be taken not to mistake licentiousness or indifference to the just rights of others for it; because very often the darkest of enthusiasts, the greatest advocates of disorder and confusion, the wildest fanatics and most unscrupulous men, whose very acts and conduct are sapping its foundation, are hailed as advocates of true liberty!

THEY ARE LED BY THEIR BLIND IMPULSES,

And become complete slaves to their passions, and then nothing is safe in their path. Religion is trampled upon, the temples of God are desecrated and leveled to the ground in the name of liberty! And who dare check them in their mad career, or even if they from them in spirit so as the means to be employed in accomplishing the desired object?

Society is frequently overturned; revolution and bloodshed are often precipitated for liberty, and nothing is safe or sacred without reason or judgment, and dashheading into the jaws of destruction without considering the results. Good Revolution—often they want no liberty based on reason and harmonious laws, but are maintained by fraud or blind fanaticism, based upon the base philosophy of the day, or the wild theories of the hour, and the sacrifice of religion and every principle of justice and everything that is approved by the intelligent mind of man. Such would be a misnomer, and would not be worth having, much less fighting for. Such is but short-lived, and could not guarantee the rights or liberties of the people for any period of time. Its own folly and wickedness would destroy it; and as Lamartine truly says, "Death itself rends in the hour of sinning for the promises of God; the Republic of these men without a God was quickly branded, the liberty which they gave to their fellow-men. Such men are dangerous architects of liberty, for they bear upon their organization, misnamed government. Resting upon a rotten foundation, it is a fearful instruction and subversion of liberty. The ignorance and violence, fostered in such men and misled by temporary excitement and unjust force, and everything is sacrificed to its safety or its hatred. Rule or rule is the order of the day; licentiousness is supreme master of the hour, and there is no guarantee for life or property, or, as the profound philosophic Bacon of Salique, in speaking of a government thus organized, describes it, He says: "The abodes of its enemies pursue it, and makes it continuously tremble. Its own people become its enemies, and leaves no repose. The weakness of its organization, its unstable passions, warns it at every step of its approaching fall and in its imprest despair it makes the convulsive efforts of a dying giant, trying to regain its vigor, are the live of citizens if they secure the slightest suspicion, and the system of trouble and of violence would procure for it a moment of security, and add a few days to its existence." Such is a picture of true liberty that is for mine.' Why the frenzy, this cruelty? It is because the ancient government has been overthrown by force, and the new has not been established in the same way.

THE IDEA OF RIGHT HAS DISAPPEARED

From the sphere of power, legitimacy does not protect it, even its novelty betrays its little value; everything forebodes its short existence. Stripped of the reason and power which is its only support, and stranded upon the rocks of selfish

GOD BLESS THE FLAG OF IRELAND.

God bless the day of Ireland! flashing "flashiest" of the "Orient!"
Though scarred and banned in native land for contrition it has borne!
Spread its folds in heaven's sunlight—let it float, oh! let it wave,
That banner of our glorious name, that ensign of the brave!

Let proud Columbia vaunt the "Stars," and France her "Eagle" scout,
And England boast that crossed rag which guards her iron coast!
Though vaunt they may their banners' sway, yet prowder we, I weed,
When threwsh the unlimited lapse of years we gaze upon the "Green."

For, long before Columbia's shore by Spanish foot was trod,
And long ere savage British foil old Rome's chariot-ing rod—
Aye, when the Eagles of old Rome soared o'er a conquered world,
The "Green" screamed out defiantly in Freedom's light unfurled.

Long are the Christian banners topped the towers of Asmaica,
And long ere gallant France was swayed by sceptre of Bourbon,
And long ere Albion's pirate "Red" first floated on the breeze,
The "shamrock" waved o'er Ireland's hills and swept her verdant seas.

O, what a wealth of wreathed fame illumed our land of yore,
When Erin's kings in victory her banners proudly bore!
The "First-dolls" na'er had such fame, or England's "Red" such sheen,
And half the glory of the "stars" is borrowed from the "Green."

The fox has tried the rack, the rope, the dungeon and the shot,
To bring that brave old banner 'neath Oppression's yoke;
Though it struck down by force and fraud on hill and over and plain,
Up it soared and out it streamed to heaven's light again.

On many a crimson battlefield, from Boyne to rolling Lee,
From Wicklow's hills to Kerry's peaks, that banner floated free;
For in each dark, despondent age hope kept some soul of fire,
To fan to lightning flame once more the smouldering Gaelic ire.

Then arbed 'mongst the Ulster hills the "slogan" of O'Neil—
Then rang O'Donnell's dread yahoo" and flashed Fitzgerald's steel;
Then Emmet rose amid the gloom which wrapped his native isle,
And though he failed to rend the chain, he saved the same again.

Since Hussey's soul from Dublin town ascended in its flame,
Never here have walked with hero mein the glorious pairs we tread;
And then from rolling year to year the cause "grew brawly on."
Each patriot sire bequeathing it, as heirloom, to his son.

Lift up thy heart, O Ireland! thy day of vengeance nears;
Pull soon thy "Green" shall float again, girt round with cheering spears,
Aye, proudly o'er the battle-field, and o'er the victor's van,
And "Erin's Sunburst" strean once more in mail-clad sun!
And ye who vaunt the fame which erst banned your sires around,
Prepare to smile the falsest sight on Irish soil again.

By the sea-view grand that cluster round the "dear, blest land of song"—Erin!
And whose o'er subduing inner robes our cause is golden sheen—
By the glorious hope within us, by the prime and by the grave,
We shall rest in Freedom's garden for the land beyond the wave.

T. D. O'CALLAGHAN.

The English in Egypt.

A leading article in a recent number of the Pall Mall Gazette—the great radical-conservative organ of England, and in many respects the best informed of the London newspapers—contained, as the telegraph informs us, the following statement:

English occupation of Egypt is only a question of time, as that step is necessary for preservation of our Indian Empire." The Pall Mall is an alarmist in everything that concerns British relations with the outside world. Its interest and dislike of the United States are known to everybody.

But with all that, a statement of this nature is so important that its editor, Mr. Frederick Greenwood, would not allow it to pass without having good reasons for doing so. His chief editorial staff contributor on the subject of Indian affairs, Mr. F. a James Stephen, formerly a member of the Indian Government, is also a man too well versed in the subject, and too diplomatic a lawyer, to permit any utterances of such a serious character to appear if affairs fully justified it. We must therefore accept the little paragraph as the presage of important complications in Egypt, though it is by no means sure that the events the are anticipated will take place with in the next ten years.

The distances are immense, the sands are very deep, and provisions and water very scarce in the deserts of Central Asia, and the Russians have a great work to do before they can expect to enter Afghanistan. Their scouts have lately reached a village some three days from the Oxus in the north-western frontier of that kingdom but the could not have been more than a foraging expedition, the borders of Afghanistan being very fertile and naturally tempting to the flying detachments which the Russians have to send out from the stations they have so consecutively occupied.

The London Times, which has been for years past very optimistic in its views on the Russian progress in Asia, has also lately changed its tone and printed several sharp articles on the expedition to that village, so that the attention of the British nation has been seriously aroused on a subject which the shop-keeping John Bull began to consider as satisfactorily settled by the marriage of the Duke of Edinburgh to the daughter of the Czar. That Egypt must be occupied by the English as soon as any real danger for India shall present itself, is evident. It is the only possible basis of operations for them. An English army sent out from Egypt, via Persia, would find itself in the rear and flank of the Russian forces invading Afghanistan, not to speak of the inestimable advantage which a re mark shortened sea route to India would assure.—N. Y. Sun.

RELICS OF IRELAND.

THE CHAPEL OF KILBENNY.

The chapel of Kilbenny stood on a slight declivity of one of the many undulating hills and valleys gradually approaching the mighty Galtees. It was a little cruciform building in the form of a cross, and was so situated as to be seen from every point of the compass. On one side it was sheltered by a thick grove of young fir trees—on the other, by a high double ditch, crowned by a dense clump of brown yellow furze, under which ran a rapid stream that made its way through a tract of soft and healthy boglands.

The unpretending house of God was covered by a thatch of straw and fir branches, on its outside—and the holes of the same branches acted as pillars within. The altar was primitive, and merely covered by a white cloth—and behind it, the vestry boasted of a little fireplace, a shelf, which supported a bowl and a spoon, from which the good old pastor breakfasted on Sunday, for his parish was large and he had a long way to come. The neighbors contended who should supply him with his quantum of milk—so now by the summer—or light his fire in the winter, to boil his eggs and have his meals hot and comfortable, when the Mass was over, the fire was again doing duty in the matter of fuel, as well as their many other services.

It was on Sunday morning that all the folks in the neighborhood and from all parts of the surrounding districts were assembled, attending holy mysteries. The chapel was crowded, the old people occupying the place nearest to the walls of the sanctuary—the men, with their snow-white heads bowed down in meek reverence—the mistress in adorning silence, clothed in their long wide mantles—with their hair bound up in large red kerchiefs, the ends of which hung down loosely behind them.

The younger portion of the population occupying the middle of the building—the young men and women—while behind them knelt the married population, with their young offsprings, whom they endeavored by signs to order by many and seasonable admonitions, as they, time after time, stopped their devotion to look after their proceedings. One little urchin caused his mother very many distractions, by his stand and admiration of the evolutions of a swallow, which was eddying about the roof, and in a thousand indescribable flights visiting every nook and crevice that might possibly afford a site for his projected nest building.

The cold might be eight or nine years old, with black, straight hair hanging down on its shoulders, cheeks, brown and ruddy, with rude health and mountain ramblings, eyes black as coal, and large, liquid and lustrous. White under the immediate surveillance of his grandam, his little hands were piously folded and raised in seeming prayer—but the moment her attention was called away, and her beads resumed, those innocent hands were busy with more in search of the beadsong flight of the bird, and were lit up with a joy and admiration, that would have made the heart of any lover of nature rejoice. Then would a smile for him—the tears rose in his eyes and the little boy set about to express saying the little words of his share of duties hood, only looking how sad then for such other communings smile, as a reward for his ready and willing compliance.

The Mass was over, and the venerable pastor, Father Michael Molloy, was just unvesting solemnly, and with raised arms, the blessed Sacrament, Omnipotent, when a woman rushed wildly into the vestry-leaving out at the top of her voice:

"Father Michael! Father Michael! the Wolf is outside—his companions are hopping the tree and backing the fir fir trees bushes to set fire to the roof over your head!"

The man sprung to their feet—the women screamed.

"My people! My people! My own people! inspired the priest, in a loud impassioned voice, "fliee—fliee—fliee! God's minister and your guide, before you move a foot from this sacred domain."

The men stood still.

"God bless you," cried out the grateful priest, "God bless you my own! I will myself and remonstrate with the intruders."

"They will hurt you, Father Michael. They will hurt you, if we're not by your side," remonstrated many of his flock.

"God Almighty will be on my side and between them and me," devoutly replied the fearless priest.

He then bid the chelice in a secret part, of the wall, made for the purpose, (a necessary precaution in those sacrilegious days) and solemnly walked down from the altar, proceeding along the nave his flock, and firmly strode out into the open air, followed a small, wooden crucifix raised in his hand.

In the meantime, a very significant movement was made by the peasantry; one body of them rushed to the rear, which led from the chapel by the vestry, and were instantly watching narrowly the result of the mission of their beloved pastor, and determined to be ready to aid him if there was need. Another body of men stood within the larger doorway, armed with pikes and bills, and resolved to attack the troopers if necessary, before they would see their harmless pastor assailed. The women stood behind her husband, and would not leave his position for any entreaty; poor, faithful women, they thought that if there should be a bloody battle, that their long wild mantles would shield their husband's pikes with their own. The children were placed on the altar steps, and the old men and decrepit stood about the entrance door of the front door, with the positive order not to leave the place unless the affray began.

Talk order at once will show the reader the character of men trained-soaked military horrose were, when the peasantry were themselves they would shut up as many men, women and children as they could, and set fire to the building to consume all together. Hence, the order to the old men was absolutely necessary.

Let us now accompany Father Maher to the glorious enterprise, and see how the minister of the Lord confronted the smiling face of the devil, about forty soldiers were engaged in bringing furze and bundles of furze towards the chapel. Some of the troopers had their horses of these, and full workmen in the shade of the fir-grove, while the Wolf himself, sitting quietly in his saddle, superintended the whole operations. The priest advanced and caught his eye in session.

"Hal ha!" laughed the Wolf of the Galtees, "as the old fox unearthed already?"

"Earl of Kingston!" exclaimed the holy and venerable man, "I adjure you in the name of the living God, not to desecrate this sacred Sabbath morning with murder and sacrilege."

Here the little boy, already described in the chapel, stepped quietly out, and stood between the two speakers, looking at each curiously and alternately.

"How dare you impose your commands on me, Father Boland," retorted the Wolf reddening with anger.

"I dare say anything in the name of God, and under the shadow of his holy cross," replied the priest steadily.

"I dare do more," he continued, advancing towards the hardened soldier.

"Ah! him, Lion," cried the Earl.

A huge, black dog came bounding from among the horses, and standing with head erect and blazing eyes, looking about for his victim. Some of the men at the vestry door stepped out so as to be in time, but the little boy slid gently up to the excited animal, and put his two tiny arms around his shaggy neck. The brute acknowledged the kindness by lowering his head and wagging his tail.

The Earl foamed, and putting spurs to his horse, rode up, calling fiercely for the dog to come to him. The noble brute crouched only closer to the child, who petted his great head, and fondled him more kindly.

"Here, Lion," now fairly roared out his exasperated master; the dog loosened himself away reluctantly from the arms that still embraced him, and crawling towards the horse's feet, seemed to look up to the master for pardon. But the Wolf never pardoned and had no mercy; he drew a pistol and fired the contents of it into the animal's head, and then drew a second pistol, but before he could make any use of it, there was a cry from the chapel

"Draw in, Father Michael, army you're Take care of the child."

"To horse! to horse!" roared Kingston.

It was too late; about twenty stalwart peasants had sprung from their ranks, and between the men and the horses, quickly overwhelmed the men who held them, and possessed themselves of their bridles, pistols and the short carbines which were attached to them for the troopers. They then sheer stand quietly behind the animals, they awaited the further proceedings of the enemy.

The Wolf was thunderstruck; his men had now but their arms—and they were being taken in outing down the furze to set fire to the chapel. To add to his discomfiture, the peasantry had no leader, "Go horse," and answered with a loud laugh.

Father Maher again appeared as peacemaker. "Give them their horses, boys," he said, "and let them go their ways; we are not going to follow such examples either in plunder or murder. Give them their horses, they cannot harm us now, and for heaven's sake let us be quit of them."

"Father Michael, they do not deserve it of us, nor even thanks."

"No matter now, my friends; let them go for God's sake, for my sake."

With a bad grace and not without much grumbling, the people relinquished the horses, and the cross-eyed soldiers quickly remounted, and set in their saddles awaiting the commands of their leader.

"Let my men have their arms, now, Sir Priest," demanded the Earl.

"Hold the arms for your lives," exclaimed Father Maher.

A loud cheer of gratified acquiescence followed the wholesome advice, at which the Earl writhed with impotent rage.

"Take my knightly honor," said he scorntully, "that so one of the weapons shall be made against you."

"My children," said Father Maher, addressing the people in turns, "receive this the knightly honor of a man who would "Go on, Sir Earl," commanded the priest sternly, "and repent of your sins and pride which taxes it to you time. We forgive you, and may God forgive you for the unnatural massacre this blessed Sabbath morning."

"Forward!" cried the Wolf savagely to be men, and as they spurred after their lord and master, the dog attempted to follow also; he succeeded in reaching the Earl's side with a feeble bound, but he poured over it in a shower of his leader's blood. The sight incensed the men even that cheered them, and as the dying animal fell back tumbled under his horse's feet in his last agony.

"Poor Lion," he muttered, as he beat down for an instant and we will be even with a single ourselves shudder.

Yes, even that ruffian could be overcome to a feeling of human nature, although but for a brute beast. Thus history tells us that some ordinary hand stirred flowers upon the grave of Nero.

It was on, however, in accordance with with his habit that the haughty and intolerant Earl should return to his castle and nurse his wounded pride and his execrable cruelty of his disposition. Accordingly, as he and his men rode furiously through the country, exasperated at their defeat, and thirsting for vengeance upon someone, or anybody, they were met by the full force of their baffled malice; they set fire to any and haggard, to roof-tree and cornstack—they hacked and hewed, and pursued their flying owners—and, in fine, perpetrated any outrage that chance put in their way, or that their too retentive memories doomed to them. They were the rulers of the land—the rulers and the lawgivers.

Unfortunately, in their furious and headlong flight they came up with a traveling peasant who was going from one part of the country to another. He was instantly stopped, questioned and assaulted. The wretched man was Jonn Galwey—an Irishman and a Celt to the backbone—but he knew the intolerant despots he had to deal with, and that he had no mercy to expect from their hands. Accordingly his demeanor was firm and resolute, and neither insult nor violence could exact from him the slavish whine of terror and cowardice from which his persecutors gloried their presence should inspire him with.

After rifling his person a long while in search of some treasure of which he was not in possession, they began to rail at him, and finally fell to blows. He was struck down. A shout of triumph announced the discovery, and the document was forthwith presented to the Earl.

The gallant commander, however, was no scholar—at least he was not able to make anything out of the important manuscript. The sergeant of the band thought it was Greek. An old drummer, who had served in the line, and was for a number of years in foreign service, pronounced it to be French. That was enough. It was a case of out of the reserves of the class of 1867 as one of the happiest events for the regeneration of France which have occurred since the days of Napoleon the Great, too, that it is an event of a pacific tendency —in fact, that its signal success will secure the maintenance of peace for a long time to come. As Mr. Gladstone has just sounded the trumpet of alarm about the aggressive tendencies of France, it may be worth while to examine the grounds upon which the writer in the Debats bases his opinion of the pacific and absolutely defensive character of the new military organization of the new military organization of the Republic. Only a few months ago almost a panic was created in the higher circles of diplomacy by the disclosure of a design on the part of Prussia to annex Belgium without any fresh cause of quarrel, and for the avowed object of crushing the French nation so completely that it leaves it powerless for a long time to come. At that time the military organization of France was passing through its most critical stage, and it was boasted, and generally believed, that she could just then offer no effective resistance to the gigantic military power of the invader.

Whether or not France was even then quite so helpless as was commonly supposed we shall not stop to inquire, but, at all events, the helplessness of a transitional period no longer exists. M. Houssaye explains the new factical organization of the army, which allows the reserves to be so rapidly fused in the ranks. The regiments of infantry are composed of three service battalions, besides a fourth battalion, which, on the peace footing, contains only of the cadres (or staff), and two depot companies. Each service battalion has four companies, each company sixteen squads, but these squads are ordinarily reduced to eight, and are reckoned by the odd numbers, 1, 3, 5, 7, 9, 11, 13, 15. On the arrival of the reserves the even squads are formed, and the normal complement of reserves and the men on furlough are called on, both the old and the even squads are completed to their full number. When the service battalions are completed to their complement of 1,200 rifles, the surplus passes into the fourth battalion, which, according to M. Houssaye, could rejoin their battalions almost at the first outbreak of hostilities.

As an example of the rapidity with which this mobilization can be executed, M. Houssaye tells us that of the reserves of 1870 150,000 men were clothed, armed and equipped in twenty four hours, and that 300,000 were under arms in twenty-eight days afterwards. The successful calling out of a single class of the reserves has already created the idea, so prevalent a few months back, of the inefficiency of the French military organization; but a little consideration will show that this efficiency exists for purposes of defense only, and that the aggressive designs of France are the mereal hyperbay. As a matter of fact, the standing army is composed of well-trained soldiers, each class can be counted as of any value, and the whole of the standing army of France hardly exceeds at its moment 200,000 men, the number at which it is estimated six months ago by a military writer in Blackwood's Magazine.

The calling out of the reserves would, not quite, give 150,000 veteran soldiers; but even then in addition the French Republic would be plainly inadequate for offensive operations against any first-class Power, for the simple purpose that men who have undergone a six months' training, or who served as Militia for a month or two, but more often a piece split off a tree, and so trimmed that the branch served for legs. Their wounds were very simple; generally nothing but a stiffness which served for baking boiling, roasting and frying dishes, making mush, cooking turkeys, cooking sassafras tea and making beds. A johnny cake was composed of a dripping pan hung on a peg in your house. The corn was ground into meal by pounding it in a wooden mortar. As soon as a swine could be kept away from the bears, or rather the bears away from

A BURIAL.

August 20, 1822.

Silent round Westminster Abbey stands the vast, mysterious throng;
Mutely amidst people in the dead lord borne along.

Her throne found that sea of faces sign of sorrow vain
To seek;
Hers—in misery a knitted forehead, but no tear is on a cheek.

Bitter thoughts surge in each bosom, bitter words rush to each tongue.

Yet there reigns a fearful silence all that waiting host among,
Like the hush before the tempest in the silence of the throng.

Once a cry burst on the stillness, like the first growl of the storm,
And men turned their hard-set faces towards a white-sculptured tomb.

Why not let the cut-throat's carcase at the four cross highways rot?
With a stake driven through his black heart should he, one like, be forgot?

And there rose a sullen murmur, like the moaning of the main,
Boiled and died far in the city, and then silence reigned again.

Muffled bells and mournful music fill the heavy air;
Organ tones peal forth lord requiem, but there mounts to heaven no prayer
For the dead man from the living round the national Pantheon gate!
Death, that veils the crimes of tyrants, cannot hide him from their hate!

See! the far crowd sways and surges like the billows of the deep;
Fiery horses, trifled fierce mustering, narrow passage force and keep.
How there spreads a quick-breathed whisper, and the hungry eyes of all
Seek the dark cordage, slow streaming through grim, ghastly pall.

At the corner is noticed through them by the living in their fear.
Many wake near down the thunder, when in solitude they wonder
Dead man's ghost will haunt that reverberate room's hollow!

One there was within the Abbey[illegible] whose ride is the living grave!
Let him rest where false Pitt slumbers—by the master by her slave!

Let him rest where false Pitt slumbers—by the master by her slave!
Here the noblest princes of the land that sons be Britt,
And the land he toiled and shared for, be his earth consigned to earth.

Lest no sacrilege that red raffle, if your lips refuse to pray!
But in pastures silence leave him for the resurrection day.

Thus the nobles was hidden deep within the Abbey's clay;
On the midnight August morning this was buried Castlereagh!

—Dublin Nation. P. N. F.

A New Scheme of Plunder.

Not that the patriots in Cuba, after a persistent struggle of seven years, are almost within sight of the goal of independence, a Paraguayan interest in their behalf is all of a sudden manifested at Washington, where they have heretofore been coldly repulsed, and denied the least expression of sympathy. This change proceeds from no concern for the great cause and principles for which the people of that island have so long and gallantly contended. Another motive entirely selfish and partisan is at the bottom of this new policy, which looks for two results. The demand for retrenchment in the public expenditures threatens the extravagant appropriations heretofore made for the army and navy, and calls for a reduction, in the aggregate for both, of some thirty millions of dollars. The Rings which have fattened for years on these spoils are alarmed at the prospect, and realize that without some decided move by which the fears of the country may be excited, they must suffer seriously.

Hence the scheme for creating critical relations with Spain, and if necessary a war panic, in order to maintain the present military and naval establishments, and perhaps of asking even an increase for the navy. The Virginius affair was made the pretext for an aggressive chauvin dress and last resolved between five and six millions of dollars. That precedent is encouraging for the Administration, and emboldens it to run the department as a close corporation, from which everything possible is taken out, and nothing valuable is put in.

Again, the chiefs of the Sun Democracy, who evade a bad investment in that job, are now gathered in full force at Washington, the leader of whom stands nearest in confidence to the President, and overlies one of the most important places in the army organization. They would of course like to retrieve the losses in that enterprise by a stake in Cuba. There is hardly a doubt but this scheme is one of the impelling ides of any movement by the Administration, which may express interest in the struggling patriots of Cuba or favor for them.

The people of the United States have long desired the freedom of this island, and they will look with displeasure upon any Reorganition of the patriotic cause that involves no disagreement with Spain or international war; but as a matter of fact, the Cubans have maintained a government of their own, independent of the mother country, and against all the power which attempts at repression, costing Spain more than a hundred lives and two and two millions of treasure, for as long a period as our revolutionary war lasted. There can be but one end to this conflict. Spain is exhausted in men and money, and with a lasting civil war in the Peninsula, which will recover her old authority in Cuba. Prim and others are the inevitable result clearly enough in 1869, and were prepared to meet it if there had been statesmanship and patriotism enough in the country to stand by and sustain a wise policy which would have helped to relieve the embarrassments of Spain without wounding her pride, and saved her from great desolation, and secured to it the friendship of the United States.

Through privateers, disbodied and sacrificers, the Cubans have earned their title to recognition by the United States and by the world. Every day of delay in extending this act of simple justice but adds to the wound on suffering humanity. But it is not necessary to change our interfial policy or to go to war, even to stop the piratical acts of abuses, because the United States may think proper to do so. We have won her claim to a place among the first governments of the earth.

If this administration had been positive five years agoand followed the example set by the French Monarchy, and in sympathy with Greece, Ireland and Hungary, given the Executive and Congress uttered, Cuba would long ago have come into possession of the chains of her bondage. Instead of expressing our sympathy and friendly advice, tirant and Fish, controlled by Spanish influences and venal considerations, turned a deaf ear to entreaty and outraged the sentiment of the American people. Cuba must be free, but her freedom is not to be purchased through the jobbery, fraud and corruption of a fabricated scheme by which an overgrown army and a worthless navy may be kept on a war footing.—N. Y. Sun.

Ancient Crowns.

Of the crowns of Europe, the Iron Crown of Lombardy is by far the oldest. This emblem of authority is one of the three fine German emperors, who were crowned first at the graves of Charlemagne, at Aachen, with the silver crown of Germany, second by Pope therapy the first to Queen Theodolinda of Lombardy. The iron crown is of simple construction. It is but a broad, flat ring of 3 ounces of gold, adorned with enamelled flowers and precious stones—stones not cut into facets, as in modern jewelry, but rounded, sapphires and rubies in their rough uncut form, as they came from the mine. But inside the circle of gold and jewels is a thin band of iron, from which the crown takes its name. In history is that of the Roman empire after the conquest of Lombardy, by Charlemagne, in which the iron band was declared to be a talisman of heaven, just forty years ago, the "Siege of Rochelle"—meant by the light-hearted Parisians to be Sebastopol—was performed and brought out at the Lyceum Theatre. Now, what would be thought of an Irish journal if it had written: "The union that is dissolved! would write epic poetry had almost ceased to be entertaining, even to Lord Lovat, or John Milton, was given to the world? One of those statements would be quite as felicitous as the other. Both was no more an Englishman than John Milton was an Irishman. Irishmen claim neither Milton nor Handel, neither the poet Rann nor Alfred Tennyson, nor any other poet or artist who was not belong to them; but Englishmen, notwithstanding all their high pretensions, are never above the meanness of robbing their neighbors of the scores of foreigners regarding their musical and artistic capacity if they were not allowed to exhibit an Englishman's name on the bill. Even in Cork, Waterford, Dublin and other parts of Ireland, Italian singers are in high favor for their conduct, but it is not justification the act is still one of robbery, and Ireland has a right to demand sentence on its thieves at the bar of public opinion.—Dublin Nation.

KNOW-NOTHINGISM.

In his speech at the Cincinnati Democratic Convention Judge Collins said: «I have not forgotten, you have not forgotten, when good but misguided citizens of this town gathered in their dark-lantern lodges to inquire if one man if he had an American father, and to ask a second was out his grandmother a Catholic. To such madness did the intolerance extend, that, as you all well remember, citizens of foreign birth found it necessary to barricade themselves in their homes, over the Rhine, and good but misguided Christian men, on this side, were rushing through the streets with hair flying in the wind, and eyes starting from their sockets, with difficulty restrained from applying the torch to the places of worship of other equally good and patriotic citizens. I, for one, cannot witness but with indignant condemnation this attempt to revive in 1875 the fanaticism of 1855. The Democratic party then formed the only breakwater against the raging tide. It need be, it will be found in the same position again. Not that it is the champion of the Catholic Church, or of any other Church; but that it regards the foreign-born citizen above the native, but that it is, and always has been, in favor of religious liberty and equal rights to all."

PROFESSIONAL CARDS.

JOHN M. BURNETT,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
632 Montgomery Street,
Between Clay and Commercial streets,
SAN FRANCISCO.

JOHN J. MEAGHAN. J. F. SULLIVAN
SULLIVAN & MEAGHAN,
Attorneys and Counsellors-at-Law,
No. 637 Kearny street,
Between Clay and Commercial.....San Francisco.
1036

F. J. MOGAN.
J. D. SULLIVAN.
MOGAN & SULLIVAN,
Attorneys and Counsellors-at-Law,
608 CALIFORNIA STREET. 1074

WILLIAM A. PLUNKETT,
Attorney and Counselor-at-Law,
606 CALIFORNIA STREET,
Between Kearny and Montgomery.....San Francisco.
1012

M. COONEY,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law.
Office, Room No. 7, Court Block,
Cor. Clay street and 563 MERCHANT STREET
1031

P. CUMMINS,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
Rooms 14 and 15 Court Block,
606 Clay street and 563 Merchant street.
1031

H. W. VAUGHAN,
PHOTOGRAPHIC ARTIST
NO. 18 THIRD STREET,
SAN FRANCISCO.
mr30-1f

SULLIVAN, KELLY & CO.,
Northwest corner Pine and Front Sts.,
Where they offer for sale
THE LARGEST STOCK OF PAINTS,
OILS,
GLASS
ETC., ETC. ON THE PACIFIC COAST.
101, 103 and 105 FRONT STREET.
110 PINE STREET

JOHN MOLLOY,
PRODUCE COMMISSION MERCHANT,
AND DEALER IN
GROCERIES AND PROVISIONS,
64 Clay st., bet. Drumm and Kearny
SAN FRANCISCO.

FRANCIS BUCKLEY,
CARPENTER AND BUILDER.
Annex street (West of Powell),
Between Bush and Sutter sts., San Francisco.
All kinds of Carpenter and Jobbing Work done at the shortest notice.
my26-1f

JAMES O'CONNELL,
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALER IN
Wood and Coal.
LAUER'S WHARF,
Near Market street Wharf.....SAN FRANCISCO
Hotels, Boarding-houses and Families supplied at the shortest notice, and at the lowest market rates.
All orders promptly attended to. 87

CANDIES! CANDIES!
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL
Of all descriptions and of the best materials. Freshly manufactured every day by
D. CANTY & CO.,
Wholesale and Retail
Confectioners
107 MONTGOMERY ST.,
Between Bush and Sutter.....San Francisco.

The attention of the trade is called to our immense assortment of Candies and other goods, which are warranted to keep in all climates. Prices low and terms liberal. Orders from the interior promptly and carefully attended to.

JOHN MOGAN,
Wholesale and Retail
BUTCHER,
63 and 64 California Market,
FINE STREET ENTRANCE.
Families, Hotels, Restaurants and Shipping supplied with the best qualities of Fresh and Salt Meats on reasonable terms.
Orders promptly attended to. Marketing delivered to all parts of the city free of charge.

CHAS. FIELD. GEO. WOOD. JAS. BOWMER.
CHARLES FIELD & CO.,
FURNITURE
MANUFACTURERS
N. E. cor. Main & Mission Sts.,
SAN FRANCISCO.
All orders filled at moderate prices. Office and Salesroom at Factory. 1234

J. W. FABREN,
WAGON MAKER & BLACKSMITH,
191 BEALE STREET,
Between Mission and Howard.....San Francisco.
Carts, Wagons and Trucks made to order and kept constantly on hand. Repairing of all kinds promptly attended to, and all work guaranteed to give satisfaction. my18-1f

GROCERIES, WINES AND LIQUORS
F. & P. J. CASSIN,
IMPORTERS AND WHOLESALE DEALERS
IN WINES AND LIQUORS,
523 Front Street,
AGENTS FOR
Heidsieck & Co. and Dry Monopole Champagnes; also, for G. H. Goldon Plantation Whisky. se8 6m

STEVE McGILLAN,
244 Fourth Street, San Francisco,
GROCERIES AND LIQUORS
Wholesale Rates
HOUSEKEEPERS CAN SAVE TWENTY PER CENT. by purchasing from him, as they can satisfy themselves by examining his goods and list of prices. He guarantees to sell to customers at WHOLESALE RATES, besides delivering goods free of charge. 1031

JOHN FLANAGAN & CO.,
Importers and Jobbers of Fine Brandies, Wines, Liquors, Etc.,
Fire-proof Store, 631 Front street,
Between Clay and Washington.....San Francisco.
Foreign Liquors in bond. Fine Brandies, Holland Gin, Port, Claret, etc., sold in quantities to suit the purchaser. Also, Dealer in native California Wines and Brandies.

M. H. SHAY. JOHN SHAY
Kelly & Egan
IMPORTERS AND DEALERS IN FINE WINES AND LIQUORS
No. 604 Battery street,
New Montgomery, San Francisco.

E. CUMMINS. THOS. H. CUMMINS.
CUMMINS & O'CONNOR,
(Successors to E. Cummins & Co.),
Wholesale Liquor Dealers,
No. 505 Front Street,
Bet. Washington and Jackson sts.....San Francisco.

P. CONNOR. J. J. LANE.
CONNOR & LANE,
DEALERS IN GROCERIES, PROVISIONS
Wines, Liquors and Cigars
293 FOURTH STREET,
Corner of Folsom, San Francisco.
Goods delivered throughout the city free of charge.

JOHN A. LENNON,
WHOLESALE GROCER,
AND IMPORTER OF
Brand Choice Japan and English Breakfast Teas.
313 Clay Street,
Between Front and Battery.....SAN FRANCISCO.

Importers and Wholesale Dealers in
Brandies, Wines and Liquors,
308 BATTERY STREET,
Near corner Sacramento.....SAN FRANCISCO.
Sole Agents for Kentucky Whiskies a specialty. 1010

T. LYMAN. J. P. BAFFERTY. D. BOGART, JR.
LYMAN, BAFFERTY & CO.,
IMPORTERS AND
WHOLESALE LIQUOR DEALERS
604, 606 and 608
Corner of Merchant.....San Francisco.
se18

JOHN HOUGH,
Importer and Retail Dealer in Fine Wines and Liquors,
DUBLIN STOUT ON DRAUGHT.
Junction of Mason, Turk and Market sts.
Jy19 SAN FRANCISCO.

DUFFY BROS' SALOON,
631 Merchant Street.....San Francisco.
se25

Bost. Wines, Liquors and Cigars. 83

J. H. DOUGHERTY. CHAS. SMITH.
DOUGHERTY & CO.,
Wines, Liquors and Cigars,
618 California Street,
Between Montgomery and Kearny, San Francisco.
1012

P. F. BRADY,
LA GRANDE EXCHANGE,
610 BRYANT STREET AND 11 THIRD STREET,
(Opposite Mansion Temple).....San Francisco.
The reputation the La Grande has for the excellence of its Wines, Liquors and Cigars is always maintained.

JOHN KENNY,
IMPORTER AND WHOLESALE DEALER IN FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC
WINES AND LIQUORS,
NO. 515 FRONT STREET,
Between Washington and Jackson.....San Francisco.

CALIFORNIA WINES, bottled by white men only. se25 tf

FRANK MAGUIRE'S SALOON,
681 Broadway, bet. Fifth and Sixth sts.
OAKLAND, CAL.
Only the best Wines, Liquors and Cigars. 813

THOMAS J. POWER, IN SECOND STREET
Marysville. Only the very best brands of Wines, Liquors and Cigars on sale. A fruitless Lunch on daily

J. O'KANE,
Manufacturer and Importer of
SADDLES & HARNESS,
Fine Horse Clothing, etc., etc.,
767 Market Street,
South side, bet. Third and Fourth.....San Francisco.
HORSE BOOTS A SPECIALTY.
Repairing done with neatness and dispatch. Orders promptly attended to. my15

BUSINESS CARDS.
Pacific Glass Staining, CUTTING,
EMBOSSING and DESIGNING WORKS
J. MALLON, Proprietor,
Beading of Glass a specialty,
19 Fremont St., near Market.

McKENNA & GREANY
(Successors to McKenna & Bro.,)
Commission Merchants,
And Dealers in
HAY AND GRAIN,
Drumm Street, one door North of Clay.

COAL AND WOOD.

A Texas market prices, of the best quality delivered to any part of the city.
For sale by
P. LYNCH,
Cor Larkin Street, between Fifth and Eddy.

JOHN C. MOODY & Co.,
Druggists and Chemists,
DEALERS IN
PURE DRUGS AND MEDICINES,
Toilet and Fancy Articles and Perfumery.
Jury Mixer and Exporter of Medical Oils.
Prescriptions carefully compounded.
214 Kearny Street,
SAN FRANCISCO.

Pacific Oil and Lead Works,
SAN FRANCISCO,
Are prepared to furnish seeds and contract for next year's crop of Flax Seed and Castor Beans at rates that, with proper cultivation, can be made profitable to them among the most profitable crops grown For further particulars, address
Pacific Oil and Lead Works,
Nos. 2 and 4 Front Street,
SAN FRANCISCO.

SACRAMENTO ADVERTISEMENTS.
P. J. HOPPER,
Attorney-at-Law and General Land Agent.
OFFICE—In U. S. and Land Office Building, northwest corner Second and J streets, SACRAMENTO.

Township Maps of United States Surveys Now Ready.
Particular attention given to business in United States Land Office, and to Mexican and Spanish land and private claims solicited.
No charge for information, either by letter or otherwise.

I. W. ARMSTRONG. A. C. HINKSON
ARMSTRONG & HINKSON,
ATTORNEYS-AT-LAW,
Office, corner Seventh and K streets, Sacramento.

BLUE WING SALOON,
Corner Fourth and K streets.....SACRAMENTO.
M. MALLAHAN.....Proprietor.

CENTRAL PACIFIC HOTEL,
N. PARRELL.....Proprietor,
(Late of Central Hotel, Stockton street),
Nos. 126, 128, 130, 132, 134, 136, 138, 140, 142, 144, 146 and 148 Fourth street, between Fimore and Harrison.

GARVIN & NUNAN,
Corner Main and Center streets.....STOCKTON
.....DEALERS IN.....
Books, Periodicals, Magazines, PICTURES, &c.
News Agents—Advertising Agents.

WEEKLY CALENDAR.
FOR OUR WEEK ENDING NOVEMBER 27, November.
21—Sunday—Twenty-second Sunday after Pente-cost. Presentation of the B. V. M.
22—Monday—St. Cecilia, Virgin and Martyr.
23—Tuesday—St. Clement, Pope and Martyr.
24—Wednesday—St. John of the Cross, Confessor.
25—Thursday—St. Catherine, Virgin and Martyr.
26—Friday—Vigil of Abstinence. Bishop and Martyr.
27—Saturday—Office of the Immaculate Conception.

THE MONITOR & GUARDIAN
THE ONLY
Irish and Catholic Journal in California.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

SATURDAY.....NOVEMBER 20, 1875.

SUBSCRIBERS will please specially look at the printed label on the margin or wrapper of the paper; the date thereon shows when the subscription expires.

THE PIOUS FUND DECISION.

The telegraph informed us, a few days ago, that the United States and Mexican Joint Commission, had rendered a decision in the Pious Fund Claim case which gave to Most Rev. Archbishop ALEMANY, of San Francisco, and Right Rev. Bishop AMAT, of Monterey, a sum of money exceeding a million dollars in currency. It would occupy too much space here to enter into a history of the Pious Fund; how it was created, what was its purpose, and how the Catholic Church in California came to have a claim upon it. But we may briefly say that the Fund was formed by the voluntary contributions of certain Spanish ladies and noblemen toward the support and propagation of the faith in the Upper and Lower Californias, and in the Philippine Islands. Successive deeds of loan raised the total to a large amount, and a splendid revenue was derived from the real estate and other property of the Fund.

Robbing the Church has long been a favorite method with despotic revolutionists for replenishing their purses, because ecclesiastics are not fighting men and no resistance is ever experienced. The Pious Fund was too rich a prize to escape the notice of the ambitious rulers of Mexico, SANTA ANNA, so he seized upon it in 1842 when he was in power. He promised, however, that interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum on the value of all the property so confiscated, should be regularly paid and devoted to the purposes of the Fund. The promise, of course, was never kept—very likely it was never meant to be kept—and for interest we have nothing to show but a few paltry dollars now and then. When the State of California fell into the hands of the United States, its claim upon the Pious Fund was unsatisfied, and constituted a debt of Mexico to her former subjects in this State of the same character as Israel's governments of our southern neighbor could, of course, plunder their own subjects with impunity, but it was not to be tolerated that they should be allowed to behave in Catholics who had become American citizens.

The authorities of our Church urged the payment of their portion of the Fund. The demand they made was exceedingly moderate, and by no means embraced all they were equitably entitled to. They did not, as they might have, ask half the total worth of the property which the Republic of SANTA ANNA had seized; they did not even look for the whole of the delinquent six per cent. interest upon their half; they merely sought an amount sufficient to cover the interest due since California came into the American Union—that is to say, since 1848. There was really no disputing the justice of this claim, yet it is only now that the decision has been rendered, after a long lapse of years.

The rendering of the decision is, however, one thing and the receiving of the money is quite another. Mexico is not very well able to pay a million dollars to say one, and beyond doubt she is very unwilling to give that sum to Catholic bishops. The preconcessions of an impartial arbitrator, who, being a Protestant, could have no undue sympathy with the claim, while it entitles its complete justice, will hardly hasten its payment. Indeed, it would be ungenious to expect the dollars during the life time of the present government of Mexico be allowed take her own time about their disbursement. The best chance we see is that the United States should take up the debt as its own and recoup themselves by announcing a class of Mexican tariffs—possibly, of course, and by the consent of all parties.

Whether such a thing as this will ever take place we cannot say at present, but it does not look the most unlikely thing in the world. It seems marked out by destiny that the northern provinces of Mexico shall become United States territory, and we do not think the inhabitants, at least those among them endowed with intelligence and love of order, would have any objection to such a change. Certainly it is the speediest and most certain way by which they can get rid of the turbulence and spirit of revolution which interiere so naturally with their progress. They should welcome any power which would establish order, stable life and property safe, encourage trade and commerce, and gave them a chance of keeping pace with the rest of the world in the path of progress and civilization.

They have a school teacher in San Leandro named Brodt who punishes pupils if they go up or down stairs faster than a walk, and is so doing if they look either to the right or left; and for every additional violation of this novel rule, the penalty is doubled. An eleven year old boy, named Stone, infringed the rule and was adjudged to walk up and down stairs twelve hundred and fifty times!

THE COMING WAR IN EUROPE.

The rumors of approaching war in Europe are becoming more frequent and gathering more consistency every day. They are now in such force that we fear they are well-founded, and that the peace of Europe is sure to be violently disturbed before the lapse of many months. Hostilities are rarely commenced in winter, because of the difficulty in moving large bodies of men, with their supplies and ammunition, during inclement weather; and therefore we may be confident that until the spring of next year matters will remain pretty much as they are at present. But when the wet and cold season has passed away, and earth puts on her most beautiful clothing of pleasant flowers and verdure, the work of organized murder and destruction must begin.

Messrs. the Kings and Emperors, who condescendingly undertake the work of governing nations and spending their money, have come to the conclusion that the map of Europe needs remodeling, and though the alterations may necessitate the sacrifice of half a million of lives, they feel quite satisfied that their loyal subjects will cheerfully immolate themselves for their honor, glory and profit. We do not know how these grand potentates would feel if the unlucky subjects just for once took it into their heads to stop at home, mind their families, cultivate their fields and live at peace with their neighbors; but doubtless they would consider such conduct enormously treasonable and disloyal. There is no hope, however, that the people will behave in such a Christian and rational manner, for history shows that they have never been ready to rush in the fields of slaughter for little cause, or for no cause at all, at the beck of their ambitious and unscrupulous rulers.

It is astonishing that, notwithstanding all their progress, and all their civilization, and all their talk about liberty, the simple idea that these Kings and Emperors are only weak mortals like themselves, and unable to exercise the smallest compulsion, were merely passive resistance to be generally made to their outrageous demands, never enters the oppressed people's heads. But, perhaps, it is foolish for us Americans to direct these reproaches against the peoples of Europe, when we know that we ourselves can be driven into an insane frenzy and enjoy war by the intrigues of scheming plunderers and politicians. It is said that were going to have a war with Spain, and nobody seems to know why, except that in may suit the policy of our Hal. local Administration.

The cause at present thought likely to bring about war is the prevalent desire in particular Turkey and to drive the Mahomedans back again into Asia. Prussia, Russia, Austria, Greece, and even England, would be very much to help themselves to a portion of the Sultan's dominions, but there is small prospect of their agreeing about the division, and a fight between them is by no means unthinkable. Russia would like to get Constantinople; Austria covets the Danubian principalities; Greece wants all the south western provinces; England desires Syria. These claims are conflicting, and can hardly be reconciled by the most clever diplomacy. France is not immediately interested, and, if her people love peace, she can remain neutral; but Prussia, gaze

IRISH LOCAL NEWS.

From the Dublin Nation of October 30.

ANTRIM.

A few nights since Marriott R. Halway, M. P., for Carrickfergus, was entertained by the municipal commissioners at a public dinner in the Town Hall, in recognition of his services in amicably terminating the litigation in reference to the commons of the town, which had been going on for twenty years.

ARMAGH.

At a meeting of the Lurgan Board of Guardians the question of the registry of Mary Fleming, aged 97, was discussed. It seemed that she had been registered a Presbyterian, but the Roman Catholic chaplain said she should be registered as a Catholic. It was decided that the register should remain as it was.

CARLOW.

The committee of the Carlow Agricultural Society have decided not to hold the show this year, in consequence of the prevalence of the foot and mouth disease.

Right Hon. W. Fox, ex-Prime Minister of New Zealand, who is on a brief visit to Ireland, recently delivered an interesting lecture in Carlow, the subject chosen being "Social Legislation at the Antipodes."

The result of the recent Carlow borough revision was eminently satisfactory to the Liberal party, who number 214 for the present year, against 91 Conservatives—the inevitable two majority of 123 in favor of the former.

CAVAN.

The annual election of three commissioners in Cootehill, to fill the place of those going out of office by rotation, caused some excitement in the town, in consequence of the appearance in the field of two new candidates. Two of the outgoing commissioners were renominated—John McCabe, Jr., and Hugh Maguire; the two new aspirants being Dr. Mehiland and George Murray. On a poll being taken there appeared for Dr. Mehiland, 251; George Murray, 249; Hugh Maguire, 81; John McCabe, 87; consequently the three first named gentlemen were declared duly elected.

CLARE.

The foundation-stone of a new Franciscan convent has been laid in Ennis.

At a meeting of farmers and small landowners of Ciste, held in Kilrush, Mr. Breen proposed the following resolution, which was adopted: "That we believe the tendency of the farming class in Ireland is paralyzed by the want of confidence in the minds of their capital and labor, thereby interfering with the development of the resources of the entire country, which a union of the trade and farming classes would tend materially to advance." It was then proposed that a tenant farmers' association be established, which proposition was adopted.

CORK.

The Capuchin Fathers who had been in Cork for so many years were last week replaced by the Irish Fathers. The new community consists of Very Rev. Father Louis Gonzago, Guardian; Rev. Father Benedict Merry, Vicar; Rev. Father Columbus, Rev. Father Charles, Rev. Father Angelus and Rev. Father Seraphim.

The local Conservatives, says the Cork Examiner, created a very decided victory in the battle of the registries at the present sessions. All the Liberal objections have been disallowed, and one of the city members has been disfranchised.

At the Cork police office last week, Hannah Callaghan was charged with having arms in a proclaimed district. The prisoner was arrested for an ordinary robbery of clothing materials, and on use some evening, marched off with several articles of clothing other than a Snider rifle with bayonet attached, a revolver, 80 cartridges, 856 pawnbroker's duplicates, several bullets and other articles. The prisoner was sentenced to six months' hard labor for the robbery, and the arms case was deferred for investigation. The prisoner stated the arms belonged to her brother, who, she alleged has gone to America.

The quarter sessions for the division of Cork were opened last week by Dr. D. R. Kane, Q. C. The calendar contained no fewer than eighteen cases, representing a larger amount of crime than is usually met at these sessions for a considerable period, and nearly all these offences were offences against the person, which make the matter worse.

DUBLIN.

At the revision of the Parliamentary lists for Dublin county last week, on behalf of the Home Rule Club, Chief Secretary of Ireland, a claim was made to enroll him as a voter for the county as he was the rated occupier of the Chief Secretary's Lodge, Phœnix Park. The claim was opposed by the Liberals on the ground of non-residency. The chairman decided in favor of the claim.

GALWAY.

At the last meeting of the Guardians of the Galway union, Dr. J. Fahy Greally was appointed apothecary to the dispensary and union workhouse, a position rendered vacant by the accidental drowning of Dr. Florence O'Sullivan.

At the Ballinasloe petty sessions, John Kilmurray, draper, was fined 2s, and 14s costs, for exposing for sale at the late fair of Ballinasloe cheap affidavit with the foot and mouth distemper.

KERRY.

The caretaker of the Killorney graveyard has given information to the police authorities that the grave in which the remains of the murdered woman, Mrs. Spillane, were deposited was dug up, and the skull which contained the few charred bones of the body married away.

On Saturday Head-Constable-McLean, of Tralee, arrested Miss Mason, sister of Mr. Oliver Mason, of Priuphy, on whom a deuterred body an inquest was opened on Friday week before coroner Keane, and adjourned for medical evidence regarding the result of the post mortem examination. It magnified that since the inquest, the result of which has been the lodging of Miss Mason in the county jail. Two other members of Mr. Mason's family died suddenly within the last few months. The stomach and intestines of the deceased have been forwarded to Dublin for further examination.

KILDARE.

At an influential meeting of the inhabitants of Newbridge, county Kildare, on Monday, it was resolved that in consequence of the reduction in the price of coal there should be, in the opinion of the meeting, a commensurate reduction in the price of gas.

KILKENNY.

The twenty-eight persons arrested by the police for participation in the "row" at Callan were last week committed for trial, and were kept in custody, the magistrates refusing to accept bail for their appearance. From the evidence given in the course of the investigation it appeared that the disturbances were provoked by Rev. Father O'Keeffe tying up the bell. The people, according to one of the magistrates, expressed great indignation at this proceeding, and asked what right Father O'Keeffe had to tie up the bell.

KING'S COUNTY.

Reginald Digby, Esq., nephew to and agent over the Right Hon. Lord Digby's Geashill estate, has been appointed agent over the extensive Coote property in the King's and Queen's counties.

In charging the jury at the Tullamore quarter sessions last week the chairman, Hewitt Powell Jellett, Esq., was also to congratulate them on the fact that there was not a single prisoner for trial, although it was nearly four months since he had before addressed them.

LIMERICK.

Mrs. Hogan, of Reeves Path, died recently, aged 102. She had been in the service of Lord Limerick's family for many years, and enjoyed a pension from them of one shilling a day. She preserved all her faculties with considerable vigor up to her demise.

A meeting was held at Abbeyfeale on Monday for the purpose of promoting the Limerick and North Kerry Railway. Rev. Dr. Coghlan, P. P., presided, and Mr. Curtling, the agent of the Devon estate, was present. A considerable amount of support was secured for the undertaking.

The remains of General Maunsell were removed a few days ago from Friday moor ing week from deceased's residence, George street, Limerick, for interment in the family burial vault in St. John's church. The deceased was one of the few remaining veterans who had served throughout the Peninsular and American campaigns, and had attained the ripe age of 82 when he died, after a short illness of only 3 days, at his temporary residence, Kingstown.

LONDONDERRY.

Mr. C. E. Lewis, M.P., addressed his constituents in the City Hall, Londonderry, on Wednesday night week, and had an enthusiastic reception. He referred at some length to the relations of the Irish Society to the citizens of Londonderry. He spoke of the society as being wasteful and extravagant in the administration of their trust, and quoted figures to show that they not only expended large sums in deputations, but had actually paid the members of those deputations.

LONGFORD.

At Longford quarter sessions last week, before Charles Kelly, Esq. Q. C., chairman, the revision of the jurors' and voters' list was proceeded with. Mr. Dempsey, who was lately dismissed by the Board of Superintendents of Longford jail from the local Constabulary on the ground of his desire to his name being placed on the jurors' list, as he believed himself, as the present time, unfit for such duty. He also stated that he was an officer in the Longford militia, and a civil engineer by profession.

LOUTH.

At the Dundalk quarter sessions the chairman, in addressing the Grand Jury, said there were only five cases to go before them.

At the election of Town Commissioners for Ardee last week Messrs. M. Hanpenny, A. Smith and M. Kelly retired, and were re-elected. At a meeting of the Commissioners held on the 25th inst. Patrick Markey, Esq., manager Hibernia Bank, Ardee, was elected Town Commissioner in room of the late Dr. Molver, T. C., deceased.

The handsome new Catholic church built by the Dominican Order at Ballytoolside of Newry was solemnly blessed on Sunday, October 17th, and dedicated to the Sacred Heart and to St. Catherine of Sienna by Right Rev. Dr. Leahy, Bishop of Dromore. The sacred edifice is a splendid structure in the pointed style, and a very pretty exterior of the French Gothic order, highly creditable to Mr. G. O. Ashlin, the architect. At two o'clock the venerable Bishop of the diocese, attired in Pontifical robes, wearing the mitre and staff, and accompanied by about twenty clergymen, chiefly of the Dominican Order, walked in procession down the church and round its exterior. Returning by the grand entrance, headed by a procession of two acolytes and the thurifer, the clergy chanted the Litany as they approached the sanctuary. After the usual form of prayers, they walked in processional order round the interior of the church, and the Bishop sprinkling the holy water on the walls. At eleven o'clock High Mass was celebrated. After the first Gospel, Most Rev. Dr. Croke, Archbishop of Cashel, preached the dedication sermon. At the conclusion of the Mass a collection was made, when £500 was subscribed. At the evening service Right Rev. Dr. O'Carroll preached.

MAYO.

Patrick Regan, a small country farmer living within three miles of Belleghy, county Mayo, on the Swineford side, killed his wife, Bridget Regan, Friday afternoon last. It appears that after his breakfast he went to dig potatoes, and his now deceased wife went with him to the potato field. The unfortunate woman came close to where her husband was digging, and began to talk to him in a complaining manner, when the latter struck her a dreadful blow on the head, knocking her down and nearly killing almost dead. The Belleghy police were soon on the scene, and when they reached the unfortunate man's house they found him sitting on a stool with an open razor in his hand. He, having made the attempt frequently, although it is believed he was just preparing to cut his throat. The man had been three years in the lunatic asylum at Sligo, and it is not long since he was discharged.

On our last visit to Ballinrobe, says the Connaught Telegraph, we were agreeably surprised at the many improvements that were in course of progress in that pretty town. The grounds attached to the graceful Catholic church have been inclosed by an iron railing of tasteful design, and new additions to the sacred edifice, in the shape of a transept and sacristy, are being made. We are also glad to learn that there is a likelihood that an inestimable educational boon will soon be conferred on the young generation by the establishment of a Christian Brothers' school—the landlord, Captain Knox, being prepared, we understand, to hand over to the parish priest for that purpose the spacious house at present used as a National school.

QUEEN'S COUNTY.

On Saturday morning the body of a man named Ryan, from the village of Errill, Queen's county, was found on the line rail, between Roebuck and Western Railway between Hellybrophy and Templemore. From the appearance presented it would seem that the unfortunate man was struck on the head, and his brains dashed out, by one of the night trains. Instant death must have resulted.

SLIGO.

The very sudden and unexpected death of Sr. George Jones Martin, Esq., Sligo, which took place at the deceased's residence on Sunday morning, has cast a gloom over that town. The deceased gentleman was aged sixty years, and was in perfect health on Sunday night when retiring to rest. The deceased was for years secretary of the Grand Jury of the county. He was filled the office of treasurer of the county. He was also agent over the extensive estates of W. R. Gore, Esq., M. P., the tenantry of which will be deprived of a good and charitable agent.

TIPPERARY.

At a meeting of the managing committee of the Clare Inn Boarder' Schools, Nenagh, held on Sunday, after last Mass, in the rooms of the Christian Doctrine Society, J. J. Kilkelly, Esq., in the chair, a vote of thanks was passed to the directors of the Provincial Bank of Ireland for their contribution of £5 in aid of these schools, and disappointment was expressed at the refusal of the directors of the National Bank to subscribe similarly.

WATERFORD.

Hon. W. Fox, ex-Prime Minister of New Zealand, addressed a meeting in the Town Hall of Waterford, in support of the Irish Permissive Bill. The meeting was largely attended.

WESTMEATH.

A distressing event was brought to light in Mullingar on Friday week, when, about eight o'clock a. m., some persons passing on the bank of the Royal Canal, at or near the harbor on the Longford suburb of the town, discovered the body of a young man, which, on being brought to land, proved to be that of a lad named James Gaffney, aged about nineteen years, son to a most respectable widow, keeping a wine and grocery establishment near the place where the remains were found.

WEXFORD.

The following gentlemen were elected Town Commissioners for Enniscorthy for the ensuing year without opposition: Alderman Whyland, Patrick W. Gahan, Solicitor; John Cogley, Joseph Kennedy and Peter Ryan.

WICKLOW.

The annual election of Bray Town Commissioners took place on Friday week in Bray court-house under the clauses of the new Municipal Elections Act, as adapted by Mr. Haughton, Q. C. Mr. A. Kehoe, chairman, was the chief returning officer, and Mr. G. Mayne, solicitor, attended. The state of the poll was declared as follows: Parnell (unopposed ward), Hearty, 60; Smith, 58; Tierney, 27.

Juvenile Ethics—Our Duty to Poor, Dumb Animals.

Children, be kind to animals. There was once a boy in Burlington who lived at his father's house and took a great delight in teasing animals. He would string curtain rings on the cat's tail, and torn turtles on their backs, and burn matches under the dog's nose, and fasten pepper and tobacco to the dog's ears, or tie tin cans to their tails, just to see them run and howl in terror. Well, yesterday he sailed a noble dog into the yard, and after putting on his most wicked face to attract the confidence of the noble brute, he tied a stout string to his unsuspecting tail, and began to tie an empty oyster can to the other end of the string. He was down on his knees and had made a slip-knot in the cord when a butcher's wagon rattled by, and galloping along behind it was a dog that once called this other dog, whose tail was being tied to the string, Jumbo Jarred, wall-eyed son of a sea cow, and this dog had been waiting to catch him out alone ever since. So the minute he saw him running by he made up his mind after him like a house afire. The first jump he made jerked that slip-knot so tight on that bad boy's thumb that the bad boy wasn't sure exactly what to do. He had any thumb left or not, but before he had time to look down and see, the dog was at work pulled out by the roots the dog had made another bulge for the gate, and as he thought he might as well go along in little ways and see what was up. The dog got into the street with the boy in tow, remarking to the boy that he was as used as a wet hen already and he didn't need to have him pulled to get him started. The mail, lit out in wild pursuit of his foe. The boy streaked it for his life with the dog at his heels and lit out also, howling louder at every jump. The dog thought he was encouraging him, and he thought he was all right, and if he'd come along he'd slow him a little the wickedest dog in ever see on this earth and grow on a dog's back. Down Division street they went, a thousand miles a minute, boy and dog, the dog in the lead ahead, but the boy a good second, and coming along at a 2:40 gait, and the other dog was the under the boy yelled, and the more fierce he made and the straighter he scattered out his wrath. And the boy over the butcher's wagon heard the fuss after awhile, and when he turned and recognized the dog he hastened to encourage him, and knew that dog and was going back to step his chops, and he ironic back scratched slightly the company.

Subscriptions will be charged to the usual market rates for coal

Arrangements have been made with THOMAS ANDERSON, 118 and 120 Market street, and CHAPPELLE & MILNE, 6 Kearny street, for the sale of subscription Books are now open at our office, 14 and 126 Market street, and CHAPPELLE & MILNE, 6 Kearny street.

See Prospectus for particulars.

President, JAMES B. KELLY, 126 Front street.
Vice President, JAMES VILLANAUAN, 126 Market street.
Secretary, S. S. MASON, 126 Market street. 1st

JUST PUBLISHED.

GEMS OF ENGLISH SONG.

SEVENTY-FIVE SONGS, EACH A TRUE GEM, and handsomely popular. Among the attractive pieces are—

NAZARETH.
KING CHARLES AND ARGHELUS.
ROSA BELLE.
LITTLE MAID OF ARCADEE.
MEMORY.
BY THE RUEE SEA.
ROSE MARIE.

The GEMS OF ENGLISH SONG will be sent post paid, by any address for the retail price, which is for Boards, $1; in Cloth, $1 50.

The GEMS OF ENGLISH SONG will be sent post paid, by any address for the retail price, which is for Boards, $1; in Cloth, $1 50.

Among the authors are Lady Scott, Campion, Bishop, Linley, Hatton, Burn, Tuplit, Barclay, Claribel, &c.

The GEMS OF ENGLISH SONG will be sent post paid, by any address for the retail price, which is for Boards, $1; in Cloth, $1 50.

☞ Do not forget our other recent Books:

SONG MONARCH, 72 cents, for singing Schools.
SHINING RIVER, 72 cents, for Sunday Schools.
HIGH SCHOOL CHOIR, 81, for High Schools, &c.
OLIVER DITSON & CO., C. H. DITSON & CO.
Boston. 711 Broadway, New York.

Over 1,000,000 Witnesses

Can testify to the superiority of the DIAMOND SPECTACLES AND EYE-GLASSES, they having the most perfect artificial help to the human eye ever made known to science. Try a pair and be convinced. One responsible jeweler in every city keeps them.

Beware of the genuine.

Trade mark, stamped in the bow of the Spectacles and bands of the Eye-Glasses.

SPENCER MANUFACTURING CO.,
13 Maiden Lane, New York.
California Jewelry Company (LEVISON BROS.), 104 Sansome street, San Francisco, General Agents for the Pacific Coast. 1m10

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $1 free. STINSON & Co., Portland, Me. 1y13

EDUCATIONAL.

SAINT MARY'S COLLEGE

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

Conducted by the Christian Brothers

Offers every facility for acquiring a thorough Education, whether Classical, Scientific or Commercial.

TERMS:

Those who complete the Classical Course receive the degree of A. B.; the Scientific, B. S., the Commercial, Master of Accounts.

The Commercial course has been established for the benefit of those who wish to acquire a good practical education in as short a time as possible. While proper care is bestowed on every branch taught in the College, our aim is to impart special attention. The daily exercises of the Students in Grammar, Composition and Rhetoric are publicly discussed and corrected in the class-room.

TERMS PER SCHOLASTIC YEAR.
(Payable half-yearly in advance.)

Board, Tuition and Washing.....$200 00
Entrance Fee.....10 00
Physician's Fee and Medicine.....5 00
Use of Library.....5 00
Day Students.....40 00
Use of Gymnasium.....5 00
Music, Languages, Music and drawing form extra charges.

Certificates will be received on the 4th of August.
1918 BRO. E. JUSTIN, President.

ST. VINCENT'S SCHOOL.

MISSION SAN JOSE, CAL.

Conducted by the Priests of the Congregation of the Most Precious Blood.

TERMS PER SCHOLASTIC YEAR.
(Payable half yearly in advance.)

For board, bedding, pillow, washing and mending.....$200 00
Entrance Fee, to be paid but once.....10 00
Physician's Fee.....10 00

DAY PUPILS.

Junior classes.....$40 00
Senior classes.....60 00

Vocal and instrumental music, drawing and modern languages, will form extra charges. The two sessions of the scholastic year commence on the first Monday in August and the 10th of January.

For further particulars apply to
REV. JOSEPH LUTAUD, C. P. P. S.
N. B.—Those desirous of immediate delay the second term will open on the 2nd of September, 1873.

CONVENT OF THE IMMACULATE HEART OF MARY

SAN JOSE, CAL.

EDUCATION OF YOUNG LADIES

SILENT, SANTA CLARA CO.

Conducted by the Sisters of the Most Holy and Immaculate Heart of Mary.

TERMS FOR BOARDERS:

Board, tuition washing and mending, per annum.....$200
Entrance fee, to be paid but once.....10
Physician's fee.....10
French.....10
No extra charge for Tapestry, Embroidery, Plain and Ornamental Needlework, nor for the Spanish language.

TERMS FOR DAY SCHOLARS:

Primary, per month.....$1 00
Elementary and Senior, per month.....2 00
Tuition in Music.....5 00
French.....5 00
No extra charge for Tapestry, Embroidery, Plain and Ornamental Needlework, nor for the Spanish language.

The Academic year, comprising ten months, opens on the 15th of August, and ends about the middle of June. Pupils will find it much to their advantage to be present at the opening of the session.

CLOTHES.

Board, bedding, washing.....$200 00
Entrance Fee.....10 00
Physician's Fee.....5 00
Use of Library.....5 00
Pupils remaining all the Academy during vacation.....40 00
Drawing, Painting and Needle-work extra charges. There is no extra charge for the French or Spanish language, nor for Needle-work.

All correspondence of the young ladies will be subject to the inspection of the Superioress.

Letters of inquiry may be addressed to the SUPERIOR.
1918

ST. JOSEPH'S COLLEGE,

Rohnerville, Humboldt County, Cala.

Conducted by the Priests of the Congregation of the Most Precious Blood.

TERMS PER SCHOLASTIC YEAR.
(Payable half yearly in advance.)

For board, bedding, pillow, washing and mending.....$200 00
Entrance Fee, to be paid only once.....10 00
Physician's Fee.....10 00

DAY PUPILS.

Junior classes.....$40 00
Senior classes.....60 00

Vocal and instrumental music, drawing and modern languages, will form extra charges. The two sessions of the scholastic year commence on the first Monday in August and the 10th of January.

For further particulars apply to
REV. JOSEPH LUTAUD, C. P. P. S.
N. B.—Those desirous of immediate delay the second this year will open on the 2nd of September, 1873.

CONVENT OF THE IMMACULATE HEART OF MARY

SAN JOSE, CAL.

EDUCATION OF YOUNG LADIES

SILENT, SANTA CLARA CO.

Conducted by the Sisters of the Most Holy and Immaculate Heart of Mary.

TERMS FOR BOARDERS:

Board, tuition washing and mending, per annum.....$200
Entrance fee, to be paid but once.....10
Physician's fee.....10
French.....10
No extra charge for Tapestry, Embroidery, Plain and Ornamental Needlework, nor for the Spanish language.

TERMS FOR DAY SCHOLARS:

Primary, per month.....$1 00
Elementary and Senior, per month.....2 00
Tuition in Music.....5 00
French.....5 00
No extra charge for Tapestry, Embroidery, Plain and Ornamental Needlework, nor for the Spanish language.

The Academic year, comprising ten months, opens on the 15th of August, and ends about the middle of June. Pupils will find it much to their advantage to be present at the opening of the session.

CLOTHES.

Entrance, to be paid but once.....$15 00
Board and Tuition, per month.....20 00
Washing, per quarter.....12 50
Physician's attendance (it may be preferred to pay the bill in case of sickness over quarter) 3 00
Use of Library.....5 00
There are no extra charges for the above terms, but there is no extra charge for the Piano, Harp, Guitar, Drawing, Painting, Fine Needle Sewing and Fancy Needlework.
Payment are required to be made half a session in advance. Pupils will find it much to their advantage to be present at the opening of the session. 1m7-17

ST. CATHERINE'S ACADEMY,

FOR YOUNG LADIES.

BENICIA.....CALIFORNIA.

THIS INSTITUTION IS CONDUCTED BY THE Sisters of St. Dominic, and is situated in the most healthy part of Benicia. The plan for education embraces the various branches necessary for young ladies. Particular attention is given to the French language, which is taught by a native teacher, and, for the ease of uniformity, all are required to be present at the regular religious services of the institution.

The handsome brick building, comprising ten months, opens on the 15th of August, and ends about the middle of June. Pupils will find it much to their advantage to be present at the opening of the session.

TERMS:

Board, tuition and washing.....$200 00
Entrance Fee.....10 00
Physician's Fee.....5 00
Use of Library.....5 00
Pupils remaining all the Academy during vacation.....40 00
Drawing, Painting and Needle-work extra charges. There is no extra charge for the French or Spanish language, nor for Needle-work.

All correspondence of the young ladies will be subject to the inspection of the Superioress.

Letters of inquiry may be addressed to the
SISTER IN CHARGE.
1918

ST. JOSEPH'S COLLEGE,

Rohnerville, Humboldt County, Cala.

Conducted by the Priests of the Congregation of the Most Precious Blood.

TERMS PER SCHOLASTIC YEAR.
(Payable half yearly in advance.)

For board, bedding, pillow, washing and mending.....$200 00
Entrance Fee, to be paid only once.....10 00
Physician's Fee.....10 00

DAY PUPILS.

Junior classes.....$40 00
Senior classes.....60 00

Vocal and instrumental music, drawing and modern languages, will form extra charges. The two sessions of the scholastic year commence on the first Monday in August and the 10th of January.

For further particulars apply to
REV. JOSEPH LUTAUD, C. P. P. S.
N. B.—Those desirous of immediate delay the second this year will open on the 2nd of September, 1873.

CONVENT OF THE IMMACULATE HEART OF MARY

SAN JOSE, CAL.

EDUCATION OF YOUNG LADIES

SILENT, SANTA CLARA CO.

Conducted by the Sisters of the Most Holy and Immaculate Heart of Mary.

TERMS FOR BOARDERS:

Board, tuition washing and mending, per annum.....$200
Entrance fee, to be paid but once.....10
Physician's fee.....10
French.....10
No extra charge for Tapestry, Embroidery, Plain and Ornamental Needlework, nor for the Spanish language.

TERMS FOR DAY SCHOLARS:

Primary, per month.....$1 00
Elementary and Senior, per month.....2 00
Tuition in Music.....5 00
French.....5 00
No extra charge for Tapestry, Embroidery, Plain and Ornamental Needlework, nor for the Spanish language.

The Academic year, comprising ten months, opens on the 15th of August, and ends about the middle of June. Pupils will find it much to their advantage to be present at the opening of the session.

CLOTHES.

Entrance, to be paid but once.....$15 00
Board and Tuition, per month.....20 00
Washing, per quarter.....12 50
Physician's attendance (it may be preferred to pay the bill in case of sickness over quarter) 3 00
Use of Library.....5 00
There are no extra charges for the above terms, but there is no extra charge for the Piano, Harp, Guitar, Drawing, Painting, Fine Needle Sewing and Fancy Needlework.
Payment are required to be made half a session in advance. Pupils will find it much to their advantage to be present at the opening of the session. 1m7-17

ST. CATHERINE'S ACADEMY,

FOR YOUNG LADIES.

BENICIA.....CALIFORNIA.

THIS INSTITUTION IS CONDUCTED BY THE Sisters of St. Dominic, and is situated in the most healthy part of Benicia. The plan for education embraces the various branches necessary for young ladies. Particular attention is given to the French language, which is taught by a native teacher, and, for the ease of uniformity, all are required to be present at the regular religious services of the institution.

The handsome brick building, comprising ten months, opens on the 15th of August, and ends about the middle of June. Pupils will find it much to their advantage to be present at the opening of the session.

TERMS:

Board, tuition and washing.....$200 00
Entrance Fee.....10 00
Physician's Fee and Medicine.....5 00
Use of Library.....5 00
Pupils remaining all the Academy during vacation.....40 00
Drawing, Painting and Needle-work extra charges. There is no extra charge for the French or Spanish language, nor for Needle-work.

All correspondence of the young ladies will be subject to the inspection of the Superioress.

Letters of inquiry may be addressed to the
SISTER IN CHARGE.
1918

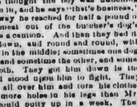
ST. VINCENT'S COLLEGE,

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

DEGREES CONFERRED

Rev. JAMES MARCHIS, D. M., President

RUSS HOUSE COACHES.



Nos. 27, 40, 18, 97 and 109.

McNALLY & BLATTNER.....Proprietors.

Orders left at the Russ House will be promptly attended to. Rates most reasonable. 1910

EDUCATIONAL.

SAINT IGNATIUS COLLEGE,

SAN FRANCISCO.

Conducted by the Fathers of the Society of Jesus.

This Literary Institution was incorporated, according to the laws of the State, in the month of April, 1855, and empowered to confer academical degrees with such literary honors as are granted by any University in the United States.

The object of the Institution is to give a thorough Classical, Mathematical and Philosophical education. For, as the Classical course is there, a Commercial Course. The College is attended daily by fifteen only.

TERMS PER MONTH

(Payable in advance.)

Tuition, in Preparatory Department.....$1 00
In Grammar Department.....1 00
In Higher Branches.....1 00

EXTRA CHARGES.

For the use of Instruments in Natural Philosophy and Chemicals, first year, per month.....$1 00
For the use of Instruments, etc., second year, per month.....1 00
For each Academical Degree.....10 00

CONVENT OF OUR LADY OF THE SACRED HEART,

OAKLAND.....CALIFORNIA.

Conducted by the Sisters of the Holy Names of Jesus and Mary.

THIS INSTITUTION IS PLEASANTLY SITUated between Webster street and Lake Merritt, commanding an extensive view of the bay. All the building recently erected, is supplied with the most approved sanitary arrangements, having separate apartments for the comfort of the boarders. The course of study embraces the various branches of a solid, useful and refined education.

TERMS (payable half yearly in advance):

Board and Tuition (French included).....$125 00
Bed and bedding, without sheets (if supplied).....15 00
Piano, Guitar, Vocal Music, Drawing and Painting form extra charges.
For further particulars apply to
MOTHER SUPERIORESS.

NOTRE DAME ACADEMY,

SAN FRANCISCO.

THIS ACADEMY, WHICH IS CONDUCTED by the Sisters of Notre Dame, is situated on Hayes street, between Gough and Octavia.

Besides being located in one of the most healthy and pleasant parts of the city, the class-rooms are large and well ventilated. The system of education embraces all the branches of a polite and solid education, and the means for healthful exercise during the recreation hours.

The course of instruction embraces every needful and practical branch for a good Academic education.

The next session will commence on the first Monday in August.

TERMS (payable half yearly in advance):

BOARDING PUPILS,

Per quarter, washing included, in advance.....$ 60 00
Board, tuition, washing, with use of bedding.....40 00
Half boarders.....20 00
Use of Piano.....10 00
Vocal Music.....10 00
Drawing and Painting.....10 00
Violin.....10 00
Various spent at the Academy.....10 00

DAY PUPILS.

Terms per month (in advance):
Select Day Scholars, first and second
Ordinary classes.....$2 00
Junior and Senior Grammar Classes.....3 00
Primary and Primer.....1 00
Use of Piano, per month, throughout the Classes.....1 00
For further particulars apply to the Superioress, Academy.
For further particulars apply to the Superioress.
1m17

SANTA CLARA COLLEGE,

SANTA CLARA,.....CALIFORNIA.

Under the management of the Fathers of the Society of Jesus.

THE SANTA CLARA COLLEGE WAS FOUNDED in 1851, and in 1855 was incorporated, with the privileges of a University. Diplomas are given a few degrees conferred on students.

The College buildings are large and commodious, and are supplied with all the modern conveniences, a swimming pool, etc., added every year for health and comfort.

The College possesses a very complete philosophical apparatus, a Cabinet of Natural History, a Museum of Mineralogy, Geology and Paleontology, a Museum of Zoology, and a Chemical Laboratory.

The Academic Year, which is divided into two sessions of five months each, commences in August and closes in the first week of July.

TERMS:

(Payable semi-annually, in advance)

Matriculation Fee, to be paid but once.....$10 00
Board, Lodging, Tuition, Washing, and Mending of Linen, School Stationery, Medical Attendance and Medicines, Baths, Use of Library per year.....$150 00
Modern Languages, Drawing and Music form extra charges. For Clothing, Books, Pocket money, etc., parents will be required to deposit $50 00
For further particulars, apply to
REV. J. BOURGET, S. J., President.
1910

FRANCISCAN COLLEGE,

SANTA BARBARA.....CALIFORNIA.

THE NINTH SESSION OF THIS INSTITUtion, conducted by the Fathers of the Order of St. Francis, will commence on the first Monday in August.

The object of the Institution is to give a good English, Mathematical, Classical and Philosophical education, and to form young gentlemen of sound principles and habits.

The course of studies embraces the various branches of a solid, useful and refined education.

TERMS (payable half yearly in advance):

Board and Tuition.....$125 00
Bed and bedding.....15 00
Physician's Fee.....10 00
Piano, Guitar, Vocal Music, Drawing and Painting form extra charges.
For further particulars apply to
REV. J. M. ROMO, O. S. F.

SANTA CLARA ADVERTISEMENTS.

CAMERON HOUSE,

SANTA CLARA, CAL.

MARTIN CORCORAN.....PROPRIETOR.

MR. CORCORAN, having purchased the above named House, respectfully solicits a share of the patronage of his friends and the public generally. The House is situated in the most desirable part of the town, and is replete with all the means for healthful exercise during the recreation hours.

The Hotel is commodious; the rooms are large, well furnished and ventilated, and the accommodations are healthy and pleasing to the eye.

The table will be supplied with a fine stable of horses and carriages, which can be had at any hour of the day or night, at reasonable rates. 1m17

WILLIAM HARNEY, Clerk.

D. BERGIN,

SANTA CLARA.....CALIFORNIA

Dry Goods, Clothing, Boots and Shoes

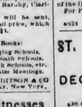
To be found south of San Francisco, which he will sell as low than San Francisco rates. 1m17

SAN JOSE ADVERTISEMENTS.

L. GIBBARD, WATCHMAKER AND JEWELER, 37, 39, 41 South First street, San José. 1m7

SAN JOSE MARBLE WORKS.

E. POWER,
Sculptor,
SAN JOSE.



STATUARY TOMBS, HEAD-STONES, FOUNTAINS,

And every description of MARBLE WORK. DESIGNING, MOULDING, &c.

And every style Wood and Stone Turning. Material and Chimney Work a specialty. 1m

A Fop's Adventure in Church.

Darwin says man is the great-grandchild of the long tailed quresog-ensing, which infests hot climates, and in many cases the old gentleman is right far from being right. The nearest kin, or apparent kin, to the animal referred to is the long legged shady. He is very tall and very thin, with a saddle colored complexion and well oiled hair—generally black. He wears a shiny silk plug, and sports a slender cane; he wears eye glasses and ogles the girls as they pass him on the street.

Well, one night last week a youth answering to this description entered St. John's Cathedral. He looked timid; yes, timid—shone in his light eyes. On one arm he carried a blanket shawl big enough to smother himself with, on the other there hung a young lady, buxom and fair to look upon. He supressed up the aisle—it wasn't hard for him to pass: the aisle and lady led it. She was led back tearfully, and the steps were silent and mincing as she listened onward, looking for a good seat, but the pews were all full, and they were in debate. At last the church was given up to the alligator. As soon as the waiter's surface was reached the infuriated monster, lashing in the situation at a glance, made a terrible plunge at Gracie, and, striking him in the breast, knocked him into the middle of a field general she slowly began to rise. Then the fop of war continued. Pallback dressed in terrible bothers in times of devotion; it takes one so long to get up and sit down, that an hour's service is nothing to him. On one edge of the seat and was happy.

But where was he all this time? Standing in a crowd of gaping people, with his heart sunk as he gazed at his fair, fond lady. Scrupled and fearless action of his pristine beauty? He held it daintily in his hand, and never took his eyes off its delicate form. Suddenly everybody gave him—our barrister friend followed suit, and, steel in the knee of a son of Erin did not cause, and off it went, with a report. It recovered, into court. Pat blessed the air after a very enthusiastic fashion, and got a look of withering contempt upon the face. Gracie was successful after the struggle, with our friend grasped for breath, and when the time came up stand up, he found that he lost so suddenly that for moments he set up a deafening roar almost equal to that of a lion.—Quinsea (Ga.) Reporter.

CATHOLICITY IN POLAND.

A letter dated Warsaw, 28th September, has appeared in the Germania. It says: In consequence of the understanding between the Roman Curia and the Petersburg Cabinet, Bishop Vincent Popiel, formerly Bishop of Plock, but lately "precoinised" Bishop of Kelbe, who, because he would not recognize the authority of the Catholic Synod of Petersburg, had been for many years banished into the northern parts of Russia, has been permitted to come to his See by an Imperial ukase dated 10th September; or, as the official Warsaw Gazette more plainly expresses it, the "Roman Catholic Bishop Vincent Popiel has been most graciously commanded to be the diocesan Bishop of Plock." He has to-day (Tuesday) set out on his way to his new diocese. Many one of the street, is continued the Pope had intervened on the side of the Russian Government, and all the efforts of the ecclesiastical authorities in favor of the clergy would result in permission to introduce the Russian language into the Liturgy, now only used in Polish, and the clergy will be obliged to recognize the episcopal position of Mgr. Popiel. In a word, the Russian Church will endeavor to paralyze, as far as possible, his management of the diocese. His private dwelling will be inviolable, and the ordinance laws, it is said, seriously affected his See. The Bishop and his staff and regular of the Bank will be sufficient guarantee for the safety of deposits.

Remittances from a distance may be made by check on New York, or by post office order. Case Notes will be promptly forwarded as desired.

Correspondents:

ISNARDIE, KELLY & CO.....San Francisco
MESSRS. ROTHSCHILD & SONS.....London
CONSOLIDATED BANK.....London
BANK OF IRELAND.....Dublin
au15

THE FIRST NATIONAL Gold Bank of San Francisco.

Office—Southwest corner of Montgomery and Merchant streets.

Paid up Capital, - $2,000,000 Gold.

Jno. F. Hueston, ... President
D. Oakleaf Low, ... Vice-President
C. O. Hooker, ... Cashier
Peter Donohoe,
James C. Flood,
James Mackie.
M. Van Bergen

CORRESPONDENTS.

LONDON: Baring Brothers & Co.
PARIS: Heine & Co.
BERLIN: Bleichroder & Co.
HAMBURG: Heine, Newman & Co.
NEW YORK: Duncan, Sherman & Co.
BOSTON: Blackstone National Bank.
CHICAGO: First National Bank.

This Bank is prepared to transact a general Banking business.

Deposits in Gold, Silver and Currency received subject to check or on special deposit.

Drafts drawn on all the principal cities of the United States, Great Britain and Ireland, and the Continent.

Commercial Credits issued available in Europe, China and Japan.

Collections attended to and prompt returns made at the lowest market rate of Exchange.

MENEELY'S BELLS,

WEST TROY, NEW YORK.

Established in 1826.

CHURCH, ACADEMY, FACTORY AND OTHER BELLS, made of Pure Copper and Tin, warranted satisfactory. For prices and catalogues apply to MENEELY & COMPANY,
West Troy, New York.

$10 TO $500

INVESTED IN WALL Street, will pay from 100 to 1000 per cent. profit. A Treatise, explaining everything, and how to operate in

CATHOLIC INTELLIGENCE.

—Father Durbin, a native Kentuckian, is now in his seventy-sixth year. Recently he sang High Mass on the occasion of the fifty-third anniversary of his ordination as a priest.

—Rev. Wm. Hickey, Rector of Malmaison, county Wexford, died on the morning of October 25th, aged 56. He was well known in the literary world under the name of Martin Doyle.

—The ex-priest Jacquemont, whose secession from religion in Baltimore not long since gave so much comfort to the Christian Association, but who subsequently retracted as a penitent, died in Montreal of heart disease a few days ago.

—In the congregation of St. Mary's, Galveston, Texas, there are over three hundred members who, at different times, have abandoned the sects to be received into the fold of the Catholic Church.

—Rev. James A. Rooney, O.P., it is reported, has been transferred from the Dominican Monastery of St. Louis Bertrand, Louisville, Ky., to the new Dominican House at Newark, New Jersey.

—Rev. James M. Hunt died at the Sisters' Hospital, Cleveland, O., on Sunday evening, October 31. Father Hunt was born at Garrison, county Sligo, Ireland. He was about 28 years of age at the time of his death.

—Bear Taculsie, known to the world as Miss Ellen Clarke, died at the residence of the Sisters of Mercy, Charleston, on Sunday night, the 24th ult., at eleven o'clock, in the seventieth year of her age. She was a native of county Cavan, Ireland, and had been a resident of this community for over forty years.

—Mrs. Dr. Fagan, of Middletown, Conn., was received into the Catholic Church, in the Convent of Mercy, in that city, November 3d. Rev. Fyers of St. John's College, Fordham, performed the ceremony, assisted by Father E. Murphy, pastor of St. John's church, Middletown.

—A correspondent, writing from Augusta, Ga., says that the Right Rev. Bishop Gross is making remarkable progress in that diocese among so exclusively Protestant people. Every town and village where he visits gets him free ground and money to build a church on. Nowhere in the State are Methodists are a people whose feelings and sentiments are more in unison with the children of the Emerald Isle.

—The London papers announce the conversion of another Protestant Episcopalian, who has just been received into the Church in Chichester, England—namely, Rev. W. Robertson. This gentleman belongs to Boston, and was one of the number who "left the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States to become Priests of the Society of St. John the Evangelist." They were a dozen resembling a monk's habit, lived community life, professing poverty and celibacy, and practicing great austerity and mortification.

—The Biographical Encyclopedia of the Nineteenth Century, in a sketch of the Rt. Rev. Bishop Domenec, of Pittsburgh, Pa., states that during the late rebellion, in 1868, when the Spanish Government was on the point of recognizing the Confederacy, he embarked for Madrid, was granted several interviews with the Queen and her chief Ministers, and ultimately secured the withdrawal of the recognition by Spain of the latter. This highly important mission was undertaken at the request of the then Archbishop Hughes, who had been deputized by the United States to arrange this delicate difficulty, but was prevented by sickness. Bishop Domenec, of all those who had been sent by the Government of the United States to arrange this matter, was the only one who ever really succeeded in its mission.

—The London Telegraph says: "At a recent Grand Lodge of the Independent Order of Good Templars, held at Heeger's Circus, London, it was resolved to take steps to secure the membership felt by members of members in consequence of the disability imposed by the Pope on those who belonged to the Catholic faith, his Holiness vetoing membership in the Order. Correspondence with the Supreme Grand Lodge Executive have been corresponding with Cardinal Manning on the subject, and the Irish members having consented to an interview, Mr. Joseph Malins, Grand Worthy Chief Templar, and Mr. W. Kirkup, Chairman of the Grand Lodge Committee of Conciliation, have met the Cardinal at his residence in Carmelite street. The discussion of the question was protracted, and it is stated that, while Cardinal Manning expressed his willingness to recognize the excellence of the Order and to wish it God-speed as a powerful organization for the extension of the cause of true freedom, yet the difficulties in the way of the removal of the disabilities were insuperable."

A Word in Season.

It is just as sure as anything in the future that the Presidential election next year will rise up as cause of agitation as ever. Indeed it seems to be certain that such a subject will be the aim of a large party of politicians. The recent speech of President Grant was intended to be the key-note of the election. Others will follow, he will stick to his utterance, and repeat it. He has just intelligence enough to be the leader of a prospective Know Nothing party. Some men would enter such a subject knowing it to be wicked and injurious; but a man of Grant's low organization would be likely to take a specious showing for the truth, especially when it suited with his own religious bias.

From this time forward the Radical Republican press will keep before the people the sore sores of "Popish plots," "Jesuitical persuasions," and the dangers to be met in the public schools." How cleverly they stirred up the anti Catholic feeling for the late electional They knew perfectly well that they will surely repeat the trick; and if Catholic citizens will not divide on party, but propose for the issue, they may be indicted or forced to play into the hands of those who are pulling the wires.

The attempt will be made to force Catholics into party opposition, so as to create a class division, or to compel them to abandon their principles for the sake of popular favor. Both dangers have suggested of late. By seeing it constantly in print, for some week heard Catholics have arrived at the belief that it was a good thing to be a true American citizen, and that to ask for liberty, education for children is opposed to the fundamental principles of the American Constitution.

The scheme will fail for it is so judiciously treated by those against whom it is projected. It should be regarded as a friend and a vain political dodge. It should not have power to make any one lose temper. It should serve only to make Catholic citizens more quietly self asserting as to their religious rights. It should be a warning against angry speech and sorrow party accusation. Catholic citizens do not wish nor need to make noise. If they only express their views all the intelligence and justice of the country. There is no necessity for them to belong to this party or to to that; they may belong to either, and be as good Catholics and citizens. We are able to point to the American Catholic hierarchy and ask—where are there better citizens? We can say of our splendid priesthood—where have you truer Americans or more respectable men? We are able to say of our numbers that we yield to no other membership, and can claim for the perpetuation of both, through morality and religion.—Boston Pilot.

THE ELECTION OF A POPE.

The Paris Figaro, notwithstanding its frivolous character, is nevertheless a fairly well-informed paper.

Speaking upon the visit of the German Emperor to Milan, it said: "It is generally believed in political circles that the religious question will be one of the first to be discussed by the Emperor and the King of Italy. They will confer upon the election of the future Pope." If the two monarchs really troubled their heads about the next Pope, their conversation might fairly be opened by the reading of a speech, addressed in 1800 by Bonaparte to the priests of Milan. After winning the battle of Lodi on May 21, 1796, the French entered Milan and proclaimed the Cisalpine Republic. Three years later, being victorious, they were obliged to abandon the capital of Lombardy, and the Austro-Russian army entered it on April 26, 1799. On that day Napoleon was in Egypt, where he returned in 1800 and began his campaign. From Paris he came immediately to Italy and won the battle of Marengo, and on June 24 entered Milan, which was again proclaimed the capital of the Cisalpine Republic. "On June 5 is assembled all the parish priests of Milan before him, and addressed them in a speech of remarkable power, which was afterwards printed at Milan. Curiously enough, in 1800 the mind of political Europe was, as it is now, preoccupied about the Papacy. Pius VI. was dead, and many said he was the last Pope. But Providence had again given the Church a chief in the person of the illustrious Pius VII., and Bonaparte in his speech addressed the clergy of the French Directory. What he said to them is interesting to us now. Pope, I hope to be able to efface all those difficulties which prevent the reconciliation of France with the Supreme Shepherd of the Church. I am well acquainted with all you have suffered, both in your persons and in your worldly possessions, and I shall give orders that a part at least of the property which has been taken from you shall be returned. These are the best means which I desire to manifest to you with respect to the work which I have at heart concerning the Roman Catholic religion. I wish them to be praised and exhaustively circulated, not only in Italy and France, but throughout Europe."

King Victor and his German guest might well have opened their debates upon the Papacy by the solemn reading of this allocution.

An Italian Appeal to Emperor William.

Soon after the arrival of the Emperor of Germany in Italy an address was forwarded to his Majesty from the Society of the Catholic Youth of Italy, whose central council is at Bologna, asking him to exercise his influence for the restoration of liberty to the persecuted Church of Germany, and for the release of those illustrious German prelates who are now enduring imprisonment for their faith. The following is a translation of the address:

Most Serene and Powerful Emperor—Will you permit that, in the name of several thousands of young Italian Catholics, I plead together in the one association for the defence of the rights of the Roman Church, and in a desire which is shared in by millions upon millions of the children of Italy, which to-day enjoys the honor of receiving you as its guest—will you permit, in the name of God, to look with kindness upon this appeal, in the spirit that I desire it to be introduced not merely the vain and barren applause of men, but the rich and glorious blessing of heaven. We remain, sire, your Majesty's humble and obedient servants,

JOHN ACHILLE ROSINI,
President of the Superior Council of the Society of Catholic Youth.
ALFONSUS RUSINI,
Secretary General.

Bologna, October 18, 1875.

The answer of the Emperor, if received, has not yet been published. It is probable that the answer will be sent from Berlin, now that his Majesty has arrived there.

A Train of Evils.

If weakness of the stomach is allowed to become chronic, the following evils supervene:—Digestion is permanently impaired, the system is very imperfectly nourished, the blood becomes thin and watery, and the bile being unemployed for digestive and evacuative purposes, enters the circulation through the thoracic duct, and injects itself into the superficial vessels, giving to the skin and whites of the eyes the saffron tinge indicative of biliousness. Headache, nausea, constipation, pains in the sides, palpitations, heart burn, dizziness, and many other harassing symptoms which accompany the internal derangement above described, which, if unchecked in its career by the use of various diseases, as the rising of the sun by twilight. It is manifest, therefore, that an inability of the stomach to act upon the food should be overcome without delay. The invigorating influence upon that organ of Hostetter's stomach Bitters is speedily felt in the disappearance of all the distressing symptoms enumerated. The prescribed mineral remedies for general debility usually fail to relieve the dyspeptic, because they do not bring the stomach into healthy action. The vegetable invigorant does not merely relieve, it cures. It is because we are trustful in the royalty of your heart, in your quality of father of your people, that we, as we implore you, in the name of God, to look with kindness upon this appeal, in the spirit that it is presented to you. Reason cannot give and Catholic McGeehy addressed the Pope, applause of men, but the rich and glorious blessing of heaven. We remain, sire, your Majesty's humble and obedient servants,

THE ARCADE,

MARKET STREET, NEAR FOURTH.

NOVELTIES IN SILKS!

NOVELTIES IN DRESS GOODS!

☞ Our arrangements for the Fall season are now complete, and we have at present on exhibition the most extensive assortment of European Novelties ever introduced to the Ladies of California.

DOMESTIC GOODS.

In this department we have now completed all our contracts for the coming season, and are prepared to offer housekeepers every species of Domestic Goods at prices which cannot be approached by any house in San Francisco.

SPECIAL NOTICE.—Two-Button Jouvin Gloves, ☞ $1 50 per Pair. The immense sale of these Gloves in the past ten days is a distinct indication that the Ladies of San Francisco have now realized the fact that the opportunity now presented for the purchase of Jouvin Gloves may never again occur. Note the price—Two-Button Jouvin Gloves, $1 50 per pair. ☞ Every pair guaranteed.

J. J. O'BRIEN & CO.,

924, 926 AND 928 MARKET STREET.

IMPORTANT NOTICE!

Second Grand Annual Sale of

Ladies' and Gents' BOOTS AND SHOES.

MENS AND BOYS' CUSTOM-MADE CLOTHING

NO FANCY PRICES. Dry Goods, Etc.

JAMES O'HANLON & CO.,

725 MONTGOMERY STREET, West Side, near Jackson.

J. OPPENHEIM & CO. beg leave to inform their numerous friends and patrons that they will sell for the next sixty days, regardless of cost, their IMMENSE STOCK OF STAPLE GOODS. Strangers visiting the city will find it to their advantage to call and compare our prices with those of other stores; they will readily see that they can save 25 cents on the dollar. To be closed out—

1200 pairs Ladies Knickbox face Kids	$1 25
1000 pairs Ladies' Balmorals	1 50
Extra quality Balmorals	1 75
Misses Kid Good Balmorals	1 50
Misses' Goat Balmorals	1 25
Ladies' Gaiters, extra quality	2 00
Ladies' Gaiters, common quality	1 50
10 pairs Carpet Sweepers	50
10 pairs Carpet Sweepers	75
Men's Custom Made Boots	$5
Boys' Custom made Boots	3
Children's Kid Shoes	1
Men's Calf Boots	3
Men's Rubber Boots (long)	3
Men's Rubber Boots (short)	2
Long pegged Miners' Brogans, serviceable and cheap	2
Pegged Brogans	1
Pegged Heavy Satin Pumps	1
A splendid lot of Men's Overcoats	$7
Boys' Clothing at specially reduced prices

☞ All other garments made at proportionately low rates. Samples sent by mail. Orders executed with promptness and dispatch.

J. OPPENHEIM & CO.,
Fine Livery Suits.

1924 ly

STEINWAY & SONS'
PIANOS.
Square, $475 and $550.
Square Grand, $600.
Upright, $550, $600, $800.
Grand, $1,080, $1,200.
☞ Illustrated Catalogues on application.
KRANICH, BACH & CO'S (New York)
SUPERIOR PIANOS.
At a moderate cost—by ordering $100 and $125 pianos.
Sold for cash, or on the installment plan at cash prices, with part cash, per month, added on deferred payments.
MATTHIAS GRAY,
205 Kearny Street, San Francisco, and
121 First Street, Portland, O.
General Agent for manufacturers for the Pacific Coast.

REMOVAL
OF THE ANTISELL
PIANO COMPANY
TO
865 MARKET STREET
OPPOSITE POWELL.

For sixty days we will sell our Celebrated Improved PIANOS at second-hand prices. Pianos to rent, tuned and repaired, and on monthly installments. 18

Languages and Sciences.

AN OLD PROFESSOR OF ANCIENT AND MODERN LANGUAGES, who has had many years' practical experience in the city, teaches Latin, Greek, French, Spanish, Italian, German, Hebrew, English and English. Those who like literary, scientific and classical studies will find in him a man of thorough information and of the most important seven living languages also of the Ancient Classics, as well as of Mathematics, Science, as Physics, Metaphysics, History of Literature, Rhetoric, Logic, Political Economy, Philosophy and Moral Science. He has also practical applications of the Science of Electricity, Galvanism, Magnetism, Optics, Acoustics, Astronomy, Mechanics, Hydrostatics, Hydraulics, Pneumatics, &c. Some of these studies are respectfully invited to see him at the Mercantile Library Building, Room No. 1 front on Bush street.

D. A. O'CONNELL
WATCH AND CLOCK MAKER
155 Third street, near Howard.
He will examine your Watch and Clock free of charge, and repair them at very moderate prices. Watches and Clocks cleaned and warranted for one year. Jobbing promptly attended to. Orders from the country solicited. 1y

Chocks, Jewelry, Silver and Plated Ware, as good and cheap as any house in the city. Please call and examine for yourself. Store open from 8 A.M. to 9 P.M. Sundays from 9 A.M. to 12 M. 1y

GEO. T. HANLY & CO.
EXTRA CHOICE
TEAS
COFFEES GROCERIES
822 MARKET ST. SAN FRANCISCO

4 pounds Excellent Coffee.....
5 pounds Best Coffee.....
1 pound Best English Breakfast Tea.....
1 pound Splendid Japan Tea.....
1 pound Good Black Tea.....

G. T. HANLY & CO.
Also Publishers of the San Francisco Directory. 1y 20 Dec

Tempora Patrocinium Nunquam Hominum.

"Time Past Never Returns."

IF YOU WANT TO HAVE YOUR CLOCKS or Watches keep good time, and cheap and trouble, you can do no better than call on Mr. Wm. Hoffmann, 1 Montgomery block, corner of Montgomery and Commercial streets, where you will find a large assortment of Clocks, Watches, Jewelry, Silver and Plated Ware, at reasonable prices. You will find Mr. Hoffmann a practical watchmaker. 1y

THE MONITOR & GUARDIAN,
The Only Irish and Catholic Journal in California.
LYONS & BARRY, - - - - Publishers.
RICHARD O'SULLIVAN, ... EDITOR.
OFFICE—524 CLAY STREET, between Montgomery and Kearny sts. Rooms 3, 7 and 8, up-stairs.

TERMS (Payable in advance):

Served by Carriers, per week	10c
Mail subscribers, per year	$4 00
Six months	2 00
Mail Subscribers in Ireland or either of the British Provinces, per annum	5 00
Do. do. six months	3 00

☞ Postage in each case prepaid by publishers.

JOHN J. TOBIN,
Stock Broker,
(Pacific Stock Exchange).
Will promptly transact purchases and sales of Stock entrusted to him. Business strictly confidential.

VERNON, TOBIN & CO.,
Office—Next to Safe Deposit Company's Bank, cor. Montgomery and California sts., San Francisco.

WHERE THE BEAUTIFUL RIVERS FLOW.

Oh, 'tis along thought of a fairy land in the lap of the west,
And of all the lands I've traveled o'er, 'tis the loveliest and best;
Where the willows weep and the roses sleep, and the balmy breezes blow,
In that dear old land, that sweet old land, where the beautiful rivers flow.

But oh, alas! how can I sing? The air cells breathes the voice
And that dear old land of my heart's love is not my native land;
And the very lips that fill my breast must ever be sealed
For that dear old land, that sweet old land, where the beautiful rivers flow.

But I'll sing of the lovely old cherry lands where our fathers were born,
Where the country's sland, those rules grand that our fathers have worn;
And I'll strike the harp with a mournful touch, till the very listening heart shall know
That I sing of that dear old land, that sweet old land, where the beautiful rivers flow.

And I'll sing of Emmet's lovely fate, and of his heroic band
Of him who proved and fought and bled, and his spirit still shall stand
And oh! how sweet and calm his rest, though his grave be cold and low,
In that dear old land, that sweet old land, where the beautiful rivers flow.

And I'll sing of Tone and Geraldine, proud Edward true and kind—
They're names that live in the martyr's crown—and they sleep in stately and rest;
In hearts of Irishmen their names are rolled—they died for that dear old land, that sweet old land, where the beautiful rivers flow.

And I'll sing of Ireland's ancient days, when her wave were almighty men,
When her name was a spell that nearly race through forest, flood and glen;
Whose every word was the sabbing sword—whose pen, the pathway knew
For that dear old land, that sweet old land, where the beautiful rivers flow.

PATRICK RYAN.

Cardinal Archbishop McCloskey.

On the third page of this issue we give a brief account of the reception in London and Dublin of his Eminence the Cardinal Archbishop of New York. The Dublin Freeman publishes the following record of his Eminence's career in that city:

Their Eminences Cardinal Cullen and Cardinal McCloskey drove from the archiepiscopal residence shortly after 11 o'clock on Monday, 8th November, and visited a number of religious educational and charitable establishments in the city. The first which had the honor of receiving them was the model national schools of the Sisters of Charity in King's-inn street, where they were received by the Superioress and community, and conducted to the establishment. They next visited the Industrial Schools—street schools—conducted by the St. Vincent's Hospital, Stephen's-green, under the management of the Sisters of Charity; the Presentation Convent on Georgestreet, the Loretto Convent at Rathfarnham, and the Sacred Heart Convent at Donnybrook. On the following day their Eminences visited the Roman Catholic Missionary College of Clondalkin, and on the 10th visited the Sisters of Charity in Upper Gardiner street, and the Mater Misericordiæ Hospital. At Scotia's College they were received by the President, Very Rev. Dr. Verdon, who accompanied their Eminences through the various departments of the college. The latter, which lasted about an hour, afforded Cardinal McCloskey an opportunity of identifying the lively interest which he evinced in the welfare and prosperity of the youth of the college. Their Eminences, on leaving, expressed themselves much gratified by the result of their visit. They next visited the Gardiner-street Convent and Schools, where they were received at the door by Superioress, who conducted the distinguished visitors through the interior. In the young ladies' school of this establishment Cardinal Cullen put some questions to the pupils, which were promptly answered. Before the visitors took their departure, they next drove to the magnificent building of the Mater Misericordiæ Hospital, which they entered by the door of the Sisters' residence, who accompanied them through a number of wards. The patients in the wards through which the Cardinals passed had the consolation of receiving their blessing, and Cardinal McCloskey addressed to them the final absolution to one poor man who was actually dying. They were then presented by the rain from visiting their drive, and returned to Eccles street about 3 P. M.

Rev. J. W. Shackleford, a Protestant Episcopal minister, sold some plain truths about Protestant churches to the Episcopal Congress. He said: What in the large towns of Protestantism are called churches were found to be a fine church, not for Almighty God, but because they would draw a good congregation. They make the edifice like a tabernacle. The first wants to be built of brown stone for the wealthy to look upon, while the back is built of brick, for the residents of the back street and God to look upon. When the church is open, behind a fine organ is placed therein, and an organist and choir engaged, after which the whole is beautified by an enormous music-page. The singers are paid high salaries, for the music is the thing sought after, and not to bring fine people to the church, and to hear and not the pews. This was all wrong. And yet, as he had said, the same organists and singers were to be found in the synagogues of Protestants do not go to church because of any obligation resting on them to attend, but because they like to hear a good preacher, listen to fine music, and be in the fashion. But good preachers and fine music are very expensive, and it is necessary to have high pew rents and to attract the wealthy. Thus the poor are being lost to Protestantism and gained by the Church, or by secular infidelity.

The great case of the Union Pacific Railroad Company against the United States has been decided by the Supreme Court in favor of the Railroad Company. The suit involved, directly and indirectly, about $60,000,000.

Leading physicians in the East use Dr. Jayne's Expectorant in cases of threatened consumption in which we are assembled remind us that Catholic University education is untrammeled in the United States. May it please Almighty God to grant your Eminence many and prosperous years of usefulness in the high office and dignity to which He has called you by the voice of His Vicar upon earth, that you may abide His Church in America through the paths of liberty to the honor which is her due; may He long continue to give to your own New York in you a pastor according to His own heart; and may He, the Prince of Pastors, grant you an eternal reward hereafter."

The Rector, after reading the address, said his Eminence had specially requested that his reply might be listened to silently, and without any demonstration whatever.

CARDINAL MCCLOSKEY'S REPLY.

His Eminence Cardinal McCloskey, in replying, said: My Lords, respected Professors, and Students of the Catholic University of Ireland—If I rise to perform what I feel to be a duty incumbent upon me, to say at least a few words of thanks in response to the address that has just been presented to me, I beg to say in the beginning that I did not come with any intention to make either a set discourse or to enter at length into a discussion of the questions that have been alluded to, and which would require more time and more preparation than I am prepared to give to do proper justice to them. I wish just to express my sense of gratitude to his Eminence the Cardinal Archbishop of Dublin, to your respected President, and to your Professors, for the great honor they have done me, and for the privilege that I have had of being allowed to enjoy in being present at the commencement of your academic year. I have come as an interested friend and spectator, and I have had to confess to the Most Reverend President that, although attending commencements and exhibitions of universities and colleges has been many and many a time, yet I have not been accustomed to the noble demonstration that seems to rise up spontaneously in the hearts of the people of Ireland when a subject of interest is presented to them.

A CARDINAL ACCORDING TO THEIR OWN HEARTS.

As well as according to his own, every Catholic heart in Ireland overflowed with joy, as also, I may say, every Catholic heart in America sympathized with you in the full. And if now the Holy Father has gone further and raised to that exalted dignity a priest of the American Church, and rejoiced the hearts of all his Catholic children in that far-off land, you may be sure you participate with them and unite your rejoicing with theirs, and justly so, for the reason that he has conferred honor upon the whole priesthood of the diocese over which it is my honor to be placed. Catholic priests are by far the largest numbers of your own race and your own kindred. Not only many, but most of them have been born on the free soil of Catholic Irish soil, and when they went across the sea they carried the faith deep in their hearts, and becoming citizens of that great, young and flourishing Republic they became citizens with all their hearts. I can say, without fear of contradiction, that no American born upon the soil of America—No American counting back his Americanism ancestry for generations, can claim to be more devotedly attached to the institutions of America than the Irish adopted citizen. But though, as events have proved, they have proved by word and deed, by arm and by every way in their power, to sustain those institutions, still, as much as they love their adopted country, they have not lost one jot of their

LOVE FOR THE DEAR OLD LAND.

They rejoice to see the great lawful institutions that are growing up around you, and I am glad to be able to tell you how deeply we sympathize with this great work of the Catholic University in the city of Dublin. Our people proved their sympathies when called upon for their aid; they gave it generously—and they watch with interest and with affectionate solicitude the progress of this University. They hope to see it grow up and prosper and be a glory and an ornament to the country from which they and their fathers came, notwithstanding the obstacles it has had to encounter in its early days, and which it has still to encounter, feeling that patience, perseverance and true courage will finally lead them to victory. You have set a glorious example, not only to us on the other side of the ocean, but you have set an example to neighboring nations nearer at hand. France has looked upon the movement that Irish Catholics have taken, and is trying now to imitate it. She imitates you in the University of Louvain, under the direction of the Holy Father, and with the co-operation of her bishops, her clergy and her faithful people. France has come to imitate Dublin, and other countries will come to imitate France. If the elementary branches of education we can hardly claim to be so well off as you are in Ireland, for this reason—that we have not the great majority of the population. We are in a minority. We cannot claim what Ireland, a Catholic nation, can claim with justice, but we can give degrees in our universities and colleges freely. The Regents of the Universities appointed by the State come to the examinations, come to the distribution of diplomas, come to the commencements, and make their addresses. I attended in the Protestant College it last the scene.

THERE IS FULL FREEDOM FOR BOTH.

Certainly that freedom ought to exist for the Catholic University in the city of Dublin, which is the capital of Catholic Ireland, to which students come in such large numbers. The students are plenty, but there are no endowments, and the burden of support falls upon the classes least able to bear it. We in America trust to hear that this will come—we hope that Dublin will rear its head higher and more proudly, and take its place among the first Universities of either Europe or America. In conclusion, while expressing my thanks for the reception accorded me, I have to express my best wishes for the success, prosperity and widespread influence of the Catholic University of Ireland and England to their students.

His Eminence resumed his seat amid loud applause. There had been several calls during the proceedings for a speech, adding the courses of his Eminence's reply, but evidently in deference to the request announced by the Cardinal these were at once suppressed. The proceedings concluded with the reply of his Eminence to the address.

The Capuchins in Kilkenny.

On a recent occasion, for the first time in over two hundred years, was there a reception of novices to the Capuchin branch of St. Francis' Order made in Ireland. An additional interest was lent to the day's proceedings from the fact that a member of the holy priesthood were about to be presented to the Lord Bishop of Ossory to receive the Capuchin habit, and to have conferred on them the name by which they in the future they were to be known in religion. A large number of circles were in attendance, including members of the Capuchin and other regular orders, and many secular priests. The Lord Bishop was late in arriving, but at 12 o'clock, the attendants being Very Rev. Father Maddox, O. P., Black Friars; Very Rev. Father Meagher, O. S. A., Friar Street; Very Rev. Father Furlong, O. S. A., Friar Street, Wexford, presented the novices. High Mass being commenced, and was celebrated with the most strict regard to ritual. The adornments of the altar were exquisitely chaste, and the sacred vestments of the officiating priests rich and beautiful. Very Rev. Father Arsenius, O. M. P. C., Provincial of Erin, officiated as celebrant; Rev. Father P. F. Dunphy, O. S. A., acted as Deacon, Rev. M. Daly, O. S. C., Priory, Knocktopher, acting respectively as deacon, and sub-deacon; Rev. Father Ryan, O. P., Dominican, Newbridge, professed their utter want of confidence in the Protestant missionaries in the employ of the Government with these abuses and frauds, and which also showed that the Indians have been in quite a number of instances the victims of religious persecution and proselytism. The Indians, with a unanimity which would be surprising if it were not so well authenticated, have protested

DEATH OF ROBESPIERRE.

"When the wicked perish there is shouting."

Here let us stand—windows and roofs act loads
Alive with clinging thousands—what a scene!
And in the midst, above that sea of heads,
Booms the black guillotine.

A scene like that in the Eternal City,
When on man's hearts the arena frosted high—
While myriads of dark faces, void of pity,
Looked on to see them die.

How the keen Gallic eyes flame and glare!
The Saxon brave and lips pressed close and firm—
How the wolfs tremble to the shout, whose'er
That hoary steel comes down!

Th scarcity over—for only heads have rolled,
One other can, upon the block—while cheers
And yells, and curses heaved by hate untold,
Rang in their dying ears.

One more is left—and now, as in a storm
Of angry sound from that great human hive,
They rear upright a dressed, ghastly form.
Stand ye, yet still alive.

Like one emerging from a deadly swoon,
His eyes seal so, on that living plain—
Those livid, sunken eyes!—he shuts them soon,
Never to ope again.

As that before, last wandering gaze they took,
Perhaps those vocal eyes, in bygone mood,
Sounded to their agony one pitying look
Mid that vast multitude.

Sought, but in vain—inevitably mixed
On square and street and house-top—he surveys
A hooded thousand eyes, all fixed
In one fierce, pitiless gaze.

Eyes to his pinched the brand hendrawn tear
Those blood-shed rage—nay, spare him needless pain!
One eye! And that we may never hear
A cry like that again!

A pause—and the axe falls on Robespierre!
That transformed head had gone to others well.
And so the whole crew! Down, murderer!
Down in thy native hell!

Again that terrible shout, till astern'd
And crowded dungeon received what it meant—
Hannah! and leader Pat, hearsh
For the great guillotine!

And hoarse and sudden howls in the deeper breath—
And parting floorpops echo fast and light!
Our foe is lodged in the strong prison of Death!
Paris shall sleep to-night.

A Legend of Killarney.

How my Uncle, Dr. Bob, Hunted the Stag by Moonlight.

You must have heard of my uncle, Dr. Robert O'Brien, or as he was more familiarly called, Dr. Bob. He was famous throughout Kerry in his day, though not altogether for his professional abilities, but rather for his great attachment to the pleasures of the chase. During forty years of his life he followed the hounds with unabated ardor. There is not an echo from Kilrush to Bantry but knew the hallon of Dr. Bob, and answered to the shouts with a voice of glee. Even now in his decline he is often seen, with his cheek shaven with a voice of glee.

He was none of your modern sporting scoundrels who ride out for a canter before dinner, who stick to the highroad as long as they can, and when off it always make out the gap in every fence they meet. Oh, Dr. Bob would have none of this. He never looked for a gap! he never took advantage of the highway, "straight ahead" was his maxim. And then what delightful rides they used to have over the mountain side, as we indeed a sturdy fellow who could get before him.

Living on a song income of a thousand a year or so, he was altogether independent of his profession. In fact he was one of the "advice gratis" practitioners, and consequently people in general thought that his visits were worth about as much as he his fee, reasoning, I suppose, on that false principle which is founded on the maxim, that what is dear is good, and bad for nothing is worth nothing. His rich friends, when troubled with any slight ailment, listened to him with seemingly the greatest attention, thanked him warmly, but when it was gone seemed to think no more of it. Dr. Bob, but knew nothing of medicine!" When the poor peasant brought his child, he got a bottle and a prescription, and then went home to his cabin, prayed from his heart for Dr. Bob, and lit his pipe with the prescription. Abl a rare specimen of the good old times was Dr. Bob.

He died hour or five and twenty years since, on a fine evening in August, just as night was falling, my uncle sat on the lawn before his door, with his pipe in his mouth—he smoked a strong cut of Cavendish—he always had a pipe in one hand and a glass in the other. He was growing stiff and corpulent, and could not stand very long. He no longer enjoyed his sporting adventures with the relish of his earlier days. He was fond of recalling them, and some also past his prime, though there was a time when my bold horseman who bestrode a thorough-bred would have cut a brush on the very ground south of the Reeskes. Dr. Bob went along at an easy canter, thinking of the old days of merry meetings and jolly hunting dinners, still he came to where the traveler from Kenmare to Killarney first gets a view of the Lakes as they stretch away to the north from the foot of the hill on which he stands. Dr. Bob had a sort of rough taste for the picturesque, and associated, as every gentleman ought in the scene before him was, with some striking incident in his long and merry lifetime, he stood upon it with feelings of melancholy pleasure. Yielding to some unaccountable impulse he dismounted from his horse, and let him go at the end of a long bridle, and then he sat himself down in the most pleasant position he could assume, and began to meditate on the incidents of those long gone by. As these recollections were somewhat saddening, he consoled himself now and then with a slight taste of brandy, for he never journeyed without a pocket pistol of the latter being stayed there for about half an hour, his reverie becoming each moment more profound, he was suddenly startled by the sound of the tramp of horses, and of nagging voices close to him. He looked up and looked around he could make out the figures of eight or ten mounted men, followed by a sort of neg-hounds, and the usual retinue of men with spinoses and ragged personnel. Their loud laughter and noisy conversation, breaking in suddenly on the stillness of the night in the wild mountain pass, seemed most appalling. For the sounds had not gradually approached as might have been supposed, but at once burst upon the ear, the whole cavalcade had sprung out of the earth where they first appeared to him. It may be so, for the horsemen had been at a portion of the night my hearer, through the influence of some unaccountable feeling of shudder in that when we are subject to the dreams, viewed the most astonishing or seemingly impossible things without any sense of mere matters of course. At any other time the sing among the mountains would have filled him with astonishment. But strange to say he perceived nothing remarkable in the whole affair, nor was he in the least surprised, when, as they passed by him they shouted, "Come, come, Dr. Bob, up with your pipe and be right for a neg hunt.

"That's it, that's it, my fine old fellow," they shouted as my uncle mounted and dashed after the rest, "I knew you would not be left behind."

His soon was up with them, and his attention was chiefly arrested by him who rode foremost. A fine gentlemanly man, very tall, and mounted on a powerful dark grey horse. He seemed to have the direction of the whole, and from him the huntsman received his orders from time to time.

When they had ridden on for some distance, he who seemed to be the leader of the party suddenly called out, "Stop, gentlemen." They all pulled up at once. As they listened, the lonely baiting of a stag could be distinctly heard, as it was borne to their ears on the night wind. "There he is in Derrinsmiky wood, down by the Waterfall; come along my lads." said he, and, without waiting for an answer, they all rode off towards the Ah! With that the whole turned off to the right into the wood, and trod their way among rocks and precipices with wonderful certainty. As they rode along, one of the horsemen (the largest of that jolly company, we presume), began to sing to a low clear voice, the following verses:

It is merry to ride
O'er the mountain side
When the moon's bright beams are playing;
It is merry to ride
A hunting to-day,
Where the tall red deer are straying.

With the ring-boundy cry,
Wild glen and mountain dealing;
Rich and clear
Is the hunter's ear,
Are in distant echoes stealing.

Hurrah! hurrah!
Away! away!
Let the world but convince you follow
Who else can ride
O'er the mountain side,
O'er mountain, marsh and hollow!

The song ceased, and so did the hounds with which it was accompanied. "We must be near him now," said the huntsman, riding up to the leader of the party.

"We are," he replied; "stay on the dogs."

Scarcely had a dozen of the dogs entered the corrie when one of them struck off in the merry meals of the scene, and was joined by a chorus of fifty ringing tongues. Then soon heard a loud crashing of branches.

"Look sharp, my lads," said the tall horseman. "Now for a run!" and he set off at a noble gallop of the woods broke over closes by them. His appearance was greeted with a halloo that rang like the battle valley of the Rocks, and rose on the night wind as the cry of triumph of Maugerine. Now for it, Dr. Bob! and now for it, old Lightning! Splash, splash, on they fly through the half flooded marshes on the shore of the Upper Lake, swifter than the Sirocco sweeps! Wind you may, but never through the valley of Dunloe. And now they are dashing up the steep mountainside, and there is the stag, standing at bay on the white moonlit waste, with fifty small black shadows ranging instantly and furiously about him. Splendid! splendid! well done, old Lightning! well you can support your old reputation, now but the tall hunter on lead you, and even he is not far ahead.

The stag soon headed for the water, and from a glorious, easy pace rapidly on, they could see him plunge in, just above the rapids of the Old Weir Bridge. The tall horseman drew him under the bridge; he must be drowned," said my uncle to the man beside him.

"You think so?" he asked.

"Certainly."

"Not at all, he is quite safe; our stags are never in danger except from our dogs."

Dr. Bob smiled, but he said nothing. They were now close by the water. The tall gentleman looked sad.

"Come on, Doctor."

"Here?"

"Here," and he spoke he plunged in, and was swept at once by the torrent into deep shade of the old Weir. Dr. Bob followed rapidly into the foaming waters beyond, and found them deep even into the placid little pool which received them. Dr. Bob could see him, where a broad streak of moonlight lay on the shore of the island, and on the bank; while he encouraged the dogs who were scrambling up from the pool. The others, as they came up, plunged in and were borne down the current. "Come on, Doctor," they shouted.

"All right," said the Doctor, as Lightning sprung off the bank.

"Come on, gentlemen," said one of his companions as he was borne past him, in the middle of the stream.

"Go ahead, old fellow," said the Doctor as he turned his horse's head towards the island. Just at that point where he was borne along more rapidly, "I never was afraid of water except in drinking time," and now again the dogs give tongue in the woods of Dinas And now the "tiroganeo!" hoofs of their horses leave a trail of fire as they dash along the stony road towards Muckross, and their hair and clothes in the moonlight sounds hollow as they fly over Bricken Bridge with the speed of a whirlwind. And now they rush through the woods and along the moonlit glades of Muckross. Their bellow becomes more and more frantic, and their speed more furious. The noble animal they are chasing begins to show that his wonderful powers of endurance are drawing near their end, and he makes a despairing effort, and gains upon his enemies; but then he is on the edge of a cliff, and cries of More than all of the energy of his earlier days.

It is past midnight and the moon is high in the heavens; on, on they fly, by the narrow shore of the lake, now over the soft and shining greensward, and now beneath the heavy shade of the old woods of Mucross Abbey.

They are now close by the Abbey, and there, under the double row of linden trees, they stands the remnant of the noble stag, and dogs lying around, show that he has at last fought his last fight bravely, and he still remained uninjured. But the tall hunter's knife has left its stamp, and was, these moments, dripping with blood on the grass green beneath their Then who, but a few short hours since, had roamed the free mountain side, was now stretched on the lifeless clay.

The old huntsmen wound his horn—his long, loud blast awaking the sleeping echoes of the mountains around, and there soon were both men and hounds there. The tall hunter's men were on the spot, and there was a loud confused noise, as they first greeted. They all stood for a minute or two looking at their dead game, and then their tall leader, turning to those who were mounted, called, "Come along, we can't say longer, good day, Doctor!" waving his hand. "And still two hope to have your company during many a pleasant ride, you are a fine fellow, and I'll be sorry if we don't meet again." And, without waiting for an answer, they all rode off towards the Abbey, leaving my uncle to find his way to Cloverfield, followed by those who were on foot. "By-the-bye, as he stood on the road, "my name, as he soon will be known to all the world, is Daniel O'Connell."

Now, as I have said, my uncle was fond of recalling the adventures of his younger days, and he was wont to tell this story with great unction and glee. But strange to say he perceived nothing remarkable in the whole affair, nor was he in the least surprised, when, as they passed by him wet with the night dew; he felt cold and sick. Old Lightning was at a short distance off, pursuing his botanical researches among the heather with the hope of finding some of the edible grasses, and accordingly quite unconscious of his late brilliant achievements. My uncle caught him, and rode home as rapidly as possible, and got into bed. A brother of the hunting art was sent for, who pronounced that he had the pleurisy, the consequence of lying all night under a damp bush. When the doctor left all was quiet for one, and related all the circumstances of the night, as I have endeavored to give them. I returned to hint that it might be a dream; but the first insinuation of the kind threw him into such a passion that I dare not venture to repeat it.

"A dream, sir! do men dream on horseback with their eyes open, and going at thirty miles an hour? You don't understand, sir. I have ridden as I tell you, and I am sure that before long I shall do so again as one of themselves." After I left him he grew rapidly worse, and on a week was past his spirit took its flight to the "happy hunting ground."—Kerry Magazine.

The Human Mind in its Highest Development.

The progress of the human race is one of the favorite topics of writers in the present day, but it may well be doubted whether they do not overrate its speed. Although the general diffusion of knowledge and culture is beyond dispute, there is nothing in the condition of man, mentally or physically, which proves any extraordinary pace spent in the species. Indeed, there are many who look upon the race of man as degenerate, while others maintain that he has risen from the very lowest scale of humanity. We, ourselves, however, do say proof of the latter conjecture in any records of historic times. In spite of vast social progress, man continues to be, on the whole, what he was many thousand years ago. His moral and intellectual development, we are again driven on the like conclusion, that, though some exceptions may be made in favor of individuals, the eminence reached by modern artists is not higher, or not so high, as that attained by the artists of the olden time. The painters of to-day still look up to Raphael and Leonardo da Vinci, and the sculptors of to-day, as their mentors and the statues of Canova is imposing when compared with that of him who preceded him, Vanero de' Medici and the Apollo Belvidere. The modern drama is shorn of its chorus and music, and even those dramatists who have to later days interpreted their genius to the public, such as Goethe, Byron and Sterling, have not surpassed the brilliant and effective choruses of Aeschylus and Sophocles. Moliere and Corneille, and Shakspeare, with all their humor and wit, do not come up to Aristophanes, whom Canning and Kingsley terms "the greatest humorist the world has ever seen!" Coming down to Christian era. One of the earliest monuments of literary ability now extant is the Book of Job. Many authors have been written by Moses 1,500 years and more before Christ. Scripture itself is a masterpiece of literature. No one doubts the genius required for its production. Ages rolled by after the Book of Job was composed. The destinies of the people of Israel were evolved; the Babylonian captivity was established; the scriptures of the New Testament were written. But, pealing aside the question of inspiration, is there anything in the writings of St. Paul, St. Luke or St. John inferior to the Book of Job, by David, Solomon, or Isaiah? Take again,

THE POEMS OF HOMER.

Think of the immense dead-vantages under which he labored, singing from place to place his marvellous rhapsodies, untaught by books, and unconscious, or scarcely conscious, of his transcendent genius. Our second utilitarian produces a poet to rival him either in power, dignity, variety of subject, originality of conception, of classical expression? The world has seen many poets since Homer, but not one who has approached even to the side of him. Shakspeare be a myth, and Lord Bacon really the author of the plays, and, in our own opinion, he must be, but who would think of putting the "Iliad" and "Odyssey" on a level with the "Iliad" and "Odyssey"? Or the Parthenon with the Crystal Palace? Or so to be themselves centers of civilisation; but where would you look for a parallel to Homer? Is it among the moderns or the ancients?

Even Mahomet exerted over masses of Orientals would not have been greater than that exerted more than a thousand years before by the author of the Prophet of Mecca had not braced on the sword, and conquered by it as well as by the pen. Napoleon did not surpass Julius Cæsar in the art of conquest, nor did Julius Cæsar excel Alexander, for Alexander surpass Cyrus. Alfred the Great and Edward I. were not greater lawgivers than Justinian, nor is the renown of Justinian greater than that of Solon. No man, except God-incarnate, ever lived like Socrates who has influenced so extensively as he did the modes of thought previous to and subsequent to his time. Socrates is fulfilled

THE PROPHECY OF THE PYTHONESS

At Delphi, who declared that he would be the wisest man in Greece. Yet, as he himself modestly confessed, his knowledge was not book lore, but the native, untaught genius of a disputant in the open air, the place of Athens. Even the men who think at all owes much to him, and yet not to him directly, but to the Socratic school as represented by his biographer and his disciple, Xenophon and Plato. If we take writers of a less intellectual derivement, we are again driven on the like conclusion, that, though some exceptions may be made in favor of individuals, the eminence reached by modern artists is not higher, or not so high, as that attained by the artists of the olden time. The painters of to-day still look up to Raphael and Leonardo da Vinci, and the sculptors of to-day, as their mentors and the statues of Canova is imposing when compared with that of him who preceded him, Vanero de' Medici and the Apollo Belvidere. The modern drama is shorn of its chorus and music, and even those dramatists who have to later days interpreted their genius to the public, such as Goethe, Byron and Sterling, have not surpassed the brilliant and effective choruses of Aeschylus and Sophocles. Moliere and Corneille, and Shakspeare, with all their humor and wit, do not come up to Aristophanes, whom Canning and Kingsley terms "the greatest humorist the world has ever seen!" Coming down to the

WEEKLY CALENDAR.
FOR THE WEEK ENDING DECEMBER 11, December.
5—Sunday—Second Sunday in Advent.
6—Monday—St. Nicholas of Myra, Bishop and Confessor.
7—Tuesday—St. Ambrose, Bishop, Confessor, and Doctor of the Church.
8—Wednesday—Immaculate Conception of the B. V. M.
9—Thursday—Of the Octave.
10—Friday—Of the Octave. St. Melchiades, Pope and Martyr.
11—Saturday—St. Damasus, Pope and Martyr.

THE MONITOR & GUARDIAN:
THE ONLY
Irish and Catholic Journal in California.
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
SATURDAY .....DECEMBER 4, 1875.

SUBSCRIBERS will please specially look at the printed label on the margin or wrapper of the paper in the date thereon where is shown the solemn expiration.

APPEAL FOR THE SEMINARISTS.

Among the documents read for the faithful from the Catholic pulpits on the first Sunday in Advent was one announcing that to morrow (second Sunday), or as soon after as practicable in the respective districts, there would be made in the different churches a collection in aid of the seminaries—the youthful Levites who are studying for an ecclesiastical career in the archdiocese of San Francisco. Now, we know that there are many claims put forward year after year upon the generosity of the Catholics of this coast, and we are convinced that the members of no other religious denomination are so often called upon to contribute towards the support of their creed and its ministers, yet we are disposed to think that infinitely more pride than regret about the fact.

There is the widest difference in the world between the way in which a Catholic regards his creed and the way in which a Protestant, or unbeliever, looks upon his creed or system of philosophy, or whatever he may chose to call it. To the Catholic his creed is the word of God to man, pure, perfect and complete; his abiding comfort in this life, and the sole source of his happiness in the next; so he loves and values it far beyond any mere temporal consideration; to the Protestant, or unbeliever, it is simply a congeries of moral and ethical probabilities which a regard for the welfare of his fellowman impels him to make some effort to propagate, but which, as it may or may not be correct, has only a secondary claim upon himself. Therefore, that which the Protestant looks upon as pure benevolence, perfectly optional with him, the Catholic treats as a necessary duty, and one to be neglected without grievous sin. Honorable Protestants speak in terms of unbounded surprise and admiration of the unselfishness and liberality with which Catholics, no matter how poor or humble, contribute towards everything connected with religion, and they institute comparisons between them and the estimation and disgust professed on such occasions by their own people; but they do not properly take into account the different motives actuating the two parties, and therefore they are sometimes led to those of their own belief. The rule is, that the higher and nobler the sentiment, the more self-sacrificing and heroic will be the action; and as the Catholic has immensely the greater impelling principle in his soul, correspondingly greater will be his exertions. It will be universally admitted, we think, that next to his own individual salvation, there can be nothing nearer to the heart of the true Catholic than the propagation of his faith. The blessings that he himself enjoys he should, naturally, be anxious to extend to, and secure for, others.

Learned, zealous and pious ministers of the Gospel are, as a matter of course, the first necessity for the spread and preservation of the faith; without them it is sure to languish and die out, even among the most devoted community. If they be not ready to gather in the harvest, the grain must be, relatively speaking, lost. And here in California there is, undoubtedly, a vast and most promising field for the labors of the priesthood. Day by day, we may say, the population is increasing, train loads are being brought into cultivation, and busy towns are springing up in every direction. The Catholic population is, at least, keeping pace with, if it is not augmenting, the ratio in the rapidity of increase. We have, therefore, an ever-growing want to provide for. Here in the city, where communication is so rapid and easy, where multitudes are grouped together in so confined a space, the thing may not be very noticeable; but in the country districts the lack of priests is patent to every observer. The diocese number the sixty of one man are often so large that it is a matter of absolute impossibility for a single individual to properly fulfil their spiritual requirements. No, unfrequently will a missionary priest have to ride fifty, sixty, and even a hundred miles to the performance of some pressing duty. What children have to be left without adequate religious instruction, what souls have to meet their Maker without the last sacraments, what communities have to be condemned with a Mass at rare intervals, we shall not take upon ourselves to enquire, but those who are acquainted with the condition of this state, will acknowledge that they are far too many.

To bring a remedy to this state of affairs is the object sought to be achieved by the collection to be made to-morrow. Need we add another word to recommend it to the kindest attention of our readers and friends? They must know the necessity for clerical help, at least duty, to which, were proof to say, they have never been delinquent, is manifest. We trust, therefore, that the collection to morrow will be a gratifying proof of the regard which the Catholics of the archdiocese of San Francisco have for their holy faith, its maintenance and its propagation. Their proverbial generosity can never find a more fitting occasion for its display.

BAD TRAINING.

The best method of suppressing hoodlumism imagin, probably for the hundredth time, a subject for animated discussion in the newspapers. Various are the opinions expressed, but none of them appear satisfactory to the public; and of all the plans proposed, not one is likely to be adopted. The revival of the whipping post has been talked about, a military patrol of the streets has been suggested, and even a few desperate individuals have gone so far as to advocate the establishment of another Vigilance Committee. The end of this discussion will be, of course, a determination to do nothing, backed up with the consoling reflections that perhaps, after all, San Francisco boys are no worse than those of other cities, and that they will grow sensible by-and-by. But it seems to be forgotten, in this piece of reasoning, that we are sure to have the boys always with us, for as fast as one generation passes into manhood another takes its place, and we have no cause for hoping the second will be better than the first. What most become of this city when, in the course of time, so large a proportion of its inhabitants will be composed of men without moral training, habituated to turbulence, and inclined to disobey the law, is a question so sad and dispiriting that we really have not the heart to discuss it at any length.

But we must say that we do not believe the boys of San Francisco are naturally vicious, and we think their faults are the outgrowth of certain disadvantages under which they labor. Left to grow up in the streets. They are not taught to place any restraint upon that exuberance of spirits, which, when uncontrolled, very often leads to folly, and from folly to crime. Their parents take no interest with them; thinking, no doubt, that because they send them three or four hours every day to school, they are acquitted of further responsibility. What is school the lads are merely taught to read, write and do some little arithmetic; this is the secular education, the non-sectarian instruction, about which we hear so much consideration, but their moral nature is left uncultivated, and they learn next to nothing of their duties to God. With children who are blessed with careful parents, and who have an orderly and comfortable home, be it ever so humble, the mischievous effects of this kind of training are either neutralized altogether, or else rendered comparatively harmless; but, unhappily, too many have no such advantages, and all the instruction or advice they get is bad in the school-rooms. This argument disclosed to us the origin of the wide diversity of opinion between at least two classes of the community, the Catholic and non-Catholic, touch the merits of the public school system; one party exclusively treats of its defects, and the other looks altogether at its excellencies. There is to be no question that the system is admirably adapted to its purpose; probably it has not its superior in existence, but the reason why the boys of San Francisco are so unruly is because the system has not been made to embrace moral training, that should be comprised in a thoroughly efficient plan of education, and whether it is the best that could be framed for the country at large is so much beside the question as to be unworthy of consideration. The question is confined to those boys who get no edifying examples at home, and who are "secularly instructed" at school. If a reformation is ever to be effected it must be started in one or other of these places, and it is perfectly absurd to talk about whipping-posts, or military patrols, or vigilance committees. But, unfortunately, sectarian jealousies and bigotry, which, of late years, have thrown such a mist about the school question, that it will take a long time before it can be examined and discussed upon its genuine merits, and they will not help up to remedy, even though an extreme one should be necessary. In that day it may go hard with the secularists, who prefer the gratification of their animosities to the furtherance of the national welfare. Truth is great, and it must prevail. In this country a good cause can never be lost, for its support must come from the people, and they are sure to recognize its claims upon them whenever they are allowed to examine it carefully and impartially. In a despotically governed country the reign of wrong and fraud may be extended indefinitely, but here, thank heaven, it cannot.

Colonel Zabriskie, it's a long letter to the Board of Supervisors, argues in favor of sending boarders on board of the training ship Jamestown, as was originally intended, instead of allowing only boys of good character to enter it; and if the vessel, when she got the said boarders on board, would only put to sea and never return, she would greatly oblige the good citizens of San Francisco.

Mayor Hewston did a praiseworthy act Monday in vesting the authorities with a long story-book—$16 100 additional for stone claimed to have been delivered to the City Hall. The majority of evidence taken in the case went to prove that Mr. Sanles had already been paid enough.

Ex Senator Nye has so far recovered his reason and health that his friends have removed him from the Insane Asylum. Strong hopes are entertained of his complete recovery.

The Irish Volunteers of 1782.

Next week we shall give a full report of a splendid lecture on "The Volunteers of '82," recently delivered in the historic town of Dungannon by Rev. Isaac Nelson, a Presbyterian minister, Mr. Nelson's patriotic reputation is undisputed, and what we say commands the earnest attention of his fellow-countrymen all over the world. Those who are not well acquainted with Irish politics seem to imagine that the national sentiment is confined to Catholics, whereas nothing can be further removed from the truth. There is some excuse for the error, however, because the majority of those Irish Protestants whose utterances reach beyond Ireland belong to the British party, and they are supposed to represent the opinions of their co-religionists. But the Home Rule movement has brought into prominence quite a large number of intellectual and earnest clergymen of every denomination, who are now striving to improve the condition of their native land. Mr. Nelson is a patriot of forty years standing, and he is a worthy son of the gallant race who "rose in dark and evil days to right their native land." We assure our readers that his lecture is a rare treat, and it ought to be brought under the notice of others besides Irishmen, as it contreys a very valuable lesson in history.

Against Female Suffrage.

Last Monday evening, according to announcement, Miss Adelaide U. Murdoch delivered her lecture entitled "Against Female Suffrage," in Pacific Hall. The attendance was only moderate, not equal to what we expected, and most certainly not commensurate with the moral and literary merits of her discourse. We are inclined to feel rather ashamed of the fact that while certain sections of the people of San Francisco will eagerly run to hear the ravings of any of those arrant females who proceed on the assumption that they are necessary to man, not a respectable sized audience could be induced to listen to a lady of rare culture and refinement, defending sound principles of social and family morality, and exposing the fallacies of her strong-minded adversaries. But perhaps the blame should be more properly laid upon the weather, which was the reverse of pleasant, and, for the sake of the good sense and the good taste of our fellow-citizens, we trust this is so. But at any rate, the few who went heard a lecture which impressed them most favorably, and gave them a very high opinion of the ability of Miss Murdoch. We should like to see more encouragement given to this lady in the field to which she has devoted herself, and in which she is capable of so much publishing so much good. Among the conscriptions of the better classes and nobler principles, she should be well appreciated.

The Spanish Fair.

The Fair to aid of the new Spanish church, which is being held in Pacific Hall, Bush street, with term nine this (Saturday) evening. The weather has been rather inclement during the present week, and on this circumstance has greatly militated against the success of the Fair. Nevertheless, the young ladies who have charge of it, and presided at the tables, did their best to insure a good result, and they have, under the adverse circumstance, accomplished a great deal. They are now about of all praise for their pains and exertions and for the interest they take in the affairs of the church. In this respect they are really a brilliant example to the ladies of other nationalities but they have to, we must say, only exhibited these genial and courteous traits which have long been the ornament and the honor of their truly Catholic race. We trust that this, but a preamble of the Fair, will in some measure make up for the deficiencies of the foregoing part of the week, and that a good attendance will be present. We hope, too, that Saturday night will draw many from the city to swell the sum total to a substantial aid for the completion of the church.

PUBLICATIONS RECEIVED.

The Catholic Record, November number, contains—"Leaves from a Monastic Chronicle;" "Verdi and his Requiem;" "St. Catherine's Crown;" "The Desultory in Literature;" "Three Stories;" "In the Twilight;" "Tom Moore;" "Buried;" "La Tour St. Joseph;" "The Wand of Light;" Editorial Notes and Reviews.

The following are the contents of the Westminster Review for October, recently republished by the Leonard Scott Publishing Co., 41 Barclay street, New York: "The Marriage of Near Kin;" "Quakerism;" "Lord Shelburne, the Minister;" "The Religious Education of Children;" "The Horse Disorders;" "Montaigne;" "Physics and Physiology of Harmony;" "Thelem;" "Contemporary Literature."

We have received the Edinburgh Review for October, from the Leonard Scott Publishing Co., 41 Barclay street, New York. The following is a summary of its contents: "The Financial Grievance of Ireland." This article briefly discusses the financial relations of Great Britian and Ireland, from the date of the Union, and maintains that the complaint of undue taxation of Ireland, urged by the Irish party, is not without constant, and it ought to be brought under the notice of others besides Irishmen, as it contreys a very valuable lesson in history.

Against Female Suffrage.

Last Monday evening, according to announcement, Miss Adelaide U. Murdoch delivered her lecture entitled "Against Female Suffrage," in Pacific Hall. The attendance was only moderate, not equal to what we expected, and most certainly not commensurate with the moral and literary merits of her discourse. We are inclined to feel rather ashamed of the fact that while certain sections of the people of San Francisco will eagerly run to hear the ravings of any of those arrant females who proceed on the assumption that they are necessary to man, not a respectable sized audience could be induced to listen to a lady of rare culture and refinement, defending sound principles of social and family morality, and exposing the fallacies of her strong-minded adversaries. But perhaps the blame should be more properly laid upon the weather, which was the reverse of pleasant, and, for the sake of the good sense and the good taste of our fellow-citizens, we trust this is so. But at any rate, the few who went heard a lecture which impressed them most favorably, and gave them a very high opinion of the ability of Miss Murdoch. We should like to see more encouragement given to the lady in the field to which she has devoted herself, and in which she is capable of so much publishing so much good. Among the conscriptions of the better classes and nobler principles, she should be well appreciated.

The Spanish Fair.

The Fair to aid of the new Spanish church, which is being held in Pacific Hall, Bush street, with term nine this (Saturday) evening. The weather has been rather inclement during the present week, and on this circumstance has greatly militated against the success of the Fair. Nevertheless, the young ladies who have charge of it, and presided at the tables, did their best to insure a good result, and they have, under the adverse circumstance, accomplished a great deal. They are now about of all praise for their pains and exertions and for the interest they take in the affairs of the church. In this respect they are really a brilliant example to the ladies of other nationalities but they have to, we must say, only exhibited these genial and courteous traits which have long been the ornament and the honor of their truly Catholic race. We trust that this, but a preamble of the Fair, will in some measure make up for the deficiencies of the foregoing part of the week, and that a good attendance will be present. We hope, too, that Saturday night will draw many from the city to swell the sum total to a substantial aid for the completion of the church.

Commemorating the Hanging of Patriotic Irishmen.

The Cooper Institute Hall, New York, was well filled, on the evening of the 23d November, by Irishmen gathered to commemorate the hanging of Allen, Larkin and O'Brien in Manchester, England, eight years ago. About five hundred of those in the hall had either escaped from English prisons or been banished from the British dominions. Gen. F. F. Mullen was Chairman, and Martin Moynahan Secretary of the meeting. On the platform were Colonel Kelly and the men for whose rescue Allen, Larkin and O'Brien suffered; Gen. Thomas Francis Bourke, who was sentenced to death for treason in Ireland; Dr. Thomas Clarke Luby, Dr. Dennis Downing Mulcahy and O'Donovan Rossa, escaped convicts, in the autumn of 1867 Colonel Kelly succeeded James Stephens as commander of the Fenian organization. He was arrested with Capt. Timothy Deasy in Manchester. It was resolved to rescue them. While they were being taken from prison to the court-room several men belonging to the Fenian organization stopped the prison van, and fired a pistol ball through the lock, with the intention, as is asserted, of breaking the door. Sergeant Brett, of the Manchester police, was sitting near the door inside the van, and when the door opened his body fell out.

Sergeant Brett was killed. Kelly is in the New York Custom House, and Deasy is in the insurance at Lawrence. Allen, Larkin, O'Brien, Edward O'Meagher Condon, and an English soldier named Maguire were executed for the killing. They were convicted and sentenced to death. The reporter who published the trial made all sorts of that in their opinion the evidence did not justify the verdict. Many memorials and petitions to the Government in behalf of the condemned were sent in, but they were disregarded. Gen. Bourke, who had been tried under the name of Edward Shirley, was an officer in the British army, and was a captain in Canrobert's Legion. On the day fixed for the hanging his sentence was changed to penal servitude for life. The other three were hanged.

Condon is in the United States Senate, England, and a letter written by him on the 26th of August, 1875, was read. On the 15th of August, 1867, he was in the cell of the condemned men. He spoke to them of the glories of the woman who was the mother of God even in his earth, and instantly uprose the king upon his throne; and when in heard, for the first time in the Irish language, the name of Mary, he took off his golden crown and bowed to the sound of that name. Up rose the bard, the poet, the musician, the orator, the priest of his people, and he chanted forth in Irish language the lay of the land down his harp at the feet of the saint and said, "I swear that no sound ever fell upon my ear that was the bubbling of my heart; that no sound shall ever come from my lips upon the wings of song except the glories of Patrick's God and of the Mother of that God—the Virgin—the Blessed Mary."

A writer in one of the English magazines, in an article relating to a heroform inexplicable term for lateness, "He will never get to the Thames on fire," heretofore supposed to allude to the river, the name of which is pronounced as if spelt "Temz" or "Tamz." The writer shows that tems is the ancient name for a sort of slow quail in every English household before the era of boiling stoves, to separate the meat from the coarser parts of the cracked grain. The lazy man never set the stew, the "tems," on fire by the velocity with which he shook the instrument.

PUBLICATIONS RECEIVED.

The Catholic Record, November number, contains—"Leaves from a Monastic Chronicle;" "Verdi and his Requiem;" "St. Catherine's Crown;" "The Desultory in Literature;" "Three Stories;" "In the Twilight;" "Tom Moore;" "Buried;" "La Tour St. Joseph;" "The Wand of Light;" Editorial Notes and Reviews.

The following are the contents of the Westminster Review for October, recently republished by the Leonard Scott Publishing Co., 41 Barclay street, New York: "The Marriage of Near Kin;" "Quakerism;" "Lord Shelburne, the Minister;" "The Religious Education of Children;" "The Horse Disorders;" "Montaigne;" "Physics and Physiology of Harmony;" "Thelem;" "Contemporary Literature."

We have received the Edinburgh Review for October, from the Leonard Scott Publishing Co., 41 Barclay street, New York. The following is a summary of its contents: "The Financial Grievance of Ireland." This article briefly discusses the financial relations of Great Britian and Ireland, from the date of the Union, and maintains that the complaint of undue taxation of Ireland, urged by the Irish party, is not without constant, and it ought to be brought under the notice of others besides Irishmen, as it contreys a very valuable lesson in history.

Mission in Santa Barbara.

This being the "Holy Year," the Catholics of Santa Barbara, like all good Catholics in the world, are taking part in the indulgence of the Jubilee, and thereby enrich themselves from the treasures of the Church. In order to give them a special opportunity to prepare and dispose themselves to gain it, their worthy pastor, Rev. Father Fejul, invited Rev. Father Verdaguer, rector of the Cathedral in Los Angeles—who is one of the greatest Spanish preachers—to come and give only a mission, which, I am glad to say, has been a complete success. Any one to whom the zeal and piety of Father Verdaguer are known, would be sure of it, even if there was a failure, for he possesses all the virtues and qualifications necessary to constitute a perfect missionary. Day and night the church was crowded, and many of whom did not perfectly understand the language of the preacher. Several Catholics who probably had not approached the sacraments for many years, and more want to confession, having been persuaded that it was useless to be hearers of the law unless they became doers of the law, according to the doctrine of Him who is the Lawmaker: "For not the hearers of the law are just before God, but the doers of the law shall be justified." Many were also induced to confession by the Protestants themselves, among whom did not perfectly understand the language of the preacher. Several Catholics who probably had not approached the sacraments for many years, and more want to confession, having been persuaded that it was useless to be hearers of the law unless they became doers of the law, according to the doctrine of Him who is the Lawmaker: "For not the hearers of the law are just before God, but the doers of the law shall be justified." Many were also induced to confession by the Protestants themselves, among whom

A NEW York telegram of the 1st instant says that the great lawyer, Charles O'Conor is in an extremely critical state. The fore handedyhe had been so weak that water was the only thing which his system would retain. The precise nature of his disease has not been determined, but it is supposed to be paralysis of the stomach. His physicians thought last night that there was no doubt but that he would live until to day, and this evening they will be able to say whether the probability is that he will recover. They feel little hope, however, that he will get well, and his attained age greatly diminishes the prospect of his restoration to health."

The splendors of the trousseau of the young daughter of the Duke of Alba, brother-in-law to Empress Eugenie, who has just married the Duke de Medina-Coeli, the richest man in Spain, may be inferred from the outlay in jewels—bouquet-holders, fans and six yards of these objects, one dozen of which cost $2 400, the first cost of which was comly, but still sufficiently expensive. The more ordinary—ing of the Sacred Heart in Foreign Missions, Mill Hill, London, by Eminence Cardinal Manning presiding, be

---

PUBLICATIONS RECEIVED.

The Catholic Record, November number, contains—"Leaves from a Monastic Chronicle;" "Verdi and his Requiem;" "St. Catherine's Crown;" "The Desultory in Literature;" "Three Stories;" "In the Twilight;" "Tom Moore;" "Buried;" "La Tour St. Joseph;" "The Wand of Light;" Editorial Notes and Reviews.

The following are the contents of the Westminster Review for October, recently republished by the Leonard Scott Publishing Co., 41 Barclay street, New York: "The Marriage of Near Kin;" "Quakerism;" "Lord Shelburne, the Minister;" "The Religious Education of Children;" "The Horse Disorders;" "Montaigne;" "Physics and Physiology of Harmony;" "Thelem;" "Contemporary Literature."

We have received the Edinburgh Review for October, from the Leonard Scott Publishing Co., 41 Barclay street, New York. The following is a summary of its contents: "The Financial Grievance of Ireland." This article briefly discusses the financial relations of Great Britian and Ireland, from the date of the Union, and maintains that the complaint of undue taxation of Ireland, urged by the Irish party, is not without constant, and it ought to be brought under the notice of others besides Irishmen, as it contreys a very valuable lesson in history.

Mission in Santa Barbara.

This being the "Holy Year," the Catholics of Santa Barbara, like all good Catholics in the world, are taking part in the indulgence of the Jubilee, and thereby enrich themselves from the treasures of the Church. In order to give them a special opportunity to prepare and dispose themselves to gain it, their worthy pastor, Rev. Father Fejul, invited Rev. Father Verdaguer, rector of the Cathedral in Los Angeles—who is one of the greatest Spanish preachers—to come and give only a mission, which, I am glad to say, has been a complete success. Any one to whom the zeal and piety of Father Verdaguer are known, would be sure of it, even if there was a failure, for he possesses all the virtues and qualifications necessary to constitute a perfect missionary. Day and night the church was crowded, and many of whom did not perfectly understand the language of the preacher. Several Catholics who probably had not approached the sacraments for many years, and more want to confession, having been persuaded that it was useless to be hearers of the law unless they became doers of the law, according to the doctrine of Him who is the Lawmaker: "For not the hearers of the law are just before God, but the doers of the law shall be justified." Many were also induced to confession by the Protestants themselves, among whom Against Female Suffrage.

Last Monday evening, according to announcement, Miss Adelaide U. Murdoch delivered her lecture entitled "Against Female Suffrage," in Pacific Hall. The attendance was only moderate, not equal to what we expected, and most certainly not commensurate with the moral and literary merits of her discourse. We are inclined to feel rather ashamed of the fact that while certain sections of the people of San Francisco will eagerly run to hear the ravings of any of those arrant females who proceed on the assumption that they are necessary to man, not a respectable sized audience could be induced to listen to a lady of rare culture and refinement, defending sound principles of social and family morality, and exposing the fallacies of her strong-minded adversaries. But perhaps the blame should be more properly laid upon the weather, which was the reverse of pleasant, and, for the sake of the good sense and the good taste of our fellow-citizens, we trust this is so. But at any rate, the few who went heard a lecture which impressed them most favorably, and gave them a very high opinion of the ability of Miss Murdoch. We should like to see more encouragement given to the lady in the field to which she has devoted herself, and in which she is capable of so much publishing so much good. Among the conscriptions of the better classes and nobler principles, she should be well appreciated.

The Spanish Fair.

The Fair to aid of the new Spanish church, which is being held in Pacific Hall, Bush street, with term nine this (Saturday) evening. The weather has been rather inclement during the present week, and on this circumstance has greatly militated against the success of the Fair. Nevertheless, the young ladies who have charge of it, and presided at the tables, did their best to insure a good result, and they have, under the adverse circumstance, accomplished a great deal. They are now about of all praise for their pains and exertions and for the interest they take in the affairs of the church. In this respect they are really a brilliant example to the ladies of other nationalities but they have to, we must say, only exhibited these genial and courteous traits which have long been the ornament and the honor of their truly Catholic race. We trust that this, but a preamble of the Fair, will in some measure make up for the deficiencies of the foregoing part of the week, and that a good attendance will be present. We hope, too, that Saturday night will draw many from the city to swell the sum total to a substantial aid for the completion of the church.

M. GAMBETTA AND HIS CRITICS.

Challenged by enemies, implored by friends, and taunted by rivals, says the correspondent of the London Telegraph, M. Gambetta has at length broken silence. M. Gambetta has definitely abandoned his old manner. Not one word about the Bonapartists all throughout—not a sneer at clericals or Legitimists. The writer even contemplates, with disgust or alarm, the continual presence of two parties in France—the "Whigs," as he prefers to call them, and the Tories—[the writer would advise one of those who would hold back, both to loyal submission to the Republic. How keen-intuitions would France have been five years ago had a seer predicted such an address as this from the tribune of the people! The Univers says of it: "M. Gambetta belies his talents and his admirers. The feeling at least those of it who count as such in his eyes, is not yet tired of him. Many persons still reckon him a great politician, a great orator. It scarcely befits him who owes all to his coarse voice, to his coarse gestures, to his coarse expressions, thus to belie the merit and credit of those who applaud him. Their reign, Heaven pleases, still lasts. We sufficiently see this in the Southern audiences which have for the last few months resounded with the eloquence of a Naquet, a Mundjan, a Marcou and other minor orators. Doubtless, these applauses are not considerate himself a speaker; but what is he then? The most further which he can do in all times oratorical charlatanism has flourished. The masters of the art of speaking have each possessed, and are still, whatever M. Gambetta may say, far from the moment when the people will be weary of listening. More than any other Government, Parliamentarism's favorable to the orator."—Irish Correspondent of N. Y. Tablet.

IRELAND ROBBED.

The startling discovery that Ireland is annual sterling by the manner in which the duty is assessed on alcoholic liquors has proved a lizard and bitter nut for our English fellow-countrymen to crack. Ireland is annually defrauded of three millions and a to combat the facts; they are powerless to the reason which does not exist. For the moment this pace him in opposition to the Premier's Government on a question made of no importance.

—The London Daily News of the 24-inst. publishes a special telegram from Madrid, as follows: "Serrano's letter is a favorite theme for newspaper comment; that foreigners when arrested shall have immediate warrant, and that legal orders shall be assignable for past injuries. Great anxiety exists in Madrid as to the reception of the note in Washington. The note is mysterious."

—A grand reception was given at the mayor's house, in Baltimore, on the occasion of the King's 18th birthday, and was crowded in the majority. Assistances were again given that he would be held in person, but these are doubted. The reports of additional American complications are given out. The Carmet Council which King Alfonso had last Sunday received had a short meeting and the Duties he promulgated before December 4th, and a change in the Cabinet will also be made, and Castillo will reassume the Presidency this week. Canovas, Mayor of Madrid, becomes Minister of Foreign Affairs. The King has confirmed the order of the Gaders Province declaring that the citizens of Spain shall not be ordered or be ready to accompany the King to the army of the North December 5th.

DIED.

Irish Whisky.

Imported direct from Ireland.

HE HAS ALSO ON HAND A LARGE AS-sortment of California Wines of every description, which he offers wholesale and retail, to suit all tastes. Orders from the country will receive prompt attention.

All orders left at the store, 146 Third street, will be promptly attended to, and delivered free of charge in any part of the city. 26

GRAND REOPENING.

PETER JOB,
THE PIONEER CATERER,

HAS PHŒNIX-LIKE, RISEN FROM HIS ashes, and reopened his OLD AND WELL KNOWN RESTAURANT AND LUNCH SALOON at

NO. 327 MARKET STREET,

Where he will be pleased to meet again all his old acquaintances and customers, assuring them that the same attention will be paid to all those who may favor him with a call, as heretofore, at the old stand in the city. He has a large assortment of choice fruits and confectionery for families and parties, at private accommodation.

P. S.—PETER JOB'S reputation as a caterer has been well established in this city during a residence of twenty-four years. Give him a call. 26

WYNNE, LOWTH & CO.

704 and 706 MARKET STREET,

OPPOSITE THIRD, AND

5 and 7 Geary Street, NEAR MARKET,

HAVING MADE LARGE PURCHASES OF

DRY GOODS

At the Great Liquidation Sale of LAZARD FRERES, are enabled to sell the same Goods at less than importers' prices.

BLACK GROS GRAIN SILK, at $1 per yard.
HEAVY BLACK SILK, Guarantee finish, $2 per yard.
FIM'S IRISH POPLIN, $2 50 per yard.
Colored Silk BLACK CASHMERE, 75c. per yard.
ALL WOOL DIAGONALS, 87½c. per yard.
ENGLISH IRON-FRAME HOSE, full finished, 50 per pair.
BALBRIGGAN HOSE, 25c. 37½c. 50 per pair.
HEAVY SCOTCH PLAIDS, 75c. per yard.
BLANKETS, SHEETING, and
HOUSE-FURNISHING GOODS
At Wholesale Rates.
FANCY GOODS in great variety.
Ladies' and Gent's FURNISHING GOODS.

Irish Tatting.

Guipure Lace, in Black and White for use of Clergy and Sisters.

The celebrated seamless 3-button GLOVES, $1 50 per pair.

WYNNE, LOWTH & CO.
Central Dry Goods House.

THE WEEKLY SUN.

1776. NEW YORK. 1876.

Eighteen hundred and seventy-six is the Centennial year. It is also the year in which the position House of Representatives, the first since the days of '76, will have permanent sway between the two great political parties. The Presidency of the United States will be filled for the next four years, and all of them, and every thing connected with them, will be discussed in the columns of the

The Opposition House of Representatives, taking up the line of inquiry opened years ago by Thaddeus Stevens and Ben Wade, and which led to the explosion and breakdown of GRANT'S administration! will not be satisfied with anything short of a full and better period in our national history. Of all the men who have participated in the events of the past fifty years, none can throw more important and more trustworthy information upon these absorbing topics than Horace Greeley. There is no end to the preparations for it, will be manœuvres as exciting upon the floor of Congress as those that produced the panic and disaster, and sent more or less of the party of Lincoln to private life

Forney's paper feeling
Spotted Tail's Description of the Spirit World

IRISH LOCAL NEWS.

From the Dublin Nation of November 6.

ANTRIM.

Last week Most Rev. Dr. Dorrian, Lord Bishop of the diocese, conferred Holy Orders upon Rev. John McDonald, of Cushendall, and Rev. Edmond Matthew Ryan, of Cushel, in the presence of a large congregation of the faithful.

Richard John Anderson, Esq., M. D., has been appointed Dispensariser of Antrim in Queen's College, Belfast.

ARMAGH.

At the meeting of the local Protestant Church in Armagh, last week, Rev. G. A. Chadwick moved, and Rev. Dr. Irwin seconded, the following resolution, which was adopted: "That the Sunday traffic in strong drink is an injury to other traders, injurious to the public interest and dishonoring to God."

At the quarter sessions held in Armagh on Saturday morning the chairman, Thos. Lefroy, Esq., Q. C., gave his decision in a case of appeal recently heard before him at Newry against a recent award made by the Government valuator, the appellant, James Stables, of Newry, seeking to have his house valued at much a rate as would give him the franchise. The chairman affirmed the award with costs.

CAVAN.

The annual sermon on behalf of the Orphan Charities and Brothers' Schools was preached last Sunday in the Cathedral, Cavan, by Most Rev. Dr. McCormack, Lord Bishop of Ardagh. A liberal collection was then taken up.

CLARE.

By an unanimous vote of the Kilrush Board of Guardians, Colonel Vandeleur, M.P. (Lib.), was elected to the chair, it has been asserted that the Sisters of Mercy shall be employed in the hospital of the workhouse of that estimable town.

Rev. Lawrence J. Browne, C. C., has been completely recovered from the effects of the severe wounds which he suffered some months back, and has received the warm congratulations of hosts of friends in the Wicklow.

CORK.

At Iries, West Cork, four persons have lost their lives, and three have been injured, by a fire caused in the careless lighting of a bundle of rags.

The brigantine Gleaner, of Milford, bound to Cork with coals, putting into Youghal Harbor for shelter, on Saturday last, struck on the bar. The captain and crew were drowned in the sight of many people on shore, who were unable to render assistance.

The Macroom quarter sessions were opened last week by Jas. F. Pigott, Esq., who received a pair of white gloves from the Sheriff, there being no criminals for trial.

Mr. Fred. Jones announced that the usual grand jury dinner would be held in the Queen's Hotel on the occasion of the decease of the late Lord Bishop of Cork, and the congratulations of the people upon the good character they have acquired.

DONEGAL.

A marriage, says the Derry "Standard," of a rather romantic disposition was celebrated in the Catholic Church of Buncrana on Sunday evening. The history of the bridegroom is soon told. He has been always a member of persons were starting Sunday morning from Ilinor to proceed to Buncrana, when they intended to meet with a young man who had crossed the Atlantic to see his relations, and what was more to the purpose for some time on a visit to his native town. When neighbors and friends had met their quota of rollicking young girl, with a shawl about her head, approached the car where the young man was seated, and up the last good-by to be departing friends. Let "one glance at her eye, and one word in her ear," and in the twinkling of an eye she was beside the young Yankee-Irishman on the car. The driver got the whip, and the spectators numbered one more. On reaching Donegal the pair hastened to the chapel, where, in a short time, the solemn words that made them man and wife were pronounced. Soon afterwards the happy pair (Sally Boyle) of the newly-made wife still wrapped in her shawl, to take the train for Derry, en route for Australia.

DOWN.

Floods have caused considerable damage to property at Hillsborough. The lake adjacent was converted its banks and flooded for a second time the house of Hon. Mr. Canning, and a portion of the Glaan bridge has been carried away.

FERMANAGH.

At the Enniskillen quarter sessions, before Patrick Joseph Burke, Esq., was heard a case of considerable interest, and which excited great interest in court. The case commenced were connected with the late lamentable death of Mr. Adams. Mr. Bland, of Liverpool, licensed victualler, sought to recover £50 5s., money expended on behalf of John Henry, grocer, of Ballinkillen. The case was remitted from the superior courts. When Mr. Patrick Timoney, father of the defendant, had been in Liverpool, on application of Blackhave to purchase he met a very severe accident on the light. John accompanied the fowl, and for four weeks lived with Bradshaws, who refused the sum named for his lodging, for terms of money lent John, and flour and law expenses incurred by John at different times during the proceedings.

GALWAY.

At the last meeting of the Galway Town Commissioners, Dr. Ward, J. P., presiding, and said they were under a municipal arrangement in Galway which was unbeknown to, and caused them to many abuses and grave evils of a financial nature. The mendacious arrangement had to pay a double duty—a duty on the raw material imported, and a duty on the manufactured goods sent out of the town, while the outside manufacturer could send into Galway manufactured goods free of charge. This state of things was objectionable, but still more objectionable was the fact that, by the Act of 1853, the town was constituted out of the privileges and rights conferred by other acts on municipalities of boroughs and cities.

KERRY.

The magistrates of Tralee, Killarney and Kenmare, at special meetings just held, have resolved "that henceforth no certificate for occasional licenses be granted or issued in those districts except by magistrates sitting at petty sessions."

Mr. Hemphill, chairman for Kerry, in opening the crown business of Tralee sessions, said he observed an increase of intemperance, and the amount of crime and misery which it produced. He deemed that most of the crime and misfortune that existed in that noble county was attributable directly or indirectly to the public house, and those crimes or misfortunes had increased in proportion to the increase in the number of public houses.

KILKENNY.

Notwithstanding the reports which have appeared in various newspapers, the town of Inn here, says the Callan correspondent of the Freeman, writing on Sunday, is one of extreme tranquility and order. There is no sign of military or extra police in the town, which wears its usual aspect. To-day was extremely wet. Rain came down in torrents throughout the afternoon, but the Masses were attended by large congregations, and nothing whatever of an unusual character took place.

KING'S COUNTY.

A few nights since a young man named Hussey was returning from a wedding party in the neighborhood of Birr, and when he reached Ballycanion Bridge he was attacked by three men, receiving several severe blows of a bludgeon on the head which knocked him to the ground. After some time he was enabled to extricate himself, and proceeded to his home, where he received medical attendance. No unfavorable symptoms appeared until last week, when he became worse, and on Saturday last Dr. Hogan, of Parsonstown, was sent for. Dr. Hogan, on examining the injured man, at once pronounced his case a hopeless one. He lingered on for a few days, and died on Monday last. Information was at once given to the police, and on Tuesday last Constable Quirke, Dr. Michael Joseph Moorhead was unanimously appointed chairman for the ensuing year. This is the third time Dr. Moorhead has been appointed chairman. He holds the commission of the peace for the town ship.

The Parsonstown Board of Guardians have instituted an inquiry into the illegality of the deposition of an old man named Thomas Hurt from Bolton Union, in England. The Local Government Board have recommended the institution of the inquiry, as from the statement of Hunt it would appear he was separated from his wife and sent by the Bolton Guardians to Parsonstown against his will.

Mr. Thomas Ridgway, a justice of the peace, was promoted last week at the quarter sessions of Parsonstown for violently assaulting an old man, a laborer named Samuel Snow. The evidence of the prosecutor was to the effect that an old woman when dying gave him a house which she had occupied for forty years, but the defendant ordered him to quit it. He said the place was his, and on his refusing knocked him down with a stick. The case for the defendant pleaded that the house and three roods of land attached, had belonged to him and his ancestors, and that Snow had first struck the complainant with a stick. The chairman commended the forbearance on the conduct of the defendant, who, as he held the commission of the peace, should have acted with more than ordinary prudence. He thought that if the superior Courts, before whom the case had originally come, knew all the facts, the case would not have been remitted to the sessions. To mark his sense of the defendant's forbearance he could not accept a decree for £30 with costs and £5 expenses.

LIMERICK.

A meeting of the parishioners of Hospital and Herbertstown has been held to discuss the proposal to record their sentiments respecting the removal of Rev. Patrick Ryan, curate of that place for the long period of sixteen years. Dr. Gubbins, of Kenmare Castle, presided, and Messrs. Timothy O'Dea and Thomas Hartigan were appointed honorable secretaries. Several of the parishioners having been interrogated as to the character entertained for Father Ryan, a subscription list was opened to present him with a purse of sovereigns and regard at parting. Over £50 were subscribed on the spot.

LONDONDERRY.

On Thursday, says the Derry "Standard," a meeting of the ratepayers who had petitioned the Government on the subject of the Irish Society's relations to this city was held in the Guildhall, under the able and presidency of Alderman Joseph Ewing Miller. After some conversation it was unanimously agreed that a deputation should be named to deliver the petition which has been numerously signed, to the Chief Secretary, when the time for receiving it arrives. A sum exceeding £400 was subscribed on the spot. After appointing Alderman Miller head treasurer, and Mr. Alexander Ewing secretary, the meeting adjourned.

LONGFORD.

A few nights since a young man named Hussey was returning from a wedding party in the neighborhood of Birr, and when he reached Ballycanion Bridge he was attacked by three men, receiving several severe blows of a bludgeon on the head which knocked him to the ground. After some time he was enabled to extricate himself, and proceeded to his home, where he received medical attendance. No unfavorable symptoms appeared until last week, when he became worse, and on Saturday last Dr. Hogan, of Parsonstown, was sent for. Dr. Hogan, on examining the injured man, at once pronounced his case a hopeless one. He lingered on for a few days, and died on Monday last. Information was at once given to the police, and on Tuesday last Constable Quirke, Dr. Michael Joseph Moorhead was unanimously appointed chairman for the ensuing year. This is the third time Dr. Moorhead has been appointed chairman. He holds the commission of the peace for the town ship.

LOUTH.

Two English detectives have been brought from England to Dundalk, and have arrived from a description of their persons, two brothers named Delaney, who some years ago absconded with wives and families to Drogheda, leaving them chargeable on the union. The men were working in England, earning 24s. per week each. The wives and children entered the Drogheda workhouse, where some days after one of the mothers died. The cost to the ratepayers for the support of the little orphans and deserted members is a total of £120. The delinquents, who are stout, healthy-looking men, will be tried at the ensuing assizes.

MAYO.

A fatal accident took place at the Castle Bar Railway at an early hour on Saturday morning. The night mail train from Dublin to Westport, which was having speed, was about to proceed onward towards Westport when it was run into from behind by a special train of eighty wagons from Athlone. One man was killed and many others wounded. A driver, a stoker, and signal-man have been put under arrest.

At Swinford quarter sessions, the chairman, addressing the grand jury, said he had a short list to go before them. There were only three cases. The same thing occurred in Ballinrobe, where there were but four cases for trial. He was glad to be able to congratulate them on the state of the calendar, and he believed from what he heard Mr. Meadows' say the business would be very light in the other divisions.

MEATH.

Mr. Mullen has been re-elected chairman of town commissioners for Navan.

MONAGHAN.

The little town of Castleroa has manfully come to the front, and generously contributed to the French monument fund. It is not the first time that the men of Castleroa have shown themselves destrous of advancing a patriotic object on the soil of Mayo. They contributed more largely than any town in this county to the expenses of the popular candidature at the election contest. The time again they are in the van, and we venture to say that had the five French soldiers lost their lives on the soil of Roscommon, a fitting monument would have been long since erected to obliterate their remains.

SLIGO.

At the Ballymote quarter sessions Jas. F. Hamilton, Esq., Q. C., Chairman of the county Sligo, addressing the Grand Jury thanked them, on the part of the public, for the excellent discharge of their duties by their admirable attendance not only on this but on every other occasion. The members of the Grand Jury were rewarded for the peaceable state of the district in which they lived. It was always in the same peaceable state. There was only one trifling cause to be investigated by the Grand Jury; and, but for a circular from the Government to the magistrates directing them to send on certain assault cases for trial—a circular his Worship did not agree with—the Grand Jury would not be troubled with them, as the magistrates were perfectly competent to deal with such cases as would go before them (the Grand Jury).

TIPPERARY.

The following gentlemen have been elected Town Commissioners for Cashel: Michael Dodes, Patrick Hackel, Dr. Michael Coyle, William Murphy, Daniel Laffin and D. Vincent Scully.

Lord Lismore and other landed proprietors in South Tipperary have agreed, at the best means of helping to improve the breed of cattle throughout the county, to send to the next May or June fair at Clonmel all the bulls they have bred, and intend to be sold by auction.

At the quarter sessions of Nenagh Michael Corboy, who, with his mother, Judith Tobin, was tried at the last summer assizes for the alleged murder of her second husband, but acquitted, appeared as plaintiff seeking to recover from the landlord of the plot of ground held by the old man supposed to have been murdered £20 for the alleged unlawful detention of a mule. The case was dismissed without prejudice for want of evidence, and the mule then became so violent that it was found necessary to have him removed by the police.

TYRONE.

In the Dungannon quarter sessions last week, Sir Francis W. Brady, Chairman for the county Tyrone, said, "I regret I cannot congratulate you on the lightness of the calendar in this portion of the county. In Clogher, Omagh and Strabane it was quite a pleasing duty to state the almost total absence of crime. There were twenty persons and his associates, with fourteen in the dock. Eight of these were bound to keep the peace for the usual period of six months. The case was one of the most serious that had been brought before the Court of the Peace's Judicial District of the State of Alabama, his wife says he is dead.

October 21.—Peter is out in the direction of Mattape, his wife says he is dead.

October 22.—No cases of small pox. Peter is getting well. The Indianas are quite happy because the sickness seems to be over.

Subsequently the steamer Rocket was chartered for the purpose of proceeding to the relief of Father Brabant. The Rev. Father Brabant, assisted by Mr. Walkem and the Chief of Police went in her. The wounded missionary is at present in Victoria.

THE TRUE PHILOSOPHER.

One day, says M. Cochin, I was walking in the court of the Institute (Paris) with M. Cousin and a learned professor of philosophy. A young nurse had just passed us, and as he went from us towards the lodge, M. Cousin, looking at him from a distance, stopped and said to his colleague: "My friend, you have been locating philosophy all our life; we all young men of education pass under the hill to come to us to them, by laborious arguments, that there is a soul. In the meantime, what has this young fellow done? He has done better than we; he has gone! He goes to console the souls of husband and wife, afflicted on the bed of an old man at the point of death, to struggle with vice in the soul of a bad man, with temptation in the soul of a young girl, with temptation in the soul of the unhappy, to enlighten the soul of a child. And we wish to prove to him that he is not a soul! And we would be better to be thrown in ourselves with a stone about our necks. Let us leave philosophy to the priests; they are doing for souls while we are trying to recognize the soul's existence."—Lamartine's Correspondence with Mme. Swetchine.

COMPARATIVE WEIGHT OF GOLD AND SILVER.

Those who are desirous to know the value of gold and silver in bulk. The following statement, from Professor F. L. Scribner, Superintendent of the Mint Bureau of Denver, may be relied on as correct:

One ton (2,000 pounds avoirdupois) of gold and silver contains 29,166 ounces of gold, and, therefore, the value of a ton of pure gold is $602,790 21, and a ton of silver, $37,-704 61.

A cubic foot of pure gold weighs 1,518.75 pounds avoirdupois; a cubic foot of silver bar weighs 656 25 pounds avoirdupois.

If there is one per cent. of gold or silver in a ton of rock, it contains 291 66 ounces troy of either of these metals.

The calculations of the Mint are made on the basis that 413 ounces of standard gold, or 900 fine (coin), is worth $900, and 11 ounces of silver 900 fine (coin), is worth $12 89.

There are 1,400 miles of railroad in this State.

LEGAL NOTICES.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE FOURTH Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the City and County of San Francisco.

N. T. SHAW, plaintiff, vs. ANNA SHAW, defendant. Action brought in the District Court of the Fourth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the City and County of San Francisco, and the Complaint filed in the office of the County Clerk of said City and County of San Francisco, in the office of the Clerk of said District.

The People of the State of California send greeting to ANNA SHAW, defendant. You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above named plaintiff, in the District Court of the Fourth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the City and County of San Francisco, and to answer the complaint filed therein, within ten days (exclusive of the day of service) after the service on you of this Summons, if served within this City and County; or if served out of this county, but within this district, or if served by publication, within thirty days; otherwise the default will be taken against you according to the prayer of said complaint.

The said action is brought to obtain a judgment and decree dissolving the bonds of matrimony now existing between plaintiff and defendant, and for such other relief as may be just and proper. And plaintiff may be entitled to recover. And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint, as above required, the said plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief therein demanded.

Witness my hand and the seal of the District Court of the Fourth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the City and County of San Francisco, this 3d day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy-five. [L.S.] WILLIAM BARNEY, Clerk.

By JAMES A. ANDERSON, Deputy Clerk.

J. Howard Smith, 503 Montgomery street, attorney for plaintiff. 1t

STATE OF CALIFORNIA—IN JUSTICE'S Court of the City and County of San Francisco. Action brought in the Justices' Court of the City and County of San Francisco, and the Complaint filed in the office of the Clerk of said Court.

The People of the State of California send greeting to ALFRED HARVEY, defendant. You are hereby required to appear and answer the complaint in an action brought against you by the above named plaintiff, in the Justices' Court of the City and County of San Francisco, and to answer the complaint filed therein, within three days (exclusive of the day of service) after the service on you of this Summons.

The said action is brought to recover $200 39, good and lawful money of the United States, due to plaintiff from said defendant, on an account for goods, wares and merchandise sold and delivered by plaintiff to said defendant, and for interest thereon, together with costs.

The action has been assigned, and you are required to appear before the Hon. Peter J. Shields, one of the Justices of said Court.

Given under my hand and the seal of said Court, this 3d day of September, 1875.

[L.S.] HENRY L. JOACHIMSEN, Jr., Justice of the Peace of the City and County of San Francisco.

Geo. T. Wenzell, Clerk of said court, 536 Clay street, San Francisco. 1t

JAMES MAC, attorney for plaintiff, 2½ Clay street, and 525 Montgomery street, San Francisco.

EDUCATIONAL.

SAINT MARY'S COLLEGE

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

Conducted by the Christian Brothers

Offers every facility for acquiring a thorough Education, whether Classical, Scientific or Commercial.

These who complete the Classical Course receive the degree of A. B., Bachelor of Arts; those who complete the Commercial course has been established for the convenience of those who wish to acquire a good practical education in as short a time as possible.

Particular attention is bestowed on every branch taught in the College, our own language receives special attention. The daily exercises of the Students in Grammar, Composition and Rhetoric are publicly discussed and criticised in the class-room.

TERMS PER SCHOLASTIC YEAR.

(Payable half yearly in advance).

Board, Tuition and Washing.....$300 00
Entrance Fee.....10 00
Physician's Fee and Medicines.....10 00
Vacation at College.....60 00
Use of Bed and Bedding.....10 00
Modern languages, Music and drawing form extra charges.
Studies will be resumed on the 4th of August, 1875. BROTHER PATRICK, President.

ST. VINCENT'S SCHOOL,

THIS INSTITUTION IS SITUATED IN SANTA Clara, on the street Market, from Ist one, to the most desirable part of the city. The buildings are extensive, and the grounds tastefully laid out.

The course of instruction embraces the usual branches of a thorough English education. Spanish is also taught.

TERMS.

(Invariably half yearly in advance):

Board, tuition, bed, bedding, washing, etc., per session.....$150 00
Music, with use of instrument.....20 00
Drawing and Painting.....10 00
Vacation spent in the country.....20 00

SECOND PUPILS.

Per quarter session (payable in advance), Board, tuition, washing, with use of bed and bedding.....$ 50 00
Music, with use of instrument.....10 00
Drawing and Painting.....5 00
Vacation spent in the country.....10 00

DAY PUPILS.

Terms per session (payable in advance).

Select Day School—Rhetoric, first and second Grammar.....$ 40
Grammar, Third and fourth Grammar Classes.....30
Third and fourth Grammar Classes.....20
Primary Classes.....15
Parochial Schools, per month, throughout the year.....1 00

No extra charge for French, piano and orchestral music.

For further particulars apply to the Superiors on the premises.

EDUCATIONAL.

SAINT IGNATIUS COLLEGE,

SAN FRANCISCO.

Conducted by the Fathers of the Society of Jesus.

The Literary Institution was incorporated, according to the laws of the State, on the 30th of April, 1855, and empowered to confer academical degrees with such literary honors as are granted by any University in the United States.

The design of the Institution is to give a thorough Christian education, comprising the Classical, Philosophical, Scientific and Commercial Courses.

The College is conducted by the Fathers of the Society of Jesus.

TERMS PER MONTH

(Payable in advance):

Tuition, in Preparatory Department.....$1 00
" in Grammar Department.....1 50
" in Higher Department.....2 00

EXTRA CHARGES:

For the use of Instruments in Natural Philosophy and Chemicals, first year, per month.....$1 00
For the use of Instruments, etc., second year, per month.....2 00
For each Academical Registration.....10 00

CONVENT OF OUR LADY OF THE SACRED HEART,

OAKLAND.....CALIFORNIA.

Conducted by the Sisters of the Holy Names of Jesus and Mary.

THIS INSTITUTION IS PLEASANTLY SITUated, and between Webster street and Lake Merritt, commanding an extensive frontage on the bay, including, recently added, the property which at present is occupied as a private residence by Hon. Horace Carpentier. The buildings are large and commodious, and have been fitted up with a due regard to the comfort of pupils, and a tasteful blending of a solid, useful and ornamental education.

TERMS (payable half yearly in advance):

Board and Tuition (Primary Department).....$150 00
Washing.....12 00
Use of bedding, without sheets (if supplied by the Institution).....5 00

Music, Guitar, Vocal Music, Drawing and Painting form extra charges.

For further particulars apply to

MOTHER SUPERIORESS.

Jab-6m

NOTRE DAME ACADEMY,

SAN FRANCISCO.

THIS ACADEMY, WHICH IS CONDUCTED by the Sisters of Notre Dame, is situated on Dolores street, opposite the Mission Church.

The course of instruction embraces the English and modern languages, music, drawing, etc. Pupils are fitted by with a view to the payment as well as the scientific acquisition of the various accomplishments. And an extensive play ground affords all the means for healthful exercise during the intermission hours.

The course of instruction embraces every usual and ornamental branch taught in the best Academies at the present day.

The first term of the Tenth Annual Session will commence July 16, 1875.

TERMS:

BOARDER PUPILS.

Per quarter session (payable in advance), Board, tuition, washing, with use of bedding.....$ 50
Music, with use of instrument.....10
Drawing and Painting.....10
Vacation spent in the country.....20

DAY PUPILS.

Terms per session (payable in advance).

Select Day School—Rhetoric, first and second Grammar.....$ 40
Grammar, Third and fourth Grammar Classes.....30
Third and fourth Grammar Classes.....20
Primary Classes.....15
Parochial Schools, per month, throughout the year.....1 00

No extra charge for French, piano and orchestral music.

For further particulars apply to the Superiors on the premises.

SANTA CLARA COLLEGE,

SANTA CLARA.....CALIFORNIA.

Under the management of the Fathers of the Society of Jesus.

THE SANTA CLARA COLLEGE WAS FOUNded in 1851, and was incorporated in 1855 by the privileges of a University. Diplomas are given to graduates in the various courses.

The College possesses a very complete philosophical apparatus, and valuable collections of Mineralogy, Geology, Botany, Zoology, Conchology and Geography. Photography and Surveying. Analytical Chemistry, Assaying and Metallurgy are taught practically.

The Scholastic Year, which is divided into two sessions of five and a half months each, commences in August and closes towards the beginning of June.

TERMS:

(Payable semi-annually, in advance):

Matriculation Fee, to be paid but once.....$ 10
Board, Tuition, Washing, Doctor's Fee, Use of Library, School Stationery, Medical Attendance, Use of Bed and Bedding.....150
Light per month.....1 00
Graduation Charges, Washing and Mending for the Graduating Class.....25 00
And the 10th, an advance made by the Institution for further particulars apply to

REV. A. VARSI, S. J., President.

FRANCISCAN COLLEGE,

SANTA BARBARA.....CALIFORNIA.

THE NINTH SESSION OF THIS INSTITUtion, conducted by the Fathers of the Order of St. Francis, will commence on the 1st of August.

The object of the Institution is to give a good English, Mathematical, Classical and Philosophical education, and to impart to pupils the most complete knowledge of a solid, useful and ornamental education.

TERMS (payable half yearly in advance):

Board and Tuition.....$150 00
Washing.....12 00
Use of bedding, without sheets (if supplied by the Institution).....5 00

For further particulars apply to

REV. JOSEPH STRAUB, C.P.P.S.

N. B.—On account of unavoidable delay the action the Pelican opens on the 20th of September, 1875.

CONVENT OF THE IMMACULATE HEART OF MARY

.....FOR THE.....

EDUCATION OF YOUNG LADIES

GILROY, SANTA CLARA CO.

Conducted by the Sisters of the Most Holy and Immaculate Heart of Mary.

TERMS FOR BOARDERS:

Board, tuition, washing and mending, per session.....$150
Entrance fee, to be paid but once.....10
Tuition on piano, per session.....50

No extra charges for Tapestry, Embroidery, Plain and Ornamental Needle-work, and the Spanish language.

TERMS FOR DAY SCHOLARS:

Primary, per month.....$ 2 50
Elementary and Senior, per month.....3 50
Music.....5 00
French.....5 00
Extra charge for Tapestry, Embroidery, Plain and Ornamental Needle-work, and for the Spanish language.

For further particulars apply to the Superiors on the premises.

SISTER MARY OF CHARITY,

Jab-6m Superioress Sacred Heart Academy, Cal.

COLLEGE OF NOTRE DAME,

SAN JOSE, CALIFORNIA.

YOUNG LADIES' INSTITUTE.

THIS INSTITUTION, WHICH IS INCORPOrated according to the laws of the State and empowered to confer academical honors, will commence the Twenty-Sixth Annual Session on MONDAY, August 9, 1875. The course of instruction embraces all the branches of a thorough education.

TERMS:

Entrance, to be paid but once.....$15 00
Board and Tuition, per quarter.....42 50
Washing, per month.....1 50
Physicians' fees (unless it may be preferred to have the family physician) per quarter.....1 00
Piano, Vocal Music, Drawing and Painting form extra charges. Lessons in Harp, Violin, Guitar and the French, Spanish or German Language, are for the present not taught in this establishment.

Pupils will be received at any time, the fee to commence from their entrance.

TERMS

Per annum (payable half-yearly in advance):

Board and Tuition.....$225 00
Washing.....24 00
Physicians attending at the Academy during vacation will be charged $20.

Bedding and Mode form extra charges.

There is no extra charge for the French or Spanish language, nor for Needlework.

All correspondence of the young ladies will be submitted to the inspection of the Superioress.

Letters of inquiry may be addressed to the

SISTER SUPERIOR.

ST. JOSEPH'S COLLEGE,

Mohawville, Humboldt County, Cala.

Conducted by the Priests of the Congregation of the Most Precious Blood.

TERMS PER SCHOLASTIC YEAR:

(Payable half yearly in advance).

Board, lodging, washing and mending.....$200 00
Entrance Fee, to be paid only once.....10 00
Vacation at College.....60 00

DAY PUPILS.

Junior class.....$40 00
Senior class.....60 00

Vocal and instrumental music, drawing and modern languages form extra charges. The French language is the scholastic year commence respectively on the 1st of August and the 15th of January.

For further information address

REV. JOSEPH STRAUB, C.P.P.S.

N. B.—On account of unavoidable delay the action the Pelican opens on the 20th of September, 1875.

ST. CATHERINE'S ACADEMY,

FOR YOUNG LADIES.

BENICIA.....CALIFORNIA.

THIS INSTITUTION IS CONDUCTED BY THE Sisters of St. Dominic, and is situated in the healthy and accessible town of Benicia. The plan of education pursued in this institution affords the most satisfactory insight in the most approved acquisitions of the female mind. The French language, as a branch of education, will be received, but, for the sake of uniformity, no pupil will be received for the study of foreign languages exclusively.

TERMS:

Board and Tuition, per month.....$ 20
Washing.....2 00
Use of Bed and Bedding.....2 00
Physician's Fee.....2 00
Music.....5 00
Drawing and Painting.....5 00
Use of Piano.....2 00
French.....5 00

Payments are required monthly, in advance, and no deduction will be made for absence, except in cases of protracted illness.

For further particulars apply to the Superioress on the premises.

SANTA CLARA COLLEGE,

SANTA CLARA.....CALIFORNIA.

Under the management of the Fathers of the Society of Jesus.

THE SANTA CLARA COLLEGE WAS FOUNded in 1851, and was incorporated in 1855 by the privileges of a University. Diplomas are given to graduates in the various courses.

The College possesses a very complete philosophical apparatus, and valuable collections of Mineralogy, Geology, Botany, Zoology, Conchology and Geography. Photography and Surveying. Analytical Chemistry, Assaying and Metallurgy are taught practically.

The Scholastic Year, which is divided into two sessions of five and a half months each, commences in August and closes towards the beginning of June.

TERMS:

(Payable semi-annually, in advance):

Matriculation Fee, to be paid but once.....$ 10
Board, Tuition, Washing, Doctor's Fee, Use of Library, School Stationery, Medical Attendance, Use of Bed and Bedding.....150
Light per month.....1 00
Graduation Charges, Washing and Mending for the Graduating Class.....25 00
And the 10th, an advance made by the Institution

For further particulars apply to the President

REV. A. VARSI, S. J., President.

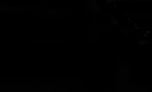
ST. VINCENT'S COLLEGE,

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

DEGREES CONFERRED

Rev. JAMES MacGILL, C. M., President.

RUSS HOUSE COACHES.



Nos. 27, 10, 18, 97 and 109.

McNALLY & BLATTNER.....Proprietors.

Orders left at the Russ House will be promptly attended to. Rates most reasonable. Ap13

Father Beccdi.

Let me go south into Calabria, to the city of Cosenza, where a hearty and enthusiastic reception is tendered by the authorities, civil and military, and by the people, to an Italian, nay more, a priest, and more still—to a Jesuit! It is Father Secchi, the astronomer. I shall quote from a liberal sheet: "And yet he was not a minister, nor a king who traveled in all the pride of office; but—the power of genius!—with more potency than either king or minister, he made you admire him, made you feel proud of the name of Italian. All the notable personages of the country went to meet him, all except one, Chev. Michele Masi (the Royal Prefect). The meeting took place about two hours' distance from the city, at the pretty hour indicated, thanks to the master of ceremonies, Rossi, and also the illustrious traveler was seated in a carriage with the Syndic, we set out for Cosenza. The day was lovely as about fifteen carriages thundered into Cosenza. The modest figure of a priest bowed to an admiring people, and that priest, Angelo Secchi, in as modesty, as admirable as his genius, seemed confused and surprised at so much homage. We entered the city, and beheld the balconies all strewn and covered with people, anxious to behold, if only for an instant, this wonderful man, who illuminates the sun and stars." Father Secchi's visit to Cosenza was a scientific expedition, to take the meridional line for the kingdom of Italy. The daily papers say that he came early in the morning to the observatory and then returns to work. The provincial authorities gave a grand dinner at his honor. We were sorry to see the ancient dissenting brethren that Jesuits are ever meddling in the things of earth, political intrigues are their element, and that they are secret Order. We have found few, and he represented by the individuals are indeed far more like to their Master. Let him speak to you of his God, and his followers are indebted for much that they know of the material heaven. Let him speak to you of his country

BURIED.

Hush! 'tis my sacred soul Hope is lying there,
Beneath dread Falsehood's pall. Yet cannot see
Her white, cold face, with settled, wistful look,
Where dwells the change as I strike to and.

Nay, 'tis fair Sorrow of Mem'ry I have tried
To cover up that pall, but all in vain!
In Hell finds their love her bloom destroyed,
And to their blighted hearts alone she now pain.

When Love's white veil I softly tried to fling
To whist shadow o'er its primrose front,
The touch but blanketed it, and Love's heart bled
To see beneath the outside of one hue.

Then Truth's fair light I brought with trembling hands,
And cast its radiance tenderly on all!
Alas! it only showed more widely
The blighted flowers, the blackened veil, the pall!

It pierced beneath dark Falsehood's mirror'd sea,
Revealing my dead Hope, to still, to upset,
Her bosom pinioned, her fair spirit fled,
And oh! my heart crushed 'neath her quiet feet!

Hush! there is naught can hide it, then, from me,
Sire, Mem'ry, Love and Truth but show my loss;
Nay, I will bury it—my secret, dead Hope—
Will softly bury it beneath the cross.

And in each holy grave, beloved, beloved,
Here fair the cross will ever rise from me;
The shadow of the cross upon it cast,
And gifts of cross to any life lead to thee.

CATHOLIC INTELLIGENCE.

—There is but one Catholic chaplain for the American army, though at least half the men are Catholics.

—At the Presentation Convent, Thurles, recently, Sir Grece the Lord Archbishop received the solemn profession of Esther (in religion, Sister Mary Joseph) daughter of the late James O'Meara, Nenagh.

—Rev. James J. Murphy, who is spoken of as a very able preacher and lecturer, and as a very forcible writer, has become the successor of the lamented George E. Clark, Esq., as editor of the Montreal Two Witness.

—The Earl of Gainsborough entertained his Eminence Cardinal McCloskey at Exton House, which his Eminence left on Saturday, November 6, for Dublin, on his return to New York. The bishops of Nottingham and Nottingham were also entertained by his Lordship to meet Cardinal McCloskey.

—A very curious incident took place at Columbus, Ohio, on Sunday, October 24th. Rev. Father Sherman celebrated the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass, according to the Ceremonies rite. The ancient rite is celebrated in Syro Chaldaic, which was the same language as that used by our Blessed Lord and the Apostles. The rite dates from Apostolic times. How much a fact proves the unity and universality of the Catholic Church.

—Next May the Holy Father will celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of his episcopal consecration. The Catholic world will join in that celebration with feelings of an extraordinary joy. Rarely does a bishop, but still more rarely does a Pope, count such jubilee. Pio Nono's life, so memorable in its events, will on this occasion afford another opportunity to the faithful throughout the world of expressing their filial devotion. We are sure that in each catholic home will join more heartily than his children in America, so greatly honored through him by Catholicism.

—Bishop Dupanloup's pamphlet against the Freemasons has called forth a merry statement from several English papers, admitting most of the facts of the bold accusations, and calling upon the craft in England to repudiate wholly and forever the Masonry of the Continent. "The German, French and Italian Masons," says the London Times, "have delivered themselves over, long since, to the worst forms of infernalism, socialism and revolution." It calls upon the English lodges to refuse the bond of fellowship to their false brethren across the Channel.

THE EVOLUTION THEORY.

Professor Mivart, lecturing at Leeds the other day upon the evolution theory, said the apostles of that unsatisfactory creed did not mean to contend that man is descended from the ape, only that man and the ape had a common ancestor of a brute inferior to either. This correction does not relieve the wounded dignity of humanity. It was something to be at least able to trace our pedigree to a respectable ape, or even to a respectable ancestor than the periwinkle. As it is, we have cut our cousin, not our grandfather. The upstart, man, nameless of the common progenitor, turned his back upon the ape and the ape upon us. In the process of development he had got a rise in the world. It ought to be a wholesome corrective to the bifurcated beggar on horseback to be told the baboon is not to be cut by his family as he, and that both had the same origin in times when the earth was new, and the song which the baboon sang to his love had applied to realities, when it told how

> It was a gay young protoplasm
> Of the primeval time,
> Quoth he, "I loved this cutaneous
> Pre-Adamite sublime."

But though we are the culminating point of the series of "evolved" beings, it might have been well for us if we had stuck fast to the fore by a flake, in fact. Some animals instead of developing a fine coat of hair, developed a set of teeth, after the manner of that North Cork millionaire who added inches to his height by those legs which we pointed out the wriggling reptile, the impetuous and lyrical lobster, the flip-pant and livery shrimp. They have done well producing their Alexanders and their Millions, and are to be honored by examination. Moreover, it seems the tendency to extend the area of Zoological degradation leaves room for the next hypothesis that the apes is the abused descendant of early man. Very likely a million years ago the ape was a man's prayer and an agitator, and had his posthumous end his Permissive Bill. He sets a swindler him out of his heritage, and if justice reigned among us, ought to exchange places with him. Professor Mivart d'eult not the great resemblance between the ape and man. It is amazing, surely, and he has made a most hypothetical discovery. Prandree to Gay, by investigators from Physgorce to Monthrode. Aristophanes, with whom every Yankee will feel at home, and his most explicit "utinia quam similis turpissimo bestiæ, nobis"—were struck with it long while back.

A RELIC OF THE ROMANS.

Shakspere had a word to say concerning bees, proud as man, like an angry ape playing the monkey trieks before high heaven; and Darwin and Huxley appear to think also, and that the quadruped is the type from which his beautiful Maker's journeyman hath blundered in his making. Expanding Professor Mivart's principles, we may say there is little or no structural difference between the brain of Mr. Gladstone or Lord Derby, or Mr. Whalley at that of the chimpanzee, the curving ostaag, or the gorilla. But the functional difference is vast. Those distant conclusions of distinguished statesmen and nobles cannot arise theological traces, nor try to crush a tenant with a sermon, nor play the low comedy in the great Parliamentary burlesque. Huxley had to explain away this defect by comparing the brain of the ape and that of man to a couple of watches, one of which failed to keep time. It might be a hair in the balance-weight, a little rust on the pinion, the slightest flaw in the escapement. The is all that hinders the people of the woods from stepping down and out as men and brothers, and the, adds the reverential friend of Tyndall, "is the fault of the watchmaker." Only the thin partition stands between the ape and the highest corporate and official dignity, the ability to receive a testimonial, to pass through the bankruptcy court, to take all other solemnities of human civilization. For otherwise, as has been said, the resemblance is quite close. Even prolific man is forced to own it.

Observe the weird expression of busy recognition with which the occupants of the monkeys' den in the Z. Gardens regard you. What Tennyson calls "the mystic gleams" from a past existence, usually animate his sight. He tries in vain to recall when and where he met you before, unaware that your metempsychosis is complete, and that years have passed since you were a poor red coated jailbreak, going round with a Savoyard, and slung out a livelihood by hanging with prehensile tail from area railings, the recipient of contemporary half pence and limp sugar—the hate and terror of the domestic dog. The contrast is tremendous. Yourself on the one hand, reasonable and sentient, able if you like to fly a kite, to sell your vote, to devote yourself in matrimony and domestic sin-in-law, to exercise all the rights and privileges of an exalted dealing; on the other hand your quadrumanous cohabitee, who might like the Blarney Stone forever and a day as qualified to "vote" or to a lady's chamber" or become a member of Parliament. But the philosophers do not acknowledge so vast a chasm between us and what we insolently call the brute creation. No doubt we have lost a little tail, unfledged. Thus we lack of the "dumb lower life." But we have the monopoly of language? What about the gesticulating antenna of the formicæ what about the talking fish of the reliable Pliny, the whistling power of the equally credible Kentucky reporter?

Goldsmith was a smart man, but we have it on good authority that Poll Parrot was as capable a conversationalist. Poll of Hoxton, Poll of Wapping, Poll of Seven Dials, Poll of Billingsgate, Poll of Cheapside, with his most explicit "utinia quam similis turpissimo bestiæ, nobis"—were struck with it long while back.

Shakspere had a word to say concerning bees, proud as man, like an angry ape playing the monkey tricks before high heaven; and Darwin and Huxley appear to think also, and that the quadruped is the type from which his beautiful Maker's journeyman hath blundered in his making. Expanding Professor Mivart's principles, we may say there is little or no structural difference between the brain of Mr. Gladstone or Lord Derby, or Mr. Whalley at that of the chimpanzee, the curving ostaag, or the gorilla. But the functional difference is vast. Those distant conclusions of distinguished statesmen and nobles cannot arise theological traces, nor try to crush a tenant with a sermon, nor play the low comedy in the great Parliamentary burlesque. Huxley had to explain away this defect by comparing the

It is wonderful what works man are able to do. It is related by Pliny that a certain Myrmecides wrought out of ivory a chariot with four wheels and four horses, and a ship with all her rigging and tackling, both which a fly might cover and hide with her wings. We would be tempted to disbelieve this were is not for the authority of Pliny, whose story is corroborated by Cicero, and is moreover and official dignity, the ability to receive a testimonial, to pass through the bankruptcy court, to take all other solemnities of human civilization. For otherwise, as has been said, the resemblance is quite close. Even prolific man is forced to own it.

Observe the weird expression of busy recognition with which the occupants of the monkeys' den in the Z. Gardens regard you. What Tennyson calls "the mystic gleams" from a past existence, usually animate his sight. He tries in vain to recall when and where he met you before, unaware that your metempsychosis is complete, and that years have passed since you were a poor red coated jailbreak, going round with a Savoyard, and slung out a livelihood by hanging with prehensile tail from area railings, the recipient of contemporary half pence and limp sugar—the hate and terror of the domestic dog. The contrast is tremendous. Yourself on the one hand, reasonable and sentient, able if you like to fly a kite, to sell your vote, to devote yourself in matrimony and domestic sin-in-law, to exercise all the rights and privileges of an exalted dealing; on the other hand your quadrumanous cohabitee, who might like the Blarney Stone forever and a day as qualified to "vote" or to a lady's chamber" or become a member of Parliament. But the philosophers do not acknowledge so vast a chasm between us and what we insolently call the brute creation. No doubt we have lost a little tail, unfledged. Thus we lack of the "dumb lower life." But we have the monopoly of language? What about the gesticulating antenna of the formicæ what about the talking fish of the reliable Pliny, the whistling power of the equally credible Kentucky reporter?

Goldsmith was a smart man, but we have it on good authority that Poll Parrot was as capable a conversationalist. Poll of Hoxton, Poll of Wapping, Poll of Seven Dials, Poll of Billingsgate, Poll of Cheapside, with his most explicit "utinia quam similis turpissimo bestiæ, nobis"—were struck with it long while back.

A RELIC OF THE ROMANS.

There has just turned up at Pompeii a relic of the Roman days which goes far beyond the figure of the centry smothered at his post, the miser clutching his money bags in the cellar, the sapphore with the coindied wine and the lady with her jewels as well for association by human teeth. The latest "find" is the bowels of a banker or money-lender, who rejoiced in the name of Lucius Cæcilius Jucundus, alias Lucius Cæcilius the Pleasant. The very tablets on which his contracts were engrossed, faced with wax, have also been discovered, with bust of the joyous capitalist himself, which represents him in his habit as lived, with a wart near the jaw, sharp eye and well set mouth—a man, in short, practical, shrewd and somewhat jovial, as his cur-

"Facts are Stubborn Things."

Thousands of human beings are yearly borne on the swift current of disease down to the grave, just because they do not possess a sufficient knowledge of themselves. A man meets his neighbor, and the first salutation is, "How are you?" or, "How do you do?" The reply frequently is, "Oh, I am well with the exception of a cold." Reader, do you know that a cold is one of the most dangerous of maladies? A cold not only clogs up the pores of the entire system, and retards circulation, but it is productive of Catarrh, which in spite apt to lead to consumption. "Oh," you say, "it is nothing but a cold in my head." Very true, but that cold is nearly a solid form of Catarrh, and if not arrested in its course will become chronic. Catarrh is one of the most dangerous, yet insidious affections in the catalogue of diseases. Many persons have it in a mild form, and do not realize that they have it. A disagreeable sensation in the head. In the more advanced stages, there is a discharge having an offensive odor. If the disease be allowed to continue in its course, thick, hard incrustations will form in the head, the bones of which sometimes become softened and break away in pieces. Why will persons continue to suffer from such an annoying, disgusting disease, when they can be cured as well as not? Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy only will cure the worst forms of Catarrh. In fact, it is the only sure and safe remedy ever before the public offered to the people. Many hardy, intending purchasers have been induced to try it on the sagacity of the proprietor, and they have cure the disease. Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy is soothing and healing in its nature, and when used with Dr. Pierce's Nasal Insufflator, according to directions, does not fail to effect a cure. Sold by all druggists.

A Valuable Medical Treatise.

The edition for 1876 of the Counselling Medical Anemia, known as Hostetter's Almanac, is now ready, and may be obtained, free of cost, of druggists and general country dealers in all parts of the United States and British America, and indeed in every portion of the Western hemisphere. It combines, with the issue of the present year, a mass of useful facts and reliable information, which, for the purposes of correct reckoning, light reading, and the entertainment of intelligent people generally, is unsurpassed, are, as regards both great care, and will be found perfectly reliable. The issue of Hostetter's Almanac for 1876 will probably be the largest edition of a medical work ever published. Druggists, Country Merchants, Printers, Hostetter & Smith, Pittsburgh, Pa., will receive special rates for large orders. Any one can get by mail in any person who cannot procure one in his neighborhood.

Just Arrived! Just Arrived!

J. M. Bryan, 130 Third street, desires to call the attention of housekeepers to his large and well assorted stock of Wooden Ware, just received from Bangor [illegible] which he is selling at greatly reduced prices. Call and examine the stock. It will do you no trial and examine the stock before purchasing elsewhere.

Wholesale Market Report.

MONITOR OFFICE, SAN FRANCISCO,
TUESDAY, December 7, 1875.

FLOUR.—We quote the following prices: Extra Family Flour [illegible] per bbl, and superfine at [illegible].

WHEAT.—The market has been moderately active during the week, and a large sale of [illegible] is reported; quotable at the close at [illegible] for fair to prime quality.

BARLEY.—The market is quotable at [illegible] for feed grades; new brewing at [illegible] for choice to fancy; shipping at [illegible] per ctl.

OATS.—Quotable at [illegible] per ton.

BRAN.—Quotable at [illegible] per ton.

MIDDLINGS.—Quotable at [illegible] per ton.

CORN MEAL.—Table varieties, [illegible] per ctl.

HAY.—Quotable at [illegible] per ton.

BRANS.—We quote bran from wharf as follows: Bran, [illegible] per ton; Middlings, [illegible] per ton; Feed, [illegible] per ton; Barley, [illegible] per ton.

POTATOES.—Sweet, [illegible] per ctl; red description, [illegible] per ctl.

ONIONS.—We quote the market at [illegible] per ctl.

BEANS.—Quotable at [illegible] per ctl.

BUCKWHEAT.—Nominal at [illegible] per lb.

BEESWAX.—We quote at [illegible] per lb.

HONEY.—Quotable at [illegible] per gallon.

TALLOW.—We quote as follows: Butter, [illegible] free, [illegible] per lb; Grease, [illegible] per lb.

WOOL.—We quote as follows: Butter, [illegible] free, [illegible] per lb; Grease, [illegible] per lb.

DAIRY PRODUCE.

BUTTER.—California, [illegible] Eastern, [illegible]

CHEESE.—California, [illegible] Eastern, [illegible]

FRESH MEATS.

Beef—For first quality, [illegible] per lb; second quality, [illegible] per lb.

Veal—At [illegible] per lb.

Mutton—At [illegible] per lb.

Pork—At [illegible] per lb.

Lamb—Spring, [illegible] per lb.

CURED MEATS.

Hams—California, [illegible] per lb; Eastern, [illegible].

Bacon—California, [illegible] Eastern, [illegible].

Lard—Quotable at [illegible] per lb, and [illegible] per lb.

POULTRY AND GAME.

Fowls—Live, large, per dozen, [illegible]; Dressed, [illegible] per lb.

Chickens—Live, per dozen, [illegible]; Dressed, [illegible] per lb.

Turkeys—Live, [illegible] per lb; Dressed, [illegible] per lb.

Geese—Live, [illegible] per lb; Dressed, [illegible] per lb.

Ducks—Live, [illegible] per lb; Dressed, [illegible] per lb.

Wild Ducks—[illegible] per dozen for small and [illegible] per dozen for Mallard.

REAL ESTATE AGENTS.

M. O'NEIL. M. S. O'NEIL.

M. O'NEIL & SON,
Real Estate and Law Agency.
NO. 702 MISSION STREET,
Corner Third ——— SAN FRANCISCO.
REAL ESTATE BOUGHT AND SOLD. RENTS COLLECTED.
Bad Tenants quickly ejected at very small cost.
Collections of all kinds promptly made. Low bail bonds of all kinds reasonably and rapidly executed.
LOANS NEGOTIATED.

F. P. O'KEEFFE,
(Successor to J. D. CUMMINS),
FARMING LAND, REAL ESTATE,
AND
GENERAL BUSINESS AGENCY.
Houses to Let and Furniture of Houses for Sale.
Collects Rents, Notes, Bills and Accounts.
Office, 236 Montgomery St.,
NEW FIRE ——— SAN FRANCISCO.
Money Loans and Partnerships Negotiated.
Parties looking for any safe and reliable investment may depend upon receiving valuable information.

EDMUND MARKS,
AGENT FOR THE SALE AND PURCHASE OF
Real Estate,
Stocks, Bonds, etc. LOANS NEGOTIATED.
416 MONTGOMERY STREET,
Between California and Sacramento, and Pacific Telegraph.

F. S. WENSINGER,
DEALER IN
REAL ESTATE,
302 MONTGOMERY STREET,
Near Pine ——— San Francisco.
Office Hours—11 a. m. to 1 p. m.

THE ARCADE,
MARKET STREET, NEAR FOURTH.

NOVELTIES IN SILKS!
NOVELTIES IN DRESS GOODS!

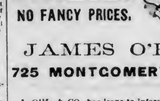
☞ Our arrangements for the Fall season are now complete, and we have at present on exhibition the most extensive assortment of European Novelties ever introduced to the Ladies of California.

DOMESTIC GOODS.

In this department we have now completed all our contracts for the coming season, and are prepared to offer housekeepers every species of Domestic Goods at prices which cannot be approached by any house in San Francisco.

SPECIAL NOTICE.—Two-Button Jouvin Gloves, ☞ $1 50 per Pair. The immense sale of these Gloves in the past ten days is a distinct indication that the Ladies of San Francisco have now realized the fact that the opportunity now presented for the purchase of Jouvin Gloves may never again occur. Note the price—Two-Button Jouvin Gloves, $1 50 per pair. ☞ Every pair guaranteed.

J. J. O'BRIEN & CO.,
924, 926 AND 928 MARKET STREET.

IMPORTANT NOTICE!
Second Grand Annual Sale of
Ladies' and Gents' BOOTS AND SHOES.


MEN'S AND BOYS' CUSTOM-MADE CLOTHING.
NO FANCY PRICES. Dry Goods, Etc.
JAMES O'HANLON & CO.,
725 MONTGOMERY STREET, West Side, near Jackson.

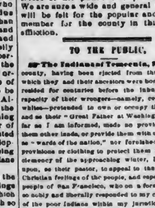
J. O'H. & CO. beg leave to inform their numerous friends and patrons that they will sell for the next sixty days, regardless of cost, their IMMENSE STOCK OF STAPLE GOODS. Strangers visiting the city will find it to their advantage to call and compare our prices with those of other stores; they will see that they can save 25 cents on the dollar. To be closed out—

1 set pairs Ladies' Kid-lined Balmorals	$1 25	Boys' Custom-made Boots	1 25
Full-weighted Balmorals	1 50	Children's Calf Shoes	1 25
Extra quality Balmorals	1 75	Misses' Shoes	1 00
Misses' Kid-lined Balmorals	1 25	Men's Rubber Boots	2 50
Misses' Kid-lined Polish Balmorals	1 50	Men's Rubber Shoes	1 50
Ladies' Gaiters, extra quality	2 25	1,000 pairs Miss's Clothing, serviceable kind	2 00
Ladies' Slippers	1 00	Men's Suits, all-wool Cassimere	$7 00 to $8 00
1 to 5 pairs Carpet per pair	1 00	Men's Suits, all-wool Cassimere	10 00
6 pairs Carpet and upwards	90	A splendid lot of Gents' Overcoats	10 00
Men's Custom-made Boots	2 50	Gents' clothing a specialty. Splendid stock.

NEW TAILORING ESTABLISHMENT.
B. FLOOD,
Fashionable Tailor,
637 HOWARD STREET, Bet. Second and Third.
☞ Clothing made to order at the following low prices
Fine American Cassimere Pants, to order ——— $4 50
Fine Business Suits, to order ——— $15 00
Fine Dress Suits, to order ——— $25 00
Fine French Beaver Suits, to order ——— $45 00
Fine Diagonal Suits, to order ——— $50 00
☞ All other Garments made at proportionally low rates. Full satisfaction guaranteed as to quality of goods and perfection of fit. Special attention given to Repairing.
1924-17

STEINWAY & SONS'
PIANOS.
Square, $475 and $550.
Square Grand, $400.
Upright, $550 $600, $800.
Grand, $1,080, $1,200.
☞ Illustrated Catalogues on application.
KRANICH, BACH & CO'S (New York)
SUPERIOR PIANOS,
At a moderate cost—½ Octaves—$300 and $325. Warranted for 5 years.
Sold for cash, or on 1½ installment plan at cash rates, with one per cent. per month added on deferred payments.

MATTHIAS GRAY,
105 Kearny Street, San Francisco,
and 121 First Street, Portland, O.
General Agent for manufacturers for the Pacific Coast.



Assortment of ST. MARY'S HOSPITAL
Progresses of delivery in a prominent characteristic in our locations. Orders from the interior filled at city prices.
Paper Riding Habit
Black Rocky Mountain Goat Riding Habit
Cor. Clay and Sansome Streets, San Francisco

ST. MARY'S HOSPITAL,
Corner Bryant and First Streets,
SAN FRANCISCO.
THIS INSTITUTION IS UNDER CHARGE OF THE SISTERS OF MERCY.
JAMES MURPHY, M.D. ——— Visiting Surgeon
JAMES D. WHITNEY, M.D. ——— Visiting Physician
JOSEPH BARKAN, M.D. ——— Consulting and Attending Physician
C. O. KANYON, M.D. ——— House Surgeon
Patients will be received into the Hospital at the following rates: Private rooms, $20 per week; Wards, $10 per week; in private rooms. Liquors and medicines extra.
Children's cases, $10 extra.
☞ Special Physicians not required to pay for services.
Money always refunded in case a patient leaves before the expiration of the month.

DR. M. J. BOLAN,
OFFICE—NO. 628 MARKET STREET,
Between Montgomery and Kearny, over Pacific Coast Steam Ship Co.'s Office.
Residence and Depot, corner Cap Pacific.
Office hours: 9 to 10 a. m.; 12 to 1 p. m.; 6 to 7 p. m.
Residence hours: 7 to 8 a. m.; 12 to 1 p. m.; 6 to 7 p. m.
Office hours—1 to 4 and 7 to 8 p. m.

$12 a day at home. Agents wanted. Outfit and terms free. TRUE & CO., Augusta, Me.

REMOVAL
OF THE ANTISELL
PIANO COMPANY
TO
865 MARKET STREET
OPPOSITE POWELL.
For sixty days we will sell our Celebrated Improved PIANOS at Greatly Reduced Prices, for Cash or on Monthly Installments.

Tempora Praterium Nunquam Recertur
Time Past ☞ Never Returns.
IF YOU WANT TO HAVE YOUR CLOCKS or Watches keep good time, and cease giving you trouble, let Jerome Dunn, 10 Post street, be engaged. He repairs Watches, Clocks and Jewelry in the best manner, and warrants his work. He will please bear in mind that it is time that is lost by a Watch or Clock that does not run, and if one or more different watchmakers, you will lose time by calling on

D. A. O'CONNELL,
WATCH AND CLOCK MAKER,
145 Third Street, near Howard.
He will examine your Watch or Clock free of charge, and will do any repairing at very moderate prices. Watches, Clocks, Jewelry, and Plated Ware, as good and cheap as can be bought in the city. All work warranted to stand. Please give him a trial. Orders by mail to any person who cannot procure one in his neighborhood.

A CURIOUS LEGEND.

The Irish have a curious legend respecting what they call "Mairidh an ag," in other words, "the blossom of youth." The legend is this: An Irishman at one period of his life is seized with a mysterious hospitality received, much to his astonishment. He was taken into immediate favor by those among whom he sojourned. He was received as a certain part of the county Limerick, from which it appears he came, there was a certain good fodder about him, a white-thorn bush in a garden, which was so clearly pointed out as that by the Irish Celtiche of all ranks, no matter how divided they might be on political questions, had always a reference to their faith. As the Irishman is by nature of extreme national opinion in this country, it gave him peculiar pleasure to find himself at the end of the seaport in which the people of Cork had stumped out an attempt to establish English infidelity and International atheism in their city, and at the sheers with which those whose sanity is now represented preserved his declaration that he would gladly see Ireland beneath the ocean a thousand fathoms than remain a land of no Catholic.

Mr. Murphy, M. P., in acknowledging the toast, said that the Catholics should be proud of their position. They had a great future before them, and they should waken up to use their power wisely.

Mr. J. G. McCarthy, M. P., also responded.

The proceedings then terminated, and the Cardinal left for the Bishop's Palace amid the cheers of a large crowd that had assembled in the street. Cardinal McCloskey, before embarking in the Abyssinia, was presented by the Bishop and clergy of Cork with an address.—Dublin Freeman's Journal.

The Cardinal's Arrival in New York.

The Cardinal Archbishop of New York, says the New York Freeman's Journal, accompanied by his Secretary, Rev. John M. Farley, arrived, after a long and rough passage, on Friday, November 26th. A number of the clergy, with Very Rev. William Quin, V. G., were on hand to receive him at the dock. The St. Michael's Association had proposed to go down the bay, with the Cardinal off on a special steamer, with Pontifical and National banners flying, and land him at some wharf most convenient to his palace. But many other Catholic societies desired, also, to show their devotion to the Cardinal, and, on conference with Vicar-General Quin, it was decided to forgo all preparations, out of regard to the desire of himself and staff of Cardinal McCloskey, that no display should accompany the day of his return. In these times of immense distress and fearful cold, the peremptory decision of any open parade by Cardinal McCloskey will commend itself to the public judgment.

The Cardinal returned in excellent health, and with the best of spirits. For special reasons the Cardinal has to be careful of himself at sea. It was only during the latter days of the long voyage that he was able to appear at the public table of the saloon. There is was, of course, the delight of all the company.

On Sunday last his Eminence appeared at the Solemn High Mass, which was sung by the Very Rev. John M. Farley, assisted by Rev. J. Keane, as Deacon, Rev. Father Hogan, as sub-deacon, and Rev. John F. Kearney as master of Ceremonies. His Eminence the Cardinal occupied his throne, attended by the Very Rev. Vicar-General Quin on one side, and Rev. Abbé Valois of Montreal on the other. After the first Gospel his Eminence ascended the pulpit, and after an ex. 25—30 he said:

"My dearly-loved Brethren: You do not, I trust, expect a sermon. I have hardly recovered from the effects of a long and rather tedious voyage across the Atlantic, and cannot deliver a set oration. Unprepared though I am, I feel that I should take considera-tion for you, and do not feel it right that I did not seize the earliest opportunity of uttering the heart's gratitude for all the mercies that I have received from the hands of the Supreme Ruler of all things. I have been permitted to enjoy a great deal of the society of the Holy Father. Sometimes I sat in familiar converse with him; at others I shared his private cabinet, and at others I shared his walks, or listened to his words to the host, as he walked daily. But every moment I was profoundly impressed with the moral and intellectual dignity of the august head of our Church. All who selected his presence were struck with reverence, and as a Cardinal I was treated with honors to which they appeared, was in no counterance. Such eloquence penetrated the hearts of those to whom it was addressed, whatever their professions or creeds. None of them could help feeling that they were in his own palace, without feeling that he was above monarchs, princes, or any of the great ones of the earth. Even when speaking of the wounds that cruel enemies to Sacred Church, his words were not bitter. He spoke like a father grieving over rebellious children.

"You have been a part of the sufferings of your brethren in less favored lands. Our turn to suffer may come next. In the holy season of Advent, which begins to-day, you ought to revive in your hearts the spirit of fervor and devotion. Prepare, then, as you may be ready, under all circumstances, to profess your faith. Not had you been permitted to have been faithful and lacked gratitude for what God has bestowed upon them. His hand, I would say, was outstretched out to protect them. His shestens that the chastened may turn to Him in the hour of their tribulation.

"Let me remind you that in all the churches of the diocese the millenium of this day are for the benefit of the new cathedral. Wherever I went in Europe persons said to me, 'When will the grand Pagan and Christian history abounds in characters which the world honors to day as warmly as if they were contemporaneous. Indeed, it would appear as if distance were a favoring element in perpetuating fame once established, and it is almost trite to say that many heroes wait until the succeeding generation to be awarded their enduring titles. "Many a crown covers but a head," and martyrs' bones much bleach in the sun before their sanctities are seen of men.

The world sees easily one kind of hero-ism, and when it sees, it applauds; but there is a better kind which it does not see. A young girl rescues a drowning man; people shouts, stare, applaud and wonder. A widowed mother works early and late in the labor of providing for her children, her heroism is not of a moment, under inciting impulse, but enduring day after day against the great destroyer of resolutions—Time; every hour of her wearied life is an hour for heroism, but the world does not see. A Sister of Charity sings her sister stands at the post at the risk of his life rather than by its abandonment to peril the travelers; the world applauds, as it should. But there is a man who stands by his post every day, every night, who never leaves it till God bids him go. Existence ends and he is no place. A man who sacrifices all domestic ties, knows no habitual luxuries, whose enjoyments are such as man do not call by that name, whose sleep is broken by the sick, whose days are spent in listening to woe, wretchedness and sin, alleviating suffering by doing a measure of it upon himself, removing sin in others by the example of his own abstinence, and living perpetually in an atmosphere of unwholesomeness cannot secrete, instant prayer and habitual meditation, is a hero in the great of the Catholic Church. Mediation, meditation, and daily are the bread which his soul breathes.

"The Nation" on the Poor and Protestantism.

The Nation of last week has an able article on "The Church and the Poor," suggested by the proceedings at Mr. Moody's meetings and at the "Oldham" of the Episcopal sect in this country. The statement of the evil is very forcible, and not at all exaggerated. Says our contemporary:

"It is impossible to enter the Brooklyn Tabernacle without being struck by the fact that Christianity seems among us to have lost its original character, as par excellence the religion of the poor and miserable, and the forms of its profession to be assuming the character it is straining to its utmost, stretching every bone and muscle to the task, and the lower orders is at its last grasp! Sin, and sickness, and loss again—still the whole man is bowed and into a heap of humiliation

But take the objective faith of the Catholic, from the Pope to the poorest Irishwoman—from the Pope to the poorest Irishwoman—from the Pope to the poorest Irishwoman—

BURIED.

Hush! 'tis my sweet, dead Hope is lying there,
Beneath dread Falsehood's pall. Yet cannot see
Her white, cold face, with settled, woeful look,
Where dwells the shape no t rrible to me.

Hey, is fair flowers of Memory I have tried
To cover up that pall, but all in vain;
For fatal fonds their tear-of bloom destroyed,
And in their bright-red hearts miss me now pain.

When Love's white veil I softly tried to fling
In many shadow over the presence dear,
The more hel bloodstained it, and Love's heart bled
To see heaven's tire catched of her.

Then Truth's fair light I brought with trembling hands,
And cast its radiance tenderly on all!
Alas! it only showed more widely
The blighted flowers, the blackened veil, the pall!

It pierced beneath dark Falsehood's outer s'on,
Revealing my dead Hope, so still, so sweet,
Her bosom poisoned, her fair spirit fled,
And oh! thy heart crushed 'neath her quiet feet!

Hush! there is enough can hide it, then, from me;
Skies, Mem'ry, Love and Truth but show my loss;
Hey, I will keep it—my sweet, dead Hope,—
Will softly bury it beneath the cross.

And in such holy years, beloved, beloved,
How fair this cross will mirror that from me;
The shadow of the cross upon it cast,
And gift of cross in my life hard to them.

CATHOLIC INTELLIGENCE.

—There is but one Catholic chaplain for the American army, though at least half the men are Catholics.

—At the Presentation Convent, Thurles, recently, Sis Grace the Lord Archbishop presented the solemn profession of Esther (on religion, Sister Mary Joseph) daughter of the late James O'Meara, Nenagh.

—Rev. James J. Murphy, who is spoken of as a very able preacher and lecturer, and as a very forcible writer, has become the successor of the lamented George E. Clark, Esq., as editor of the Montreal True Witness.

—The Earl of Gainsborough entertained his Eminence Cardinal McCloskey at Exton House, which his Eminence left on Saturday, November 6, for Dublin, on his return to New York. The bishops of Nottingham and Nottingham were also entertained by his Lordship to meet Cardinal McCloskey.

—A very curious incident took place at Columbus, Ohio, on Sunday, October 24th. Rev. Father Sherman celebrated the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass, according to the Ceadean rite. The ancient rite is celebrated in Syro Chaldaic, which was the same language as that used by our Blessed Lord and the Apostles. The rite dates from Apostolic times. How it was that it has survived the stress of Zo-Dogical degradation leaves room for the soul's hypothesis that the spot is the undoubted descendant of early man. Very likely a million years ago or so Jacko was a rare puppy and the siphuncle, as he is his poorbrowne and his Permissive Bill. We have wrestled him out of his bathrope, and if Justice reigned supreme he ought to exchange places with him. Professor Mivart's fresh at the great resemblance between the ape and man. It is amazing, surely, and has been noticed by moralists from Pandora to Guy, by investigators from Pithagoras to Monthrede. Arimophanes, with his chorus of indignant Greeks, with his chorus of indignant Greeks, with his chorus of indignant Greeks

TWILIGHT.

There is an evening twilight of the heart,
When its wild passion-waves are lulled to rest,
And the sun rests like a fiery ocean depart,
As fades the day-beam in the rosy west.
'Tis with a sunshine feeling of regret
We gaze upon them as they melt away,
And fondly would we bid them linger yet,
But hope is round us with her angel ray,
Like our own happier moonlight hour.
Dear are her whispers still, though last their early power.

In youth the heart was criticised with her glow;
Her smile was heralded, then all mute song
Was her sweet's own music, and the note of woe
Was all subdued her many bowers among.
Life's fitful world of bliss was lonely hour!

We know it, reared not, it was born to die,
Fit object with the mourner and the dove of more.
With dazzling heart we gazed on the fair parsley,
And mocked the passing clouds that dimmed its bliss,
Like our own sorrowful—as fleeting and as few.

And manhood felt her sway, too—on its eye,
Hair realized, her early dreams burst bright,
Her promised flower of happiness seemed nigh,
In days of joy, the bright of delight!
And though at times might lower the shadow storm,
And ill-red lightnings threaten, still the air
Was balmy with her breath, and her inward form.
The rainbow of the heart, was hovering there.
'Tis life's sunshine is love-ral seen,
Her wreath the summer flower, her robe of summer green.

But though less dazzling in her twilight dress,
There's more of heaven's pure beam about her now;
That magic smile of true-girl loveliness,
Which the heart worships, sheds up on her brow;
That smile shall bright ten the dim evening star
That pours our fleetest tears, nor ever depart
Till the faint light of life is fled after,
And finished the last deep beating of the heart;
The mother heart—not yet parting breath,
A moonbeam in the midnight cloud of death.

FITZ GREEN HALLECK.

"THE VOLUNTEERS OF '82."

Lecture by the Rev. Isaac Nelson.

A lecture was delivered in the Total Abstinence Hall of Dungannon on the evening of October 27th by Rev. Isaac Nelson, of Belfast, the subject being "The Volunteers of '82." The history of the Volunteers is so inseparably connected with the town of Dungannon that the choice of this subject for a lecture in the place must be at once apparent. Nowithstanding that the weather was most unfavorable, and sufficient notice or any but the most interested from venturing out of doors, the hall was filled. Mr. Hugh Murphy, of Dungannon, was call to the chair, and briefly introduced the lecturer to the audience, commenting upon the reputation he had won for himself in the cause of Ireland, and expressing his belief that they would find the lecture an interesting one, and well worthy their serious and undivided attention. Rev. Mr. Nelson then came forward amid applause, and said:

I thank you, friends, for the kindly warmth of your reception. Whether I survive, the preacher I am of being an Irishman. The subject on which I undertook to make a few observations is "The Volunteers of '82."

THE VOLUNTEERS OF '82."

In order to thoroughly understand and rightly estimate the nature and bearing of any great transaction in our country's history during the last two centuries, we must make ourselves intimate with the weather matters in the Irish Parliament. The meaning of that is that when I speak of the Volunteers in Ireland I suppose it to be safe to sweep the horizon of European history at that time. Recollect that the word volunteer, as" which you no doubt have some connection with the English House of Commons, frequently means a fellow who is trying to earn his wages. These fellows all talk grandly, but they are only doing what they are paid for. We have to have but Russell and Gladstone, and we have had the Jew—but I do not admire any one of them. I am most disappointed in Gladstone, because I think he was more of a ready-or scholar than the others; but still you see that when he was thrown out of a job, the last thing he did was to attack the Pope. The last thing a fellow does when thrown out of a job is to attack the Pope. We actually mean £3,000 a year in Belfast yonder for attacking two men who are gone and dead. You have heard of the Belfast Police Courts. In these regions you will see one poor fellow—a poor, shivering, starving, half-clad, drunken wretch — brought up before the presiding justice, and charged with cursing the Pope. The evidence of the constable is given that he heard the said unhappy man curse the Pope on such and such a date; "do, and costs," say Mr. O'Donnell and Mr. Orme; and away the prisoner goes to give place to another equally wretched, who is in his turn charged with cursing King William, and the inevitable sentence, "do, and costs," is again imposed. Each of these two creatures became a martyr to a cause, while the member of the Town Council rake to the money, smile and spend it in chez pagan. At the

OPENING OF THE NINETEENTH CENTURY

The English people had risen in a stand rebellion against the reigning king, and in order to destroy him, had united in a foreign nation by which they had managed to make rebellion become the name of revolution. The English have taken to themselves always the privilege of rebelling whenever they pleased; but if ever we attempted anything of that sort we were pronounced a set of old fellows, till at last a person said in Belfast, "A felon's cap is the noblest crown an Irish head can wear." They managed to bring in the Dutch to help them, and you may guess from all you know of the Dutch they would never have headed without so much wages, either it in coin or in fish. Observe what they face —the English rebel against James II., and bring in his son-in law; and the daughter at Whitehall goes and makes a present of the bed that her father had been hunted out of to see if they would fit. I have no wish to inquire into motives of action, but these matters are important as regards Ireland. If any of you ever read the examination of three men—of course they were rebels—Arthur O'Connor, Tomuas Addis Emmet and Dr. McNevin—you will see that one of the questions put by Castlereagh was "Did you intend to bring in the French?" O'Connor was the most decided man of the three, and said, "We did intend to have one of the Princes of the blood royal, you," asked he, "have given Ireland into the hands of the French?" "Never," and he said so. I say he had as good a right to call upon the aid of either of Spain or of France as England had. When Protestants and Presbyterians were rebels to the House of it sort, the Irish Catholics were loyal to Charles I., and he son James II., and shed their blood like water for the sake of the worthless Scotchmen; and for their sake Irishmen became exiles in a foreign land. Had Sarsfield violated his word of honor and accepted the aid of the French 3-cl—eighteen ships of the line slow by Dingle Bay, armed with their cannon and soldiers; had he violated his word and accepted their aid, as England had accepted the aid of Holland some time previously, there would have been a different state of things in Ireland. You kept faith while England never kept a principle when it served her purpose to break it. Let us, then, in the first place contemplate—mournfully contemplate—the work itself.

THE ARMED INDIGNATION OF IRELAND

Accomplished in the short space of five or six years. Grattan himself, the mercenary foreigner, represented England at Limerick, where he signed a bond, pledging the people of Britain, the larger brand, to live in peace and amity with Ireland; and that nation, represented by a soldier before the walls of Limerick, swore to live in peace with each other. Who broke that engagement made upon the "Treaty Stone?" I answer, emphatically England. England violated every clause contained in the Treaty of Limerick. You will all understand that I am not addressing you to night for the mere sake of effect. I would be glad if the youths in the room would make themselves to make acquaintance with those facts and occurrences. I suppose you have often heard about Derry. I have a friend below in the Police Courts called Charley Ward, and he has three words frequently on his lips—they are, "Derry, Augrim, and the Boyne." Well Charley is a very decent fellow after his way—and will note that he never uses the name of Limerick at all; they don't seem to avoid it. Mr. Lindsay, our Mayor, at the Evangelical Alliance has declared that the cause of Belfast being so prosperous is on account of their being Protestant principles. Well, I was in the glums some few years ago, and I must say that I never saw a congregation in which so abundantly loaded with the blessings of God as that I and yet they are all Catholics. Thus it is, instead of looking to God instead of serving Him and trying to love one another, we are scattering all over the broad east upon those who think contrary to us.

The "Volunteers" had for their task to compel England, with the sword at the throat, to reconsider the terms that she constrained us to sign by the side of the Shannon in 1695, and had brought a sword in her hand to fulfill in 1782. Now, if you understand me, there is more in that than a good many sentences would convey. The Volunteers of Limerick granted to the people of Ireland

LIBERTY TO SPEAK ACCORDING TO THEIR WISHES.

I do not think the proposition was very unreasonable. It does not quite see the piety of a person turning round to his neighbor and because he does not exactly take the same views upon any question of truth, endeavoring to compel him to adopt my opinions, and forcing those ideas upon him. The people of England granted to the people of Ireland free trade. What does that mean? It means simply that if a man had a lot of wool in Ireland and could find a good market for it in France he had the liberty of sending it down to Bantry, and forwarding the article to the best market he can very legitimate object of getting the highest price he could for it. England had said she would not allow this—that the people of Ireland should not have the right to send their wool away to where they pleased, and that she would discovery ship that she could find with any wool in the same ownership. Now Yale is what is meant by free trade. The Irish people had been enslaved that, and if that treaty had been carried out, honestly and in good faith, by England, there never would have been a question about Ireland and this from that day to the present. It is not said that an individual has to be obliged—forced reluctantly—to accept what he has professed by his sign manual, but a nation, which is composed of men, is not quite so easily managed. Now, I am not addressing you to night for the purpose of saying that not

TWILIGHT.

There is no evening twilight of the heart,
When its soft passion—never—is lulled to rest.
And the cry soon hith's fairy senses depart,
As fades the day-beam in the gray west.
The wish a sunshine for-back of regret
No shadow there for any melancholy,
And fondly would we bid them linger yet,
But hope is round us with her angel sky,
Hailing after sunset moonlight here!
Dear are her whispers still, though lost their early power.

In youth the heart was crimsoned with her glow;
Her smile was joyous—music, and the note of woe
Was all unheard her shiny hours among.
Life's little word of bliss was surely here!

We know all, cared not; it was born to die,
Flushed with the rose-bud and the dews of morn,
With dancing heart we gazed on the pure sky,
And mock'd the gentle clouds that dimmed its blue,
Like one who caresses things not dreaming of a foe.

And manhood felt her sway, too—on the eye,
Half restless, her early dreams have bright,
Her promised harvest of happiness seemed nigh,
In hope of joy, the visits of delight;
And though at times might hover the thunder storm,
And the red lightnings threaten, still the air
Was heavy with her breath, and hovered form.
The rainbow of the heart, was hovering there.
This is life's sunshine—it is not our woe,
For wreath the summer flower, her robe of summer green,
But though less dazzling in her twilight dress,
There's more of heaven's pure beam about her now
That, and eternity, and loveliness.
When the heart worships, glowing on her brow;
That smile shall brighten the dim evening hour
The golden light of life is fled afar,
And round the last deep beatings of the heart;
The meteor bearer of our parting breath,
A moonbeam in the midnight cloud of death.

FITZ GREENE HALLECK.

"THE VOLUNTEERS OF '82."

Lecture by the Rev. Isaac Nelson.

A lecture was delivered in the Total Abstinence Hall of Dungannon on the evening of October 27th by Rev. Isaac Nelson, of Belfast, the subject being "The Volunteers of '82." The history of the Volunteers is unquestionably connected with the town of Dungannon that the choice of the subject for a lecture in the place must be at once apparent. Notwithstanding that the weather was most unfavorable, and sufficient to deter any but the most intrepid from venturing out of doors, the hall was filled. Mr. Hugh Murphy, of Dungannon, was call to the chair, and briefly introduced the lecturer in a few sentences, commenting upon the reputation he had won for himself in the cause of Ireland, and expressing his belief that they would find the lecture an interesting one, and well worthy their serious and undivided attention. Rev. Mr. Nelson then came forward amid applause, and said:

I thank you, friends, for the kindly warmth of your reception. The longer I live, the prouder I am of being an Irishman. The subject on which I understook to lecture to-night—THE VOLUNTEERS—is connected intimately with the history during the last century that we are to call to mind, and to make ourselves intimate with the state of affairs in London during the same period. The meaning of that is that when I speak of the Volunteers in Ireland I require to be able to speak in relation to the European politics at that time. Recollect that the word "volunteer," when used in relation to the connection with the English House of Commons, frequently means a fellow who is ready to vote for anything his party tells him to do. They will also have to serve themselves by taking a Street Superintendent as well as a City and County Surveyor! The former discharges no duties which may not be as well and even more properly fulfilled by the latter. In fact, the former official is a supernumerary, and his position has been created for the purpose of giving some one a chance to make money at the direct expense of the ratepayers. Then, again, all the tax collectorships should be centered in one individual, and not divided among several as they are now, to the great confusion of business and the loss of the people's money. Persons of the property holders of the city. There are really too many of these superfluous or sinecure offices in our Municipal Governments, and the sooner they are abolished the better it will be for the reputation of our city.

There are other matters, too, such as gas and water supply, to which the attention of legislators might be turned with great advantage. To some extent, more or less, these desirable reforms may be participated in by the leading towns of the State and be made to redound to the credit of the Democracy. At all events, we have said quite enough to show that the chosen representatives of the people's party have now a genuine golden opportunity to redeem the pledges given during the late campaign, and prove themselves in every sense worthy of the grand principles and noble record of their political organization. If they fail to make satisfactory progress, even though our adversaries make no move at all in the direction of reform, they will inevitably deliver California over to the Radicals, and make it count against Democracy at the next Presidential election. We do not write these words with any desire to dictate or to intimate any distrust of the Democratic Senators and Assemblymen—very far from it, indeed. But we think we can do no harm by giving free expression to what we know are the feelings and wishes of the best and most intelligent classes of the State, as they say it almost with unanimity, without distinction of party. There never was an election in California, or probably anywhere else, in the course of which greater use was made of protestations in effect needful reforms, to curtail expenditures, and to oppose special legislation against the interests of the people. Now the time has arrived for those memorial promises to be redeemed, and we hope it will not be allowed pass by unprofitably. If the Democrats do their duty they will secure possession of this State for an indefinite period; if they do not, they will simply hand it over to the Republican faction, or else reduce it to political anarchy.

PUBLICATIONS RECEIVED.

CEREMONIAL FOR THE USE OF THE CATHOLIC CHURCHES IN THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA. Originally published, by order of the First Council of Baltimore. Fifth Edition. Baltimore: Kelly, Piet & Company. This manual, which has been carefully revised by Right Rev. Dr. Becker, Bishop of Wilmington, will be found extremely useful to priests and ecclesiastical students. It contains full and explicit instruction in the ceremonies proper for Low and High Masses, for holy week, and the principal festivals of the year, for vespers, forty hours' exposition and other solemnities, as performed either with or without the presence of a Bishop. It will be, therefore, apparent that it is supplied to all parties, and its reliability may safely be taken for granted, inasmuch as the best Roman authorities have been consulted. Every layman may read its pages with much profit, for it explains in a lucid manner the beautiful and ancient symbolism of Catholic ceremonies. Outside the Catholic Church the so-called religious world is making itself remarkable for repugnance to and disuse of ceremonies, while the Sacramental secret societies indulge in it to an unlimited extent, evidently unwearying of worshiping the Omnific, but the ceremonies of the secret societies are all of them arbitrary and meaningless, and most of them unmanly and degrading in character. It is only the Catholic Church that can make proper, useful and elevating use of the most touching means of appeal to the senses and sympathies of man.

The Illustrated Household Magazine, December number, contains the following articles, all well written and readable: "An American in London!" "The Mermaid;" "A Day in Egypt;" several nice pieces of poetry, and the usual children's and housekeepers' departments.

The Nonconformist contains clever papers on "Relations of Sex to Health and Longevity;" "School-room Stunting;" "Pyrenean Scenes," and other important matters of the same nature.

Female Orphans' Fair.

Next Monday, the 13th inst., the Fair for the benefit of the Female Orphan Asylum and Industrial Home will open at Platt's Hall. For nearly two months the ladies have been busy preparing for it, and it is hoped that they will be gratified by a full attendance of the Fair. The orphans' cause is everybody's cause, and no coaxing should be required to obtain service in it. No one should go to the Fair to be an idle looker-on, nor to throw down a few pieces of money only; but all should lend aid in as many ways as the occasion may suggest. A dramatic entertainment for the benefit of the Fair was given by the ladies and gentlemen of the Starr College Dramatic Club on Monday evening, by which a handsome sum was realized for the Fair by proposing and carrying into effect resolutions to endow the Orphans' Fair unseemly successful.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

The President's message in Congress was received and read by that body on Tuesday. It is a lengthy document, and deals with very many topics of national interest. Moreover, it is literally well written, and therefore we may safely conclude that the President himself had little or no share in its composition, although, of course, we are to assume that it expresses his sentiments. It is his document, and as such it must be treated. There are only some passages in it which require reproduction in our columns, and these we give below in due order. After speaking in the usual style of the nation's progress in arts, sciences, manufactures, productions and population, he thus deals with the all-important,

SCHOOL QUESTION.

We are a Republic whose one man is as good as another before the law. Under such a form of government the possession of intelligence is essential to the preservation of liberty, and general diffusion of knowledge is the means to that end. The free school system, which is the pride of our people, is in every community the subject of unceasing care and improvement, and has been developed to a degree unsurpassed in the history of the world. Nearly one-fifth of the population of the country are in attendance upon the schools of the various States and Territories, and the sum of $65,000,000 is contributed by the people for their support. Excellent as this record is, it is yet imperfect in that it does not include the whole of the children of suitable age to attend school. Not a single one should be left without the means of instruction, and the duty rests upon the several States to see that this defect is remedied. Universal suffrage should be preceded by universal education, so that the right of self-government may not be perverted. The sympathy and support of the people for the common schools should be cherished by the State governments and the National Government, and all sectarian influences should be sternly excluded. Resting upon the intelligence and patriotism of the American people, our common school system will surely commend itself to their hearts and support, and will be found equal to the great trust reposed in it. Every man should be able to read the ballot he casts, and to understand the relation which the act sustains to the general welfare. It is the duty of the National Government to scrutinize closely the effect of its own legislation upon the common schools, and to see that it does not impair their usefulness. Whatever may be the fluctuations in other portions of the country, the income from the common school fund should be kept undiminished. Any law which may be found upon the statute books detrimental to the interests of this fund should be repealed, and such legislation had as will secure the faithful application of the fund to the purposes for which it was originally set apart. The Government has no power over the subject, but it has the right to withhold from unfaithful States the moneys to which they would be entitled if they complied with the conditions of the law. The Government has the power, and it is its duty, to see that the fund is preserved intact, and that the annual income therefrom is faithfully devoted to the support of common schools. The Government has no power over the question of religious education in the several States, but it has the power, and it is its duty, to see that no sectarian appropriations are made from the school fund or from any other fund or taxation for the support of any school where sectarian or religious tenets or doctrines are taught. The line between Church and State forever separates the one from the other, and prohibits the former from exercising any control over the latter. The separation must be complete, or the Church will be exposed to the temptation of seeking to control the State, and the State to the temptation of fostering the Church. Nothing is more fraught with danger to the future of our country than any violation of the principle which separates Church and State in our institutions of learning. The State must not support the Church, nor the Church the State. Each must be left entirely free from the influence of the other. Keeping the Church out of politics is the only sure way to keep politics out of the Church. The experience of the world shows that the influence of sectarian appropriations is equally bad upon the Church and the State. The Government should neither directly nor indirectly give encouragement to institutions which commingle sectarian and political management, as such a course is sure to result in evil to both Church and State. The separation of the one from the other will leave each free to perform its proper functions. Hostility to religion should never be cherished, for religion and morality are the essential supports of civil society. The State may not forbid the free exercise of religion, nor may it permit any of its functionaries, in the discharge of official duties, to interfere with the exercise of religious belief in any form. Every new principle in politics, as in science, has to contend against prejudice, but it has always resulted in the general good. Agitation is not a thing to be feared, for it always results in the education of the people. Violence and intolerance can never successfully combat free discussion, for argument is a weapon that cannot be resisted. Our duty is simply to keep the people informed, and they may be safely trusted to act upon any question calmly and justly in the end. If the agitation of any subject should assume a character to indicate danger to the institutions of the country, it will be the duty of the Government to combat it with the only weapons that can be employed against opinion—the weapons of truth and knowledge and the mail.

You will find no principles of unbelief among the members of the existing cabinet. They do not believe that the study of medicine has no tendency to create skepticism. This charge is most often preferred against the sciences of medicine, but the first of its greatest men triumphantly refute the calumny.

The Escape of Tweed.

NEW YORK, December 4.—William M. Tweed has escaped from the Ludlow street jail. A dispatch was received at police headquarters this evening stating that he had just escaped from the custody of Warden Dunham, of the jail. Word was immediately telegraphed to every police station in the city, Brooklyn and neighboring cities, notifying the police to be on the lookout. Warden Dunham subsequently called on Inspector Dilks, of the Police Central Office, and stated that he had accompanied the prisoner to the residence of Mrs. Tweed, on Madison avenue and Fifty-ninth street, and while there Tweed asked him to step out in the yard, as he had something to say to him. Dunham unhesitatingly granted the request, and Tweed went upstairs

TO HIS WIFE'S ROOM,

Leaving one of his sons to entertain Dunham. The latter, after waiting about ten minutes, became impatient at Tweed's delay, and Tweed upstairs to tell his father to come down at once, as he (Dunham) desired to return to the jail. In a short time the young man returned and informed Dunham that his father had gone. Dunham then ascended to the house, but no trace of "the Boss" could be found. Leaving a deputy in charge of the house, Dunham proceeded to the residence of Sheriff O'Connor and informed him of the escape. The police authorities were promptly notified, and the central office detectives at once went out scouring the city to all the

NO CLUE TO THE FUGITIVE.

NEW YORK, December 5.—There has been no cessation to day in the excitement occasioned on Saturday night throughout the city by the escape of Ringleader of the Ring Tweed. Police Commissioner Matsell has a theory in regard to the escape, but said emphatically that in his opinion there had been collusion somewhere. Superintendent Kelly said a little later this evening, that the last clue for not the slightest clue had been obtained by him which might put him on the track of the fugitive. Both officials were unable to find any person who saw Tweed after he left the house. Reporters were refused admittance to the Police Headquarters. Sheriff O'Connor and Warden Dunham were also

TWILIGHT.

There is no crooing twilight of the heart,
When he wild passion-waves are lulled to rest,
And the eye sees life's fiery scenes apart,
As fades the day-beam in the rosy west.
'Tis with a ceaseless flo ding of regret
We gaze upon them as they melt away,
And fondly would we call them linger yet,
But hope is round us with her bright ray,
Hailing after some happier moonlight hour;
Dear are her whispers still, though lost their early power.

In youth the cheek was crimsoned with her glow;
Her smile was loveliest then; her music sang
With heavenly awe unsaid, and life was new
When all around her sweet hours sang.
Life's flute scarf of blue was newly born;
We knew not, cared not, it was here to die,
Flushed with the cool breeze and the dews of morn,
With dancing heart we gazed on the pure sky,
And mock'd the purple crowds that climbed its skies,
Like our own sorrows then—as fleeting and as few.

And manhood felt her sway, too—on the eye,
Half realized, her early dreams burst bright,
Her promised bower of happiness seemed nigh,
In degree gay, her spirit of delight;
And though at times night lower the thunder storm,
And the red lightnings threaten, still the air
Was heavy with her breath, and bright her form,
The rainbow of the heart, was hovering there.
'Tis life's sweetest tide in near-est sense,
Her wreath the summer flower, her robe of summer green.

But though less dazzling in her twilight dress,
Though more of heaven's pure beam about her now;
That angel-smile of tranquil loveliness,
Which gives a holier influence to her brow;
That smile shall brighten to the dim evening star
That points our destined home, our o'er depart
Till the last lingering light of life is dim after,
And kindred the last deep beating of the heart;
The forever bearer of our parting breath,
A remembrance in the midnight cloud of memory to weep.

PITT GORDON HALLECK.

"THE VOLUNTEERS OF '82."

Lecture by the Rev. Isaac Nelson.

A lecture was delivered in the Total Abstinence Hall of Dungannon on the evening of October 27th by Rev. Isaac Nelson, of Belfast, the subject being "The Volunteers of '82." The history of the Volunteers is so inseparably connected with the town of Dungannon that the choice of this subject for a lecture in the place must be at once apparent. Notwithstanding that the weather was most unfavorable, and sufficient to deter any but the most intrepid from venturing out of doors, the hall was filled. Mr. Hugh Murphy, of Dungannon, was call to the chair, and briefly introduced the lecturer to the audience, commenting upon the reputation he had won for himself in the cause of Ireland, and expressing his belief that they would all be desirous to be interesting one, and well worthy their serious and undivided attention. Rev. Mr. Nelson then came forward amid applause, and said:

I thank you, friends, for the kindly warmth of your reception. The longer I live, the prouder I am of being an Irishman. The subject on which I undertook to make a few observations is headed, as as you know,

"THE VOLUNTEERS OF '82."

In order to thoroughly understand and rightly estimate the nature and magnitude of any great transaction in our country's history during the last two centuries, we must make ourselves familiar with the state of matters in the London Parliament. The meaning of the phrase when I speak of the Volunteers in Ireland I require to be able to sweep the horizon of European history at that time. Recollect that the word "statesman," which you so often hear of in connection with the English House of Commons, frequently means a fellow who is trying to earn his wages. Those fellows all talk grandly; but they are only doing what they are paid for. We have have had Russell and Disfaeli, and we have had Gladstone—but I do not admire any one of them. I am most disappointed in Gladstone, because I think he was more of a reader or scholar than the others; but still you see that when he was thrown out of a job, the last thing he did was to attack the Pope. The last thing a fellow does when thrown out of a job is to attack the Pope. He actually made £3,000 a year in Belfast yonder for attacking two men who are gone away. You have heard of the Belfast Recorder's Courts. In these regions you will see one poor fellow—one poor, starved, miserable, half-dead, drunken wretch—brought up before the presiding justice, and charged with cursing the Pope. The evidence of the constable is given that he heard the prisoner cursing the Pope on such a day, with a date; "oaths, and oaths," say Mr. O'Donnell and Mr. Orme; and away the prisoner goes to give place to another equally wretched, who is in his turn charged with cursing Kitty William, and the leavin' with assistance, "oths, and oaths," is again repeated. Each of these two creatures has spoken a sentence to a common, in the chamber of the Town Council rake in the money, smile and spend it in cheap paper. At the end of the year's government—particularly in Ireland—the English people had risen in armed rebellion against the ragging king, and in order to abolish him, had called in a foreign nation, by whose help they managed to make rebellion assume the name of revolution. The English have taken to themselves always the privilege of robbing whomever they pleased; but if ever we attempted anything of that sort we were pronounced a set of red felons, till at last a board, composed of the Chief, the Mayor and the Sheriff of Belfast, with a few of the noblest crown as Irish head can wear." They managed to bring in the Devil to help them, and you may guess from all you know of the Dutch they would never land a hand without a stiver, either in the guilders or in Bob. Observe that very few—the English rebel against James II., and bring in his uncle and his daughter—look at Whitehall goes and examines the blankets of the bed that has before had been hunted out of to see if they would fit. I have no wish to inquire into secrets of a family nature, but there are important—as we regarded Ireland. I say of you ever read the examination of three ministers, they were rebels—Arthur O'Connor, Thomas Addis Emmet and Dr. McNevin—you will see that one of the questions put to the last rough was "Did you intend to bring in the French?" O'Connor was the most decided one of the three, and said, "We never had the making use of the French." "But would you," asked he, "have given Ireland into the hands of the French?" "Never," said he at once. I say "never."

CELTIC SOCIETY.—At the last regular meeting of the above named society of St. Mary's College, held Wednesday, December 1st, the following officers were elected for the ensuing term: President, Rev. Brother Alexander; Vice President, Nicholas P. Wynne; Treasurer, E. J. Rogers; Secretary, T. J. Callaghan; Chairman of Literary Exercises, J. T. Noon.

A GOLDEN OPPORTUNITY.

The Legislature has now been fully organized, or very nearly so, and it may be considered as in good working order. Democrats are in such a decided majority that they will, and undoubtedly rightly, be held responsible before the world for what is done in Sacramento during the coming session. They have, therefore, a golden opportunity of proving that the principles and declarations, upon the strength of which they were elected, are genuine, and were not merely rhetorical traps to delude unsuspecting voters. They have been chosen by the people, because they one and all declared they were in favor of economy, retrenchment and honest government, and because the people placed more reliance upon their avowals than upon those of their adversaries. Consequently they are upon trial, and they must show that they have not obtained the suffrages of their fellow-citizens upon false pretenses.

The first thing Democratic legislators have to do, we should imagine, is to sternly set their face against all attempts to create new expenses, or to impose additional burdens upon the people. In so conducting themselves they will, of course, incur the enmity of a small corps of pertinacious and unprincipled politicians, who think that the first duty of Democracy is to provide sung quarters for them. These reckless parasites care nothing whatever about the welfare of the community, or about the honor of the party to which they pretend to belong; all they want is to have their own cravings satisfied. It would cost them no pang of regret if the whole Democratic party suffered itself, after the fairest promises, and time threw the State once again into the hands of the radical faction. No doubt Sacramento is overrun with an eager horde of place-hunters, in spite of chief deputyships or lesser prizes, who know very well that their sole chance of getting employment is a desire on the part of men at the head of departments to neglect their business, and make the State pay twice by getting them to do it. But there never yet was a time when the heads of departments, particularly in this city, did not try to get deputies or other assistants to do their business for them, enabling them to attend to other matters and make money outside their offices. Three-fourths of the deputies and chief deputies thrust into the various departments are totally unnecessary functionaries, and good only for drawing their fat and comfortable salaries; so we ardently hope there will be an end of employing them.

Equally annoying and equally to be deplored are the hungry fellows who intrigue for positions already filled by competent and honorable men, and who are incessant in loud prate about their claims upon the party. We trust that the Democratic legislators, as a body, will repudiate the disgraceful axiom that to the victors belong the spoils, and show conclusively that they have a higher and nobler idea of their mission than to act as offal-fingers to the party-jackals. They have been commissioned to promote the welfare of the community at large, to redress grievances, to remove abuses, by prudent and patriotic legislation and their powers of appointment are merely secondary and accidental.

They will also have to protect themselves against the importunities of corporations and private individuals seeking special legislation for their own private ends. We think it will be generally admitted that there has been already too much of this kind of work, and that it has done an incalculable amount of mischief. In fact, all the corrupt jobs and patent swindles of which complaint has hitherto been made, will be found in connection with special legislative acts. The gentlemen who prids themselves upon being true to their constituents and their country towards the State will have to watch narrowly the behavior of persons who seek favors of this character, and estimate sharply the merits of the object which they have been induced to take it into consideration. Special legislation has always been availed of as a secret and successful way of robbing the people, and as a general rule it has been obtained by disreputable means.

There are several important and necessary reforms which might be effected in our city government by wise and thoughtful legislation. Expenses could be cut down expenses and to render the maintenance of public order more easy and certain. For instance, the police department should be thoroughly remodeled, the force made more efficient, more amenable to discipline and less liable to arbitrary and imprudent changes. The abolition of the present board composed of the Chief, the Mayor and the Police Judge would be an important step in the right direction. The "special" policemen should be done away with altogether. Every man is supposed to serve the interests of those who employ him and pay him wages. Now the "specials" are in a large extent in the employ of the criminal and depraved, particularly in the Chinese quarter and along Dupont street, so they are not likely to be very zealous in the discharge of their duties. In a word, they are the guardians of crime and debauchery, not of order and decency. This is an anomaly which should not be permitted to exist in a city like San Francisco, where there are quite difficulties enough attending the preservation of the peace.

Again, we have two distinct bodies looking after the condition of our harbor—they are the Port Wardens and the Harbor Commissioners. Is there any good reason why they should not be consolidated? Do away with the former body, and let the two commissioners," which the law says must belong to it, be added to the Harbor Commissioners; and all the business will be equally well and more economically done. Similarly in another department of our Municipal Government—who is the right man to be appointed Superintendent as well as a City and County Surveyor? The former discharges no duties which may not be as well and even more properly fulfilled by the latter. In fact, the former official is a supernumerary, and his position has been invented for the purpose of giving some one a chance to make money at the direct expense. Then, again, all the tax collectorships should be centered in one individual, and not divided among several as they are now, to the great confusion of business and the loss of the people's money. And the loss of the property holders of the city. There are really too many of these superfluous or sinecure offices in our Municipal Government, and the sooner they are abolished the better it will be for the reputation of our city.

There are other matters, too, such as gas and water supply, to which the attention of legislators might be turned with great advantage. To some extent, more or less, these desirable reforms may be participated in by the leading towns of the State and be made to redound to the credit of the Democracy. At all events, we have said quite enough to show that the chosen representatives of the people's party have now a genuine golden opportunity to redeem the pledges given during the late campaign, and prove themselves in every sense worthy of the grand principles and noble record of their political predecessors. They have a clear stage to act upon, even though their adversaries make an move at all in the direction of reform, they will inevitably deliver California over to the infidels, and ruin the party of Democracy at the next Presidential election. We do not write these words with any desire to dictate or to intimate to any distrust of the Democratic Senators and Assemblymen—very far from it, indeed. But we think we can do no harm by giving free expression to what we know are the feelings and wishes of the best and most intelligent citizens of the State, we may almost say, without distinction of party. There never was an election in California, or probably anywhere else, in the course of which greater use was made of promises to effect needful reforms, to curtail expenditures, and to oppose special legislation against the interests of the people. Now the time has arrived for demonstrating precisely what all these various protestations really meant, and we hope it will not be allowed pass by unprofitably. If the Democrats do their duty they will secure possession of the State for an indefinite period; if they do not, they will simply hand it over to the Republican faction, or else reduce it to political anarchy.

"The Arcade" During the Holidays.

The holiday season being close at hand, all the stores in the city are exhibiting their choicest and most costly goods in order to attract customers. The streets, now that the weather is fine and genial, are thronged with happy-looking promenaders, who think it a duty to pay each gaudily-dressed window the compliment of a close inspection. "The Arcade" on Market street seems somehow to offer special notice, and to elicit the most enthusiastic encomiums from the lady critics. And really it is no wonder that it should. The grand display of new goods now to be seen there would be sufficient to draw the most careless attention to the finest street of Paris, London or New York. Most of these have been specially imported for the holiday trade, as a matter of course, in every way suitable to the present season, reflecting as they do the most artistic designs now fashionable in Europe. Particularly is this the case with the silks, shawls and dress goods which, it is no exaggeration to say, are the handsomest of the kind ever displayed here. Now that we have safely got over the late crisis, that there is prospect of abundant crops next year, and that the nose of all kinds is looking up, everybody looks pleased and everybody has money to spend. "The Arcade," then, come forward with an unusually brilliant show, and deserts in his claims upon public patronage.

A Remarkable Document.

Under the above heading the Oakland News of last Saturday gives the following:

We have in our possession, through the courtesy of Superintendent Lynch, a document which will be prized by with religious zeal, and keep as a relic of the past. It is a letter from the Superintendent of Central Indian affairs, giving instructions to the Indian agents on the history of the United States. Considering the present temper of the Indians, and the causes which have brought about outbreaks, it is a fact that the gentleman authorized to issue the instructions was born and educated in a foreign land, and has his interests centered in a foreign land, and he has been sent here solely to consult any source of information in his power, in order to fit himself for the position he occupies. As a condensed history of the United States from the time of the Revolution to 1875, it is the most remarkable document that has ever been issued from the Department of the Interior. The compilation of examination of it was made by Prof. J. Ryan, who was formerly a Professor in Dartmouth.

[Those who know Mr. Byrne personally, and have had opportunity of judging his scholarly attainments, will not be at all surprised at the brilliant showing he made in American history; nor would they have any reason to be surprised to hear that he ultimately distinguished himself in all the branches of learning upon which he was subjected to examination. We are pleased to learn that it is probable Mr. Byrne will shortly be appointed to a high and important educational position.—ED. MONITOR.]

RETURN OF FATHER GLEESON.—We have been pleased, last Monday, by a brief visit from Rev. Father Gleeson, who hastened turned from a long and interesting tour through Ireland, France, Switzerland, Italy and Palestine. His many friends in this city and in Brooklyn, Alameda, who rejoiced to see him back again and such excellent health. The latter place of, we believe, drew more enjoy the mileage of his pastoral labors. We trust the reverend gentleman will be prevailed upon give the incidents of his travel to the public, either in the form of a lecture or in some of letters to the press, as they would certainly be interesting and instructive the highest degree.

PUBLICATIONS RECEIVED.

CEREMONIAL FOR THE USE OF THE CATHOLIC CHURCHES IN THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA. Originally published, by order of the First Council of Baltimore. Fourth Edition, revised. Publisher: Kelly, Piet & Company. This manual, which has been carefully revised by Right Rev. Dr. Becker, Bishop of Wilmington, will be found extremely useful to priests and ecclesiastical students. It contains full and explicit instruction in the ceremonies proper for Low and High Masses, for holy week, and the principal festivals of the year, for vespers, forty hours' exposition and other solemnities, as performed either with or without the presence of a Bishop. It will be, therefore, apparent that it is complete in all particulars, and its reliability may safely be taken for granted, inasmuch as the best Roman authorities have been consulted. Even laymen may read its pages with much profit, for it explains in a lucid manner the beautiful and ancient symbolism of Catholic ceremonies. Outside the Catholic Church the so-called religious world is making itself remarkable for repugnance to and disuse of ceremonies, while the fanatic secret societies indulge in it to an unlimited extent, evidently travestying or parodying the Church; but the ceremonies of the secret societies are all of them arbitrary and meaningless, and most of them unmanly and degrading in character. It is only the Church that can make proper, graceful and edifying use of this most touching means of appeal to the senses and sympathies of man.

The Illustrated Household Magazine, December number, contains the following articles: "Christmas, all well written and readable; "An American in London;" "The Mermaid;" "A Day to Egypt;" several nice pieces of original poetry, and the usual children's and home-keepers' departments.

The Sanitarian contains two clever papers on "Relations of Sex to Health and Longevity;" "School-room Stunting;" "Preventable Sickness," and other important matters of the same nature.

Female Orphans' Fair.

Next Monday, the 13th inst., the Fair for the benefit of the Catholic Orphan and Foundling Asylums will open at Platt's Hall. For nearly two months the ladies have been busy preparing for it, and it is hoped that they will be gratified by a full attendance at the Fair. The orphans' cause is a very body's cause, and no causing should be required to obtain service in it. No one should go to the Fair to be an idle looker-on, nor to throw down a few pieces of money only; but all should lend aid to as many ways as the occasion may suggest. A dramatic entertainment in the interest of the Fair was given by the students of Santa Clara College last Monday evening, by which a handsome sum was realized for the orphans. Let the people of San Francisco imitate the example of Santa Clara by proposing and carrying into effect such measures as may make the Orphans' Fair unusually successful.

A RECTIFICATION.—In our issue of October 23d there appeared in the grave paragraph referring to a case then on trial before the Probate Court at San José, in which a lady named McCausland was personally concerned. The paragraph concluded with the words, "McCausland left half a dozen similar widows." These words were marked with quotation commas, showing that we simply took them from some other paper, and did not write them ourselves. Mrs. McCausland, whom the Probate Court recognized as the lawful wife of the deceased, hastily feels aggrieved at the quotation and requests us to make a correction. We do so most cheerfully and without the slightest hesitation. We had not the least intention of casting any slur upon the reputation or moral standing of Mrs. McCausland, for we published simply what we regarded as an item of current news, and we are pleased to know that the Court awarded the lady her full rights.

WATER FROM THE GROTTO OF LOURDES. We learn from authentic sources that Benziger Brothers, 311 Main street, St. Louis, Mo., have received a large quantity of water from the well of the grotto of Notre Dame de Lourdes. They are willing to send small bottles of it to desirous of procuring it on the payment of a sum sufficient to cover a pro rata of their expenses. Catholics of course know that it is a grievous sin to attach pecuniary value, or to sell as such, any article or thing, possessing, or reputed to possess, supernatural qualities, and therefore this act of Benziger Brothers cannot be looked upon as a sale of the water. They simply want to be reimbursed the expense they incurred in bringing it hither.

DEATH OF J. ROSS BROWNE.—The many friends of J. Ross Browne will hear with maligned regret of his death in Oakland on Wednesday last. He was seized with an attack of illness on Tuesday afternoon which resulted in his death. Mr. Browne was a native of Ireland, and was born in the year 1817. He was among the first who pointed us to the gold mines of California, and the official reporter of the Constitutional Convention at Monterey. During President Buchanan's administration he was a Special Agent of the Treasury, and retained the office for some time under Lincoln.

The San Francisco Literary and Dramatic Society will give an entertainment at Dodge's new Hall on Wednesday evening, the 15th inst. The programme gives promise of an agreeable odio of song, music and oratory, and, no doubt, all who attend will pass a very pleasant time. We acknowledge the courtesy of an invitation.

—Joe Dixiere, it is said, will go East this month on the 7th, James E. Kelly was sworn in as Senator from Connecticut vice Ferry, deceased.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

The President's message to Congress was received and read by that body on Tuesday. It is a lengthy document, and deals with very many topics of national interest. Moreover, it is tolerably well written, and therefore we may safely conclude that the President himself had little or no share in its composition, although, of course, we are to assume that it expresses his sentiments. It is for Americans, and as such it must be treated. There are only some passages in it which require reproduction in our columns, and we give them below in due order. After speaking in the usual style of the nation's progress in arts, sciences, manufactures, industries and population, he thus deals with the all-important

SCHOOL QUESTION.

We are a Republic where one man is as good as another before the law. Our only form of government is that of the greatest importance that all should be educated to a certain degree to entitle them to exercise intelligently the right of suffrage conferred upon them. Without such education and intelligence existing in each State with a right understanding of its responsibilities to the General Government, and to the fact that each is dependent upon the others for the common welfare, the whole fabric must fall. To add to the intelligence, virtue and love of order and law which are the foundation stones of our institutions, general education is essential. To this end the State should aid, but not control, institutions of learning. It is a subject which justly concerns the whole people of the country, and the Congress of the United States may properly be asked to consider whether the intelligence of the whole country may not be improved by legislation which will secure to every child in the land the opportunity of attending a good school, at least for such length of time as is required to make him familiar with the rights and duties of citizenship. Such legislation should be absolutely prohibitory as to any appropriation for the benefit of any sectarian school, and should provide that the fund thus appropriated should be applied to the support of such schools only as should be open to children of all religious sects alike, and should allow none to be taught which should inculcate religious, political or moral doctrines hostile to those held by any of the people whose children may be in attendance upon them. In making appropriations of money or property for the benefit of the people, no sectarian lines should be drawn, nor preferences allowed to any religious sect. The separation of the State from all religious organizations is the best guarantee of the perfect freedom and equality of religious sects, and of the security which each enjoys in its own mode of worship.

From this matter he passes on to the scarcely less troublesome or complicated one of

CHURCH PROPERTY.

I would also call your attention to the importance of conferring on such that, if permitted to continue, will gradually lead to great injustice and strife in the future of the nineteenth century. It is the accumulation of property in the hands of religious corporations. Existing in all the States, and in the United States in the Territories and the District of Columbia, and enjoying the fostering care of the law, it allowed to increase in the future as it has been in the past, it will in time monopolize the wealth of the country. Such a result is to be avoided if we would preserve the true spirit of our institutions. The contributions of the faithful to the support of their religious faith are voluntary, and hence are not taxed. But when they are given to churches, and by them devoted to the purposes of trade and commerce, they should be taxed like the property of other citizens. The power to tax church property is the power to destroy it. It is the constant policy of the State governments to encourage religious worship by exempting church property from taxation. The amount of property thus withdrawn from the burden of taxation is already very large, and is rapidly increasing. The remedy for the future is in the hands of the States, and it is to be hoped that they will entertain this question, and, if they deem it wise, apply the proper remedy.

Immediately afterwards he speaks of the prospect of the abolishment of slavery in the Portuguese dominions, of minor matters relating to Cuba and the States of Columbia and then alludes to our

RELATIONS WITH SPAIN.

He mentions the pending payment of the "Virginius" indemnity, and passes on to a consideration of the affairs of Cuba. He deplores the bare and loss of life caused in the island by the late civil war, consequent disturbance of our trade; alludes to the spirit of Montenegro, and then comes to the subject of Spain to crush the rebellion, yet acknowledges the failure of the insurgents to establish any kind of government which would entitle them to recognition. After an elaborate discussion of the situation, the President thus sums up:

At the same time, while thus impressed, I do not see that the United States can properly intervene by any steps of intervention. I shall be ready at all times, and the Executive will be fully authorized, to adopt such measures as may be proper to enforce the neutrality laws of the United States, and to prevent the territory of the United States from being used as a base of military operations by either party, or as a means of receiving recruits or supplies. The contest is between the Government of Madrid and a party in the field claiming to be the Government of Cuba. Both parties are contending for the possession of the island, and the struggle is necessarily a severe and bloody one. It is the duty of the United States to maintain and enforce its neutrality in such a contest, and to show no favor to either party. The principles which have been established in numerous precedents during the past history of the United States will be observed and enforced. A subject forcibly presented to my consideration is the question of the treatment of citizens of the United States who are captured while serving with the insurgent forces. Many such persons are now confined in the prisons of Spain, charged with the crime of treason against the government of that country. Their treatment has been severe, and in some instances cruel and inhuman. Some have been executed, others have died in prison, and others are still in confinement awaiting trial or sentence. Their continued imprisonment is a source of great anxiety to their friends and to this Government. While it is the duty of every government to protect its citizens or subjects in foreign countries, it is specially so in the case of persons who are captured in the service of those who are endeavoring to overthrow the government against which they are in arms. Prisoners taken in war are treated with humanity, and are entitled to be exchanged or released on parole at the earliest practicable period. Persons who are captured in the service of insurgents are not entitled to the benefits of these usages of war, but they are entitled to be treated with humanity, and to have a fair and impartial trial before they are condemned to any punishment. Their offense is purely political, and they should be punished, if guilty, only by the sentence which the law imposes for the crime of which they are convicted. I am glad to say that the present Government of Spain has given assurances that the cases of the persons referred to will be examined in the light of these principles, and that those persons who are found to be entitled to release will be set at liberty. I have not failed to bring to the attention of the Minister of Madrid certain proposed modifications of the treaty of 1795, which, in the event of war between Spain and a third power, would enable us to secure the benefits of our neutrality. These propositions have been under consideration for some time, but have not been finally acted upon. But the difficulties of the present situation in Cuba and the interest of humanity seem to render it proper that I should call your attention to them, in order that the treaty may be modified in such manner as to secure to us our rights as a neutral power in case of war between Spain and a third power. I refer to the treaty of 1795 as containing provisions more favorable to us than those of any other treaty to which we are a party, and therefore more favorable to the interests of the United States in case of war between Spain and a third power. I recommend that the treaty be modified in the particulars referred to, and that it be made to conform in those respects to the treaties between Spain and other powers.

Then he diverges to

RELATIONS WITH FRANCE,

To which he first makes the following general reference before going into details. He simply states that they are amicable and satisfactory:

Our relations with most of the foreign powers continue on a satisfactory and friendly footing. In the case of Mexico, however, the unsettled condition of domestic affairs, leading to frequent changes in the administration of the government, has caused much annoyance and embarrassment in the transaction of business between the two countries. The commercial relations between the United States and Mexico are of great importance, and it is desirable that they should be placed upon a permanent basis. I am hopeful that the present Government of Mexico will be able to maintain its authority, and that it will be found possible to negotiate a treaty of commerce which will be mutually satisfactory.

Then he diverges to

OUR FOREIGN RELATIONS,

To which he first makes the following general reference before going into details. He simply states that they are amicable and satisfactory:

Our relations with most of the foreign powers continue on a satisfactory and friendly footing. In the case of Mexico, however, the unsettled condition of domestic affairs, leading to frequent changes in the administration of the government, has caused much annoyance and embarrassment in the transaction of business between the two countries. The commercial relations between the United States and Mexico are of great importance, and it is desirable that they should be placed upon a permanent basis. I am hopeful that the present Government of Mexico will be able to maintain its authority, and that it will be found possible to negotiate a treaty of commerce which will be mutually satisfactory.

Immediately afterwards he speaks of the prospect of the abolishment of slavery in the Portuguese dominions, of minor matters relating to Cuba and the States of Columbia and then alludes to our

RELATIONS WITH SPAIN.

He mentions the pending payment of the "Virginius" indemnity, and passes on to a consideration of the affairs of Cuba. He deplores the bare and loss of life caused in the island by the late civil war, consequent disturbance of our trade; alludes to the spirit of Montenegro, and then comes to the subject of Spain to crush the rebellion, yet acknowledges the failure of the insurgents to establish any kind of government which would entitle them to recognition. After an elaborate discussion of the situation, the President thus sums up:

At the same time, while thus impressed, I do not see that the United States can properly intervene by any steps of intervention. I shall be ready at all times, and the Executive will be fully authorized, to adopt such measures as may be proper to enforce the neutrality laws of the United States, and to prevent the territory of the United States from being used as a base of military operations by either party, or as a means of receiving recruits or supplies. The contest is between the Government of Madrid and a party in the field claiming to be the Government of Cuba. Both parties are contending for the possession of the island, and the struggle is necessarily a severe and bloody one. It is the duty of the United States to maintain and enforce its neutrality in such a contest, and to show no favor to either party. The principles which have been established in numerous precedents during the past history of the United States will be observed and enforced. A subject forcibly presented to my consideration is the question of the treatment of citizens of the United States who are captured while serving with the insurgent forces. Many such persons are now confined in the prisons of Spain, charged with the crime of treason against the government of that country. Their treatment has been severe, and in some instances cruel and inhuman. Some have been executed, others have died in prison, and others are still in confinement awaiting trial or sentence. Their continued imprisonment is a source of great anxiety to their friends and to this Government. While it is the duty of every government to protect its citizens or subjects in foreign countries, it is specially so in the case of persons who are captured in the service of those who are endeavoring to overthrow the government against which they are in arms. Prisoners taken in war are treated with humanity, and are entitled to be exchanged or released on parole at the earliest practicable period. Persons who are captured in the service of insurgents are not entitled to the benefits of these usages of war, but they are entitled to be treated with humanity, and to have a fair and impartial trial before they are condemned to any punishment. Their offense is purely political, and they should be punished, if guilty, only by the sentence which the law imposes for the crime of which they are convicted. I am glad to say that the present Government of Spain has given assurances that the cases of the persons referred to will be examined in the light of these principles, and that those persons who are found to be entitled to release will be set at liberty. I have not failed to bring to the attention of the Minister of Madrid certain proposed modifications of the treaty of 1795, which, in the event of war between Spain and a third power, would enable us to secure the benefits of our neutrality. These propositions have been under consideration for some time, but have not been finally acted upon. But the difficulties of the present situation in Cuba and the interest of humanity seem to render it proper that I should call your attention to them, in order that the treaty may be modified in such manner as to secure to us our rights as a neutral power in case of war between Spain and a third power. I refer to the treaty of 1795 as containing provisions more favorable to us than those of any other treaty to which we are a party, and therefore more favorable to the interests of the United States in case of war between Spain and a third power. I recommend that the treaty be modified in the particulars referred to, and that it be made to conform in those respects to the treaties between Spain and other powers.

Then he diverges to

RELATIONS WITH FRANCE,

To which he first makes the following general reference before going into details. He simply states that they are amicable and satisfactory:

Our relations with most of the foreign powers continue on a satisfactory and friendly footing. In the case of Mexico, however, the unsettled condition of domestic affairs, leading to frequent changes in the administration of the government, has caused much annoyance and embarrassment in the transaction of business between the two countries. The commercial relations between the United States and Mexico are of great importance, and it is desirable that they should be placed upon a permanent basis. I am hopeful that the present Government of Mexico will be able to maintain its authority, and that it will be found possible to negotiate a treaty of commerce which will be mutually satisfactory.

Then he diverges to

RELATIONS WITH SPAIN,

He mentions the pending payment of the "Virginius" indemnity, and passes on to a consideration of the affairs of Cuba. He deplores the bare and loss of life caused in the island by the late civil war, consequent disturbance of our trade; alludes to the spirit of Montenegro, and then comes to the subject of Spain to crush the rebellion, yet acknowledges the failure of the insurgents to establish any kind of government which would entitle them to recognition. After an elaborate discussion of the situation, the President thus sums up:

At the same time, while thus impressed, I do not see that the United States can properly intervene by any steps of intervention. I shall be ready at all times, and the Executive will be fully authorized, to adopt such measures as may be proper to enforce the neutrality laws of the United States, and to prevent the territory of the United States from being used as a base of military operations by either party, or as a means of receiving recruits or supplies. The contest is between the Government of Madrid and a party in the field claiming to be the Government of Cuba. Both parties are contending for the possession of the island, and the struggle is necessarily a severe and bloody one. It is the duty of the United States to maintain and enforce its neutrality in such a contest, and to show no favor to either party. The principles which have been established in numerous precedents during the past history of the United States will be observed and enforced. A subject forcibly presented to my consideration is the question of the treatment of citizens of the United States who are captured while serving with the insurgent forces. Many such persons are now confined in the prisons of Spain, charged with the crime of treason against the government of that country. Their treatment has been severe, and in some instances cruel and inhuman. Some have been executed, others have died in prison, and others are still in confinement awaiting trial or sentence. Their continued imprisonment is a source of great anxiety to their friends and to this Government. While it is the duty of every government to protect its citizens or subjects in foreign countries, it is specially so in the case of persons who are captured in the service of those who are endeavoring to overthrow the government against which they are in arms. Prisoners taken in war are treated with humanity, and are entitled to be exchanged or released on parole at the earliest practicable period. Persons who are captured in the service of insurgents are not entitled to the benefits of these usages of war, but they are entitled to be treated with humanity, and to have a fair and impartial trial before they are condemned to any punishment. Their offense is purely political, and they should be punished, if guilty, only by the sentence which the law imposes for the crime of which they are convicted. I am glad to say that the present Government of Spain has given assurances that the cases of the persons referred to will be examined in the light of these principles, and that those persons who are found to be entitled to release will be set at liberty. I have not failed to bring to the attention of the Minister of Madrid certain proposed modifications of the treaty of 1795, which, in the event of war between Spain and a third power, would enable us to secure the benefits of our neutrality. These propositions have been under consideration for some time, but have not been finally acted upon. But the difficulties of the present situation in Cuba and the interest of humanity seem to render it proper that I should call your attention to them, in order that the treaty may be modified in such manner as to secure to us our rights as a neutral power in case of war between Spain and a third power. I refer to the treaty of 1795 as containing provisions more favorable to us than those of any other treaty to which we are a party, and therefore more favorable to the interests of the United States in case of war between Spain and a third power. I recommend that the treaty be modified in the particulars referred to, and that it be made to conform in those respects to the treaties between Spain and other powers.

Then he diverges to

RELATIONS WITH SPAIN,

He mentions the pending payment of the "Virginius" indemnity, and passes on to a consideration of the affairs of Cuba. He deplores the bare and loss of life caused in the island by the late civil war, consequent disturbance of our trade; alludes to the spirit of Montenegro, and then comes to the subject of Spain to crush the rebellion, yet acknowledges the failure of the insurgents to establish any kind of government which would entitle them to recognition. After an elaborate discussion of the situation, the President thus sums up:

At the same time, while thus impressed, I do not see that the United States can properly intervene by any steps of intervention. I shall be ready at all times, and the Executive will be fully authorized, to adopt such measures as may be proper to enforce the neutrality laws of the United States, and to prevent the territory of the United States from being used as a base of military operations by either party, or as a means of receiving recruits or supplies. The contest is between the Government of Madrid and a party in the field claiming to be the Government of Cuba. Both parties are contending for the possession of the island, and the struggle is necessarily a severe and bloody one. It is the duty of the United States to maintain and enforce its neutrality in such a contest, and to show no favor to either party. The principles which have been established in numerous precedents during the past history of the United States will be observed and enforced. A subject forcibly presented to my consideration is the question of the treatment of citizens of the United States who are captured while serving with the insurgent forces. Many such persons are now confined in the prisons of Spain, charged with the crime of treason against the government of that country. Their treatment has been severe, and in some instances cruel and inhuman. Some have been executed, others have died in prison, and others are still in confinement awaiting trial or sentence. Their continued imprisonment is a source of great anxiety to their friends and to this Government. While it is the duty of every government to protect its citizens or subjects in foreign countries, it is specially so in the case of persons who are captured in the service of those who are endeavoring to overthrow the government against which they are in arms. Prisoners taken in war are treated with humanity, and are entitled to be exchanged or released on parole at the earliest practicable period. Persons who are captured in the service of insurgents are not entitled to the benefits of these usages of war, but they are entitled to be treated with humanity, and to have a fair and impartial trial before they are condemned to any punishment. Their offense is purely political, and they should be punished, if guilty, only by the sentence which the law imposes for the crime of which they are convicted. I am glad to say that the present Government of Spain has given assurances that the cases of the persons referred to will be examined in the light of these principles, and that those persons who are found to be entitled to release will be set at liberty. I have not failed to bring to the attention of the Minister of Madrid certain proposed modifications of the treaty of 1795, which, in the event of war between Spain and a third power, would enable us to secure the benefits of our neutrality. These propositions have been under consideration for some time, but have not been finally acted upon. But the difficulties of the present situation in Cuba and the interest of humanity seem to render it proper that I should call your attention to them, in order that the treaty may be modified in such manner as to secure to us our rights as a neutral power in case of war between Spain and a third power. I refer to the treaty of 1795 as containing provisions more favorable to us than those of any other treaty to which we are a party, and therefore more favorable to the interests of the United States in case of war between Spain and a third power. I recommend that the treaty be modified in the particulars referred to, and that it be made to conform in those respects to the treaties between Spain and other powers.

Then he diverges to

RELATIONS WITH SPAIN,

He mentions the pending payment of the "Virginius" indemnity, and passes on to a consideration of the affairs of Cuba. He deplores the bare and loss of life caused in the island by the late civil war, consequent disturbance of our trade; alludes to the spirit of Montenegro, and then comes to the subject of Spain to crush the rebellion, yet acknowledges the failure of the insurgents to establish any kind of government which would entitle them to recognition. After an elaborate discussion of the situation, the President thus sums up:

At the same time, while thus impressed, I do not see that the United States can properly intervene by any steps of intervention. I shall be ready at all times, and the Executive will be fully authorized, to adopt such measures as may be proper to enforce the neutrality laws of the United States, and to prevent the territory of the United States from being used as a base of military operations by either party, or as a means of receiving recruits or supplies. The contest is between the Government of Madrid and a party in the field claiming to be the Government of Cuba. Both parties are contending for the possession of the island, and the struggle is necessarily a severe and bloody one. It is the duty of the United States to maintain and enforce its neutrality in such a contest, and to show no favor to either party. The principles which have been established in numerous precedents during the past history of the United States will be observed and enforced. A subject forcibly presented to my consideration is the question of the treatment of citizens of the United States who are captured while serving with the insurgent forces. Many such persons are now confined in the prisons of Spain, charged with the crime of treason against the government of that country. Their treatment has been severe, and in some instances cruel and inhuman. Some have been executed, others have died in prison, and others are still in confinement awaiting trial or sentence. Their continued imprisonment is a source of great anxiety to their friends and to this Government. While it is the duty of every government to protect its citizens or subjects in foreign countries, it is specially so in the case of persons who are captured in the service of those who are endeavoring to overthrow the government against which they are in arms. Prisoners taken in war are treated with humanity, and are entitled to be exchanged or released on parole at the earliest practicable period. Persons who are captured in the service of insurgents are not entitled to the benefits of these usages of war, but they are entitled to be treated with humanity, and to have a fair and impartial trial before they are condemned to any punishment. Their offense is purely political, and they should be punished, if guilty, only by the sentence which the law imposes for the crime of which they are convicted. I am glad to say that the present Government of Spain has given assurances that the cases of the persons referred to will be examined in the light of these principles, and that those persons who are found to be entitled to release will be set at liberty. I have not failed to bring to the attention of the Minister of Madrid certain proposed modifications of the treaty of 1795, which, in the event of war between Spain and a third power, would enable us to secure the benefits of our neutrality. These propositions have been under consideration for some time, but have not been finally acted upon. But the difficulties of the present situation in Cuba and the interest of humanity seem to render it proper that I should call your attention to them, in order that the treaty may be modified in such manner as to secure to us our rights as a neutral power in case of war between Spain and a third power. I refer to the treaty of 1795 as containing provisions more favorable to us than those of any other treaty to which we are a party, and therefore more favor

IRISH LOCAL NEWS.

From the Dublin Nation of November 13.

ANTRIM.

An extraordinary case of a mother selling her child was before the Belfast Board of Guardians last week. The subject was introduced by the reading of an outlay in the Catholic chaplain's book, drawing the attention of the Board to the fact that on Friday week a lady and gentlemen came to the workhouse, and by promises induced an inmate named Ellen McKenna to sell her infant child, four months old. The mother having consented, the child was taken away, it is supposed, to Leeds, as the parties gave that address. The mother afterwards repented of her unnatural act, and wished to have the child restored. After a long discussion the Board were of opinion that none of the officers of the workhouse were to blame in connection with the proceeding, and refused to take any action in restoring the child to the mother.

CARLOW.

On Thursday evening, 28th ult., the Tullow temperance band, under Mr. O'Connor, and accompanied by a large number of its townspeople, met Dr. Harris about a mile from the town, on his return from his wedding tour, and played all the way into the town, accompanying the Doctor to his residence, where he addressed the crowd. The principal houses were illuminated on the occasion.

CORK.

Last week the sum of £170 was raised in Fermoy for relief to the families of the survivors by the late accident at the barracks there.

Patrick Murphy, who is charged with murdering a game-keeper on the estate of the Marquis of Donegal, near Belfast, was arrested on board the outward Going steamer at Queenstown last week. He was carefully disguised and had shaved off his whiskers.

The continued rains have flooded the country on both sides of the Mourne for many miles in different places. About two miles east of of Rathmolyn the train on Saturday last had to go through nearly three feet of water, tossing the spray in all directions.

The Guardians of the Skibbereen Union have adopted a resolution in favor of the employment of nuns as hospital nurses, and instructed a deputation to wait upon the Sisters of Mercy to ascertain whether those ladies would undertake the duty.

At the Cork land sessions last week two claims for large amounts were heard. In the first, Mr. Denman, the tenant-dealer, brought an opposition for improvements to the amount of £270 in a farm of twenty-six acres near Douglas, from which he had been served by Mr. Meade as the termination of an old tenancy, and the chairman awarded him sixpence. Admonished, probably, by this decision, the second claimant seized with his landlord and took a thirty-one years' lease.

Information has been received of the total loss of the large ship Governor of Crosshaven, with all hands, in the vicinity of Tongue Bay. When the sad news reached the little village of Crosshaven the wildest excitement was evinced, as the capt. and owner, Mr. Power, together, it is said, with his son, was on board, and also a Crosshaven crew. Mr. Power leaves a large family to deplore his loss.

An amusing incident, says the Cork Examiner, occurred this morning between a Mr. G. and a Mr. C. were about sharing a double-bedded room, and preparing to go to bed they had some friendly chat, in the course of which Mr. G. observed to either a very handsome gold watch he had been presented with by the members of a society to which he belonged. Mr. C. examined the watch, was loud in admiration, and handed it back to Mr. G., who, on retiring to rest, hung the watch from a nail in the wall just over his head. After the lapse of several hours Mr. G. was suddenly awoke by hearing the street door closed with a very loud report, and when after cooling reproachfully to Mr. C. and receiving no answer, he jumped up and struck a light, but was astounded to find Mr. C. had disappeared. Instead of his eyes wandered to his watch, and to his amazement it, too, had disappeared. He at once proceeded to raise an alarm, and some others among the noise of the door also awoke, and in the room. Mr. G.'s horror at the loss, and on search being made it was found that Mr. C. had left his premises in his hurry, but not a single article of clothing. Mr. G., the proprietor, and two more set off in pursuit of the supposed robber, and on doubling round a corner they beheld Mr. C. hastening constitutional in the door of a shop. The party immediately laid hands on him, and in the pocket of his coat they discovered the missing watch, but they soon made another discovery—namely, that Mr. C. was a somnambulist, not that evidently enough the shop at which they discovered Mr. C. was actually a pawn office.

CLARE.

On Sunday a deputation from the united parishes of Kilaloe, Clarebuoy and Bridgetown, waited on Rev. Denis Cleary, P. P., O'Callaghan's Mills, and presented him with a testimonial of their esteem, consisting about 150 sovereigns, on his promotion to O'Callaghan's Mills, Glenaulin, and Gortlaid united parishes. The deputation consisted of Dr. Keogh, Michael Doyle, Esq., Bridgetown; Rev. Edward Ryan, Rev. J. McInerney, Esq., Rev. J. O'Mahony, and other gentlemen.

KILKENNY.

A few days since a public meeting was held in the Town Hall at Ballacy, for the purpose of setting on foot a movement for the collection of subscriptions for the wives and families of the four Ballacy fishermen who were lost in the gale of September last. Rev. Mr. Bryard Harrison, Chairman of the Ballacy Commissioners, presided. A sum of £223 was collected before the proceedings terminated.

MONAGHAN.

At the Leuterkenny quarter sessions last week, Justice Gibson presiding, Rev. Oliver Leech, Presbyterian minister, and Edmund Murphy, Secretary of the Protestant Church Representative Body, for the recovery of one shilling paid, under protest, for right of interment of a corpse in the graveyard attached to the Protestant church. Counsel for defendant argued that the Church Representative Body was unincorporated, and was composed of a thirty-one years' lease.

Information has been received of the sudden loss of the large ship Governor of Crosshaven, with all hands, in the vicinity of Tongue Bay. When the sad news reached the little village of Crosshaven the wildest excitement was evinced, as the captain and owner, Mr. Power, together, it is said, with his son, was on board, and also a Crosshaven crew. Mr. Power leaves a large family to deplore his loss.

An amusing incident, says the Cork Examiner, occurred this morning between a Mr. G. and a Mr. C. were about sharing a double-bedded room, and preparing to go to bed they had some friendly chat, in the course of which Mr. G. observed to either a very handsome gold watch he had been presented with by the members of a society to which he belonged. Mr. C. examined the watch, was loud in admiration, and handed it back to Mr. G., who, on retiring to rest, hung the watch from a nail in the wall just over his head. After the lapse of several hours Mr. G. was suddenly awoke by hearing the street door closed with a very loud report, and when after cooling reproachfully to Mr. C. and receiving no answer, he jumped up and struck a light, but was astounded to find Mr. C. had disappeared. Instead of his eyes wandered to his watch, and to his amazement it, too, had disappeared. He at once proceeded to raise an alarm, and some others among the noise of the door also awoke, and in the room. Mr. G.'s horror at the loss, and on search being made it was found that Mr. C. had left his premises in his hurry, but not a single article of clothing. Mr. G., the proprietor, and two more set off in pursuit of the supposed robber, and on doubling round a corner they beheld Mr. C. hastening constitutional in the door of a shop. The party immediately laid hands on him, and in the pocket of his coat they discovered the missing watch, but they soon made another discovery—namely, that Mr. C. was a somnambulist, not that evidently enough the shop at which they discovered Mr. C. was actually a pawn office.

CLARE.

On Sunday a deputation from the united parishes of Kilaloe, Clarebuoy and Bridgetown, waited on Rev. Denis Cleary, P. P., O'Callaghan's Mills, and presented him with a testimonial of their esteem, consisting about 150 sovereigns, on his promotion to O'Callaghan's Mills, Glenaulin, and Gortlaid united parishes. The deputation consisted of Dr. Keogh, Michael Doyle, Esq., Bridgetown; Rev. Edward Ryan, Rev. J. McInerney, Esq., Rev. J. O'Mahony, and other gentlemen.

KILKENNY.

A few days since a public meeting was held in the Town Hall at Ballacy, for the purpose of setting on foot a movement for the collection of subscriptions for the wives and families of the four Ballacy fishermen who were lost in the gale of September last. Rev. Mr. Bryard Harrison, Chairman of the Ballacy Commissioners, presided. A sum of £223 was collected before the proceedings terminated.

MONAGHAN.

At the Leuterkenny quarter sessions last week, Justice Gibson presiding, Rev. Oliver Leech, Presbyterian minister, and Edmund Murphy, Secretary of the Protestant Church Representative Body, for the recovery of one shilling paid, under protest, for right of interment of a corpse in the graveyard attached to the Protestant church. Counsel for defendant argued that the Church Representative Body was unincorporated, and was composed of a number of persons, and was empowered to make by laws by authorizing charge for interment; but, failing to produce the order vesting the graveyard in the Church Representative Body, the Worship pleaded Decree. Notice of appeal was given.

At the last meeting of the Letterkenny Board of Guardians it was proposed by James Greene, Esq., seconded by Robert Kennedy, Esq., and passed unanimously, that—"At a meeting of the poor law guardians of Letterkenny, held at the workhouse, Letterkenny, on the 5th day of November, 1875, a copy of the Letterkenny Railway Bill having been submitted to the meeting, it is resolved—That the copy of the above-named bill now submitted to the meeting, be approved subject to such conditions, alterations and variations as Parliament may think fit to make therein, provided there shall not be levied in any one year under the powers of the intended act a rate exceeding 6d. in the £1 on the rateable district as is within the poor law union of Letterkenny, and provided that no levy take place until the sum of £50 000 mentioned in the bill has been raised."

DOWN.

The death is announced of Joshua Magee, E.q., solicitor, Newry. He was brother of the late William Magee, solicitor, of Dromgooks, and filled the office of coroner for the county of Armagh.

A magisterial inquiry has been commenced at Trevor Hill, in the county of Down, with respect to the death of a sailor named Pinner, who was shot dead by the captain of a Norwegian bark for insubordination and violence.

FERMANAGH.

A tobacco manufacturer at Enniskillen has been prosecuted by the Excise authorities for using gum arabic in his process of manufacture. The chemical analysis at Somerset House declared they found gum arabic in the specimens of the tobacco submitted to them, but Professors Hodges, of Belfast, and Cameron, of Dublin, on examining portions of the same specimens, could discover none. The Enniskillen magistrates, therefore, dismissed the charge.

GALWAY.

At the last meeting of the Galway Board of Guardians it was proposed by Captain O'Hara, seconded by Mr. Kelly, and unanimously carried, that the requisite notice for the burial ground be at once made in accordance with the Act of Parliament, and that the Government Board be applied to give the Board all the documents and correspondence in connection with reference to the memorial in town made by the Town Commissioners of Galway, under the impression that it was the Burial Board; and that the Local Government Board be requested in explanation all matters in connection therewith which call for immediate action, the burial ground at present is being used in a most unsatisfactory and to enable the Burial Board to take lands under the "Lands' Clauses Consolidation Act." It was also resolved that Captain O'Hara, and Messrs. Davis, Kelly, Cummins and O'Grady be appointed a committee to enter a site and made the necessary arrangements.

KERRY.

At a meeting held in Listowel on the 25th November, when several of the directors were present, it was stated that there is very prospect of the harbour being commenced between Listowel and Newcastle in a very short time.

Last week an inquest was held in Tralee respecting the death of a young man named Oliver Mason, who had died suddenly, his whose body was exhumed after a week's interment in consequence of rumors of poison. Dr. Cameron, of Dublin, to whom the stomach had been sent for analysis, attended, and deposed that he found sufficient poison in the stomach to kill a dozen persons. Dr. Cameron, a Scotch gentleman, is considered one of the highest authorities on the subject. The sister of the deceased is in custody charged with the murder.

At Oolorney presentment sessions, last week, signed by the sheriff and the next of kin of John Quilter, the old man murdered at Kilcoppy near Tralee on the 3rd inst., for sanction for the malicious burning of his house and furniture on the night of the murder, the presentment was made on behalf of the landlord of the premises, Mr. [illegible] the magistrates, and, the notice proving [illegible] the presentment was given out, without their merits being discussed.

In opening the Listowel quarter sessions last week, Chairman Lloyd said he had been pressed with by the members of a society to which he belonged. He examined the watch, was loud in admiration, and handed it back to Mr. G., who, on retiring to rest, hung the watch from a nail in the wall just over his head. After the lapse of several hours Mr. G. was suddenly awoke by hearing the street door closed with a very loud report, and when after cooling reproachfully to Mr. C. and receiving no answer, he jumped up and struck a light, but was astounded to find Mr. C. had disappeared. Instead of his eyes wandered to his watch, and to his amazement it, too, had disappeared. He at once proceeded to raise an alarm, and some others among the noise of the door also awoke, and in the room. Mr. G.'s horror at the loss, and on search being made it was found that Mr. C. had left his premises in his hurry, but not a single article of clothing. Mr. G., the proprietor, and two more set off in pursuit of the supposed robber, and on doubling round a corner they beheld Mr. C. hastening constitutional in the door of a shop. The party immediately laid hands on him, and in the pocket of his coat they discovered the missing watch, but they soon made another discovery—namely, that Mr. C. was a somnambulist, not that evidently enough the shop at which they discovered Mr. C. was actually a pawn office.

LIMERICK.

William Seward, librarian of the Limerick Institution, pleaded guilty last week, at the quarter sessions of Limerick, to a charge of having stolen several hundred volumes from the library during a considerable time past, and sold them. He was sentenced by the chairman to five years' penal servitude.

At the Limerick quarter sessions last week the application of a man named Daly for a license to open a public house in the village of Castleconnal was opposed on the ground that he canvassed for Rickard on the occasion of the Tipperary election, and illuminated his house in compliment to the popular candidate. The constabulary stated that that they had no objection to the man's character, and that in the illumination he did nothing more than the rest of the people, but the magistrates rejected the application. The magistrates refused to grant certificates affirming "that it is desirable the closing of public houses on Sundays should be made compulsory by legislative enactment, and that the power granted by the recent act of Parliament of giving a Sunday license, though carried out to some extent, has mainly resulted in inflicting individual hardship without effecting any public good."

LONDONDERRY.

In our last issue, says the Wexford People, it was stated that a small boy 7 years had been found in Cardigan Bay in a state of shifting and a telegram on board, and a note asking the finder to telegraph her arrival to Wexford. On Saturday last Mr. Farren, the boy's father, arrived in Wexford, and identified the boy as his son. Mr. Farren, it appears, had left Cardigan Bay in a small boat, and had not been heard of since. The boy was found in a state of exhaustion, and was taken on board the vessel, which had probably been the means of saving his life.

LOUTH.

The Hon. C. W. Thesiger, Colonel of Inniskilling Dragoons, has been appointed at the annual public distribution of prizes obtained by the Dundalk pupils in science at the examination held in connection with the South Kensington Department in May last. The presentations took place in the town hall. The pupils, fifty-five in number, received their prizes—valuable scientific books, mathematical instruments, etc.—from the hand of Colonel Thesiger.

WATERFORD.

Foxford new Catholic church committee and the respected parish priest, Father Nicholas O'Dowd, have, says the Mayo Examiner, made great advances in their admirable and Catholic undertaking. We learned with pleasure on Saturday last that a recent visit to Foxford, Lord Clanmorris, accompanied by his agent, Mr. Darcy, met his tenantry and their parish priest in the town amid very cordial greetings. His Lordship having consulted with Father O'Dowd, inquired what place the reverend gentleman thought most suitable for the erection of the new church, whereupon the ground was promptly pointed out by Father O'Dowd and Mr. Meehan, and generously granted on the spot by the noble lord.

SLIGO.

We understand, says the Sligo "Independent," that one of the Sligo bankers has given notice that on and after the 1st January next he will charge 2½ per cent. for the issue of foreign bills, drafts, etc., and 5 per cent. for the issue of circular notes.

TIPPERARY.

At the Nenagh quarter sessions John Costelloe, a young lad of about 14 years of age, living at Lisbunny, was charged with having carried away with him a quantity of wearing apparel belonging to Mr. Thomas Ryan, of Lisbunny, from a farmer named Thomas Gosline, residing at Lower Grange, and valued at £40 for having deprived him of the use of one of his eyes by striking him with a stick. From the evidence of Thomas Gosline, the father of the lad, it appeared that in the month of [illegible] the prisoner was playing a game called "Blind Buff" with little Ryan, Gosline's son, without permission to join the game, the ruin of which was the loss of his eye. Gosline, in a fit of anger, hit the prisoner a blow with a stick, which fell, unfortunately, on the eye of little Ryan, who was then playing with the prisoner. The prosecutor's son, who was present, corroborated the statement of his father. The prisoner, in his defence, stated that they had no objection to the man's character, and that in the illumination he did nothing more than the rest of the people, but the magistrates rejected the application. The magistrates refused to grant certificates affirming "that it is desirable the closing of public houses on Sundays should be made compulsory by legislative enactment, and that the power granted by the recent act of Parliament of giving a Sunday license, though carried out to some extent, has mainly resulted in inflicting individual hardship without effecting any public good."

PROTESTANTISM.

"Berlin is a great place for divorces. Last year 1,262 cases of divorce came before the court in Berlin, while in the whole of Prussia there were only fifty such cases. Under the new laws divorces are easily obtained in Prussia, but by a decided proviso such a husband and wife who wish to be separated must both be of the same religion, the Protestant clergyman of the parish, whose duty is to reconcile them to each other, if possible. If he fails, they then go before the civil Court. During 1874, in Berlin, there were 4,630 couples married by Protestant clergy of Prussia, and of these, 2,683 were reconciled, 1,042 were persuaded at the examination held in connection with the South Kensington Department in May last. The presentations took place in the town hall. The pupils, fifty-five in number, received their prizes—valuable scientific books, mathematical instruments, etc.—from the hand of Colonel Thesiger.

Foxford new Catholic church committee and the respected parish priest, Father Nicholas O'Dowd, have, says the Mayo Examiner, made great advances in their admirable and Catholic undertaking. We learned with pleasure on Saturday last that a recent visit to Foxford, Lord Clanmorris, accompanied by his agent, Mr. Darcy, met his tenantry and their parish priest in the town amid very cordial greetings. His Lordship having consulted with Father O'Dowd, inquired what place the reverend gentleman thought most suitable for the erection of the new church, whereupon the ground was promptly pointed out by Father O'Dowd and Mr. Meehan, and generously granted on the spot by the noble lord.

SLIGO.

We understand, says the Sligo "Independent," that one of the Sligo bankers has given notice that on and after the 1st January next he will charge 2½ per cent. for the issue of foreign bills, drafts, etc., and 5 per cent. for the issue of circular notes.

TIPPERARY.

At the Nenagh quarter sessions John Costelloe, a young lad of about 14 years of age, living at Lisbunny, was charged with having carried away with him a quantity of wearing apparel belonging to Mr. Thomas Ryan, of Lisbunny, from a farmer named Thomas Gosline, residing at Lower Grange, and valued at £40 for having deprived him of the use of one of his eyes by striking him with a stick. From the evidence of Thomas Gosline, the father of the lad, it appeared that in the month of [illegible] the prisoner was playing a game called "Blind Buff" with little Ryan, Gosline's son, without permission to join the game, the ruin of which was the loss of his eye. Gosline, in a fit of anger, hit the prisoner a blow with a stick, which fell, unfortunately, on the eye of little Ryan, who was then playing with the prisoner. The prosecutor's son, who was present, corroborated the statement of his father. The prisoner, in his defence, stated that they had no objection to the man's character, and that in the illumination he did nothing more than the rest of the people, but the magistrates rejected the application. The magistrates refused to grant certificates affirming "that it is desirable the closing of public houses on Sundays should be made compulsory by legislative enactment, and that the power granted by the recent act of Parliament of giving a Sunday license, though carried out to some extent, has mainly resulted in inflicting individual hardship without effecting any public good."

PROTESTANTISM.

"Berlin is a great place for divorces. Last year 1,262 cases of divorce came before the court in Berlin, while in the whole of Prussia there were only fifty such cases. Under the new laws divorces are easily obtained in Prussia, but by a decided proviso such a husband and wife who wish to be separated must both be of the same religion, the Protestant clergyman of the parish, whose duty is to reconcile them to each other, if possible. If he fails, they then go before the civil Court. During 1874, in Berlin, there were 4,630 couples married by Protestant clergy of Prussia, and of these, 2,683 were reconciled, 1,042 were persuaded at the examination held in connection with the South Kensington Department in May last. The presentations took place in the town hall. The pupils, fifty-five in number, received their prizes—valuable scientific books, mathematical instruments, etc.—from the hand of Colonel Thesiger.

Foxford new Catholic church committee and the respected parish priest, Father Nicholas O'Dowd, have, says the Mayo Examiner, made great advances in their admirable and Catholic undertaking. We learned with pleasure on Saturday last that a recent visit to Foxford, Lord Clanmorris, accompanied by his agent, Mr. Darcy, met his tenantry and their parish priest in the town amid very cordial greetings. His Lordship having consulted with Father O'Dowd, inquired what place the reverend gentleman thought most suitable for the erection of the new church, whereupon the ground was promptly pointed out by Father O'Dowd and Mr. Meehan, and generously granted on the spot by the noble lord.

SLIGO.

We understand, says the Sligo "Independent," that one of the Sligo bankers has given notice that on and after the 1st January next he will charge 2½ per cent. for the issue of foreign bills, drafts, etc., and 5 per cent. for the issue of circular notes.

TIPPERARY.

At the Nenagh quarter sessions John Costelloe, a young lad of about 14 years of age, living at Lisbunny, was charged with having carried away with him a quantity of wearing apparel belonging to Mr. Thomas Ryan, of Lisbunny, from a farmer named Thomas Gosline, residing at Lower Grange, and valued at £40 for having deprived him of the use of one of his eyes by striking him with a stick. From the evidence of Thomas Gosline, the father of the lad, it appeared that in the month of [illegible] the prisoner was playing a game called "Blind Buff" with little Ryan, Gosline's son, without permission to join the game, the ruin of which was the loss of his eye. Gosline, in a fit of anger, hit the prisoner a blow with a stick, which fell, unfortunately, on the eye of little Ryan, who was then playing with the prisoner. The prosecutor's son, who was present, corroborated the statement of his father. The prisoner, in his defence, stated that they had no objection to the man's character, and that in the illumination he did nothing more than the rest of the people, but the magistrates rejected the application. The magistrates refused to grant certificates affirming "that it is desirable the closing of public houses on Sundays should be made compulsory by legislative enactment, and that the power granted by the recent act of Parliament of giving a Sunday license, though carried out to some extent, has mainly resulted in inflicting individual hardship without effecting any public good."

THE WEEKLY SUN.

1776. NEW YORK 1876.

Eighteen hundred and seventy-six is the Centennial year. It is one thousand years since the first shock of the Norman earthquake. It is three hundred years since the first birth of a President of the United States. It is two hundred years since the first Indian massacre, especially, the two latter; and the first printing press and the first negro slave. It is fifty and freshly reported and reproduced in The Sun.

The Opposition House of Representatives, taking its cue from the Democratic Senate, will be, we are told, very clearly and strongly Democratic. The Democrats will get in at Charleston harbor, but often by [illegible] to a sail-saving tide; but they will be [illegible] in the end. Then, as we say, with the words—Please telegraph the arrival of this boat to Mr. Aikens, Foxford, Ireland. A reward will be paid." A shilling is a small, liuse bag, we used to the mainmast.

WICKLOW.

His Eminence the Cardinal Archbishop of Dublin has received the parish of Kilbride, county Wicklow, vacant by the death of the late venerable Dean, the Rev. Hugh Daly, on the Rev. Michael Mooney.

The Bible and Catholicism vs Protestantism.

THE BIBLE.

"It hath been said, whosoever shall put away his wife let her give him a writing of divorcement. But I say unto you, that whosoever shall put away his wife, saving for the cause of fornication, causeth her to commit adultery; and whosoever shall marry her that is divorced committeth adultery. (St. Matt. v, 31 32) Verbatim on the Mount. Protestant record.

The Protestants also make use of the Bible, using it as a book of devotion

CATHOLIC INTELLIGENCE.

—Cardinal Tarnocsy, Archbishop of Salzburg, in Austria, has suffered a paralytic stroke, completely disabling one side of his body.

—The renowned Jesuit missionary, Father Weninger, gave a mission in the German Catholic church, Houston, Texas, on the 14th November.

—The Franciscan Order has sustained a great loss in the death of the Very Rev. P. Fulgence, who had for twenty years been Commissary General of the Order in the Holy Land.

—The Right Rev. Bishop Grose is making remarkable progress in Georgia among an exclusively Protestant people. Every town and village he visits gives him free ground and money to build a church on.

—It is rumored that the Rev. Father Conway, S. J., of St. Patrick's church, Chicago, has been appointed Bishop of Peoria. If true, the appointment is an excellent one, the reverend Father being noted for his piety, earnestness and devotion.

—The Carmelite nunnke, who lately arrived from Germany, have begun the erection of a monastery at Paterson, N. J. It is to be of brick, and two stories in height, and will cost about $10,000.

—At the Convent of the Visitation B. V. M., in Baltimore, Miss Annie E. Donnan, of Atlanta, Ga., received the white veil and habit of the Order, and is called in religion Sister Mary Aloysius.

—Died on 28th October, at the Convent of the Sacred Heart of Mary, South Washington, D.C., Sister Cecelia Dutton, in the 45th year of her age, and twenty-fifth of her profession as a religious of the order of St. Dominic. Her funeral took place from St. Dominic's church, and was largely attended.

—On Sunday, November 14th, the first Catholic church in Somerville, Mass., was dedicated by the Most Rev. Archbishop of Boston. The edifice is located on Union Square, is built of first quality hard brick, and is trimmed with granite; it is 166 feet in length, 72 feet in width, and has a tower 176 feet high, upon which is a gilded cross.

—The new Cathedral of the Holy Name which was dedicated in Chicago, November 26th, is the largest church in the world, joining the town of Fuller, county seat of Benton county, on the Cincinnati, Lafayette and Chicago Railroad, for a Benedictine convent and college. The funds for the said nun convent is but $25,000. The Abbey of St. Boniface, Munich, Bavaria and St. Mahmedy, Belgium, will assist in the establishment of this new foundation.

—The Cathedral of the Holy Cross, the largest Catholic Church in the country was dedicated on the above recently, with the usual imposing ceremonies, which commenced with an outdoor procession of clergy around the entire edifice. Archbishop Williams celebrated the Pontifical Mass, and Bishop Lynch preached the sermon. The immense edifice was uncomfortably filled by a congregation numbering at least 7,000.

—Hyacinthe declares that in accepting a church in Geneva he cannot get enough, and implores forgiveness for the great wrong done God and His Church. He says that outside the Catholic communion he finds no peace in his soul, and that in that communion there is nothing left him but unconditional submission. He hopes the Church may change her laws, or he cannot alter his conviction. What a wretched state must be that of the ex Carmelite! Abhorred by law, and unsaved by the will of freedom, he finds himself alone in the world, without work and without communion with any Christian body.

Catholic Missionaries in Africa.

We always know that it did not remain for Dr. Livingstone or Mr. Stanley to introduce the flags of civilization and the Christian name into the center of Africa. What part the all enterprising Catholic missionary has taken in the work, and in all African missionary, though a young priest, now stationed in the diocese of Toronto, tells in the Buffalo Catholic Union. We do not think our readers will find the extract too long:

As just now letters are appearing in the leading journals from the enterprising successor of Livingstone, in the interior of South Africa, the following extraordinary particulars must interest your Catholic readers:

In the archives of the Geez at Rome there is a memorial, dated the 15th of September, of 1870; a letter addressed from the shores of Nyanza, some two hundred years ago, the circumstances of this letter and those of its writer are very extraordinary.

Its author, whose Rev. Francis Xavier was en route to the East Indies, he landed with his party on the southeastern shores of Africa, and there stopped in a charming city for two weeks.

During this stay he became acquainted with natives; finding them docile, and in deep sympathy for their benighted condition, he determined to remain and send some Fathers to the mission. After some delay, and during the administration of St. Francis de Borgia, the Fathers were sent to the eastern provinces of the Cape, under the sanction of the Portuguese Government. On finding they penetrated at once into the far interior. Traces of their presence and work are now met with in Abyssinians who bivouac in the ruins of churches and schools, that tell of deep knowledge of religious. In Orgusiland the recent discovery and extraction of the diamond fields have brought to light ruins of the richest and most extensive. Among the tribes we find some unmistakable traces of Christianity—not the least remarkable is a reverence for the cross.

Towards the close of the fifteenth century all communication with the missionary Fathers in the country was cut off, during which they might have been killed through the treachery of natives or climate, escaped the dangers of wild seizure, or joined the priests of the Order to go in search of their companions and join them in their great work. Fathers were stationed in Southeastern Africa, and followed the directions and rumors of the natives until they came upon the track the missioners had gone, finding some small congregations of Christians along the whole route. They found these companions, but no longer alive; their souls had gone to the martyr's crown. The native genius had ecorrelated some extraordinary particulars of their death and the circumstances upon protected their remains. It seems the Fathers had penetrated far into the country, where the non-dey was given no shadow, and strayed at the banks of a large river which emptied itself into a number of lakes (both Livingstone and the native believed the Nyanza was a series of small lakes). Here they were killed by the savages, their bodies tied to the trunk of a tree and sent with the current down the river.

The Fathers, accompanied by a friendly escort of natives, most of them Christians or Catechumens, arrived at the scene of the tragedy. They followed the river for several days in hopes of finding the remains of the martyred heroes. They were not disappointed, and an extraordinary miracle proved to them how even the bones of the just are cared for by God.

About one hundred miles from the lake they found an island clothed to the richest vegetation; it was a perfect fairy land, carpeted with flowers of the sweetest odor; its tall trees were in blossom, and birds of rich, deep plumage sang with unusual sweetness through the day and night. The natives had a superstitious dread of this island, and believed it was the home of one of their gods. Some of their number who had the hardihood to enter its sacred precincts were torn to pieces by wild animals. And, stranger than all, they noticed a large log or trunk of a tree lying on the water's edge, on which a number of birds would sit and sing a mournful chant, and, when wearied, would rise high in the air and give place to a fresh relay of mourners, who through the day and night made the hills echo with their plaintive cry.

The Jesuit Fathers, who were in search of their lost companions, divined at once the cause of this supernatural coincidence. They did not have to learn the history of the past the extraordinary providence of God over the relics of the martyrs. The pilgrimage would strike the profane hand that dared touch them the direst animals become their protectors; and the plant and tree of nature—water, wind and fire—yielded, trembled at contact with the sacred dead. Therefore these holy missionaries rejoiced at what they had seen and heard. In spite of the warnings of the superstitious natives, they approached the island; they landed unmolested, and lo! a strange sight presented itself.

In the center of the island, in a shady nook where nature was the architect of a charming arbor, they saw the body of a man in a kneeling position, and dressed as the priests of the Society of Jesus!

Elated at their discovery, and filled with deep gratitude to God, they remained several weeks on the island in company with the relics of the deceased Father. They then in solemn file gathered up the remains of the martyrs, to be conveyed by their native escort to the mainland. Others took the oath as a mere formality. Indeed the evident indifference of the native party to the binding force of the oath he was very manifest, and gives a singular idea of the morality of those like-minded to the Church Rome.

The Unita Cattolica very justly observes that the above letter is not the last, in October, 1870, Souzgoo and Lucieni should have been among the leaders in demanding the restoration of the records, and from whom is a suppressed convent (that of the Oratorians) one of them is being tried for the murder of the other. The evidence of the man, Pio Fresco, who killed Souzgoo, is very strange. "Pio Fresco," said the President of the Court of Assizes, "rise and tell us what you know." The man rose and said:

"On the morning of January 6th we went to the convent, and there we found three. Farina cut me out of the place, and said to me—Morelli was standing by)! 'You know we must kill Souzgoo —when you know why, you will kill him. People of consequence command you to do the deed.' I asked him why? He answered: 'Because Souzgoo, when at Milan, acted as an American spy, and now he is endeavoring to prevent Garibaldi's moving at the closing of the Tyber. When I heard him mention Garibaldi's name I said to Morelli: 'If Garibaldi wishes his death, I go no for Mazzini.'

—C. A. Klose has filed an answer in the libel suit brought against him by Rev. O. P. Fitzgerald, in which he admits having caused to be published the charge that as Superintendent of Public Instruction Fitzgerald corruptly received $1,000 from Wilson, Hinkle & Co., reiterates the whole of the former statement and denies that he caused it to be published maliciously.

To cure a cough, to relieve all irritations of the throat, to restore perfect soundness and health to the most delicate organizations of the human frame—the lungs—use Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry, which health are pasted with the same care in the selection and compounding of its various ingredients as where it was introduced to the public by Dr. Wistar, over forty years since.

REAL ESTATE AGENTS.

M. O'NEIL. M. S. DUNNIS. Attorney at Law.

M. O'NEIL & SON,
Real Estate and Law Agency,
NO. 703 MISSION STREET,
Corner Third ..... SAN FRANCISCO.
REAL ESTATE BOUGHT AND SOLD. RENTS COLLECTED.
Bad Tenants quickly ejected at very small cost.
Collections of all kinds promptly made. Law business of all kinds examined and carefully attended. LOANS NEGOTIATED. 815

F. P. O'KEEFFE,
(Successor to J. D. CUSHMAN).
FARMING LAND, REAL ESTATE, AND
GENERAL BUSINESS AGENCY.
☞ Houses to Let and Furniture of Houses for Sale.
Collects Rents, Notes, Bills and Accounts.
Office, 236 Montgomery St.,
Near Pine ..... SAN FRANCISCO.
Money Loans and Partnership Negotiated.
Parties looking for any safe and reliable investment may depend upon receiving valuable information. 38

EDMUND MARKS,
AGENT FOR THE SALE AND PURCHASE OF
Real Estate,
Stocks, Bonds, etc. NEGOTIATED.
416 MONTGOMERY STREET,
Between California and Sacramento, San Francisco. 1931

F. S. WENSINGER,
DEALER IN—
REAL ESTATE.
304 MONTGOMERY STREET,
Near Pine ..... San Francisco.
Office Hours—11 a. to 1½ p. m. 5v20

WYNNE, LOWTH & CO.
704 and 706 MARKET STREET,
OPPOSITE THIRD, AND
5 and 7 Geary Street, NEAR KEARNY,
HAVING MADE LARGE PURCHASES OF
DRY GOODS
At the Great Liquidation Sale of LAZARD FRERES, we are enabled to sell the same Goods at less than importers' prices.
BLACK ORGIN GRAIN SILK, at $1 per yard.
HEAVY BLACK SILK, Cashmere finish, $2 per yard.
FINE IRISH POPLIN, $1 50 per yard.
ALL WOOL DIAGONALS, 37½c. per yard.
ENGLISH IRON-FRAME HOSE, full Bonded, 25 cts.
BALBRIGGAN HOSE, silk clocks, 62½ per box.
HEAVY ENGLISH FLANNEL, 75c., $2 per box.
BLANKETS, SHEETING, and
HOUSE-FURNISHING GOODS
At Wholesale Rates.
FANCY GOODS in great variety.
Ladies' and Gent's FURNISHING GOODS.
Irish Tatting.
BRADFORD BERGES, in Black and White for Suits and Dresses.
The celebrated seamless Bostlet GLOVES, $1 50 per pair.

WYNNE, LOWTH & CO.
Central Dry Goods House.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS.
The Best and Cheapest. New Styles
☞ Send for Catalogue. Pianos and Organs to rent. Tuning and Repairing done.
KOHLER, CHASE & CO.,
633 Clay Street, San Francisco.
Broadway, corner Fourteenth street, OAKLAND.

GRAND REOPENING,
PETER JOB,
THE PIONEER CATERER,
HAS, PHŒNIX-LIKE, RISEN FROM HIS ashes, and opened a CONFECTIONERY AND REFRESHMENT SALOON
NO. 637 MARKET STREET,
Where he will be pressed to meet again all his old friends and patrons, and where he will be found in the same old place, with the same old face, ready to welcome them. Thankful to the city, he has a large number of finely furnished rooms for families and gentlemen wishing private accommodation.
The success of the best Catholic weekly at San Francisco contributes to the judgment that it is the almost constant to the judgment that it is the almost constant to the judgment that it is the almost constant tion, and afterwards chef de battalion in the service of France, has given, in his highly interesting Memoirs, the following account of his first meeting with the gallant Dwyer in the pass of Glenmalure:

"I saw the brave and intrepid Dwyer here for the first time. He had already acquired a great reputation in those mountainous districts, for every time the cavalry attempted to reconnoiter the position near the entrance of the glen he was sure to be on their flank, or in an ambuscade before daylight, waiting their arrival; and so both he and the men who generally accompanied him were of this county, and marksmen, they took delight in terrifying the cavalry, who instantly wheeled about and fled the moment a shot was fired at them. So by Dwyer's bravery and exertion in this kind of skirmishing with the enemy, we were in perfect safety during the night to repose and recover from our fatigues of the county Wexford campaign."

Many were the hair-breadth escapes of this bold "outlaw" from surprises planned by his enemies, and from treacheries attempted to be practiced on him more than once by some faithless members of his band. On one occasion he escaped capture by sitting between a mountain torrent and the rocks near which it tumbled in a sheet of spray; at other times his places of refuge were caves in the mountains, the entrance to which were hidden by shrubs and moss. The Government scouts were never able to catch him, nor their gunsmen nor swordsman to hurt even a hair of his head.

The Dublin Government Magazine of November, 1803, a time when Dwyer was still in arms, had an article on "Dwyer, the Irish Rebel," and his end, in which the writer said:

"It must be a matter of astonishment that so active, powerful and vigilant Government never entirely succeed in exterminating such banditti from these mountains, however difficult or inaccessible they may at first sight appear. The rebel, prior to his being acquainted with the topography of the place, has his regular violators and scouts upon the qui vive in all the most advantageous points, who, on the appearance of alarm, or the approach of strangers, blow loud reveilles, which resound through the innumerable caverns, and are the signals for a general muster of those hardy desperadoes. They are generally superintended by the chief himself, or by his brother-in-law, of the name of Byrne, a determined fellow in whom alone he places great confidence, and who himself has escaped as disguising their faces and persons, and are thought to pay frequent visits to the metropolis.

But his narrowest escape from capture was on this wise: One evening he was out in the glen of Ennisl (also called Imsley) by a soldier named Cameron, who was one of a party employed in his pursuit, but who ascertained a friendly feeling for the gallant outlaw.

"Mind yourself to-night, Dwyer, whispered Cameron: 'our men are close on your track, and expect to have you in their hands before morning."

Dwyer's party on this occasion consisted of only four men. Six of these he sent to a house in the south end of the glen, while he himself with three others, named Samuel MacAllister, John Savage and Patrick Costello, took refuge in another not far distant.

Before morning the soldiery had found out their places of concealment. One party of Highlanders and another of English soldiers, formed a cordon around the house, loaded their muskets, fixed their bayonets, and stood prepared to offset the capture of the rebels, dead or alive.

Then their captain shouted to the outlaws to surrender in the King's name! [illegible] these honest people who own it, and no harm should be done them. Let them pass unmolested to their poor ranks, and then I will tell you what I and my men will do."

Colonel Macdonald, who was in command of the military, agreed to the proposal. His fair offer was then had to Dwyer and his band now in his power, and that was all he wanted.

The family of the house, young people and old, were allowed to pass through the lines, and to the great joy of the whole of the Colonel was again heard calling on Dwyer to surrender.

"No!" shouted Dwyer. "Fire away! There are a hundred of you against four of us, but we will never surrender. We will fight until we die!"

No sooner was the word spoken than a volley of musket-balls was poured upon the door and into the windows of the house. The "castaway" replied, taking sure and steady aim, bringing down a man almost with every shot.

"Cameron, my man," said one of the officers to a member of his company, who, he thought appeared to be shirking the battle, "come to the front, sir, and do your duty!"

The man thus addressed stepped forward, loaded as fast as he could and as coolly as the house, and are long fell dead, pierced by a bullet from one of the four brave defenders. It was Dwyer's good friend of the previous evening who thus met his fate.

While this thing was going on, one of Dwyer's companions, Samuel MacAllister, received a musket ball in the arm which broke the bone, and he was thus disabled from taking any further part in the conflict. Still his three undaunted comrades kept up the fight.

The degree of bravery possessed by the attacking party may be estimated from the fact that all this time they did not attempt in force their way into the house they reckoned defended by the heroic little party. At last those cowardly assailants bethought themselves of a stratagem. It was to burn the house about the outlaws, and thus force them either to perish in the flames or run upon the circle of bayonets that surrounded it.

The thatched roof of the dwelling was set on fire, and as it blazed brightly the soldiers set up a mingled cheer of triumph. Dwyer, they thought, the final hour of the famous Wicklow leader had arrived, and they were to have all the glory of his death or capture.

The heat from the burning roof became intense. There could now be no doubt in the minds of Dwyer and his party that they should either dash out among the soldiers or be burned to ashes in the house. They were rushing and roaring around them. But was not death just as sure to meet them in one case as the other? For the soldiers, expecting every moment to see them rush from the house, had ceased firing, and held their muskets loaded and their bayonets fixed, and all stood prepared for immediate action.

In the desperate emergency an idea worthy of the genius of the brightest inspirations of valor, took possession of the mind of the dashing hero MacAllister.

"Dwyer," said he, "I am disabled, and useless, and my death is certain, but I yet may be the means of saving the lives of yourself, Savage and Costello. Let the three of you lie flat upon the floor. Put a smoke into my hand, open the door, and I will stand right in front of it. Every man of those outside will at once fire at me. Then before they have time to reload, do you spring up and rush out, and there is at least a chance that you may be able to dart through them and make good your escape."

Truly a heroic notion, worthy of the palmiest days of Greek or Roman bravery, worthy of any age, or race, or country. After a moment's consideration, this self-sacrificing proposal was accepted.

MacAlister opened the door and stood, a distinct mark for his enemies, amid the fierce light of the burning dwelling. Immediately the whole party fired, and his corpse fell, riddled with many bullets.

Dwyer and his three companions at once rose from the ground and rushed upon the soldiery. Savage and Costello were struck down by the bayonets of their foes, but Dwyer, with his clubbed musket, felled to the earth the two or three men who stood in his way, dashed passed them, and made for the fields. He had not gone many paces when he slipped and fell. This, although it enabled his pursuers to get near him, proved to be the saving of his life, for as he tumbled to the ground a whole flight of bullets which had been fired after him passed over his head, all but one, which came so near as to tear the collar of his shirt. He was closely pursued for several miles, and saved himself by plunging into the wild blaney and swimming across it—a feat the pursuers were afraid to attempt.

And so Colonel Macdonald and his men were obliged to return to Dublin with the news that the bold "Wicklow outlaw," Michael Dwyer, had once again defied, intrigued, fought with and escaped from the armed forces of his Britannic Majesty.

Sunlight at Last.

Why did this woman live? Had life one charm for her? Perhaps she asked herself these questions as she sat with her face in her hands and looked out upon the cold, cheerless day. It was only a mother's face, her great black eyes—only such a look of woe as that they (the city would not have been there to see it and to have it painted on their hearts.

"Mother!"

A little wasted form on the wretched bed in the garret had on the ragged quilt—some of which was colorless—raised pain and weary wailing.

She bent over him, and for a moment a mother's love shone in her eyes, and her wrinkled hand rested on his pale face with such tenderness as only a mother has.

"Lift me up and let me see the sunshine," he whispered, trying to put his arms around her neck.

"There is no sunshine," she whispered in reply, and so hoarse was her voice.

"Kiss me, mother, and call me when the sunshine comes again," he said.

She knew that he had been dying for a week—sinking slowly and surely into starvation. But she had no bread to give him, could only weep over him and pray God that the end might soon follow. With a sigh and a sob she pressed her lips to his forehead, then turned away to struggle with her despair and her great sorrow.

The cloudy, cheerless day faded into dusk, and the roused herself for a moment and peered through the gloom to see if her boy still slept, and then she whispered with her thoughts and prayed—and with thoughtful

When the darkness covered the bare floor as with a mantle, and when she could no longer see her own pale face, the boy suddenly cried out:

"Mother! mother! The sunlight has come!"

"No; yet, dear Ned—not yet. It is night now."

"But I see the sun—it lights all the room and it kisses me on the face.

"There is no sun—it is cold and dark!" she sobbed.

Whispered, softly through the darkness came his white face grew radiant.

"You are dreaming," she sobbed.

"It was such a pretty sun! The angels in my room, and then I will tell you what I and my men will do."

"Hell" shouted Dwyer. "Fire away! There are a hundred of you against four of us, but we will never surrender. We will fight until we die!"

No sooner was the word spoken than a volley of musket-balls was poured upon the door and into the windows of the house. The "castaway" replied, taking sure and steady aim, bringing down a man almost with every shot.

"Cameron, my man," said one of the officers to a member of his company, who, he thought appeared to be shirking the battle, "come to the front, sir, and do your duty!"

The man thus addressed stepped forward, loaded as fast as he could and as coolly as the house, and are long fell dead, pierced by a bullet from one of the four brave defenders. It was Dwyer's good friend of the previous evening who thus met his fate.

While this thing was going on, one of Dwyer's companions, Samuel MacAllister, received a musket ball in the arm which broke the bone, and he was thus disabled from taking any further part in the conflict. Still his three undaunted comrades kept up the fight.

The degree of bravery possessed by the attacking party may be estimated from the fact that all this time they did not attempt in force their way into the house they reckoned defended by the heroic little party. At last those cowardly assailants bethought themselves of a stratagem. It was to burn the house about the outlaws, and thus force them either to perish in the flames or run upon the circle of bayonets that surrounded it.

The thatched roof of the dwelling was set on fire, and as it blazed brightly the soldiers set up a mingled cheer of triumph. Dwyer, they thought, the final hour of the famous Wicklow leader had arrived, and they were to have all the glory of his death or capture.

The heat from the burning roof became intense. There could now be no doubt in the minds of Dwyer and his party that they should either dash out among the soldiers or be burned to ashes in the house. They were rushing and roaring around them. But was not death just as sure to meet them in one case as the other? For the soldiers, expecting every moment to see them rush from the house, had ceased firing, and held their muskets loaded and their bayonets fixed, and all stood prepared for immediate action.

In the desperate emergency an idea worthy of the genius of the brightest inspirations of valor, took possession of the mind of the dashing hero MacAllister.

"Dwyer," said he, "I am disabled, and useless, and my death is certain, but I yet may be the means of saving the lives of yourself, Savage and Costello. Let the three of you lie flat upon the floor. Put a smoke into my hand, open the door, and I will stand right in front of it. Every man of those outside will at once fire at me. Then before they have time to reload, do you spring up and rush out, and there is at least a chance that you may be able to dart

DUNGARVAN BAY.

Beneath the sloe's leafy shade
I stand and gaze with loving eyes
Beyond the sea to the lovely, storied
In gold, the sun illumes the skies,
His fringe of dawn has kissed the wave,
And now behold his golden ray
Is sparkling in the swells that lave
The wooing shores of Dungarvan Bay.

Above me clouds of silvery white
Are folding in the azure sky,
And beauty feeds her darkling light
To all that meets my gazing eye—
The sea, the land, that blends long
Where yellow corn is waving gay—
And now the lark's enchanting song
Is floating o'er Dungarvan Bay.

How oft upon that water's breast
I've rowed my little boat along,
And heard what, alas my comrades! fled,
Or filled with pleasure at their songs,
I think how many a sun must round,
For all our hearts were merry then!
Each moment seemed with rapture crowned
While sailing in Dungarvan Bay.

But let me gaze on yonder pile
Wherein the sea is bursting now.
This ancient relic of our isle
With hoary head and wrinkled brow.
It dills my soul with many a woe,
For to my mind it seems to say—
"Alone in the time where Freedom's glow
Was seen to light Dungarvan Bay."

It tells me of the times of old
When saints beneath it's portals prayed;
But now they're reeling, soulless, cold,
Within that abbey's frowning shade.
It tells me of a golden tie
When Freedom's son shed down the ray,
And kindled here by many a sigh
That benefited Dungarvan Bay.

And here beside me, too, I see
The temple where sleep the silent dead!
All fallen now, this sometime fane
Is through Ou'r them rears its head.
Oft in that water's lurid pool
They gambolled in their sportive play,
Or stood pell-mell upon the turf
From where I'm Dungarvan Bay.

But why should waves of gloom rush o'er
The scene that hide me now rejoice?
Wherever I gaze around me more
Methinks I hear sweet nature's voice
Proclaiming let not sorrow mar
The spirit that should be sure to-day,
For beauty, like some heroic star,
Is shining o'er Dungarvan Bay.

Smile on, sweet scene; may every cloud
That ruffles thy now placid breast,
Tall loudly to each heart and mind
That thou art with supreme blessed.
It may be that a long farewell
I'll bid thee at no distant day,
But I shall ever in memory dwell
Forever round Dungarvan Bay.

—Dublin Weekly News. MULLIN.

Cardinal Manning and Lord Redesdale.

A somewhat lengthy controversy has been going on in the columns of the London Telegraph between Cardinal Manning and a gentleman who signs himself Redesdale. We know nothing of Lord Redesdale, nor of his religious opinions. Indeed, of those the Cardinal does not appear to have any more knowledge than ourselves. And his letters, as his Eminence observes, gives no clue to them. He has, however, ventured to break a lance with the head of the Church in England on the subject of the divine authority of the Catholic—that is, the Roman—Church. Lord Redesdale—presumably, as we think—a layman, [illegible] ension, he no doubt felt his inferiority, and wished to narrow the question to the evidence of a historical fact. His point is, that it is of divine command that the Blessed Eucharist should be reserved, and that the Church of the Apostles, as he terms it, so understood it, and in accordance with that understanding administered it to the faithful under both the species; that the Church of Rome, in giving but his spirits under, and was had been left behind.

And of late! And the sheltered night—ask the river. When they found his little dead body she was not there. They cannot find her dead. Poor creature! Let those who be dead God did not judge her harshly.—Detroit Free Press.

The Church of Notre Dame at Geneva.

Our readers have been long since made aware of the iniquitous robbery from the Catholics by the State authorities at Geneva of the beautiful church of Notre Dame in that city. It was a church that had been built from its very foundation by the Catholics, not alone of Geneva and Switzerland, but by Catholic aid obtained from France, Italy and other countries, and was reared through the unresting zeal and energy of the eloquent, distinguished, and now exiled bishop, Monsignor Mermillod. From the first moment that it was brutally plundered from them, and handed over to the vile clique worship of an excommunicated sect of schismatics, the bishops, priests and people of Geneva have not ceased to raise their protest against the outrage, and to avail themselves of every possible means to obtain the repossession of it. Their success with the Government and the minor courts of appeal has not been great; but they have not despaired while a single resource was open to them, and they have raised their voices and their protest to one of the chief civil tribunals of Geneva. The case has been argued at length before the Consistorial, and a few days since they pronounced a partial judgment in the matter. We must premise in the case that it has not been final, and it is but right to say that so far the tribunal gives reason to hoping that it will not be impervious to the influence of the principles of truth and justice. The judgment of the tribunal was to the effect that the Government of Mr. Dunoyer and Mr. Carteret had no power to dispose of the church, and the presbytery who have carried on the worship there, and paid their costs by means of funds furnished through the generosity of by money collected by them, by external and personal gifts, or coming from engagements contracted in their names. To this end they will have to produce the titles and documents, the devises, and contracts with architects and builders, the bills and receipts of workmen, and all other papers tending to prove their ownership." For the production of these documents and for the other purposes of the suit the further hearings are said to stand over to December 7. The Abbé Duveyrier furnishes an approximate list of 540,324 francs as the cost of the church, and Monsieur Marmillod of 86,000 francs on the adjoining presbytery. There will be little difficulty in furnishing all the needful documents, and when they shall have been produced it is to be hoped that the just and impartial spirit of the tribunal will make itself manifest by a judgment restoring to the Catholics of Geneva their beautiful church, so long and so sacrilegiously closed against them.—N. Y. Tablet.

— Mexican thieves have run off about one hundred head of poor horses belonging to Rock Murray, a stock raiser in Deer Creek, Tulare county.

THE HERITAGE.

The rich man's son inherits lands,
And piles of brick and stone and gold;
And he inherits soft, white hands,
And tender flesh that fears the cold—
Nor dares to wear a garment old;
A heritage, it seems to me,
One would not wish to hold in fee.

The rich man's son inherits cares;
The bank may break, the factory burn—
A breath may make his stocks mere waste,
A mortgage eat the home he was born;
A heritage, it seems to me,
One would not wish to hold in fee.

What doth the poor man's son inherit?
Strong muscles and a sturdy heart.
A king of low lands, he does his part
In every useful toil and art;
A heritage, it seems to me,
A king might wish to hold in fee.

What doth the poor man's son inherit?
Wishes sculptured with manly skill,
A mark equipped by toil more manly,
Centres that from emptied purses spring,
A heart that is its labor sings;
A heritage, it seems to me,
A king might wish to hold in fee.

What doth the poor man's son inherit?
A purpose crowned by being poor;
Courage, if success he wins, to bear it;
A fellow-feeling that is sure
To make the humblest his debtor;
A heritage, it seems to me,
A king might wish to hold in fee.

O rare poor man's son, there be a toil
With all other men's titles vain,
A charity dish never soil,
A fame that is more than local gain,
A heritage, it seems to me,
Which well might make a king full fain
To hold in fee.

—Boston Transcript.

The Baron's Coffin.

The Baron von Heulingstein is one of the characters of Vienna. He is a bachelor and bachelor, and lives in grand style. As he has cause for escaped matrimony, it is not likely that his heart can be captured. But it would be a splendid match, as he is rich—cannot live forever—and she whom he marries will be a baroness all her life long. Some time ago I had the honor to dine at his house in a party of half a dozen persons. After dinner he took me round to see some of his paintings and bric-a-brac. The collection was an excellent one, and there was one thing that was especially bizarre in its way. In one of the parlors there stood what appeared to be the solid wall, touched a spring, and pushed opened a door which was concealed at its edge. By the peculiar pattern of the decorations, however, which continued on the inside of the door, one could see, and the door closed behind us; and where do you think I found myself? We were in what the French call a "dépôt mortuaire"—a sort of mortuary chamber, fitted up like a Chapel. There were a few pictures, pictures on the wall, a couple of lamps were burning rather dimly, and lying just right enough to make the place and its contents visible. In the center of the little apartment, on a raised platform, stood a shelf or portiff was the 258th by direct succession from St. Peter, the first shepherd. It matered not whose flock the shepherd was found, there was the same faith, the same doctrine, the same hope, the same love. The daughter of the Baron, and heiress to all his wealth, was the only child of both, followed by the words, "Ibed ——." The whole scene was so novel, and had taken me so by surprise, that I did not know what to say. While I was looking around, and wondering, the Baron said, "How do you like this?" I said that it was a proper remark to make, as I had not been accustomed to meet with gentlemen in commendation of their taste in the choice of their own coffins. I thought I had done it very happily, but it turned out the first of rank in civilized Europe, and were forced to the point of knowing enough to receive condescension and first communion, by having the hope held out to them that their children's names were received by the Church into the Book of Life. If I had been asked to name the greatest of the Popes, I should have considered as the prelude of one of Cuba. The revolution which you represent is responsible for the degree of ignominy to which Spain has fallen. Without the revolution this particular rebellion would never have existed. If I had been King, it would never have got to its present point. Spain is the right of the throne, and commands in the only one which can form without violence, yield without weakness, repress without anger, and reform without passion. But the integrity of the country is at stake, and all the element must rise in defense. When our country is in danger, all distinctions, all party spirit, all doctrines must be set on one side, and there is no party save that of Spain."

Don Carlos thereupon makes his proposition in the following terms:

"If we could break out, I offer you a truce which will last as long as the struggle with the United States. But it will be understood that true Church is the only cause of the truce which I propose, and that I say so I keep the truce. I am at war with the world by my whole existence in exile to an observer. Yet these are the most exacting dwellers, and their number is past wonder, after their pockets and their heads, that their children's children are absent-minded and depressed at brims, under children quarrelsome and discontented.

It is well to remember that giving birth to a child does not constitute motherhood; a constant carefulness, a patient unwearied love, the forces of self-sacrifice, complete self abnegation, all this and more is demanded in the care of those whom we have brought into the world, and in whom again we renew the battle of life, this time for their sakes, and ourselves in the background.—Northwestern Chronicle.

A handsome youth, being questioned by a rather stylish lady as to his occupation, replied that he was an "adjuster of movements." He was simply a printer.

That Letter of Don Carlos.

The wildest rumors have been again afloat in regard to the Carlist cause. According to these, Don Carlos had dispatched one of his officers with a holograph letter to Don Alphonso, craving peace, and virtually giving in his submission to the Madrid Government. The Union, however, sternly and clearly scatters these latest bluisms of the Revolutionary party. The letter itself was given by our Catholic contemporary. From its text it appeared that the advance made by Don Carlos was not one of submission in any way. It was the expression of a noble instinct of patriotism on the part of Charles VII. The facts, very simply put, are these: One of the King's staff officers, Colonel Joaquin Zobiri, arrived a day or two ago at the headquarters of General Quesada, with a letter from the King to his cousin, Don Alphonso. The historical document, which we here give in its integrity, runs as follows:

"To my Cousin Alphonso—The attitude of the President of the Republic of the United States inclines me to consider as at an end the war if you do not recognize the independence of Cuba. The revolution which you represent is responsible for the degree of ignominy to which Spain has fallen. Without the revolution this particular rebellion would never have existed. If I had been King, it would never have got to its present point. Spain is the right of the throne, and commands in the only one which can form without violence, yield without weakness, repress without anger, and reform without passion. But the integrity of the country is at stake, and all the element must rise in defense. When our country is in danger, all distinctions, all party spirit, all doctrines must be set on one side, and there is no party save that of Spain."

Don Carlos thereupon makes his proposition in the following terms:

"If we could break out, I offer you a truce which will last as long as the struggle with the United States. But it will be understood that true Church is the only cause of the truce which I propose, and that I say so I keep the truce. I am at war with the world by my whole existence in exile to an observer. Yet these are the most exacting dwellers, and their number is past wonder, after their pockets and their heads, that their children's children are absent-minded and depressed at brims, under children quarrelsome and discontented.

It is well to remember that giving birth to a child does not constitute motherhood; a constant carefulness, a patient unwearied love, the forces of self-sacrifice, complete self abnegation, all this and more is demanded in the care of those whom we have brought into the world, and in whom again we renew the battle of life, this time for their sakes, and ourselves in the background.—Northwestern Chronicle.

ADDRESS FROM THE POPE.

The Pope, on receiving the addresses of the Vendean Pilgrims on Sunday, November 28th, spoke, after words of the attempts to make Rome again Pagan, or at least infidel, and went on to say:

"The professations I see every day in this holy city, the capital of the Catholic world, are great and numerous, as also the spoliations and the efforts made for the corruption of youth, that henceforth there is no longer doubt as in the fixed design of destroying Catholicism in its center. Yet the hypocrisy accompanying this incessant persecution is such that people will not be believed in distant countries that at Rome every thing is order, peace and tranquillity. While the sacrilegious bands of the Lord and his unworthy Vicar, while it spoils all Catholic institutions in order to destroy them, people want to have it thought that at Rome everything is proceeding with regularity, and moderation is heard of; but that moderation disappears at last when we see the Italian Revolution breaking the knee before the most powerful persecutor of the Church, clearly showing that that which is called moderation is only a mask for persecutions in exactly the same, though the means are partly different."

After this allusion to the German Emperor's visit, the Pope warned those who attempted to erect Babylon on the ruins of what was most sacred, that God might be driven to renew against them the anathemas and maledictions uttered ages ago by Joshua against Jericho. He referred to Voudée as renowned and pious, and quoted in his behalf principles.—Westminster Gazette.

A Battle Between a Whale and a Sea Serpent.

The captain and crew of the bark Pauline, of London, Captain Driver, are firm in belief that they have seen the far famed sea serpent, and that under no common circumstances. The Zanzibar correspondent of the Western Morning News, writing under date of November 20, narrates that the Pauline had arrived at Zanzibar with coals for her Majesty's steamers. When off Cape St. Rogue, South America, signs were presented that made the crew apprehend bad weather, and they were soon engaged in conflict with a whale.

Wound itself twice around the whale, and was twirling it with tremendous velocity, when suddenly the latter was lifted from the water into the air. The noise could be distinctly heard by those on board. The serpent's length was estimated from the fact that it had two coils around the whale, and was, with thirty feet clear at each end. Its dentition was terrible to behold. The only item the crew and officers differ in is that some imagine it larger. They saw it twice afterwards, but in each case were close to the vessel, and raised itself sixty feet out of the water, as if about to attack them, the crew and officers arming themselves with axes to repel attack. However, it let them alone, commencing itself by establishing great dread in those on board. I have questioned several officers, trying to find out any discrepancy between their statements in order to detect the belief that it was seen. But they detail officer writes to the Western Morning News to precisely the same effect, and the officers of her Majesty's ships on the station are said to be convinced of the truth of the story.

Away with the Crucifix!

A good many things, in no way tending to excite devotional feeling, may occasionally be seen in a Protestant place of worship; but it seems that, whatever else may be appropriate or allowed, the figure of our Divine Redeemer is not to be tolerated by English law inside the places of worship which it rules. At Denbigh, in North Wales, a Protestant church was lately built. Among the contributors to the fund for its erection there was a gentleman who subscribed one thousand pounds, on condition, however, that a crucifix should be placed on the reredos, or screen at the back of the altar. This gentleman, no doubt, believed that the Christian religion [illegible] practice of the Church, clearly showing that that which is called moderation is only a mask for persecutions in exactly the same, though the means are partly different."

After this allusion to the German Emperor's visit, the Pope warned those who attempted to erect Babylon on the ruins of what was most sacred, that God might be driven to renew against them the anathemas and maledictions uttered ages ago by Joshua against Jericho. He referred to Voudée as renowned and pious, and quoted in his behalf principles.—Westminster Gazette.

A Battle Between a Whale and a Sea Serpent.

The captain and crew of the bark Pauline, of London, Captain Driver, are firm in belief that they have seen the far famed sea serpent, and that under no common circumstances. The Zanzibar correspondent of the Western Morning News, writing under date of November 20, narrates that the Pauline had arrived at Zanzibar with coals for her Majesty's steamers. When off Cape St. Rogue, South America, signs were presented that made the crew apprehend bad weather, and they were soon engaged in conflict with a whale.

Wound itself twice around the whale, and was twirling it with tremendous velocity, when suddenly the latter was lifted from the water into the air. The noise could be distinctly heard by those on board. The serpent's length was estimated from the fact that it had two coils around the whale, and was, with thirty feet clear at each end. Its dentition was terrible to behold. The only item the crew and officers differ in is that some imagine it larger. They saw it twice afterwards, but in each case were close to the vessel, and raised itself sixty feet out of the water, as if about to attack them, the crew and officers arming themselves with axes to repel attack. However, it let them alone, commencing itself by establishing great dread in those on board. I have questioned several officers, trying to find out any discrepancy between their statements in order to detect the belief that it was seen. But they detail officer writes to the Western Morning News to precisely the same effect, and the officers of her Majesty's ships on the station are said to be convinced of the truth of the story.

Away with the Crucifix!

The Cincinnati Commercial is responsible for the following: She brought him a vest and a pair of pantaloons in answer to an order for old clothes, for he was very ragged. She thought they would fit company fairly. He examined both garments attentively, and throwing them down, exclaimed: "There ain't no watch-pocket nor a blind pocket for a pistol!"

We shall never smile again until we exchange photographs with the young man that just shoemaker's was on the benches of the front portion of this office.—Boston Free Press.

MYSTERIES OF RELIGION.

Mystery appeals to an original principle of our nature, and a religion without mysteries would never commend itself to the reason or to confidence of mankind. The heathen had mysteries in their religious rites, and had their sacred mysteries, related by the words and esoteric doctrines, which they kept from the rude inspection of the vulgar, to inspire reverence and awe. The Jews had their "holy of holies," which only the high priest could enter once a year. It is impossible that a religion from God should be replete with mysteries. It is to understand what we do not know of God, or cannot comprehend, that inspires our worship. "I love God, because I know Him; I adore Him, because I know Him not."

The boundary line of mystery is the same everywhere. We know nothing of matter, only that God, beyond their manifestations. We know as much of the mysteries of the one as of the other; that is, we know nothing of either. Beyond the limit of manifestation lie the three circles of mystery—material, spiritual, divine—into which human reason cannot enter. The latter circle may never be infinitely wider and deeper than the two first, but it is no more inaccessible. Suppose we were permitted to cross the boundary line to embark upon this infinite sea of mystery, where would we be consigned to—to sail in the voyage of exploration? The horizon is apparently as boundless as ever; and unless this ungodly spirit of curiosity be checked, we should still be grumbling about mysteries, and return more miserable than when we started.

The Cincinnati Commercial is responsible for the following: She brought him a vest and a pair of pantaloons in answer to an order for old clothes, for he was very ragged. She thought they would fit company fairly. He examined both garments attentively, and throwing them down, exclaimed: "There ain't no watch-pocket nor a blind pocket for a pistol!"

We shall never smile again until we exchange photographs with the young man that just shoemaker's was on the benches of the front portion of this office.—Boston Free Press.

MYSTERIES OF RELIGION.

Mystery appeals to an original principle of our nature, and a religion without mysteries would never commend itself to the reason or to confidence of mankind. The heathen had mysteries in their religious rites, and had their sacred mysteries, related by the words and esoteric doctrines, which they kept from the rude inspection of the vulgar, to inspire reverence and awe. The Jews had their "holy of holies," which only the high priest could enter once a year. It is impossible that a religion from God should be replete with mysteries. It is to understand what we do not know of God, or cannot comprehend, that inspires our worship. "I love God, because I know Him; I adore Him, because I know Him not."

The boundary line of mystery is the same everywhere. We know nothing of matter, only that God, beyond their manifestations. We know as much of the mysteries of the one as of the other; that is, we know nothing of either. Beyond the limit of manifestation lie the three circles of mystery—material, spiritual, divine—into which human reason cannot enter. The latter circle may never be infinitely wider and deeper than the two first, but it is no more inaccessible. Suppose we were permitted to cross the boundary line to embark upon this infinite sea of mystery, where would we be consigned to—to sail in the voyage of exploration? The horizon is apparently as boundless as ever; and unless this ungodly spirit of curiosity be checked, we should still be grumbling about mysteries, and return more miserable than when we started.

The Cincinnati Commercial is responsible for the following: She brought him a vest and a pair of pantaloons in answer to an order for old clothes, for he was very ragged. She thought they would fit company fairly. He examined both garments attentively, and throwing them down, exclaimed: "There ain't no watch-pocket nor a blind pocket for a pistol!"

We shall never smile again until we exchange photographs with the young man that just shoemaker's was on the benches of the front portion of this office.—Boston Free Press.

PROFESSIONAL CARDS.

JOHN M. BURNETT,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
643 Montgomery Street,
Between Washington and Merchant streets,
SAN FRANCISCO.

JOHN J. MEGHAN. J. F. SULLIVAN
SULLIVAN & MEGHAN,
Attorneys and Counsellors-at-Law,
No. 637 Kearny street,
Between Clay and Commercial.....San Francisco.
1y20

P. J. MOCAN. J. D. SULLIVAN.
MOCAN & SULLIVAN,
Attorneys and Counsellors-at-Law,
626 CALIFORNIA STREET. 1y16

WILLIAM A. PLUNKETT,
Attorney and Counselor-at-Law,
638 CALIFORNIA STREET,
ROOM 10,
Between Kearny and Montgomery.....San Francisco,
1y24 19

M. COONEY,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law,
Office, Room No. 7, Court Block,
626 Clay street and 621 Merchant street,
1y11

P. CUMMINS,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
Rooms 14 and 15 Court Block,
626 Clay street and 621 Merchant street,
1y11

H. W. VAUGHAN,
PHOTOGRAPHIC ARTIST
NO. 18 THIRD STREET,
SAN FRANCISCO.
ly30-37

SULLIVAN, KELLY & CO.,
Northwest corner Pine and Front Sts.,
Where they offer for sale
THE LARGEST STOCK OF PAINTS,
OILS,
GLASS
ETC., ETC., ON THE PACIFIC COAST.
AT THE LOWEST MARKET RATES.
101, 103 and 105 FRONT STREET.
118 PINE STREET.

JOHN MOLLOY,
PRODUCE COMMISSION MERCHANT,
AND DEALER IN
GROCERIES, PROVISIONS,
64 Clay st., bet. Drumm and Sansome,
San Francisco.

JAMES O'CONNELL,
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALER IN LUMBER,
Near Market street Wharf.....SAN FRANCISCO
Hotels, Boarding-houses and Families supplied at the shortest notice and at the lowest market rates.
Orders from the country promptly attended to. 1y20

CANDIES! CANDIES!
WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.
Of all descriptions, of the best materials, freshly manufactured every day by
D. CANTY & CO.,
Wholesale and Retail
Confectioners
107 MONTGOMERY ST.,
Between Bush and Sutter.....San Francisco
The attention of the trade is called to our large assortment of Candies and other goods, which are warranted to keep in all climates. Prices low and terms liberal. Orders from the interior promptly and carefully attended to. 1y20

DAVID NEREY
M. WARDE & CO.,
Importers and Wholesale Dealers in
Brandies, Wines and Liquors,
308 BATTERY STREET,
Near corner Sacramento.....SAN FRANCISCO.
Sole Agents for Pure Kentucky Whiskies a specialty. 1y10

J. F. HARRIS. R. DOWNEY.
LYMAN, RAFFERTY & CO.,
IMPORTERS AND
WHOLESALE LIQUOR DEALERS,
610 BATTERY STREET,
Corner of Merchant.....San Francisco.
1y12

DUFFY BROS' SALOON,
621 Merchant Street.....Near Kearny,
Has Best Wines, Liquors and Cigars. 66

J. H. DOUGHERTY. CHAS. SMITH.
DOUGHERTY & CO.,
Wines, Liquors and Cigars,
310 California Street,
Above Montgomery.....Next California Market.
1y18

P. F. BRADY,
LA GRANDE EXCHANGE,
101 and 103 Battery street and 11 Post street,
(Opposite Masonic Temple).....San Francisco.
The reputation the La Grande for the excellence of its Wines, Liquors and Cigars is always maintained. 1y6

JOHN KENNY,
IMPORTER AND WHOLESALE DEALER IN FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC
WINES AND LIQUORS,
NO. 610 FRONT STREET,
Between Washington and Jackson.....San Francisco.
CALIFORNIA WINES, bottled by white man only. 1y23-52

FRANK MAGUIRE'S SALOON,
631 Broadway, bet. Front and Battery sts.
OAKLAND, CAL.
Only the best Wines, Liquors and Cigars. 62

THOMAS J. POWER, 107 ICELAND STREET,
Marysville. Only the best Wines, Liquors and Cigars on sale. A free lunch every day. 1y23-52

J. J. LANE.
CONNOR & LANE,
DEALERS IN GROCERIES, PROVISIONS
Wines, Liquors and Cigars
288 FOURTH STREET,
Corner of Louisa.....San Francisco.
Country orders promptly attended to. 1y20

JOHN A. LENNON,
WHOLESALE GROCER,
AND IMPORTER OF
Brand Choice Japan and English Breakfast Teas
313 Clay Street,
Between Front and Battery.....SAN FRANCISCO.
1y17

M. WARDE & CO.,
Importers and Wholesale Dealers in
Brandies, Wines and Liquors,
308 BATTERY STREET,
Near corner Sacramento.....SAN FRANCISCO.
Sole Agents for Pure Kentucky Whiskies a specialty. 1y10

J. F. HARRIS. R. DOWNEY.
LYMAN, RAFFERTY & CO.,
IMPORTERS AND
WHOLESALE LIQUOR DEALERS,
610 BATTERY STREET,
Corner of Merchant.....San Francisco.
1y12

CHAS. FIELD. IDA WOOD. LA. BOWCHER.
CHARLES FIELD & CO.,
FURNITURE
MANUFACTURERS,
N. E. cor. Main & Mission Sts.,
SAN FRANCISCO.
All orders filled at moderate prices. Office and Warerooms at Factory. 1y24

J. W. FARREN,
WAGON MAKER & BLACKSMITH,
121 BEALE STREET,
Between Mission and Howard.....San Francisco.
Carts, Wagons and Trucks made to order and kept constantly on hand. Repairing of all kinds promptly attended to, and all work guaranteed to give satisfaction. 1y16-17

J. O'KANE,
Manufacturer and Importer of
SADDLES & HARNESS,
Fine Horse Clothing, etc., etc.,
767 Market Street,
South side, bet. Third and Fourth.....San Francisco.

HORSE BOOTS A SPECIALTY.
Repairing done with neatness and dispatch. Orders solicited. 1y11

FRANCIS BUCKLEY
CARPENTER AND BUILDER,
Annie street (West of Fawcett),
Between Ellis and Eddy.....San Francisco.
All kinds of Carpenter and Jobbing Work done at reasonable rates. 1y30-17

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. STINSON & Co., Portland, Me.

GROCERIES, WINES AND LIQUORS

F. & P. J. CASSIN,
IMPORTERS AND WHOLESALE DEALERS
IN WINES AND LIQUORS,
523 Front Street.
AGENTS FOR
Heidsieck & Co. and Dry Monopole Champagnes; also, for O. K. Golden Plantation Whisky.
1y20

WILLIAM B. DOLAN,
105 THIRD STREET.....San Francisco.
Importer and Dealer (Wholesale and Retail) in French Wines and Brandies
AND
Irish Whisky,
Imported direct from Ireland.
HE HAS ALSO ON HAND A LARGE AND assortment of Catawba Wines of every description, which he will dispose of, in bulk or in case, for the convenience of the trade.
All orders left at the store, 105 Third street, will be promptly attended to. Goods delivered free of charge in any part of the city. 1y20

P. LYNCH,
6 to Larkin Street, between Ellis and Eddy.

JOHN C. MOODY & Co.
Druggists and Chemists,
DEALERS IN PURE D

WEEKLY CALENDAR.
FOR SIX WEEKS ENDING DECEMBER 25, Inclusive.
12—Sunday—Fourth Sunday in Advent.
13—Monday—Vigil of St. Thomas.
14—Tuesday—St. Thomas, Apostle.
15—Wednesday—Ferie.
16—Thursday—Ferie.
17—Friday—Ember Day.
18—Saturday—Ember Day of our Lord. Christmas Day.

THE MONITOR & GUARDIAN,
THE ONLY
Irish and Catholic Journal in California,
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
SATURDAY .....DECEMBER 18, 1875.

SUBSCRIBERS will please specially look at the printed label on the margin or wrapper of the paper; the date thereon shows when the subscription expires.

Notice to our Subscribers.

As the end of the year is now close at hand, we are naturally anxious to balance our accounts, and commence 1876 with clear books. To accomplish this we have sent out bills to a large number of delinquent subscribers in town and country. We regret to say the response returned has not been equal to our expectations, and we are unable to tell exactly why. Now we hope that before the coming of the New Year we shall be able to announce a decided improvement in this respect. Without egotism we may assert that we give as good a Catholic paper as there is published in the United States. We do not confine our extracts to matters purely religious, but give a large amount of interesting reading of every description. This involves an outlay of small expense, which must be defrayed out of subscribers and advertisements exclusively, for we belong to no party, we are the servants of no clique or monopoly, and our opinions are not set up for sale to any man or any body. These are the reasons why we look for a generous and a ready support from our subscribers.

CHRISTMAS.

The date of the next MONITOR will be Christmas Day. It is, therefore, now time for us to send friendly greetings to all our subscribers, far and near, in America or in the Old Land, wherever the tide of fortune may have wafted them. It is an ancient and a beautiful custom, one from which we do not care to depart, to renew friendships, to draw closer the bonds of affection, to bury all hatreds and animosities, and cultivate feelings of true geniality and philanthropy towards all mankind at the approach of this blessed season.

There are the impulses and sympathies which Christmas impresses most powerfully on the hearts of all who believe in the Divine mission of Christ, even upon those of them in whom the soft and holy influences of possessing the fullness of His revelation. To the unbeliever, the scholar and the freethinker, this is merely a time set apart by ecclesiastical custom for feasting and (sometimes) becomes the sweet pleadings of religion cannot reach his ear, and he recognizes only that which among those classes there are not a few men who, if they had the power, would do away with Christmas altogether, for they want nothing which may remind them of the wonderful origin and miraculous spread of that Christianity which they seek to ignore, while reaping the benefits it has secured for them as well as for others equally ungrateful and hard-hearted.

The benevolence, the tender care for the poor and suffering, the desire to add to the happiness of fellow-creatures, which are the best and purest lessons taught by Christmas to Christians, are in great measure, embodied by those who have abandoned revealed religion, and take up with the godless philosophy of the present day. They would make the State the agent for whatever of good they chose to do towards the alleviation of human sorrows, and thereby lose one of the sweetest emotions which can gladden the heart of man. But, thank heaven, it is not to such shoreless and moorless individuals that we address our words, we speak to those who know the truth and beauty of the hymn sung by angel voices before the stable at Bethlehem. Our remembrance and gratulations are for the faithful to whom the anniversary of the birth of the Saviour is always a day of peace, joy and thanksgiving. They have some ounces of grief—they have many reasons for rejoicing.

Since last Christmas the persecution waged by the powers of the earth against the Church of God has not diminished its rage, but rather increased its malignity and violence. Almost everywhere the greatest exertions are being made to separate the people from the true fold and to hand them over helpless to secularism and infidelity. The most dangerous position and education absolutely make them golden for the untainted masses, are unhappily their worst enemies. On the other hand, there never was a time when the spirit of unity was so strong or active in the Church. There never was a time when attachment to the Chair of Peter was so manifest among the faithful, or when the works of faith more abounded. In fact, it is even acknowledged by her foes that never at any period of history was the Catholic Church stronger, more influential, or more progressive than she is at the present time.

In this free country, at all events, the reasons for thankfulness are far more numerous than the causes for complaint. It is true there are whispers of coming persecution, but we depend upon the common sense of the people to fairly and denounce them. Learned and pious men of the very highest social position are abandoning error and seeking refuge in the one true Church. The building of churches, monasteries, convents, schools and asylums is going on at a wonderful rate all over the land. The faithful are strong and ardent in their spirit of devotion, and are in every practical way zealous for showing their love for religion. In the future we can see America a thoroughly Catholic country. All these things are grounds for congratulation and rejoicing; and, entering heart and soul into the spirit of the magnificent chant which says, "Glory be to God on high, and on earth peace to men of good will," we wish our readers and friends

A MERRY CHRISTMAS.

PRESIDENT GRANT PLAYING THE DESPOT.

If one were to judge President GRANT by his friendships and semblies it would be very hard to avoid forming a decidedly bad opinion of him. Many of the men whose companionship he seeks, and who are honored with his intimacy, are persons with characters entitling them to life-long detention in a penitentiary, and, indeed, some of them are at the present time in durance vile for various infractions of the law. The New York Sun, in a sarcastic fit the other day, declared that it knew on public men of the living or past generations who was more to be pitied, on account of the incarceration of his friends and the rascality of his advisers than the men who is so often hailed as the saviour of his country. On the other hand there is scarcely an honorable or an influential politician belonging to his own party with whom he has not quarreled, or whom he candour has not alienated from him. Now he stands at the head of the party of his own creation, composed of individuals of damaged reputation, the rejected of all parties, and an army of office-holders. These think to perpetuate their despotical sway by disgusting the country with false and exciting issues, by making free use of the people's money, and by exercising for their own advantage the immense patronage at the disposal of the civil government. President GRANT appears to be confident of success, and he is already bold enough to set at naught all the rules of fair play or decency whenever it suits his purpose.

We have two remarkable examples of this recently, to which we beg leave to call the attention of our readers. The first is the removal of Hon. E. F. DUNNE, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Arizona. Some time ago this gentleman delivered a lecture upon the public school system. It was admirably written, full and impartial in all its statements, close and well connected in logic, and, as might be expected, exercised much influence upon public opinion throughout the Territory. But he took the view advocated generally by his co-religionists, the Catholics, and that, of course, condemned the lecture and made its delivery a crime in the eyes of the infidels, radicals and the scum of every description. It did not at all coincide with the ideas vomitated secondhanded by the President in his notorious Des Moines speech.

The Presidential ire was aroused. It was a terrible presumption, forsooth, on the part of a high judicial functionary—although not a necessary qualification for his position—to give expression to sentiments at variance with those of his Excellency on the pressing and important public question! Hon. Mr. DUNNE was removed. There never has been, that we know of, any crime, or offence, or dereliction of duty charged against him, save and except that of manfully expressing his ideas about public education, and supporting that side which he deemed was just and equitable. Kaiser BISMARCK himself could not, nevertheless, Here, in this instance, we have it established by high and irresistible authority that the public service of this country must be prepared to fall in with the opinions who was the creature of the incarceration of his friends and the rascality of his advisers than the men who is so often hailed as the saviour of his country. On the other hand there is scarcely an honorable or an influential politician belonging to his own party with whom he has not quarreled, or whom his

IRISH LOCAL NEWS.

From the Dublin Nation of November 20.

ANTRIM.

A spirit dealer in Belfast, named Felix Kearney, was sentenced at last week to pay a fine of £100 for making a false representation to the Excise authorities as to the quantity of spirits received by him. He confessed this charge, and two others were withdrawn. The penalty was subsequently reduced to £25.

At the last Carrickfergus petty sessions, Lieutenant Nairn, of the 9th Regiment, was summoned for having, on the 23d October, assaulted Alexander T. Love, and also for having threatened to use personal violence to him; and complainant was in each bodily fear that he asked defendant should be bound over to keep the peace. It was stated in evidence that at the close of the banquet given to Mr. Delwey, M. P., on 23d October, Lieutenant Nairn told Mr. McMurray that he intended to horsewhip Mr. Love if he did not tell who it was that stated that he (Lieutenant Nairn) blackened Mrs. Nairn's eye. Mr. McMurray further stated that Lieutenant Nairn told him that Lord John Taylour, colonel of the regiment in Belfast, had advised him to lash Love. Mr. McMurray said it would be better to have an amicable settlement, and with that purpose met him next day in the Castle. They then left the Castle together, and came down into the town, in the leading street of which the occurrence complained of, it was stated, took place. Lord John Taylour was examined, and said he never gave any advice to Lieutenant Nairn as to how to whip Love. The case was adjourned for a fortnight.

ARMAGH.

The sudden death is announced of Mr. Charles O'Brien, of the Commercial Hotel, Largan, nephew of the late Very Rev. Dr. William O'Brien, V.G., P.P., Largan, and brother of the present highly respected and esteemed parish priest of Banbridge, Rev. Father John O'Brien.

CORK.

The first lecture of the present sessions of the Cork Young Men's Society was delivered at the Society's Hall, Castle street, Thursday night Mr. Thomas Crosbie, (editor Cork Examiner), the subject being «Sir Thomas More.» The chair was taken by the President of the Society, Mr. John George McCarthy, M. P.

The intended resignation of Mr. McCarthy Downing, D. L., of his seat in the Corporation of the Town Commissioners has, says the Skibbereen correspondence of the Cork Examiner, caused universal regret, and the inhabitants are particularly anxious that he will reconsider the conclusion he has arrived at. It is well known that the arduous and manifold duties connected with Mr. Downing's public position are particularly trying, without his having at all superfluous time given to the numerous and domestic affections fully sufficient to overpower a stronger mind and a more robust constitution.

DOWN.

At the last Crossmaglen petty sessions, before John McCullagan, Esq., R. M., the case of John McIlreen vs. Terence Toner, Tassagh Mountain, and several others, for forcible entry, trespass, and assault at Clonglasna, on the 23d and 24th of August last, was taken up. The case was heard on two former court days and adjourned. Coupled with this case, eight members of the constabulary force were charged with forming part of an unlawful assembly, and aiding Hugh Toner, and others, in the aforegoing charge. Mr. Rea, of Belfast, appeared for the complainants, and Messrs. Swanzy and Lombard, Belfast, for Toner, the defendant. In his opening address, Mr. Rea stated that the grounds of the row at Rae gave an outline of the grievances of the client, and then examined McIlreen at great length, showing the part the constabulary took in the transaction.

DUBLIN.

At the last Clontarf petty sessions, before Sir Ralph Cusack, J. P., and Messrs. S. E. Vernon, J. P., and W. Roper, J. P. the case of the Guardians of the Rotunda Hospital vs. John Mulligan, Ballybough, for illegal burial of the body of Richard Reilly, on the 17th of October last, in the Glasnevin burial ground, was heard. Evidence was given that the estate generally was closed against interments since 31st of July last, by order of the Local Government Board, and that defendant continued to prove the burial in the present case. Mr. A. R. Carroll, solicitor, appeared on behalf of the Guardians. The bench imposed a fine of 5s., or the alternative penalty of seven days' imprisonment, upon the defendant.

GALWAY.

From the report, says the Tuam News, of the proceedings of the Town Commissioners, the prosperous financial condition of the town is evident. The large sum of £647, including interest, is now paid back, and the income which, if the present rate was retained, would be an additional £1,200, may be devoted to local purposes.

A disastrous fire occurred on Saturday morning week at Renvyle House, Connemara, the property of Mr. Blake. About five o'clock smoke was seen issuing from a barn and workshop adjoining the house, and as in these were stored timber, straw, and other inflammable matter, the whole place was enveloped in flames before any assistance could be rendered. Intelligence was at once conveyed to Kylemore Castle, distant some eight miles, at which a fire brigade depot was recently established by Mr. George Henry, son of Mr. Mitchell Henry, M.P. At seven o'clock the brigade, under command of their youthful captain, arrived on the scene, and worked hard and energy to extinguish the flames, which only happily succeeded in doing in a few hours, thus saving the mansion of Renvyle from destruction, which otherwise was inevitable. Unfortunately three head of cattle were destroyed before the arrival of the brigade, and considerable damage done to property. The loss is estimated at £200, but would certainly have amounted to something like £20,000 but for the indefatigable efforts of Mr. Henry and the men of his brigade.

KERRY.

The Mutual Improvement Society, Kenmare, has, we learn, to the proceeds of a lecture by Mr. Stuart Trench, the sum of £17 to Madame MacMahon, Paris, in aid of the French Relief Fund.

Another branch of the Mason alleged poisoning case was opened last week at Tralee, when a jury was empanelled to inquire into the death of Mr. John Mason, the brother of Oliver. One of the gentlemen summoned to serve on the jury (Mr. Revington), refused to act, and was fined £5.

The Most Rev. Dr. Moriarty, Lord Bishop of Kerry, has made the following changes: Rev. James Carmody, C.C., Kyles, removed to the parish of Ferrier, near Dingle; Rev. John O'Donnell, C. C., of the latter parish, removed to Kyelre. The same at Kyelre, says the Cork Examiner, the departure of Father Carmody was such as is witnessed only in Ireland when a truly beloved priest takes his lingering, long, and last adieu of a people for whom he worked, wept and prayed.

Considerable talk has been occasioned, says the Tralee Chronicle of Friday week, by the appearance of a printed placard on the walls and in the shop windows of Tralee within the last few days, announcing "a valuable farm to let by auction." The farm is that of Carrigacunniheil (Mountshawk), which, as everybody in this district knows, has been held and ably improved by Mrs. H. Herrington, of this town, and her late husband, for the last twenty years, from the landlord (Mr. Edward Mainwaring, J.P.), and his late uncle, the good and charitable John Mainwaring. Our first impression was that Mrs. Harrington must have surrendered the farm, and that the auction, though a strange proceeding, must have had her permission. On inquiry we are informed that her lease will not expire before the 25th of March next, and that she was exceedingly astonished on seeing the placard—which was the first intimation she got of the proceeding—and that she immediately wrote to the vendor asking for (what she had always expected) a renewal of her lease at reasonable rent. No answer has yet been received, so we forbear to remark on the circumstances of the case further than to enter an emphatic protest against this novel and exceedingly expeditious method of using the land-screw in letting of lands, without saying ever «by your leave» to the still lessee occupier.

KILKENNY.

At a general meeting of the Castlecomer Catholic Young Man's Society, held in their rooms, Kilkenny street, on Sunday eve, the following members were elected as the following members were elected as the Council for the ensuing year:—Messrs. Colswell, John Seaton, George Walker, Patrick McGreary, John Quinn, Tobias Butler, John Ursor, C. W. Maguire, Hugh Burgin and Patrick McSkeary. The Council then proceeded to the election of officers, when the following were duly elected: Mr. John Quinn, President; Mr. William Bergin, Vice President; Mr. Colswell, Treasurer; Mr. C. W. Mahony, Secretary.

We are glad, says the Kilkenny "Journal," to perceive that in the same manner being made, in the spirit of our remarks last Saturday, to indemnify the Very Rev. Dean McDonald, with reference to the Callan litigation. The movement is destined to be a most successful one, particularly in the hands of Aldermen P. Murphy and Alderman W. Murphy, two worthy promoters indeed, we may express a hope that the defendants in the several actions, laymen as well as clerics, may be indemnified by the people of Ireland, and that ultimately not one penny piece will be allowed to suffer one shilling of loss by the wretched proceedings.

KING'S COUNTY.

At an auction sale at Edenderry on Saturday, conducted by Mr. Charles W. Alden, Kilcoursey, a farm containing 30 acres and a half of land, held on a yearly tenancy from the Marquis of Downshire, was purchased from Mr. James Delany, Edenderry, at a sum which, including succession duties, rent and other expenses, will amount to £275.

LEITRIM.

The clerkship of the peace for the county of Leitrim has been conferred on Colonel Hamilton, solicitor to the Grand Jury of that county.

LIMERICK.

On Sunday, Dr. Ambrose, coroner, held an inquest at Rooks, Newcastle West, on the body of a young man named Dillane. It appeared in the evidence that on the evening of Tuesday week he went to find, for some cattle, and not easily improved by Mrs. H. Herrington, of this town, and her late husband, for the last twenty years, from the landlord (Mr. Edward Mainwaring, J.P.), and his late uncle, the good and charitable John Mainwaring. Our first impression was that Mrs. Harrington must have surrendered the farm, and that the auction, though a strange proceeding, must have had her permission. On inquiry we are informed that her lease will not expire before the 25th of March next, and that she was exceedingly astonished on seeing the placard—which was the first intimation she got of the proceeding—and that she immediately wrote to the vendor asking for (what she had always expected) a renewal of her lease at reasonable rent. No answer has yet been received, so we forbear to remark on the circumstances of the case further than to enter an emphatic protest against this novel and exceedingly expeditious method of using the land-screw in letting of lands, without saying ever «by your leave» to the still lessee occupier.

LONGFORD.

On Wednesday week, Mr. William Dale, Cashel, Granard, put up for sale by auction, at the Chamber of Commerce, Derry, the farm of land situated at Ballybaskey, Newtownsandhouse, held under the Right Hon. Earl of Wicklow. No. 1, containing 23a. 2r. 19p., held at the yearly rent of £20. No. 2 farm contains 87a. 2r. 5p., held by lease for one life, at the yearly rent of £37 5s. The highest bidder, Mr. Robert Crockett, was declared the purchaser for the sum of £1,100.

LOUTH.

Steps are being taken by the people of Dundalk to present Rev. Father Hardy with a testimonial on the occasion of his appointment to the pastoral charge of Upper Killanny.

The interment of Mr. Lee Norman, the senior Deputy Lieutenant for county Louth, took place on Wednesday week in the family burial ground, Charleshowe. The laborers on the estate, to the number of 150, marched in front, followed by the hearse, which the tenantry would not permit to be carried in a hearse, but bore upon their shoulders.

A terrific scene was enacted in the Bay of Dundalk on Saturday. The brigantine William Nelson, from Troon, with a cargo of 400 tons of coal, had her bulwarks stove in during the storm, and sank. The captain, his wife, and the crew climbed the rigging, where they remained safe for a time, but the tide rising a wave swept the captain's wife into the stormy and sheer a long time a sing steamer, discovering the wreck, brought to save the captain and crew with rope. One man was unable either through fatigue or fear to jump with the rope from the bows and was drowned, will amount to £275.

LEITRIM.

The clerkship of the peace for the county of Leitrim has been conferred on Colonel Hamilton, solicitor to the Grand Jury of that county.

LIMERICK.

On Sunday, Dr. Ambrose, coroner, held an inquest at Rooks, Newcastle West, on the body of a young man named Dillane. It appeared in the evidence that on the evening of Tuesday week he went to find, for some cattle, and not easily improved by Mrs. H. Herrington, of this town, and her late husband, for the last twenty years, from the landlord (Mr. Edward Mainwaring, J.P.), and his late uncle, the good and charitable John Mainwaring. Our first impression was that Mrs. Harrington must have surrendered the farm, and that the auction, though a strange proceeding, must have had her permission. On inquiry we are informed that her lease will not expire before the 25th of March next, and that she was exceedingly astonished on seeing the placard—which was the first intimation she got of the proceeding—and that she immediately wrote to the vendor asking for (what she had always expected) a renewal of her lease at reasonable rent. No answer has yet been received, so we forbear to remark on the circumstances of the case further than to enter an emphatic protest against this novel and exceedingly expeditious method of using the land-screw in letting of lands, without saying ever «by your leave» to the still lessee occupier.

KILKENNY.

At a general meeting of the Castlecomer Catholic Young Man's Society, held in their rooms, Kilkenny street, on Sunday eve, the following members were elected as the following members were elected as the Council for the ensuing year:—Messrs. Colswell, John Seaton, George Walker, Patrick McGreary, John Quinn, Tobias Butler, John Ursor, C. W. Maguire, Hugh Burgin and Patrick McSkeary. The Council then proceeded to the election of officers, when the following were duly elected: Mr. John Quinn, President; Mr. William Bergin, Vice President; Mr. Colswell, Treasurer; Mr. C. W. Mahony, Secretary.

We are glad, says the Kilkenny "Journal," to perceive that in the same manner being made, in the spirit of our remarks last Saturday, to indemnify the Very Rev. Dean McDonald, with reference to the Callan litigation. The movement is destined to be a most successful one, particularly in the hands of Aldermen P. Murphy and Alderman W. Murphy, two worthy promoters indeed, we may express a hope that the defendants in the several actions, laymen as well as clerics, may be indemnified by the people of Ireland, and that ultimately not one penny piece will be allowed to suffer one shilling of loss by the wretched proceedings.

KING'S COUNTY.

At an auction sale at Edenderry on Saturday, conducted by Mr. Charles W. Alden, Kilcoursey, a farm containing 30 acres and a half of land, held on a yearly tenancy from the Marquis of Downshire, was purchased from Mr. James Delany, Edenderry, at a sum which, including succession duties, rent and other expenses

CATHOLIC INTELLIGENCE.

—The Rev. Eugene Grimm, of 254 South Fifth's avenue, New York, has transmitted to Mr. John Harry, Merchant, Nenagh, a bank order for £5 10s. 9d., restitution money, from a Tipperary penitent at New York.

—A Berlin telegram in the London Times states that the Public Prosecutor is about to move for the deposition of the Roman Catholic Bishops of Münster, Cologne and Treves. Like the rest of their Episcopal brethren, these prelates declined to obey the Ecclesiastical Laws.

—The "Confraternity of the Holy Family" Association, established in Tullamore by the Missionary Fathers, now numbers over fifteen hundred members, who assemble for prayer every week. The Rev. Joseph Flood, C.C., is the spiritual director.

—On Thursday, November 18th, the students of the Irish College in Rome walked on the Pope and were presented by the Rector, Monsignor Kirby. One of the students read an address to his Holiness, who gave them present his blessing.

—Very Rev. Pere Colin, first Superior-General and founder of the priest of the Society of Mary, or the Marist Fathers, died recently in France. He was born in 1790, and he lived through eighty-five years of hard work. He was a man of great learning, a large heart and untiring zeal, and he leaves a large community of religious to mourn his loss.

—The Western Watchman, of St. Louis, Mo., says: "About fifteen years ago there were thirteen Protestant churches in a single district where there is not one to be found at present. One has been converted into a money-loan office, another into a third-class saloon, and a third has become a negro tenement; a fourth is a second-hand furniture store, a fifth has been broken up, and a sixth was purchased by Italian Catholics."

—On Sunday, November 11th, in the chapel of St. Patrick's College, Thurles, his Grace the Most Rev. Dr. Croke, Archbishop of Cashel, conferred orders on the following ecclesiastics:—Priesthood.—Rev. Patrick J. Hanley, Cashel; John Corcoran, do.; R. Hanley, do. Deacons.—Rev. Thomas O'Connell, Cashel; Hugh Mockler, do. Minor Orders.—Messrs. James O'Brien, Glenbane Cossidhoy, Cashel; Andrew Grath, Mitland; Patrick Leahy, Dubeagan; Michael Melville, do.; Thomas Corcoran, Maitland.

—On Thursday, November 18th, Miss Stella, of Glendalough, county Meath, was received into the Presentation Order, Dungarvale. The Most Rev. Dr. McGettigan, Lord Primate of all Ireland, read a most decrous body of clergy, including the Very Rev. Archdeacon Greene, P. P., V. G.; the Rev. T. J. Murphy, C. C.; Rev. D. O'Brien, C. C.; Very Rev. P. V. Maddibe, D. P.; Rev. Donald Boyd, D. D., etc. The friends of the lady received were also present. The good lady ascended the grace, the clergy and lady at a sumptuous dinner.

—In a correspondence addressed from Constantinople to the Standard it is stated that the Sisters of the Order of Perpetual Adoration that they had received orders to leave their convent before the 25th of October. On this the correspondent brings by to the visit paid to these Sisters by King George of Hanover in 1863. The Empress of Osnabruck, in introducing the Superior-General to the King, said: "Sire, I have the consolation of the King of Kings, who, after a hard-working life for your Majesty's King and Queen, with great emotion, taking the hand of the Superioress, recommended to their prayers. How wonderfully times have changed.

—Rev. George Daubon and his band of Paulist Fathers have just concluded a most successful mission to Minneapolis, Minn., at the church of the Immaculate Conception, of which Rev. James McGolrick is pastor. Over 3,500 communions and over 150 new members joined the Sodality (women's) and 350 men took the pledge. There will add to this eleven converts from Protestantism received into the Church, Presentation received into the Church, whereby we show a fine result for a fortnight's labors.

—What was known in Jefferson, Texas, as the "Convent," occupied by the Sisters of Charity, has been purchased by the Jews, for two thousand dollars, and will be converted into a synagogue. The Sisters have left. It is a very desirable property, and was most elegantly built. The grounds are ample, with a fine garden spot and adorned with ornamental trees, flowers, evergreens and cedars. There are also nine two-story frame buildings, with outhouses and other improvements. The buildings alone must have cost more than three times the money for which the property was sold. The Sisters did a great deal of good while there, and their departure is very much regretted.

—Mr. Anion Lambel, a Pole, two months ago organized the pioneer Polish Roman Catholic congregation in Detroit. Father Lambel was appointed its President, and the members increased rapidly. They hired the old Presbyterian church on Larned st. Tilney and Lawrence streets, and it was dedicated by the Bishop on the 9th December. The interior has been arranged in a homely but tasteful manner; the floor is compressed, and the only ornamentation displayed around the altar, which is a plain if showy affair, white and gilt. Six golden candlesticks stand on either side, and vases of beautiful red and white roses were scattered here and there. A marble figure of the crucified Christ is nailed to the rear wall. On either side of the altar are the national colors of Poland. Outside, the peak of the roof was crowned with flags of Poland and the United States. The Right Rev. Dr. Lonphlin, assisted by Father Kiely and Father Pitsse as Deacon, Father Bailey as Sub-Deacon, presided the dedicatory sermon. The church has 300 members. The Rev. Joseph Nezkiewitz is the pastor. The exercises were conducted in the Polish language.

PARIS, December 12.—The excitement over the Senatorial election continues everywhere. There is no effort to catch the impudence of any political move, and now that the Left has so handsomely beaten the Right, and has 30 more votes than the two strength of Republicanism, the sensation is very intense. Notwithstanding the report that the Bonapartists had aided the Left in obtaining the victory in the election of Senators for life, they still dispute the validity of Senatorial elections by ex-expiring Chamber, and that the Right was directed by the defection of the Legitimists. The feeling is intensified by the fact that, out of eleven, the Left has elected seven. All this publicness. President MacMahon is highly dissatisfied with the result of the elections. The Left express their belief that they will obtain office, which cannot please him. The rest on MacMahon would be like the decline of a democratic success on Grant. The Bourse has become greatly alarmed over the result of the elections, for the success of the Republicans means a disturbance of the Conservative financial interests and Minister Beffet and De Masse, who both failed twice of an election to the Senate, have written their withdrawing from the ministry. M. Bam of the Left is added to the list of Senators elected.

The School Question.

We make the following extract from the Boston Pilot of December 6th:

Another Protestant view of the school question has been expressed during the past week by Mr. Henry Ward Beecher, who thinks the Bible should be excluded from the public schools, and that "proper commissioners of education should be appointed." In the abominable phraseology that has become idiomatic of Plymouth church, Mr. Beecher made charges of immorality against certain school commissioners and female teachers, whose locality he designated in a whispered "near here." The value of Mr. Beecher's milk-and-water way for immorality is about as high as his own reputation for purity.

From another Protestant quarter we take an opinion on the school question, which we lay with pleasure, before our readers. The Commonwealth of New Haven says:

"We cannot exclude from the considerations of this question the fact that a very large class of children attending our common schools never enter any Sunday school, never darken any church door, never hear a word upon any religious duty in their own homes. These children grow up to be citizens of this Republic, having been taught reading, writing and arithmetic, but nothing about their duty towards God and towards men. Does any man expect, or believe, that those children are going to be upright, honest, well-conducted citizens? The thing is next to impossible. Unhesitatingly, then, do we say this—that religious teaching ought not to be divorced from secular instruction and excluded from our common schools. Human nature is prone enough to do evil. Religious influences, we believe, are absolutely necessary to restrain men from wrong doing. We must have a fearful proportion of crime of the worst kind, beauty fielding to lusts, and passions, and evil dispositions—the perpetration of which has been inserted regne, followed by murders to try and conceal other crimes—if we bring up in our common schools children of boys and girls destitute of all religious training and perfectly free from religious influences and ideas."

Still another expression on the school question has been made during the past week—this one from Canada. On November 24, the tax collector of Portland, St. Lambert's, N. D., was the marriage of the Bishop of St. John for taxes, and took it away to sell. The Bishop refused to pay all the taxes except the school tax, but this was refused. Last year, a similar seizure was made. The St. John's Freeman says: "In this case the enforcement of the payment of this tax is especially harsh and unjust, because the tax is levied on the school-houses built by the Catholics of Portland by their contributions for the use of their own children. They are compelled to pay twice for education for the support of the Protestant common schools. They subscribe large sums for the erection of schools-houses and the maintenance of schools to which they can send their children, and the very schools-houses which are thus taken for the support of the common schools, and the carriage of their Bishop is seized and sold for taxes."

The Ghost Business Exposed.

Professor Baldwin has told all about all the spiritual mysteries, including that of Katie King. At an exhibition he turned water into wine by simply turning it from a pitcher into a glass. This was done with chemicals. Then the pillory was brought forward, and Mrs. Baldwin was firmly secured therein. The lock was sealed and the doors of the cabinet were closed. In a few seconds the doors were opened, and the lady walked forth free. The explanation is simple. The lady has a small wire with which she picks the lock, after first removing the wax, and then liberates herself. There is enough room allowed her arms to reach the lock, though it is seemingly impossible to do so. The seal is easily put over the keyhole of the lock again without being broken. The "spirit tie" was then exposed. Mediums profess that the spirits tie and untie them, but the Professor explained how, by a clever manipulation of the ropes, these apostles lied and untied themselves. The Professor also said that the "spirit tie" was never more secure than any "committee tie" he ever knew. He then related a little incident regarding the humbuggery practiced by the great Gold Brick brothers. He was walking in a garden with William Eddy, and his attention was attracted toward a piece of white paper, which was being tossed around by the wind. William said that by simply waving his hand he could get enough electricity from the clouds to set the paper on fire. He then turned to Horatio and, in a few words, set fire to the paper. Horatio did so, and he turned his eye on the paper and in a moment it was burnt up. The brother Horatio explained to the Professor, that when he placed the stone upon the paper, he poured a few drops or of a mixture of phosphorus and carbon upon the paper. The stone itself was heated very slightly, and the medium called upon to give him a view of the wonderful spiritual manifestation.—Lowell Courier.

General Babcock is moderately well off in offices. He is Major of Engineers, regular army; Military Secretary to President Grant, Commissioner of Public Buildings and Grounds, President of the Columbia Lying-in Asylum, Engineer-in Chief of the Washington Aqueduct, and architect of the new State and War Department buildings. He is engagement as confidential Washington agent of the St. Louis Whisky Ring has sauded.

TO THE PUBLIC.

☞ The Indianola Tornado, San Diego county, having been ejected from the homes in which they and their families have lived and resided for centuries before the inhumanity and rapacity of their wrongers—namely, rentals of the victims—pretended in law or equity, to be owned and as their "Great Father at Washington" has, so far as he I am informed, made no provision to give them other lands, or provide them with other homes in "wards of the nation," nor furnished them with provisions or means to protect them from the inclemency of the approaching winter, I feel called upon, as their agent, to appeal to the charity and Christian feelings of the people, and especially to the people of San Francisco, who on a former occasion so nobly and liberally responded to my call to relieve of the poor Indians within my jurisdiction. Those charitably disposed to assist the paste and distress of these poor Indians, and find themselves in possession clothing only—even second-handed—may leave their contributions at my office, 638 Clay street, San Francisco. Others, individuals or firms, finding it more convenient to make contributions of provisions may ship to the undersigned as was thing.

In no instance, I can assure the public that all who aid in this charity will receive a full equivalent for their contributions, as well as the heartfelt prayers and well wishes of the poor Indians, whose cause I have undertaken to plead.

ANTHONY D. URBAN.

San Diego, October 3rd, 1875. Colonel Retd.

A Valuable Medical Treatise.

The edition for 1876 of the sterling Medical Annual, known as Hostetter's Almanac, is now ready, and may be obtained, free of cost, of druggists and country merchants in all parts of the United States and British America, and of druggists in all the principal towns of the civilized world. This work, with the succeeding practical advice for the preservation and restoration of health, a large amount of interesting and amusing light reading, and the calendar, contains numerous chronological items, statistics, etc., reprinted with great care, and will be found of much value for reference. The issue for 1876 is the largest and probably the largest edition of a medical work ever published in this country. The proprietors, Messrs. Hostetter & Co., of Pittsburgh, Pa., are entitled to a two cent stamp. will forward a copy of the Almanac to any person who has not received one in his neighborhood.

Just Arrived!—Just Arrived!

J. M. Bryan, 130 Third street, desires to call the attention of the purchasing public to his large and varied assortment of new and beautiful styles of Millinery just arrived, which he is selling at greatly reduced prices. Any person in need of a Hat or Bonnet will do well to call and examine his stock before purchasing elsewhere.

Wholesale Market Report.

MORTON OFFICE, San Francisco.)
Tuesday, December 14, 1875.

FLOUR.—We quote the jobbing rates for best Extras $6 50 to $6 75; Superfine at $4 75@5 25.

WHEAT.—The feature of the week is the trade, as compared with last week's quotations. Shippers now decline to be answered for any offers, while only asked is still taken by millers at $1. We quote shipping at $1 90@1 95 for spot, and shilling at $1 95@2 00.

BARLEY.—The market is quotable at $1 30@1 40 for good to prime feed, and $1 45@1 50 for choice.

OATS.—Few feed are quotable at $1 90@2 00, and $2 10@2 20 for choice.

HAY.—Quotable at $14@16 per ton.

STRAW.—Is quoted at $5@6 per ton.

CORN.—Southern white and yellow, $1 18@1 17½ per ctl.

CORN MEAL.—Table varieties, $2 50@2 75 per ctl.

BRAN.—Is quoted at $16@17 per ton.

MIDDLINGS.—We quote feed at $22 50 @ 25 per ton.

BARLEY MEAL.—Quotable at $2 50@2 75 per ctl.

CHICKEN FEED.—Quotable at $2 50@2 75 per ctl.

SEEDS.—We quote Canary, 3@3½c; Flax, 3@3½c; Timothy, 4@4½c; and Alfalfa for choice.

HIDES.—We quote dry Kip and Calf, 8@10c; salted do, 7@8c; dry Kip and Calf, 8@10c; salted do, 7@8c.

TALLOW.—Quotable at 3@3½ B lb.

WOOL.—Quotable as follows: Spring, 20@21c; fine, 18@19c, and 16@18c for choice pasture.

DAIRY PRODUCE.

BUTTER.—California fresh roll, good to choice, 37½@40c; do. do. firkin, 35@37½c; Eastern, 30@32½c; Eastern, 28@32½c B lb.

CHEESE.—California, 16@17c; Eastern, 16@16c.

EGGS.—California, 35c; Oregon, 30@35c.

FRUIT.—Apples at $1 50@2 50 per box.

BEANS.—For first quality, 3@3½c; other grades, 2@3c B lb.

POTATOES.—Sweet, $1 25@1 50 B ctl; Early Rose, $1 25@1 50 B ctl; Peerless, $1 25@1 50 B ctl; Garnet Chili, $1 25@1 50 B ctl; Burbanks, $1 25@1 50 B ctl; Sweet Potatoes, $1 50@1 75 B ctl.

ONIONS.—We quote the market at $1 00 @ 1 25 from wharf.

VEAL.—Quotable at $12 @ 13 per head.

MIDDLINGS.—We quote feed at $22 50 @ 25 per ton from wharf.

CHICKEN FEED.—Quotable at $2 50@2 75 per ctl.

SEEDS.—We quote Canary, 3@3½c; Flax, 3@3½c; Timothy, 4@4½c; and Alfalfa for choice.

HIDES.—We quote dry Kip and Calf, 8@10c; salted do, 7@8c; dry Kip and Calf, 8@10c; salted do, 7@8c B lb.

TALLOW.—Quotable at 3@3½ B lb.

WOOL.—Quotable as follows: Spring, 20@21c; fine, 18@19c, and 16@18c for choice pasture.

DAIRY PRODUCE.

BUTTER.—California fresh roll, good to choice, 37½@40c; do. do. firkin, 35@37½c; Eastern, 30@32½c; Eastern, 28@32½c B lb.

CHEESE.—California, 16@17c; Eastern, 16@16c.

EGGS.—California, 35c; Oregon, 30@35c.

FRUIT.—Apples at $1 50@2 50 per box.

BEANS.—For first quality, 3@3½c; other grades, 2@3c B lb.

VEAL.—At 8@10c B lb.

MUTTON.—At 10@12½c B lb.

PORK.—Dressed, grain-fed, 8@9½c; on foot, grain-fed, 5@6c B lb.

POULTRY AND GAME.

POWLS.—Hens, large, $5 50@6 50; Broilers, $4 @ 5; Roosters, $5 50@7 50 B dozen.

DUCKS.—$6@8 50 B pair.

GEESE.—Alive, $12@12; dressed, 10@10c B lb.

HARE.—$1 75@2 25 B dozen.

RABBITS.—$1@1 50 B dozen.

GAME.—Deer, 7@8c B pound.

WILD BIRDS.—Gray, $1@1 50 B dozen for small and $1 50 @3 50 for Mallard.

WILD GEESE.—Gray, $3@3 50 B pair; White, $1 50; Brant, $2 50@3; Hoosers, $4@5.

CONGRESSIONAL PROCEEDINGS.—Lidell's bill about grazing lands authorizes any citizen to homestead or preempt 640 acres at 50 cents per acre, the Surveyor-General to designate what lands are fit only for grazing purposes, and applicants to make oath that they design the lands for their personal use, and not for sale or speculation. The Senate has passed the bills at $200 000 each for Crescent City and Humboldt Bay.

Wigginton's bills appropriate $15 000 for Wilmington, $100 000 for San Diego, and $165,000 for San Luis Obispo harbor. Mr. Piper's bill for a steam log-signal on the Santa Barbalonea sake for $25 000. His bill for the new Mint at San Francisco Postoffice build. appropriates $500,000, on the condition that the city owns a valid title to Union Square, or some other equally eligible site, and that the State shall cede jurisdiction and right of taxation.

Page's Mining Land bill provides that any placer miner shall be entitled to patent from homestead and preemption unless bona fide mining claims exist thereon, or he fails to be assessed for and pay the same for other mining easement, and that the patent to both agricultural and mineral cost of said way grants shall be $1 25 per acre. The bill also provides for joint entries, the right of way through mining claims, and legal subdivision consisting mining claims, and authorizes the Land Office officers authorized to administer oaths, other than land officers. His Timber Land bill is a copy of last year's bill, which was unfavorably acted this week by Senator Kelly.

Lane's bills for the relief of Indian claims, appropriates $181,000 for Oregon and $4,600 for citizens of California. This will be referred to the appropriate committee when formed.

Page also introduced the bill to forfeit Atlantic and Pacific Railroad grants.

THE HANCHMEYER EXECUTIONS.

A torchlight procession was organized in Bandon on Tuesday night November 23, by the Workingmen's Association, to commemorate the eighth anniversary of the execution of Hanchmeyer, townsmen, Allen, and also O'Brien and Scribe, to whose memory a neat cross has been erected in the old chapel yard at Kilbrogan. The procession started from the Workingmen's rooms at eight o'clock, and, with good playing of the torch-bearers. After them marched the bandsmen, also playing good pieces, and last and manly bearing were on last Sunday at the memory meeting greatly admired by the Cork people. The people of the town followed to the number of three thousand. The route was South Main street, Bridge street, North Main street, and to Kilbrogan graveyard, where they all assembled, the band playing the dead march, at the foot of the memorial cross, when was bandsomely decorated by a profusion of evergreen and flowers. After playing the dead march, they played "God Save Ireland," which song was also listened on the cross. All heads were at once uncovered, and all knelt and prayed. The immense crowd returned to their homes in perfect order after again getting through the principal streets. Passing the Barracks, the torch bearers, band and people stopped, in compliment to the memory of Allen, as he was there in his own born and almost reared.—Corr. of Cork Herald.

Rose Tweed has not yet been captured, and it is presumed he will soon be heard of in one of the West India Islands.

THE ARCADE

MARKET STREET, NEAR FOURTH.

NOVELTIES IN SILKS!
NOVELTIES IN DRESS GOODS

☞ Our arrangements for the Fall season are now complete, and we have present on exhibition the most extensive assortment of European Novelties introduced to the Ladies of California.

DOMESTIC GOODS.

In this department we have now completed all our contracts for the coming season, and are prepared to offer housekeepers every species of Domestic Goods at prices which cannot be approached by any house in San Francisco.

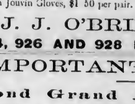
SPECIAL NOTICE.—Two-Button Jouvin Gloves, ☞ $1 50 per Pair. The immense sale of these Gloves in the past ten days is a distinct indication that the Ladies of San Francisco have now realized the fact that the opportunity now presented for the purchase of Jouvin Gloves may never again occur. Note the price, Two-Button Jouvin Gloves, $1 50 per pair. ☞ Every pair guaranteed.

J. J. O'BRIEN & CO.,
924, 926 AND 928 MARKET STREET.

IMPORTANT NOTICE!

Second Grand Annual Sale of

Ladies' and Gents' BOOTS AND SHOES. NO FANCY PRICES.



MEN'S AND BOYS' CUSTOM-MADE CLOTHING. Dry Goods, Etc.

JAMES O'HANLON & CO.,
725 MONTGOMERY STREET, West Side, near Jackson.

J. O'H. & CO. beg leave to inform their numerous friends and patrons that they will sell for the next sixty days, regardless of cost, their IMMENSE STOCK OF DRY GOODS. Strangers visiting the city will find it to their advantage to call and examine our prices with those of other stores; they will readily see that they can save 25 cents on the dollar. To be closed out—

☞ Goods not as represented cheerfully exchanged or money refunded. ☜ Mysterious master: What will do for to-day? ☜

His English was excellent, but with the help said "for this evening," for the twilight had fallen an hour before, and the lights were burning red against the walls, as was then shut out the dark night. And there was a cheery contrast to the outside gloom in the warm, bright spot, small as it was, and up three pair of stairs. The open fire was reflected in the polished floor as in a mirror; there were pretty rosewood desks filled with miniature music, and a vase of heliotrope on the grand piano. And while the high ceiling and dark panelings of the walls gave an air of foreign elegance in all.

The young singer sighed as she closed her solfeggii, gathered up the rest of her music in silence, and began to draw on her gloves. She was a girl of twenty or two and American eyes and rather an old fashioned beauty, her well-worn pallour losing for the beauty of a raw New-England girl. But there was a light and lissome and a glance of her large eyes made one forget the details of her

THE MONITOR & GUARDIAN.
The Only Irish and Catholic Journal in California.
LYONS & BARRY, - - Publishers.
RICHARD O'SULLIVAN, - - - - EDITOR.
OFFICE—813 PINE STREET, between Montgomery and Kearny sts. (Rooms 2, 3 and 4, up-stairs.)
TERMS (Payable in Advance):
Served by Carriers, per week.....10 cts
Mail subscribers, per month.....75
Six months.....1 50
Mail subscribers in Ireland or either of the British Provinces, six months.....1 00
One year.....2 00
☞ Postage is each case prepaid by publishers.

JOHN J. TOBIN,
Stock Broker,
(Pacific Stock Exchange),
Will promptly transact purchases and sales of Stock entrusted to him. Business strictly commercial.
VERNON, TOBIN CO.,
Office—Next to Safe Deposit Company's Bank, cor. Montgomery and California sts., San Francisco.

Written for THE MONITOR.

A CHRISTMAS LEGEND.

How the wild winds shouted—how they laughed in glee—
Holding their wild revels upon the land and sea!
Over hill and valley passed the thunders' tone,
But the storm seemed fiercest in the forest lone.
Through its tangled fastness, at the close of day,
Came a weary traveler, faint and worn and gray;
Scarcely had the path the tempest's fiercer sometimes rang,
Only low it whispered, with a softer song;
Shadow upon shadow, night and day were blent,
Made the great Black Forest seem a very tomb.
Hardly did the traveler dare to breathe or stir,
Till his good steed's courage, strength and speed had given;
Then he paused, and looked around him with surprise,
Knew not where he wandered, a welcome ray of light.
At the night stir Walter hastened on with speed—
Settled upon the footsteps of his faded steed.
Till he found a rude cottage, and at the open door,
From whose narrow casement the red firelight shone,
There in his own deserving, humbly did he claim
Shelter from the tempest in their humble home.
Open swung the portal, and the knight in need
Found a welcome rather for himself and steed.
By the glowing hearthside brave sir Walter stood,
Grateful for the warmth of the blazing wood;
And his boy beat near him, several years and smiled
On the way-worn traveler of the forest wild.
Poor, as it was humble, was the cottage home,
Was a child whose beauty more than angels shone,
And with dark locks flowing in profusion o'er
But he knew the arrival of the knight of yore
From his home he helped him lift the gold inlaid
Helmet, as we gathered the cross of the Crusade;
Safe from any hostile weapon, yet ruthless fame,
Was the knight's armor, and by the fourth he spread,
And by Walter wondering at the boy's delight
Gazed on his accoutrements, thrilling him the song,
As with love he listened, and with love he answered.
Did he ask a blessing on the food he spread,

Jobbing with praises of the Christ, the Son of God, and for whose glory he had left his home and fled. Before he parted from his friends to war,
And the love of faith five minutes more than brought him in the same sweet style,
Without even a gasping one dare not speak.
When the Paynim forces they leave he a
Over the Christian host, and the Christian host,
Seeded on Christ's promise, were victorious and,
As a boon lasting bravely for the holy shrine
Then down on their knees they fell in thanksgiving,
Let to earth or creature, let no earthly fame,
But the glorious victory should be given
To the Christ, the Lord of Hosts, the Father's omnipotent
Talisman of power, when the life-stream flowed
Purple the surface of eternal peace;
First and last in every battle, and to each word
Of the child whose accents all his being stirred,
Knelt the warrior-knight, before with joyous swell,
Came the clear, deep music of the Christian hall;
And the opening voice blessed the village there,
Where the knight had found his home knight now,
Where the knight had found his home knight now,
Where the knight had found his home knight now

and more intensified, while the silence of the grave now hung over the vast crowd; "Hal ha! you rejoice, do you, that an heir is born to the Roshes—the race who have been the bane of my race, the usurpers of my pride and joy. And you light up bonfires, too, to mark your gladness at the event. My blacker curse be upon them, and may the flames that flash around me be but a symbol to these in which every branch of their false race may burn forever!' Trembling in desperate excitement she went on: "But I tell you this heir shall be no heir. Heed my words, and bear them to the happy father. Ha! ha! ha! his heir shall be no heir, I tell you. The brat shall live to glad his father's heart, but when his cup of happiness is nigh filled, even then his joy shall be turned into woe, for before he enters on the threshold of manhood, in the water the heir shall meet his doom. Hear you that, friends of the stranger? Ha! ha! ha! hear you that!"

As she ceased she waved her gaunt, withered hand in defiant gesture. The people waited no more, and turning, as if by common impulse, they bied down the rugged slope of Cairn Thiorna. On looking back they saw the boss shine still brilliant, but no trace of the witch was visible, and thence-forward none saw or heard more of the vengeful Hag of Lisheen.

As may be supposed the news of her singular appearance and prophecy reached the ears of Lord Roche, and occasioned himself and his family the utmost solicitude. Their child soon grew become to keep the young lord as far as possible from the dreaded water, and as he grew to boyhood he was never permitted to see more of that fluid than may be contained in a small drinking vessel. As years rolled on he became, indeed, as the witch had foretold, "the joy of his father's life," though it was seen that when he came to think and act, to follow the bent of his own will, that it would be no easy matter to keep him from the threatened danger. A consultation was accordingly held, and Lord Roche and his friends came to the judicious agreement that a large castle should be built on some hill most remote from the dreaded element, in which the young heir should live until his twenty-first year had passed, when the prognostications of the hag would have been proved false and futile. After much anxious thought Castle Thiorna was chosen as the site of his future residence, and messengers were speedily despatched to Rath Gobeen, a castle between Youghalmhill and Cork, the remains of which still exist, and which was famous in the olden times as the abode of Gobeen Saer, or the skilled architect.

On being summoned he came promptly to Fermoy, and having received the instructions from Lord Roche, he at once struck out his plan for the erection of a beautiful castle on the summit of the hill, pledging himself that it should be completed and ready to receive its future occupant at the end of a week. The Gobeen was not the man to daily over his work, so there and then he resolutely commenced raising a durable and most beautiful structure.

The week had flown by and the castle completed his twentieth year, and his parents now thought it prudent to inform him of the doom which had been pronounced for him, of the means adopted to thwart it, and of the splendid castle which had been raised as his future home.

The young man received the history of his birth and infancy with an extreme wonder, thanked his father for his affectionate care, approved of his prudence, and ardently expressed an ardent desire to go and see the Gobeen Saer at work at the place where he was then engaged. On this the old father, well pleased with the great love displayed by the young man, at once gave his consenting assent, and on the following day he set out on his journey, no danger could come from sanctioning his desire, gave him permission so second the bill and expressed his willingness to accompany him thither. So up they went, and when they arrived at the summit, where the Gobeen was toiling, the young heir looked around, and his eyes unaccustomed to such scenes, became dazzled with the gorgeous prospect outspread before him. Their rested on the broad and lovely black water, lazily sleeping between the fair green fields, and shining in the mellow sunlight like an endless thread of gold. But he had not the remotest idea that he grand upon the element in which, according to the weird prophetess, he was to meet his doom, or that it was a thing at all to be dreaded.

Towering majestically, the castles of Corona, Carrigaricha, Ballydesmond, Clogheh and others, attracted his attention, and turning to his father he inquired if his new castle were to be higher and grand as these were. The father replied that it would be stronger and still more beautiful, as the Gobeen Saer was the most skilful architect in the world; and he told him besides that he should be lord of it, and of all the beautiful country surrounding it.

Now, since his infancy, the heir was permitted to go nowhere unattended, but, here, apart from all danger, he was for the first time suffered to enjoy unlimited freedom.

With a new energy he looked about him, examining the different objects, and interested himself in learning the use of things he never before dreamt of inquiring after. An immense rat, in which the Gobeen kept water for building purposes, stood at some short distance from where he worked. This soon attracted the young man's attention, and curiously prompted him to look over the hilm and see what it contained. Delighted at the smoothness and transparency of the fluid he saw within, so strange and beautiful did it seem to him, that to satisfy his wonder and admiration, he climbed after much difficulty, to the brim of the huge vat. His daily delight became greatly increased, as he beheld in its limpid depths a form so all particulars resembling his own. Delighted beyond expression, he bowed his head in salutation to the figure, when overreaching himself he tumbled headlong into its treacherous depths. He cried and struggled in vain; and after long and anxious search his lifeless body was discovered by his disconsolate father.

The witch's prophecy was verified, and true to her prediction, before he reached manhood's threshold, in the water he met his doom.

The Gobeen Saer, of course, declared from his labors are they had been well compensated; but the fact let traditionally recorded that for what he did he was handsomely rewarded by Lord Roche. Many reasons bered the old hag's memorable words, and they shuddered as they thought.

Thus has the name of Cairn Thiorna, or the Lord's Heap, been accounted for, and though we wash not grant it, seamen tell us the hag's prescience was always as unerring as in the instance, yet for the authenticity of our tale, we would refer to the huge pile of stones still lying upon its summit, crowned by the Gobeen Saer, and whom you, kind reader, upon your return to the dear old land, can see for yourself when you visit the town of Fermoy, and mountain-ragged slopes of the far-famed Cairn Thiorna.

Ninety merchants and artisans with their families have emigrated from Pennsylvania and settled on Hood river, Oregon, and over 300 will follow in the Spring. They intend building a college, a woolen mill, a grist mill, and other educational and industrial establishments.

"LABORARE EST ORARE."

Oh toilers! it is early morning: work awaits thee now—
See the silvery wreathing of the mountain's brow;
If they gain the ground of vantage, there will be the light
Upon their faces—
Up! out! rise with slothful whining all God did last night.
They are weary. Up! God knows it. He on watch was waiting,
Then sent sleeping.
Warning! it is sweet to slumber when thy Captain waits,
And the foeman's deafening cannon shakes the fortress gates!
Oh, think that He let be action, gird thy armor on—
Not alone lay fast and visit can thy crown be won.
Thank and fast thy feet are gathering in the by a dolls,
Take the bath of Prayer in light thou through each night hast held within.
Thou art weary. Up! God knows it. He on watch was waiting,
Then sent sleeping.
Warning! it is sweet to slumber when thy Captain waits,
And the foeman's deafening cannon shakes the fortress gates!
Oh, think that He let be action, gird thy armor on—
Not alone lay fast and visit can thy crown be won.
Thank and fast thy feet are gathering in the by a dolls,
Take the bath of Prayer in light thou through each night hast held within.
It can pierce the sunniest breastplate, smite the fiercest foe.
Be thy watchword Perseverance, be thy standard Faith—
They will win for thee the victory from the jaws of death.
Hark! thine's a noble mission; haste thee to the fray—
"Laborare est Orare"—to labor is to pray.

Christian! nonstile hosts are beating body on thy
Pause not; faint not, one weak moment were thy ruin sure.
Think the headed drops are gathering on thy collected brows,
And thy arm with cruel or labor faint has grown and weak;
Think how there is thy number, soiled thy floating
And the pure drops there alone amort which thine eyes have been;
Think how a fearful struggle; then marsh dial and feel;
Thousands in the camp have barely helped the foeman's steel;
Wake thee, at morning, woke thee from thy rest,
Dark misgivings sadly gathered in thy wearing breast.
Not alone the allin soldiers stood around thy path—
Not alone the foeman's fiery arrows flashed at which;
Traitors who had lonely murmured at the bugle call,
Fled in fear, and left their banners to the victor's
on all.
Slackly thy hand has held them through the battle's
Faint! oh! they wither under thy victorious feet.
Smite them down—their cries for quarter bain a
Thou art weak!
They will lend thy heart new vigor—brace new Rest on! though thy strength be failing and thy grow dim;
Hark! hear a fearful struggle; then march dial and feel;
Thousands in the camp have barely helped the foeman's steel.
Oh, toilers! the allin soldiers stood around thy path—
Not alone the foeman's fiery arrows flashed at which;
Traitors who had lonely murmured at the bugle call,
Fled in fear, and left their banners to the victor's
on all.
Slackly thy hand has held them through the battle's
Faint! oh! they wither under thy victorious feet.
Smite them down—their cries for quarter bain a
Thou art weak!
They will lend thy heart new vigor—brace new Rest on! though thy strength be failing and thy
grow dim;
Look around thee—foes are lying smitten by thy
In the luminous light rewarded by that triumph
Hasten! they rain in sonorous slumber when the call
Of the morning!
Warning! it is sweet to slumber when the Captain waits,
And the foeman's deafening cannon shakes the fortress gates!
Oh, think that He let be action, gird thy armor on—
Not alone lay fast and visit can thy crown be won.
Thank and fast thy feet are gathering in the by a dolls,
Take the bath of Prayer in light thou through each night hast held within.
It can pierce the sunniest breastplate, smite the fiercest foe.
Be thy watchword Perseverance, be thy standard Faith—
They will win for thee the victory from the jaws of death.
Hark! thine's a noble mission; haste thee to the fray—
"Laborare est Orare"—to labor is to pray.

—Waterford News.

A CHAPTER OF EARLY KENTUCKY HISTORY.—Captain Jack Jewett, Robin Mosby and Ben Bradshaw were travelling from Virginia to Kentucky on horseback. Captain Jewett was a large, fine-looking man and a fair specimen of the kind of man that gave character to the period that embraces the early history of Kentucky. As the three rode along their attention was attracted by angry words from a cabin on the roadside. Words were succeeded by blows, and Captain Jewett said: "Lets ride up and see what the fight is about." They galloped up to the cabin, where was a man and his better half having a "row," a man and his better half having a "row," a man was getting the better half of it. "Hold my horse," said Jewett, "and I will make a peace-maker of myself, as never I was!" At one blow of his fist the man lay prostrate on the floor. The good wife looked at the man she had boasted a moment before, and then, reeching back, she caught up a large, long-handled frying pan and let drive at Jewett's head. The bottom went out, and the rim went over his head and shoulders. He was getting the better half of it blow. All efforts failing to get the remnant of the frying pan from around Jewett's neck, he had to wear it about five miles on his road, and then a file in the hands of a blacksmith released him. We will not stop to point the moral.

San Francisco is now paying for lighting her streets $276,000 a year, while Sacramento's streets are lighted for less than $10,000 per annum, with a population of 20,000 Thus, if Sacramento were to pay for street lights in proportion to population, she should have, on the San Francisco basis, within her limits 527 609 people, Either San Francisco pays too much or Sacramento is paying very little. San Francisco has 4 500 streets lamps, for each of which she pays $54 16 a year; Sacramento has 205 lamps, for each of which she pays but $45 a year, which is to say that Sacramento obtains her gas at thirty per cent less than San Francisco.

A BLUE-JACKET'S PERIL.

In the year '98, when, as you know, Irish folk, in addition to their other terrors, were heavily in dread of a French invasion, my grandfather, Sir John Hastings, was the possessor of a considerable property in the North of Ireland, and resided in an old-fashioned tumble-down manor-house not far from a well-known watering place in the county Donegal. My grandfather, Arthur Hastings, then a midshipman in the Royal Navy, had contrived to obtain short leaves of absence, for the purpose of paying a visit to his parents on his return from a cruise of some nine months' duration; and he had not been many days in his old home before he determined to while away a portion of the time, which hung heavily enough on his hands in that not too lively abode, by indulging himself with a little of his favorite pastime, deep sea fishing. Accordingly one beautiful morning, when there was scarcely a ripple on the water, he got three of his father's tenants, fishermen, to pull him out in their boat to a place where he would be pretty sure of a good day's sport. When they had left land behind at some distance they suddenly descried a large vessel in the offing, which my grandfather and his men assumed to be one of the English gunboats which cruised about those waters in that perilous time.

The midshipman thought it would be good fun to pull out to her on board her, and I think you bear me no ill-will, and you will at least admit that we have done all in our power to ingratiate your acquaintance."

You can imagine the consternation of the unfortunate fishermen when they beheld Hastings and his men assumed to be one of the English gunboats which cruised about those waters in that perilous time.

The midshipman thought it would be good fun to pull out to her on board her, I think you bear me no ill-will, and you will at least admit that we have done all in our power to ingratiate your acquaintance."

You can imagine the consternation of the unfortunate fishermen when they beheld Hastings and his men assumed to be one of the English gunboats which cruised about those waters in that perilous time.

The midshipman thought it would be good fun to pull out to her on board her, I think you bear me no ill-will, and you will at least admit that we have done all in our power to ingratiate your acquaintance."

You can imagine the consternation of the unfortunate fishermen when they beheld

DIVORCED.

The love has broken,
And men have hesitated in to strong decree;
The great world is ordered,
The world is pure and sacred,
Two streams have flowed to the sullen sea.

The past is in ashes,
And memory flashes
The hopes that were born in the birth of the years.
The present is cold,
Love's lamp is extinguished,
The future is laden with fetters and tears.

Death's parting—to sever
The bonds of affection;
To breathe in a world without presence or bloom!
Death's parting—to sever
Alone, and to prefer
Our dreams that live not in anguish and gloom.

What demon has entered
Where love angels have centered
Where life was as sweet as the glance of a child?
What token has whispered
The cause so unhonored,
The beauty, the hope and the faith undefiled?

Ah! bright was the summer,
When every new comer
Poured gladness in hearts that were happy before;
Ah! pure was each meeting,
Each kiss and each greeting,
Each tear that seemed wafted from honor or pride;

Their eyes were unclouded,
Their eyes unreasoning,
They turn from the path that is fairest to mean!
Hope scarcely and sighing,
Love dying, dying.
The vision that must will come never again.

O, heart! once Creator,
Once withered and shaken,
Thy wounds will heal over and a shame;
Child pride may remain there,
Child love may remain there,
Twill much they with throbbing their cannot not reclaim.

—Arcadian. GEORGE E. MONTGOMERY.

THE RULE OF FAITH.

Not the Bible Only—A Conclusive Argument.

In the following letter, which first appeared in the New York Sun, Jr., Accuracy and Val, Very Rev. Dean Byrne conclusively disposes of the delusion that the Bible is the sole rule of faith, or that, as interpreted by private individuals, it is anything but a rule of confusion:

TRENTON, November 25, 1875.

DEAR SIR—When the Rev. Elijah Lucas took up the cry of the Bible and the Bible, and attempted to show from the "direst ignorance," and the Irish "dire," and "Spanish Ignorance"—all of which confessed because the Bible was not in the schools—how easy it would be to lead a stranger from any attempt to exclude the Sacred Book, he entirely overlooked what destroys his decision altogether, viz., the Bible and the Bible only.

After what I said yesterday, many, I am persuaded, will be surprised to hear that the book now circulating in the Protestant world is the Word of God at all; and whether it is or not, that the preachers and advocates of it can ever be certain, according to their own principles, of the sense of it when they thought that to spoke of the rejects of sleep." But, on the other hand, others, will say, that they were able to point to mark the correctness of the opinion, they need the same to know that they know that the princes of the Gentiles lord it over them." "When the branch is tender and the leaves begin to appear, you know that summer is nigh." "Ye know that after two days shall be the pasch." "Rebuking them, He suffered them not to speak, for they knew that He was Christ." "Ye know whence I am." The impossibility of consistency of expression, when the opinion is approved or disapproved, seems to be sufficient to show that the Bible is not the Word of God alone is sufficient to save. Wisdom, also, is necessary in reasoning in the by private judgment or critical ability, upon which splendid commentary of the great Cardinal?

INDISCRIMINATE BIBLE READING.

The fact, then, is undeniable, and proved to, can by no means be twisted into a compliance with the principle—that the Bible is the only standard of faith, or that it is sufficient to save. Yet it is pharisaical as exhibiting the germ of certain popular persons, and the way they deal with public questions. If a Catholic priest were to use intemperate language like this for the sake of the argument, how fiercely would he not be denounced by the public press? But Parson Talmadge assumes them, so his cursing and swearing and blasphemy are all right!

All the seats and aisles and hallways of the Brooklyn Tabernacle were packed yesterday morning by a congregation that wished to hear the Rev. Mr. Talmadge's reasons why the Bible should not be expelled from the public schools. The preacher said that everywhere Paul lectured in the school of one Tyrannus of Ephesus, found the principles of the Christian religion, the Bible and the common school had been wedded. The Bible was the very corner stone and key stone of our school system. "Take the Bible from the schools!" he shouted. "No, by the strength of the Eternal God it shall never be done! Is that the country we live in? Is this the country of Roger Williams? Is this the land of liberty? Is this the land of Christ? Is this the land of James II. There was not the slightest difficulty in the matter. The only essentials of Charles I. were to be found in the taste of his daughter, the Duchess of Orleans. The daughter of that ill-fated but married Victor Amadeus, King of Sardinia, and her son became in due course of time, ship to the Crown of England. In 1707, on the death of the Cardinal of York, that Prince of Modena who has just died, succeeded upon Charles Felix, King of Sardinia, the son of James II. and Charles I.

Charles Felix died in 1821, leaving four daughters, but no son. The Salic Law, excluding females from the succession, prevailed as to the crown of Sardinia, and that crown, with its natural appendage, the crown of England, passed to his eldest daughter, Elizabeth Theresa, Duchess of Modena. The son of that lady is the present Duke of Modena who has just died.

We hope there is no reason in this, as there has been stated by two or more eminent constitutional lawyers, one in England, the other in Ireland. They are, indeed, fearful words that have been written on English history. The doctrines of legitimacy and passive obedience would, beyond all question, have transformed the allegiance of Englishmen from Queen Victoria to the Duke of Modena. Who will deny that Mr. Charles Butler, in one of his traces on the Roman Catholic Church, has proved that time of the death of the Cardinal of York, traced the pedigree of the King of Sardinia and the Duke of Modena, and, with the assistance of Mr. Fairfax, made out a clear case for the legitimist English King.—Dublin Irishman.

A FURIOUS JEWISH CUSTOM.

Getting Another Person to be Responsible for Your Sins.

NEW YORK, December 19.—The chain of circumstantial evidence pointing to Pesch as the murderer of Mrs. Lefler is now complete in a cornfield, in order to hide the result of their illicit intimacy, in East New York, is regarded by the police as complete. Some days ago Pesch was arrested on the charge of having in his possession a stolen watch. The prisoner is now in the Raymond street jail, awaiting trial. Pesch is a married man, and has a family in Hamburg, signed sealed and witnessed according to a novel agreement among Polish Jews. When the party was married she was reached home and told his wife, she made many strenuous objections that her husband sought Reubenstein again, and, tendering back the money, proposed to rescind the contract. Reubenstein refused to accept the money or return the instrument. Suit was then brought against him in the Beth Hamidrash, a rabbinical tribunal supported by illiterate Polish Jews. The case was tried by Chief Rabbi Abraham Joseph and two assistants. The suit was decided against Reubenstein and in favor of the prosecutor on the grounds that there are some sins for which not only the transgressor of the person must be punished, but also his wife and children, and it did not appear that Reubenstein had been guilty of such sins. Reubenstein, being an unsuccessful, was therefore entitled to prohibit the contract, if she had not been guilty of the transgression. Second, there is a Talmudic law prohibiting the Jews from overcharging a fellow Jew more than one-sixth of the amount involved in a bargain. It did not appear what Reubenstein's gross had been, and the opinion whether he did not get the better of the other party in the matter of five dollars could not be determined. The contract therefore, could not be rescinded. The Polish Jewish Rabbinists also appealed to the Beth Hamidrash in Royal street. This court was composed of twenty-four rabbis, and the case was heard by fifteen of them. The decision was against Reubenstein, and he was ordered to pay the costs of the trial. Reubenstein refused to pay, and then the Polish Jews threatened to excommunicate him. Reubenstein

WEEKLY CALENDAR.
FOR THE WEEK ENDING JANUARY 1—December
26—Sunday—St. Stephen, first Martyr.
27—Monday—St. John, Apostle and Evangelist.
28—Tuesday—Holy Innocents.
29—Wednesday—St. Thomas of Canterbury, Bishop and Martyr.
30—Thursday—of the Octave.
31—Friday—St. Silvester, Pope and Confessor.
January
1—Saturday—Circumcision of our Lord. Holyday of Obligation.

THE MONITOR & GUARDIAN:
THE ONLY
Irish and Catholic Journal in California.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

SATURDAY .....DECEMBER 25, 1875.

SUBSCRIBERS will please specially look at the printed label on the margin or wrapper of the paper to date thereon shown when the subscription expires.

Notice to our Subscribers.

As the end of the year is now close at hand, we are naturally anxious to balance our accounts, and commence 1876 with clear books. To accomplish this we have sent out bills to a large number of delinquent subscribers in town and country. We regret to say the response returned has not been equal to our expectations, and we are unable to tell exactly why. Now we hope that before the coming of the New Year we shall be able to announce a decided improvement in this respect. Without egotism we may say that we give as good a Catholic paper as there is published in the United States. We do not confine our existence to matters purely religious, but give a large amount of interesting reading in every description. This involves no small expense, which has to be defrayed out of subscribers and advertisements exclusively, for we belong to no party, we are the servants of no clique or monopoly, and our opinions are not set up for sale to any man or any body. These are the reasons why we look for a generous and a ready support from our subscribers.

THE ANTI-CATHOLIC CAMPAIGN.

There can be no doubt whatever that the anti-Catholic campaign received upon by some of the Radical leaders is now being openly organized, and before many months it will be openly and publicly inaugurated. The thing is necessity for the Republicans, and they cannot do without it, because all the spoils cannot be divided to make political capital out of are finally disposed of, and they must have some distinctive idea to work upon. They have chosen opposition to Popery, and we are sorry to say, it appears to find favor with large numbers of American people who would be very much shocked if they were charged with bigotry and intolerance. In talking among their correspondences, in interviews with public men, we meet with strong evidence to show how desperate are the efforts which have got to do is to open the door and step out. They are perfectly and absolutely free to act according to their own wishes, and not the slightest restraint is placed upon them. The very essence of the religious life is that it should be voluntarily undertaken, and Catholics know that the Church takes every imaginable precaution against force or compulsion. If a number of men chose to live together in community, pay their own expenses, and attend to their own affairs in the manner most pleasing to them, we should like to know by what right, law or custom anybody would venture to interfere with them or say they shall not do so. The laws, as they now stand, are amply sufficient to protect the liberty of the individual, and there is no need of special legislation in regard to convents or monasteries. If any of these anti Catholic gentlemen is aware of monks or nuns held in durance against their will, the Courts are well able to help him to ascertain that freedom. But the private residences of these religious are as much entitled to respect and immunity from intrusion as the houses of the wealthiest or most influential citizens.

Again, it is stated that Catholics want either to destroy the public schools or else introduce sectarianism into them. Both these allegations are notoriously untrue, and are contradicted by facts well known to every intelligent man. The numerical inferiority of the Catholics is of itself sufficient proof that they but dream of destroying them, for they are upheld by five-sixths of the population. Place the Catholic side of the question at the very worst and it amounts precisely to this, that they do not like the system of education adopted in these schools, because of the absence of religious instruction, and would wish to introduce religious instruction and arrangements for their children. There is nothing superlicious or illiberal in such a demand, and most undoubtedly it does not attack the rights of any other class. It may be well enough to declare that such a thing is impracticable, that to grant it would be to render the education system too complicated, although these assertions, too, might readily be controverted and refuted, but the proposition can find in it anything detrimental to the interests of non-Catholics.

The attempts part of the conspiracy might be allowed to pass by silently if they were what they contained only, but they have been the surface from the concealed which thinner but characteristic things have been exposed. The Catholic Church is the only power which can successfully cope with the Revolutionary element, and hence the hatred and fear exercised with regard to it. The Catholic Bible is denounced by them and forbidden upon by Catholics. Words of foul abuse are hurled by Orangemen at every Catholic as a term of reproach. Was the entire tone and atmosphere of the schools Catholic so as to be distasteful and repugnant to Protestants? Why, the truth is Catholics have been constantly fighting against sectarianism in the public schools, and it has been openly threatened by ministers and proselytizers that from the schools, Protestants will then assail them, and upset the whole system altogether. Now, this is endeavoring to make political capital out of a falsehood, and is a most contemptible and unworthy proceeding.

NATIONALITY IN TRINITY COLLEGE, DUBLIN.

A brief extract from the Dublin Weekly News, which we print in another column, contains more gratifying evidence than the spirit of nationality has not yet died out of the students of Trinity College. There was a time, we know, when in spite of all government influences the great college served as a propaganda of liberal and patriotic ideas. The society of the United Irishmen, the first genuine attempt to effect a unification of all creeds for the benefit of a common country, received its birth and intellect from Trinity College. There is scarcely a prominent leader of the popular movement of 1798 who was not a graduate among its alumni. The gallant and lamented Robert Emmet was, as every reader of Irish history knows, one of its students, and was made to feel by Irishman within its walls. The poet Moore also belonged to the College, although a graduate, and, as all probability, was a revolutionist, though he managed to escape implication in the troubles which caused the expulsion of several of his fellow-students. But for long years after the abortive rebellion of 1803, Trinity College was only remarkable for its conservatism, and as every popular movement its moral weight was thrown into the scale against Ireland, and in support of its British Government. Now and then an individual student or professor with national ideas expressed the sacred cause of liberty, but the vast majority were intensely loyal to the foreign usurpation.

If Professor Isaacman wrote the touching and beautiful ballad "Who Fears to Speak of '98?" and Sheridan Le Fanu wrote "Shamus O'Brien," by mass in loudness of King William were the more natural production of the college mass. Of late years, however, a change for the better has been distinctly apparent. Whether the disestablishment of the Church has had anything to do with it we cannot say; but at all events the "Trinity boys" are much more Irish in sentiment than they used to be. The enthusiastic reception awarded to Isaac Butt, solely on account of his patriotic opinions and connection with the Home Rule movement, is convincing proof of the revival of nationalism among them. It has sorely discountenanced the old Tory element in Dublin, and the Orange newspapers have taken great pains to pretend that the demonstration had no political significance, and was a mere manifestation of exuberance of spirits, or a frolic such as would be expected from the "boys" on the resurrection of one of their gala days.

But there were other gentlemen present, more closely identified with the college, who had higher reputations for "loyalty," and there must be some good reason why one of them was not chosen as the recipient of the only yet cordial ovation. Attempts at concealment or disguise is futile, for every sensible person must acknowledge that if the students who drew Isaac Butt in triumph through the streets of Dublin did not applaud his national opinions, or endorse the agitation of which he is the head, they must have been playing a very silly part. We believe they were honest in their demonstration. It is a good sign of the prospects of Irish independence, no matter how it must be attained, whether peacefully or forcibly, to see the Trinity students abandoning the cause of England and pledging their allegiance to the land of their birth. The end of disunion will be the beginning of freedom.

THE FRENCH REPUBLIC.

Although it has been frequently charged against the French that they are incapable of understanding true liberty, and that consequently there are only two forms of government possible for them, a despotism of a king, or a despotism of a mob, we are now every day finding evidence that the reaction is rapidly losing its force, and may soon be challenged as unfounded. There is much reason for hoping that the strength of radicalism, typified by the Commune, is fast waning, and that the moderate party is gaining ground. When we hear of such a man as GAMBETTA rebuking extravagant ideas and acknowledging that liberty exists for other people in the world besides himself and his followers, we may begin to believe in the opening of a happier era for France. And when we know that such a fiery Imperialist as CASSAGNAC was courteously received in Belleville and allowed to deliver a telling and pungent speech in favor of the Italian tyranny, we may begin to see that the days of anarchy, and its consequences, has been received in favor by the choice introducing it. The "O Salutaris" is dedicated to the St. Catherine's Academy, Bethela.

From M. Gray, 105 Kearny street, we have received "Forget-me-not though I Repine," and "My Love has gone a Sailing," two very pretty flowers of song.

A just and universal dissatisfaction prevails among members of the, Legislature because of the committee appointments made by the President of the Senate and Speaker of the Assembly. In both bodies, but more especially in the Assembly, San Francisco has been almost ignored, and the few selections made from this city seem to have been prompted more by the personal preferences of the appointing power, than regard for experience and fitness. Carpenter has ostracised nearly every member who didn't vote for him for Speaker, and Johnson had the bad taste to overlook such experienced and clear-headed Senators as McCoppin and Hosh.

There were bread riots in Montreal last week; a great deal of destitution prevails among the French Canadians.

THE LEGISLATURE.

The law protecting seals has been repealed, so that hereafter those clumsy animals can be killed at the impunity, to the detriment, no doubt, of the lessee of the Cliff House, but to the advantage of the small fish in our bay.

Senator Lafler pens the Board of Tide Land Commissioners abolished, and we hope he'll succeed. The only persons who benefit by that Commission are the dozen or more employés, who receive the people's money, and give no adequate return. Senator Haymond wants a Board of Irrigation —that is to say, the voluble Creed wants to provide a fat berth for some of his friends at the public expense. The bill should not pass; the farmers of the various districts can do their own irrigating far better than Mr. Haymond or any one whom his bill would bring into office.

Assemblyman Murphy, taking his cue from President Grant and Governor Irwin, has introduced a bill prohibiting the diverting the public funds towards the sustainment of "sectarian schools."

Truthful Pullen affects the role of the janitor's friend, or the American Pitmell. This gentleman has lately exchanged the humble duties of water-tender on steamboats, on account of which intimate connection with engines, he has had himself dubbed "engineer." Why Pullen, the Governor must not think that the bill creating the office of Inspector of Boilers introduced by him has the ulterior object of creating a berth for P. Jones.

Senator Rogers has introduced a bill authorising the city and county of San Francisco to provide and maintain public water works for said city and county, and to condemn and purchase private property for that purpose.

Senator McCoppin has introduced a bill fixing the Tax Collector of this city to hand over to the City Treasurer moneys paid him under protest. He has also introduced a bill providing for the opening of Fremont street, which should by all means become a law.

Speaker Carpenter has entirely ignored Assemblyman Pullen in the appointment of committees, and everything is regarded in legislative circles as the height of ingratitude, Pullen having betrayed Archer in order to elevate Carpenter.

Senator Craig has introduced Dr. Gates, Western Avenue bill. Such a highway is entirely unnecessary, and its opening will virtually confiscate the property of hundreds of small holders. It is an old hobby of the Doctor's, who thinks that he could thereby maintain the popularity of the Cliff House toll road, which has been growing since the opening of the free Park road to the beach.

Senator Donovan has introduced a bill to abolish the Board of Regents and State Board of Education, and furnish free text-books.

Assemblyman O'Connell has introduced a bill repealing the Local Option law.

The Assembly Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds visited Napa on Saturday. They investigated the affairs of the asylum and decided that a considerable sum will be required to complete the building over and above the $650,000 already appropriated.

Both houses of the Legislature adjourned on Wednesday, until January 3d. The per diem goes on work or play.

A census of the Democratic members of the Legislature was taken last week, in order to ascertain how many would be present when General Coey as Major-General. By taking no action in General McComb's case, they virtually decided to confirm that gentleman.

Church of Our Lady of Guadalupe.

The Spanish church of Our Lady of Guadalupe, corner of Broadway and Mason streets, although not completed, has been prepared for service by reading the first vespers, and by the solemn chanting of the hymns, if not very grand or imposing place of worship has already been secured, and our Spanish-American co-religionists are happy in the possession of a church which has been appointed pastor, and certainly no selection could have been more pleasing to the congregation, as that reverend gentleman has been for years the spiritual father of the church. On Christmas Day the first Mass will be at 5 o'clock, the second at 7½ and the third 10½. It is pleasant to know that up to the present no debt whatever has been incurred in the erection of the building, and all expenses have been met with ready cash. Moreover, there is on hand a tolerable sum for future operations, and the people have so far that the church will be finished without leaving any debt upon it. We congratulate Father Gerrigo upon this extremely satisfactory progress, and our Spanish friends upon their generous liberality and devotion to their holy faith.

Sacred Heart College.

The Christmas examinations at the Sacred Heart College commence on Monday, 20th inst., and were brought to a conclusion Friday, the 24th, and during this time the classes and entire departments were put to the test. The degree of proficiency required in each may be gathered from the following schedule:

Preparatory Department—Reading, Spelling, Geography, Arithmetic, Grammar, Writing, Drawing, Music, Latin Hymn. Intermediate Department—Orthography, Writing, Geography, Grammar, Geography, History, Practical and Mental Arithmetic, Christian Doctrine, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music and Fifth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Practical and Mental Arithmetic, Geography, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Sixth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Seventh Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Eighth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Ninth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Tenth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Eleventh Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Twelfth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Thirteenth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Fourteenth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Fifteenth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Sixteenth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Seventeenth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Eighteenth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Nineteenth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Twentieth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Twenty-first Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Twenty-second Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Twenty-third Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Twenty-fourth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Twenty-fifth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Twenty-sixth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Twenty-seventh Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Twenty-eighth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Twenty-ninth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Thirtieth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Thirty-first Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Thirty-second Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Thirty-third Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Thirty-fourth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Thirty-fifth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Thirty-sixth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Thirty-seventh Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Thirty-eighth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Thirty-ninth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Fortieth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Forty-first Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Forty-second Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Forty-third Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Forty-fourth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Forty-fifth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Forty-sixth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Forty-seventh Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Forty-eighth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Forty-ninth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Fiftieth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Fifty-first Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Fifty-second Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Fifty-third Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Fifty-fourth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Fifty-fifth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Fifty-sixth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Fifty-seventh Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Fifty-eighth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Fifty-ninth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Sixtieth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Sixty-first Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Sixty-second Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Sixty-third Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Sixty-fourth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Sixty-fifth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Sixty-sixth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Sixty-seventh Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Sixty-eighth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Sixty-ninth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Seventieth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Seventy-first Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Seventy-second Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Seventy-third Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Seventy-fourth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Seventy-fifth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Seventy-sixth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Seventy-seventh Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Seventy-eighth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Seventy-ninth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Eightieth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Eighty-first Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Eighty-second Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Eighty-third Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Eighty-fourth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Eighty-fifth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Eighty-sixth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Eighty-seventh Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Eighty-eighth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Eighty-ninth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Ninetieth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Ninety-first Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Ninety-second Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Ninety-third Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Ninety-fourth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Ninety-fifth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Ninety-sixth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Ninety-seventh Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Ninety-eighth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, Ninety-ninth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, One Hundredth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, One Hundred and First Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, One Hundred and Second Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, One Hundred and Third Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, One Hundred and Fourth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, One Hundred and Fifth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, One Hundred and Sixth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, One Hundred and Seventh Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, One Hundred and Eighth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, One Hundred and Ninth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, One Hundred and Tenth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, One Hundred and Eleventh Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, One Hundred and Twelfth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, One Hundred and Thirteenth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, One Hundred and Fourteenth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, One Hundred and Fifteenth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, One Hundred and Sixteenth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, One Hundred and Seventeenth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, One Hundred and Eighteenth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, One Hundred and Nineteenth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, One Hundred and Twentieth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, One Hundred and Twenty-first Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, One Hundred and Twenty-second Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, One Hundred and Twenty-third Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, One Hundred and Twenty-fourth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, One Hundred and Twenty-fifth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, One Hundred and Twenty-sixth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, One Hundred and Twenty-seventh Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, One Hundred and Twenty-eighth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, One Hundred and Twenty-ninth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, One Hundred and Thirtieth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, One Hundred and Thirty-first Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, One Hundred and Thirty-second Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, One Hundred and Thirty-third Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, One Hundred and Thirty-fourth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, One Hundred and Thirty-fifth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, One Hundred and Thirty-sixth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, One Hundred and Thirty-seventh Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, One Hundred and Thirty-eighth Language—Grammar, Grammar, Syntax, Prosody, Rhetoric, Logic, Christian Doctrine, History, Analysis, Reading, Elocution, Writing, Drawing, Music, One Hundred and Thirty-

RISH LOCAL NEWS.

From the Dublin Nation of November 27.

ANTRIM.

No death has occurred in Donaghmore workhouse since May last, and the union graveyard has been obliged to apply for relief.

The death is announced of James Combe, Esq., J. P., of the firm of Combe & Barbour, proprietors of the extensive concern known as the Falls Road Foundry, Belfast. Mr. Combe was one of the practical and energetic men who by a quarter of a century ago built up by their exertions the manufacturing greatness of Belfast.

ARMAGH.

Details have been received of an accident which happened on Tuesday week at Dromisland to Mr. Robert Vere O'Brien, cousin to Lord Inchiquin. He was out shooting, when his brother, Captain O'Brien, fired his second barrel at a woodcock in his direction, and he received a portion of the charge in his head. A piece of his skull an inch square was carried away, leaving his brain exposed. Hopes are entertained of his recovery. Great excitement was caused in Ennis by the accident, it having been at first reported as an agrarian outrage.

It will be recollected, says the Belfast Examiner, that a paragraph appeared in the Examiner of the 20th ult., under the heading, "Tenant Right on Lord Lurgan's Estate," and giving the circumstances connected with an intended sale of a small farm of land held by John McCann, blacksmessey, and where his lordship's bailiff was sent on the day of auction to prohibit it. The sale went on, and the purchaser declared at £100, and £2 10s. fees. Nine days rolled round to the sale McCann and the purchaser were served with notices that any sale proposing to pass the tenant right interest without the sanction of Lord Lurgan was contrary to the usage of the estate, etc. The effect seized to scare the purchaser, but, as a solution of the difficulty, purchased from McCann at £102 10s., and cousinly had the license issued in his name, and the house was unroofed and the key delivered to an adjoining tenant, who in vain insisted that he did not buy it.

CLARE.

A special meeting of the members of the county Clare Farmers' Club was held on Saturday at their rooms, Francis street, Kilrush, for the appointment of a President and other officers. Mr. Patrick Spellisy said he had much pleasure in proposing Mr. Samuel Scarlet as President of the Club. Mr. James McInerny seconded the motion. The proposition being put was carried with acclamation. The President, in returning thanks for the honor of electing him their President, said he believed he was a landlord; he still believed the interests of the tenant should be protected as well as of its landlord.

CORK.

Last week a portion of the bone manufactory of Messrs. W. H. Goulding & Co., at Cork, was destroyed by fire. The corporation hose was on the spot, but the presence of water was insufficient, owing to the fact that the factory is situated in a remote part of the suburbs.

There will be general and genuine sorrow, says the Nation, at the news of removal from among us of one of the most amiable, gentle and kindly gentlemen that ever adorned our community. Mr. James Murphy has passed away in his seventy-eighth year. Mr. Murphy was a native of this city, son of the late venerable James Murphy, of Ringsenbon, one of a number of brothers, who have completed a Bishop of Cork and several others distinguished by their enmity and public usefulness. He was himself a brother of the beloved and happily still surviving Archdeacon Murphy. Besides being a magistrate, he was a supply-housekeeper, and in addition he was a director of the gas and other local governments.

The annual meeting of the Liberal Registration Committee of Bandon was held on Friday evening week, and almost all the members attended. The Rev. John Barry, C. C., was called to the chair, and after referring to Mr. Swanston's parliamentary conduct in most flattering terms, called on the Secretary (Mr. George Kingston Sherlock) to read the annual report. Mr. Sherlock then gave a most satisfactory view of the past year's proceedings and the result of the late revision, by which it appeared that the Liberal party had made great strides, and especially at the late revision had carried all before them—a statement that was received with loud applause, the party being now in a vast working majority of 23.

GALWAY.

The Rev. P. Kiernan, C. C., who acted as manager of the Boys' Industrial School, Salthill, Galway, since its establishment, has resigned, and will be succeeded in the management of the institution by the Rev. R. Gahan, P. P., Oranmore, who will reside in the school, where an entire suite of apartments has been placed at his disposal.

KERRY.

Dr. Lawlor, who has been one of the dispensary doctors in Tralee for a period of twenty-one years, sent in his resignation to the dispensary committee last week on the score of failing health, and asked for a superannuation allowance. The resignation was accepted, and the committee, by 13 votes to 10, recommended that Dr. Lawlor, in consideration of his long and valuable service, should get the maximum pension the law allows.

Lately there lived at Flimby, near Tralee, a family named Mason, consisting of a father and mother, with their children Oliver and Alice. The father died in May last. Soon afterwards the mother died, and about a month ago the young man, Oliver Mason, leaving Alice alone surviving. The body of the young man was exhumed, and symptoms being found in the stomach, his sister was taken into custody charged with the murder. Soon then the bodies of the mother and father have been exhumed. In the stomach of the mother Dr. Cremen has deposed that he found large quantities of arsenic. The analysis in the case of the father has not yet been completed.

KILKENNY.

A meeting of the parishioners of St. Canice's, Kilkenny, was held on the 30th October, to express sympathy with the Imperial priest (Very Rev. Dean McDonald) in the matter of the annoyance to which he has been subjected by the Celtic legal proceedings. A subscription was set on foot to enable him to meet the expenses of those proceedings, and a considerable sum was subscribed—S. O. Bryan, Esq., M. P., giving £20, and R. Wadsworth, Esq., M. P., £50. In sending his subscription, Mr. Wadsworth writes:—I have no sympathy with Father O'Keefe, who should leave the Church if he is not prepared to obey its rules."

LONDONDERRY.

At the petty sessions court of Londonderry an opposition was made on behalf of Mr. Thomas McConnell, of the firm of McCosker & Co., whiskey grocers, to have a warrant issued for the arrest of Benjamin T. Cullen and Thomas Irwin two sub-constables. The application was founded on the sworn information of Mr. McConnell, who stated that on Sunday morning, about two o'clock, in consequence of information from one of his female servants, he went to the hall door of his private house at Crawford Square. Standing at the foot of the steps leading to the door he saw a sub-constable, and leaning against him another man who appeared to be a civilian. Mr. McConnell asked the sub-constable who that was the man with him, and what was the matter with him? He (the sub-constable) who has taken ill on the Asylum road." Mr. McConnell descended the steps, and then he discovered that the person he believed was a civilian was another sub-constable under the influence of drink. He then asked what had brought them there to disturb respectable people at that hour, and was immediately struck round the throat by one of the sub-constables (Cullen), while the other (Irwin) caught him and struck him by the left arm. His wife brought him a stick which he smashed over Cullen's head. After some difficulty he managed to escape from their hold and get into the house. He spoke to them through the dining-room window, and Irwin went down on his knees and begged of him not to prosecute them. Constable McLaughlin afterwards came up and took them into custody. After a short consultation the presiding magistrate agreed to issue the warrant. Late in the afternoon the offenders were brought up in custody before Captain Hughes, who admitted them out on bail to appear on Thursday before the local justices in petty sessions.

LOUTH.

Martin Spellissy, a farmer, died last week, near Boonbeg, aged, says the Irish Times, 100 years. His only child, a daughter, died a few years ago, at the age of 70. She left behind her a fully five years older than her husband.

Sir Peter Tait's large army clothing factory in Limerick was closed last week in consequence of the firm having only a few work for their numerous employes of both sexes. Over 600 hands have been thrown out of employment.

Last week a deputation of about thirty members of the Manchester Corporation, headed by the President, Mr. John Godsell, and composed of representatives of the various trades who had been engaged in the recent strike, waited upon the Mayor, A. Heil, Esq., and his town hall, and presented him with an illuminated address expressive of their gratitude for the valuable assistance which he had rendered in bringing to a satisfactory termination the matters in dispute.

At the meeting of the Limerick Board of Guardians, held on Saturday, several fellows were among the applicants for admission. They confessed that they were lately discharged from jail, after undergoing imprisonment for vagrancy. They, with others, were in the habit of nightly frequenting a friendly lime kiln in the suburbs, and there ensued themselves by playing leap frog, jumping, potatoes, and such like, to refresh themselves, and which they appropriated and stole from any neighboring farmer. Their doing so having been reported to the police station nearest the lime kiln, a raid was made on the jolly paupers, their capture effected, and finally they received sentence for their offence. Now that hardy fellows were reared in the workhouse, there appeared to the Guardians said, a curious illustration of how the Poor Law works here. One of the fellows coolly informed the Guardians that he left a situation where he received £20 yearly, the pay being too small. The others made excuses that they had left their employment because but were refused; but the Guardians said they were idle vagabonds, and those who would not work at any honest calling. They were all rejected by the Board, much to the amusement of those in the house, who, the master said, could be made useful in the house.

LOUTH.

The solemn and impressive ceremony of profession took place, says the Dundalk Democrat, in the chapel of the convent of Our Lady of Mercy, Dundalk, on Wednesday week. The young ladies who received the black veil from his Grace the Primate were Della Duffy, Mary Anne Bligh, Nanny Carr, of the late John McGough, Esq., Prior Hill House (in religion, Sister Mary Columba), Miss Hughes, Miss Mary Ann Malone, Esq., Heinstown (in religion, Sister Mary Regis).

On Thursday week a deputation from Dundalk, consisting of Messrs. Michael Kelly, J. P.; James Murphy, E. H. Mecredie, J. P.; Thomas Hughes, Andrew O'Neill, Patrick Hagarty and James Carroll, waited on Colonel Hardy, J. P., at his residence, Mountain Lodge, Newry, and presented him with a purse containing upwards of eighty sovereigns, as a testimonial by the people of Dundalk as a testimonial to the reverend gentleman on the appointment to the parish of Upper Kilkeny. After the presentation, Father Hardy entertained the members of the deputation and a number of other friends at dinner.

QUEEN'S COUNTY.

A meeting of the ratepayers and people of the town of Maryborough was held in the town hall last week, Mr. John Gaskell, J. P., in the chair, to consider the advisability of sanctioning the Board of Guardians, as the sanitary authority, borrowing £1,000 to complete the main drainage of the town.

On Wednesday week a farmer named Graham died at Ballyfinn, a place about five miles from Maryborough. He had been engaged on the farm, on to a cousin, William Graham, residing in Mountmellick. On Wednesday night a wake was being held in the house of the dead man, when about two o'clock the two brothers, Buchanan and Forbes, and his sister Ada Jade, arrived, and, it is alleged, took the furniture out of the house, quenched the fire, and went through some other form of taking possession, winding up by calling the corpse out of the bed, placing it on a chair, and taking it to their own house, in the neighborhood, where the wake was resumed. The parties were arrested and brought before the Court of petty sessions, at Mountrath, whose Rochfort, Parkes and Adelaide Grahams were sent to the county jail. They were liberated on bail on Friday week, but were again brought upon Saturday at a special Court at Mountrath, and sent forward for trial, bail being accepted for their appearance.

ROSCOMMON.

A sad accident, says the Roscommon Messenger of Saturday, occurred on Thursday last, whereby the wife of a small farmer named Duffy, living near Kilglass, lost her life. She and her husband went on that day to sell a firkin of butter at the market of Carrick on Shannon, and here, as is too usual, they were delayed till a late hour before being paid, and the night being exceedingly dark, on the road home the cart on which they were sitting at an unprotected portion of the road within half a mile of Hill street, on the Strokestown side. The poor woman fell underneath and was smothered in the ditch before she could be found and released, while her husband had a narrow escape.

SLIGO.

An election took place on Wednesday week in Sligo for the purpose of filling up the vacancies in the harbor board created by outgoing members. The members on the occasion were Messrs. Robert Crawford and Simon Cullen (representatives of businessholders), Harper Campbell and Simon O'Connor (representatives of traders). There was no opposition to any of the four gentlemen, all of whom were returned.

TIPPERARY.

The Nenagh Guardians have received a sealed order, dated 17th November, from the Local Government Board, sanctioning the expenditure of £1,000 to make sewers in the town of Nenagh.

At the Nenagh petty sessions on Saturday, Mr. C. Going in the chair, and six other magistrates in attendance, Mr. John Bull was unanimously elected clerk of petty sessions in place of his father, Mr. William Bull, who resigned, after having held that office for forty years.

An unfortunate man named John Healy, a cooper, was arrested last week by the Nenagh police because he had the misfortune to resemble an escaped convict described in the Hue and Cry. A warden, who came from Spike Island for the purpose of identification, and the prisoner was not the man, wanted upon which Healy was dismissed.

On Friday week Mrs. Bourke, sen., says the Freeman, accompanied by her daughter, the widow of the late Captain Bourke, with her now at Killenaia House), paid a visit to her husband, Martin Bourke, who with his son are now tried for the murder of Mr. Stephen Scanlan. She was permitted to see her husband in the hospital of the Nenagh jail, where he is now lying very ill. Her husband is suffering from heart disease. Mrs. Scanlan remained in the carriage outside the jail gate waiting for her mother's return. After some time she noticed the latter would be too long for her to wait, so she drove to the hotel. In the evening both returned to Killenaia House. Old Mrs. Bourke did not ask to see her son. Martin Bourke is in his 76th year, and is so prostrated with heart disease that it is considered impossible for him to survive till next assizes.

Anne Sheehan, a farmer's daughter, of Templederry, pays the Nenagh Guardian, as the papers say, "of prepossessing appearance," has received, and Murdock was soon thereafter removed. while Joyce and McDonald continued to thrive, and on one occasion gave Murdock a thrashing for having confessed. It is regarded as strange that the Government did not make use of the information. Joyce is now at an evicted date.

General McDonald, now in jail, is said to have confessed complicity in the whisky ring. The scheme grew out of an order from Washington to collect prompt duty. The machinery once in order, it occurred to them that it would be easy to collect money for their own use, and it was done. He states that Avery is innocent, that the notes and telegrams attributed to General Babcock are genuine, but none of them referred to the whisky ring. He expressed that during the late Collector Ford's administration a woman employed in the office was ambushed to act as his deputy that considerable controversy sprung out of this arrangement, and that Babcock's telegrams all had reference to this woman, not the official position she occupied. Collector Ford was interrogated upon the ring by McKee of the Globe Democrat, who was well paid for his story work.

TYRONE.

We thought the age of superstition had departed in this favored land of education, and that the old beliefs in banshees, fairies and bobgoblins had, with the advance of science, fled from our shores within our borders. In the Ballygawley petty sessions court-house, on last Friday, however, as the last petty sessions held there discloses. A farmer had a charge against one of his neighbors for the theft of milk" from his cow by pulling a certain number of straws from out the thatch of the cow-house, and using at the same time a certain incantation favoring such, and of an old gentleman usually represented by having a cloven foot and other insignia of an unbeautiful appearance. The plaintiff was prepared to prove that such an act had been committed by the accused, and that from that it was not giving him the requisite amount of milk, but whether or not he would have succeeded in the way he had done in consequence of the act mentioned, we cannot say, as the magistrates dismissed the case at once.

WEXFORD.

The Enniscorthy Board of Guardians, presided over by Lord Carew, have resolved to employ the Jubilee nurse as nurses in the workhouse hospital, and, in accordance with the request of the Catholic clergy, have appointed a nurse of their own to be always in attendance to attend Mass every morning to the Cathedral.

A startling and important special from St. Louis states that Lindsey Murdock, Collector of Internal Revenue for the Missouri District in 1870, was engaged with Joyce and McDonald in defrauding the Government. In June of that year, overcome by fear, he wrote a full confession, sworn to before a Judge, and sent the sworn and certified affidavits to Washington, one to President Grant, one to Babcock and the other to Secretary Richardson. No response was received, and Murdock was soon thereafter removed. while Joyce and McDonald continued to thrive, and on one occasion gave Murdock a thrashing for having confessed. It is regarded as strange that the Government did not make use of the information. Joyce is now at an evicted date.

THE WEEKLY SUN.

1776. NEW YORK. 1876.

Eighteen hundred and seventy six is the centennial year. It includes the year in which the portico House of Representatives, the first stone (the corner stone) of the Washington and last year of the twenty-fifth year (one of a President of the United States. All of these events are matters of great interest and importance, especially the (whether) and the year of (and) and every one of them with which it will be fully and freshly reported and expounded in The Sun.

The opposition House of Representatives, taking the field in March next, will be a new body, with new organization and new leaders, and the Republican majorities and hundreds of (heavy) administration (men) will be in the report of the investigations (of) and ornamental branch (ought) in the last four years of (the) administration.

The first term of the Tenth Annual Session of Centennial will be in (1876).

TERMS:

DAILY, by mail, (postage prepaid in advance) Every day except Sundays, one year.....$6 00
Every day except Sundays, six months.....3 00
Every day except Sundays, one month.....0 60
Every day including Sundays, one year.....7 70
Every day including Sundays, six months.....3 85
Every day including Sundays, one month.....0 65

THE SUNDAY SUN, a large four page newspaper of twenty-eight columns, gives all the news for two cents a copy. Subscription, postage prepaid, for a month or $1.20 a year, twenty-four cents a month or $2.60 per year. We have no traveling agents. Address,

THE SUN, New York City.

The Prince in India.

The Prince of Wales has been moving along at a pace called Poonah. Great crowds of salaaming natives looked on at the royal pageant, and there was much triumph, colored lanterns, festoons of flowers, triumphal arches, flags, salutes and volleys —everything, in fact, but the element of popular welcome. Natives by tens of thousands stare listlessly at the passing show, but starting seems quite to satisfy or stupefy them, for neither by mouth or hand do they give any active token of feeling. The reason of this we take to be that they have no particular feeling to express. Indeed, for that matter, why should they? Here and there we find addresses and replies exchanged between the native folk and the Prince, the emanations of cordial feeling on both sides being probably specimens of the literary work of her Majesty's civil servants.

At Poonah, one of the arches bore a truly heroic and unmistakably British motto: "John Bull and Rose Bud Forever." Another, addressed directly to the mind of the royal visitor, bore this sweetly-simple request, "Tell Mamma we are very glad to see you." The Prince, let us add, ought to be glad to see them as well, if it is true, as we find it stated, that the native princes are preparing for him sumptuous presents. For instance, it is reported that the Maharajah of Cashmere will give him a gold chair, a jeweled sword worth four thousand pounds, some shawls of the value of a thousand pounds apiece, and so on to the tune of a very pretty lump. Considering that only sixty thousand pounds was voted by the House of Commons for the journey from the Prince to the native chiefs, it strikes us that H. R. H. will not rather a shabby figure among those lordly Easterns, unless, indeed, he should take advantage of the absence of spreadeagleism, and come right away home again before the splendid gifts of the Nabobs shame the shallowness of the royal purse.—Dublin Weekly News, November 20.

It is alleged that Count Spee, brother-in-law of Count Bruhl, recently made overtures to the Papal party associating himself, or the Crown Prince of Germany, when he came to the throne, would inaugurate a more lenient policy towards the Catholic Church, and that a negative was returned on behalf of the Prince.

Grant's right-hand man and private Secretary, General Orville Babcock, having been convicted of about a thousand criminal acts, was suggested as a proper personage for foreign mission, by the Cincinnati Commercial.

LEGAL NOTICES.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE FOURTH Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the City and County of San Francisco.—N. T. SHAW, plaintiff, vs. A. V. SHAW, defendant.—Action brought in the District Court of the Fourth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the City and County of San Francisco, and the complaint filed in said City and County of San Francisco.

The People of the State of California send greeting to A. V. SHAW, defendant. You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above named plaintiff in the District Court of the Fourth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the City and county of San Francisco, and to answer the complaint filed in said city and county of San Francisco, within ten days after the service on you of this summons—if served within this county; or if served elsewhere within thirty days—or you will be notified that unless you appear and answer as above required, the said plaintiff will take judgment for any money or damages demanded in the complaint, as arrested for the relief demanded in the complaint.

Given under my hand and the seal of the District Court of the Fourth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the City and county of San Francisco, this 24 day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy-five. [L.s.]

WILLIAM MABNEY, Clerk.
By JAMES M. ASHOE, Deputy Clerk.
J. HOWARD SMITH, 521 Sansome street, attorney for plaintiff.

STATE OF CALIFORNIA—IN JUSTICES Court of the City and County of San Francisco. Action brought in said Court and the complaint filed in said City and County.

PATRICK CAVANAUGH, plaintiff, vs. ALFRED A. WEST, defendant.

The People of the State of California to ALFRED A. WEST, greeting: You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above named plaintiff, in the Justices' Court of the City and county of San Francisco, and to answer the complaint filed in said city and county within ten days after the service on you of this summons.

The said action is brought to recover $200 in gold coin, with interest at one per cent. per month on the sum of $100, from the 15th day of September, 1875, until the date said named, to the plaintiff for $200, for the use of money by defendant from plaintiff, and for failure to appear and answer the said complaint as above required, the said plaintiff will take judgment for said amount and interest due, together with costs of suit.

The action has been assigned, and you are required to appear and answer on the 27th day of November, 1875, at 10 o'clock A. M.

Witness my hand this 15th day of September, 1875.

By order of HENRY I. JOACHIMSEN, [L.s.] Presiding Justice of the Peace of the City and County of San Francisco.

OSH. I. WERRIEN, Clerk of said Court.
By C. A. LOMBARD, Deputy Clerk.
JAMES KEN, attorney for plaintiff, 421 Clay street, and 8th Municipal District, San Francisco. ad13m

EDUCATIONAL.

SAINT MARY'S COLLEGE

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

Conducted by the Christian Brothers

Offers every facility for acquiring a thorough Education, whether Classical, Scientific or Commercial.

Those who complete the Classical Course receive the degree of A. B.; the Scientific, B. S.; the Commercial, Master of Accounts.

The Commercial course has been established for the convenience of those who wish to acquire a good business education in as short a time as possible.

The French language is taught in every branch taught in the College, and is the language of special attention. The daily exercises of the students in Grammar, Composition and Rhetoric are publicly criticised and corrected in the class-room.

TERMS PER SCHOLASTIC YEAR.

(Payable half-yearly in advance).

Board, Tuition and Washing.....$250 00
Entrance Fee.....10 00
Physician's Fee and Medicines.....5 00
Use of Bed and Bedding.....10 00
Use of Library.....2 00
Modern languages, Music and drawing form extra charges.
Studies will be resumed on the 5th of August, 1875.
BRO. TEOPHANE, President.

ST. VINCENT'S SCHOOL.

THIS INSTITUTION IS SITUATED IN SANTA Barbara, a short distance from the sea, in the most healthy part of the city. The grounds are extensive, and the building is large and commodious.

The course of instruction embraces the usual branches taught in the best Academies. Spanish is also taught.

TERMS

(Invariably half-yearly in advance)

Board, tuition, bed, bedding, washing, etc., per session.....$100 00
Piano, and use of instruments, per month.....$3 50 @ 5 00
Harp, per month.....$3 00
No extra charge for Plain sewing, Fancy Needlework or Drawing.

The extensive year of the months and a half constitutes the session. Next session will open on the last Thursday in June.

For further particulars apply to

SISTERS OF CHARITY,
1938 Santa Barbara, Cal.

COLLEGE OF NOTRE DAME,

SAN JOSE, CALIFORNIA.

YOUNG LADIES' INSTITUTE.

THIS INSTITUTION, WHICH IS INCORPORated according to the laws of its State and empowered to confer academical honors, will commence its Twenty-sixth Annual Session on MONDAY August 2, 1875. The course of instruction embraces all the branches of a thorough education.

TERMS:

Entrance, to be paid for once.....$15 00
Board and Tuition, per quarter.....$75 00
Washing, per quarter.....$12 00
Physicians' fees (unless it may be preferred to pay the attending physician) per quarter.....$ 5 00

Piano, Vocal Music, Drawing and Painting form extra charges, but there is no extra charge for the French, Spanish or German languages, nor for Plain and Ornamental Needlework.

Pupils are required to be provided with a Bible, Prayer Book, Spoon, Fork, Knife, Napkin and Silver Goblet, all to be present at the opening of the Session. au7-1f

ST. CATHERINE'S ACADEMY,

FOR YOUNG LADIES.

BENICIA ..... CALIFORNIA.

THIS INSTITUTION IS CONDUCTED BY THE Sisters of St. Dominic, and is situated in the most delightful and accessible town of Benicia. The plan of education embraces the various branches of instruction necessary to form the most accomplished ladies for young ladies. Pupils of any religious denomination will be received, and, for the sake of uniformity, all are required to be present at the regular religious exercises of the Church.

The next session will commence on the first Monday on the 16th of August, and ends about the middle of June, 1876. Terms, including bedding, washing and tuition (with the exception of Music and Drawing) during the session, except in case of sickness or dismissal, $250 per year. No deduction will be made for absence from date of entrance.

TERMS:

One year (payable half-yearly in advance).....$250 00
Entrance Fee.....10 00
Physician's Fee and Medicines.....5 00
Use of Ceiling.....40 00
Use of Piano.....50 00
Modern languages, Music and drawing form extra charges.

The scholastic Year, which is divided into two sessions of five months each, commences on the first Monday in August, and ends about the middle of June.

Washing, Fuel, Lights, Bedding and Medicines, Extra. Fee.

CONVENT OF OUR LADY OF THE SACRED HEART,

OAKLAND ..... CALIFORNIA.

Conducted by the Sisters of the Holy Names of Jesus and Mary.

THIS INSTITUTION IS PLEASANTLY SITUated between Webster street and Lake, and commanding an extensive frontage on the Estuary, combines every advantage that is required in the modern improvements—as regards healthy location, and is easily accessible from all parts.

The course of study embraces the various branches taught in first-class Academies.

TERMS (payable half yearly in advance).

Board and Tuition, per month.....$20 00
Washing.....2 00
Use and bedding, without sheets (if supplied by the institution).....2 00
Physician's fee, Music, Drawing and Painting form extra charges.

For further particulars apply to

MOTHER SUPERIORESS.

NOTRE DAME ACADEMY,

SAN FRANCISCO.

THIS ACADEMY, WHICH IS CONDUCTED by the Sisters of Notre Dame, is most delightfully situated, opposite the Mission Church, between Second and Third streets. The pure and desirable location in every way, the class-rooms are fitted up with a view to the enjoyment and the mental advantage of the young ladies confided to their care, and as a consequence they present an attractive appearance for beautiful exercise during the intervals of study.

The course of instruction embraces every useful and ornamental branch taught in the best literary institutions of the country.

The first term of the Tenth Annual Session will commence July 19, 1875.

TERMS:

Per quarter session (payable in advance).....$ 50 00
Board, including bed, use of bedding, washing, fuel and lights.....$ 40 00
Drawing and Painting.....$ 10 00
Vocal Music and use of Piano.....$ 10 00

DAY PUPILS.

Tuition per month (in advance).....$ 2 00
Tuition per month in the Primary Department.....$ 1 00
Tuition per quarter in the Preparatory Department.....$ 3 00
Tuition per quarter in the Higher Department.....$ 5 00

EXTRA CHARGES.

For the use of Instruments in Musical Philosophy and Chemicals, each year, per month.....$ 1 00
For the use of Instruments, as above, each year.....$ 10 00

(Payable half-yearly in advance).

Matriculation Fee, to be paid but once.....$ 5 00
Graduation Fee.....$ 10 00
Use of Library.....$ 2 00
Use of Philosophical Apparatus.....$ 5 00
Use of Chemicals.....$ 5 00
Use of Instruments, each.....$ 10 00
Modern Languages, Drawing and Music form extra charges.
Use of Bed, Bedding, Washing, Fuel, Lights and Medicine, Extra. Fee.

CONVENT OF OUR LADY OF THE SACRED HEART,

OAKLAND ..... CALIFORNIA.

Conducted by the Sisters of the Holy Names of Jesus and Mary.

THIS INSTITUTION IS PLEASANTLY SITUated between Webster street and Lake, and commanding an extensive frontage on the Estuary, combines every advantage that is required in the modern improvements—as regards healthy location, and is easily accessible from all parts.

The course of study embraces the various branches taught in first-class Academies.

TERMS (payable half yearly in advance).

Board and Tuition, per month.....$20 00
Washing.....2 00
Use and bedding, without sheets (if supplied by the institution).....2 00
Physician's fee, Music, Drawing and Painting form extra charges.

For further particulars apply to

MOTHER SUPERIORESS.

NOTRE DAME ACADEMY,

SAN FRANCISCO.

THIS ACADEMY, WHICH IS CONDUCTED by the Sisters of Notre Dame, is most delightfully situated, opposite the Mission Church, between Second and Third streets. The pure and desirable location in every way, the class-rooms are fitted up with a view to the enjoyment and the mental advantage of the young ladies confided to their care, and as a consequence they present an attractive appearance for beautiful exercise during the intervals of study.

The course of instruction embraces every useful and ornamental branch taught in the best literary institutions of the country.

The first term of the Tenth Annual Session will commence July 19, 1875.

TERMS:

Per quarter session (payable in advance).....$ 50 00
Board, including bed, use of bedding, washing, fuel and lights.....$ 40 00
Drawing and Painting.....$ 10 00
Vocal Music and use of Piano.....$ 10 00

DAY PUPILS.

Tuition per month (in advance).....$ 2 00
Tuition per month in the Primary Department.....$ 1 00
Tuition per quarter in the Preparatory Department.....$ 3 00
Tuition per quarter in the Higher Department.....$ 5 00

EXTRA CHARGES.

For the use of Instruments, as above, each year.....$ 10 00

(Payable half-yearly in advance).

Matriculation Fee, to be paid but once.....$ 5 00
Graduation Fee.....$ 10 00
Use of Library.....$ 2 00
Use of Philosophical Apparatus.....$ 5 00
Use of Chemicals.....$ 5 00
Use of Instruments, each.....$ 10 00
Modern Languages, Drawing and Music form extra charges.
Use of Bed, Bedding, Washing, Fuel, Lights and Medicine, Extra. Fee.

CONVENT OF OUR LADY OF THE SACRED HEART,

OAKLAND ..... CALIFORNIA.

Conducted by the Sisters of the Holy Names of Jesus and Mary.

THIS INSTITUTION IS PLEASANTLY SITUated between Webster street and Lake, and commanding an extensive frontage on the Estuary, combines every advantage that is required in the modern improvements—as regards healthy location, and is easily accessible from all parts.

The course of study embraces the various branches taught in first-class Academies.

TERMS (payable half yearly in advance).

Board and Tuition, per month.....$20 00
Washing.....2 00
Use and bedding, without sheets (if supplied by the institution).....2 00
Physician's fee, Music, Drawing and Painting form extra charges.

For further particulars apply to

MOTHER SUPERIORESS.

SANTA CLARA COLLEGE,

SANTA CLARA ..... CALIFORNIA.

Under the management of the Fathers of the Society of Jesus.

THE SANTA CLARA COLLEGE WAS FIRST opened in 1851, and in 1855 was incorporated, with full powers to confer academical honors. Departments—Collegiate and Scientific.

The College possesses a very complete philosophical apparatus, and a well-selected library of 8,000 volumes.

The Collegiate course comprises a thorough English, Classical and Commercial education.

The Scholastic Year, which is divided into two sessions of five months each, commences on the first Monday in August, and ends about the middle of June, 1876. Terms, including bedding and washing, $250 per session. Entrance fee, to be paid only once, $10. Physician's fee and Medicines, Extra. Fee.

Modern Languages, Drawing and Music form extra charges.

Washing will be required once a week. Students are required to provide themselves with a Bible, Prayer Book, Spoon, Fork, Knife, Napkin and Silver Goblet, all to be marked with the owner's name.

For further particulars apply to the Superior of the College.

SANTA CLARA COLLEGE,

SANTA CLARA ..... CALIFORNIA.

Under the management of the Fathers of the Society of Jesus.

THE SANTA CLARA COLLEGE WAS FIRST opened in 1851, and in 1855 was incorporated, with full powers to confer academical honors. Departments—Collegiate and Scientific.

The College possesses a very complete philosophical apparatus, and a well-selected library of 8,000 volumes.

The Collegiate course comprises a thorough English, Classical and Commercial education.

The Scholastic Year, which is divided into two sessions of five months each, commences on the first Monday in August, and ends about the middle of June, 1876. Terms, including bedding and washing, $250 per session. Entrance fee, to be paid only once, $10. Physician's fee and Medicines, Extra. Fee.

Modern Languages, Drawing and Music form extra charges.

Washing will be required once a week. Students are required to provide themselves with a Bible, Prayer Book, Spoon, Fork, Knife, Napkin and Silver Goblet, all to be marked with the owner's name.

For further particulars apply to the Superior of the College.

FRANCISCAN COLLEGE,

SANTA BARBARA ..... CALIFORNIA.

THE NINTH SESSION OF THE COLLEGE will commence on the first Monday in August, 1875. Students will be received at any time during the session, and will be charged from the date of entrance.

The object of the institution is to give a practical education, Classical and Philosophical, at the lowest possible rate, and thereby place it within the reach of all.

TERMS.

Entrance Fee (to be paid but once).....$ 5 00
Tuition, Board and Washing, per session.....$150 00
Physician's Fee.....Extra.
Music, French and German form extra charges.
Payments will be required semi-annually in advance.
Parents will pay for medical attendance.
Clothing.....Extra.
Money will not be advanced by the College for expenses of pupils, unless by written order.
For further particulars apply to
REV. J. M. RONO, S. A.

SANTA CLARA ADVERTISEMENTS.

CAMERON HOUSE,

SANTA CLARA, CAL.

MARTIN CORCORAN ..... Proprietor.

MR. CORCORAN, having purchased the above well-known and popular House, is now thoroughly refitting the same in the most complete manner, and will spare no pains to merit the liberal patronage of the public. Having for three successive terms filled the position of Steward of the College, he is in a position to cater to the wants of the Clergy and Students, and solicits a share of their patronage. Rates reasonable. au14-1f

SAN JOSE MARBLE WORKS.

E. POWER, Sculptor

STATUARY, TOMBS, MANTEL PIECES, ETC.

And every description of MARBLE WORK.

DESIGNING, MODELING, ETC.

And every price and description of Monumental and Ornamental work a specialty.

MENEELY'S BELL FOUNDRY,

WEST TROY, NEW YORK.

Established in 1826.

CHURCH, ACADEMY, FACTORY & FARM Bells, made of copper and tin, warranted perfect. For prices and catalogues apply to MENEELY & COMPANY,
West Troy, N. Y.

ST. IGNATIUS COLLEGE.

SAN FRANCISCO,

Conducted by the Fathers of the Society of Jesus.

THE LITERARY INSTITUTION incorporated, according to the laws of the State, on the 26th day of April, 1855, and empowered to confer academical degrees, such literary honors as are granted by any University in the United States.

The design of the Institution is to give a thorough practical, scientific and Philosophical education, to those who intend to enter upon the active duties of life, or to pursue a classical course preparatory to the study of a profession.

The College possesses a very complete philosophical apparatus, and a well-selected library of 8,000 volumes.

TERMS PER MONTH

(Payable in advance):

Tuition, in Preparatory Department.....$ 2 00
Tuition, in Classical Department.....$ 3 00
Tuition, in Higher Department.....$ 5 00

EXTRA CHARGES.

For the use of Instruments in Musical Philosophy and Chemicals, each year, per month.....$ 1 00
For the use of Instruments, as above, each year.....$ 10 00

(Payable half-yearly in advance).

Matriculation Fee, to be paid but once.....$ 5 00
Graduation Fee.....$ 10 00
Use of Library.....$ 2 00
Use of Philosophical Apparatus.....$ 5 00
Use of Chemicals.....$ 5 00
Use of Instruments, each.....$ 10 00
Modern languages, Music and drawing form extra charges.
Use of Bed, Bedding, Washing, Fuel, Lights and Medicine, Extra. Fee.

CONVENT OF OUR LADY OF THE SACRED HEART,

OAKLAND ..... CALIFORNIA.

Conducted by the Sisters of the Holy Names of Jesus and Mary.

THIS INSTITUTION IS PLEASANTLY SITUated between Webster street and Lake, and commanding an extensive frontage on the Estuary, combines every advantage that is required in the modern improvements—as regards healthy location, and is easily accessible from all parts.

The course of study embraces the various branches taught in first-class Academies.

TERMS (payable half yearly in advance).

Board and Tuition, per month.....$20 00
Washing.....2 00
Use and bedding, without sheets (if supplied by the institution).....2 00
Physician's fee, Music, Drawing and Painting form extra charges.

For further particulars apply to

MOTHER SUPERIORESS.

NOTRE DAME ACADEMY,

SAN FRANCISCO.

THIS ACADEMY, WHICH IS CONDUCTED by the Sisters of Notre Dame, is most delightfully situated, opposite the Mission Church, between Second and Third streets. The pure and desirable location in every way, the class-rooms are fitted up with a view to the enjoyment and the mental advantage of the young ladies confided to their care, and as a consequence they present an attractive appearance for beautiful exercise during the intervals of study.

The course of instruction embraces every useful and ornamental branch taught in the best literary institutions of the country.

The first term of the Tenth Annual Session will commence July 19, 1875.

TERMS:

Per quarter session (payable in advance).....$ 50 00
Board, including bed, use of bedding, washing, fuel and lights.....$ 40 00
Drawing and Painting.....$ 10 00
Vocal Music and use of Piano.....$ 10 00

DAY PUPILS.

Tuition per month (in advance).....$ 2 00
Tuition per month in the Primary Department.....$ 1 00
Tuition per quarter in the Preparatory Department.....$ 3 00
Tuition per quarter in the Higher Department.....$ 5 00

EXTRA CHARGES.

For the use of Instruments, as above, each year.....$ 10 00

(Payable half-yearly in advance).

Matriculation Fee, to be paid but once.....$ 5 00
Graduation Fee.....$ 10 00
Use of Library.....$ 2 00
Use of Philosophical Apparatus.....$ 5 00
Use of Chemicals.....$ 5 00
Use of Instruments, each.....$ 10 00
Modern Languages, Drawing and Music form extra charges.
Use of Bed, Bedding, Washing, Fuel, Lights and Medicine, Extra. Fee.

CONVENT OF OUR LADY OF THE SACRED HEART,

OAKLAND ..... CALIFORNIA.

Conducted by the Sisters of the Holy Names of Jesus and Mary.

THIS INSTITUTION IS PLEASANTLY SITU

A CHRISTMAS HYMN.

Welcome to Thee, heavenly stranger,
Mid'st our waste Thy home to be,
Though Thy birthplace was a manger,
Nations saw her God in Thee.
While Thy lowly home was wanting
All that earthly pride could bring,
Seraphs by the side of Joy were chanting,
Unto Thee, unclad a new-born King.

In Thy stable birthplace lowly
Angels waite Thy behest,
While Thy mother, maiden holy,
Clasp'd Thee to her spotless breast.
Shepherds o'er their flocks were tending
In Bethlehem's lonely plains by night,
Saw the heav'nly host descending,
Filled with wond'ring, stirring delight.

They their flocks left unprotected,
Wandering over the plains afar,
Through devious ways to Thee directed,
By Thy radiant natal star.
Wise men, too, with presents laden,
Myrrh rare and perfumes sweet,
From lands afar, rich robes arrayed in,
Came to worship at Thy feet.

And in adoration kneeling
On Thy hungry straw bed,
While Thy mother, maiden holy,
Watched o'er Thy wee new grip;
God and God-like, condescending,
As the tie-day that saw Thy birth,
Mercy (with Thy justice blending)
Show unto us, son of earth."

Lisbia's then the land of sorrow,
Seat of pain the piercing smart;
Let us hope and comfort borrow
From the love that left Thy part—
Mother, maiden, child all meaning,
Clad the earth in clement cover;
The "better part" let man engage in,
Guided by the hand of peace.

CATHOLIC INTELLIGENCE.

—The will of the late Duke of Modena declares the Holy See heir to his rights over ex-duke Francis.

—On the 12th November Prince Charles, of Solms-Braunfels, died at Rheingrafenstein, after a long and painful illness. Two months before he had been happily reconciled to his Holy Mother Church, and made his profession of faith to Count Von Galen, the parish priest of St. Christopher's at Mayence.

—The St. George's Club, recently established, under the leadership of the Duke of Norfolk, the Marquis of Ripon, the Earl of Denbigh, Lord Petre, and the O'Conor Don, M. P., in the room of the late Stafford Club, was opened on Saturday, November 13th, and even on the first day was admirably well attended. The arrangements and the general decorations of the new Club appear to be really admirable.

—His Holiness Pius IX., the 257th Roman Pontiff, is the 256th successor of St. Peter. Elected Pope on the 16th June and crowned on the 21st June, 1846, the Holy Father is in the 30th year of his Pontificate. Born on the 13th May, 1792, he is in his 84th year. The Sacred College at present comprises within it 56 Cardinals. Of the number of Patriarchs, Primates, Archbishops and Bishops show a grand total of 1,166. Those in the British Empire there are 128 Catholic prelates.

—On Sunday, 31st, ult., his Holiness the Pope, in presence of the Sacred College of Cardinals, promulgated the decree in reference to the proposed beatification of the Venerable Alphonsus of Orsoo, of the Venerable Charles of Sezze, and of the Venerable Ursula of Bologna. On the same day to the Chapel of the Propaganda Monsig. Stephen Bendaji, Bishop of Nicomedia, and M. Jean Hovsep, a layman, appointed the Armenian schism, and were received into the Catholic Church by Cardinal Franchi, Prefect of the Sacred College of the Propaganda.

—On Thursday, 18th November, the Rector and students of the Irish College in Rome went to the Vatican, and were received in audience by his Holiness Pope Pius IX. An address was read by one of the students, Mr. Bartholomew O'Keeffe, of the diocese of Cloyne, in Ireland. Mgr. Kirby laid an offering before his Holiness of the sum of £650 from the Bishops and diocese of Ireland, a few days previously, Mgr. Kirby had presented the Pope with £2,550 from the Cardinal Archbishop and the diocese of Dublin.

—A religious ceremony of a particularly interesting character was performed some weeks ago at the Catholic Cathedral, Hongkong, the Rev. Mr. J. Cullen was ordained to the priesthood by the Bishop of Victoria, Most Rev. Dr. Raimondi. The local press remarks among the event interesting as that no Irishman or Englishman had been previously ordained in Hongkong. Rev. Mr. Cullen is a native of the county Kilkenny, nephew to the late Alderman Cullen, J. P., of that county, and brother-in-law to Mr. John Ryan, T.C., of the firm of Ryan & Poulan, Broad street, Waterford.

—A correspondent of the Freeman, speaking of the arrival at Madras of Most Rev. Dr. Fennell and the nuns of the Presentation Order, who accompanied him from Ireland, gives a very interesting piece of information, which we quote in its entirety: "You may, says the correspondent, "that so far back as 1841 a convent of the Presentation Order was established at Madras, and the late Dr. Fennelly, the foundation coming from the long-established convent in Maynooth. Most likely the date of the establishment of the Order at Madras is perfectly correct, but the credit should not be given to Maynooth, but to the grand old house at Rahan. In the year above mentioned Mother Francis Xavier Cuppen, whose whole ambition, from the moment she entered as Order and took the name of the Apostle of the Indies, was that she might be permitted to literally follow in the footsteps of her patron, left her native land, entered the door into that bound her to what was in its truest sense her Alma Mater, the Rahan Convent, and under the auspices of the late bishop founded the Madras Presentation House. Preaching in her child the service of her Saviour, she labored, and successfully, for thirty-four years in her Master's vineyard, until Mr. 1, last, when she surrendered her pur spirit into the hands of the Almighty. They did, then as a mark of the high appreciation, not only of the saintly virtues of the foundress (Mrs. Cuppen), but of the good zeal in so carrying out the holy aspirations of the Order which so essentially distinguished the ladies of the parish of Rahan, Bishop Dr. Fennelly, on his recent visit to Ireland, made arrangements that in future the Rahan novitiate will be trained in the Rahan establishment."

MAX ADELER'S ARTESIAN WELL.

Max Adeler has the following: They have been boring an artesian well out at the iron foundry, and for sometime the work seemed to go along very slowly. The boring was done with a 160-inch auger fixed in the end of an iron rod, which was twisted around by a wheel worked by two men. One day, after they had gone down a great many feet, they tried to pull the rod out, but it would not come. They were afraid to use much force lest the auger should come off and stay in the hole, and so the boring went along until enough they supposed to keep an inning, and to start to the force of the water, when they struck it, in drive the loose dirt from the hole. When they had gone down about 85 feet further, and one day, just as they were in question his boy came running into the house and told him to come into the garden quick, for there was some kindof an extraordinary animal with a sharp nose burrowing out of the ground. Murphy concluded that it must be either a potato bug or a grasshopper that had been hatched in the spring, and he took out a bottle of bug poison to drop on it when it came up. When Murphy reached the spot there certainly was some kind of a creature slowly pushing its way up through the sod. Its nose seemed to resemble a sharp point like steel. Murphy dropped some poison on it, but it didn't appear to mind the sand, but kept slowly sweeping up from the ground. Then Murphy felt it, and was astonished to find that it felt exactly like the end of a fork prong. He sent the boy in to call Perkins and the rest of the neighbors.

Pretty soon a large crowd collected, and by this time the animal had emerged to the extent of a couple of inches. Everybody was surprised to see that it looked exactly like the end of a large auger, and that its three timid men were so scared at the idea of such a thing actually growing out of the earth that they suddenly got over the fence and left. Perkins couldn't recount for it, but he suggested that maybe somebody might have planted a gimlet there, and it had taken root and blossomed out into an auger; but he admitted that he never heard of such a thing before. Murphy said if that kind of thing would work, he probably might go into the business regularly, and raise crops by planting bunches of augers and sowing pistols. The excitement increased so that the men who were boring the artesian well knocked off at noon over to see the phenomenon. It was noticed that as they stopped work the auger seemed to grow, and when they arrived they looked at it for a minute, and one of them said: "Bill, do you recognize that auger?" "Well, I do," said Bill. "Well, Bill, you go and unbitch that wheel from the other end of the rod." Bill did so; and then the other men asked the crowd to take hold of the auger and pull. They did so, and out came 450 feet of iron rod. That auger had slid off to the side, turned upward, and came to the surface in Murphy's garden. Then the artesian well was abandoned, and Brown, Jones&Brown, bought a steam pump and began to get water from the river.

Denis McCarthy's Grit.

Denis McCarthy, from Cork, aged 28, was admitted to the operating theatre at Mott's clinic, in Bellevue Hospital College on Wednesday. Several months ago a chair struck his upper jaw and cheek bone on the right side. Dr. Mott found a dead or necrosed bone in the wound, which would have to be removed.

"Will you take something, my good fellow, or try it without?" asked Dr. Mott, after the patient had directed himself of coat and vest, and was standing ready beside the table.

Denis' countenance lighted up with pleasant anticipation, but when one of the students brought the whisky jar he turned what the "something" was.

"Drink you, no, sir," he said; "I don't want any."

"Then's a brave fellow," said Mott, encouragingly.

The operation about to be performed is painful and protracted. Seated upon the table with his legs astride, the patient, said, "I'm ready, sir." The doctor made a long incision down to the bone, the line of the injury. Then, with the hands of his knife, he pried back the flesh on each side; ripped the periosteum off the bone, and pushed it back out of the way; cut gingerly with the cutting forceps, and finally the temporal artery here and the carotid gland there, dodging other important vessels and nerves; made the ligations into the interior of Denis' jaw.

Denis continued to smile pleasantly. One of his hands, drooping over the edge of the table, was raised all the while; his breathing was not hurried, and he joined heartily in regularly 92 strokes per minute. Dr. Taylor sopped up the blood with a sponge, as the daily wrought the ragged scalpel inputed no larger roosele the hemorrhage was slight.

The necrosed portions of the bone were reached and taken away. The bone's fissures were sawed—perforated—pincers with keen edges, which seem capable of dividing with almost equal ease a loaf of sugar or the bone of a quill's leg. Denis still maintained his placid demeanor. The touch of the cold steel would make most people shudder, and smagied nerves did not make him shudder, and even at the horrid crunch of the bone he did not wince.

There were instruments to poke in, and others to pull out. Denis was asked not to pry out loose bits, and others to hook on to the flesh here and there when some was taking the bone out of the way. Dr. Mott used all of them, but Denis did not seem conscious that was anything more serious than having his hair cut in the operation.

"Quiegenilant, my man?" asked Dr. Taylor, with kindly insult.

"Oh! I'm in no hurry, sir. Take your own time," responded Denis, smiling.

The operation lasted twenty-seven minutes. Then the pieces of dead bone were taken out, the remaining surfaces smoothed, everything put in place and the incision sewed up. What he had undergone was more painful than having a leg cut off. When all was over he walked off the table, still smiling. The students applauded him heartily.—N. Y. Sun, Dec. 15.

THE CHURCH OF THE POOR.—On last Sabbath the Roman Catholics dedicated their new Cathedral of the Holy Name, situate on the corner of Nass and Superior streets. It is the most beautiful temple in its interior design and execution we have ever seen. There is not a dollar of debt on it, though the property and building cost $200 000. One evening a few days ago we strayed into the temple out of curiosity, and found a half dozen Irish girls and two Irishmen, of the poorer class, walking about and admiring it. Addressing a few inquiries to them we found that they were brimful of happy pride and gratification; and they seemed to think it should be built up with an effected air of pre-ministership. It was their church. They felt just as free and happy as if not much at home in it as if every dollar of it once had been paid out of their own pockets. We must, say, and fire style, please, and quote Scripture, and point to the lessons of history as much as we will, there is not after the mighty fact that less was a Mother Church. And that she is to be home-proof, through the devil himself were inside of it.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

ALL who suffer from coughs, colds, irritation of the bronchial tubes or tendency to consumption, will find in Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry a remedy as agreeable to the palate as effectual in relieving disease. The Balsam is a pleasant remedy; it is a safe remedy; it is a speedy remedy; it is a

TO MARY ON THE DEEP.

It was on a balmy October day
My lovely Mary sailed away
For the distant realms of the Chinese land,
To seek the beauties of the heathen strand;
And oft on fancy's fairy wing
My thoughts have wander'd how to sing
The heart's fond idol within the deep
Which should unveil the pangs of each sad hour.

But, alas! let me to the desert flee,
Where I may tell the tale of my sad woe—
Where none may know nor meet with ever see
The silent pangs which prey on me.

For, you and you alone I love—
I swear it by the almighty powers above;
For you I look, for you I weep,
For you my heart shall ever beat;
For you I think, for you I sigh,
For you the heart beats fond and high.

And until I sink and still I pray
For my safe return on that day
When shall make the heart rejoice,
And feel once more the power of thy sweet voice.
Then the heart shall radiate in all its glee,
And feel the consoling thrills and pleasure of the hour—
When I shall rest the long-looked-for ship
That bears my lovely Mary o'er her long and weary trip!
When I shall once more behold the beauteous form
That has so long enchained my fancy in the royal chain.
And shall forever sit enshrined in my troubled breast
Until time and good heaven shall afford it rest.
M. W.

MORE DARK LANTERNS.

Grant and the Principal Members of his Cabinet Members of an Anti-Catholic Association.

NEW YORK, December 21.—The Herald this morning publishes the text of the constitution of the Order of American Union, a secret order, which, it is alleged, has been used for corrupting elections in the interest of President Grant's administration. It alleges that President Grant, Postmaster General Jewell and ex-Speaker Blaine are members of the Order, besides many other prominent men in politics. It also asserts that the Order has for its aim a decided, persistent, social and political war on all Roman Catholics in this country. It opposes the extension of churches, prevents Catholic citizens from holding offices, and works generally to destroy Ulrich's religion, who will be run by the Order for a third term. Most of the offices holders in the Postoffices and Custom Houses are said to be members of the Order. A Republican secret organization, the counterpart of the Order, is opposed to diversion of the school fund; pledges members to sustain a republican form of government and expel aggressions of the Romanists. The Order was organised in 1867, with the avowed purpose of defranchising Roman Catholics. In national government is called the Senate, while the State organizations are called Legislatures, and those latter are divided into subordinate councils. Speaker Blaine was initiated privately.

And now Senator B. Anthony doesn't favor the Centennial. She has seen so many, that they have become monotonous to her.

Where Does it all Come From?

Pains and gusts of filthy catarrhal discharges. Where does it all come from? The mucous membranes with their secretions, the nose, the bronchial tubes, are diseased, so that they draw from the blood its liquid, and send it out in the shape of the loathsome discharge. The liquid is needed to build up the system, but it is the blood that is diseased, and not the nose. To cure, gain flesh and restore health by using Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. Relief is also sure directly upon these disagreeable symptoms being used by druggists and dealers in medicine.

A Valuable Medical Treatise.

The publishers of the long and standing Medical Annual, known as Hostetter's Almanac, is now ready, and may be obtained, free of cost, of druggists and general country merchants in all parts of the United States and British America, and indeed in every portion of the Western Hemisphere. Those unacquainted with the wonderful practical advice contained in this publication, should send for a copy. An amount of information is given, relative to health, disease, hygiene, antidotes, and miscellaneous statistics, chronological items, &c., which will be found of great value, and will be found entirely accurate. The issue of Hostetter's Almanac for 1876 is pronounced by the press to be a medical work now published in any country. The proprietors, Messrs. Hostetter & Co., Pittsburgh, Pa., on receipt of a two cent stamp, will forward a copy by mail to any person who may request them to do so.

Just Arrived! Just Arrived!

J. M. Ryan, 130 Third street, desires to call the attention of housekeepers to his large and well-assorted stock of the latest styles of the Hungarian jute striped, which he is selling at greatly reduced prices. Any person favoring him with a call will do well to call and examine his stock before purchasing elsewhere.

Wholesale Market Report.

MORTON PECK, San Francisco.]

FLOUR.—We quote the jobbing rates for best Extra Family at $6 @ $6 50; Superfine, $5 @ $5 50.

WHEAT.—The break in the freight market continues somewhat to sustain the prices of Wheat. Shipping is quotable at $1 37½ @ $1 40 for good to choice; $1 37½ @ $1 40 for milling, both of shipping and milling, have been quite large, and the receipts of the week have been liberal, and ordinary coast qualities run from $1 32½ @ $1 40.

BARLEY.—The market is peaceful at $1 17½@ 1 32½ for feed grades; brewing at 1 40@1 55. Chevalier, $1 47½@1 65.

OATS.—Feed are quotable at $1 @ $1 05; Gray, $1 @ $1 10; White, $1 @ $1 10; Surprise, $1 @ $1 10.

HAY.—Quotable at $16@18 per ton.

CORN.—Quotable at $1 @ $1 05 per ctl.

CORN.—Southern white and yellow, $1 @ $1 05 per ctl.

CORN MEAL.—Table varieties, 2½@3c per lb.; feed do., 1½@2c per lb.

BRAN.—We quote $15 @ $16 per ton from mill.

BEANS.—We quote Pinks at $2 50 @ $2 75; small White, $3 @ $3 50; Bayos, $2 @ $2 50; Butters, $3 @ $3 50; Limas, $3 @ $3 50; Blackeyes, $2 @ $2 50 per ctl.

POTATOES.—Are quoted at $1 @ $1 25 per ctl.

MIDDLINGS.—We quote feed at $17 50 @ 18 per ton.

OIL CAKE MEAL.—Quotable at $32 50 @ 35 per ton.

HAY.—We quote Wheat at $14 @ $16 per ton; Wheat and Oat, $13 @ $15; Oat, $12 @ $14; Barley, $12 @ $14; Alfalfa, $12@13; Timothy, nominal.

HIDES.—We quote Salted Steers at 12c; and wet salted at 9c; dry Kip and Calf, quotable; salted do, 7@9c.

TALLOW.—Quotable at 4@5c.

WOOL.—We quote Fall Clip, Northern Dairy, 26@30c; free, 28@33c; and 32@35c for choice fleeces.

HOPS.—California, fresh rod, good to choice, 21@23½c; prime, 20@21c; medium, 18@19c; ordinary, 15@17½c; stale, 10@12½c per lb.

DRIED FRUITS.—Apples, 6@7½c; Peaches, 10@11c. Pears—California, 10@12c; Nectars, 14@16c. Plums—California, 10@12c; Nectars, 14@16c. Prunes—California, 8c; Oregon, 9@10c.

RAISINS.—We quote Layers at $2 @ $2 50; Loose—California, 10@12½c per lb.

CURED MEATS.

HAMS—California, 16@18c per lb.; Eastern, 19@21c. BACON—California, 16@18c per lb.; Eastern, 18@19c. LARD—Quotable at 13@15c in tes, and 16@17c per lb in cans.

FRESH MEATS.

POULTRY—Hens, large, $5 @$6 00; Roosters, $5 @ $6; Broilers, $3 @$3 50 per dozen.

GAME—Quail, $1 @ $1 25 per dozen.

RABBITS—Cottontail, $1 @ $1 25 per dozen.

VEAL—Large, 8@9c per lb.

MUTTON—Wether, 6@7c per lb.

LAMB—Spring, $3 @ $3 50 per dozen.

BEEF—Steers, 6@7c per lb.

PORK—Live, 6@7c per lb.

EGGS—We quote Ranch at 35@37½c per dozen; Eastern, 30@32½c per dozen.

CHEESE—We quote Eastern, 17@18c per lb.

BUTTER—We quote Fresh Ranch at 35@37½c per lb; Fresh Dairy, 30@32½c per lb; Eastern, 30@32½c per lb.

DRY GOODS, ETC.

THE ARCADE,

MARKET STREET, NEAR FOURTH.

NOVELTIES IN SILKS!

NOVELTIES IN DRESS GOODS!

☞ Our arrangements for the Fall season are now complete, and we have at present on exhibition the most extensive assortment of European Novelties ever introduced to the Ladies of California.

DOMESTIC GOODS.

In this department we have now completed all our contracts for the coming season, and are prepared to offer housekeepers every species of Domestic Goods at prices which cannot be approached by any house in San Francisco.

SPECIAL NOTICE.—Two-Button Jouvin Gloves, ☞ $1 50 per Pair. ☜ The immense sale of these Gloves in the past ten days is a distinct indication that the Ladies of San Francisco have now realized the fact that the opportunity now presented for the purchase of Jouvin Gloves may never again occur. Note the price—Two-Button Jouvin Gloves, $1 00 per pair. ☞ Every pair guaranteed.

J. J. O'BRIEN & CO.,

924, 926 AND 928 MARKET STREET.

IMPORTANT NOTICE!

Second Grand Annual Sale of

Ladies' and Gents' BOOTS AND SHOES. MENS AND BOYS' CUSTOM-MADE CLOTHING

NO FANCY PRICES.

Dry Goods, Etc.

JAMES O'HANLON & CO.,

725 MONTGOMERY STREET, West Side, near Jackson.

J. O'H. & CO. beg leave to inform their numerous friends and patrons that they will sell for the next sixty days, regardless of cost, their IMMENSE STOCK OF STAPLE GOODS. Strangers visiting the city will find it to their advantage to call and compare our prices with those of other stores; they will readily see that they can save 25 cents on the dollar. To be closed out—

Fine Gentlemen's Lasting Kid and Balmoral Boots	$1 25
Full Seamless Balmorals	1 50
Extra quality Balmorals	1 75
Misses Kid-lined Balmorals	1 25
Misses Lasting Balmorals	1 50
Ladies' Cloth-top Kid Balmorals	1 50
Ladies' Gaiters	1 00
Ladies' Kid-lined Gaiters, from	1 50
1,000 pairs Ladies' Slippers	50
Men's Custom-made Boots	6 00
Boys' Custom-made Boots	5 00
Fine Alaska Seal Cloaks in Paris, to order	$75 to 100
Fine Astrachan Cloaks, to order	$25 to 50
Fine Business Suits, to order	$25 to 50
Fine Diagonal Suits, to order	$25 to 50
Fine Dress Suits, to order	$25 to 50
Fine Spring Overcoats, to order	$25 to 50

☞ All other articles made at proportionably low rates. Full measure guaranteed. Satisfaction or no sale. Give us a call. Store open evenings.

1324-1y

WYNNE, LOWTH & CO.

704 and 706 MARKET STREET,

5 and 7 Geary Street, OPPOSITE THIRD, AND NEAR KEARNY.

HAVING MADE LARGE PURCHASES OF

DRY GOODS

At the Great Liquidation Sale of LAZARD FRERES, we are enabled to sell the same goods at less than importers' prices.

BLACK GROS GRAIN SILK, at $1 per yard.
HEAVY BLACK SILK, Cashmere Seam, $2 per yard.
FINE IRISH POPLIN, $1 50 per yard.
Extra wide BLACK CASHMERE, 75c. per yard.
ALL WOOL DIAGONALS, 37½c. per yard.
ENGLISH IRON-FRAME HOSE, full finished, $2 per dozen.
BALBRIGGAN HOSE, silk elastic, $3 per doz.
HEAVY SCOTCH PLAIDS, 25c. per yard.
BLANKETS, SHEETING, &c.

HOUSE-FURNISHING GOODS

At Wholesale Rates.

FANCY GOODS in great variety.

Ladies' and Gent's FURNISHING GOODS.

Irish Tatting.

BRADFORD KERSEY, in Black and White for use of Clergy and Sisters.

The celebrated seamless Position GLOVES, $1 50 per pair.

WYNNE, LOWTH & CO.

Central Dry Goods House.

HOLIDAY ATTRACTIONS

ROMAN'S.

BOOKS OF ALL KINDS,
STANDARD POETS,
ILLUSTRATED WORKS,
BOOKS IN SETS,
ELEGANT GALLERIES,
ALBUMS OF ART,
FAMILY BIBLES,
CATHOLIC PRAYER BOOKS,
TOY BOOKS,
JUVENILES,
GAMES AND BLOCKS, DIARIES,
FANCY STATIONERY,
GOLD PENS,
INKSTANDS,
PORTFOLIOS,
WRITING DESKS,
PHOTOGRAPH ALBUMS, &c.

SOLD CHEAP.

A. ROMAN & CO.,

BOOKSELLERS AND STATIONERS

11 Montgomery Street,

LICK HOUSE BLOCK.

NEW TAILORING ESTABLISHMENT.

B. FLOOD,

Fashionable Tailor,

637 HOWARD STREET, Bet. Second and Third.

☞ Fine Clothing made to order at Reasonable Low prices. ☜

STEINWAY & SONS'

PIANOS.

Square, $475 and $550.

Square Grand, $400.

Upright, $550, $600, $800.

Grand, $1,080, $1,200

☞ Illustrated Catalogues on application.

KRANICH, BACH & CO., New York.

SUPERIOR PIANOS,

At a moderate cost—7½ Octaves—$300 and $375. Warranted for five years.

Send for cash, or on instalment plan at cash rates, with one per cent. per month added on deferred payments.

MATTHIAS GRAY,

105 Kearny Street, San Francisco, and 1 East Street, Portland, Or.

General Agent for manufacturers for the Pacific Coast.

Establishment
Boarding Area expressed by the Letters A B C D and Entrance by Letter E.
Parties visiting this Establishment will find it to be longer & greater in variety of Goods than any other in the City.
Prompteers of delivery is a prominent characteristic in our business. Orders from the interior filled at city prices.
Paper Rolling Machine and Bailing Press.
Block Books and Stationery.
Cor. Clay and Sansome Sts., San Francisco.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS.

The Best and Cheapest. Now Style.

☞ Send for Catalogue. Parties wishing Organs to rent. Tuning and Repairing done.

KOHLER, CHASE & CO.,

633 Clay Street, San Francisco.

Broadway, corner Fourteenth street, Oakland.

Agents for Hamlin's Parlor Organs.

Member Pacific Coast Piano Trade.

ST. MARY'S HOSPITAL,

Corner Bryant and First Streets,

SAN FRANCISCO.

THIS INSTITUTION IS UNDER CHARGE OF the Sisters of Mercy.

JAMES MURPHY, M. D.,.....Visiting surgeon
JAMES D. GRIFFIN, M. D.,.....Visiting Physician
EDWARD BARRY, M. R. C. S.,.....House and Assistant Surgeon
C. H. BENTON, M. D.,.....Resident Physician

TERMS—Monthly Instalments—$10 per week in the wards, $20 per week in private rooms. Deposits and washing extra.

No Incurables or Infectious cases received.

☞ Separate Entrance and Hospital Dress for Patients.

Money always refunded in case a patient leaves before the expiration of the month.

DR. M. J. BOLAN,

OFFICE—NO. 835 MARKET STREET,

Between Stockton and Powell, nearly opp. Fourth.

Confessor of nunnery Tenth and Kearny and Market street cars.

Office Hours—In the forenoon from 9 to 12.

REMOVAL

OF THE

ANTISELL

PIANO COMPANY

TO

865 MARKET STREET

OPPOSITE POWELL.

For sixty days we will sell our Celebrated Improved PIANOS at Small Profits for Cash or on Monthly Instalments.

Tempus Destruitur Nunquam Reparatur.

"Time Past Never Returns"

IF YOU WANT TO HAVE YOUR CLOTHES well washed, good linen, and come giving the trouble, you can do so by sending them to the Steam Laundry, 109 Kearny street, Portland, Or. Everything will be done to your satisfaction, and at prices that will please. Bear in mind that it is never too late to mend, and that the Steam Laundry will do it for one or more different entertainments. Orders by mail or express promptly attended to.

Please give him a trial. You will never regret it.

D. A. O'CONNELL,

WATCH AND CLOCK MAKER,

135 Third Street, near Howard.

He will examine your Watch and clean it for $1 00. Mainsprings, $1 00. Watches repaired and warranted for one year. Clocks cleaned and repaired at short notice and warranted. Jewelry, Silver and Plated Ware, as good and cheap as can be had in the city. All kinds of Jewelry repaired. Please give him a trial. You will never regret it.

THE MONITOR & GUARDIAN.
The Only Irish and Catholic Journal in California.
LYONS & BARRY, ... Publishers.
RICHARD O'SULLIVAN, ... Editor.
OFFICE—626 CLAY STREET, between Montgomery and Kearny sts.; Rooms 1, 2 and 8, up stairs.

TERMS (Payable in Advance):
Served by Carriers, per week 10c
Mail subscribers, per year ..... $ 4 00
Six months 2 00
Mail subscribers to Ireland or either of the British Provinces, ... per annum ..... $ 6 00
Do. do. six months 3 00
☞ Postage in each case prepaid by publishers.

JOHN J. TOBIN,

Stock Broker,

(Pacific Stock Exchange),

Will promptly transact purchases and sales of Stock entrusted to him. Business strictly commission.

VERNON, TOBIN & CO.,

Office—Next to Safe Deposit Company's Bank, cor. Montgomery and California sts., San Francisco.

The Monitor And Guardian.

FIDES PATRIA JUNITAS CARITAS

VOL. XIX. SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., SATURDAY, JANUARY 8, 1876. NO. 14.

FIRST PREMIUM

AT SACRAMENTO

State Fair, 1874,

AWARDED TO THE SPLENDID

PIANOS

—OF—

HALLET, DAVIS & CO.

WM. C. BADGER,

SOLE AGENT,

13 Sansome Street, San Francisco.

OFFICIAL.

SACRAMENTO, October 1, 1874.

To W. C. BADGER, Esq., 13 Sansome Street—We hereby certify that the Pianos of HALLET, DAVIS & CO. were awarded the

TWO PREMIUMS

FOR BEST SQUARE AND GRAND PIANO

And Best BOUDOIR PIANO exhibited at State Fair, 1874. (Signed)

R. T. TARNDLY,
HERMAN WAUHORST,
R. G. MARSH,
JOHN MCNEIL,
Committee.

"O. A. U." UNMASKED.

Full Exposure of the Third Term Conspiracy.

OATH-BOUND POLITICS AND RELIGION.

The Secret Order of the American Union Laid Bare.

THE CANDIDATE'S OATH.

President Grant, Postmaster-General Jewell and Others Taken In.

A COUNCIL'S DELIBERATIONS.

(From the New York Herald of December 3.)

With a view to the organization of a grand counter-movement against the encroachments of the Roman Catholics, and to prevent them from holding political offices."

Its national government is called the Senate, while the State organizations of "governments" are styled "State Legislatures," and these latter are divided into lodges or subordinate organizations known as the "Union" or "Councils."

In order to give a clearer idea of the real aims and purposes of this "Order of American Union," we herewith append the oath of the "constitution," adopted for the government of the national Senate or supreme body in this secret Order. The document is taken from a genuine printed copy, and reads as follows:

CONSTITUTION OF SENATE.

In view of the intolerant, persistent, aggressive efforts of Romanism and their avowed determination to control the government of the United States, and to destroy our civil and religious liberty, we deem it the duty of every citizen of this country who shall violate the obligations taken at his initiation, or who shall knowingly associate himself with any Order, Society or League, or of the Legislature of any of the United States, and to legislate against them, and to oppose their influence in all States where no Legislature exists, and to place all men politically on an equal footing, our reporter announces that he will not farnish any report of his proceedings.

First—That any interference in political affairs by any sect or body of men acting in behalf or by direction of any ecclesiastical body or power, for the benefit of such sect, is opposed to the true principles of civil and religious equality fought for by our fathers and guaranteed by our national constitution.

Second—That any recognition of sectarian influence or distinctions in the appointment of our public educational or reformatory institutions, or any appropriation of money for sectarian purposes, is opposed to the spirit of our institutions.

Third—That there is danger that the Roman Catholic Church, professedly a power superior to all governments, and dominant in all foreign countries where they have the ascendancy, will gradually acquire paramount to that given to the State, and undertake advantages—as they have done in its Legislature—to control the State by their dominance with other forms of religious faith, and that it is therefore the duty of the members of the Order to oppose the progress of advancing the interests of the Church.

Therefore, as that organization has introduced this issue into political affairs in various sections of our country, and arraigning their votes and influence in favor of political problems, and demanding special privileges to sectarian bodies, we further declare it to be our conviction that true Americans should organize to oppose the encroachments of Romanism, and adopt for our government the following:

TITLE.

This organization shall be known among its members as Order of American Union. Legislature and Councils may adopt any other name for public use, at their option.

ARTICLE I.

National Body.

SECTION 1. The National Body shall be known as the Senate, and shall consist of the supreme head of the Order. Its duties shall be to receive and confer on the affairs affecting the organization, and shall exercise no authority not specially granted by the constitution.

SEC. 2. The Senate shall be composed of delegates from each State in which Legislatures exist, and shall consist of the Senior (except Chaplain and Marshal), or such person pereing in the absence of the Senior, with the Order. Each Legislature shall elect at each annual meeting, by ballot, two delegates, who must be members of and in good standing, and who shall represent the State at the Senate, from which they are removed for causes.

SEC. 3. No Legislature shall be entitled to a representation in the Senate unless it shall have held at least one session during the year preceding the meeting of the Senate. A Legislature may also be represented by a Senator vacant, and proceed to fill the vacancy thus occasioned, by ballot, for either of the following causes: Death, removal from the State, non-affiliation with a subordinate Council under the jurisdiction of the Legislature. But if any Senator be present at any of the stated or extra sessions, without being excused by the Senate, his seat may be declared vacant.

SEC. 4. Whenever a Senatorship becomes vacant and a meeting of the Senate is to occur, notice of a meeting of the Legislature of the State represented by the Senator, therefore, it shall be competent for the President of said Legislature to appoint a delegate eligible for election as Senator, to act pending the election of a Senator, and in notifying the Secretary of the Senate of his election, the person so appointed shall be considered a Senator until such a time as the Legislature shall fill the vacancy.

SEC. 5. The Senate and such subordinate body, shall have the right to make such alterations and qualifications of its own rules of order as may be necessary for the transact its business in accordance with accepted Parliamentary rules, punish its members for disorderly conduct, and the Senate and Legislatures may, with the concurrence of two-thirds, expel a member from their respective bodies after written charges shall have been preferred and examination had, but such expulsion shall not thereby involve a loss of membership in the Order.

Articles 6 to 12 refer to meetings and the duties of officers.

ARTICLE XII.

Membership.

SECTION 2. Any native citizen of this country over eighteen years of age shall be eligible for admission into this Order, but must unite with a Council in the State in which he resides, if there is any such organization therein; provided, that minors shall not be eligible for election as President, Vice-President or Treasurer.

SEC. 2. The member of the National Executive Committee, Presidents and State Deputies of Legislatures, and such Deputies as may be appointed by the President of the Senate, shall have the power to initiate persons into membership in the Order without the presence of a Council, and shall give to such persons a certificate to that effect, which certificate shall be the same value as a withdrawal card.

SEC. 3. The election of a person for initiation in Council must be proposed at a regular meeting of the Council by a member in good standing, in writing, stating the occupation and address of the candidate, and that to the knowledge of the proposer his candidate is over eighteen years of age, and is thoroughly imbued with the principles of the Order, and has expressed himself in full sympathy therewith. Said proposition shall be referred to a committee of not less than three members of the Council to investigate and report upon the character and standing of the candidate, and if the report be favorable the candidate may be balloted for, and shall, if no more than two black balls be cast against him, be declared elected, and may be initiated at any time within two months thereafter; unless he shall be rejected, and shall not be eligible for election for six months thereafter. No less than one week shall intervene between the reception of a proposition by a Council and the report of the committee thereupon. No person shall be initiated in States where no Legislature exists, but by the consent of the Senate, or the Legislature shall fix the fee.

SEC. 4. All withdrawal and traveling cards for the use of the Order shall be issued by the Senate, signed by its secretary and countersigned by the seal, and shall be issued at ten cents per copy. Legislatures shall have the power to have the same issued by their Secretary, or by the Secretary of the Councils at their discretion. Cards lacking any of the blanks necessary to render them valid, shall not be accepted by any Council of the Order.

SEC. 5. A member of a Council applying for a withdrawal card, if in good standing, is entitled to receive the card upon paying the dues required therefor at the next meeting of Council, if called on during a week thereafter.

SEC. 6. Members of the Order seeking affiliation with any Council by card shall present the same at a regular meeting, with candidate for initiation, but in case a withdrawal card shall be returned to them, or they may apply for same at any sub sequent meeting of the Council.

SEC. 7. Any member of the Order who withdraws from the Order shall give written notice to the Council with which he is connected, and shall be reported to the Council, in case no charge is pending against him, therefrom cause his name to be erased from the roll and a minute of the transaction to be made in the records.

ARTICLE XIII.

Duties.

Sec 1. In order to promote the efficiency of the Order, the members of Councils shall be required to attend the meetings thereof, to be called sections, and to be designated by the President, in districts of the same neighborhood being grouped together as far as practicable.

SEC. 2. Each section shall be under the direction of one of their own number, to be called the Leader, and a minute of the same by the President, appointed and removed by the Council, or by the approval of the Council.

SEC. 3. It shall be the duty of each chief to acquaint with each member of his section, or deliver to them, when required, by the President of the Council, notice of any order matter; to see to it that each member of his section is present at the regular meeting (where a registry list is not provided) that he goes to the polls and deposits his ballot; to notify the secretary in case of any change of residence by any member of his section, and to report to entertain such other interests with them as the Council may direct; to ascertain such matters of interest as may be necessary to keep the Council informed, and to report at the regular meeting thereof.

ARTICLE XIV.

Duties of Officers.

SEC. 1. Any member of the Order who shall violate the obligations taken at his initiation, or who shall knowingly associate himself with any Order, Society or League, or of the Legislature of any of the United States, and to legislate against them, shall be subject to reprimand, suspension or expulsion, as the body cliended against may direct, after due notice and hearing shall have been had in his case, subject, in all cases, to an appeal. No person of this character, however, shall be so concerned as to justify the expulsion or suspension of a brother for non-payment of dues.

SEC. 2. Every member shall be entitled to a fair trial for any offense involving expulsion, suspension or reprimand, and no member shall be put on trial unless charges, in writing, duly specifying his offense, shall be preferred by a brother of the Order, in good standing, in the body against which the offense is alleged to have been committed. Persons not members of the Order shall be competent to act as witnesses in all cases wherein the trial shall not involve an exposure of the secret work of the Order

"SEEK AND YE SHALL FIND."

In the cottage on the hillside little Elsie sat and wept,
While abroad the whistling north wind with the Frost King held vigil kept;
And they decked the cottage bravely—roof and walls, like mists of white,
Window panes like frosted jewels—all a wondrous work of light.

All so fair, indeed, that Elsie in a house of jewels seemed Strangely weeping, strangely moaning, where such costly radiance gleamed.

Ah, beneath that frozen radiance darkness cowered more sure than night,
And grim Poverty sat brooding under each cold jewel's light.

"In the world," said little Elsie, peeping through her tears in fear,
"Christmas is some where this evening, but it is not here for me.

'Tis the children's feast the Christ Child sends to little ones, I know,
But it did not find its way here—I will seek it thro' the snow.

"When I find the lovely Christmas I will know it by the light—
I will bring it home to mother, for she is so sick to-night!"

Little Elsie then crept softly thr. ugh the darkness to the bed
Where the mother moaned in suffering—Breslau hunger, cold, and fear, she said.

"I am going to find Christmas—I will bring it home to you,
Then it will be light and warm here, and your pain will leave you, too."

But the pain the mother's brain held chained beyond the tender reach
Of the little voice's story, or the little tongue's sweet speech.

"Ah, the sleeps," said simple Elsie; "she will sleep till back I come!
And then she will say 'God bless me,' when the Christmas I bring home."

Softly out into the night, then, went the weak and shy form,
With the heart of faith undaunted by the north wind or the snow or storm.

With the heart of faith undaunted, heedless all of earth or night!
Ah, the snow fell softly, softly, wearing round it robes of light.

On the hilltop rose a mansion, and from door and window there
Streamed out, rich and bright, the radiance that is born of wealth alone.

Ev'ry wall and arch and pillar, rising up in costly grace,
By the north wind and the Frost King had been hung with jewelled lace.

Winding up and down, in drap'ry that was e'en like wave of light,
But within a child sat weeping—weeping lone on that blest night.

"Somewhere sweet" mused little Lora, "there in Christmas joy on the earth,
But no Christmas have I over on this lonesome stormy hearth."

Yet that stormy hearth was garnished with rare fire-stance of white,
Lady based with gold, and enamelled with rich velvet, while the light
Of bright silver lamps fell gleaming on a carpet soft and green
As the moss beside the streamlet when it meets the sunlight's sheen.

"No; the Christmas that the Christ-Child made for me cannot come here,
Unless some one should tell me, but to ask her I have fear.

Um, could tell me where to find it, but—she's drowsing for the ball,
And she would be very angry if I spoke to her at all.

"And she's lovely, like the princess in the fairy book I read!
Oh! I'd like so much to beg her, but the curls upon her head
Would go round, and she'd shut sleep me; and I've a fear to kiss her cheek,
But I'd spoil the pretty pink thing that the maid puts there, I'll seek

"Some one else to show me Christmas; but"—heavy, heavy sigh—
It would seem, if she'd come like me, that the Christmas that was nigh."

He went over to the window warmly draped with silk and gold—
Drew the curtain back and gazed out on the night's clear, cold.

And he saw within the gateway leading to the mansion fair
Little Elsie crept softly thr. ugh the darkness to the door.

"I'm the Christmas angel coming—I must go and let him in!"
And in ecstasy he hastened, heeding not the north wind's din.

To the spot where stood enchanted Elsie's snowy-robed, trembling form—
Elsie thinkl a Christmas must be where it was so bright and warm.

"Angel, can you find there you Christmas?" said the little sugar boy;
"If will give you all I own here if you bring me Christmas joy!"

Elsie only clasped her small hands o'er her heart of faith—her eyes
Gliding at him with a beauty that can come but from the skies;

And one said with tender patience, "Nay, I thought it was to have,
But I'll go and look it further—I'll soon meet the Christ-Child Lord;

"He'll be coming with the Christmas, through the bitter cold and storm!"
Then she raised and went to meet Him, leaving him within and warm.

"Let me go with you," cried Louis; "let me find the Christmas, too!"
So she took him by the hand that ravished towards her with faith so true.

And the star gave rest forward through the howling, the snow-drifts gone,
Strange, sweet peace not gainsaying o'er them as they sought the Christ-Child's form.

Soon they met, "We will find Him" as were on the blow'd night,
Then were silenced till the angels swept their feet in rest so white

That no restless world gave like it—Without shadow, without stain!
Ah, was at the Christ-Child's cradle that they entered life again!

It was with the angels' chorus that their glorious slumbers broke—
It was in the light of heaven their enchanted vision woke.

And the mother by the hillside, moaning on her poor straw bed,
And the answer in the meadow, "midst the gobs, silks soiled, "Dead!"

But the letter was only earth's name for their joyous day fair:
For above the angels called it God's sweet answer to her prayer.

MRS. M. M. WARDE.

A fond parrot who bought a cow for his summer residence, in anticipation of the delight the fresh product would cause his daughter, was somewhat chagrinned when Julia, looking upon a pan of nectar, exclaimed, "Oh, what horrid yellow stuff! It isn't half so good as the nice blue milk we get in the city."

[From the Catholic World.]

A MESSAGE.

[CONTINUED.]

Marmaduke had described the place accurately when he called it an abominable slum. Red Pepper Lane was one of those dismal, frightful dens of darkness and dirt that cower at the back of so many of our wealthy squares and avenues, contributing alike to breeding typhus and every social plague that desolates great cities. The houses were so high and the lane so narrow that you could sit a stretch have shaken hands across from window to window. There was a rope slung ball way down the alley, with a lantern hanging from it which looked more like a decoration or a sign than a possible provision for light; for the glass was too thickly crusted with dirt to admit of the strongest light piercing it. In the middle of the lane was a gutter, in which a few ragged, begrimmed and hungry-looking little mortals were playing in the dirty snow. The east wind whistled through the dreary tenements with a sharp, pitiless cry; the sky was bright outside, but here in Red Pepper Lane its brightness did not penetrate. Nothing but the wind could enter, and that came with all its might, through the crannies in the walls, through the rickety doors, through the window frames glazed with brown paper or battered old hats—any rag that could be spared to stuff the holes or panes. Nota bene! was seen anywhere protruding from window or door; only the fierce blast kept every one within who had a roof to cover them. If it were not for the snowy little objects disporting themselves in the gutter, the lane might have been the precincts of the lily, all deserted and silent as it was. Marmaduke might have wandered up and down for an hour without meeting any one whom he could ask to direct him to where John Belmes lived, but luckily he recognized the house at once by the flapping signal of an old broom nailed over the door. He searched for a knocker or a bell; but seeing neither, he sounded a loud rat-tat with the gold knob of his walking-stick, and presently a voice called out from somewhere to "lift the latch!" He did so, and; again left to his own devices, he followed Stephen's injunctions and went straight up to the second story, where he knocked, and in obedience to a sharp "Come in!" entered.

The gloom of the lane had prepared him gradually for the deeper gloom of the room, and he at once distinguished a person, whom he rightly surmised to be the ragand-bone man, sitting at the hearth near the fire-place, wrapped up in a brown blanket, with his feet resting on the hearthstone, as if he were toasting them. If he was, it was in imagination; for there was no fire—only the ghost of one as visible in a mass of grey ashes, and by the dim noon light as if even a glow of the late warmth remained in them. He had his back to the door, and, when it opened, he turned his head in that direction, but not sufficiently to see who came in. Marmaduke saw his wooden chair, in the corner, and, pulling it forward, he sat down on it, and, crossing his legs, he waited for the man to speak. He did not, and; again left to his own devices, he followed Stephen's injunctions and went straight up to the second story, where he knocked, and in obedience to a sharp "Come in!" entered.

The gloom of the lane had prepared him gradually for the deeper gloom of the room, and he at once distinguished a person, whom he rightly surmised to be the rag-and-bone man, sitting at the hearth near the fire-place, wrapped up in a brown blanket, with his feet resting on the hearthstone, as if he were toasting them. If he was, it was in imagination; for there was no fire—only the ghost of one as visible in a mass of grey ashes, and they did not look as if even a glow of the late warmth remained in them. He had his back to the door, and, when it opened, he turned his head in that direction, but not sufficiently to see who came in. Marmaduke saw his wooden chair, in the corner, and, pulling it forward, he sat down on it, and, crossing his legs, he waited for the man to speak. He did not, and; again left to his own devices, he followed Stephen's injunctions and went straight up to the second story, where he knocked, and in obedience to a sharp "Come in!" entered.

"And who's invited, like the princess in the fairy book I read!
Oh! I'd like so much to beg her, but the curls upon her head
Would go round, and she'd shut sleep me; and I've a fear to kiss her cheek,
But I'd spoil the pretty pink thing that the maid puts there, I'll seek

"Some one else to show me Christmas; but"—heavy, heavy sigh—
It would seem, if she'd come like me, that the Christmas that was nigh."

"Who I find the lovely Christmas I will know it by the light—
I will bring it home to mother, for she is so sick to-night!"

Little Elsie then crept softly thr. ugh the darkness to the bed
Where the mother moaned in suffering—Breslau hunger, cold, and fear, she said.

"I am going to find Christmas—I will bring it home to you,
Then it will be light and warm here, and your pain will leave you, too."

But the pain the mother's brain held chained beyond the tender reach
Of the little voice's story, or the little tongue's sweet speech.

"Ah, the sleeps," said simple Elsie; "she will sleep till back I come!
And then she will say 'God bless me,' when the Christmas I bring home."

Softly out into the night, then, went the weak and shy form,
With the heart of faith undaunted by the north wind or the snow or storm.

With the heart of faith undaunted, heedless all of earth or night!
Ah, the snow fell softly, softly, wearing round it robes of light.

On the hilltop rose a mansion, and from door and window there
Streamed out, rich and bright, the radiance that is born of wealth alone.

Ev'ry wall and arch and pillar, rising up in costly grace,
By the north wind and the Frost King had been hung with jewelled lace.

Winding up and down, in drap'ry that was e'en like wave of light,
But within a child sat weeping—weeping lone on that blest night.

"Somewhere sweet" mused little Lora, "there in Christmas joy on the earth,
But no Christmas have I over on this lonesome stormy hearth."

Yet that stormy hearth was garnished with rare fire-stance of white,
Lady based with gold, and enamelled with rich velvet, while the light
Of bright silver lamps fell gleaming on a carpet soft and green
As the moss beside the streamlet when it meets the sunlight's sheen.

"No; the Christmas that the Christ-Child made for me cannot come here,
Unless some one should tell me, but to ask her I have fear.

Um, could tell me where to find it, but—she's drowsing for the ball,
And she would be very angry if I spoke to her at all.

"And she's lovely, like the princess in the fairy book I read!
Oh! I'd like so much to beg her, but the curls upon her head
Would go round, and she'd shut sleep me; and I've a fear to kiss her cheek,
But I'd spoil the pretty pink thing that the maid puts there, I'll seek

"Some one else to show me Christmas; but"—heavy, heavy sigh—
It would seem, if she'd come like me, that the Christmas that was nigh."

"When

WEEKLY CALENDAR.
FOR THE WEEK ENDING JANUARY 15. January.
9—Sunday—Octave within the Octave of the Epiphany.
10—Monday—Of the Octave.
11—Tuesday—Of the Octave. St. Hyginus, Pope and Martyr.
12—Wednesday—Of the Octave.
13—Thursday—Octave of the Epiphany.
14—Friday—St. Hilary, Bishop & Confessor and Doctor of the Church. St. Felix, Martyr.
15—Saturday—St. Paul, First Hermit, Confessor. St. Peter, Martyr.

THE MONITOR & GUARDIAN:
THE ONLY
Irish and Catholic Journal in California.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

SATURDAY .....JANUARY 8, 1876.

SUBSCRIBERS will please specially look at the printed label on the margin or wrapper of the paper; the date thereon shows when the subscription expires.

RELIGIOUS BIGOTRY.

A few days ago the Chronicle had an article with the above heading which might very fairly be called a piece of malicious irreligious bigotry. It took as a text a paragraph that had previously appeared in the New York Herald with reference to the alleged refusal of Father PHILIP GRACE of Newport, R. I., to perform funeral service over the body of a young girl named GENEVA DE FRAY, who had, when alive, attended a Protestant school. The allegations were that the child was sickly, that she attended the Protestant school merely because it happened to be the nearest to her, and that the priest, while he allowed the remains to be buried in the Catholic cemetery, harshly refused to read prayers over her grave.

In this conduct of Father GRACE the Chronicle found "hatred, malice and all uncharitableness." The Herald's paragraph speaks of a "Protestant" school; the Chronicle editorial very facetiously changes it into a "public" school, and then rings in the moral that at least one Catholic priest shows deep-seated hostility to "our free schools," and this monstrously unfair perversion is the key-note of all his subsequent attributions. Our contemporary declares it "might comment upon the right of the Church to intervene his authority between parent and child as something that society and government cannot afford to be indifferent to;" but we are to suppose that out of kind consideration for the feelings of Catholics it graciously refrains from doing so. It might also "make the event an opportunity of irreverent remark against the Christian religion, or of unkind comment against the Catholic Church;" but with wonderful magnanimity it forbears. It might even grow eloquent over "the conduct of a minister of God who would deny so dead child the services which he believes and which his faith teaches are essential to her spiritual welfare;" but of course charity makes it dumb! We might ask the Chronicle where it learned that Catholics regard funeral service as essential to the spiritual welfare of anybody, man woman or child, but that would be a theological question, and we know theology is not a strong point with our contemporary, so we ask it pass.

There is another thing which the Chronicle might have done and which it does not mention at all—that is, to ascertain the facts of the case before it wrote a column of bigotry. Because the accusations against Father GRACE first appeared in the Herald, a journal supposed, without any reason, to be favorable to Catholicity, and because JAMES GORDON BENNETT, its proprietor, owns a villa at Newport, the Chronicle maintains the whole story to be undeniably true. Well, even allowing that our contemporary was led astray by the apparent evidence in the first instance, it had ample time to see Father GRACE's version of the affair, also published in the Herald, and the series of severe reflections conveyed by a reverend gentlemen's parishioners about the matter; yet nowithstanding its boasted justice and magnanimity, it never as much as alludes to either. This omission is a deliberate suppression of the truth, for evil and mischievous purposes, from which the Chronicle can hardly clear itself.

Now, what really are the facts. First—That the action of Father GRACE had nothing whatever to do with the kind of a school GENEVA DE FRAY did or did not attend during her life time; secondly, it had everything to do with the no Catholic and scandalous negligence of the parents, who, knowing that the child was dying, took no measures to procure the last sacraments for her. Next, let us say what was Father GRACE's action; what he really did. He simply reprimanded the father for his gross negligence. Here are his own words, which tell the story more clearly than anything we could say:

> The case is simply this: The father of the child called on me to arrange whether the child should be buried in the church, or have the funeral rites performed at the house, as he lived over half a mile from the cemetery, and across distance from the church. I asked him what was the child before death; his reply was that she died without the priest, and of course he did not receive the Sacraments of the Church. She had arrived at an age when, according to the law of the Church, she was criminal to neglect her, and would at once indicate a grievous and indifferent priest had she received extreme unction. I responsible priest, neglect to visit her at her last moments, and to administer to the Child the last rites of the Church, since he had power to do so. I told the father as he was about her funeral, she would not have either within nor the Sacraments and declining to go to the house, I said by way of reprimand, that he need not bring the body in the church, since he had proved himself so indifferent to the spiritual welfare of his child. Had he brought the child to the church I would not have refused him.

Here, then, is no refusal of Christian burial, no denial of funeral ceremonies, no disrespect one way or another to the remains of the young girl. The father appears to have been a bad or indifferent Catholic, and with him and his wife the priest seems to have had previous trouble about keeping the child at a Protestant school; but the girl herself was not responsible for that, and in no way could blame fall upon her. Father GRACE knew all the circumstances and he certainly would not be so unjust and ungenerous as to refuse Christian burial to the child for what was not her own fault—and he did not!—if it is asserted," says the priest, "that I refused to officiate because the child attended a public school. Take I claim to be an unfounded fact!" Father GRACE complains very justly that this story about his "intolerance" was set afloat without the slightest inquiry from him as to whether it was true or not; that he was tried without hearing his evidence, and stabbed in the back without getting a chance of defending himself. In concluding, he says:

> And now, Mr. Editor, in conclusion, I declare to the public, who have read the slanders of the initial utterance of the Herald, that I have never peremptorily refused to officiate in the church over the remains of Geneva De Fray. I have never refused Sacramental to children for attending public institutions of the country. I have never interfered in the public institutions of the country. I have never impinged a libel to the detriment of any man living. I have never uttered a reproach against my dissenting brethren. The first charge of slanderers, as understood in practical language, I deal back on its author.

Father PHILIP GRACE is known in the locality where he ministrates as a courteous and refined gentleman and a scholar of very high attainments. He is well liked not only by his own flock but by Protestants of every denomination. Only a few months ago he delivered a very fine lecture before the Historical Society of Newport, and was paid the handsome compliment of being elected a member, being, we believe, the first Catholic clergyman who ever got that distinction. Such a man would never be guilty of the unmanly inhumanity laid to his charge, which moreover would be a dereliction of his priestly duty.

In conclusion, we must say that there seems to us to be a plan in this constantly bringing forward of charges against the Catholic priesthood. The news items of two hemispheres are being perpetually rancacked to find something reflecting in any degree upon priests, nuns, bishops, or even anybody, in fine, connected with the Catholic Church. When found it is set out in fierce editorials and held up for general reprobation. Every one of these bigoted diatribes winds up with some reference to the Church in America, and points as a moral the danger it entails upon this country and its free institutions. The press is actually reeking with purrient scandals in which Protestant divines are implicated, but they are allowed to pass as news and so attempt is made to coin political capital out of them. They are not used as weapons of assault against any particular Church or creed. The censure begins and ends with the individuals involved in them. It is evident, then, that this persistent line of defamation is carried out for the purpose of rendering Catholicism odious in the eyes of the people, and getting up popular excitement against it. And this is being done not for the sake of religious propagandism, but to aid the Radical faction in the coming elections.

We are told that there is in existence a widespread secret anti-Catholic association of which the President and the chief men of its administration are sworn members, and all these slanderous stories are invented to help on their organization, and enable it to accomplish its nefarious ends at the proper political moment. They are the brands with which it is hoped that flames of religious strife may be kindled in this country. They may yet be read by the lurid flames the burning churches and convents. It is well that their character, and the intentions of their concoctors, should be thoroughly understood. To be forewarned is to be forearmed.

MARRIAGE AND DIVORCE IN CALIFORNIA.

Not long ago the notoriety achieved by the State of Indiana in the matter of divorces used to be a subject of frequent comment in the newspapers. Instead of treating it seriously, as became its gravity and the evil effects it was sure to have on society, it was made the fruitful theme for burning churches and convents. It is well that their character, and the intentions of their concoctors, should be thoroughly understood. To be forewarned is to be forearmed.

MARRIAGE AND DIVORCE IN CALIFORNIA.

Not long ago the notoriety achieved by the State of Indiana in the matter of divorces used to be a subject of frequent comment in the newspapers. Instead of treating it seriously, as became its gravity and the evil effects it was sure to have on society, it was made the fruitful theme for burning churches and convents. It is well that their character, and the intentions of their concoctors, should be thoroughly understood. To be forewarned is to be forearmed.

LEGISLATIVE.

Assemblyman Ranken has introduced a City Hall bill, directing the Supervisors to proceed with the construction of the building, and authorizing them to raise $2,500,000 for that purpose by the issue of bonds. It also provides for the appointment of an architect at $100 a month, and a Superintendent at $300.

Senator McGlynn has amended his City Hall bill. He said that, in consequence of a decision of the Supreme Court in the case of Lynch, he had found it necessary to introduce his bill making a special commission, consisting of municipal officers. The new bill provides, instead of five commissioners appointed by the Governor, that the County Judge, City and County Attorney and Chairmen of the Building Committee of the Board of Supervisors shall constitute a Commission to complete the building. It reduces the salary of the Architect from $600 to $150 per month. It requires the District Attorney as the legal adviser of the Board; prohibits the sale of bonds for less than ninety-three cents on the dollar; authorizes an expenditure of $850,000 per year instead of $500,000; allows Commissioners $100 per month salary; authorizes the Board of Supervisors to organize into districts for the purpose of Auditor and Treasurer City Hall Fund Commissioners. The Commissioners are to superintend the issue of bonds. Referred to San Francisco delegation.

Also, amending section 1 243 of the Civil Code, in relation to homesteads. It authorizes the abandonment or sale of homesteads by husband or wife when the other party is insane. Referred to the Judiciary Committee.

By Pearson—Alteration of the law in relation to divorce. It repeals all laws constituting cause for divorce except adultery. Referred to Judiciary Committee.

Senator Roach has introduced a Joint resolution requesting our Senators and Representatives in Congress to obtain an Act of Congress dedicating to San Francisco for a public park all the Presidio Reservation, excepts of that absolutely needed for military purposes. This is an excellent resolution, and one which we hope our Congressional delegation will promptly and favorably consider.

The Senate has passed the bill abolishing the position of State Armorer. It will now have to run the gauntlet in the Assembly.

The Senate, by a unanimous vote, confirmed the appointment of Brigadier-General John McComb. It rejected the nomination of Major-general Cary. Brigadier-General Kelly was confirmed by a majority of all. Three appointments were all made by the senior Barbara a few months ago.

Coffey has introduced a bill to regulate the quality and price of gas in San Francisco. This is a meritorious measure.

Senator Noonan has introduced a bill regulating the fees of notaries public. It provides that they shall receive, and prohibiting the use of the fees unless now authorized by law. It also provides that they shall attach tenthfully, that the clearance shall not be more than an inch less than their fee note letting nothing escape, and that a failure to do so shall be a misdemeanor, the day and send to China, there to be used as manure. The bill is a good one, and tests it and next the insurance agent bill in our legislature, if the wishes of the people of California were consulted in the matter, we feel quite confident they would rather favor an increase instead of a reduction in the matter of legislation, and we are glad to notice that a bill to that effect has already been introduced into the Legislature. But law-making will prove only a temporary and feeble expedient if it is not sustained by the moral and religious principles of the masses.

SENATOR LAINE AND THE NATIONAL GUARD.

Of absurd, unnecessary and empirical legislation we get quite an abundance every year, thanks to the lofty genius of the gentlemen we send to Sacramento for the transaction of State business. Every individual legislator wants to earn immortal fame for himself by associating his name with some sort of an enactment, and but few are successful in getting to take the trouble of finding out whether the bills they introduce will work good or harm, or are required by the people. No such thing as order or unity of action is even thought of, and the consequence is it frequently happens that two or more persons introduce bills for precisely the same object. Our distinguished representatives play at legislation with all the mock gravity of little children keeping baby-houses. One need only count the number of measures brought forward up to this date in form at least of the way in which public business is transacted in Sacramento. Some of the gentlemen, indeed, are blessed with proper notions concerning themselves and their duties and honestly endeavor to work for the welfare of the State; but the majority are contented with trying to push on some crazy or hobby of their own.

Senator LAINE's bill for the Extension of our National Guard was it should really be called, although the gentlemen is too modest to give it that title—seems to strike most unaccountable piece of legislation which has graced the records of the present Legislature. What prompted him to think of it, or what argument he can urge for its passage, we confess ourselves totally unable to imagine. He might as well, in our judgment, bring in a bill to disband the police force, to abolish our courts of justice, or to destroys our municipal government. He seeks to deprive the militia companies of their annual allowance for clothing and uniform, accoutrements, ammunition, and to deprive them of the special privileges enjoyed in the way of exemption from poll-tax, further military service and other matters. And while he deals thus harshly with the companies he still leaves them under the obligation of fulfilling certain duties prescribed by law with equal considerable trouble and expense upon the men. In fact, he tries to take away all their remuneration at the same time that he keeps them bound to service. A more unjust proposition could not well be made. Of course we do not believe that this singular bill will be passed, or ever become law, for we think there is too much common sense yet left

RISH LOCAL NEWS.

From the Dublin Nation of December 11.

ANTRIM.

A Committee of the Belfast Corporation has reported in favor of the removal of that body into the bank of England has agreed to lend them £250,000 at a low rate of interest.

There was a great deal of excitement in commercial circles in Belfast in reference to the reported failure of the firm of Spollen & Co, one of the largest houses in the linen trade. The firm did a very extensive business, and the greatest regret was expressed that a house of such high standing had been obliged to succumb.

ARMAGH.

An extensive house and concern known as "the late Mark Rooney's," near Lurgan, and which was formerly a public-house, on the way to Moyraugh, has been purchased at a high figure for the parochial residence of Very Rev. Father Morgan and his curates in the parish of Derrymacash, next to Lurgan.

At the last meeting of the Lurgan Board of Guardians Rev. J. W. Jones, Wesleyan minister, Lurgan, complained that an old woman, named Margaret Carlar, 82 years of age, who should have been a Methodist, had been registered as "Irish Church," though she had expressed her most earnest wish to be exchanged to Methodist, so that she might have the Methodist clergyman to read and pray ing with her. The woman, he said, had been a Methodist when she was twelve years of age. The deceased's friends had also complained that she had not been properly attended to while in the house. The master and a number of other officials were examined, and in the end it was decided by the guardians that there had been no foundation for the charge.

CLARE.

At the last meeting of the Ennis Board of Guardians Mr. E. Meehan was elected Chairman for the ensuing year. A letter was read from the Local Government Board, and it was thereby sanctioned the borrowing of £600 for the purpose of fitting down the rent, and making necessary improvements in the town hall. A resolution was passed changing the place for holding the horse fair from the Kiosilles road to Ispin Square.

KING'S COUNTY.

The Banagher distillery, which was recently erected in Banagher, had its entire "worked up" a few days since. A new company has been formed, and they have issued a prospectus inviting subscriptions to the extent of £40,000, which sum it is confidently expected will enable the manager to commence the necessary operations, and to make the venture successful, as the machinery is considered second to none in the kingdom.

LIMERICK.

The diocese of Limerick has contributed the large sum of £621 10d for the propagation of the faith.

The awful state, says the Limerick Reporter, to which the poor of the city of Limerick are reduced by the want of employment formed the subject matter of a portion of the impressive discourse from the altar of St. Michael's parish church on last Sunday morning at eight o'clock Mass, by Rev. John Mulqueen, the zealous and highly esteemed administrator of the parish. It is, alas! too true that Limerick city, which some years ago could boast of its great factory on the North Strand, which gave employment to many hundreds of hands in the flax spinning; of its great clothing factory at Mount Prospect, which has been lately closed; of very many large factories which, on the ruins and fame of Limerick far and wide for artistic work of great beauty and high value; of other sources of industrial occupation in which we need not here particularly refer, but which were of the utmost public service to all classes and parties in the city, which gives an impetus to a trade, and a source of employment to thousands, has become deprived of those well-springs of local prosperity, and that there are very many of the population pining in utter wretchedness, unknown, except to the members of their own families, or to the Society of St. Vincent de Paul, or to the priests of the respective parishes in which the unemployed dwell.

LONDONDERRY.

At the Derry petty sessions Sub-Constables Thomas Collins and Thomas Irwin were charged on remand with having assaulted Mr. Thomas McConnell, of the firm of McConnell & Co., Foyle street, at two o'clock on the morning of the 11th November last. Their worships had the charge in each case established, and ordered Collins to pay a fine of £5, or go to jail for two months, and Irwin £2 or one month. A charge of assault was also preferred against Sub-Constable Mathew McGuigan by William Paitanso, who said the defendant jostled up against him in a defiant and threatening manner, and asked him what he was looking and praying with her. The woman, he said, had been a Methodist when she was twelve years of age. The deceased's friends had also complained that she had not been properly attended to while in the house. The master and a number of other officials were examined, and in the end it was decided by the guardians that there had been no foundation for the charge.

CLARE.

At the last meeting of the Ennis Board of Guardians Mr. E. Meehan was elected Chairman for the ensuing year. A letter was read from the Local Government Board, and it was thereby sanctioned the borrowing of £600 for the purpose of fitting down the rent, and making necessary improvements in the town hall. A resolution was passed changing the place for holding the horse fair from the Kiosilles road to Ispin Square.

KING'S COUNTY.

The Banagher distillery, which was recently erected in Banagher, had its entire "worked up" a few days since. A new company has been formed, and they have issued a prospectus inviting subscriptions to the extent of £40,000, which sum it is confidently expected will enable the manager to commence the necessary operations, and to make the venture successful, as the machinery is considered second to none in the kingdom.

LIMERICK.

The diocese of Limerick has contributed the large sum of £621 10d for the propagation of the faith.

The awful state, says the Limerick Reporter, to which the poor of the city of Limerick are reduced by the want of employment formed the subject matter of a portion of the impressive discourse from the altar of St. Michael's parish church on last Sunday morning at eight o'clock Mass, by Rev. John Mulqueen, the zealous and highly esteemed administrator of the parish. It is, alas! too true that Limerick city, which some years ago could boast of its great factory on the North Strand, which gave employment to many hundreds of

DOWN.

A Newry correspondent says: Daniel Kelly is to-day charged with sodomizing the life of one James Meaney, of Killeen, by placing him and holding him on a fire. Yesterday week Mr. McCullagh proceeded to Killeen, and took the depositions of Meaney, the boy being in bed and scarcely expected to recover. He deposed that there were a "few friends and constant" in the house that night, and among them Daniel Kelly. They had been drinking whisky, and whisky was neither drunk nor sober when Kelly put him on the fire. The accused was asked if he had anything to say and replied: "I have nothing to ask. I can tell you nothing about it. I was simply drunk. I am very sorry from my heart for the poor fellow." Yesterday there was a magisterial inquiry at Warrenpoint, before Mr. Montgomery, one of the Deputy Lieutenants of the county, when the case was adjourned for a week.

GALWAY.

Great excitement has been caused by the murder in Arran. The island civilians are actively assisting the police in energetic efforts to fix the crime. The medical gentlemen who inspected the body have no doubt that the deceased was brutally murdered.

At the last meeting of the Galway Harbor Board a communication was submitted from the Lords Commissioners of the Treasury, to the effect that in the present condition of the funds under control of the Harbor Board, the lordships would not feel justified in sanctioning a loan of £1,100, requested in a memorial addressed to them recently, for the construction of a graving dock for the port of Galway.

KERRY.

A man named William Savage, who resided near Ardfert, died last week after complaining his one hundred and nineteenth year. He was born in the year 1759, and served at Listowel three years ago for the Home Rule candidate, Mr. Blennerhassett.

The adjourned inquest at Tralee over the body of John Mason, father of Oliver Mason, and husband of Mrs. Mason, both of whom were found dead by their son, was concluded last week. Deceased took ill on the 18th of May, died on the 26th, and was exhumed on the 16th of November. A telegram was read from Professor Cameron, of Dublin, that he had examined the stomach and intestines of deceased, and found no trace of poison in them. A verdict of natural death was returned.

KILDARE.

At the last monthly meeting of the Naas Town Commissioners, eight out of nine members being present, Mr. William Farrell was reelected Chairman for the ensuing year. A letter was read from the Local Government Board, and it was thereby sanctioned the borrowing of the sum

C. A. D. [illegible] Excommunicated by England
The A. P. Hat Kelly has been Excommunicated

8 Carl Schurz on the Nine [illegible]

THE CIRCUS BEAUTY.

Madame Valentine was the widow of a Frenchman—a French woman herself by birth; but one who had dwelt in America so long that she had almost forgotten her native land. Trouble had been a portion of her womanhood. Death had come to her fireside suddenly. Her husband had shot himself while carelessly playing with his pistols. Her eldest born had ridden out one morning full of life and hope—warm, glowing, happy in the flush of youth—and at twilight his horse had come home with out him, and they had found him lying among the fallen autumn leaves in the forest, and brought him home colder and more silent than marble.

So had all her friends left her suddenly, terribly, and there remained only her youngest girl, little Charlotte. All the love of the poor mother's heart centered in her beautiful child. She watched over her incessantly. Until she was five years old she had never left her for one moment in a servant's care. But on her fifth birthday, being called to the bedside of a neighbor who had been sick, she departed, charging the old servant to keep a constant watch upon her.

But Martha was infirm and sleepy. Madame Valentine returned to find her child gone, and all search for her unavailing. In vain they advertised her. In vain they described her black curls, her slight form, her beautiful eyes and the little scarlet birthmark on the arm, above the elbow, like a heart pierced by an arrow. No one had seen or heard of her, and as the river ran near the garden, it seemed likely that she had wandered thither and fallen, in and so been drowned.

Madame Valentine was the last one to come to the opinion. She clung to the belief that her child lived and would return to her.

At last, after years of fruitless search, and after spending the best part of her fortune in feeding a detective who, though they doubted not that the child was drowned, still promised to find and restore her, poor Madame Valentine gave up the search, and went to live as housekeeper to an old farmer named Korner—a Penn-sylvania German—who had lost his wife, and had no "woman kind" about the house but a sleepy servant-girl.

Madame Valentine was thrifty, and pleased the farmer well; and the out-of-the world life soothed her. She had done with the world now, and only cared to live without the aid of clearing away the sad.

She was comely still, and old Korner might have fitted his hand and farm to his house sooner had she not so discouraged him; but all her thoughts were of the past: all her thoughts of little Charlotte, and Korner made up his mind not to fright-en so useful a personage away from the farm by violent wooing.

So they settled down, the old man, his son Gottlieb, the sleepy servant and the farm hands, in a quiet, domestic fashion, out of which came the daily meals, the washing, the baking, the rising up and lying down, as exactly timed and measured by Madame Valentine.

Meanwhile Gottlieb grew up. He had never been outside the village where he was born. He had read nothing except the newspapers. He spoke English with just a touch of underlying German accent, caught from the old man, and at twenty-five he existed, and thought himself content.

At last, however, circumstances nipped the old neat sharp-pea vine-nutter, and, spite of his will, disturbed his life, in some degree, and among other things began to love.

"How?" said old Korner, as his son set off, "make all the profit you can, son Gottlieb. Ax for your first visit to market, afterwards you may see the sights; but do it cheaply."

With which mixture of prudent counsel and paternal affection the German dismissed his son, who departed almost frightened. To go to market was a step in life. He drove away solemnly and slowly. Indeed, basie with the load behind him would have been quite impossible. At night the crowd got unpacked and returned with the creaked over the road—ghostly enough, with its jostling and its jollity only so an innocent load of "garden stuff" lay beneath —and in the morning, blushing like a peony, Gottlieb sold his "stuff" in market. No prettier young farmer might one see any where. To be sure, he had to round, round and round, as if peculiarly fortune-loss; but his cheeks, besides being plump to a lady's mind red as a girl's ought to be, had in issue two such dimples, going and coming with every smile, as only innocence and goodness could leave on mankind like obverse at twenty-two.

In the same village was also a dimple, and he had pink holes in his sore like rose leaves. Myriads of golden rings danced about his head, and as the river ran near the garden, it seemed likely that she had wandered thither and fallen, in and so been drowned.

Madame Valentine was the last one to come to the opinion. She clung to the belief that her child lived and would return to her.

At last, after years of fruitless search, and after spending the best part of her fortune in feeding a detective who, though they doubted not that the child was drowned, still promised to find and restore her, poor Madame Valentine gave up the search, and went to live as housekeeper to an old farmer named Korner—a Penn-sylvania German—who had lost his wife, and had no "woman kind" about the house but a sleepy servant-girl.

Madame Valentine was thrifty, and pleased the farmer well; and the out-of-the world life soothed her. She had done with the world now, and only cared to live without the aid of clearing away the sad.

She was comely still, and old Korner might have fitted his hand and farm to his house sooner had she not so discouraged him; but all her thoughts were of the past: all her thoughts of little Charlotte, and Korner made up his mind not to fright-en so useful a personage away from the farm by violent wooing.

So they settled down, the old man, his son Gottlieb, the sleepy servant and the farm hands, in a quiet, domestic fashion, out of which came the daily meals, the washing, the baking, the rising up and lying down, all exactly timed and measured by Madame Valentine.

Meanwhile Gottlieb grew up. He had never been outside the village where he was born. He had read nothing except the newspapers. He spoke English with just a touch of underlying German accent, caught from the old man, and at twenty-five he existed, and thought himself content.

At last, however, circumstances nipped the old neat sharp-pea vine-nutter, and, spite of his will, disturbed his life, in some degree, and among other things began to love.

"How?" said old Korner, as his son set off, "make all the profit you can, son Gottlieb. Ax for your first visit to market, afterwards you may see the sights; but do it cheaply."

With which mixture of prudent counsel and paternal affection the German dismissed his son, who departed almost frightened. To go to market was a step in life. He drove away solemnly and slowly. Indeed, basie with the load behind him would have been quite impossible. At night the covered cart jumbered and rumbled and creaked over the road—ghostly enough, with its jostling and its jollity only so an innocent load of "garden stuff" lay beneath —and in the morning, blushing like a peony, Gottlieb sold his "stuff" in market. No prettier young farmer might one see any where. To be sure, he had to round, round and round, as if peculiarly frouzes hose; but his cheeks, besides being plump to a lady's mind red as a girl's ought to be, had in issue two such dimples, going and coming with every smile, as only innocence and goodness could leave on mankind like obverse at twenty-two.

In the same village was also a dimple, and he had pink holes in his sore like rose leaves. Myriads of golden rings danced about his head, and as the river ran near the garden, it seemed likely that she had wandered thither and fallen, in and so been drowned.

Every woman bought something of him. Others knew not why, if Gottlieb did not.

The produce sold well. Gottlieb made good profit, as his father had told him. At last he was free to enjoy himself. With this intent he walked about the town. All the new and strange to him—the shops, the rows of houses, the many pedestrians going to and fro, and the carriages and omnibuses. At last he came to something more wonderful than the rest. A great blue and white striped tent, arms, and by a fence placarded with announcements in many colored letters that—

This was the first circus of the world. That Sefior Barberini performed his astounding feats of horsemanship every night, and that here Gottlieb was condescended to appear every afternoon.

This was the very thing for Gottlieb. He sauntered in, paid his money at the tent door and took a seat. The performance had just commenced. Sefior Barberini, Esquire, S. Ex Barbarini was riding with folded arms around the ring on the most wonderful of horses. In the midst stood such a gentleman, in coat of satin glossiness and of astounding fit, with a hat, a cane, a watch, and gloves. It was the ring-master. Then came the clown, ghostly to his quick, who was marvelously impertinent to the fine gentleman and made jokes raw to no one but himself. At last he was corrected with the whip, and bidden to attend upon the Senors.

"Who is coming, eh?" said the ring-master, standby.

And into there bounded into the ring a creature at such beauty that Gottlieb stared in pure amaze. A girl of seventeen, so slender that she could almost have spanned her waist with one hand; with eyes of oriental splendor, and hair that, unbound, must have covered her like a veil; with olive cheeks through which glowed crimson blood; with limbs so black, so long and curling that they were marvels; with a bust like Hebe's, and waist almost too slight for the bracelets that encircled the—the hourl of a Mahometan—the Hindoo Spaniard's wildest dream of dusky beauty! Not that Gottlieb thought of Mahometans or Spaniards—perhaps he did not know that any lived.

The tinsel blazed—the drums marked the time—on she came. Was it walking? was it flying? Was the music her soul, that she moved to it so perfectly?

Gottlieb had risen unconsciously. He stood with his beautiful blue eyes fixed upon the girl, one great dimpled hand thrust in his bosom, the fingers of the other clenched.

The audience applauded. Gottlieb knew nothing of the applause, but his eyes said more than palms. She saw him, the girl, and, as she sprang upon her horse, kissed her hand to him. He looked well to her—this golden haired giant; the greatest contrast to herself that could have been met with under the sun.

Gottlieb, perplexed and overcome by the honor, made a low bow. The clown made a joke. It set the crowd laughing. Gottlieb never guessed he was the cause. He remained a statue until her performance was over. After that there was no charm for him.

He went out with the crowd, but did not follow it. He sat down under a tree, and thought. Many words did not belong to him. He could only say, "She's very pretty."

But he meant a great deal by those words. He sat all alone thinking, after all others were gone—after he should have gone himself and driven homeward. Suddenly—startling him with its sharpness—came upon the air a woman's voice, the sound of a whip—a man's growl. Gottlieb understood it at once: a man had struck a woman. In all his life he had never heard that. "The man who lifts his hand against a woman, save in the way of kindness, is a villain." He felt the truth, nevertheless.

Without pausing, he stalked into the tent. A man, the ring-master, stood there, whip to hand; a girl crouched in a corner. It was the beauty of the ring, shorn of her tinsel and gay trappings, but lovely as before.

Gottlieb approached her.

"Did he strike you?" he asked.

"Mein, sir, you mean by this intrusion, sir?" cried the ring-master, with an oath, and tremendous rolling of his r's.

"I heard you strike her," said Gottlieb. "Do folks whip women? Taint our way. Try it before me, and I'll whip you."

The ring-master measured the young athlete with his eye. He would have been a ridiculous encounter to handle.

"A mere family difference," he said. "My disobedient daughter——"

But there the girl screamed out:

"No, I'm not his daughter. He knows it. He beats me cruelly every day. He must go away. I cannot bear this—I cannot!"

Gottlieb held out his hand to her. She clung to his arm sobbing, as had no woman ever sobbed upon his breast.

Gottlieb's heart beat wildly; a celestial desire to protect this girl—a mighty resolve to shield her from all harm filled him. He stooped and whispered in her ear.

"You ain't married already?"

"If I were, would he dare touch me with his whip?" she replied.

"No, the coward!" said Gottlieb, and then a new revelation was made to him.

Before, he had thought of a wife as something to be—a head cook and dairymaid; now he comprehended a more tender feeling. Some one to love, to cherish, to guard from all harm. She should be his wife be.

"If you'll marry me," he said, "she shall never strike you again."

The girl turned her Spanish eyes upon him.

"Do you mean that?" she asked.

"I mean so," said Gottlieb.

She gave him her hand.

"Then let us be my wife," said Gottlieb to the ring-master. "You don't want her, if you dare, to her——"

His manner was so sudden that no one had time to think of resistance. The girl put on her bonnet, Gottlieb standing guard. Then he gave her his hand and walked out of the tent, and straight across to the parsonage.

"It's in earnest," said the ring-master. "They're going to the parson."

* * * *

Late that night the cart lumbered to the farm-house door. The dog set up a bark of welcome. The Dutch servant girl ran out with a lamp. Old Korner came to the door, Madame Valentine followed. Supper and its walked Gottlieb.

"Eh?" said Korner, "all?"

"Yes," said Gottlieb, sheepishly. "Mad-ame Valentine, we want two places. I've company out in the cart."

"Company!" cried Korner.

"Yes," said Gottlieb. "I—I'm married. I—I—I've got a bought house a wife."

Old Korner tumbled into his big chair and stared. Madame Valentine let the plate drop with a crash. The servant girl uttered a scream. The dog began to bark; and in that crisis of confusion Gottlieb led his girl and cast herself down at the feet of the old farmer.

"Forgive him," she said, "I will be a good wife to him—a good daughter to you."

And, as she lifted up her clasped hands, those who looked upon her saw plainly mirrored upon her arm a bright red heart, pierced by what seemed the faint shadow of an arrow.

Madame Valentine uttered a cry.

"It is my Charlotte!" she said. "I know it is my Charlotte and none other. The same arm as ever bore the mark. Oh, my child, my child!"

And Madame Valentine was right. Gottlieb Korner had brought home his wife in the strangest way in the world, stolen years before by the wandering actor, who saw in her beauty capital and stock-in-trade for his show, but whom he could never quite teach to forget the first years of her happy life, of the loving mother's face that had ever haunted her.

Perhaps, under other circumstances, Madame Valentine would not have chosen Gottlieb Korner for her daughter's husband, but, as matters stood, she was only too thankful to have found her; and, as the fairy tales say, they all lived very happy afterward.

One of the most prominent men of Illinois, ex Senator William A. Richardson, died of paralysis on the 26th ult., at Quincy, Ill., in which city his home has been since 1861. He served with distinction as an officer in the Mexican war, since which time he was elected six times to the lower House of Congress, and twice to the Senate, to fill the unexpired term of Stephen A. Douglas. At the time of his death he was an active member of the Quincy Board of Supervisors.

Just Arrived! Just Arrived!

J. M. Bryan, 130 Third street, desires to call the attention of housekeepers to his large and beautiful assortment of new and beautiful styles of Brussels just arrived, which he is selling at greatly reduced prices. Any person in need of a Brussels will do well to call and examine the stock before purchasing elsewhere

One dose of Dr. Hall's Bronchialine is generally sufficient to cure a cold. Send every where for 50 cents.

The Redesdale Correspondence.

Lord Redesdale has shown the courage of an Englishman, who has been said not to know when he is beaten, and has revived his epistolary controversy with the Cardinal Archbishop in the columns of the Daily Telegraph. He opens the renewed discussion with the quotation so often employed by Protestants about the Eerans (Acts xvii., 2), and so often shown by Catholics to be irrelevant. His lordship must, however, in the citation of two passages from two Popes, St. Leo and St. Gelasius, to which they say—as interpreted by Lord Redesdale—that Communion in one kind is only half a sacrament, or no sacrament, and a sacrilege. A third point consists in a reference to a decree of the Council of Constance, which, when forbidding Communion in both kinds, admitted (it) that Christ instituted the Sacrament in both kinds, and that to the Primitive Church it was received by the faithful in both kinds." Lord Redesdale regards that decree as offering "clear proof" that Communion in one kind is unlawful, and he twice reiterates his defiance to the Cardinal to adduce any proof to the contrary. In reply, with regard to the dicta of the two Popes, the Cardinal shows from the context of their works, and from the explanations of theologians like Labbe and Bellarmine, that Communion in both kinds was insisted on by them with the special and restricted purpose of excluding from Catholic Communion the Manichean heretics, who at that time infested the Church, and to show that there is nothing in the words of either Pope to prove that Communion in both kinds is of moral obligation in face of the loathing, interpretation and immemorial practice of the whole Christian world. Next week his Lordship's rejoinder is, whether intentionally or not, admirably adapted to the special tone of thought which the Daily Telegraph addresses. He says that the Cardinal had referred to the "works of the fathers" for his interpretation of the words of the two Popes—his Eminence had really referred him chiefly to the "works of others" for his interpretation of the words of the two Popes—his Eminence had really referred him chiefly to the "works of others" and he adds that he thinks "it unnecessary to inquire how those who profess to make plain meaning endeavor to interpret them otherwise." Thus ends that brief encounter of discussion, for the Cardinal reserves for his next letter that he confines in the interpretation universally put by Catholic theologians on the words of St. Leo and St. Gelasius rather than in an interpretation which rests on his (Lord Redesdale's) authority. With regard to the Council of Constance, the Cardinal shows that what Lord Redesdale has asserted and re-asserted as the true meaning of the Council is simply his own erroneous reading of the decree, which he leaves the public "to judge between the Council and Lord Redesdale." Only one other point of the controversy requires mention. His Eminence had referred to the well-known case of St. Nectarius, whom dying, received Holy Communion in one kind only from the hands of the Bishop of Vercelli. Lord Redesdale in reply asks with much solemnity whether it is possible that the Cardinal can suppose that it is recorded by Paulinus "that as soon as St. Ambrose had received the Body of the Lord he forthwith expired?" Such answer of his Eminence was: "If all that Lord Redesdale can offer is the supposition that there was not 'time' to administer the 'cup' the controversy is indeed closed."—London Tablet.

The death of Sir Thomas Burke, Baronet, of Marble Hill, county Galway, Ireland, is announced. He was the eldest son of Colonel John Burke and Jane Frances, only daughter of Mr. Calmady, M. P. In 1857 he married Mary, daughter of the Earl of Westmeath. He leaves a widow and large family to lament his loss. Sir Thomas represented Galway in the Liberal interest from 1847 to 1865. He was a good landlord, and much beloved by his friends, tenantry and dependents.

The Maintenance of Health.

The unsteinsence of health is often more difficult than its recovery. Vitiated conditions of the stomach, here, bowels and kidneys—forms of bad air and cold, and constant exposure to rough weather, are all so many provocatives of disease. There is but one sure way of effectually guarding the system when thus subjected to influences prejudicial to health, and that is to assist the digestive and alterative assimilative, vigor of the body and vitalizing of the functions. For this purpose the most safe and corrective are happily combined in Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which, in addition to its power to give increased vitality to the organs specially subject to derangement of the stomach, liver, bowels and kidneys, exerts a most beneficial influence in the discharges of functions which the weather of the entire preceding season is dependent. Its effects are much be more effectively manifested than by using the bitters.

Wholesale Market Report.

MONITOR OFFICE, San Francisco,)
THURSDAY, January 6, 1876.)

FLOUR.—We quote the jobbing rates for best Extra-eight $5 @ $5 50; Superfine $4 50 @ $4 75.

WHEAT.—Transactions of late have been very limited. The Eastern markets are reported dull and weak for wheat, and prices here are relatively depressed, shipping may be quoted at $1 37½@1 42½, and milling $1 45@1 50 per ctl.

BARLEY.—The market is quotable at $1 15@1 25 for feed barley, and $1 30@1 35 for brewing.

OATS.—Feed are quotable at $1 80@2, and $2@2 15 for seed for milling.

HAY.—Quotable at $16@17 50 @ ton.

BRAN.—Quotable at $17@18 @ ton.

CORN.—The quotable range for large now is $1@1 05; small do, $1 05@1 10.

CORN MEAL.—Table varieties, $2@2 50 @ ton; feed do, $1@1 10 @ ctl.

BRAN.—We quote bale from wharf as follows—Middlings, $1 87½@2; feed, $1 75@1 87½; small White, $1 80@1 87½; Red, $1 80@1 85; Rolled, $1 75@1 80; Barley, $1 75@1 80 @ ctl.

POTATOES.—Quotable at $1 @1 25 for good to choice, and as low as $1 for poor grades. Sweet, $1 @ 2 @ cental.

ONIONS.—We quote the market at $1 @1 10 @ ctl from wharf.

BEAN.—Quotable at $3 25 @ 3 from mill.

MIDDLINGS.—Quotable at $1 87½@2 @ ton from the mills.

BUCKARE MEAL.—Quotable at $32 50 @ ton.

RYE.—Quotable at $1 @1 05 @ ctl.

BARLEY MEAL.—Quotable at $1 50@1 75 @ ctl.

Mustard, 7@8c for white and 6@6c for brown; Alfalfa, 12@13c; Timothy, 9@10c @ lb.

BUCKWHEAT.—Quotable nominally at 3c; and scalped at 2c; for Rye and Oats, 2@2½c; scaled do, for 2@2½.

TALLOW.—Quotable at 6@6½ @ lb.

WOOL.—We quote as follows: Burry, 9@12c; free, 17@18c; and Humboldt, 20@22c.

DAIRY PRODUCE.

BUTTER.—Choice roll, good to choice, 27@30c; packed roll, 20@25c; Pickled, 20@22½c; Eastern, 40@45c @ lb.

CHEESE.—California, 13@17c; Eastern, 16@18c.

EGGS.—California, 30@35c @ dozen.

FRESH MEATS.

BEEF.—For first quality, 10@12½c; other grades, 6@8c.

VEAL.—At 10@12½c @ lb.

MUTTON.—At 8@9c @ lb.

PORK.—Dressed, at 6@6½c; on foot, grain fed, 5@5½c @ lb.

CURED MEATS.

HAMS.—California, 13@16c @ lb; Eastern, 16@18c; BACON.—California, 10@15c; Eastern, 16@18c.

SHOULDERS.—Eastern, 10@12½c @ lb; California, 8@10c in case.

POULTRY AND GAME.

TURKEYS.—Live, large, $1 @ 1 50; Dressed, $1 @ 1 25; small, $1 @ 1 25 @ dozen.

GEESE.—$2@2 50 @ pair.

DUCKS.—$2@2 50 @ pair.

CHICKENS.—Live, $5@6 @ dozen; Dressed, $3@4 @ dozen.

HENS.—$3@3 50 @ dozen.

GAME.—$1 @ 1 50 @ dozen for quail and $1@2 @ pair for Mallard.

WILD GEESE.—Brant, $2@3 50 @ doz; White, $1 50 @2; Hoskers, $1@3.

DRY GOODS, ETC.

Cloaks and Suits.

Finest Assortment of Silk Suits in the city at

SULLIVAN'S,
14 Montgomery Street.

Elegant Velvet Cloaks, very cheap, at

SULLIVAN'S,
14 Montgomery Street.

Seal Plush Cloaks for Ladies and Children,

SULLIVAN'S,
14 Montgomery Street.

Cloth Cloaks of every description, at prices to suit everybody, at

SULLIVAN'S,
14 Montgomery Street.

Brocaded Silk and Velvet Suits, elegant and stylish, at

SULLIVAN'S,
14 Montgomery Street.

Handsomest Wrappers in the city at

SULLIVAN'S,
14 Montgomery Street.

Children's Velvet and Cloth Cloaks, very large assortment, a

SULLIVAN'S,
14 Montgomery Street.

Silk and Wool Suits of every description, prices from $35 to $75, at

SULLIVAN'S,
14 Montgomery Street.

Drap d'Ete Cloths and Wrappers, the very latest styles, at

SULLIVAN'S,
14 Montgomery Street.

THE ARCADE,

MARKET STREET, NEAR FOURTH.

NOVELTIES IN SILKS!
NOVELTIES IN DRESS GOODS!

☞ Our arrangements for the Fall season are now complete, and we have at present on exhibition the most extensive assortment of European Novelties ever introduced to the Ladies of California.

DOMESTIC GOODS.

In this department we have now completed all our contracts for the coming season, and are prepared to offer housekeepers every species of Domestic Goods at prices which cannot be approached by any house in San Francisco.

SPECIAL NOTICE.—Two Button Jouvin Gloves, ☞ $1 50 per Pair. The immense sale of these Gloves in the past ten days is a distinct indication that the Ladies of San Francisco have now realized the fact that the opportunity now presented for the purchase of Jouvin Gloves may never again occur. Note the price—Two-Button Jouvin Gloves, $1 50 per pair. ☞ Every pair guaranteed.

IN MEMORIAM MRS. P. W. MURPHY.

DESCRIBED TO HER BEREAVED HUSBAND.

Dear cousin, may God comfort thee
In this our hour of pain,
When the sharp arrows of thy life's great loss
Lie heavy on thy soul;
When the burden of thy loneliness
Seems as we crush thee,
Since the charm that made thy life so sweet
Is missed everywhere.

Thy angel with Mona better know
Than we her heart of gold,
What we treasured our sea root roof
Her new young life beheld—
Was watched her growing loveliness
Of mind and body fair.
The light of home, her father's pride,
Her mother's hope and stay.

And, cousin, to thy grief-crushed heart
How dear must be the words,
And all the short the halcyon days
Hers are sacred here were below.
Her pleasant memories has she left
Whether her feet have tired,
And peerless trousers has she worn
Up to her Lord and God.

As Christian, daughter, pupil, wife,
Was surely wrought her part,
And reared a monument for her
In many a loving heart.
And as she was in goodness worth,
Know well what then hast lost,
What words can ever restore to thee—
A gem of priceless cost.

How lonely is thy mourning heart
Thy valley home will be;
As sounding smite, as voice of song,
Is no delight there for thee;
Thy angel's gone.

ST. PAUL'S MAGAZINE.

In her fair scenes will sleep
A dying shrine for thoughts of her
Whose empty home we weep.

The silvery tone of winter rain
Will be her lyre strings set
With tuneful memories of tender laughs
To strains of fond regret.

The sighing wind, the rustling leaf
Will be her voice and tread,
The starlight eyes and smiles
Will be her golden head.

Thy angel's gone.

Then, cousin, bear with patience
The loss from which we pray
That God will soon restore to thee
Thy darling child for aye.

Thy angel's gone.

STEINWAY & SONS' PIANOS.
Square, $475 and $550.
Square Grand, $400.
Upright, $550 $600, $800.
Grand, $1,080, $1,200
Illustrated Catalogues sent free.
KRANICH, BACH & CO'S New York.
SUPERIOR PIANOS.
At a moderate cost—Uprights, Octaves—$350 and $375.
Square and Grand.
Sold for cash, or on installment plan at cash rates, with one per cent. per month added on the forward payments.

MATTHIAS GRAY,
105 Kearny Street, San Francisco, and
101 Third Street, Portland, Oregon.

ANTISEIL
PIANO COMPANY
865 MARKET STREET
OPPOSITE POWELL.

For city—Square and Upright Pianos, $350 and $375. Illustrated Piano Circular sent on application. Square Pianos Rented, $10 per month. Square Pianos Sold on installments, $10 per month.

Tempora Postponitur Nunquam Recentiter.
"Time Past Never Returns."

IF YOU WANT TO HAVE YOUR CLOCKS OR Watches repaired, go to 105 Kearny street, where you can do better than find out the address of D. A. O'CONNELL, Watch and Clock Maker, 105 Kearny street, San Francisco. He will please hear to inform that he keeps for sale at the above address a large assortment of most different watchmakers, you will now notified of making a call.

D. A. O'CONNELL,
WATCH AND CLOCK MAKER,
105 Third Street, near Howard.

He will examine your Watch and Clock Free of Charge, and repair them in a very moderate price. Parties having work done at his shop may rely upon getting it done satisfactorily.

He has for sale Watches, Clocks, Jewelry, Silver and Plated Ware, as cheap as can be bought in this city. All kinds of Jobbing done to order. Remember the place, 105 Third street, near Howard.

WYNNE, LOWTH & CO.
Central Dry Goods House.

THE AVE MARIA
A CATHOLIC JOURNAL
Devoted to the Honor of the Blessed Virgin.
Published Weekly at Notre Dame, Ind.
Approved by His Excellency Bishop IV. and many Eminent Prelates.
16 pp. Imperial 8vo.

THIS PERIODICAL, THE FIRST ESTABlished in the New World in the interests of the Blessed Virgin, is conducted by members of the Congregation of the Holy Cross, and has received the approbation of the Archbishop of Cincinnati and many of the most remarkable cures it will effect by the miraculous water of Lourdes. There is also a Children's Department, which is under an ever vigilant supervision of Sister Superior.

Some of the best Catholic writers of the day are regular contributors to the pages of the paper, among whom may be mentioned Henry Lasserre, Eugene Lamy, Arthur Marshall, Mrs. Anna H. Dorsey, Eliza Allen Starr, Mrs. Sadlier, Mrs. Minnie Howe, Mrs. Jamison, C. O'Conor, and others.

TERMS:

Single copy, one year ..... $ 3
Five copies, one year, $2.50 each 12
Ten copies, one year, $2.50 each 25
Fifteen copies, one year, $2.50 each 37 50
Twenty copies, one year, $2.50 each 50

A specimen copy will be sent to any address on application.

Payments must be made in advance. Money Orders may be sent either in P. O order or Letter of by Postoffice Registered Letter to Notre Dame P. O., Indiana.

All communications should be addressed to the REV. EDITOR OF THE AVE MARIA, Notre Dame, Indiana.

Proprietors of deliver is a specimen of characteristic to our business, and from the several kinds of Paper Hanging Border Blinds, Window Shades, &c., to which we solicit.

Cor. Clay and Sansome Streets, San Francisco.

ST. MARY'S HOSPITAL,
Corner Bryant and First Streets,
SAN FRANCISCO.

HIS INSTITUTION IS UNDER CHARGE OF the Sisters of Mercy.

The Best and Cheapest. New Styles

☞ Send for Catalogue. Pianos and Organs for rent. Tuning and Repairing done.

KOHLER, CHASE & CO.,
633 Clay Street, San Francisco
Broadway, corner Fourteenth Street, OAKLAND.

NEW TAILORING ESTABLISHMENT.

B. FLOOD,
Fashionable Tailor,
637 HOWARD STREET, Bet. Second and Third.

☞ Fine Clothing made to order at the following low prices:

Fine American Cassimere Pants, to order	$6 to $
Fine Business Suits, to order	$25 to $
Fine Diagonal Suits, to order	$35 to $
Fine Dress Suits, to order	$40 to $
Fine Spring Overcoats, to order	$25 to $

☞ All other garments made at proportionally low rates. Full satisfaction guaranteed as to quality of goods and perfection of fit. 1924-1y

Fine Livery Suits.

DRY GOODS.

WYNNE, LOWTH & CO.
704 and 706 MARKET STREET,
OPPOSITE THIRD, AND
5 and 7 Geary Street, NEAR KEARNY.
HAVING MADE LARGE PURCHASES OF
DRY GOODS
At the Great Liquidation Sale of LAZARE FRERES, are enabled to sell the same goods at less than importers' prices.

BLACK GROS GRAIN SILK, at $1 per yard.
HEAVY BLACK SILK, Cashmere finish, $2 per yard.
FINE IRISH POPLIN, $1 50 per yard.
Stench wide BLACK CASHMERE, 75c. per yard.
ALL-WOOL DELAINES, 87½c. per yard.
ENGLISH IRON-FRAME HOSE, full finished, $3 per dozen.
BALBRIGGAN HOSE, silk clocks, $2 per doz.
HEAVY SCOTCH PLAIDS, 25c. per yard.
BLANKETS, SHEETING, and
HOUSE-FURNISHING GOODS
At Wholesale Rates.
FANCY GOODS in great variety.
Ladies' and Gent's FURNISHING GOODS.

Irish Tatting.

BRADFORD SEDGES, in Black and White, for use of Clergy and Sisters.
The celebrated seamless 2-button GLOVES, $1 50 per pair.

WYNNE, LOWTH & CO.
Central Dry Goods House.

Ladies' and Gents' BOOTS AND SHOES.
MEN'S AND BOYS' CUSTOM-MADE CLOTHING.
NO FANCY PRICES.
Dry Goods, Etc.

JAMES O'HANLON & CO.,
725 MONTGOMERY STREET, West Side, near Jackson.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS.

CHASE BROS. PIANOS.
Warerooms, 105 Montgomery Street.

THE MONITOR & GUARDIAN
The Only Irish and Catholic Journal in California.
LYONS & BARRY, - - - - Publishers.
RICHARD O'SULLIVAN, - - - - EDITOR.
OFFICE—626 CLAY STREET, between Montgomery and Kearny sts. (Rooms 1, 7 and 9, up-stairs.)

TERMS (Payable in Advance):
Served by Carriers, per week 10c
Mail subscribers, per year $4 00
Mail Subscribers in Ireland or either of the British Provinces, for 6 months ..... $ 00
Do. do. do. 3 months ..... $ 00
☞ Postage in each case prepaid by publishers.

IN MEMORIAM MRS. P. W. MURPHY.

DESCRIBED TO HER BEREAVED HUSBAND.

Dear cousin, may God comfort thee
In this our hour of pain,
When the sharp arrows of thy life's great loss
Lie heavy on thy soul;
When the burden of thy loneliness
Seems as we crush thee,
Since the charm that made thy life so sweet
Is missed everywhere.

Thy angel with Mona better know
Than we her heart of gold,
What we treasured our sea root roof
Her new young life beheld—
Was watched her growing loveliness
Of mind and body fair.
The light of home, her father's pride,
Her mother's hope and stay.

And, cousin, to thy grief-crushed heart
How dear must be the words,
And all the short the halcyon days
Hers are sacred here were below.
Her pleasant memories has she left
Whether her feet have tired,
And peerless trousers has she worn
Up to her Lord and God.

As Christian, daughter, pupil, wife,
Was surely wrought her part,
And reared a monument for her
In many a loving heart.
And as she was in goodness worth,
Know well what then hast lost,
What words can ever restore to thee—
A gem of priceless cost.

How lonely is thy mourning heart
Thy valley home will be;
As sounding smite, as voice of song,
Is no delight there for thee;
Thy angel's gone.

ST. PAUL'S MAGAZINE.

In her fair scenes will sleep
A dying shrine for thoughts of her
Whose empty home we weep.

The silvery tone of winter rain
Will be her lyre strings set
With tuneful memories of tender laughs
To strains of fond regret.

The sighing wind, the rustling leaf
Will be her voice and tread,
The starlight eyes and smiles
Will be her golden head.

Thy angel's gone.

Then, cousin, bear with patience
The loss from which we pray
That God will soon restore to thee
Thy darling child for aye.

Thy angel's gone.

The Monitor And Guardian.

VOL. XIX. SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., SATURDAY, JANUARY 22, 1876. NO. 16.

The Irish Lamp and the Shrine of Our Lady of Lourdes.

Through the medium of the Freeman's Journal I am glad to inform my numerous subscribers that the Irish lamp for the holy shrine of Our Lady of Lourdes has been just finished. I had the happiness of blessing Lourdes last September, and through the kindness of the authorities, especially who has charge of the magnificent church, built upon the Rock of Massabielle at the bidding of our Blessed Lady, I selected the second place of honor for Ireland's offering. In the holy sanctuary of world-wide fame, at the Gospel side, next to the lamp from the diocese of Valence—which is one most beautiful and the richest in the shrine—our Irish lamp will ever burn as a little offering of thanksgiving and love from the children of St. Patrick to Mary Immaculate. The expenses of the lamp are about £200. Without any effort whatever I have already received over £200, and I have no doubt but the balance will be immediately contributed by the devout readers of Mary's Dowry. I propose to share in the glorious work. The poor man's penny as well as the rich man's gold will be most gratefully received. The names of all the subscribers, written on a scroll of parchment, will be sent with the lamp to the holy shrine. Competent judges have pronounced the lamp to be exquisite in design and execution, and it is no small gratification that it is Irish manufacture.

THOMAS KINANE, C. C.

TEMPLEMORE, December 29, 1875.

There is at present on view in the establishment of Mr. Doregan, of Dame street, Dublin, a beautiful silver lamp, specially manufactured, and intended as an offering by the Irish nation to the shrine of Our Lady of Lourdes. It is the largest of the kind ever manufactured in Ireland, is of solid silver and weighs 400 ounces. The bushion of pierced work, from which hang about four silver chains, elegantly cut in solid form, is the work of a lady, to which the oil is intended to be supplied. It is a most beautiful piece of workmanship, executed by four of Ireland's most accomplished artists. The lamp is a massive iron of eight lights, and is a decided success as a specimen of Irish manufacture. The subjects artistically designed and chiseled by hand, and shown to perfection in bas relief. The panels are divided by ornamental work festoons attached to each panel. To the body underneath is a Gothic chased border, with shamrock resting on a bushing with a bell, a wreath of roses and shamrock pendant. The entire work is turned out in a manner highly creditable to Mr. Patrick Doregan's establishment.—Dublin Freeman.

MacMahon's Proclamation.

The President of the French Republic has issued the following patriotic proclamation, which is countersigned by Buffet, Vice President of Council:

Fellow-citizens for the first time in five years you are called to participate in a general election. Five years ago you decided order and peace, and at the price of the most cruel sacrifices, and after the greatest disasters, you wished for nothing still desire order and peace to. The Senate and Deputies you are about to elect must help me with the President of the Republic to maintain them. We must apply with common accord and unity of action the present supply in insufficient to quantity for your prosperity needs, and its quality is really to be restored by it. Senate's report is the all its more necessary for prompt that the Senate should be fully invested with the full powers necessary to accomplish the duties they are honestly tried. Upon this depends the salvation of France, I think that it is indispensable that a conservative and truly liberal policy, which I always intend to pursue, should prevail. To uphold it, I appeal from you among those who profess the defense of social order, respect for law and patriotic devotion above the recklessness of aspirations or party engagements. I invite them to rally around my Government. It necessary sacred rights, surviving to all Government changes and legitimate interests. Of course, which every administration is bound to protect, should put itself in security under a strong and respected Government. It is necessary to close those who might disturb its security, and discourage those who threaten its future by the propagation of anti-social and revolutionary doctrines. France knows that I neither sought nor desired power, but only to obey on my exercising it without weakness. To fulfill to the end the mission, I hope God will assist me and the support of the people will not fail me.

THOMAS KINANE, C. C.

TEMPLEMORE, December 29, 1875.

There is at present on view in the establishment of Mr. Doregan, of Dame street, Dublin, a beautiful silver lamp, specially manufactured, and intended as an offering by the Irish nation to the shrine of Our Lady of Lourdes. It is the largest of the kind ever manufactured in Ireland, is of solid silver and weighs 400 ounces. The bushion of pierced work, from which hang about four silver chains, elegantly cut in solid form, is the work of a lady, to which the oil is intended to be supplied. It is a most beautiful piece of workmanship, executed by four of Ireland's most accomplished artists. The lamp is a massive iron of eight lights, and is a decided success as a specimen of Irish manufacture. The subjects artistically designed and chiseled by hand, and shown to perfection in bas relief. The panels are divided by ornamental work festoons attached to each panel. To the body underneath is a Gothic chased border, with shamrock resting on a bushing with a bell, a wreath of roses and shamrock pendant. The entire work is turned out in a manner highly creditable to Mr. Patrick Doregan's establishment.—Dublin Freeman.

The Religion of the Blaine Family.

Squire Blaine, as he was called, the father of ex Speaker Blaine and grandfather of the present incumbent of the White House, was a Catholic, but married a Miss Gillespie, a member of an old Catholic family, who were very wealthy, but who mostly with rever

THE SOUL'S FAREWELL TO EARTH.

From fleshly chords the unstrin ears is flirting
His shadow'd frame across the room of dying,
And evening hours their weary flight are winging
To Lethean realms, unknown and far away;
Unknown and far away—it will soon ing near us,
Far angels hold the lists of tears and sighs
That bind us to the past, and strive to cheer us
With hopes of bliss above these evening skies.

The dove's night-cove floats out upon the silver,
And in the loving mood their beaks are meeting,
And poor as rich, and friend and foe together,
"Lo down to pleasant dreams" and slumbers send.
The fragrant breeze a memorial offers is sighing—
Earth weeps above the flowers upon her breast!
The sobbing waves in ocean's arms are lying,
And nature strives to lull them all to rest.

Then come, O soul of mine, while all are sleeping,
When athletes cease fatal such flight weary wing,
When eagle plumes their voice wants are keeping
Around the pinions of their Captive King—
Come, let us talk on death, while night is wrestling
Bright dawn's blooming cheek May's sentinels strike!
For as those flowers shall fade that now are breathing,
So round our tomb the ivy soon shall twine.

Ah, yes, my soul, as to the flower gathered
A sad and fleeted farewell we fain must say;
To all of earth there with what tears we kneeling,
Dear soul, with those desert thy frame of clay.
A sad farewell to all the Master's blessings—
To all the friends we love so dear, alas!
To all gladsome tasks and pleasant duties,
Which we from mother had and must pass!

A sad farewell of all the golden gleamin ge
That tinge the flecks where we were wont to roam!
A sad farewell to all the twinkling streamlet
From sand or ot that gem the serene dome!
Farewell to life, to gladness and to sorrow—
To hope and woe, to self, to all beside and prize,
To all the things his which we were wont to borrow
From parting rill and blooming wilderness.

Farewell to all! Sad tears and sighs are shedding,
While, as they fall upon earth's bosom, sound
Like footsteps of mourners, softly treading
Around the spot where some grave is dug.
My soul, we weep, yet why this sombre feeling?
Is it because we leave our all on earth?
Has that so fond these attractions are stealing
Bright angels whisper of our heavenly birth.

And can a child of heaven be sad when leaving
The home of sorrow, where she's made most room
To gather sweet incense and blossoms, for weaving
The crown which she will wear in her time home?
No, it is not sad to leave a place so dreary
By Jesus' love and grace, will show at last
The way to tread the path that leads to heaven
Will make it sad or sigh for pleasures past.

Oh, it is not grant that there may be no weeping
When we Thy creatures, speechless and absent,
Yielding to the frame of earth to the leading,
Shall kneel before Thine awful judgment throne!
Oh, then accept the promises of the living—
May Jesu's blood our soul, "through faith" cleanse!
But there on our sights—one close forgives—
And take us in Thy meek and loving heart.

Oh! take it—when Thy face its light is reading,
Fits souls which joy which they can never say!
Where through an endless day bright angels kneeling
Wait in Thy glorious throne their joyful word to hear!
Where their bright wings shall hover o'er us, shielding
Our happy souls from earth's forgotten pain—
Where farewells breathed on Time's sad breeze are yielding—
To no eternal—Welcome home again!

EVERY TENTH MAN.

arose from the table, where the conversation had for an hour or more centered on the civil war which had just desolated Germany. General Bourdelaine—a tall, wiry specimen of the entire officier whom no one would imagine to be verging upon his eighty-fourth year, and who very probably will in the year 1885 celebrate the eighty-second anniversary of his leaving the military school in 1808—invited me for coffee into the cosy allowed himself only once in a while to his most intimate friends are admitted; for the general, although on the retired list since 1845, has not yet begun to seek the repose of inactivity, and I have often seen in that study of his an order of strategical plans (afterward published by the Minister of War) of the principal battles of Napoleon in Champagne against the allied forces.

The study is large, although it seems small, so filled is every piece of furniture, shelf and book with odds, ends, plans papers, portraits, busts, statuettes in marble and in bronze, globes and drawing and instruments, and all these not in absolute disorder, but in an apparent confusion which the general finds very convenient, inasmuch as everything is within reach.

It was not the first time that I had been there. For the first time, however, on this particular evening, my eyes fell upon a plain bow-od frame hung on the wall opposite the chimney piece, in a room formed by two large bookcases. A full, blunt print in the center, which reflected the light of the lamp, attracted my attention. It was the scansel of a cross of the Legion of Honor, to which was attached, under the glass, a large band of crape which stretched to the four corners of the frame. On the left of the frame, on the outside, hung a large silver sword, and on the right the golden scorn of a sword knot.

The daughter of the general entered at the moment, followed by a servant bearing coffee and all the accessories upon a tray. There were now five of us in the room: the general, his daughter and his son-in-law, a government clerk and myself. Each one began to observe to discuss the smoking coffee: when the general, whose glance had unconsciously taken the same direction as mine, suddenly exclaimed:

"What a horrible thing is war! I did not enter the service until the time had come when men no longer went forth to meet the enemies in the open field, but moved merely by the desire of winning rank or fortune, or by the love of glory and honor. I was present at some frightful butcheries and route still more frightful; I have seen nearly all the attendants of the Emperor's person and I bore my part in the perverse facts fortune inflicted upon him. Well, after all, what did it amount to? The fortune of war is one of the chances of the trade. You conquer or are conquered, kill or are killed. The result comes up, and then—room for the bravest or most favored, the most skillful or the luckiest! But to be forced to live upon your own meat; to be compelled to dedicate pitilessly your own brave companions-in-arms to kill in cold blood excellent soldiers, whose only crime was a single day's mutiny, but whose example might risk the discipline and safety of the entire army, to kill, I say, men whom the very invocation of victory had to believe that their fault would go unpunished; men we sorely needed—this is most fearful and accident of all this is it that makes my soul and blood a sore than fifty years since it in it, even though conscience remain tranquil, something very like remorse pursues me."

He put down his cup without replying, filled a small glass with cognac and swallowed it at one gulp.

"Have you finished the notes I wished you to make from Jomini and Vaudoncourt?"

"Yes, mon general."

"Very good; give me them. And now service for service. I will confide to you an episode in my military life of which you may make what use you think proper. I authorize you to do so."

And General Bourdelaine thereupon related what follows:

II.

My rank in the service dates from October, 1805. Jena and Austerlitz won me my stanchions of sous lieutenant. In 1807 I made the Polish campaign, and in 1808 the Spanish. The following year I was recalled to Germany, and saw Ratisbon and Wagram. Napoleon after the battle hailed in front of my regiment to learn the names of those who had distinguished themselves.

"All did," cried the colonel; "but if your Majesty will permit me, I would especially recommend the Lieutenant Bourdelaine to your favor.

The Emperor looked at me.

"You come from Saint Cyr?"

"Yes, sire."

"How many campaigns?"

"Three."

"And still a lieutenant."

"I have had no chance to rise before this."

"Which do you prefer, the cross or promotion?"

"Promotion, sire."

My reply was not that of a courtier. But he loved the young men who, like his, had not awaited the end of their course before becoming officers.

"Ah! you prefer promotion."

"Sire, they say that things are not going well in Spain since your Majesty left there. Send me thither; give me a company, and I will win death or the cross."

"Very well."

I received the company I sought, not, however, in a French, but in an Italian regiment. I was ordered to Aragon in November, 1810, and made part of the army commanded by Suchet. My colonel, San Polo, received an warmly.

"You will find more than one of your countrymen in my regiment," said he; "and you had better have them give an account of your fame from the time you left there are very gentle. You must be vigilant and firm; you but indulgent, if not, you can be exposed to strange surprises and I will but be compelled to do my duty."

The colonel was no small prophet. Those Italians are terrible soldiers. Rash, restless, passionate and adventurous, they are such, never flinched under the fire, but once out of it quarrelsome, mutinous and given to pillaging; ours, I confess, more than once seemed to sack and destroy for the mere pleasure of doing so. I can yet see the comical though moving scene which took place in Burgos, where my battalion, by right, foiled their pos with all the scandalous and gallant they could find to the city, and which battalion I found myself in the habitants who hastened to bring them zeal and wood. But the soup, seasoned with General Suchet had taken one after another the towns of Mequinenza, on the northern confines of the province of Huesca; Lerida, in Lower Catalonia, to the northwest of Mequinenza and Tortosa, south of Lerida, at the extremity of the province of Tarragona. He thus commanded all the line of the Ebro, from Mora to Seara and the Cinca; and, moreover, the capture of those cities had enabled him to collect a complete park of siege artillery at Tortosa. Unfortunately, the commandant of Figueras was still allowed himself to be supported in Upper Catalonia, our forces there were compelled to fall back toward Gironia, and the Spanish General Campoverde, besieged before Figueras by Baraguey d'Hilliers, had profited by our campaign, not only to rally his troops, but also to annoy our messages and communications. Therefore, although he had received orders from the Emperor, on the 10.h of March, to invest Tarragona, who could blame him for completing our occupation of the principality of Catalonia, would have opened the road to Valentia to us. General Suchet did not yet dare attempt an enterprise of such importance. The task of keeping the two districts of Upper and Lower Catalonia subjugated, and in Lower Catalonia, to the north of Tortosa, and the second in Aragon on the north-west of Mequinenza, and in the province of Teruel—paralyzed his forces. His artillery, too, had been reduced by the Figueras garrison of an effective force of over forty thousand men. Tortosa, which was still

WEEKLY CALENDAR.

FOR THE WEEK BEGINNING JANUARY 23.

Sunday—Third Sunday after Epiphany. Espousal of the B. V. M. St. Joseph. St. Emerentiana, Virgin and Martyr.

24—Monday—St. Timothy, Martyr.

25—Tuesday—Conversion of St. Paul.

26—Wednesday—St. Polycarp, Bishop and Martyr.

27—Thursday—St. John Chrysostom, Bishop and Doctor of the Church.

28—Friday—St. Raymond of Pennafort, Confessor. St. Agnes, m'rmdm.

29—Saturday—St. Francis of Sales, Bishop and Confessor.

THE MONITOR & GUARDIAN;

THE ONLY

Irish and Catholic Journal in California.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

SATURDAY.....JANUARY 22, 1876.

SUBSCRIBERS will please especially look at the printed label on the cover or wrapper of the paper; the date thereon shows when the subscription expires.

THE CHURCH AT A DISADVANTAGE.

The discussion of the public school question in both secular and religious papers appears almost interminable. There seems to be no chance of arriving at an amicable understanding, and there is great danger that disturbances will be created in the country which will retard its prosperity and lower its reputation abroad. Unfortunately, there are many public men who prefer the success of their political party to the welfare of the people, and who, to gain their ends, do not hesitate to embroil the country in a religious war. We see the public school question lead to outbreaks in many States, and we cannot run into debt for that is prohibited by law, and nothing but legislative interference can prevent bankruptcy. Blame for this state of things is not to be measured with somebody. It is plain that either sufficient money was not demanded in the first place, or there has been gross mismanagement, and either is a theme for tongue to wag. It is not possible that there is nobody among all the officials who can form an intelligent idea of what it will cost to carry on municipal government for a term spoke of twice a year. Is there no person who is capable or making what must be a very simple calculation? Or taking the alternative, we have the supervision of any kind over the figures? Are they to understand that the appropriations are voted, the oh of offices of the Assembly, like great depositories of the money as quickly as it is voted? Somebody is in fault, and it is somebody means lots of it. Somebody is responsible for the reckless manner in which the money is squandered, and for the corrupt and supine manner in which the people submit to it. Somebody is in fault, and now the finance stares the city in the face, and the people and their money can be seen [illegible] condition [illegible] ...ruin? The appropriations for the Industrial school have been used up; nothing is left for its support during the coming school. But what is to become of all its [illegible] and uncompromising rejection. O-here, again, are far too timid, and in their never-ceasing desire to avoid giving offense, they render themselves and their Church contemptible. Among such a variety of utterances hostile or[illegible] utterances, that is whatever they think most vulnerable, and deal with it precisely as if Catholicity were entirely responsible for every word.

Why, then, can speak for us and put our case fairly and fully before the country, so that there can be no dispute about its existence? Who, indeed, but the Archbishop and Bishops who govern the Church and not for the faithful with plenitude of authority? A letter or document coming from them would possess immense power, and would effectually crush the calumnies and misrepresentations of the enemies of our faith, and expose their nefarious designs to the reprobation of the civilized world.

STUPID BLUNDERING.

The note addressed to the Board of Supervisors by Mayor BRYANT a few days ago discloses a singular but perhaps not very surprising state of affairs in the city finances. The appropriations, which should last until the end of June, are already exhausted, and there remains positively nothing to meet the expenses of our municipal government during the time that is yet to elapse. The Mayor has been compelled by these circumstances to refuse to sign bills which ought to be paid, and to bring the whole city administration to a standstill. [illegible] last week. The city cannot run into debt for that is prohibited by law, and nothing but legislative interference can prevent bankruptcy. Blame for this state of things is not to be measured with somebody. It is plain that either sufficient money was not demanded in the first place, or there has been gross mismanagement, and either is a theme for tongue to wag. It is not possible that there is nobody among all the officials who can form an intelligent idea of what it will cost to carry on municipal government for a term spoke of twice a year. Is there no person who is capable of making what must be a very simple calculation? Or taking the alternative, we have the supervision of any kind over the figures? Are they to understand that the appropriations are voted, the oh of offices of the Assembly, like great depositories of the money as quickly as it is voted? Somebody is in fault, and it is somebody means lots of it. Somebody is responsible for the reckless manner in which the money is squandered, and for the corrupt and supine manner in which the people submit to it. Somebody is in fault, and now the finance stares the city in the face, and the people and their money can be seen [illegible] condition [illegible] ...ruin? The appropriations for the Industrial school have been used up; nothing is left for its support during the coming school. But what is to become of all its [illegible] and uncompromising rejection. O-here, again, are far too timid, and in their never-ceasing desire to avoid giving offense, they render themselves and their Church contemptible. Among such a variety of utterances hostile or[illegible] utterances, that is whatever they think most vulnerable, and deal with it precisely as if Catholicity were entirely responsible for every word.

Why, then, can speak for us and put our case fairly and fully before the country, so that there can be no dispute about its existence? Who, indeed, but the Archbishop and Bishops who govern the Church and not for the faithful with plenitude of authority? A letter or document coming from them would possess immense power, and would effectually crush the calumnies and misrepresentations of the enemies of our faith, and expose their nefarious designs to the reprobation of the civilized world.

STUPID BLUNDERING.

The note addressed to the Board of Supervisors by Mayor BRYANT a few days ago discloses a singular but perhaps not very surprising state of affairs in the city finances. The appropriations, which should last until the end of June, are already exhausted, and there remains positively nothing to meet the expenses of our municipal government during the time that is yet to elapse. The Mayor has been compelled by these circumstances to refuse to sign bills which ought to be paid, and to bring the whole city administration to a standstill. This is a plain statement of the case, and it is very clear that the difficulty is that no sufficient estimate was made of the probable expenses during the past six months. Can it be possible that there is nobody among all the officials who can form an intelligent idea of what it will cost to carry on municipal government for a term spoke of twice a year?

RISH LOCAL NEWS.

From the Dublin Nation of December 25.

ANTRIM.

On Friday night week a lady, the wife of Mr. W. Finaing, of Whitewell, near Bel fast, was confined to a kitchen in her residence. It is supposed that she had fallen asleep in her chair, and, her clothes catching fire, she was suffocated.

Last week some inland revenue officers discovered on the premises of Joseph Mc Minn, Drumbo, a large-sized still at full work, together with barrels containing 160 gallons of wash ready for the still, and other materials necessary for manufacturing spirits. Upon a further search on the same premises, a second still was discovered, together with the still head. They after wards proceeded to the house of William Davis, in the same townland, and, upon search, found a quantity of illicit spirits, which they also seized.

Last week two hundred tenant-farmers, holding land on the estate of Major Grey, in Antrim, met in Belfast for the purpose of taking measures to resist the increase of rent with which they are threatened. A series of resolutions were adopted refusing to pay the increase, upon the ground that their tenan-right would thus be confiscated. The tenants seem determined to make a bold stand in the matter.

A fatal accident is reported from the Glenarm Causeway. It appears that a Miss Holland had come over from England as one of the bridesmaids of her cousin, Miss Coleman, at Portrush, and was one of a gay party in a promenade along the top of the cliffs when they ran steeper and higher over the "grand Causeway." She ventured too close to the edge, said, either through giddiness or a sudden gust of wind, was precipitated to the bottom, a distance of over 100 feet. Of course death was instantaneous.

ARMAGH.

On Wednesday week an inquest was held in Portadown by the coroner, R. D. Atkinson, on the remains of a man named John Todd, gamekeeper to Lord Lurgan, who met his death by the accidental bursting of a gun. It appeared from the evidence that a number of persons who had assembled to shoot, were returning into the town, when they met a Mr. Stevenson, a medical student, who requested them to turn back again and have some fun. They did so, and commenced to shoot at an improvised target of paper. Mr. Stevenson and the deceased were, he deposed, walking it is said, loading one of the barrels of his gun, when the charge of the other barrel was fired, and the contents passed through his head, going in at the one cheek and out at the other, killing the man on the spot.

Last week the election to the coronership of the southern division of county Armagh, vacant by the death of Mr. Tooher M. Magee, took place in the Ballybotcen house. Mr. William Fraser, of Newry, was nominated by J. B. Boyle, Esq., J. P., seconded by P. G. Symon, Esq., J. P. Mr. R. Garland, of Whitecross, was nominated by J. B. Boyle, Esq., D. L., seconded by Alexander Scott, Esq. The result was finally declared on Saturday as follows:—Robert Garland, 380; W. Fraser, 261; Newcomen Hamilton—R. Garland, 353; W. Fraser, 223.

CLARE.

The death is announced of Rev. Patrik Moran, who has been for many years parish priest of Miltown, near Kilrush.

CARLOW.

The Jesuit Fathers, says the Carlow Post of the 9th inst., who had been conducting the retreat in this town last week, brought their successful and highly gratifying labors to a close on Sunday last, when the ordination was attended at all the Masses by vast congregations—a fact to bear those eloquent propounders of the Gospel, who had already achieved so much lasting good during their brief stay in Carlow. The general Jubilee, now fast drawing to a close, has been attended by nearly every person in the parish.

CORK.

We regret to announce, says the Cork Examiner, the death of the Rev. Timothy O'Sullivan, P. P., of Kilbrittain, which took place at his brother's residence, Castletown, Berehaven.

A meeting of the Cork Farmers' Club at which Mr. Nagle, M. P., and Mr. Barry, M. P., were present, was held on Saturday, in defence of the Irish cattle trade. Several gentlemen expressed their belief in a plot on the part of England to ruin Irish trade in the particular.

With sincere regret, says the Cork Examiner, we have to announce the death at four o'clock, December 15th, at the Capuchin Convent, Charleville quay, of the Very Rev. Father Charles. A Venetian by birth, and still a comparatively young man, he was one of the first of the Italian Capuchins who came to this city under the guardianship of the Very Rev. Father Cornelius, eight years ago. He spent some time also in Kilkenny, and latterly before the final departure of the Italian community from Cork, went to Dublin, where he determined upon joining the Ala Sera of the Irish province, then about to take possession of the house of the Order in this city.

Among the cabin passengers brought over by the Monarch was Major D. P. Conyngham, LL. D., who has returned to visit the friends and scenes of his youth after a lapse of several years to America. Dr. Conyngham is the author of several popular works, including the "History of the Irish Brigade in the American War," "Lives of the Irish Saints and Martyrs," etc. The Pope honored him with a special letter of approbation of the later work, while the Catholic University of Notre Dame conferred on him the honorary degree of LL. D. As a writer, Major Conyngham has ably distinguished himself in the American war. The door-sill spend a few months among his friends in Tipperary ere he returns to his editorial duties as editor of the New York Democrat.

DERBY.

At midnight, on Friday week, a railway porter stationed to the Smithill railway station observed something on the line of rails a short distance from the platform. On examination she was found to have received a very severe injury in the flesh of one arm, which was much torn from the shoulder to the elbow. She gave her name as Margaret Horgan, of Queen's Square, Dublin, but could not account for her position or how she received the injuries described.

GALWAY.

The Rev. F. Kenny, P. P., Moycullen, in a letter to the Galway Vindicator, says the Very Rev. James Mahoney, of London, a distinguished member of the Society of Jesus, on succeeding as eldest son and heir to his father's property of Knockbarrane, in this parish, as the first act of his proprietorship, remitted the arrears due by his tenants up to November last, and granted them all leases for the term of 35 years, and the moderate rents which they were paying to the worthy father.

KILKENNY.

An adjourned meeting of the committee for the promotion of the trade of Kilkenny was held, says the Kilkenny Journal of Saturday, at Mr. James Wade's auction rooms, King street, on Tuesday evening, at eight o'clock. The chair was occupied by Mr. James Dunne. There was a large attendance of members. Mr. Michael Healy, T. C., proposed the following resolution, which was seconded by Mr. F. Meagher, and adopted unanimously: "Resolved, That our honorable Secretary be authorized to send reports of the weekly meetings of this committee to the local papers, and that he be instructed to write to Mr. Benjamin Whitworth, M. P., and to request him to appoint a time at which it would be his convenience to attend a public meeting in Kilkenny to promote the movement for the establishment of the proposed factory; and that in the meantime steps be taken for the purpose of selecting a proper site."

KING'S COUNTY.

Thomas Cahill, a miller and farmer at Philipstown, was shot dead in his mill, by a bullet fired through the window, on Thursday week. Two assistants standing by him were wounded.

The death is announced of George Parry, Esq., Parsonstown. Mr. Parry was Chairman of Parsonstown Town Commissioners in 1864, and acted as a member of that body up to 1872.

The Rev. Dr. Bugler, P. P., Parsonstown, has just received a donation of £35 to assist in building the Christian Brothers' schools in that town. The money was sent by a few Catholic gentlemen of Melbourne, who hailed from the King's county. It was collected by them after seeing an article in one of the newspapers that the schools were about to be erected. The building is now far advanced in the first population, and the money arrived just at the proper time to help to finish the work.

Mr. De Courcey D. Denny, solicitor, Tralee (of the firm of Huggard & Denny), died suddenly last week in Tralee, aged thirty-five years.

An open investigation of the Flimby case was held in Carlisle on Tuesday last week. With the consent of the solicitors for the Crown, the magistrates discharged the two brothers Hewitson, of Kirk Oswald, servants of Oliver Mason, no evidence having been given to implicate them in the supposed crime. Further evidence was given with regard to the death of Oliver Mason by Mrs. Pott, and the same was to the effect that some time before she had seen him quarreling with his sister, and that on another occasion the prisoner remarked that she would be mistress of Flimby yet. At the close of the examination the prisoner was finally committed for trial on the charge of poisoning her brother.

LIMERICK.

At the last meeting of the Newcastle West Board of Guardians, all present with the exception of Rathbone and Rowlette, proposed by Mr. Charles McCarthy, solicitor, was unanimously adopted:—Resolved, That we here heard with deep sorrow and heartfelt regret of the death of the late venerable, eminent, amiable and patriotic clergyman, Rev. Thomas Fingerall Plunkett, who filled the office of Protestant chaplain to the Union for upwards of thirty years, discharging his duties unobtrusively, and with a good Christian minister, never at any time originating topics which would cause religious discussion in this Board; and that the clerk of the Union do forward a copy of these resolutions to the Rev. Michael Healy, T. C., proposed the following resolution, which was seconded by Mr. F. Meagher, and adopted unanimously: "Resolved, That our honorable Secretary be authorized to send reports of the weekly meetings of this committee to the local papers, and that he be instructed to write to Mr. Benjamin Whitworth, M. P., and to request him to appoint a time at which it would be his convenience to attend a public meeting in Kilkenny to promote the movement for the establishment of the proposed factory; and that in the meantime steps be taken for the purpose of selecting a proper site."

KING'S COUNTY.

Thomas Cahill, a miller and farmer at Philipstown, was shot dead in his mill, by a bullet fired through the window, on Thursday week. Two assistants standing by him were wounded.

The death is announced of George Parry, Esq., Parsonstown. Mr. Parry was Chairman of Parsonstown Town Commissioners in 1864, and acted as a member of that body up to 1872.

The Rev. Dr. Bugler, P. P., Parsonstown, has just received a donation of £35 to assist in building the Christian Brothers' schools in that town. The money was sent by a few Catholic gentlemen of Melbourne, who hailed from the King's county. It was collected by them after seeing an article in one of the newspapers that the schools were about to be erected. The building is now far advanced in the first population, and the money arrived just at the proper time to help to finish the work.

Mr. De Courcey D. Denny, solicitor, Tralee (of the firm of Huggard & Denny), died suddenly last week in Tralee, aged thirty-five years.

An open investigation of the Flimby case was held in Carlisle on Tuesday last week. With the consent of the solicitors for the Crown, the magistrates discharged the two brothers Hewitson, of Kirk Oswald, servants of Oliver Mason, no evidence having been given to implicate them in the supposed crime. Further evidence was given with regard to the death of Oliver Mason by Mrs. Pott, and the same was to the effect that some time before she had seen him quarreling with his sister, and that on another occasion the prisoner remarked that she would be mistress of Flimby yet. At the close of the examination the prisoner was finally committed for trial on the charge of poisoning her brother.

LIMERICK.

At the last meeting of the Newcastle West Board of Guardians, all present with the exception of Rathbone and Rowlette, proposed by Mr. Charles McCarthy, solicitor, was unanimously adopted:—Resolved, That we here heard with deep sorrow and heartfelt regret of the death of the late venerable, eminent, amiable and patriotic clergyman, Rev. Thomas Fingerall Plunkett, who filled the office of Protestant chaplain to the Union for upwards of thirty years, discharging his duties unobtrusively, and with a good Christian minister, never at any time originating topics which would cause religious discussion in this Board; and that the clerk of the Union do forward a copy of these resolutions to the Rev. Michael Healy, T. C., who succeeded the Protestant guardians of acting in the matter from sectarian feeling, and said that coercion had been brought to bear upon some of the farmers holding grain at the board. The motion was opposed by Mr. Usher, who denied that the supporters of the previous resolutions were actuated by religious feelings, and maintained that their only object was to secure a cheap and efficient system of instruction. The poll on an amendment proposed by Mr. H. A. Fitzgerald resulted in a tie, there being ten votes on each side. Another amendment in harmony with the principle of the resolution was then proposed by Mr. Anthony, and was carried, Mr. Fitzgerald and his friends not having voted. The effect of the second poll is to rescind the resolution of the 10th June and restore the religious system.

The Chapter of Ferns and other parish priests met at the Cathedral, Enniscorthy, on Wednesday week, for the purpose of giving a successor to the late Most Rev. Dr. Furlong. The following is the result: Dr. Gaughran—Right Rev. Dr. Edwards, Bishop of Rettimo, Cape Colony, Dunlor—Very Rev. Michael Warren, Superior of the House of Mission, Enniscorthy. Dr. Dunne—Very Rev. Dr. Fortune, President All Hallows' College.

Resolutions of Agreement With Chief Justice Dunne.

WHEREAS, it is made public in the press of the country that the Hon. Edward H. Pierrepont, Attorney General of the United States, in his official communication to Hon. Edward F. Dunne, notifying him of his removal from the office of Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Arizona Territory, precedes as the "controlling reason" for this measure the position assumed by the Chief Justice as a private individual upon the common school question:

Resolved, That we the Roman Catholics of the city of St. Paul, and delegates from the State of Minnesota, do hereby, as American citizens, place on record our unqualified disapprobation of President Grant's removal of Chief Justice Dunne, and that the Chief Justice has acted well towards the British all through the disturbances, by such impartial course as he has pursued, and in so arranging cases from us, and if witnesses are treated from there as to make it very much a difficulty in getting evidence in important cases.

There had been no trouble with the Indians of the river; no troops were invited on the side, neither were they the cause of property bitterly incurred. I had invited a man come down to the river bank and offer a white flag to go, as a village is belonging to Iatu Sage. He had been accepted with an endless "shout" to the Indians against the Britons. He probably would have done so if Rajah Isla had become the troops of a second time. What ever his guilt, it would have occurred in many people that an undoubted village with a white flag flying would be spared at any rate, unless the owner of it was actually found improper. Batu party went across and fired it. In one house there was a woman and child, but she was turned out and the town applied. Two men there upon appeared, and one drew a spear, which wounded a policeman in the shoulder. The spearman was immediately shot dead. Until the torch had been applied no resistance had been offered. It is said that Iatu Sage was present at Rinde's murder, and that there was evidence to implicate him. He probably deserved punishment, but in grace against one's ideas of justice when a man's village is burnt down in his absence because he is alleged to have been present at a murder. He might possibly have prevented it, but there is no proof that he was in actual arms against us, and had no opportunity given him to make his defence. The hatred with which the Malays view us will be intensified when an end is such as these are noised abroad.

REAL ESTATE AGENTS.

M. O'NEIL. M. & O'NEIL. Attorney at Law.

M. O'NEIL & SON,

Real Estate and Law Agency,

NO. 708 MISSION STREET,

Corner Third.....SAN FRANCISCO.

REAL ESTATE BOUGHT AND SOLD. RENTS COLLECTED.

Bad Tenants quickly ejected at very small cost.

Collections of all kinds promptly made. Law business of all kinds reasonably and rapidly executed.

LOANS NEGOTIATED. 8ill

SPECIAL ADVERTISEMENT.

Cheap Investments in Real Estate, Suitable for People of Moderate Means.

Lots Nos. 1128, 1127, 1126, 1125, 1120, 1121, in Gift Map No 3. Price of whole.....$750

Corner Lot, No. 16, Block 141, Tiffin, in Bay View Homestead No. 2, subdivision.....$400

Lots 13, 14 and 15, Block 8, in the Haley Pa ctage, Mission.....$1,000

N. E. corner Sacramento and Taylor streets, on $3 installment plan—lot 80x114.....$800

Lots 1 and 2, on Fifteenth street, east of Hyde, running back to Delaware Place—each.....$125

Lots 1 and 2, Block 1, Subdivision No. 2, Potrero estate, between Fifth and Sixth; at profit of $75 per month; will use a lot very cheap.

House and Lot, 17 by 120, on York street, between Twenty-second and Twenty-third, in Mission Block; finished and painted; lot fenced on front with fine picket fence; will take $1,500 cash, or will sell on time; lot is worth $1,000 of that money. Apply at 1 Montgomery avenue, over Tiffin's.....$1,500

House and Lot, on Bernard street, near Folsom, in Mission Block; finished and lot 25 x 114, on Jersey st.; will sell very cheap.....$1,000

Three Lots, 24x100, near the corner of Telegraph road and Kahkeenah streets, Oakland. Price, $300; terms very easy.

Splendid Farm of 160 acres at Milbrae Station, Alameda county, being subdivided; house, stable, etc., on the land. Sold piece by piece, or will be leased on very reasonable terms for the coming season.

Lot 50x100, on Sacramento street, between Powell and Mason. Price, $2,000; terms easy.

Several good Grocery Stores and Lodging Houses for sale very cheap. Apply to

O'NEIL & SON'S

Real Estate Agency,

702 Mission Street.

d19

F. P. O'KEEFFE,

(Successor to T. D. CUSHING),

FARMING LAND, REAL ESTATE,

AND

GENERAL BUSINESS AGENCY.

Houses to Let and Furniture of Houses for Sale.

Collects Rents, Notes, Bills and Accounts.

Office, 236 Montgomery St.,

Near Pine.....SAN FRANCISCO.

Money Loans and Partnerships Negotiated.

Parties looking for any safe and reliable investment may depend upon receiving valuable information by calling on the above. 8ft

EDMUND MARKS,

AGENT FOR THE SALE AND PURCHASE OF

Real Estate,

LOANS NEGOTIATED.

316 MONTGOMERY STREET,

Between California and Pacific streets, San Francisco. Jly

F. S. WENSINGER,

DEALER IN

REAL ESTATE.

304 MONTGOMERY STREET,

Near Pine.....San Francisco.

Office Hours—11 a. m. to 1 p. m. 8ft

GOOD AGENTS WANTED.

The Saturday Evening Post being the only Illustrated Family, Literary and Fashion Paper published in

THE CENTENNIAL CITY,

Agents have an unusual opportunity of selling hundreds of copies every week. Those who have agencies for Leslie's Illustrated Newspaper, Harper's Weekly, Bazar and Monthly, Scribner and more brilliant than any of these. Send for circulars and terms. Address, with stamp, for reply,

J. C. CLARKE & CO.,

Publishers, 704 Sansom street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Also, Publishers of the Illustrated Centennial Record. 8ft

APPLETON'S GREAT

AMERICAN CYCLOPÆDIA,

Which has been in course of publication for several years, and is now complete in sixteen large octavo volumes, is for sale by booksellers generally. It is finely illustrated with engravings on steel, and contains a vast amount of information of the most interesting character, from the latest and best sources. Those who desire the printing facilities of the Publishers, D. APPLETON & CO., 549 and 551 Broadway, are still supplied at reduced rates. Circulars and specimen pages will be sent on application. 8ft and 47 Montgomery st.

WANTED.

AGENTS for the best selling Stationery Package in the world. It contains Initial Paper (1 Scent), Envelopes, Pens, Pencils, Ink, Rubber, Pen Holder, Wafers and a piece of Jewelry. Retails for 25 cents. Sells at sight. Profits large. Sample package, postage paid, 15 cents. Address, with stamp, for reply, ROYAL MANUFACTURING CO., 117 Nassau street, New York. Circulars free. 1m1-6

AMATEUR WOOD-WORKERS

can find everything they require in HARK and Saw Mills, Planing Machines, Scroll Saws, Lathes, etc., at

GEO. W. READ & CO., Nos. 189 to 209 Lewis street, New York.

Send three-cent stamp for catalogue and price list. Water runs the entire establishment. Send for general price-list of Machinery. 1y1-6

ZELL'S ENCYCLOPEDIA

New Revised Edition.

AGENTS WANTED.

$30,000 available; 2,000 engravings and 15 superb steel maps. Offer unparalleled for cheapness and knowledge in the history of publishing. Specimen pages, with map, sent for 10 cents.

ZELL'S POPULAR ENCYCLOPEDIA, with map, sent for 10 cents.

BAKER, DAVIS & CO., Philadelphia.

RUSS HOUSE COACHES.

Nos. 21, 10, 18, 97 and 109.

McNALLY & SLATTERY.....Proprietors.

Orders left at the Russ House will be promptly attended to. Russ House Removable. 8ft

EDUCATIONAL.

SAINT MARY'S COLLEGE

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

Conducted by the Christian Brothers

Offers every facility for acquiring a thorough Education, whether Classical, Scientific or Commercial.

Those who complete the Classical Course receive the degree of A. B.; the Scientific, B. S.; the Commercial, Master of Accounts.

The Commercial course has been established for the convenience of those who wish to acquire a good practical education in as short a time as possible.

The Scientific Course is limited to many branches taught by the Christian Brothers in their various special societies. The daily exercises of the students in Grammar, Composition and Rhetoric are publicly discussed and corrected in the class-room.

TERMS PER SCHOLASTIC YEAR.

(Payable half yearly in advance).

Tuition, Boarding and Washing.....$300 00

Entrance Fee.....15 00

Physician's Fee and Medicines.....5 00

Graduation Fee.....20 00

Modern Languages, Music and Drawing form extra charges.

Bedding will be removed on the 5th of August.

For further information address

BRO. PATRICK, President.

Jly1

ST. VINCENT'S SCHOOL.

THIS INSTITUTION IS SITUATED IN SANTA Clara Valley, a short distance from the cars, in the most delightful and healthy part of the city. The Modern Languages, Music and Drawing form extra coursebook.

The course of instruction embraces the usual branches of a thorough English education. Spanish is also taught.

TERMS

(invariably half payment in advance).

Board, tuition, bed, bedding, washing, etc., per month.....$30 00

Entrance Fee, to be paid but once.....5 00

Piano, and use of instrument, per month.....$4 00 $3

Harp, per month.....5 00

No extra charge for Plain Sewing, Fancy Needlework or Drawing.

Pupils received for a month and a half or two months August 16th, and terminates on the last Thursday in June.

For further particulars apply to

SISTERS OF CHARITY,

Santa Barbara, Cal.

COLLEGE OF NOTRE DAME.

SAN JOSE, CALIFORNIA.

YOUNG LADIES' INSTITUTE.

THIS INSTITUTION, WHICH IS INCORPORated according to the laws of the State and empowered to confer academic honors, will commence the Twenty-sixth Annual Session on MONDAY, August 16th. The course of instruction embraces all the branches of a thorough education.

TERMS:

Entrance, to be paid but once.....$15 00

Board and Tuition, per quarter.....$5 00

Washing.....10 00

Physician's Fee, per quarter.....2 50

Pupils will be received at any time, but no deduction will be made from the above terms except for protracted illness, or for some other reason of equal importance, which must be left entirely to the discretion of the Directress.

TERMS PER MONTH (in advance).

Music, with use of instrument.....$4 00

Drawing.....2 00

Drawing and Painting.....3 00

Use of Piano, extra.....1 00

Terms per quarter (payable in advance).

Select Day Schools—Rhetoric, first and second Class.....$20 00

Third and fourth Grammar Classes.....15 00

Fifth and sixth Grammar Classes.....10 00

Primary Classes, per month.....1 00

Fancy Needlework, Plain Sewing, Bed and Table Linen, Stockings, etc., are furnished at moderate charges.

For further particulars apply to the Superintendent. jan-tf

SANTA CLARA COLLEGE,

SANTA CLARA.....CALIFORNIA.

Under the management of the Fathers of the Society of Jesus.

THE SANTA CLARA COLLEGE WAS FOUNDED in 1851, and chartered in 1855, with the same privileges as the University of California. It is situated in the delightful valley of Santa Clara, one of the most beautiful and healthy in the State. The College buildings, while possessing every requisite for convenience and comfort, are surrounded by extensive grounds, with two covered gymnasiums, a swimming pool, and ample space for all healthful exercise.

The Academic Course comprises a very complete philosophical apparatus, and valuable collections of Mineralogy, Geology, Botany and Zoology, with Chemical Laboratory, Observatory and Surveying. A weekly lecture is given in the Academic Hall during the Scholastic Year, which is divided into two sessions of five months each—the first commencing on the first Monday in August and closing on the last Thursday in June.

The Preparatory Department is designed to afford a thorough training in the elementary studies which are necessary for admission to the Academic Course.

TERMS PER SESSION.

Matriculation Fee, to be paid but once.....$10 00

Board, Lodging, Tuition, Washing, Use of Medicines, Use of Library, School Stationery, Medical Attendance, and Physician's Fee.....150 00

Use of Piano.....10 00

Modern Languages, Drawing and Music form extra charges. Bedding, including Sheets and Pillow-cases, will be furnished by the Institution.

For further particulars address

REV. A. VARNI, S. J., President.

ST. JOSEPH'S COLLEGE,

Rohnerville, Humboldt County, Cal.

Conducted by the Priests of the Congregation of the Most Precious Blood.

TERMS PER SCHOLASTIC YEAR:

(Payable half yearly in advance.)

Board, Tuition and Washing.....$300 00

Entrance Fee.....15 00

Physician's Fee and Medicines.....5 00

Graduation Fee.....20 00

Use of Piano.....10 00

Modern languages, Music and drawing form extra charges.

Bedding will be removed on the 5th of August.

For further particulars address

REV. D. TUSTIN, President.

FRANCISCAN COLLEGE,

SANTA BARBARA.....CALIFORNIA.

THE NINTH SESSION OF THE INSTITUtion, conducted by the Fathers of the Order of St. Francis, will commence on the 1st of August.

The object of the institution is to give a good English, Mathematical, Classical and Commercial education, on the most reasonable cost, and thereby bring it to advantages within reach of all.

TERMS.

Entrance Fee (to be paid but once).....$10 00

Board, Tuition, Washing and use of Bed, per session, of ten months.....$150 00

Music, Drawing and Modern languages form extra charges. Patronage must be made next session only in advance.

Bedding, if furnished by the Institution, will be charged extra.

For further particulars apply to

REV. J. M. ROMO, O. S. F.

CONVENT OF THE IMMACULATE HEART OF MARY

SAN JOSE, CAL.

EDUCATION OF YOUNG LADIES

GILROY, SANTA CLARA, CO.

Conducted by the Sisters of the Most Holy and Immaculate Heart of Mary.

TERMS PER QUARTER:

Board, Tuition, Washing and Bedding, per session of ten months.....$60

Piano, per quarter.....$6

Harp, per quarter.....$8

Tuition on piano, per session.....$40

Drawing.....$4

No extra charge for Tapestry, Embroidery, Plain and Ornamental Needlework, nor for the Spanish language.

TERMS FOR DAY SCHOLARS:

Primary per month.....$2 50

Preparatory and Senior, per month.....3 00

Music.....6 00

Harp.....8 00

Piano, per quarter.....6 00

Tuition in Painting, Drawing, Tapestry, Fancy Work and Ornamental Needlework, per month.....2 00

Bedding, if furnished by the Institution, will be charged extra.

For further particulars address

SISTER RAYMENDA CHAMADELL, Superioress.

ST. VINCENT'S COLLEGE,

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

DEGREES CONFERRED

Rev. JAMES MACMILL, C. M., President.

SAN JOSE MARBLE WORKS.

E. POWER,

Sculptor,

SAN JOSE.

STATUARY, TOMBS, MANTEL PIECES, HEAD-STONES, FOUNTAINS and

and every description of MARBLE WORK. DESIGNING, MOULDING, Etc.

And always on hand Wood and Stone Carving. Mod-els furnished at short notice. Jly

MENEELY'S BELLS.

WEST TROY, NEW YORK.

Established in 1826.

CHURCH, ACADEMY, FACTORY AND OTHER BELLS, made of copper and tin. Warranted satisfactory. For prices and catalogue apply to

MENEELY & COMPANY,

West Troy, New York.

THE PARTING.

The following sweet and pathetic stanzas cover appeals to print on this side of the Atlantic. Their author, Patrick Quiblan, from Tipperary, left England late in the summer of 1872, to try his fortunes in the New World. That he lived and has further embittered the misfortunes exposed in the appended lines will sufficiently show. Poor fellow, he yearned ever while gloom out of Castle Garden, to get back to the green old sod again. The hope will never, alas! be realized; for ofttimes grave in the breast does the lonely grave upon the banks of the Mississippi. Of how many an Irish exile might the same sad words be written?

Air—"The bells of shandon."

Oh, sad and lonely,
My new home seems to me,
The parting comrade, sobbing, in me;
For tired but sorry
To leave that native land,
A heart's blood drop in every line.
The fond lie sever;
In leade whereof I'm destined to roam
Wind trembles with bother
Of days in a year,
And whisper tales of my island home.

The wave before me
May swell or recede me
Back to the landscape I love to view;
The land that I see
To secure behind me,
One look for the last time I'll get from you.
Where'er I may wander,
Where'ere'er I chant it,
Or trials of fortune I'm doomed to come,
Where'er adorning
Or wherever I'm roaming,
And no remains, fond island home.

I'll ne'er deny you,
And place their banners on turrets high;
Your name,
Proclaim my beauty
Thank now unashamed by slavery's sky.
Enshrined in story,
Where is the nation that hel thy swords,
Which every fold on
Of oral mirth is folded?
Where'ere I'm doomed to come,
Where'ere'er I chant it,
Or trials of fortune I'm doomed to come,
Where'er adorning
Or wherever I'm roaming,
And no remains, fond island home.

Oh, sad and lonely,
My new home seems to me,
The parting comrade, sobbing, in me;
For tired but sorry
To leave that native land,
A heart's blood drop in every line.
The fond lie sever;
In leade whereof I'm destined to roam
Wind trembles with bother
Of days in a year,
And whisper tales of my island home.

The wave before me
May swell or recede me
Back to the landscape I love to view;
The land that I see
To secure behind me,
One look for the last time I'll get from you.
Where'er I may wander,
Where'ere'er I chant it,
Or trials of fortune I'm doomed to come,
Where'er adorning
Or wherever I'm roaming,
And no remains, fond island home.

I'll ne'er deny you,
And place their banners on turrets high;
Your name,
Proclaim my beauty
Thank now unashamed by slavery's sky.
Enshrined in story,
Where is the nation that hel thy swords,
Which every fold on
Of oral mirth is folded?
Where'ere I'm doomed to come,
Where'ere'er I chant it,
Or trials of fortune I'm doomed to come,
Where'er adorning
Or wherever I'm roaming,
And no remains, fond island home.

Yet dwelling in thee
Thy long and weary years,
Shall proudly wakes to reeds sublime
To exaltation be,
And let me hear it—
My soul shall ever where I be,
And love shall lead me,
And ever guide me.
Back, back in rapture o'er land and sea.

For land now lonely
Is dear to me,
It lived by memory's fondness to death;
There on this shore, here,
My heart shall rest,
One tow—I'm home in the parting breath!
The dells and lonesome,
The peace I'll have and the solitude of love—
I take my lays, new,
Of the shadowy pine, now,
Where'er so heard it or sky where—
Is forever?
O, Death, thou knowest—O, Fate, what rules?
The sea is heaving
As lonely, I write grieving.
The stars I see down and bid me rejoice—
Farewell, farewell, farewell!
Give way to gladness!
Let pulse and heart be full of joy,
O, visions stealing!
Of my native land,
O, but fall loved land, a fa, d adieu!

Extraordinary Hunting Exploits of a Canada Woman.

Observing in the last number of your paper a short telegraphic announcement of the arrival here of three tame moose, from Canada, I thought perhaps a few words about the method by which they were captured might be acceptable to your readers. I was a witness of the whole affair, and can vouch for the truth of the statements I am about to make.

It seems that four years ago, on taking up her residence at Beach Meadows, about seven miles from here, Mrs. Williamson (now, by the way, is a bright-looking, good, lady-like woman, and not at all the masculine-looking creature one would be led to suppose from the name) conceived an idea that it would be a profitable business to capture young moose and deer and sell them to persons who would keep and all the relishes of her family and friends. Full of this determination, in the season of 1872, about the middle of May, Mrs. Williamson, with her dog Nero, a large Newfoundland, and her rifle, and, after one or two unsuccessful trips, on each of which she had traveled from twenty to forty miles, she, on her last trip, succeeded in capturing two, and, triumphantly returned home with them. The next season, 1874, she captured three, and this past season four. Those three were months old they have all been sold. Two of them were presented by Mr. Calvin Appleton and shipped to the United States to others by Mr. Dewar, of the Trilby, Nfld. Of the remaining two, one is now in Europe; two of them were also sent to Montreal, King of Italy.

Mrs. Williamson's plan of capturing her is after her dog is so trained that when he comes across a moose or deer he will run resolutely in advance of her, and if there is a youngster in company he quietly ingratiates himself into the latter's good graces, and, indeed again at a pace to suit her, and when the latter is tired out she gives him a severe bite, whilst Mrs. Williamson ties the tail of the calves together. Some time ago Pompier had some young deer. The boss unable to stand to both, but as he was weak, and he fell from pain and time, and the money was lost.

Now, being a French dog, of course some idea of economy flashed through his brain, but being a moral dog, and a tolerably dog too, he did not feel carefully at the matter. An hour afterward Pompier marched into Mr. Dumont's presence with full ten sous' worth of bread. The dog's conscience was satisfied. Next day the dog and his master had a walk in the Lunenburg garden. They appreciated a group of boys engaged in playing pitch-penny. "I say, you, sir," cried one of the gamins, "make a nice dog you have! Oh, I recognize him. I shall tell the police all about it. If you are not a thief, your dog is. Yesterday, when we were playing here, that dog made a rush at one of the pennies, gobbled it up, and was off again like lightning." "It is with regret," adds the authority for this story, "that I am forced to say that the most positive lesson that Pompier was a thief. Of course, it may be quite in order to insist that dogs are endowed as a rule with a superior order of intelligence. I have nothing further to advance, nor do I wish to entertain Pompier's crime."

General Custine, the semi official bandit chief, has been pardoned by the Mexican authorities, and left free, no doubt, to pursue his raids on the Rio Grande.

BANKING HOUSES.

HIBERNIA SAVINGS

AND

LOAN SOCIETY

SE corner Northeast corner of Montgomery and Market streets.

OFFICERS:

President.....M. D. SWEENY
Vice-President.....C. D. O'SULLIVAN

TRUSTEES:

M. D. SWEENY, M. J. O'CONNOR,
C. D. O'SULLIVAN, P. MCGLYNN,
JOHN SULLIVAN, GUSTAVE TOUCHARD,
R. J. TOBIN, PETER DONAHUE,
JNO. A. DONAHOE.

Treasurer.....EDWARD MARTIN
Attorney.....RICHARD TOBIN

Remittances from the country may be sent through Wells, Fargo & Co.'s Express office, or any reliable banking house; but the society will not be responsible after such delivery. The signature of the depositor must be given in full on first deposit. A pass-book will be delivered to the agent by whom the deposit is made.

Dividends received from this Savings Bank.

OFFICE HOURS—From 10 A. M. to 3 P. M.

JOS. A. DONOHOE, Sec. pro tem. | EUGENE KELLY, Asst. Treasurer.

DONOHOE, KELLY & Co

SAN FRANCISCO.

EUGENE KELLY & Co.

NEW YORK

BANKERS

EXCHANGE ON

NEW YORK, LONDON, AND

BANK OF IRELAND.....DUBLIN

Payable at all the Branches,

AND IN EVERY COUNTY TOWN IN IRELAND

BANK OF BRITISH COLUMBIA

INCORPORATED BY ROYAL CHARTER.

S. F. corner California and Sansome sts.

Head Office—LONDON.

Branches—PORTLAND, OREGON; VICTORIA AND CARIBOO, BRITISH COLUMBIA.

AGENTS:

New York—BANK OF MONTREAL.
Chicago—BANK OF MONTREAL.
Canada—BANK OF MONTREAL.
Mexico and South America—LONDON BANK OF MEXICO AND SOUTH AMERICA.
Ireland—BANK OF IRELAND.
Scotland—BRITISH LINEN COMPANY.
England—NATIONAL PROVINCIAL BANK OF ENGLAND.
Ireland—NORTH AND SOUTH WALES BANKS.
England—S. & W. OF LIVERPOOL.

The Bank transacts a General Banking Business. Deposits received on current account subject to check at sight.

Exchange sold on London and all the principal cities of Europe, China and Japan. Commercial and Travelers' Credits granted available in Europe, China, Japan, Australia, America and New Zealand.

Bills discounted and advances made on good negotiable security.

feb1-1y J. H. TILLINGHAST, Manager.

THE COMMERCIAL

SAVINGS BANK

OF SAN JOSE.

Capital, - - - - - - - $1,000,000.

Remittances from the country may be sent through Wells, Fargo & Co.'s Express office, or any reliable banking house; but the society will not be responsible after such delivery. The signature of the depositor must be given in full on first deposit. A pass-book will be delivered to the agent by whom the deposit is made.

Dividends received from this Savings Bank.

OFFICE HOURS—From 10 A. M. to 3 P. M.

CONVENT OF OUR LADY OF THE SACRED HEART,

OAKLAND.....CALIFORNIA

Conducted by the Sisters of the Holy Names of Jesus and Mary.

THIS INSTITUTION IS PLEASANTLY SITUated between Webster street and Lake Merritt, and commands a delightful view of the Bay. The building, recently erected, is supplied with all the modern improvements and conveniences adapted to promote for the comfort of the inmates.

The course of instruction embraces the usual branches of a thorough English education, with the addition of a solid, useful and ornamental education.

TERMS PAYABLE QUARTERLY IN ADVANCE:

Board and Tuition (French included).....$30 00

Washing.....2 50

Bed and bedding, without sheets (if supplied by the Institution).....10 00

Piano, Guitar, Vocal Music, Drawing and Painting form extra charges.

For further particulars apply to

SISTER SUPERIOR.

NOTRE DAME ACADEMY,

SAN FRANCISCO.

THIS ACADEMY, WHICH IS CONDUCTED by the Sisters of Notre Dame, is situated in Golden Gate, opposite Market street.

Besides being located in one of the most healthy and desirable localities in the city, the Academy is fitted up with a view to the physical as well as moral improvement of the pupils. The grounds attached to the Academy, and a sufficient play ground affords the pupils every facility for healthful exercise and amusement.

The course of instruction embraces every needful branch, to which taught in the best Academies at the present day.

The next session of the Tenth Annual Session will commence January 3, 1876.

TERMS:

BOARDERS PUPILS.

For quarter session (payable in advance.)

Board, Tuition, Washing and use of bedding.....$40 00

Music, with use of instrument.....10 00

Dr

TO-DAY AND TO-MORROW.

Small need have we as what love romance
On battle-fields is most at home;
There's precious little where chargers prance—
The roads to either are short!
Each has its own peculiar need;
Hopes dying feelings, crossed or dead,
His sword shoots through a number,
Still bravely! John Life's fiery fray,
And merely cops with horror!
The man that beats his crone to-day
Will have a chance to morrow.

Hopes, fears, desires, in myriads crowd
Our mortal pathway after!
The earth's age-perspicuous cloud,
Is always sublime above!
Grief, sadness, remorse and fierce despair,
Bring marvels to confound us—
Such are the dangers we must dare,
Such are the cheats around us!
Yet let thy shield with courage err,
And don't thy lance at horrors!
The n-ot who sizes his sorrow to-day
Can face the foe to morrow.

Sister, pilot, for some glorious end,
Whose aim is just serving!
Heaven's grace, like manna, will descend,
As it sincerity thy striving.
Good for thyself resolve to do,
And first must avoid thee.
Doubt may have made thy pulse retire—
Faith may have attempted thee—
Crush out those sentiments of fear,
Stand on the rock of Serving!
The man that perseveres to-day
Will meet success to-morrow.
—Notre Dame Scholastic.

CATHOLIC INTELLIGENCE.

—Died, at the Convent of Perpetual Succor, Castlecomer, Mother Mary Angela Feehan, Superioress for many years.

—Died, at the convent, Tramore, on the 8th December, Sister Mary Luke Ayer, in the forty-fifth year of her age, and the twentieth of her religious profession.

—The Rev. Hugh Behan, late administrator of Navan, has been promoted to the parish charge of Rathkenny and Rushrue. All who know Father Behan will rejoice to learn of his preferment, for a more worthy and patriotic priest does not exist in the broad diocese of Meath.

—Rev. Louis Greggo, O.S.D., for many years so well known in the Dominican missions of Ohio, Kentucky and Tennessee, but who has for some time past been stationed at Castle Vittorio, Italy, has been transferred from that latter place to the Convent of San Domenico di Taggia, Ligoria, Italy.

—On Christmas Day his Grace the Most Rev. Dr. MacHale, Archbishop of Tuam, had three successive Masses in the Cathedral, attended by the members of the clergy, and preached a short sermon at its conclusion. His Grace appears to be in most perfect health, and did not seem to be in the least exhausted by the protracted and arduous duties which he has performed.

—The Pope, on Thursday, December 23d, received the good wishes of the Sacred College. Cardinal Pacca read an address, in which he declared that any reconciliation with the enemies of the Church was impossible. His Holiness, in reply, said it was necessary to be energetic, and never doubt of the future. The evils and injustice from which the Church was suffering were increasing, and all should pray for their removal.

—The Monks of Mount Carmel, from Clondalkin, near Dublin, have lately established a branch of their Order at St. Catherine. They teach a superior school for the sons of the wealthier brenches. His Grace Archbishop Lynch recently remarked that he was President of a like Academy in the college attached to the Monastery of Clondalkin over forty years ago, and knew from his own experience what solid devotion was propagated among the students.

—We deeply regret to announce the death of Very Rev. Dr. Hinley, V. G., P. P., Dungarvan. This venerable and highly esteemed clergyman died at his parochial residence about twelve o'clock on Christmas morning. An affecting circumstance in connection was that it occurred to occur in gratification of his frequently expressed wish that his life might end at the holy season. Dr. Hinley was in his eighty-third year, and had held the spiritual charge of Dungarvan parish for nearly half a century.

—Immediately upon the release of the Bretton Bushes, Fort and Odin from their prisons, they went to the Imperial palace of Rue Vista at the request of the Empress to present their respects to the Emperor. Thence they went to the house of the President of the Council and his Excellency, by whom they were entertained by the Capuchins in the Convent of Mere de Castello. In the parlor is the principal picture of the Pope painted, as were the convents any many private houses.

—On the 10th December the ceremony of the profession of three young ladies was performed at the Sisters of Mercy Convent, Kilkenny, by the Bishop of the diocese presided over the occasion, and was assisted by a large number of the clergymen of Ilerr and the surrounding parishes. The recipients of the black veil were Miss Margaret Meagher, daughter of Mr. John Meagher, of Castleland Square; Miss Margaret Morgan, daughter of Mr. Thomas Morgan, and Miss Maria Fisher.

—On Sunday, November 21st, a solemn and touching ceremony took place in the Cathedral of Nocmadia, and a lay man of position and importance in Australia, made their abjuration of the errors in the chapel of the Propaganda before Cardinal Franchi, having gone to Rome for that purpose. Neither of them, however, belonged to the new Kapelmist schism. They were members of the Anglican Church. They were making a step towards a return to communion, and their conversion is the result of the remarkable movement in the Church of England which has been going on in several of the villages of Bohyuia. Mgr. Hamonn, the retired Patriarch of Chaldea, was present at the ceremony, and the new converts will be of course under his jurisdiction. The Bishop of Nocmadia is soon to furnish in his see, and returns to Bohyuia a Catholic instead of a schismatical Bishop.

TO THE PUBLIC.

☞ The Indians of Temecula, San Diego county, having been ejected from the house in which they and their parents were born and have resided for centuries before the inhumanity and rapacity of their wrongdoers—namely, certain of the white men of the county—and as they are now encamped on the land of their Father at Washington" can, so far as I am informed, make no provision for the them under trees, or provide them with other homes—a words of the latter," my forefather from the providence or unwilling to present them from the depredations of the approaching winter, I feel called clemency of the appropriating winter, I feel called upon, as their pastor, to appeal to the charity and Christian feelings of the generous and sympathetic people of our Francisco, who on a former occasion so nobly and generously responded to our call in behalf of the poor Indians of this my jurisdiction. Those of the same nature, and whose sad and distressing tale of these poor Indians, and that is convenient to contribute clothing only—even second-handed—may leave their contributions at St. Mary's Hospital, San Francisco. Others, individuals or firms, desiring more convenient to make contributions of provisions may apply to the undersigned at San Diego.

In conclusion, I can assure the people that all who aid in this charity will receive my most grateful thanks, and the prayers of the Indians.

Earthquake in Naples.

There is the threatening of a more than ordinarily formidable eruption of Vesuvius. Professor Palmieri reports from the Observatory near the volcano that fire has appeared in the interior of the crater, and expresses an opinion that an eruption of long duration may be expected. A volume of black smoke rose from the volcano on Sunday morning. It may be remembered that at the very beginning of the present month of December there were considerable evidences of the mountain having entered upon a new period of volcanic activity. On Monday, the 6th inst., the startling confirmation of this impression, the whole of Naples was shaken to its very foundations at twenty-four minutes past 3 o'clock in the morning by a severe shock of earthquake. A vivid description of the panic created by this stupendous and profound subterranean explosion has been given by the Naples correspondent of the Athenæum, according to whom nearly the whole population turned out into the streets, despite the rain, which was descending in torrents. Most of the people were on foot, many were in carriages, and all made for the open places, upon a the Molo, the Piazza del Dente, or the Strada Vittorio Emmanuele—every square being filled with a terror-stricken crowd, whose cries made the scene yet more alarming.

Omnibuses and carriages, wherever they could be found, were taken possession of, and rapidly filled, but the great portion of the fugitives were compelled to rough it in the open air, half dressed, and some of them in their shirts. What was dreaded was the "replica"—when the earth recovers from its internal conditions. This, however, did not take place, and at dawn a shivering crowd returned to their homes, to find many of these, that they had been robbed during their absence! The insolence following the shock were sufficiently awful, in truth, to alarm any one. The house bells rang, the walls seemingly moved, furniture was displaced, and persons were shocked by their beds! The precise moment of the shock was marked, too, by many a watch which had stopped! Strange to say, Prof. Palmieri is distinctly of opinion that the earthquake has nothing to do with Vesuvius. The shock of it appears to have extended over a vast tract of country, the seat of its agitation being in Puglie, near a place called S. Moreo in Lemia. There the only shocks were felt, but they were terrible enough to have occurred, three persons being killed at S. Marco in Lamis, and several others being buried beneath the ruins of their dwellings.—London Weekly Register, December 25.

A Fatal Duel.

LONDON, December 27.—Details of a most unfortunate occurrence, in which an adventurous Irishman took a prominent part, has been sent me by a friend compelling with the Carlists in the North of Spain. In consequence of the recent French territory po litical feelings run high, and there are often interchanges of warm words, followed in many cases by hostile meetings. A rencontre of this kind has just taken place with a fatal result, the survivor of the duel being one of our countrymen whose name is very well known in Ireland. He is a man who has relatives have long taken a lead in local politics. It appears that after dinner in a café in Bayonne the conversation turned on Spanish politics, with the finale of a disagreement. In the midst of the altercation a gentleman the Marquis Dos Hermanos, "a grandee" from Madrid, retorted rather angrily on Major ——, who replied in like phrase, when, I believe—in the service of Don Carlos, and a sharp reply ended in the challenge being given and taken on the spot. Blows followed, and after a vain attempt to settle the altercation a duel was arranged. Lances were the weapons to a fight with much reluctance.

His courage was beyond doubt, as he had left the British army, in which he held a commission, to order to join Bourbon's army during the Fraser Pyrenean war, for which he received the decoration of the Cross of the Legion of Honor for his valor while commanding the rear guard in the dis astrous retreat into Switzerland. He had also been decorated by Don Carlos, and been promoted to the rank of major for his gallantry at Somnosorrata, and at the battle of Alvarete, in which he was wounded in the ankle.

The duel was conducted with obstinate courtesy on both sides, and the first encounter was with lances, but no blood effected, the seconds decided on a second fire. The next bullet of Major Lynch entered the brain of the Marquis, who died a few minutes after. No one regretted the fatal issue more than the survivor, who declared during throughout the affair was warmly nonmended by those who took part in the proceedings. Major Lynch is now in London on a mission on behalf of Don Carlos, and I am happy to be able to refute some gross lies on the same errand the city which his late unole represented.

Spain's Reply to the United States.

The New York Herald's Madrid special reports that the Spanish Government has sent out a diplomatic note in reply to the American circular on Cuban affairs. The reply is quite belligerent in tone, and takes high ground on all the questions raised by the United States. The note declares that commerce between Cuba and the United States has not suffered to any appreciable extent by the insurrection; that instead of having diminished, it has in reality been increased, and is constantly increasing; so the the United States Government has no occasion for complaint, and no tenable ground for its proposed action in the affairs or troubles existing in Cuba. Attention is also called to the fact that many American citizens established themselves in business on the Island, and being commissioned by the Spanish Government, have gained large individual fortunes; that these fortunes have not added to the material wealth of the Island, being entirely in foreign hands. That the territory of the United States is a constant refuge for Cuban outlaws, who are permitted to hatch conspiracies to the detriment and injury of the Spanish Government; that in the laws of nations are outraged. That all just and reputable claims between the United States and Cuba have been amicably and fully satisfied, or are in course of adjustment; that the insurgents can no cause of complaint on that score. The Spanish note is believed to be the work of Señor Zorrilla.

Some sighty of Grant's brigands have already been indicted for defacing the currency, and there is a probability of their conviction. The principal obtain, however, have so far escaped.

A Few Words to Feeble and Delicate Women.

By R. V. PIERCE, M. D., of the World's Dispensary, Buffalo, N. Y., Author of "The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser," &c.

Knowing that you are subject to a great amount of suffering, that doubtless on your part has a strong tendency to prolong it, and the longer it is neglected the more you have to endure and the more difficult of cure your case becomes, I, as a physician, who am daily consulted by scores of your sex, desire to say to you, that I am constantly meeting with those who have been treated for their ailments for months, and not being benefited in the least, such they have become perfectly discouraged and have almost concluded they had better suffer on to the end rather than be subjected to the embarrassment of examination, and be obliged to submit to the local treatment necessary, and which is considered indispensable to a cure. Many of these poor sufferers have been robbed of their means, and are only made worse by the use of patent nostrums, which contain large quantities of alcohol, that stimulates for the time being, but soon leaves the nervous system more prostrated by its reaction. Others have been made worse by the use of powerful astringents, which have been prescribed by local physicians, who have not taken the pains to inform themselves in regard to the diseases of females, but have boldly gone on in the use of such remedies, and have succeeded in making a bad matter worse. Others have been made worse by the use of powerful astringents, which have been prescribed by local physicians, who have not taken the pains to inform themselves in regard to the diseases of females, but have boldly gone on in the use of such remedies, and have succeeded in making a bad matter worse. Others have been made worse by the use of powerful astringents, which have been prescribed by local physicians, who have not taken the pains to inform themselves in regard to the diseases of females, but have boldly gone on in the use of such remedies, and have succeeded in making a bad matter worse.

Result of the French Election.—Paris, January 18.—The La Patrie gives the following as a general result for Senatorial candidates, professedly from an official source: Of 36,000 Communes, 26,000 have returned Conservative delegates. The extreme Radicals have been victorious in very few instances. The successful candidates are Bonapartists, Orleanists and Moderate Republicans.

The London Times' Paris special says among the Conservative delegates elected in those departments from which results have so far been known the Legitimists and Orleanists are comparatively few in number. The prevailing element consists of Bonapartists. If returns already at hand could be taken as a criterion of final result, they would give us the Senate composed of 130 Republicans, including life Senators already elected by the Assembly, 100 militant Bonapartists, and 70 belonging to the various parties, including patient Bonapartists.

A telegram of the 17th inst. from Brussels states that Louise Lateau, the famous stigmatist, is on the point of death.

STOCK BROKERS.

W. C. Parker. J. D. Barrett.

PARKER & BARRETT,
Commission Stock Brokers,
San Francisco Stock and Exchange Board,
112 Leidesdorff Street,
SAN FRANCISCO.

Clay M. Greene. Henry A. Greene
Member Pacific Stock Exch'ge.

GREENE & CO.,
Commission Stock Brokers,
OFFICE:
Pacific Stock Exchange Building,
SANSOME STREET.

INFORMATION WANTED.

INFORMATION WANTED—Of BERNARD DIVINE, a native of Ballyhaise, county of Cavan, Ireland, who came to this country about fifteen years ago. If living, will hear of something to his advantage by addressing MISS A. J. DIVINE, Box 1, Station D, Astoria, L. I. REVIVAL, No. 1 Mt. Pleasant Place, Charlestown, Mass., or San Francisco, they will confer a great favor.

INFORMATION WANTED—Of JOHN BOURKE, who formerly resided in Limerick, Ireland. Any information respecting his present residence will be thankfully received by his brother, THOMAS BOURKE, East Jaffrey, N. H. jal-tf

MISCELLANEOUS.

WYNNE, LOWTH & CO.
704 and 706 MARKET STREET,
OPPOSITE THIRD, AND
5 and 7 Geary Street, NEAR KEARNY.
HAVING MADE LARGE PURCHASES OF
DRY GOODS
At the Great Liquidation Sale of LAZARD FRERES, we are enabled to sell the same Goods at less than importers' prices.

BLACK GROS GRAIN SILK, at $1 per yard.
HEAVY BLACK SILK, Cashmere finish, $2 per yard.
FINE BRIGHT POPLIN, $1 50 per yard.
Gloss wide BLACK CASHMERE, 75c. per yard.
ALL WOOL DIAGONAL SERGE, 50c. per yard.
ENGLISH IRON-FRAME HOSE, full length, 25 per dozen.
SALESMAN HOSE, 624 cloth, 50 per box.
HEAVY SCOTCH PLAIDS, 75c. per yard.
BLANKETS, SHEETING, and
HOUSE-FURNISHING GOODS
FANCY GOODS in great variety.
Ladies' and Gents' FURNISHING GOODS, etc.

Irish Tatting.
BRADFORD SERGES, in Black and White for use of Clergy and Sisters.
The celebrated seamless 3 bottled GLOVES, $1 50 per pair.
At Wholesale Sales.
WYNNE, LOWTH & CO.
Central Dry Goods House.

THE AVE MARIA,
A CATHOLIC JOURNAL
Devoted to the Honor of the Blessed Virgin.
Published Weekly at Notre Dame, Ind.
Approved by His Holiness Pius IX and many Eminent Prelates.
16 pp. Imp. 4to.

THIS PERIODICAL, THE FIRST ESTABlished in the World in the interests of the Blessed Virgin, commends itself to all who love the Mother of God and desire to see devotion increased throughout the land.

The aim of the AVE MARIA is to give the consolation of the Catholic Church on devotion to the Blessed Virgin, by publishing, each week, instructive and entertaining matter, and instead to the almost the Solid devotion which every Christian should entertain for the Mother of the Redeemer of the world.

The AVE MARIA will contain articles referring to the Blessed Virgin, sermons and biographical sketches, instructive and entertaining stories, accounts of pilgrimages to the various shrines of Our Lady throughout the world, and a regular bulletin of the Associations established in honor of Mary Immaculate. Some of the most remarkable cures effected by the Waters of Lourdes will be recorded in the AVE MARIA, and all the Sodalities, Confraternities, and Pious Associations in honor of the Blessed Virgin will find in the AVE MARIA a welcome visitor, and a faithful chronicler of their doings.

Some of the best Catholic writers of Europe and America contribute to the pages of the AVE MARIA among whom may be mentioned Henri Lasserre, Author of the "Pilgrimage to Our Lady of Lourdes"; Rev. Father Hecker, Rev. Father Hewit, Rev. Father Clarke, Rev. Father Lamy, Rev. Father Walworth, Miss Eliza Allen Starr, the Misses Dorsey, the Author of "Tacksey," and the Author of "Claire Lambert."

TERMS:

One year.....$1 50
Five Years.....6 00
Ten Years.....10 00

A specimen copy sent free to any address on application.

Subscriptions may commence with any month in the year. All orders to Editor and Proprietor of Notre Dame, Indiana.

All communications should be addressed to the REV. EDITOR OF THE AVE MARIA, Notre Dame, Indiana.

TUTOR.—A GENTLEMAN OF TEN YEARS' educational experience in European and American Colleges, would accept a few tuitions in the 3rd or 4th academic. Subjects taught: English in all its branches, Latin, Greek, French, German, Spanish, Mathematics, Natural Philosophy, Chemistry, Astronomy, Geology, Mineralogy, Botany, Zoology, Physiology, Logic, Rhetoric, Moral Philosophy, Political Economy, Civil Law, Constitutional History, Music, Drawing, Painting, Penmanship, Book-keeping, Phonography. Address, A. M., Box 1, Monterey, Monterey county, Cal. 1724 1y

Fine Livery Suits.

REMOVAL
OF THE ANTISELL PIANO COMPANY
TO
665 MARKET STREET
OPPOSITE POWELL.

For sixty days we will sell our Celebrated Improved PIANOS at the low prices of $300 Pianos for $250; $350 Pianos for $300; $400 Pianos for $350.

STEINWAY & SONS'
PIANOS
Square, $475 and $550.
Square Grand, $400.
Upright, $550 $630, $800
Grand, $1,080, $1,200
☞ Illustrated Catalogues on application.
KRANICH, BACH & CO. (New York)
SUPERIOR PIANOS,
At a moderate cost—To hotel proprietors—$200 and $275 Pianos for sale on installments.
Send for cash, or on Co's installment plan at cash price, with one per cent. per month added on for forfeit payments.

MATTHIAS GRAY,
105 Kearny Street, San Francisco, and
101 First Street, Portland, O.
General Agent for manufacturers for the Pacific Coast. ja21

D. A. O'CONNELL,
WATCH AND CLOCK MAKER,
135 Third Street, near Howard
He will examine your Watch and Clock free of charge, and repair them at very moderate rates. Parties having work done at his store may rely on having it done satisfactorily. Clocks, Jewelry and Plated Ware at good prices. Repairing done in this city. All kinds of Jewelry manufactured to order. Give him a trial. You will save money and receive satisfaction.

THE MONITOR & GUARDIAN.
The Only Irish and Catholic Journal in California.
LYONS & BARRY, - - - - Publishers.
RICHARD O'SULLIVAN, - - - - EDITOR.
OFFICE—626 CLAY STREET, between Montgomery and Kearny sts. (Rooms 3, 7 and 8, up-stairs.)
TERMS (Payable in Advance):
Served by Carriers, per week.....10c
Mail subscribers, per year.....$4 00
Six months.....2 00
Mail Subscribers in Ireland or either of the British Provinces, per year.....$ 5 00
Do. do. six months.....2 50
☞ Postage in each case prepaid by publishers.

JOHN J. TOBIN,
Stock Broker,
(Pacific Stock Exchange),
Will promptly transact purchases and sales of Stock entrusted to him. Business strictly commission.
VERNON, TOBIN & CO.,
Office—West to Safe Deposit Company's Vault, cor Montgomery and California sts. San Francisco.

IN MEMORIAM MISS ANN M. FOLEY,
SISTER OF SARGENT FOLEY, OF CHICAGO, WHO DIED IN THIS CITY, AT HER RESIDENCE ST. AFTER A LONG AND PAINFUL ILLNESS, ON JANUARY 16TH, 1876.
Aged 34 years and 1 month.
"Her sufferings are ended with the day,
Yet lived more with life's first dawn again."

Second Grand Annual Sale of Ladies' and Gents'
BOOTS AND SHOES.
NO FANCY PRICES.
MEN'S AND BOYS'
CUSTOM-MADE CLOTHING.
Dry Goods, Etc.

JAMES O'HANLON & CO.,
725 MONTGOMERY STREET, West Side, near Jackson

ST. MARY'S HOSPITAL,
Corner Bryant and First Streets,
SAN FRANCISCO.

THIS INSTITUTION IS UNDER CHARGE OF THE SISTERS OF MERCY.
JAMES MURPHY, M. D., Visiting Surgeon
JAMES ROLFE, M. D., Visiting Physician
ADOLPH BARKAN M. D., Consulting Physician
C. O'BRYAN, Secretary.
Terms (monthly in advance): $10 per week in the wards; $20 per week in private rooms. Lodging and washing extra.
Non-Resident cases, $15 Extra.
☞ Non-resident Patients not required to pay in advance.

FOR SALE: 160 ACRES OF FIRST-CLASS FARMING LAND, two miles from Oakland. Good house and barn, well of water, and suitable for fruit growing. Price, $2,000. Apply to owner, on premises, or to MONITOR & GUARDIAN Office. ja15

NEW TAILORING ESTABLISHMENT.
B. FLOOD,
Fashionable Tailor
637 HOWARD STREET, Bet. Second and Third.
Fine Clothing made to order at the following low prices:
Fine American Cassimere Pants, to order.....$5
Fine Business Suits, to order.....$25
Fine Diagonal Suits, to order.....$30
Fine French Beaver Suits, to order.....$35
Fine Spring Overcoats, to order.....$25
☞ All other Garments made at proportionably low rates. Full assortment of Goods and perfection of fit. Special attention given to Cutting. ja15

MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS.

The Best and Cheapest. New ☞ Send for Catalogue. Pianos and Organs to rent. Tuning and repairing done.
KOHLER, CHASE & CO.
633 Clay Street, San Francisco
Broadway, corner Fourteenth st., Oakland.
J. W. FARRER,
WAGON MAKER & BLACKSMITH,
101 BEALE STREET,
Between Mission and Howard.....
Carts, Wagons and Trucks made to order.

The Monitor And Guardian.
VOL. XIX. SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., SATURDAY, JANUARY 29, 1876. NO. 17.

STRATCHEW "CONVERTED PRIEST."

The city of Syracuse, says the New York Freeman's Journal, is just now having a sensation in the form of the "Ordination of the Rev. Professor Alphonse August Dupont, an ex-Catholic priest, as a minister of the Protestant Episcopal Church." The Syracuse Daily Courier gives an account of the "imposing ceremony," and of Bishop Huntington's address, reciting the trials through which his candidate for Anglican Orders has passed on his journey from truth to error. In the course of his remarks the Bishop told his intelligent hearers how "the Church of Rome departed from the simplicity, scriptureisness and true Catholicity of the primitive age, by errors of worship and discipline, by superstition, by hierarchical usurpation, and by practically extinguishing the independence of all national churches, and asserting a vicarship of Christ without credentials, and an infallibility of the Pope in the midst of demoralized self-subsistence. Hence, though the branch of the Church had never lost the communion, the creed, or the grace of order, yet inasmuch as it had separated itself from other ancient and historical churches, like the Oriental, older than itself, and the Anglican, equally old, whose daughter in the Episcopal Church it was proud to be, it was right that the minister before him should be formally received and publicly welcomed into the priesthood of a Church which is not only Catholic, but historically even with the Church of the Apostles under Christ, having for the shorter the Book of God's revealed will, which, in the English translation, is the Book of the Church of England Reformed. The Bishop also quoted the articles and canons by which the General Convention had provided for the receiving of a priest of Rome, on certain conditions, which in his case had been carefully fulfilled."

Now as the "Rev. Professor" has been known in Syracuse for some years, his recent "ordination" has called forth the following inquiries:

WHO IS HE AFTER?

To the Editor of the Syracuse Daily Standard—Can some one inform me, through the columns of your Courier, under the caption of "Another Priest Ordained," what was "natural years a parish priest in France," and who officiated in the Episcopal Church on Sunday last, by the Right Rev. Dr. Huntington, and then and there ordained a Protestant minister in place of that Church, I beg leave to propound to the reverend gentleman the query, as my time is not my own, the following pertinent questions, to wit:

Is he a religious, seminary, or other educational institution did he study or complete his studies for the Roman Catholic priesthood, and if so, where, and by what Roman Catholic Bishop, was he ordained a Roman Catholic priest? Why and for what reason did he, so soon priest, have parochial or other spiritual charge? Yours respectfully,
A CATHOLIC.

THE CONVERTED PRIEST.

To the Editor of the Syracuse Daily Courier: Many of our citizens are interested in the "ordination" of Rev. Dr. Dupont by Bishop Huntington on last Sunday, at the reception of Mr. Dupont into the Episcopal Church. Dr. Dupont has been known in Syracuse for the last five years, and he was also known in New York city about three or four years. During those eight years he never professed to be a priest, and never was known as such; and in no case could he have standing as such, since he is a married man, and has been for the last two years openly married to the wife of his former paramour. There the marriage took place, and how long it took after the divorce was granted, I am not informed. Dr. Dupont has been visitmained in the matter, it would be interesting to have direct answers to the following questions:

First—Where and in what seminary did Dr. Dupont receive his ecclesiastical education?

Second—By what Bishop was he ordained? Third—What diocese is he attached to, where also did he officiate in as a priest or of what parish did he ever have charge? Was Bishop Huntington or Mr. Dupont will confer a favor on "Inquirer" by answering the above questions.
INQUIRER.

Bibber New York Freeman's Journal—I believe, by the request of many of the readers here of your excellent Catholic journal, extracts from the daily papers of this city giving an account of the conversion and reception into the Protestant Episcopal Church, on Sunday last, of a person who seems to have been formerly a Catholic priest, and who professes to have retained, up to this time, the "cordial confidence" of the Catholic Bishop of the diocese in which he resides.

I am sorry to be in addition to what I know myself of this unblushing apostate priest, I may serve to enlighten you a little further in regard to the extent I may be in the use of the "honor" to converse with him often, and to be an intimate and a communist of the Rev. Hugh Stephenson stripe, a very base and intolerable baser of the Catholic Church and everything Catholic, it is no wonder that the priests, the Pope and the Church are insufferable to him, and that coming to discuss several of the sins and doctrines of the Papacy, and finding himself sadly able longer to keep them, he left Father Prof. Dupont in a huff at length left the Church, and is going back to his father, Beelzebub, as fast as the motive power of infidelity and the Protestant Episcopal Church can convey him.

I have known him for the past four or five years, always denouncing Catholic France, the priests and the Catholic Church, as the most virulent and intolerant manner. It must have been some time, if ever, since he was a Catholic priest, as he has a wife who has been keeping a millinery and fancy store in this city, and a little daughter some eight or ten years of age, with perhaps some other children of whom we know nothing about.

I offer you these facts, not in newspaper articles shape, but that you may know something of the bogus priest, who, tired of an unprofitable vocation as a professor and teacher of the French language in the Keble school, and latterly of the High School in this city, now seeks a more easy and lazy life in the ministry of the Protestant Episcopal Church.

B. B. MASON.
SYRACUSE, January 18, 1876.

Miraculous Cure Effected Through the Intercession of the Holy Father.

The Journal de Bruxelles relates the following miraculous cure recently performed by the intercession of the Holy Father:

A religieuse of the Sacred Heart, Rev. Mother Julie N——, a daughter of one of the most distinguished Belgian diplomatists, had, after a very violent nervous attack, her right arm entirely paralyzed, so much so that she was obliged to support it on a splint by means of bandages. The finger nails had become black and the bones of the fingers and elbow were distorted, as if out of place. In vain did physicians call in a change of climate.

At Viterne, where she first went, and then at Rome, where she arrived about the 15th of September, the affliction only grew worse. Mother Julie, however, nourished a secret hope of recovering, and of receiving in Rome herself, provided she could see the Holy Father. She obtained an audience on the 19.h of October.

The Holy Father, at first surprised at the request for a cure when was made him, and being desirous also of trying the faith of the patient, said to her: "My daughter, I have not the gift of miracles." But he immediately added: "I love confidence in God; for nothing is impossible in His energy." Yet, as the Sisters, and especially the Holy Father's sister, insisted that he should, he should deign to recommend the patient to God and bless her, the Holy Father prayed for a moment with the Sisters kneeling at his feet. He repeated these words to her several times, and having asked her to make a sign of cross again to speak to her of faith, "Ah, Father," she replied, "I believe in Jesus Christ, and also proved by his sanctyness." Father blessed it and told her to put it on her right hand. At the very instant she felt the miraculous power. She obtained an audience the following day. Her sanctyness blessed her confession, Herr Nicosia could not administer to him the Sacrament of Penance unless he was willing to withdraw, in the presence of a witness, his opposition to this protest. Kossiehy did not agree to this, and on the affair rested for the time. Later on came the report, in the newspapers, of the conviction and sentence of Father Gabriel (the Capuchin of Rome, of Swiderski), said thereupon, pushed on by others (to at least it is rumored), Kossiehy instituted proceedings in his own name. The Court has decided that the refusal to admit to confession is an "unlawful means of constraint," and sentenced the accused to a fine of 150 marks (47 10s.) or ten days' imprisonment.

The public prosecutor conducted himself in the management of the case with great moderation; he asked for only 50 marks of fine and one days' imprisonment.

—The West Britons of Dublin are to invite the Queen to see Prince of Wales to visit Ireland next summer.

News from Rome.

ROME, December 28.—The Sacred College, represented by an unusually numerous gathering of the Cardinals now in Rome, went on Thursday to offer the good wishes of the season to his Holiness. Cardinal Pairiel, the Dean, spoke in terms of extraordinary fervor and loyalty. His Eminence virtually took as the text of his discourse the words of the Angelic Host on the first Christmas—Gloria in excelsis Deo, et in terra pax hominibus bonæ voluntatis. They must, said his Eminence, truly glorify God that, notwithstanding all her tribulations, the Church, His spouse, rose more glorious in the sight of God and of men who were constrained «to venerate and fear her." They must again, he said, glorify God for the wonderful health and the invincible fortitude of mind which rendered his Holiness the object of love and admiration to all the Cath olic world. "Peace, therefore," he exclaimed, "to men of good will, for to the others there can be no peace; there can be no conciliation between God and Belial; injustice and impiety cannot lead to it; until they recognize the Church as the infallible oracle, as the voice of Jesus upon earth, they can never hope for the true peace."

The sentiments expressed by Cardinal Pairiel were earnestly responded to by his colleagues, who reminded the assembled Cardinals that the end of the present month of December would complete the third quarter of the nineteenth century, and that still, as at its commencement, the Church is loosed upon the tumultuous waves of the impost which has agitated it for seventy-five years. Many were afraid he knew, but he knew also that four was an effect of love towards God. Some, like the priest Lamennais, feared through human weakness; some, like the Blessed Virgin, through humility.

"But this fear," concluded his Eminence, "may spring from a holy source, and be a proof of love towards God. No one is so unfortunate as to be without a fault, and the Lord has said that the just man falls seven times a day. Let us then be careful to avoid the snares of pride, and to be humble in the sight of God, and we shall be exempt from the fear which springs from love." The Cardinals then proceeded to the Quirinal, and were received in audience by his Holiness, who welcomed him with the usual and gracious manner.

The Lord Mayor, who were his official robes, made the following address to the Sovereign Pontiff:

Most Holy Father—Penetrated with gratitude, I approach the throne of your Holiness in the name of the Lord Mayor and Corporation of the city of Dublin, to present to you the humble but sincere congratulations of the Irish people on the occasion of the return of the festive season. Deeply sensible of the many and signal favors conferred upon this city by your Holiness, and of the paternal solicitude you have ever manifested for the welfare of the Irish people, I feel assured that the present address will be received with favor by your Holiness.

Deeply sensible, Most Holy Father, the honors of the city have conferred upon me, and profoundly impressed with the duties which they involve, I shall endeavor to discharge the responsibilities of my office with fidelity to my sovereign, to myself, and to my family, as a proof of your Holiness, the Apostolic See.

His Holiness, in replying to the Lord Mayor, expressed the satisfaction with which he saw at the Vatican the First Magistrate of Dublin, that noble city from which he had already received so many proofs of child piety and devotion. His Holiness also alluded to the heroic constancy of the Irish people under persecutions, which they had endured for centuries on account of their faith and their fidelity to the Holy See. The Holy Father thanked the Lord Mayor for all that he had done on the occasion of the O'Connell fêtes, and bestowed the Pontifical blessing upon the worthy magistrate and his family, and upon all the Catholics of Dublin.—London Weekly Register.

"The prisoner at the bar seems to have a very smooth face," said a spectator to a jailer. "Yes," replied the jailer, "he was ironed just before he was brought in."

FATHER BUCHARD'S LECTURE

"The Catholic Basis of Unity in the Source of Mental and Moral Freedom."

A large audience assembled in St. Ignatius' church, on Thursday evening of last week, to hear the gifted Father Buchard's lecture on "The Catholic Basis of Faith." It is a most logical exposition of Catholic doctrine, and will, we are sure, be read with interest and advantage by all classes. The reverend gentleman said:

"The text we have chosen does not mean that if you confess to believe in God you must believe in Christ, or that if you believe in Christ you must believe in the Church, or that if you believe in the Church you must believe in the Pope, or that if you believe in the Pope you must believe in the Bible alone in man's only rule of faith, mental and moral. This principle is not found in such premises. But this expresses the principle that the Bible alone is man's only rule of faith, mental and moral. This principle is not found in such premises. But this expresses the principle that the Bible alone is man's only rule of faith, mental and moral. This principle is not found in such premises. But this expresses the principle that the Bible alone is man's only rule of faith, mental and moral.

WHY SHOULD THERE BE ONE CHURCH?

To be the subject of truth, to be under the dominion and guidance of truth—in other words, to be held captive in the obedience of truth, is the highest state of man, the liberty of the mind. In like manner, to use moral liberty consists in being the subject of moral truth, or in obeying the laws of reason and happiness. Truth and good are the only real elements of mental and moral liberty. Error, therefore, even in its state of moral slavery; whether it be in a single mind, or in the form of error, and, consequently, from the effects of moral slavery. Divine authority is the only necessity against error and moral slavery. It is the only basis of mental liberty. It is the sovereignty of rational truth; and for reason to free so long as it depends upon divine authority for what is good. All error and vice is slavery. If, then, the question of liberty be to truly free in the light of faith and its practice, the only logical answer that can be given is, the only question that is to be put to the test of practice is, But who has the true faith and practices? He who receives the truth in and does not receive God has sought and commanded. But how shall we know this with infallible certainty? I know it by where the authority exists which God has appointed to teach infallibly the truth to God's spiritual. In other words, by knowing the Church that claims and proves her claim to be that agent, that instrument appointed by God and clothed with the fullness of His own power, to teach all things whatsoever He has commanded.

MENTAL AND MORAL FREEDOM

Is not possible without the possession of the truth revealed by God. "Ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free." But what is the truth? Is it the truth that is to be sought in the soul, in the mind, or in the heart? Is it the truth that is to be superadded by revelation to divine revelation only as the objective truth, as some say, or is it the proposition therefore, reason alone can never be infallible; therefore, reason alone can never be the basis of faith, and to obtain the truth in the same manner as God does who revealed it to us. But not to be infallible in the truth that man receives holds as the truth is indeed the truth, is to be exposed to the danger of receiving error instead of truth, and every possible misery of the human mind, it is to be exposed to the danger of SLAVERY.

Yes, I go a step further, and declare solemnly that not to be infallibly certain that what we believe is the truth, so must and knows God. Man is a slave to error when he holds a principle as true which, in reality, is false, and so which, as applied to practice, is false, and so which, as applied to practice, is false, and so which, as applied to practice

TO-DAY AND TO-MOROW.

Small need have we to whom love romance
On battlefields to count our days,
We love our wives, where chargers prance—
Our oaths to strife are shorter!
Each soul that rears its daily bread
Has norm'a post number;
Hopes dying feelings, crushed or dead,
Hi on ward march surmber.
Still bravely join Life's Serf frat.
And merely rope with Sorrow;
The task that bears his cross to-day
Will have a chance to-morrow.

Hopes, fears, desires, in myriads crowd
Our morning gateway ever;
The earth's pure perceptions cloud,
Grief, shame, remorse and fierce despair,
Bring regrets to confront us—
Such are the dangers we must dare,
Such are the shells around us!
Yet lift my shield with courage yet,
And hurl thy lance at Sorrow!
The man who stands his nerves to-day
Can face the foe to-morrow.

Sister, pilot, for some glorious end,
Though late to port arriving;
Heaven's grace, like manna, will descend,
And sacrifice lay shriving;
God for thyself reserve to do,
And Evil shall avoid thee.
Death may have made thy pulse retire—
Death may have misemployed thee.
Crush out three attributes of clay,
Stamp on the mark of beast,
The man that preserveth loyalty
Will meet success to-morrow.
—Notre Dame Scholastic.

CATHOLIC INTELLIGENCE.

—Died, at the Presentation Convent, Castleconnor, Mother Mary Angela Feehan, Superioress for many years.

—Died, at the convent, Tramore, on the 8th December, Sister Mary Luke Ayer, in the forty-fifth year of her age, and the twentieth of her religious profession.

—The Rev. Hugh Behan, late administrator of Navan, has been promoted to the pastoral charge of Rathkenny and Rushree. All who know Father Behan will rejoice to learn of his advancement, for a more worthy and patriotic priest does not exist in the broad diocese of Meath.

—Rev. Louis Gregoy, O.S.D., for many years so well known in the Dominican missions of Ohio, Kentucky and Tennessee, but who has for some time past been stationed at Castle Vitoria, Italy, has been transferred from the latter place to the House of San Domenico di Taggia, Liguria, Italy.

—On Christmas Day his Grace the Most Rev. Dr. MacHale, Archbishop of Tuam, read three successive Masses in the Cathedral, at Castle Hill Mass, and preached a short sermon at its conclusion. His Grace appears to be in most perfect health, and did not seem to be in the least exhausted by the protracted and arduous duties which he performed.

—The Pope, on Thursday, December 23d, received the good wishes of the Sacred College. Cardinal Patrizi read an address, in which he declared that any reconciliation with the enemies of the Church was impossible. His Holiness, in reply, said it was necessary to be energetic, and never doubt of the future. The evils and injustice from which the Church was suffering were increasing, and all should pray for their removal.

—The Monks of Mount Carmel, from Clondalkin, near Dublin, have lately established a branch of their Order at St. Catherine. They teach a separate school, and tendency for the usual higher branches. His Grace Archbishop Lynch recently remarked that he was President of a like society in the college attached to the Monastery of Clondalkin over forty years ago, and knew from his own experience what solid devotion was propagated among the students.

—We deeply regret to announce the death of Very Rev. Dr. Halley, V. G., of Donaghmore. This venerable and highly esteemed clergyman died at his parochial residence about twelve o'clock on Christmas eve. An affecting coincidence of his demise was that it seemed to occur in gratification of his deeply expressed wish that his life might end at the holy season. Dr. Haley was in his eighty-third year, and held the spiritual charge of Donaghmore parish for nearly half a century.

—Immediately upon the release of the Brazilian Bishops of Para and Olinda from their prisons, they went to the Imperial palace of Boa Vista at San Cristoval, and presented their respects to the Emperor. Thence they went to the house of the Nuncio, and the Council of Rio de Janeiro. The session were entertained by the Capuchins in the Convent of Santa Theresa. In the evening the episcopal palace was illuminated, as were the convents and many private houses.

—On the 16th December the ceremony of the profession of three young ladies was performed at the Novitiate of Mary Convent, Birr. The Bishop of the diocese presided over the occasion, and was assisted by a large number of the clergymen of Birr and the surrounding parishes. The recipients of the black veil were Miss Susan Bourke, daughter of Mr. John Meers, of Cumberland Square; Miss Margaret Meagan, and Sqaurer Miss Margaret Meagan, and daughter of Mr. Thomas Meagan, and Miss Maria Fleher.

—On Sunday, November 21st, a solemn Mass of requiem, Mgr. Stephen Saudadgi, Bishop of Nocmedia, and a layman of position and importance in Athens, made their abjuration of the schism in the chapel of the Propaganda before Cardinal Franchi, having to Rome for that purpose. Neither of them, however, belonged to the new Kupellanik schism. They were members of the ancient Armenian communion, and their conversion is the result of the remarkable movement toward the Church which has been going on in several of the villages of Bithynia. Mgr. Mamoun, the great Patriarch of Chiloria, was present at the ceremony, and the new converts will be of course under his jurisdiction. The Bishop of Nocmedia is a cousin of the late, and returns to Bithynia a Catholic instead of a schismatical Bishop.

TO THE PUBLIC.

☞ The Indianola Tomcenia, San Diego county, having been elected from the house in which they and their ancestors have lived and resided for centuries before the inhumanity and rapacity of their wrongdoers—namely, certain of the writers—proceeded to seize on every thing, and on their "great Father at Washington" too, so far as I am informed, made no provision to give them other lands, or provide them with other homes as "wards of the nation," nor furnished them with provisions or clothing to protect them from the inclemency of the approaching winter, I feel called upon, as their pastor, to appeal to the humanity of Christian feelings of the people, and especially to the people of San Francisco, who on a former occasion so nobly and munificently responded to the cries that came to them from the poor Indians within my jurisdiction. Those charitably disposed to alleviate the wants and sufferings of these poor Indians, and assist in contributing clothing only—even second-handed—may have their contributions at St. Mary's Hospital, San Francisco. Others, individuals or firms, finding it more convenient to make contributions of provisions, may ship to the undersigned at San Diego.

In conclusion, I can assure the public that all who add to this charity will receive my most grateful thanks and heartfelt gratitude, as well as the humble

A Fatal Duel.

LONDON, December 27.—Details of a most unfortunate occurrence, in which an adventurous Irishman took a prominent part, has been sent me by a friend enjoying with the Carlists in the North of Spain. In the frontier town on French territory political feelings run high, and there are often Earthquake in Naples.

There is the threatening of a more than ordinarily formidable eruption of Vesuvius. Professor Palmieri reports from the Observatory near the volcano that fire has appeared in the interior of the crater, and as it presses an opinion that an outburst of long duration may be expected. A volume of black smoke rose from the volcano on Sunday morning. It may be remembered that at the very beginning of this present month of December there were unmistakable evidences of the mountain having entered upon a new period of volcanic activity. On Monday, the 6th inst., in a startling combination of this impression, the whole of Naples was shaken to its very foundations at twenty-four minutes past 3 o'clock in the morning by a severe shock of earthquake. A vivid description of the scene created by this stupendous and profound subterranean explosion has been given by the Naples correspondent of the Athenæum, according to whom nearly the whole population turned out into the streets, despite the rain, which was descending in torrents. Most of the people were on foot, many were in carriages, and all made for the open places, such as the Molo, the Piazza del Dazio, or the Strada Vittorio Emanuele—every thoroughfare being filled with a terror-stricken crowd, whose cries made the scene yet more alarming.

Omnibuses and carriages, wherever they could be found, were taken possession of, and rapidly filled, but the great portion of the fugitives were compelled to rough it in the open air, half dressed, and some of the poor girls' shirts. What was dreaded was the "replica"—when the earth returns to its normal condition. This, happily, did not take place, and at dawn a shivering crowd returned to their homes, to find, many of them, that they had been robbed during their absence! The incidents following the shock were sufficiently awful, in truth, to alarm any one. The house bells rang, the walls sensibly moved, furniture was displaced, and persons were rocked in their beds! The precise moment of the shock was marked, too, by many a watch which had stopped! Strange to say, Prof. Palmieri is distinctly of opinion that the earthquake has nothing to do with Vesuvius. The shock of it appears to have extended over a vast tract of country, the centre of agitation being in Puglia, near a place called S. Moreo in Lamia. There the only deaths caused by the casualty are understood to have occurred, three persons being killed at S. Marco in Lamia, and several houses were destroyed.—London Weekly Register, December 25.

LONDON, December 27.—Details of a most unfortunate occurrence, in which an adventurous Irishman took a prominent part, has been sent me by a friend enjoying with the Carlists in the North of Spain. In the frontier town on French territory political feelings run high, and there are often

Spain's Reply to the United States.

The New York Herald's Madrid special reports that the Spanish Government has sent out a diplomatic note in reply to the American circular on Cuban affairs. The reply is quite belligerent in tone, and takes high ground on all the questions raised by the United States. The note declares that commerce between Cuba and the United States has not suffered to any appreciable extent by the insurrection; that instead of having diminished, it has in reality been increased, and is constantly increasing; so the United States Government has no occasion for any plaint, and no tenable ground for the proposed action in the affairs of troubles existing in Cuba. Attention is also called to the fact that many American citizens established themselves in business on the Island, and being unmolested by the Spanish Government, have gained large individual fortunes; that these fortunes have not added to the material wealth of the Island, being entirely in foreign hands. That the territory of the United States is a constant refuge for Cuban outlaws, who are permitted to hatch conspiracies to the detriment and injury of the Spanish Government, and that in this the laws of nations are outraged. That all just and equitable claims between the United States and Cuba have been amicably and fully satisfied, or are in course of adjustment, and therefore there can be no cause of complaint on that score. The Spanish note is believed to be the work of Señor Javellar.

Some eighty of Grant's brigade have already been enlisted for defending the revenue, and there is a probability of their conviction. The principal chiefs, however, have so far escaped.

A Few Words to Feeble and Delicate Women.

By R. V. PIERCE, M.D., of the World's Dispensary, Buffalo, N. Y., Author of "The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser," &c.

Knowing that you are subject to a great amount of suffering, that delicacy on your part has a strong tendency to prolong it, and the longer it is neglected the more firm does it endure and the more difficult of cure your case becomes, I, as a physician, who am daily consulted by scores of your sex, deem it my duty to you, that I am constantly meeting with those who have been cured for life by the use of a few bottles of one being benefited in the least, until they have become perfectly discouraged and have almost made up their mind never to take another bottle of medicine, or be persuaded by any friend to do so. They had rather die and have their self-made relief than to live and suffer as they do. Now, I do not wish you to be suffering, and are only desirous of your health and happiness, and know that we certainly cannot recover, if we do not try. Therefore, I would earnestly request you, for the sake of your own happiness, and the relief from all the vital forms of the system, some 100 bed-ridden females a year, especially the worst cases of the land, to adopted for them, they case would be deprived in the world. Send, only sufferers, that I may have a better and more scientific plan of treatment for you, one more in harmony with the laws and functions of the female system. A fresh, irritating, cancer treatment and more in harmony with nature's laws, and and down them inconsistent, the one with the other. The life is their great mistake. Authority is the parent of liberty, not its antagonist. The authority of reason is the parent of rational liberty, as the authority of revelation is the parent of faith. God is the highest expression of both, but under two different aspects. That is, the Divine intelligence is the authority of my reason and the source of my rational liberty; and the same Divine intelligence, revealing itself to me in the supernatural order, is the authority of my reason in believing the truth revealed by which I am set free from error and moral slavery. Our entire liberty depends on our submission to this Divine authority. Without this we are the slaves of error; of error as the natural offspring of our reason operating independently of the Divine authority. All authority implies a power that is above the subject of authority. How absurd, then, to imagine that the decisions of reason, acting independently in matters of faith, could be ultimate. You might as well say that reason by her own natural light can peer into the mysteries of God; can lift the veil that hangs over the adorable countenance of the Trinity and decipher the mysterious number of Three in One—as to say that reason by her own natural light can penetrate into the mysteries of the Incarnation, and discover what substances become one in the Sacrament of the Altar. Reason and faith are two entirely distinct and different powers, and analyze the process by which they so meet together as not to be confounded the one with the other.

But reason, under the direction of Divine authority, commands in awful silence, believes and adores. She never questions a revelation that is infinitely higher than her own. It suffices for her to know that God has spoken, and to have evidence of the testimony that what she is required to believe is His word, without pretending to complain that the revelation is forced by reason into conflict with faith rise to knowledge and intuition. Unable to reach the

HEIGHT OF MYSTERY,

she descends to the lowliness of submission. She asks, as she has a right to do, what authority vouches for the fact that the word to be believed is the word of God, and having found that authority she submits, I believe; and although she has no longer the right to doubt or question the veracity of the authority teaching; still she feels herself perfectly free, for she knows that where the authority to teach is Divine, there the obligation of hearing and assenting is changed into being delivered or imposed upon; in other words, secures our freedom from error. "The truth shall make you free." It will be found upon examination that Protestantism, like Atheism, does not subject. So much so that it refuses to be Divine authority by which she claims the submission of all men to her teaching. Protestantism recognizes no authority out of itself. It even wishes to dictate to God Himself, or rather it says, at least, "You be to God besides myself; or, if there be a God I shall, at least, be like unto Him in knowing good and evil. Truth and good shall be weighed in my balance and measured by my yard-stick. Whatever I believe ought to be, even if it is not

THE TRUTH IN JESUS CHRIST.

I am my own Church. I have no need of any one to teach me. There is no truth save as each individual understands it or makes it. No one can dictate; no one can prescribe what I shall believe. Faith is free.

It may be different—even contradictory—in different individuals; it matters not. One is one way, you see in another way; but we are are all equally infallible and equally secure in that which we believe or see objectively as well as subjectively." Thus does Protestantism discard all authority. But authority is essentially distinct from its subject. Yet, according to Protestantism, the subject creates it as the same time the authority whose commands the believer is equal to the author and revealer of the truth that is to be believed. Thus Protestantism is, as I said, absolutist at heart. It acknowledges no sovereign truth, no sort of lawful tenure, no authority save its own.

THE CATHOLIC CHURCH,

On the contrary, acknowledges her deposit, once upon God, the giver of the truth, which makes us free from the thralldom of error and sin. She recognizes in Him the highest authority, an authority that has the right to prescribe and command whatever it pleases. She owns herself the subject of this authority without a murmur, just of this authority without a murmur, without complaint. She moreover recognizes in God this right to determine what instruments, what agents, He may please to employ to feed mankind in a knowledge of the truth and salvation. And she rests upon a foundation that she believes!—I speak of the Ecclesia Docens, or Teaching Church—in the instruments, the agency chosen by Him, and that He has conferred on her the fullness of His own authority. Yet the Teaching Church claims nothing in virtue of her own infallible and short-sighted humanity. She makes no pretensions higher than any other human institution in virtue of her human character alone. Her Divine character comes from a higher source, and shows itself here and unless with her human existence after some manner like the human and divine natures in the person of Jesus Christ, her founder. True, she is not God, yet she is more than man. He who ordained her in these terms, "All power is given to me in heaven and on earth; go teach all nations," and, "Behold, I am with you all days," also, elevated her from the level of our common humanity to a kind of equality with Himself, and secured the perpetuity of that equality by the promise of his uninterrupted presence even unto the end of time. "I am with you all days, till the consummation of ages." Clothed with this divine character the Church opposes error as we and beautiful and fair. Made free by the truth, consecrated by the sweet unction of virtue and espoused to the King of heaven, she shall never become the slave of error nor the dupe of vice.

WE CANNOT

Do so not fear that the Church will ever abuse her authority. We know that the only possible abuse of her authority could be in teaching any other doctrine than that which her Divine Founder has himself taught and commanded her to go and teach. But such an abuse of authority is impossible, because He who established authority is over it and identified with His Church, teaching and commanding by her as His organ, or mouth-piece. "He that hears you hears me." We Catholics have a much higher, a more elevated idea of the Church than our Protestant friends are accustomed to form to themselves. With us the Church is the mystical body of Christ, who is her eternal, beating head, her life, her breath, her guardian and protector; yes, the Church is, in a certain sense, Himself—a continued existence of his presence among men—a continued incarnation of His sovereign truth and life. The consciousness of this is the best possible security for our unlimited confidence in the Church, and for the unreserved submission in her of our understanding and will. We feel we are convinced that in submitting to the Church we do not submit to men, but to God, and every one is bound to submit to God. But our Protestant friends seem to imagine that we Catholics see in the teaching Church nothing more than a body of men, who, like their own ministers, must depend upon their own genius or talents for a tolerably successful defense of their own peculiar views and opinions; that we see in the teaching Church a body of men as liable to mistake in the sense of God's word as their own fallible and erring teachers. They seem to think that the only difference between the two classes of teachers is that Catholics are more ready to yield their assent to the word of their teacher than the generality of Protestants are to believe the word of their ministers. They can never have a clear idea of the Divine power which we Catholics have learned to place the teaching Church. They can never teach, even in thought, the nonsuch of the everlasting rock upon which Christ built His Church, and against which the rogues of hell shall never prevail." They cannot see Christ in His Church. They believe that Christ established the Church, but that after having done so He left her to the chances of a toward or unnerved fate, without concerning Himself further about her destiny through-out the ages. This error lies, it seems to me, at the foundation of all their misconceptions of the Church. They cannot conceive of the Christian religion otherwise than as a system subject to the shifting opinions of would-be philosophers and theologians, who consider themselves as to which has the better right to be believed and followed. But this is as egregious

THE CHRISTIAN RELIGION IS NO PHILOSOPHY,

It is a body of doctrines and practices which are all fixed and determined, and from which there is no appeal to reason or to the heart, as the ultimate tribunal, but to the words which we shall embrace as true and good, or reject as false or vicious. The whole is settled by the Author and Finisher of our faith. Reason has nothing to invent; nothing to add; nothing to take away from it. The entire body of belief and practice rests on the Divine authority, and no other authority can come between the Divine authority and the believer.

The Church does not stand between God and man as an independent authority, but as a delegate, as a subordinate, gifted with plenipotentiary powers. She teaches and commands in the name of God, and has received from Him her fully authorized to treat with the nations on the affairs of time and eternity. Her every decree and act, for example, have demonstrated any given proposition, have I any right to doubt my demonstration? When I have proved that two and two are four, that one and the same thing cannot be another thing at the same time, where is the room for mental liberty to inquire whether two and two are five; whether gold is silver, or silver gold? When I have proved to myself that the Catholic Church, being the duly authorized legate or examiner or question the truth of her doctrines? To examine her doctrines which I have already proved to myself she teaches infallibly, would suppose a reasonable doubt of her infallibility, and of the truth of the doctrine she teaches. But on the hypothesis that I have already proved to myself by previous examination, all further examination would be simply absurd.

TAKE A PARALLEL CASE.

I suppose an intelligent Protestant, who, by a due process of argument, has demonstrated to himself that the Bible, such as he has it, is the very word of God, as it was dictated by the Holy Spirit. I ask you, has not that intelligent Protestant, after such demonstration, still the right or privilege of doubting his own demonstration? Does reason justly such a doubt consequently, further inquiry? To admit it would be to admit that man has no other liberty but to doubt. It would be to admit that the highest privilege of the human mind is not to rely on any truth, but to doubt all things. In other words, it would be to establish skepticism as the only true philosophy, the only true religion in the world. But this is the only true philosophy, the only true religion of the consistent Protestant that is the Protestant who adheres to the principle, "The Bible, and the Bible alone, man's only rule of faith and practice." Between

SKEPTICISM AND FANATICISM

There is no medium, no standing-ground, for such a Protestant—for a man who does not claim and prove his claim to the authority of God for his faith, and that with infallible certainty, must find refuge in fanatical or skeptical delusion. The question may here be asked, is there no freedom of thought, no liberty of discussion, in the Catholic Church? I answer, there is ample freedom of thought and discussion on all questions that do not come within the domain of faith. In matters not defined by the Church every one is at liberty to hold his own opinion. Hence the opposed decisions which sometimes arise among Catholic theologians. But in matters of faith, which have been defined by the authority of the Church, which every Catholic believes to be the authority of God Himself, all her theologians and doctors are of one mind—think and speak the same thing; all obey the same voice. But

PERFECT LIBERTY IS ALLOWED

On all such subjects as come not within the domain of faith. Discussion begins where definition ceases. Yet liberty of thought, of inquiry, and authority profits by liberty. Authority keeps in check the natural tendency of man to error, and liberty keeps the mental aid to authority in developing truth, which rests on theological or rational grounds. The authority of faith controls the waywardness of opinion, and prevents it from running its into extremes. The authority of faith is the great bound by which liberty is confined, and full poet flow between its banks. Authority and liberty are the two great powers that have been instituted by God for the good of mankind, and the two great powers that have been instituted by God for the good of mankind, and the two great powers that have been instituted by God for the good of mankind, and

WEEKLY CALENDAR.
FOR THE WEEK ENDING FEBRUARY 5.
Sunday—Fourth Sunday after Epiphany.
M—Monday—St. Peter Nolasco. Confessor.
Pebruary.
Tuesday—St. Ignatius, Bishop and Martyr. St. Ansgar, Virgin. Patronage of Ireland.
2—Wednesday—Purification of the B. V. M. Candlemas Day.
3—Thursday—St. Marcellus, Pope and Martyr (January 16). St. Blaise, Bishop and Martyr.
4—Friday—St. Andrew Corsini, Bishop and Confessor.
5—Saturday—St. Agatha, Virgin and Martyr.

THE MONITOR & GUARDIAN:
THE ONLY
Irish and Catholic Journal in California.
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
SATURDAY.....JANUARY 29, 1876.

SUBSCRIBERS will please specially look at the printed label on the margin or wrapper of the paper; the date thereon shows when the subscription expires.

A GREAT "SECESSION TO ROME."

The London Morning Post, though owned, it is said, by certain brewers and distillers, is a paper of gloss proclivities. It pays much attention to what is going on in religious society and keeps vigilant watch upon the doings of Rome. In other words, it is an upright, intelligent and able paper. It is possible for a daily journal to be in these enlightened and civilized times. It has also a hankering after the aristocracy, and chronicles the movements of the Queen and the wanderings of the nobility with evident loyalty and pride. So, it must be understood, the Post sets up to be an omniscient and respectable paper, whose leading articles should be accepted as a modern gospel by the true Briton, whose mind and intelligence it pretty fairly represents. Accordingly, it ought to be good authority on the progress of Catholic opinion and possesses considerable influence.

On last Monday morning this organ of sound British opinion created a sensation by announcing in a portion of the extreme resultants party in the Church of England was engaged in active correspondence with the Holy See, in reference to the terms upon which he members would be received into the Catholic Church. The astounding communication comprised, according to the Post, one hundred clergymen, seventy-six of the thousand men and one hundred and fifty thousand women. All of them had signed a memorial to the Pope asserting that their own bishops had placed the Church completely under the control of the Sultan, and therefore were unable gather that they firmly believed all the doctrines of the Catholic Church, including Papal Infallibility, and asking his Holiness to permit the formation of a United Anglican Church similar to the United Greek and Maronite. The reason for the last request was alleged in the fact that many of the clergymen are married and have families to support, so they could not become Catholic priests. But of course they wanted, nevertheless, recognition for their orders and authority to say Mass and administer the sacraments of the Holy Father agreeing to this request, and we believe, for our part, that the declaration is entirely correct.

Trials, persecutions and the experience of centuries are forcing upon all those inside the pale of the Church the great necessity for unity, not alone in faith, but in worship and discipline also. Accordingly, the little Oriental congregations which, although thoroughly Catholic in doctrine, even to acknowledging the supremacy of the Pope, maintained rites and observances peculiar to themselves, have voluntarily decided in obedience them, more or less gradually, and accommodate themselves in all things to the usage of the Church. These have also been being on, it is very unlikely indeed that the Pope would sanction the formation of a new sect, the peculiarities of which could not fail to bring about trouble in the future. The Catholic Church stands boldly forth before the world; it proudly claims its divine origin; it makes no secret of its doctrines or practices, and therefore it has no compromise to make with the weakness or prejudices of any body of men. If these Anglian ritualists recognize the Catholic Church as the one seeing fold, if they consume the time and labor of the Holy See merely if they know the mistakes and the dangers of heresy, then they issue fearful responsibilities before God by piloting the gratification of small numbers or aspirants before the duty of humble submission to divinely established authority in the person of the Vicar of Christ.

We are well aware that in the so-called Church of England there is a large body of men and women who are the absurdity of calling that organization a Church which is simply a department of civil government, which can be changed or remodeled by the passage of an act of Parliament, and which is so incapable of maintaining interior harmony that it comprises within it men holding and teaching the most conflicting doctrines upon the very fundamental principles of Christianity. The Anglican bishops have repeatedly shown themselves more desirous of adopting the good things provided for them by the State than of enforcing discipline or uniformity of belief in the ranks of their clergymen. They seem to set upon the happy and easy principle of letting things go their course, and trouble ing nobody about what he believes or preaches, provided, however, there is no taint of "Romanism" in either, for that is a matter to which their most reverend forelships have the strongest possible objection. They evidently think they are paid their fine salaries for keeping "Popery" out of England, and they pay no attention to the enormous mass of rationalism and infidelity.

Finally, we may say we do not place much confidence in the Morning Post's story. The way into the Church is clear and open, for the Church is a city on a hill, and cannot be hidden. The Pope cannot make anybody a Catholic, nor even alter the recognized conditions of reception into his fold. It would be a great source of rejoicing to him and to the faithful throughout the world to see so many educated and intelligent people abandoning error and embracing truth; but if, upon little pusillanimous resentiments or of national prejudices, they prefer to remain where they are, it certainly will be no fault of his. These two hundred thousand English people are a very insignificant body compared with the millions already comprised in the Church, and it is rather arrogant on their part to expect that terms can be made with them.

IRISH EMIGRATION TO NEW GUINEA.

The Irish seem to be the pioneer emigrants of the English speaking population to every quarter of the globe. They are invariably the first to undertake dangerous enterprises, they are always the first in exploring and opening up new countries, and it is only when they have established the feasibility of colonization that the more cautious and calculating nationalities venture to come in. In very few instances, however, have they managed to retain their advantage of first possession, or reap anything like a proper return for their spirit and enterprise. On the contrary, they have always seen themselves overwhelmed and displaced by the multitude of later comers, and reduced to the position of a second and comparatively poor class. But in places where sickness, danger and failure were the daily results of the endeavor, they have ever been the first and last emigrants; for the others, warned by their experience, have prudently kept away. Such, for example, has been the result of the badly contrived attempts to establish English-speaking colonies in Algeria. But all Iberian Ayres, Nicaragua, and more localities we could mention. And now that a project has been gotten up in London to plant a settlement in New Guinea, that island off the northeast coast of Australia, we find that Irishmen are the chief participants in it.

An English navy lieutenant, named Adam, some time ago invented a great deal on the coast of New Guinea, and it struck him that a colony which might yat rival Australia in population and prosperity, could be speedily located there. On his return to London he set about organizing a preliminary expedition, and, as we learn from the English papers, he has so far succeeded that his first party will start for their destination some time in March, so as to arrive during the cool and pleasant season. The contingent consists of fifteen officers and one hundred men, the latter almost exclusively recruited from the ranks of the Irish constabulary. Should these succeed in their purpose and prove the practicability of permanent occupation, a large emigration is intended and many will go out towards the end of the present year. A third body of men and women will soon afterwards be forwarded, and then, it is hoped, the new settlement will be able to Lieutenant Adam boasts that his scheme cannot be otherwise than successful in every particular, and he says he has more applications for admission into the ranks of his expedition than he can possibly accommodate. Now we are really very sorry that any of our countrymen, even though belonging to the not very popular or patriotic constabulary, have been so easily willing to engage in such a hazardous and profitless undertaking. The climate of New Guinea, which lies within the tropics, is so intensely hot that few Europeans can ever persist in it and its enervating effects. Moreover, the coast regions, which alone are adopted in any way for colonization, are exceedingly unhealthy, for we find ages ago relating to a dreadful extent almost throughout the year. The interior of the island is occupied by ranges of lofty mountains, incapable of cultivation and probably destitute of water. To put the climate upon the disadvantage of the place, the natives are fierce and warlike, not at all disposed to allow stronger to peacefully occupy portions of their territory.

Taking all these things into consideration it is impossible to predict anything but lamentable failure for Lieutenant Adam's colonization. He will soon be deserted by those who would be valuable settlers in a more favorable locality, and that is all that will come of it. Now, while there are millions upon millions of fertile acres unoccupied in the United States, where there no such difficulties to be surmounted, it is hard to imagine how men can be so rash and so silly as to engage in an attempt to colonize New Guinea. The climate there is desperate, the resource are mild and healthy, there are no tribes of savage cannibals roasting about seeking whom they may devour; hill and plain are alike accessible to the plow, and will bring forth abundant crops, and, above all, there are already forty millions of Canadians firmly established in the country, and forming one of the most powerful and civilized nations of the earth. A tithe of the pluck and energy which will be miserably wasted in New Guinea, would in a short period of time secure a comfortable living in the United States.

Rev. Father Adam, pastor of Santa Cruz, gave a highly interesting lecture on the early history of California, in Armory's Hall in that town, on the evening of January 19. The pressure of other interesting matter on our space precludes our republishing it.

BURNED CAROLS.—Every family should have at least one burned candle. It is a pious rule to suppose that any kind of candle will suffice for this purpose. The Church requires that candles made of beeswax only shall be blessed. Pure wax candles may be had at Flood's Catholic bookstore, 124 Market street, at a mere trifle over the cost of the ordinary spurious candle.

ENGONALIN, Dr. Hall's new remedy for coughs, colds and bronchitis. Price only

A SINGULAR LIBEL CASE.

A very singular and at the same time very instructive libel case in one of the Courts of Paris has just been brought to a conclusion. It was instituted against the writers and proprietors of a publication called the Nineteenth Century by a priest named GRANDIN, and resulted in a verdict in favor of the latter. Many, if not all, our readers are, of course, aware that a certain society, known as "The Association of the Holy Infancy," has been established, with the approbation of the Pope, and has for its object the saving or purchasing of infant whom Chinese unnatural cruelty leaves exposed to perish in the streets from cold and hunger. These unhappy waifs and strays of humanity are carefully attended to by the members of a religious fraternity, instructed in the truths of Christianity, and, when sufficiently old, are sent among their own countrymen to help on the good work of the propagation of faith. This is the simplest and most efficacious way of spreading knowledge of the tenets of Catholicity among the countless millions of the Chinese nation. Contributions of money and everything which will fetch money are collected every year in the Catholic countries of Europe and America and forwarded to China to the support of the Association. It will be remembered that some years ago even old, obliterated postage stamps used to be collected for the Association of the Holy Infancy. What the Chinese made out of them it is very hard to say; we believe it has never been satisfactorily explained, but all events it has been fully established that they were not used for the purpose for which they considered their superfluous children for them.

Messrs. ABOUT AND SARCEY, proprietors of the Nineteenth Century, are men of the true French Radical stamp, thoroughgoing infidels and fierce anti-Catholics; and when they went to say a sharp or witty thing about the Catholic Church they seldom concerned themselves with regard to the truth or falsehood of it. Accordingly, one day they thought proper to attack the Abbé GRANDIN and the Association with which he is connected. They sneered at the public that the story of the Chinese exposing their infant children was false in every particular, and therefore the Association of the Holy Infancy was no better than an agency for swindling credulous Catholics out of their money. This made the good priest appear in the light of a common thief, engaged in the heinous of obtaining money under false pretences, and he accordingly took means to publicly vindicate his own character and the character of the society. It was proved in Court by evidence that the most rabid Radical could not impugn, by the sworn testimony of men who disclaimed all sympathy with the Catholic Church, that the horrid practice of infanticide was fearfully prevalent in the Chinese towns and cities, and that the members of the association annually rescued hundreds of little creatures from a miserable death. One gentleman swore to having repeatedly so-where it was customary to expose infants, and to having helped to save many of them. Another swore as directly and emphatically to having been present on several occasions when the helpless being, doomed to a horrible death, was taken up from its unnatural parent for a trifling consideration of some kind.

French courts are not very favorably disposed towards ecclesiastics—they are not so largely of the dislike to religion prevalent in official circles; but in this case the evidence was so preponderatingly on the side of Abbé GRANDIN that a verdict in his favor could not possibly be avoided. The sentence was that M. ABOUT and the printer of the Nineteenth Century were to pay two hundred francs apiece as proprietors of the libelling journal, and Messrs. ABOUT and SARCEY, as writers of the article were fined sixty dollars each. The sum of money may seem small, but Abbé GRANDIN got supremely disinterested and generous pecuniary damages, and said all he wanted was to vindicate himself and the Association of the Holy Infancy from the foul and unfounded aspersions cast upon them. We apply that few, if any, of the myriad libels perpetrated upon Catholicity in this country meet with such prompt and complete refutation as that of which the Paris journalists have just had experience. But if a tithe of them were brought into court our judicial tribunals would be monopolized by them to the exclusion of all other business. We are parsimonious enough to admire all the evils which spring from those lies rather than trouble the judges with them.

THE MIRACLES OF LOURDES.

The lecture upon "The Miracles of Lourdes," which was to have been delivered last Sunday evening in St. Mary's Cathedral, by Rev. Father Gleeson, of Brooklyn, Alameda, did not come off, owing to the great inclemency of the weather at the time appointed. It will, however, take place tomorrow (Sunday) evening, at half-past seven o'clock, unless the same unfortunate mishap occurs to prevent it, which we sincerely hope will not be the case. We give this timely notice to all our readers because we are convinced that the opportunity of hearing a lecture upon such an exceedingly interesting subject will be eagerly embraced by them. About "The Miracles of Lourdes," their authenticity or their delusiveness, much has been written by infidels, heretics, skeptics as well as by the faithful who see and believe them. The Archbishop of San Francisco are not, perhaps, well acquainted with the irrefragable evidence establishing the astounding wonders which have been wrought by the hand of God, not in centuries passed away, not upon people who have long since monldered into dust, but in our own day and generation, and upon people who yet live and move upon earth.

HUSBAND AND WIFE.

The bill now before our Legislature with reference to administration on common property after decease of husband or wife has been subjected to a great deal of criticism by the newspapers of the State. Some regard it as a piece of unnecessary meddling with legislation that requires no amendment, while others treat it as a wholesome and desirable reform. For our part we acknowledge a strong inclination to side with the latter and speak favorably of the bill. It seems to us it is calculated to remove an anomaly and an injustice in our laws concerning the hereditary transmission of property. As the law now stands, the husband, after the death of his wife, enjoys upon possession of her share of the common estate without being compelled to administer or engage in any legal process, and he takes the whole by simple right of succession; while, in the case of the husband's death, the wife has to pus the estate into court, sue out her letters of administration and fight a legal battle, as though she were accused of doing some wrong. This brings the business, if any there be, to a complete standstill, and therefore seriously depreciates if it does not completely destroy it; and whatever the property may consist of it certainly is not enhanced by the litigation. Moreover, the legal expenses which are unavoidable constitute a most oppressive tax, which in no a few instances amounts to one half or more of the value of the estate in question.

The proposed legislation goes no further than to place the husband and wife upon an equal footing with regard to the inheritance of common property. It merely declares that upon the death of husband or wife one-half of the entire community of the Nineteenth Century, are men of the true French Radical stamp, thoroughgoing infidels and fierce anti-Catholics; and when they went to say a sharp or witty thing about the Catholic Church they seldom concerned themselves with regard to the truth or falsehood of it. Accordingly, one day they thought proper to attack the Abbé GRANDIN and the Association with which he is connected. They sneered at the public that the story of the Chinese exposing their infant children was false in every particular, and therefore the Association of the Holy Infancy was no better than an agency for swindling credulous Catholics out of their money. This made the good priest appear in the light of a common thief, engaged in the heinous of obtaining money under false pretences, and he accordingly took means to publicly vindicate his own character and the character of the society. It was proved in Court by evidence that the most rabid Radical could not impugn, by the sworn testimony of men who disclaimed all sympathy with the Catholic Church, that the horrid practice of infanticide was fearfully prevalent in the Chinese towns and cities, and that the members of the association annually rescued hundreds of little creatures from a miserable death. One gentleman swore to having repeatedly so-

THE RIGHTS OF CATHOLICS.

The Claims of Catholics Considered and Popular Objections Answered in an Eloquent Address by Hon. John McKeon, a Native American Lawyer.

A meeting of the Catholic Union was held in the hall of St. Francis Xavier's College, West Sixteenth street, New York, on the evening of Thursday, January 13th. It was very numerously attended by the clergy and laity. Among the speakers were Rev. Father Spalding, Hon. John McKeon and his Eminence Cardinal McCloskey. We reproduce the speeches of the two latter, and ask our readers to peruse them carefully, for it seems to us they have the genuine Catholic ring in them. They boldly define the position that Catholics ought to occupy at the present time, and prove that Catholics will be satisfied with nothing short of their full rights in this free country.

Address of Hon. John McKeon.

You may think it strange that I should open any remarks I have to make with a reference to an incident which occurred many years since. It connects the grandest temple of the Catholic Church with my own humble self, and one of the greatest men identified with the Church in this city and country. About a quarter of a century ago I passed since I was present at the ceremonies of Holy Week in Rome. It was shortly after the return of the Holy Father from his exile at Gaeta. Would that I had the gifted pen of Hilliger Beecher, Taylor and the ceremonies of Easter Sunday. It is difficult to present to the minds of those who have not witnessed them the Church edifice in the United States any conception. I will say the Church of St. Peter's is the mother church of all the Christian have all united in its praise. The Church of Notre Dame in Paris, the cyclical Gibbon and the non believing Byron. Describing it he says:

> "Majesty,
> Power, glory, strength and beauty, all are slated
> In the vast basilica of sweet and solemn thought."

Into this majestic temple on Easter Sunday thousands on thousands of human beings of various colors and countries, not only Catholics, but those of the different sects of the Christian faith, had been gathering around the grand altar. At the time to which I refer the French were in possession of the city to protect it from the ravages of the supporters of Garibaldi. Four regiments of the troops marched with all the pomp and circumstance of war into the body of the church. The whole command, from the Generals-in-Chief to the humblest soldier, were in full blaze of brilliant uniform. The centre of the immense, three men of war "tall rest" in this holy temple. Scarce had the command been halted when the various diplomatic corps, representing most of the civilized nations accredited to the Holy See, might be seen taking their seat in the Tribune assigned to them.

At last appears the solemn procession of the priests, bishops, archbishops and cardinals in their costly vestments, sweeping down from the steps of the Vatican with the Holy Father in their midst, and mounted. During the service, as Episcopacy was represented in Maryland by seven bars in our own country, stood near me. I had handed him a missal so that he might follow the Mass. Never shall I forget the impression made upon me during the service by a burst of sound from like sister trumpets, which, in the Gothic architecture of the French troops proceeding arms. The effect cannot be better described than by the lines of Byron, which I have quoted from my Protestant friend, who, scarcely above me, whilst there broke like a whole. and desirable reform. For our part we acknowledge a strong inclination to side with the latter and speak favorably of the bill. It seems to us it is calculated to remove an anomaly and an injustice in our laws concerning the hereditary transmission of property. As the law now stands, the husband, after the death of his wife, enjoys upon possession of her share of the common estate without being compelled to administer or engage in any legal process, and he takes the whole by simple right of succession; while, in the case of the husband's death, the wife has to pus the estate into court, sue out her letters of administration and fight a legal battle, as though she were accused of doing some wrong. This brings the business, if any there be, to a complete standstill, and therefore seriously depreciates if it does not completely destroy it; and whatever the property may consist of it certainly is not enhanced by the litigation. Moreover, the legal expenses which are unavoidable constitute a most oppressive tax, which in no a few instances amounts to one half or more of the value of the estate in question.

The proposed legislation goes no further than to place the husband and wife upon an equal footing with regard to the inheritance of common property. It merely declares that upon the death of husband or wife one-half of the entire community of the Nineteenth Century, are men of the true French Radical stamp, thoroughgoing infidels and fierce anti-Catholics; and when they went to say a sharp or witty thing about the Catholic Church they seldom concerned themselves with regard to the truth or falsehood of it. Accordingly, one day they thought proper to attack the Abbé GRANDIN and the Association with which he is connected. They sneered at the public that the story of the Chinese exposing their infant children was false in every particular, and therefore the Association of the Holy Infancy was no better than an agency for swindling credulous Catholics out of their money. This made the good priest appear in the light of a common thief, engaged in the heinous of obtaining money under false pretences, and he accordingly took means to publicly vindicate his own character and the character of the society. It was proved in Court by evidence that the most rabid Radical could not impugn, by the sworn testimony of men who disclaimed all sympathy with the Catholic Church, that the horrid practice of infanticide was fearfully prevalent in the Chinese towns and cities, and that the members of the association annually rescued hundreds of little creatures from a miserable death. One gentleman swore to having repeatedly so-literature of the ancients was kept burning alone in the cloisters of the monks. From the ravages of the barbaric hordes of the North the Church rescued the great works of art created by Greek and Roman genius. The Vatican museum of to-day is a proud monument to the Sovereign Pontiffs who have preserved for the world the treasures of the past.

Hut it said the creed is hostile to republican principles. The Church regards all forms of government with equal and exact justice. She knows no distinction between the peasant in his rags and the king in his costly robes. She knows no distinction of races. Before God and Catholic Church and you will find the poorest kneeling side by side with the richest, the black man with the white. The Church knows no distinction between the Caucasian, the African and the Mongolian, in the colleges at Rome the colored man has an equal with the white. Read the life of Chief Justice Taney, where you will find the teachings of the Church illustrated by that great man kneeling among the colored children of the Church, waiting his turn at the confessional. If equality is to be found on earth it is in the Catholic Church.

But it is said the organization is aristocratic. I once heard one of the most distinguished men of our time (and he not a Catholic) say that the Church was a democratic institution, and add: "It transforms a peasant into a gentleman." In our own time the principle has been illustrated. The son of a humble man in Brooklyn elected a priest. By reasonable promotion in the Church he has been promoted to be a bishop and then an archbishop, and has been received and feted by all the Cardinal Princes of the Church, and from that body, the Holy Father, the Head of the Church, accompanied in Europe as a humble force in the midst of those to whom they are opposed. In the same manner your illustrious guest has been so looked upon as deserving companionship and delegation. Let me ask those who view us in the light in answer me who are the real intruders on this country? Is it by the good will of the people? The Americans historian, Prescott, tells us that upon the "Ferdinand and Isabella" are own Knickerbocker, "Is the Discovery of Columbus," bear witness to the glory of the Catholic Queen, Isabella, pawning her jewels to defray the expenses of the expedition under her great Catholic captain, Columbus, which culminated in the laying open to the astonished world this vast continent. The Spanish Conquistadors, how they marched without a murmur into the jaws of death; and, when the field was lost or won, by the good fortune of war, appeared in the Catholic States, searching for the wounded and dying among the heaps of carnage, to succor all in their last expiring moments! After all this have not the Catholics some claim to the country?

Is there not, I would ask, something due by every American to the way of fidelity manifested by the Catholic Church? The Constitution of the United States especially forbids the States giving any preference to religion. It is the embodiment of Jefferson's idea of religious freedom. Although proud of being the author of the Declaration of Independence, he wished also to have his epitaph state "that he was also the author of the statute of Virginia for religious freedom." Jefferson, Franklin, and the leading minds which formed our Constitution, did not profess to belong to any particular religious denomination. Their labors were to prevent any cause for disturbance by forbidding any preference for, or any hostility to, any creed.

The constitution of our own State specially provides "that the free enjoyment of religious profession and worship, without discrimination or preference, shall be forever allowed in this State."

Have not Catholics some rights under our Constitution?

A war against Catholics is a war against high civilization. To it the world owes all that it has in literature and art. Amidst the gloom of the dark ages the light of the Washington Items.

WASHINGTON, January 25.—Congressman Wigginton to-day presented a resolution from the California Legislature asking for the construction of a breakwater at St. Luis Obispo, and that the harbor be declared a port of entry.

Luttrell presented a resolution from the St. Helena Grange, praying for the repeal of the duty on grain sacks.

Friends of the Texas Pacific Railroad project say the order for an investigation of the means used to pass the Act was procured by the Central Pacific lobby merely to delay action on the pending bill, and that Scott will write to the Judiciary Committee urging the fullest and most speedy investigation possible.

In the case of the Rancho Vallecitos de San Marcos, California, for which application has been made for a patent by Lorenzo Soto, confirmee, the General Land Office has instructed the Surveyor-General to notify parties interested that they will be allowed sixty days from date of notice to produce evidence tending to show the location of the grant; and at the end of that time if no sufficient proof of such location be filed, he shall cause an examination to be made in the field, and furnish the Land Office with an exhibit thereof for settlement of the case.

The General Land Office sent to the Surveyor-General at San Francisco to-day a patent dated January 21, 1876, in favor of Henry D. McCobb, for the Rancho Punta del Quentin, Corral de Tierra, containing 4,427.77 acres.

The Senate Committee on Railroads met this evening to hear arguments upon the Texas Pacific Railroad bill to amend the Texas and Pacific Railroad. Colonel Tom Scott appeared for that line, and C. P. Huntington, of the Central Pacific, for the Southern Pacific of California. After hearing their statements the Railroad Committee adjourned till Tuesday next.

The House of Representatives, after a sharp debate, finally passed the bill appropriating $1,500,000 to the Centennial Exhibition, by a vote of 146 to 82. It says. Messrs. Lotirell, Page and Piper, from this State, voted for the bill. The name of Mr. Wigginton does not appear on the roll of voters, although the same day he is reported to have taken part in the House proceedings. It is believed that the bill will go through the Senate without much difficulty.

THE HOME RULE MOVEMENT.

The expected conference of the Home Rule party in the House of Commons was held on Tuesday, and the result is one upon which we can congratulate the country. The deliberations lasted, we are told, only five hours; perfect unanimity prevailed among the members in attendance; and arrangements were made for bringing, at no very distant period as possible, under notice of Parliament the questions of Home Rule, Land Law Reform, Education, Amnesty, Taxation Coercion, and Grand Jury Reform, all matters of importance to Ireland. A broad and comprehensive programme, in fact, has been adopted by the Home Rule party, and to carry it out every thing will be done with energy and perseverance can effect.

A magnificent demonstration of the strength of the national movement in Dublin was made on Wednesday night in the Rotundo. Never before, probably, did there assemble in the great Round Room, or in support of any cause whatever, larger or more representative, harmonious, and enthusiastic public meeting. When we mention that over twenty members of Parliament were present on the platform, and that the chair was occupied by the Lord Mayor of Dublin, we shall have conveyed to our readers a correct idea of the importance of the gathering will be self-evident.

The addresses delivered had reference largely to the conference of the Home Rule party and to the policy to be pursued by the Irish members in Parliament. Nothing largely also to the splendid attitude which the Catholic bishops have in respect of the national question. It is needless to say that Mr. Gelbraith, Mr. Rouayne, M. P., from the latter gentleman equally well known and respected for their ability and their patriotism, were heard with enthusiasm as they descanted on those topics; but the crowning event of the evening was the unanimous adoption of the following resolution when Mr. Butt accepted the position of the chosen leader of the Irish people, and in the name and on behalf of the Irish cause.—Dublin Nation, January 6.

CLERKS IN NEW YORK.—The chances of the clerks are poor enough at best, but at the present time it is marked by peculiar hardship. Numerous failures have thrown on the attention of so many young men in turned towards the city. The number of new concerns opening with the new year is very small, and the same dullness quality is practiced. Everybody seems to be under what they call "the Centennial pressure," and will simply not write, and are not buying. dry clerks, may be had at $500 a year. Bookkeepers are paid from $900 to $1,500, while salesmen in Stewart's and the fashionable dry-goods stores earn from $8 to $15 per week. Some of these are married men, and how they live is a mystery. The efforts to keep up a genteel appearance by making a seedy, and almost shabby, clothes hold out in service is suggestive of a painful degree of economy. I often notice this when going through first-class stores, and I feel sure many such are hard put to it to manage to keep up an appearance. At present there are not less than 3,000 professional clerks in this city unemployed, and it is no wonder that so many young men are found in the ranks of crime.—N. Y. Corr. Cincinnati Gazette.

Mr. M. Gray, 105 Kearny street, has just completed the publication of a Church Service for the use of Episcopal and other churches and choirs. It consists of a "Te Deum" in C, "Benedictus" in D, "Jubilate" in D, "Venite" in A, a "Cantate Domine" and "Benedic Anima." They are composed by Monsieur Alcide Jelasi, and exhibit the true spirit of devotional music. We have no doubt they will be soon introduced into all our city churches, and will be much liked. Mr. Gray has also published "Te Kudes for the Pianoforte," by Anton Krause, which young practitioners will find useful and instructive.

A CARD.—M. O'Neil, late of the Second Street House, would respectfully return his thanks to his numerous and friends and patrons who extended to him the same liberal patronage in the hotel business for the last twenty-four years in San Francisco. He is now exclusively engaged, in connection with his son, in dealing in real estate and all matters connected therewith, including conveyancing, management of property, drawing of leases and drawing of legal documents, and would solicit from the public a continuance of that patronage and confidence they have heretofore placed in him. Office, 703 Mission street, corner of Third.

TELEGRAPHIC JOTTINGS.

—A Paris special says Nillson's husband, M. Pomeau, is dangerously ill.

—Rubenstein, the famous pianist, is threatened with total blindness.

—The Republicans of Maine have endorsed Blaine for the Presidency.

—Captain-General Jovellar of Cuba has issued his proclamation as assuming office, which is quiet but determined in tone.

—A woman named Murphy and her young babe died in a house on York street, St. Catherine's, Ontario, for want of food and clothing.

—The Ambassadors of the Great Powers will zealously support the vote of Count Arnimy to the Porte, to which a written reply will be replied.

—It is now stated that the number of blind and injured by the collision of the Brooklyn ferry with a coal train at Huntington, England, will reach thirty-three persons.

—Mrs. Ellen McKenzie, the wife of Sir Hugh McKenzie, who eloped on Friday with Mrs. Bridges, has not returned to Montreal as was reported. She left with her children for Philadelphia last Sunday.

—Victor Hugo has issued an address to the Senatorial delegates from Paris and France, to which he asks them to found a democracy which shall seat Europe was by arbitration, civil war by amnesty and sincere by education.

—A man named Frank H. Hayes shot and killed Jim Fisher, proprietor of Fisher's, Minn., last week. He afterward attempted to kill himself, but the bullet which he aimed at his heart struck a rib and glanced off. Disagreement was the supposed cause.

—A man named Samuel Hopkins, living near Llandrach, Simcoe county, Ontario, murdered his wife on the 23d inst. He first stabbed her with a butcher knife, then tried to go to the door, but he followed her up and beat out her brains with a grubbing hoe. The flood was immediately arrested.

—Mrs. Catherine Ann Dowling, the widow of the late Thomas Dowling, of Fairview, Minn., died at her residence in that place on the 23d inst. The deceased was a native of Ireland, aged 70 years.

—A cable dispatch to the New York "Freeman's Journal," dated Rome, January 20th, says that Archbishop Purcell has been made a Catholic decree, and Bishop Donahoe, now of Pittsburgh, named to fill Bishop by special request. The "Journ" Terre, of Alliance, is appointed Bishop of Pittsburgh.

—Dion Boucicault will sail from England for the United States in February, and intends while there to renew his agitation he erected in this country in favor of the Texas prisoners. He will stay at Cincinnati, Pittsburgh, St. Louis and Chicago, the proceeds of the performances at these cities to be for the benefit of imprisoned Texans.

—The Tribune's Washington special says official advices have been received from Montreal that the Canadian Government will not allow the Fenians to be released. Efforts are making to secure the release of the Fenian prisoners, but Lords will be resisted it. His most formidable competitor is Poor Brie Diaz.

—The Bonapartist association, styled the Conservative National Convention, has issued a manifesto announcing that they will support MacMahon. The manifesto is in three part was done at the request that an appeal to the people be made for distributing the future form of government for France.

—The London Lancet reports that the Medical Council has formally complained that he did not feel well, and had no sympathy and was ill fated forty minutes. Since then he has been constantly agreeable. Both are energetic and capable men, and as long experience in these affairs, as we feel sure they will give full satisfaction to those who engage their services. Their advertisement will be found in another column.

PACIFIC COAST NEWS.

—The proceeds of the fair recently given by the ladies of Gold Hill in aid of St. Patrick's Church amount to $2,000.

—A man named John Dowling was killed at Hamburg, Siskiyou county, on the 21st inst., by a portion of a quartz mill falling on him. His body was terribly mangled, and nearly every bone broken.

—The City Gardens at Stockton was sold on Saturday last for $7,000, by order of the trustees of the Savings Union Bank of San Francisco, to satisfy by that institution, on opposing bids being offered. The property cost $60,000.

We have received from Mr. Michael Flood, Market street, a copy of "Sadliers' Catholic Directory, Almanac and Ordo for the Year of our Lord 1876." It contains, we need, full returns of the various dioceses in the United States and British America, and a list of the Archbishops, Bishops and priests in Ireland. The lists are in all cases made up to the latest possible date, and may be relied upon as correct. The book contains a vast amount of information respecting the Catholic Church throughout the world. It is, therefore, almost a necessity to every Catholic household.

REAL ESTATE AGENCY.—A new real estate agency, with every promise to give general satisfaction and to a prosperous business, has recently been opened in this city. It is located at 511 Clay street, between Kearny and Montgomery, and the gentlemen conducting it are M essrs. Ryan & Rice, of whom every person who knows them speaks favorably. They are prepared to buy and sell real estate, negotiate partnerships, collect rents, and act as brokers upon reasonable terms. Both are energetic and capable men, and as long experience in these affairs, as we feel sure they will give full satisfaction to those who engage their services. Their advertisement will be found in another column.

BRIEF CITY ITEMS.

—It is stated at police headquarters that the members of the police force will be taught the manual of arms.

—The Pacific Mail Company's office is to be again removed from Sacramento and Leidesdorff streets to the wharf at the foot of Brannan and Bound streets.

—The sale of Leader and Simon Wormser of New York against the Bank of California has been declared by Judge marque of the U. S. District Court in favor of the bank.

—Thomas P. Ryan, ex-District-Attorney of San Francisco, has been tendered the position of special counsel of Government to conduct the trials of the internal Revenue cases in San Francisco, vice Wilson, declined.

—The Hibernia Savings and Loan Society has filed a complaint in the Fourth District Court against M. C. Sharkman and John O'Connor, to foreclose a mortgage given as security for a promissory note of $7,500.

—Richard Oil, Secretary of the Board of Education, has charged superintendent Belcher with having illegally issued diplomas to certain forties of his—Dr. J. Winterman, J. London, Mrs. F. P. Bradley, Mrs. E. M. Ludlow, Miss M. J. Carthers, Miss T. C. Stoke, Miss M. J. Canham, Isaac Ayer and Mary A. Ayer.

—At a meeting of the senior students of St. Ignatius College, held Wednesday evening, January 19th, the Ignatian Literary Society was reorganized and the following officers elected: President, Rev. R. M. Nu ntzl, S. J.; Vice-President, J. I. Bonnet; Secretary, Treasurer, A. Manuel; Corresponding Secretary, T. J. Boland; Treasurer, A. M. Kelly; Librarian, C. Bruce; Critic, M. J. Sullivan; Board of Directors—J. I. Boland, J. A. Stanton, J. T. Fogarty, T. J. Boland, and F. P. Dunne.

—Mrs. O'Dea, the lunacy examiner of Little Assin O'Dea, who was abducted on her way to school, applied to the Twelfth District Court on Wednesday for a writ of habeas corpus for the child, but before it was served it was discovered that the child had been found by Officer Crowley and returned to the arms of Mrs. O'Dea's own. Mrs. Cramer, by her attorney, stated that she was willing that Mrs. O'Dea should have the child, and the case was dismissed. Mrs. O'Day has applied for letters of guardianship.

Wm. S. O'Brien, of the firm of Flood & O'Brien has purchased the residence of Senator Sharon, on rector street, for $111,500. The house has been occupied by the senator for a year and a half as the scene of a festive event known all over the country as "Sharon's wedding." It is the most luxurious on the coast, and the price named probably covers all the elegant furniture put into it when it was occupied. The terms of sale are not stated. The three chandeliers of the great drawing-room are to be removed to the new library. In 1,000 the large Axminster carpets woven in a single piece for the drawing room and library cost from $3,500 to $5,000 each. The library furniture, with its appropriate carpet, cost $1,500. Much of the wine-room was made to order, and upholstered at an expense of $5,000. The sleeping apartments show similar magnificence, with corresponding expenditure. The entire furnishing of the new part was done at the expense of $65,000, making the house and furniture together worth about $120,000. The real estate included the second lot now being immediately about the house, which are very valuable.

MR. C. B. O'SULLIVAN.

We have much pleasure in notifying the receipt by the Most Rev. Dr. O'Hea, Bishop of Ross, of the annual munificent remittance from Mr. C. D. O'Sullivan, of San Francisco, amounting to £100 towards the charities of this locality. The gifts of the above gentleman for years past, to relieve, friends and public charities, amount to thousands of pounds. He is, besides, a large contributor to charities in the land of his adoption, and is one of the most active of the religious and charitable Society of St. Vincent de Paul, he is now in the foremost ranks to alleviate the sufferings of his afflicted countrymen in that distant land where, perhaps, he never will see the green hills of his nativity, or be found on a larger scale than in imagination by a person on this side of the Atlantic. "Honor to whom honor is due." Mr. O'Sullivan deserves and has the prayers of his countrymen at home and also in California for his generosity and benevolence.—Skibbereen Eagle, January 1.

MEDICAL science never gave the world a better boon than when one of its men of genius gave to the world Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry. Colds, coughs, colds and bronchitis can be cured. Take it in time, and you will not regret it.

MARRIED.

SMALL—HAYES—In Fresno, January 16, at 6, Thomas Small, to Miss Mary Hayes, both of Fresno.
SMALL—At Healdsburg, January 19, Mary E. Small, of Healdsburg, to Mary Josephine Harper, of Cloverdale, by the Rev. Father Harrington, Grass Valley.
GRAY—MACKAY—In this city, January 24, by Rev. Father Harrington, Grass Valley, Thomas Gray, to Elizabeth A. Mackay.

DIED.

NOTICE.

THERE ARE THREE ORGANS FOR SALE at the French Church, 734 Bush street—one belonging to the estate of Mr. Irwin of New York; another to the late Bishop Alemany, of Monterey and Los Angeles, and the third, a new instrument, of fifteen stops and two manuals. Apply to PETER ROBERT, Trustee. jan29

DIVIDEND NOTICE.

Hibernia Savings and Loan Society,
SAN FRANCISCO, January 26, 1876.

67 At a regular meeting of the Board of Directors of the Hibernia Savings and Loan Society, a dividend of Five (5) per cent. per annum was declared for the

IRISH LOCAL NEWS.

From the Dublin Nation of January 1.

ANTRIM.

At a large meeting of teamst farmers in Ballymena last week resolutions were passed declaring that the Land Act of 1870, though a step in advance, does not afford adequate protection to the Ulster farmer, and that the landlords should be deprived alike of the unjust power of arbitrary eviction and of sheltering by exorbitant rents the improvements of the tenant. They complain that the people are still being driven out of the country. The meeting expressed approval of the project of Sir Samuel Wallace to grant leases in perpetuity upon certain fines.

ARMAGH.

On Monday afternoon a disgraceful riot took place in the townland of Derrycarrow, in the district known as "The Monteaghs," about three miles from that town. It seems that a great deal of ill-feeling had arisen in the district in consequence of a man named McCourty, a Catholic, having married a young woman named Turkington, who is a Protestant. This feeling rose to its height on Sunday when the young women for the first time attended chapel with her husband; and in the evening as the opposing parties met at McCourty's residence, and a riot ensued. McCourty's windows were broken, and several persons were more or less injured. When the fighting had continued for some time, police were called into requisition, and two men received bullet wounds. Information having been conveyed to the Derrynad barracks, the police proceeded to the place and made some arrests. Dr. McCorry, of Lurgan, was sent for to attend the two men who were shot. One of them, named McDonald, has received a wound under the ear, and he lies in a very precarious condition, the bullet having penetrated so far that it is feared it must be extracted. The other man is also in a dangerous condition, both of the men are Catholics. Messengers have been dispatched to Lurgan and Portadown, a number of police, under Sub-Inspector Hayes, proceeded to the place in order to prevent any further outbreak. Captain Wynne, R. M., also accompanied the constabulary for the purpose of taking the depositions of the injured men.

CARLOW.

Mr. Thomas Crawford Butler has resigned the office of seneschal Crown solicitor for the county of Carlow in consequence of continued ill-health.

CORK.

It is stated that a vein of copper ore has been discovered at Berehaven.

At a meeting last week of members of several of the Cork city trades, the Mayor presiding, a resolution was adopted approving of a project suggested by Mr. Doran, T.C., Queenstown, for sending a number of Irish trade representatives to the Philadelphia Exhibition next year, for the purpose of reporting upon the various improvements in the mechanical and industrial arts coming under their observation there.

A terrible catastrophe occurred in Bantry Bay last week. A violent gale having set in, five of the fishermen living at Doonbeg, in the parish of Kilcaskan, put to sea in an open boat to recover their nets, which were in danger of being swept away. The boat was lost all and drifted helplessly, went to pieces in the heavy sea, and the whole crew were drowned. They were all married men, and leave no fewer than nineteen orphans.

DONEGAL.

"The Rev. Mr. Leonard, an American evangelist," has been preaching for two or three weeks in Donegal.

DUBLIN.

Shortly before one o'clock on Sunday morning, a bayrick, the property of Mr. James Ryan, situated at Richmond Hill, Clonskeagh, was discovered to be on fire. A policeman immediately came into view on a car and gave information at the Fire Brigade office, but Captain Ingram, in charge, refused to proceed to the fire, as it was out of his district, unless a special order came from the Lord Mayor. Efforts were made by police and civilians to extinguish the fire by throwing a bucketful of water on it, but it rick continued to burn until eight o'clock in the morning. The property was insured for £100.

On December 27th the "Freeman" published two letters addressed to Dean O'Connell and Alderman McCann by Owen Hogan & Sons, a Dublin firm of attorneys, on behalf of their client, Mr. Michael Angelo Hayes. The very reverend dean and the worthy alderman are the survivors of the trustees appointed to take custody of the Centenary celebration funds. The professional firm in question, on the behalf of Mr. Hayes, applied to Dean O'Connell and Alderman McCann for payment of £150, being the amount "under dues to him" in respect of the "order" given to him by the committee of the O'Connell Centenary to paint a portrait of the Right Hon. the Lord Mayor. This demand in the more surprised because, though a vote was given for a portrait of the late Lord Mayor, no one ever heard, and no one ever named, moreover, Alderman Mulvihill, in the meeting of the committee, declined to accept the portrait, and said he left Mr. Hayes on the "order" given to him by the committee of the O'Connell Centenary had a portrait of the Right Hon. the Lord Mayor. This demand in the more surprised because, though a vote was given for a portrait of the late Lord Mayor, no one ever heard, and no one ever named;

THE MIRACLE OF THE ROSES.

The soft, sweet breeze of a summer's eve
Is sighing, "Tis day to those!"
For in the west, in his splendor dressed,
Lingers the shining sun—
Lingers as though he were loth to go,
And said the day so soon.

To his throne on high to the summer sky
Soon the queenly moon,
While here and there shines out a star,
To mirror the night's deep gloom.

As the flowers close, their perfume goes
To speak its evening air,
And the peaceful sight of the starry night
Seems earth in beauty rapt;
The deep, dark shades of the forest glades
Are mixing as the eyes—
Thro' the evening still rings the birds' sweet trill,
Waking the echoes round,
And the rippling stream, with its sparkling beam,
Replies to the soft, sweet sound.

A footstep light sounds through the night—
A soft and gentle tread
Comes swiftly on, o'er path and lawn,
And floral dew'rops' bed;
A lady fair, with beauty rare,
In bearing on her way—
Through the lonely dell, at the "Keeper bell"
To keep safely the queen of day!
And in the above, with laughing eyes,
The Fox Terrier's head bobbed away.

Her brow so fair, tossed by the air,
Pull from her's it may'r bow
Around a face whose tender grace
Their waves are hiding now;
Her deep, clear eyes, blue as the skies,
Are filled with longing love—
On the constant desire, as though her home
Be out in realms above;
And longed to rest upon His breast,
Who rules our every doers.

Her mouth's fold, of silk and gold,
Is closed to one in her haste—
A boneless shore for her loved poor
Is opening wide at last.

"Elizabeth!" a panting breath
Was heard by Liz'zie's ear,
With out-stretched hands Duke Louis stan ds
Before the parted door.

"My sister dear, why art thou here,
And why, oh! such one sad?
Thy lip has drawn pressed in thy breast—
And not even thine old dad!
Of course, I know, for the fresh appeal
With evenest art they snitch his heart
Is so often in their power—
Sweet rebel, why thy trust must see
Such blind'ness in thy love?"

The merry smile that all the while
Went with such lodger glances,
Swift faded away, as it made its way,
Its smile as in a trance,
To the forehead's fold, with an ash fad
Are in the locks so open holds,
Has lain in sheer peace
A silver bright of rosy white—
The pledge of fleeting years.

—Catholic Mirror.

CATHOLIC INTELLIGENCE.

—Sister Mary Clare Barbie died at the Convent of Mercy, Dungarvin, December 15th. She was sister of Rev. Michael Barbie, Carrickmain, and Rev. Teiloch Barbie, of Clonee.

—Miss Rosie Mears, daughter of Mr. John Mears, timberland Square; Miss Margaret Mangan, daughter of Thomas Mangan, and Miss Maria Fisher received the black veil at the Convent of Mercy, Birr.

—The Papal Consistory which was to have taken place on December 27th has been postponed on account of the indisposition of the Archbishop of Rouen, Cardinal Salamque. It will not be held, accordingly to the papers, until late in March.

—Rev. Walter Connolly, C. C., of Mo-field, has been promoted by Most Rev. Dr. Mahon, Lord Bishop of Meath, to the charge of the administration of the parish of Mullingar, vacant on the promotion of Rev. Hugh Behan to the pastorship of Rathkenny and Bonahwe.

—The Catholics of Ireland have erected in connection with the residence of the Most of the North Infirmary, Cork, by means of a fund subscribed by the citizens, was dedicated Monday, January 24, by Right Rev. Dr. Delany. The sacred edifice and the Most' residence cost £1,100, nearly all of which has been subscribed by Catholics.

—The Bishop of Exeter, having been invited to take a prominent ecclesiastical dignitary as to whether apostolic succession is a doctrine of the Church of England, has replied as follows: "The Church of England declares to include within its pale both those who hold the doctrine of the apostolic succession and those who do not. To meet the need of the former she provides that all her ministers shall profess that succession as a fact."

—It is our sad duty to announce the death of Mr. Edward Kelly, late Professor in St. Kieran's College, Kilkenny. On the morning of Saturday, the 1st inst., he calmly resigned his soul to God. In the same day, and almost at the same hour, early in the morning, he received the last sacred order of priesthood. Rev. Joseph Delaphy belonged to the parish of Kilmacow, where he was born and lived for years.

—The Catholics of Brazil have sent the Pope an address expressing sentiments of devotion to him. Mr. Ed. Magalhaes, the diplomatic agent representing Senate at the Vatican, has not been recalled. He is expected in Rome shortly, having settled certain questions pending between the Roman See and Brazil, and the Papacy concerning the Polish Catholics.

—The obsequies of Very Rev. Dr. Laffan, P. P., Kilmeaden, rural dean of Carlow, was solemnized on Wednesday, January 5, within the sacred precincts of the new church which he had erected, and over which the crumbling ruins of the old chapel, in which for many years the congregation had to worship, are visible. In him we lose the last rites of religion and friendship were paid by his brethren and his flock to the last sad moment, and long remain a noble monument of his devotion to the cause of the faith, and his solicitude for the glory of God's house.

—The English Catholics are doing themselves honor by the generous manner in which they are subscribing large sums of money for the benefit of the unfortunate German clergy. We see on the list already published, the name of the Eucharistic Lord Manning at £1,000; the Marquis of Bute, £1,000; the Marquis of Ripon, £230 (his nobleman has recently given the Pope £10,000); Lord Howard, £50, and Lord Denbigh, £100. The Catholic ladies of England are also getting up collections for the benefit of the fair sex of German sons.

Senator Laine has introduced a bill abolishing the present State Board of Equalization, and providing for the election of five others, to be elected by the people and hold office for four years. The powers and duties are as follows: To prescribe rules and regulations to govern Supervisors in their equalizing. Assessors when assessing; to equalize the valuation of property in the several counties and fix the rate of State taxation; to add to the several counties and to inspect and determine the value of property; to add to or reduce the assessment on property. The annual salary of each member is fixed at $1,500, and that of the clerk at $1,200. The former salary was $5,000, except the ex-officio member, who received $1,200; each member is required to give bond in the sum of $10,000.

"Barbaric" and "Barbarism."

As allusion in the London Times to "barbaric pomp" has hurt the feelings of "a Member of the Brahmo Somaj," who writes to say with perfect truth that India is not "barbaric land," as the Dean of Westminster called it in his sermon, that "the civilization is of infinitely more distant date than England's is, and, though it has a kind of stationary aspect, it is more far-reaching with the bulk of the population than English civilization is." The writer avails himself of the opportunity to unburden himself of a good deal that has evidently been on his mind, and to a good deal of it the Times does not respond in finding a satisfactory answer. "I am quite certain," says this Hindoo gentleman, "that the proper question has been omitted in India, with her teeming millions, more satisfactorily on the family principle than it has been in England and on the State principle." He has been told by an English friend at Brighton that the workhouse system "is abominable," that "we are loosing family ties, and inducing hardness of heart on the part of fathers and mothers towards their children, and of children towards their fathers."

Of late years the Missionary Societies Northern route to the Interior, to whom make an entrance, except parishes, to whom conversion is profitable, and he gives as a reason why more are not converted, "is little to recommend itself" in British Christianity. "Does it make your merchants who send their cotton wares to Bombay honest men? Are their goods pure and unadulterated? Does it make your soldiers polite and moral men?" and so on. If Indians, he argues, are the Europeans who cleared 4,000 rupees in one year by selling ganja-smoking drugs to India for that purpose. The retort is fair enough, only it is to be hoped that this fashion is drifting away before general reprobation, just as some of the ladies, whom he accuses of wearing "false hair and many other things" in imitation of "our superstitious ages," have now, we believe, taken to wearing their hair cropped short.

As to the idolatry he sets up a double defense: first, that we are more "worship of ornaments and stones" than Catholics worship images;" and, secondly, that when "many Englishmen are in our company, though we no longer believe in our gods, we are no more idolatrous on that account than many Englishmen are Christians because they go to church." The Times has a very good opportunity now of showing how "barbaric" does not mean "barbarous," that mere chants and soldiers have never, as clamor, been marks of respectability, that vice rather than virtue is awry where in the world-wide, and that our admiration is best for correctibility, justice and protection of life and property, is something better than India now or ever before. We wish we could say as much for the reply which it (the Times) makes to our clever and "charming sarcasm," "it would be very well for the Hindoos if they had the capacity of being guided by clear light of reason." The capacity" for bootleal drunkenness and brutality may not be a good thing for anybody, or whatever may be the vices of the Hindoo, that he would be a gainer by exchanging them for those of drink. Here the Brahmo Somaj has decidedly the best of it.—London Tablet, January 1.

BRIEF OF THE HOLY FATHER TO M. WALLON.

PIUS IX., POPE.

Dear and Noble Son—Health and Apostolic benediction. We have received with great pleasure, dear and noble son, the history you have written upon the very renowned maid, so justly entitled the Maid of Orleans, whose name is so wonderfully related the deliverance of that besieged city. We rejoice that you should have exercised with so brilliant a talent that signal glory of your country, and that of arms, and with so ingenious a reference to the works relating to the same subject. It is certainly nothing that can in any way reveal the character, purity, splendid achievements and magnificence of the heroines.

Surely, no one will doubt that God, in raising to life up the Maid of Orleans for France and give her a legitimate king, chose the weak things wherewith to break down the strength of the world and call that He bestowed upon the young country girl a truly wonderful courage and virtue, and a heroic love-like and political affairs that were able to minister.

It is not easy to admit that in this out the crime of ingratitude, which usually accompanies the greatest benefits, and which neither blood nor piety fully atone, was not wanting. Lecionious, envy and pastimes calumnies have always been employed by the inemistors against great worth; but the firmness of those who suffer persecution for righteousness' sake and the perseverance with which they bear disappointments, while the one is proportion as the other is humbled, so that a new luster is added to the virtues of the oppressed, and oppressors are condemned to perpetual infamy.

This, then, is a reason for us to congratulate you upon having succeeded, by your learned researches and by a luminous arrangement of facts, in confirming and in rendering more brilliant, the judgment long since pronounced by history upon Joan of Arc, and we hope that the honorable appreciation with which the public has already received your work, will recommend it to many readers, not only that they may arrive at a more perfect knowledge of the history of France, but that they may be led by the obedience, and by the life and misfortunes of Joan, how useful and glorious it is to all times to obey God and to deserve well of their country, that they may learn, above all things, that the highest heroes are from man that we must expect a reward for good deeds.

Receive, dear and noble son, the Apostolic Benediction, which, from the bottom of our heart, we impart to you and to all our servant of divine favor, and as a token of our feelings of gratitude towards you.

Given at Rome, from St. Peter's, on the 25th of October, 1875, in the 30th year of our pontificate. PIUS IX., POPE.

CANADA'S HIGH-TONED RIOTING.—Montreal, December 24.—The Bridges and McLeod's elopement still continues to be the engrossing theme of conversation at the Clubs and other places. This evening's Star says that very little sympathy is felt for Hugh McKenzie, whose disgraceful treatment of his wife has led to her flight. Andrew Allen, brother to a partner of Mr. Hugh Allen, and a friend of Lady Abernethy, left on Saturday, accompanied by J. C. Abbot, the family solicitor, and the husband, attends his Clubs and drives up and down street fashionable avenues as unconcernedly as he always did.

New York, January 24.—Mr. Bridges, Sen., and wife arrived from Montreal to day, accompanied by six or seven of the relatives of Bridges and Mrs. McKenzie, the sloping parties,' and several lawyers and detectives. They all left for Philadelphia in the afternoon. Mrs. McKenzie's two children are still here. They will return to Montreal to morrow.

A French Radical.

The Paris police arrested a few days ago a man of about fifty, who, in the streets, was displaying his contempt for the law which forbids drunkenness in public. As he resisted, he was taken to the nearest station house and searched, and on him was found a number of letters from Rochefort, containing a plan of organization for a new journal, to be called the Enfermes. The prisoner two days after was brought before the Correctional Tribunal, and stated that he was named Albert Barbieux, formerly gerant of the Rappe. The police declared that at nine o'clock in the morning they had found him in the Rue Trevise, quite drunk, and engaged in an altercation with some cabmen. As he wearisomely noisy he was taken into custody, when he insulted the agents, calling them Bonapartists, and endeavoring to incite the passers by to rescue. The prisoner seems to have been constantly having difficulties with Justice, between 1868 and 1871 he had been condemned three times for various offenses, such as insulting the police, &c. He was, on his release from prison in 1871, sent to Algeria, for a term of imprisonment from six days to three months, Rochefort, in one of the letters, declared that he would accept as conditions in the new publication the Deputy Esquiros, Tridon, Pelletan and Lissagaray, "one of the body and soul of the Commune." The prospectus of an invigorated Republican journal, which will be conducted in a manner to be worthy of the name of a journal of ideas, and which will not be a mere effectually maintained than by using the silence.

Wholesale Market Report.

MONITOR OFFICE, SAN FRANCISCO,
THURSDAY, January 27, 1876.

FLOUR.—We quote the jobbing rates from last Extra $6 75@6 87½; ½ bbl. Superfine $4 87½@5 75.

WHEAT.—Quotable in Liverpool at 10s 10d@10s 6d per cental, and last week at the same date at 9s 6d@9s 8d, a decline of 2d@3d. In this market we quote shipping at $1 37½@1 40; milling, $1 40@1 45.

BARLEY.—The market is quotable at $1 30@1 37½ for feed kinds; brewing at $1 50@1 55.

OATS.—Are quotable at $1 60@1 70 for No. 1, and $1 50@1 60 for inferior.

CORN.—Quotable at $1 45@1 50 for white, and $1 40@1 45 for yellow.

BUCKWHEAT.—Quotable at $2 50@2 75 per cental.

BEANS.—We quote into from wharf as follows: Pinks, $3 50@3 75; Bayos, $3 50@3 75; Lima, $4 50@4 75; Small White, $3 50@3 62½; Pea, $3 75@3 90; Butter, $3 75@3 87½; Mexican, $3 50@3 75.

VEGETABLES.—Cabbage, 50c @ cwt; Cranberries, $12 50@15 00 per bbl; Onions, $1 50@1 75 per cental; Potatoes, $1 @ $1 50 per cental; Sweet Potatoes, $1 50@1 75 per cental; Tomatoes, $1 50@2 00 per box; Turnips, $1 @ $1 25 per cental; Vegetable Oysters, 10c @ lb; Parsnips, $1 @ $1 25 per cental.

ONIONS.—We quote the market at $1@1 12½ per cental.

BRAN.—Quotable at $20 @ ton from mill.

MIDDLINGS.—Quotable at $22 @ ton from mill.

HAY.—Quotable at $15@20 @ ton from mill.

STRAW.—Quotable at $1 @ bale.

EGGS.—Quotable at $1 @ $1 25 @ doz.

BUTTER.—Quotable at 30@35c for fresh; 25@30c for pickled; 20@25c for Fall; 15@20c for Cooking.

CHEESE.—Quotable at 12½@15c for Eastern; 12½@15c for California; 10@12½c for Oregon.

POULTRY AND GAME.

POULTRY.—Hens, large, $5 00@5 50; Roosters, $5 @ $6; Roosters, $4 00@5 00 each.

GEESE.—$3@3 50 per pair.

DUCKS.—$4@5 per pair.

TURKEYS.—Alive, 18@20c; dressed, 20@22½c.

RABBITS.—$1@1 50 @ dozen.

GAME.—Quail, $1 @ $1 25 @ dozen.

DEER MEAT.—5@10 @ pound for small and $3 @ $5 @ carcass for large.

WILD PIGEONS.—Live, 15@20 @ dozen; White, $1 @ $1 50 @ dozen.

Fresh Meats.

BEEF.—Quotable at 6@7½c for first quality, 5@6c for second, and 4@5c for third.

MUTTON.—Quotable at 6@7½c for first quality, 5@6c for second, and 4@5c for third.

LAMB.—Quotable at 6@7½c for first quality, 5@6c for second, and 4@5c for third.

VEAL.—Quotable at 6@7½c for first quality, 5@6c for second, and 4@5c for third.

PORK.—Dressed, grain-fed, 8@9½c; do fed, 6@7½c; Live, 5@6c.

CURED MEATS.

HAMS.—California, 14@15c; Eastern, 16@18c.
BACON.—California, 14@15c; Eastern, 16@18c.
LARD.—California, 10@11c; Eastern, 14@15c.

STARTLING RUMORS OF APOSTASY IN THE ENGLISH CHURCH.

—The London Morning Post has created a sensation by intimating that part of the extreme section of the English Church was in direct intrigue with Rome, with a view to secession. It was claimed that 100 Ritualistic clergymen of the Establishment, with their congregations of 75,000 men and 150,000 women, had signed a memorial to the Pope, stating that their own bishops committed ecclesiastical suicide in admitting the complete secondary of the State over the Church; that their consciences did not permit them to remain subject to those false bishops; that they recognize the Pope as the head of the Church on earth, and that they accept all that he teaches, including the Vatican decrees. Many, being married, cannot become Catholic priests, and they ask the Pope to form a United Anglican Church like the Armenian and Maronite.

If you have a discharge from the nose, offensive or otherwise, partial loss of the sense of smell, taste, or hearing, sore throat, or weak, feeble and stupid or debilitated, pain or pressure in the head, take cold easily, rot and rot smeared that you have the remedy. Thousands annually, without knowing it, die a more or less painful death, owing to consumption, and end in the grave. Consumption commences in a cold in the head. Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy will cure the worst cases of catarrh, "cold in the head," or catarrhal headache.

The Maintenance of Health.

The maintenance of health in close unventilated rooms, cellars, or other localities, is impossible; atmospheric unhealthy occupation, exposure of the body to sudden changes of temperature, &c., are all so many provocations of disease. There is but one sure way of effectually guarding the system against the influence of these and other unhealthy in health, and that is to establish, by judicious tonic and alterative means, a vigorous and healthy condition of all functions. The properties of an invigorated character are possessed in a remarkable degree by Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which, at the same time that it invigorates the digestive organs, gives tone and energy to all members of the stomach, liver, bowels and nerves, and thus prevents and cures fever and ague, rheumatism, dyspepsia, biliousness, and all diseases arising from a disordered stomach, liver, bowels and nerves.

Wholesale Market Report.

MONITOR OFFICE, SAN FRANCISCO,
THURSDAY, January 27, 1876.

FLOUR.—We quote the jobbing rates from last Extra $6 75@6 87½; ½ bbl. Superfine $4 87½@5 75.

WHEAT.—Quotable in Liverpool at 10s 10d@10s 6d per cental, and last week at the same date at 9s 6d@9s 8d, a decline of 2d@3d. In this market we quote shipping at $1 37½@1 40; milling, $1 40@1 45.

BARLEY.—The market is quotable at $1 30@1 37½ for feed kinds; brewing at $1 50@1 55.

OATS.—Are quotable at $1 60@1 70 for No. 1, and $1 50@1 60 for inferior.

CORN.—Quotable at $1 45@1 50 for white, and $1 40@1 45 for yellow.

BUCKWHEAT.—Quotable at $2 50@2 75 per cental.

BEANS.—We quote into from wharf as follows: Pinks, $3 50@3 75; Bayos, $3 50@3 75; Lima, $4 50@4 75; Small White, $3 50@3 62½; Pea, $3 75@3 90; Butter, $3 75@3 87½; Mexican, $3 50@3 75.

VEGETABLES.—Cabbage, 50c @ cwt; Cranberries, $12 50@15 00 per bbl; Onions, $1 50@1 75 per cental; Potatoes, $1 @ $1 50 per cental; Sweet Potatoes, $1 50@1 75 per cental; Tomatoes, $1 50@2 00 per box; Turnips, $1 @ $1 25 per cental; Vegetable Oysters, 10c @ lb; Parsnips, $1 @ $1 25 per cental.

ONIONS.—We quote the market at $1@1 12½ per cental.

BRAN.—Quotable at $20 @ ton from mill.

MIDDLINGS.—Quotable at $22 @ ton from mill.

HAY.—Quotable at $15@20 @ ton from mill.

STRAW.—Quotable at $1 @ bale.

EGGS.—Quotable at $1 @ $1 25 @ doz.

BUTTER.—Quotable at 30@35c for fresh; 25@30c for pickled; 20@25c for Fall; 15@20c for Cooking.

CHEESE.—Quotable at 12½@15c for Eastern; 12½@15c for California; 10@12½c for Oregon.

POULTRY AND GAME.

POULTRY.—Hens, large, $5 00@5 50; Roosters, $5 @ $6; Roosters, $4 00@5 00 each.

GEESE.—$3@3 50 per pair.

DUCKS.—$4@5 per pair.

TURKEYS.—Alive, 18@20c; dressed, 20@22½c.

RABBITS.—$1@1 50 @ dozen.

GAME.—Quail, $1 @ $1 25 @ dozen.

DEER MEAT.—5@10 @ pound for small and $3 @ $5 @ carcass for large.

WILD PIGEONS.—Live, 15@20 @ dozen; White, $1 @ $1 50 @ dozen.

WYNNE, LOWTH & CO.
704 and 706 MARKET STREET,
OPPOSITE THIRD. AND
5 and 7 Geary Street, NEAR KEARNY.
HAVING MADE LARGE PURCHASES OF
DRY GOODS
At the Great Liquidation Sale of LAZARO FRERE, are enabled to sell the same Goods at less than Importers' Cost.
BLACK GROS GRAIN SILK, at $1 per yard.
HEAVY BLACK SILK, Cashmere finish, $1 per yard.
FINE IRISH POPLIN, $1 50 per yard,
which with BLACK CASHMERE, 75c per yard.
ALL WOOL DIAGONALS, 87½c. per yard.
BLANKETS, SHEETING, and
HOUSE FURNISHING GOODS
At Wholesale Rates.
FANCY GOODS in great variety.
Ladies' and Gent's FURNISHING GOODS.
Irish Tattins.
BRADFORD SERIOUS, in Black and White
The celebrated seamless Beehive GLOVES, $1 50 per pair.
WYNNE, LOWTH & CO.
Central Dry Goods House.

NOTICE
HIBERNIAN SOCIETIES.
Societies or individuals
Flags, Banners, Scarfs, Regalia, &c., should call on the undersigned before purchasing elsewhere. A large supply of Ancient Order regalia constantly on hand. Prices moderate.
E. PARQUALE.
Jan25-3m 113 and 115 Sansome street, San Francisco.

Astonishment
has often been expressed at the low prices charged by BACON & CO. for the beautiful Pictures in their well known Cabinet Style. Those who have not yet visited their Rooms should call and examine their specimens of Art and Photography, which are the finest of the kind ever produced.
Proprietors of Gallery's a prominent characteristic in our business. Orders from the interior filled at city prices.
Paper Rating Book sent on application.
Black Books made to order.
Cor. Clay and Kearney
San Francisco.

The Best and Cheapest. Now Style
Send for Catalogue. Pianos and Organs to rent. Tuning and Repairing done.
KOHLER, CHASE & CO.,
633 Clay Street, San Francisco
Broadway, corner Fourteenth street, OAKLAND.
d4-3m

J. W. FARREN,
WAGON MAKER & BLACKSMITH
101 ESSEX STREET,
Between Mission and Howard.....San Francisco.
Carts, Wagons and Trucks made to order and constantly on hand. Repairing of all kinds promptly attended to, and all work guaranteed to be first-class.

Over 1,000,000 MEN
Can testify to the superiority of the DIAMOND SPECTACLES AND EYE-GLASSES. Perfect artificial sight is restored to all persons who use them. Sold only by the sole agents for the Pacific Coast,
SPENCER MANUFACTURING CO.,
14 Maiden Lane, New York.
California Jewelry Company (Limited),
Sole Agents, San Francisco, Branch Store, Virginia City, Nevada.

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. Address STINSON & CO., Portland, Maine.

Tempus Praterium Nusquam Revertur.
"Time Past Never Returns"
IF YOU WANT TO HAVE YOUR CLOCKS and Watches repaired, and have no further trouble, you can do no better than call on the undersigned, at 26 Montgomery street, where you will find very low prices, and guarantee satisfaction in every instance. Clocks and Watches called for and delivered, although you may live across the bay or in more distant parts of the country, by calling on or addressing
D. A. O'CONNELL,
WATCH AND CLOCK MAKER,
26 Third Street, near Howard.
He will examine your Watch and Clock free of charge, and report them at your residence if desired. Parties having work done at his establishment may depend upon having it done satisfactorily.
He has for sale Watches, Clocks, Jewelry, and Fancy Goods, at reasonable rates, and will sell on the easy terms. All kinds of Jobbing made to order. Please call and be convinced. You will save money by so doing.

STEINWAY & SONS' PIANOS
Square, $475 and $550.
Square Grand, $900.
Upright, $550, $600, $800
Grand, $1,080, $1,200.
Illustrated Catalogues on application.
KRAKICH, BACH & CO'S (New York)
SUPERIOR PIANOS,
At a moderate cost—7¼ Octaves—$300 and $375. Warranted as stated in a circular.
Sold for cash, or on the installment plan at cash rates, with one per cent. per month added on deposited payments.
MATTHIAS GRAY,
106 Kearny Street, San Francisco, and
181 First street, Portland, O.
General Agent for manufacturers for the Pacific Coast. mr21

MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS.

NEW TAILORING ESTABLISHMENT.
B. FLOOD,
Fashionable Tailor,
637 HOWARD STREET, Bet. Second and Third.
Fine Clothing made to order at the following low prices!
Fine American Cassimere Pants, to order.....$5 00
Fine Business Suits, to order.....$20 00
Fine Diagonal Suits, to order.....$25 00
Fine French Beaver Suits, to order.....$35 00
Fine Spring Overcoats, to order.....$20 00
Sp All other Garments made at proportionably low rates. Full satisfaction guaranteed in quality of goods and workmanship.
1734-1y Fine Livery Suits.

THE ARCADE,
MARKET STREET, NEAR FOURTH.
NOVELTIES IN SILKS!
NOVELTIES IN DRESS GOODS!
Our arrangements for the Fall season are now complete, and we have at present on exhibition the most extensive assortment of European Novelties ever introduced the Ladies of California.
DOMESTIC GOODS.
In this department we have now completed all our contracts for the coming season, and are prepared to offer housekeepers every species of Domestic Goods at prices which cannot be approached by any house in San Francisco.
SPECIAL NOTICE.—Two-Button Jouvin Gloves, $1 50 per Pair. The immense sale of these Gloves in the past ten days is a distinct indication that the Ladies of San Francisco have now realized the fact that the opportunity now presented for the purchase of Jouvin Gloves may never again occur. Note the price—Two-Button Jouvin Gloves, $1 50 per pair. Every pair guaranteed.
J. J. O'BRIEN & CO.,
924, 926 AND 928 MARKET STREET.
IMPORTANT NOTICE!
Second Grand Annual Sale of
Ladies' and Gents' BOOTS AND SHOES.
MEN'S AND BOYS' CUSTOM-MADE CLOTHING,
NO FANCY PRICES.
Dry Goods, Etc.
JAMES O'HANLON & CO.,
725 MONTGOMERY STREET, West Side, near Jackson.

J. O'H. & CO. beg leave to inform their numerous friends and patrons that they will sell for the next sixty days, regardless of cost, their IMMENSE STOCK OF STAPLE GOODS. Strangers visiting the city will find it to their advantage to call and compare prices with those of other stores; they will readily see that they can save 25 cents on the dollar. To be closed out—
1,000 pairs Ladies' Kid-lined Balmorals.....$1 50
Extra Heavy Balmorals.....1 75
Ladies' Kid-lined Sidewalks.....1 75
Misses' Kid-lined Balmorals.....1 50
Ladies' Gaiters, extra quality.....2 50
Ladies' Gaiters.....2 00
1,000 pairs Carpet Slippers.....50
1,000 pairs Gentlemen's Slippers.....75
Men's Custom-made Boots.....$6 00
Boys' Custom-made Boots.....4 00
Children's Calf Shoes.....1 00
Misses'.....1 00
Men's Rubber Boots.....3 00
Men's Rubber Boots (long).....4 00
1,000 extra Men's Clothing, serviceable and good, at.....$3 00
Elegant Beaver suits, from.....$10 00
Elegant Beaver Coats (Overcoats).....$7 00
Boys' Clothing a specialty. Splendid suits, $1 to $3.

THE MONITOR & GUARDIAN.
The Only Irish and Catholic Journal in California.
LYONS & BARRY, - - - - Publishers.
RICHARD O'SULLIVAN.....EDITOR.
OFFICE—628 CLAY STREET, between Montgomery and Kearny sts. (Rooms 2, 7 and 9, up-stairs.)
TERMS (Payable in Advance):
Served by Carriers, per week.....10c
Mail subscribers, per year.....$4 00
Per month.....50
Mail Subscribers in Ireland or either of the British Provinces, per year.....5 00
Do do do six months.....2 50
Postage in each case prepaid by publishers.

MORE OF THE PLYMOUTH SCANDAL.

Bowen Bares Beecher to a Trial,

Mrs. Moulton to be Vindicated, and "True Inwardness" Unfounded.

In response to a letter of R. S. White, charging H. C. Bowen with having been accustoming a member of Plymouth Church, because he refused to come forward and clear the Rev. H. W. Beecher from the declared that he would accept as conductors in the new publication the Deputy Esquiros, Tridon, Pelletan and Lissagaray, "one of the body and soul of the Commune." The prospectus of an invigorated Republican journal, which will be conducted in a manner to be worthy of the name of a journal of ideas, and which will not be a mere effectually maintained than by using the silence.

Wholesale Market Report.

MONITOR OFFICE, SAN FRANCISCO,
THURSDAY, January 27, 1876.

FLOUR.—We quote the jobbing rates from last Extra $6 75@6 87½; ½ bbl. Superfine $4 87½@5 75.

WHEAT.—Quotable in Liverpool at 10s 10d@10s 6d per cental, and last week at the same date at 9s 6d@9s 8d, a decline of 2d@3d. In this market we quote shipping at $1 37½@1 40; milling, $1 40@1 45.

BARLEY.—The market is quotable at $1 30@1 37½ for feed kinds; brewing at $1 50@1 55.

OATS.—Are quotable at $1 60@1 70 for No. 1, and $1 50@1 60 for inferior.

CORN.—Quotable at $1 45@1 50 for white, and $1 40@1 45 for yellow.

BUCKWHEAT.—Quotable at $2 50@2 75 per cental.

BEANS.—We quote into from wharf as follows: Pinks, $3 50@3 75; Bayos, $3 50@3 75; Lima, $4 50@4 75; Small White, $3 50@3 62½; Pea, $3 75@3 90; Butter, $3 75@3 87½; Mexican, $3 50@3 75.

VEGETABLES.—Cabbage, 50c @ cwt; Cranberries, $12 50@15 00 per bbl; Onions, $1 50@1 75 per cental; Potatoes, $1 @ $1 50 per cental; Sweet Potatoes, $1 50@1 75 per cental; Tomatoes, $1 50@2 00 per box; Turnips, $1 @ $1 25 per cental; Vegetable Oysters, 10c @ lb; Parsnips, $1 @ $1 25 per cental.

ONIONS.—We quote the market at $1@1 12½ per cental.

BRAN.—Quotable at $20 @ ton from mill.

MIDDLINGS.—Quotable at $22 @ ton from mill.

HAY.—Quotable at $15@20 @ ton from mill.

STRAW.—Quotable at $1 @ bale.

EGGS.—Quotable at $1 @ $1 25 @ doz.

BUTTER.—Quotable at 30@35c for fresh; 25@30c for pickled; 20@25c for Fall; 15@20c for Cooking.

CHEESE.—Quotable at 12½@15c for Eastern; 12½@15c for California; 10@12½c for Oregon.

POULTRY AND GAME.

POULTRY.—Hens, large, $5 00@5 50; Roosters, $5 @ $6; Roosters, $4 00@5 00 each.

GEESE.—$3@3 50 per pair.

DUCKS.—$4@5 per pair.

TURKEYS.—Alive, 18@20c; dressed, 20@22½c.

RABBITS.—$1@1 50 @ dozen.

GAME.—Quail, $1 @ $1 25 @ dozen.

DEER MEAT.—5@10 @ pound for small and $3 @ $5 @ carcass for large.

WILD PIGEONS.—Live, 15@20 @ dozen; White, $1 @ $1 50 @ dozen.

The Monitor And Guardian.
"FIDES PATRIA UNITAS CARITAS."
VOL. XIX. SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 12, 1876. NO. 19.

THE IRISH POLITICAL PRISONERS.

DION BOUCICAULT'S NOBLE ACTION IN THEIR BEHALF.

The London correspondent of the New York Herald, writing on January 4, says: Dion Boucicault has written a letter to the Right Honorable Benjamin Disraeli appealing for the release of the remaining Fenian prisoners, a copy of which the author of "The Shaughraun" has placed in my hands. It will be remembered that early in 1871 her Majesty's government, by a partial amnesty, released the majority of the Fenian prisoners, including all the leading spirits, upon condition of their expatriating themselves until the expiration of the term for which they were sentenced. With a great number this amounts to exile for life. Those who remain unreleased are, in nearly every instance, of the rank and file of the Fenian organization and without importance; but where the government drew the line in their case is easily seen. Those now unreleased were nearly all soldiers in the Queen's service, and on these, for discipline sake, the hand of the law remains heavy, while those who enlisted from their sympathies are set free. Mr. Boucicault's letter must speak for itself. It has not yet been communicated to the English press. The severity of the idea commended itself to me, and I asked Mr. Boucicault if he had taken counsel with any one upon the propriety of his step.

Mr. Boucicault—I have consulted scarcely with some of the leading members of Parliament on the matter, and there was in it no important and novel event. I have been assured by many of them that the question of releasing the miserable remnant of the misguided faction will be brought before the House of Commons when they meet next month.

Correspondent—I may be thought, Mr. Boucicault, to be over curious in the matter of your play.

Mr. Boucicault—Of course, of course (bitterly), those who oppose in no manner may say so. I have foreseen such criticism. But I give a guarantee of earnestness. Need I say that I am not a supporter of the Fenian movement? In the height of its popularity, just my action may be regarded as a "subscription to Punch," I subscribed £2,000 a week to the starving London.

Correspondent—That is a test, certainly.

Mr. Boucicault—What more can I offer? I believe in my soul all you will find in that letter, and I sincerely hope it will have effect. It will certainly call attention to the question, if, as I am assured, there is no doubt do the Irish a great service by pointing out that these Fenians are held in jail as hostages for the good faith of the people of a double treason. But surely the Amnesty Association and graduates of West Point will not look up arms against the United States in 1881, even were more guilty. They were not in 1871, and I contend that the Queen's pardon has not revoked fiscal sentence, condemning them to a term of imprisonment. Some have been in jail for four and even six years for a piece of folly. I could say much more on the subject, but for the present I prefer to leave the matter where my letter to the Premier puts it.

The following is the letter written by Mr. Boucicault:

THE RIGHT HON. B. DISRAELI—Sir: During the last few years the wrongs of Ireland, and especially the English people in London a play entitled "The Shaughraun," in which I endeavored to show that the Fenian insurrection of 1867 was a travesty of Irish history, and that the Irish people, as a body, had no sympathy with it. I endeavored to point out that the Fenian movement was not a political one, but a mere conspiracy of a few ambitious men, who, by their own confession, had no hope of success, but who, by their imprudence, placed their followers in the power of the English government, which, with its usual policy, threw them as a sop to the Irish people, but they are also a guerilla and banditti, who, in the early part of the last century, made the Shaughraun," he remarked, "this is the first incident of a Fenian pardoned by the Crown will invite a great discussion as to the reality of its justice if my piece is ever produced in London." Two gentlemen connected with Wallack's own room took the same. He later to Disraeli is, therefore, very much from the appearance of the Irish patriot planted garre. If Mr. Boucicault's resentiments and sentiments are necessarily necessary advertising his play, should this fact injure his patriotic movements? Did Disraeli fight Gladstone's proposal unanimously in order to Fraunier? Did Dickens, only to make his pictures sell, attack the abuses of poor-law in "Oliver Twist," of private schools in "Nicholas Nickleby," of Chancery evils in "Bleak House"? Such denunciation and imprisonment for debt in "Little Dorrit," sent Mr. Boucicault personally, we know him to be incapable of "writing the birthright for a mess of pottage;" and having been acquainted with his object before he left the country, we know his act to be as unselfish and patriotic one. But lacking ability he would have been just as ready to second him the full meed of merit a good cause deserves. Here the error our contemporary has fallen into. It is not the Irish error that has given Erin into statesmen who have been the Irish people, but the Irish people have been educated to despise; the continuous policy of the British people neither the fool nor the ruffian he has been represented, but may possess tender, generous and delicate qualities of which Mr. Dickens has found and depicted the pathos in "The Old Curiosity Shop." Mr. Boucicault has, in the opinion of many, done a noble act, and one which will be appreciated by all gentlemen and lovers of fair play, irrespective of party or politics. Mr. Boucicault has, in the opinion of many, done a noble act, and one which will be appreciated by all gentlemen and lovers of fair play, irrespective of party or politics.

Another Letter from Bonvicault.

To the Editor of the London Telegraph—

Sir: I, in addressing people through Mr. Disraeli, the fate of the Fenian prisoners, which was becoming buried under the pressure of political matters, has been raised into a living question, so important result has been gained. Since Monday last more than 300 provincial journals, and fifteen leading London newspapers, have given it editorial prominence. It matters very little what creeds, so fit and ribaldry have been expended on me. Had I not afforded the opportunity and object for ridicule, and had the question been brought forward on no simple merits, it would have been dismissed as vain, troublesome, uninteresting, and ruled out of Court as a case already hopelessly decided. By raising a side issue the whole subject has been let in, and I accept my despicability of mud with almost gratitude, wiping it away with good humor, as I reflect that every public nuisance, when seeking to serve their country, are frequently saluted as the Irish members were, with rotten eggs and offal. Why should I not receive the political bedpan of dirt?

Enough pain for the gentlemen of your philippic, while I beg to dissent from its argument. You say the dramas may not be regarded as a field where a question of an important and serious nature can be discussed, but in merely a

A Study of Freemasonry.

Translated from the French of Monsignour Dupanloup, Bishop of Orleans.

FIRST PART.

THE RADICAL ANTAGONISM BETWEEN FREEMASONRY AND RELIGION.

IV.—(Continued.)

This report says: "Freemasonry is an institution removed from all yoke of Church or priesthood, from all caprices of Revelations and from all the hypotheses of the mystics." (1) The hypothesis of the mystics, as we too well know, signify simply the existence of God, declared many times by Brother Massol, by the partisans of moral independence, by the Positivists and the Freemasons, to be "an hypothesis which cannot be verified."

Thus the report adopted by the General Masonic Assembly of 1865 expressly declares that Freemasonry is an institution freed from the yoke not only of revealed belief, but even of simple faith in God.

M. Henri Martin essayed, however, to have so much the more right to represent Freemasonry as a Theist society, that all its official documents are headed with this formula: "To the glory of the Great Architect of the universe;" and that, still further, the question seems to have been decided in favor of Theism in the great Masonic Convention of 1865.

This contention had for its principal work the elaboration of a new constitution for the French Masons. It was on this occasion that the question was mooted and discussed with renewed ardor as to whether they should retain that old formula for the heading of their official acts or not. While the lodge was elaborating their new constitutions, out of a hundred and fifty-one motions proposed to the "Grand Orient" at Paris, six of them demanded the absolute abolition of all formula affirming the existence of God.

Nevertheless, after the most animated debates in the Convention, the formula was preserved. But, alas! if the old formula remained, its logic was against it; for it stands, to reason that logically, the abrogation of all belief proclaimed by the Masonic constitution as its fundamental basis, does not permit the obligatory prescription of a formula where the existence of God is proclaimed. In consequence, nonetheless protests were made at the time and in the lodges.

I read in the Monde Maçonnique: "In the sittings of the 20th October the first section of the grand Orient (Scottish Rite) was composed of deputies elected by each of the lodges of their obedience, declared that, so according to their ideas, Freemasonry had no business to affirm the existence of God." (2)

The question, therefore, was revived in the General Assembly of the "Grand Orient," presided over by the Grand Master, General Mellinet, on the 13th June, 1867. The debate was even more exciting than on the previous occasion. "On this question," writes the Monde Maçonnique, "hangs the very existence of Freemasonry; that which constitutes the 'Grand Orient' principally as the banner of its bonor." (3) "They say," exclaims Brother Desmons, "that in dignities, we are Deists; Freemasonry is the eldest daughter of Deism. Well! Free masons agree to this proposition? We will by their universal toleration! (4)

We have before us the curious debates which took place in the General Masonic Assembly, which consisted of "299 delegates, representing 183 workshops." The adversaries of the formula maintained that Freemasonry should give a definition of God, or not speak of it any more, for to admit all the gods would be a negation; that "morality does not need to lean upon God;" and that "Freemasonry, by affirming the idea of God, would pass into the category of a Church." (5)

Notwithstanding this logic, the tactics of prudence won the day. The formula was retained. But, in reality, what did this vote mean? And to those who understand what Freemasonry really means, can anything be more empty? Assailed by Masonic toleration, whites, admitting all the gods, is but a negation—that is to say, Atheism, according to the frank expression of Brother Pelletan—one the formula be taken seriously? "It is not true," exclaimed another brother, Brother Guillemet, at the Masonic Convention—it is not true that Proudhon, one of the noblest minds of this century, has been received among the Freemasons! Have not the young men of the Liège Congress been received? Yes, certainly. We have stretched out to them the hand of fellowship, and have said to them: Work with us!" (Applause.) (6)

Yes, all this is true. Yes, Proudhon was received as a Freemason—that is, he who said, "God is the origin of evil;" and who to the question, "What do we owe to God?" replied, "Hate!"

And the young men of the Liège Congress, who declared in those letters and message cries "Hatred to God!" "War to God!" "We will rend the heavens like a sheet of paper!"—assuredly men were considered admirable assimilations to Freemasonry, which has endeavored out to these the hand of fellowship. In truth, those among the Freemasons who had any logical consequences have never ceased to protest against this formula, and hope soon to arrive at making it disappear from the regulations. "Our contradictor," writes the Monde Maçonnique (in the same number in which the vote was recorded), "does only acquired the right to be intolerant;" and Freemasonry remains "the universal temple peculiarly opened to Atheists as well as to Fatalists," etc. (7)

And if we wish to learn what is hidden under this formula, even for those who adopt it, it is the annihilation of all forms of worship. Read in the Ritual for the Master Apprentice the commentary given by the "Venerable" to the neophyte about to be received:

"Deism is belief in God without revelation or form of worship. It is the religion of the future, destined to replace all religions," etc. (8)

Listen, again, to the peremptory profession of faith made in the great Masonic assemblies: "I affirm that the name of God is a word without sense." (9)

"We must not only place ourselves above different religions, but above all belief in God whatever." (10)

"It is only fools who speak and dream still of a God.!" (11)

Thus we have a Deist affirming that we, as bottom, nothing but a collection of open war against all positive religion; this very etiquette repudiated as strongly by the most ardent of the working members of the association as by logical principles; a total abstraction of all dogma, the principle of absolute and unrestrained liberty—that is to say, absolute indifferentism—conceivating a negation of the most audacious kind, and carrying away, little by little, the last remains of a worn-out formula; the most nihilist doctrines invading the lodges more and more, and Atheism practicalising itself, and installing itself, if they venture to say so, with supreme audacity on the ruins of all belief in God. Such is, at this very moment, the doctrinal schedule of Freemasonry.

Can any one seriously, after this, put the question if a Christian can be a Freemason?

V.

Freemasonry and the Immortality of the Soul.

As regards the immortality of the soul, the same debates arose in the bosom of Freemasonry as those on the belief in God. Thus when the last king of the Belgians died, Leopold—although he received the consolations of the Protestant faith, and in consequence nearly abjured Freemasonry—the Belgian Freemasons were determined to take possession of his memory, and a great funeral ceremony was celebrated in the honor at the "Grand Orient" in Belgium. But the following words had been attached to the rood-loft of the Masonic Temple by the directors of the ceremony:

"The soul, emanating from God, is eternal."

Against which monstrosity (assertion the Lievain Lodge, "La Constance," addressed the following protest to the "Grand Orient:"

"Considering that free-thinking has been admitted by the Belgian lodges as a fundamental principle, the lodge 'Constance,' the Orient of Louvain, energetically protests against this blow dealt

WEEKLY CALENDAR.
FOR THE WEEK BEGINS FEBRUARY 13. Fr.Rosary.
13—Sunday—Septuagesima. Sexton.
14—Monday—St. Valentine. Martyr.
15—Tuesday—St. Faustin and Jovita, Martyrs.
16—Wednesday—Office of the Blessed Sacrament.
17—Thursday—Seven Holy Bishops and Martyrs.
18—Saturday—Office of the Immaculate Conception.

THE MONITOR & GUARDIAN:
THE ONLY
Irish and Catholic Journal in California.
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
SATURDAY.....FEBRUARY 12, 1876.

SUBSCRIBERS will please specially look at the printed label on the margin or wrapper of the paper; the date thereon shows when the subscription expires.

THE DOCTRINE OF EXCLUSIVE SALVATION.

It will be admitted by every intelligent Catholic, and there is no doctrine of the Church which is more misunderstood, or which is made the subject of more indignant comment by sectarians, than that asserting the necessity of communion with the Catholic Church for the obtaining of eternal salvation. The idea generally entertained of it is that as we believe and teach it is utterly impossible for one outside the pale of the Church to enter heaven, or to avoid everlasting torture. It is charged that we take, on account of the charity, benevolence, or Christian spirit manifested by an individual who does not belong to our faith, but place him on the same level as the man who lives utterly heedless of moral obligations. Very naturally this false estimate of our belief arouses anger against us, because we to be regarded as arrogant and malignant, and is made the foundation of a thousand false diatribes against Romanism, in every shape. The strong resistance in which Catholic doctrine is subjected to criticism by Protestants, or unbelievers of any description, insufficient information is at the bottom of all the cases of condemnation. Correct information is very easy to be had.

A few minutes conversation with a Catholic possessed of average education, or a passing glance at one of the many elementary catechisms which are published, would suffice to learn what really are the opinions held upon this matter of exclusive salvation within the bosom of the Catholic Church. But some of our critics do not want to know the truth, being perfectly satisfied with their own information and having no desire to doubt in the slightest manner; others, again, have some slight glimmering of the truth, and suspect they are merely repeating trite and worn out calumnies; yet have not sufficient manliness or moral courage to induce them to enclose their malice or ignorance. In view of the importance of the subject, and the desirability of all Catholics being well acquainted with the true meaning and never-changing teaching of the Church, we have compiled the following brief but comprehensive statement of the Catholic doctrine on the subject, which will be found entirely reliable, being taken from the last number of the Dublin Ecclesiastical Record, a monthly magazine conducted by priests belonging to Cardinal CULLEN'S diocese, which has already attained a high reputation for scholarship and orthodoxy. Though intended chiefly for ecclesiastics, and not adapted for general circulation, it now and then prints articles and historical documents which are in every way worthy of preservation in the secular press. We respectfully direct the attention of all our readers to this article, which will be found on one of the inside pages, and to which we shall frequently refer hereafter. It will show that the doctrine is eminently scriptural, has been taught by all the ages, and is interpreted most liberally and charitably by the Church herself, the infallible teacher of all revealed truths.

THAT RITUALISTIC STORY.

We think we have discovered the origin of that story about the Ritualistic clergymen and congregation who, it was alleged, were deserted of God in a great calamity, under certain conditions. It is to be found in a very remarkable pamphlet entitled "Christianity or Ecclesiasticism" recently published in London, and addressed by permission to his Eminence Cardinal MANNING. The writer counsels his identity under the signature "Presbyter Anglicanus," and no wonder, for his production has revealed this name or location. But he evidently is a man of considerable thought and intelligence, who has rightly understood the illogical and absurd position maintained by the Church of England. He proves that, bit by bit, the very ecclesiastical character is being taken from the so-called Church, and that it is being converted into a simple department of secular government. The bishops have been deprived of all power to enforce discipline, all teaching of dogmatic character is frowned down, unity of belief is totally destroyed, and discussions are even broadcasted among the congregations. The arm of the State is everywhere fastened, ecclesiastical influence, as represented by the opinions of the clergy, has very little strength left. The writer complains that the whole energy of the Church of England are rendered amenable to and can be directed to their contravention by a layman whose only power for the disappearance of the bits of dirty paper which are called money, but which have no real value at all. We regret to say there is little prospect of the Government adopting the wise and prudent course, because the national welfare is considered more in the interest of rings and cliques than for the welfare of the people. The present monetary system, which allows the wildest fluctuations in the worth and volume of the circulating mediums, is the best for the Wall street gamblers and others of the same character, and for that reason it will be maintained as long as possible. But as everything in this country ultimately at least, depends upon the will of the people, we trust that the day will come when the citizens of every State, rising above the prejudices of class or party, will demand and enforce reform and honesty in the conduct of public affairs.

QUEEN VICTORIA'S SPEECH.

Most of our readers are no doubt aware that at the annual assembling of the British Parliament, what is called "a royal speech," is read to the members of the House of Commons and the House of Lords. By a stretch of courtesy this speech is supposed to be the production of the royal individual, and therefore, it is styled the "Queen's Speech," but we need hardly say that her august Majesty never pens a line of it, and that it is written for her by the members of the administration in power for the time being. As the Hon. BENJAMIN DISRAELI is the head of the present Cabinet the speech delivered Monday last must be taken as expressing the sentiments of him and his colleagues. If Mr. GLADSTONE were in office, the speech would be framed in accordance with the ideas entertained by him and his set of politicians, but it would be a royal one all the same. Thus VICTORIA is either Whig or Tory, Liberal or Conservative, according to the bias of the ministry occupying the offices in lowering street. Still as she is all cases knows the contents of the speech and must approve of it before it is delivered, there is no great impropriety in calling and criticising it as hers.

There is a peculiarity in these royal speeches well known in Great Britain, and probably noticed elsewhere also, and that is that they are worded so as to assign a certain amount of information respecting the policy of the Government. The men who can write a good deal and tell nothing would be the fittest persons selected for preparing royal speeches to Parliament in England, and he could keep his position no matter what set of politicians composed the administration. The last opening of Parliament was expected to be unusually brilliant, for her Most Gracious and Sovereign Majesty had determined, it was announced, to open it in person. For years past the state of the Queen's health was so wretched, that she really could not endure the fatigue of driving to the House of Parliament and reading fifteen or twenty lines of a speech for the gratification of her loving subjects; yet, strange to say, she was all the time strong enough to take part in mountain excursions in Scotland, to pass many evenings dancing and frolicking with stable boys and kitchen helpers. Her Cockney subjects, who, for the sake of trade, were extremely anxious she should keep high court in London, were exceedingly puzzled and amazed at this curious state of health, but they were entirely too loyal to show any greater sign of discontent than a few mild expressions of grumbling. But the Queen came forth from her retirement last Monday, and actually did not feel quite equal to that arduous task, and considering the long and tedious nature of the document, we can hardly blame her for avoiding the job. The speech differs all its predecessors, was vague and meaningless.

It stated that the relations with foreign powers were satisfactory, that friendly mediations had been offered about the Herzegovina difficulty, that there was a small quarrel on hand with China, that measures would be taken for the suppression of the slave trade, that the affairs of the several colonial dependencies were prospering, and finally that several important bills would be proposed during the ensuing session. This was the sum and substance of all her Majesty's Most Gracious Message to communicate, and it will be seen, without reading it, it does not inclode anything which was not known to the world before. The name of Ireland does not occur at all in the document. There were, for a wonder, no new coercion laws to be passed, and it was not deemed necessary to repeat the old stale lie about "Irish prosperity." We do not know how the House Lords will take the neglect on the part of her Most Gracious Majesty, or whether they will be shocked at her then ignoring their existence, but we strongly incline to think that the majority of the Irish people will trample on it with supreme indifference. They have no earthly whatever to trouble Queen VICTORIA or her Parliament, and they think they could very easily dispense with the services of both. Indeed, they are convinced they could manage their own affairs without the help of England at all, and what they most desire is to get the chance of doing it. Whether this desire will be gratified, especially in the ordinary course of events, or whether they will have to fight for it, as the Americans did just a hundred years ago, is the political problem which most engrosses their attention. For our part we should immeasurably prefer that the separation of interests be brought about quietly, but at the same time we think our congressmen would get exactly by preparing for the other contingency.

THE FRENCH FAIR.

A Fair in aid of the French church of Notre Dame de Victoire, on Bush street, was opened in Pacific Hall, near the California Theater on Monday next, 14th instant, and continues for four days only, terminating on the evening of Saturday the 18th. We trust our fellow-countrymen will give prompt and substantial demonstration of the good will and sympathy always entertained by the Irish towards the French, which character and reverse on either side only strengthens, by reiterating the Fair and contributing liberally to the support of the church. Quite a large number of Irish names are announced Notre Dame de Victoires is Irish—composed of persons who like to hear a good French sermon occasionally. So it is only just and right that Irish Catholics should assume a share of the burden; at such times be properly called, of supporting the church.

Hon. William Piper will accept our thanks for the full files he is sending us of the Congressional Record. It is a valuable work of reference, although a little dull at times.

THE AMERICAN CATHOLIC QUARTERLY REVIEW.

A Quarterly Review, a high class periodical written for scholars by scholars, is such a necessity for Catholic literature in this country that we cannot do without one. Entering upon the lonely contested field of religious and philosophic polemics deprived of such a powerful weapon, we are nearly as helpless as soldiers would be who came on the field of battle unfurnished with cartridges. Believing this firmly, we hoped, when untoward circumstances compelled the suspension of Brownson's admirable Review, that some firm or individual would be found with sufficient spirit and devotion to the good cause of Faith to start a periodical similar in aim and character. And we are happy to say we have not been disappointed. Messrs. Hardy & Mahoney of Philadelphia, publishers of that excellent serial, the Catholic Record, and also proprietors of the Catholic Standard, one of the ablest, if not indeed the ablest of Catholic newspapers in the United States, came nobly forward and took the good work up. The result of their enterprise is the issuing of The American Catholic Quarterly Review, the first number of which is now before us. It contains—1. "A Stationary," calmly and dispassionately written, setting forth the object and policy of the Review. 2. "Anti Catholic Prejudice," by Very Rev. Augustine Egan, D.D., Professor of Modern Languages, Notre Dame Normal School and the State University.

Assemblyman D. C. Sullivan has addressed a communication to the Park Investigating Committee in answer to the published statement of Architect of W. H. Hall, Superintendent and Engineer of the Golden Gate Park. Among other charges against Hall, Mr. Sullivan alleges that there are at least 1,000 feet of sewerage in the Park that has seldom or never been used, at a cost at least $2,000. Trees were chopped which had been planted previously at great expense and after years of care. He took no contract from property owners at a very large figure, to prevent the sand from blowing in. He used his official position as Superintendent to obtain contracts for himself in reckoning and done at excessively high figures—at $25 per acre—where it is only worth $6. There has been bored a well that cost about $6,000, and was never used and never will be. He sold instruments to the Park Commissioners for $1,000 that were not worth over $300. The affiant further denies that William Hammond Hall ever set down any of the hills, or that he ever offered Hall a percentage on his bills that he never presented a bill that was wrong, nor had he ever thought of dividing with or bribing William Hammond Hall. The total amount of work done by him for the Park was worth about $140, "and it certainly was not Mr. Sullivan also presents the affidavits of Jeremiah Donovan, a laborer, and Frank Hardy, formerly assistant foreman in the Park, the gist of which is that Hall misappropriated some grain and hay belonging to the Park Commissioners. Another allegation, contained in the affidavit of Hardy (Note by the Editors) is that Hall is an habitual drunkard and that his habit is incorrigible. If he be, and this statement is supported by affidavits, he will, therefore, lake the management of his State Board of Education, consisting of the following ex-officio members, to wit: the Governor of the State, the Superintendent of Public Instruction, and the President of the State University, and of elective members as follows: two members from each Congressional District, who shall be elected for the same time and in the same manner as members of Congress are elected. The State Board shall have the management of the University out of the hands of the Board of Regents, and the management of the Normal Schools from the Trustees. The powers and duties of the Board are defined as under: It will be seen that uniformity in text books is done away with:

First—To adopt rules and regulations not inconsistent with the laws of this State, for its own government and for the government of the public schools, and the State Normal Schools.

Second—To prescribe, adopt and enforce rules for the organization of Teachers' Institutes.

Third—To prescribe a course of study for a County Board of Examination, which will entitle a graduate of the State Normal School to a diploma therefrom.

Fourth—To prescribe and enforce the course of study in the public schools; and the several boards of examination shall examine applicants in the branches of study prescribed by the Board; but nothing in the Provisions of such school District shall be held to be in conflict with the provisions of this section.

Fifth—To prescribe rules and regulations for the examination of applicants for certificates of graduation, for review or appeal, as order revoking a State certificate or diploma.

Sixth—To prescribe rules and regulations for the certificates of graduates.

Seventh—To prescribe a uniform series of text books for a County Board of Examination, which will entitle a graduate of the State Normal School to a diploma therefrom.

Eighth—To prescribe and enforce the course of study in the public schools; and the several boards of examination shall examine applicants in the branches of study prescribed by the Board; but nothing in the Provisions of such school District shall be held to be in conflict with the provisions of this section.

Ninth—To prescribe rules and regulations for the examination of applicants for certificates of graduation, for review or appeal, as order revoking a State certificate or diploma.

Tenth—To prescribe rules and regulations for the certificates of graduates.

Eleventh—To prescribe a uniform series of text books for a County Board of Examination, which will entitle a graduate of the State Normal School to a diploma therefrom.

Twelfth—To prescribe and enforce the course of study in the public schools; and the several boards of examination shall examine applicants in the branches of study prescribed by the Board; but nothing in the Provisions of such school District shall be held to be in conflict with the provisions of this section.

Thirteenth—To prescribe rules and regulations for the examination of applicants for certificates of graduation, for review or appeal, as order revoking a State certificate or diploma.

Fourteenth—To prescribe rules and regulations for the certificates of graduates.

Fifteenth—To prescribe a uniform series of text books for a County Board of Examination, which will entitle a graduate of the State Normal School to a diploma therefrom.

Sixteenth—To prescribe and enforce the course of study in the public schools; and the several boards of examination shall examine applicants in the branches of study prescribed by the Board; but nothing in the Provisions of such school District shall be held to be in conflict with the provisions of this section.

Seventeenth—To prescribe rules and regulations for the examination of applicants for certificates of graduation, for review or appeal, as order revoking a State certificate or diploma.

Eighteenth—To prescribe rules and regulations for the certificates of graduates.

Nineteenth—To prescribe a uniform series of text books for a County Board of Examination, which will entitle a graduate of the State Normal School to a diploma therefrom.

Twentieth—To prescribe and enforce the course of study in the public schools; and the several boards of examination shall examine applicants in the branches of study prescribed by the Board; but nothing in the Provisions of such school District shall be held to be in conflict with the provisions of this section.

Twenty-first—To prescribe rules and regulations for the examination of applicants for certificates of graduation, for review or appeal, as order revoking a State certificate or diploma.

Twenty-second—To prescribe rules and regulations for the certificates of graduates.

Twenty-third—To prescribe a uniform series of text books for a County Board of Examination, which will entitle a graduate of the State Normal School to a diploma therefrom.

Twenty-fourth—To prescribe and enforce the course of study in the public schools; and the several boards of examination shall examine applicants in the branches of study prescribed by the Board; but nothing in the Provisions of such school District shall be held to be in conflict with the provisions of this section.

Twenty-fifth—To prescribe rules and regulations for the examination of applicants for certificates of graduation, for review or appeal, as order revoking a State certificate or diploma.

Twenty-sixth—To prescribe rules and regulations for the certificates of graduates.

Twenty-seventh—To prescribe a uniform series of text books for a County Board of Examination, which will entitle a graduate of the State Normal School to a diploma therefrom.

Twenty-eighth—To prescribe and enforce the course of study in the public schools; and the several boards of examination shall examine applicants in the branches of study prescribed by the Board; but nothing in the Provisions of such school District shall be held to be in conflict with the provisions of this section.

Twenty-ninth—To prescribe rules and regulations for the examination of applicants for certificates of graduation, for review or appeal, as order revoking a State certificate or diploma.

Thirtieth—To prescribe rules and regulations for the certificates of graduates.

Thirty-first—To prescribe a uniform series of text books for a County Board of Examination, which will entitle a graduate of the State Normal School to a diploma therefrom.

Thirty-second—To prescribe and enforce the course of study in the public schools; and the several boards of examination shall examine applicants in the branches of study prescribed by the Board; but nothing in the Provisions of such school District shall be held to be in conflict with the provisions of this section.

Thirty-third—To prescribe rules and regulations for the examination of applicants for certificates of graduation, for review or appeal, as order revoking a State certificate or diploma.

Thirty-fourth—To prescribe rules and regulations for the certificates of graduates.

Thirty-fifth—To prescribe a uniform series of text books for a County Board of Examination, which will entitle a graduate of the State Normal School to a diploma therefrom.

Thirty-sixth—To prescribe and enforce the course of study in the public schools; and the several boards of examination shall examine applicants in the branches of study prescribed by the Board; but nothing in the Provisions of such school District shall be held to be in conflict with the provisions of this section.

Thirty-seventh—To prescribe rules and regulations for the examination of applicants for certificates of graduation, for review or appeal, as order revoking a State certificate or diploma.

Thirty-eighth—To prescribe rules and regulations for the certificates of graduates.

Thirty-ninth—To prescribe a uniform series of text books for a County Board of Examination, which will entitle a graduate of the State Normal School to a diploma therefrom.

Fortieth—To prescribe and enforce the course of study in the public schools; and the several boards of examination shall examine applicants in the branches of study prescribed by the Board; but nothing in the Provisions of such school District shall be held to be in conflict with the provisions of this section.

Forty-first—To prescribe rules and regulations for the examination of applicants for certificates of graduation, for review or appeal, as order revoking a State certificate or diploma.

Forty-second—To prescribe rules and regulations for the certificates of graduates.

Forty-third—To prescribe a uniform series of text books for a County Board of Examination, which will entitle a graduate of the State Normal School to a diploma therefrom.

Forty-fourth—To prescribe and enforce the course of study in the public schools; and the several boards of examination shall examine applicants in the branches of study prescribed by the Board; but nothing in the Provisions of such school District shall be held to be in conflict with the provisions of this section.

Forty-fifth—To prescribe rules and regulations for the examination of applicants for certificates of graduation, for review or appeal, as order revoking a State certificate or diploma.

Forty-sixth—To prescribe rules and regulations for the certificates of graduates.

Forty-seventh—To prescribe a uniform series of text books for a County Board of Examination, which will entitle a graduate of the State Normal School to a diploma therefrom.

Forty-eighth—To prescribe and enforce the course of study in the public schools; and the several boards of examination shall examine applicants in the branches of study prescribed by the Board; but nothing in the Provisions of such school District shall be held to be in conflict with the provisions of this section.

Forty-ninth—To prescribe rules and regulations for the examination of applicants for certificates of graduation, for review or appeal, as order revoking a State certificate or diploma.

Fiftieth—To prescribe rules and regulations for the certificates of graduates.

Fifty-first—To prescribe a uniform series of text books for a County Board of Examination, which will entitle a graduate of the State Normal School to a diploma therefrom.

Fifty-second—To prescribe and enforce the course of study in the public schools; and the several boards of examination shall examine applicants in the branches of study prescribed by the Board; but nothing in the Provisions of such school District shall be held to be in conflict with the provisions of this section.

Fifty-third—To prescribe rules and regulations for the examination of applicants for certificates of graduation, for review or appeal, as order revoking a State certificate or diploma.

Fifty-fourth—To prescribe rules and regulations for the certificates of graduates.

Fifty-fifth—To prescribe a uniform series of text books for a County Board of Examination, which will entitle a graduate of the State Normal School to a diploma therefrom.

Fifty-sixth—To prescribe and enforce the course of study in the public schools; and the several boards of examination shall examine applicants in the branches of study prescribed by the Board; but nothing in the Provisions of such school District shall be held to be in conflict with the provisions of this section.

Fifty-seventh—To prescribe rules and regulations for the examination of applicants for certificates of graduation, for review or appeal, as order revoking a State certificate or diploma.

Fifty-eighth—To prescribe rules and regulations for the certificates of graduates.

Fifty-ninth—To prescribe a uniform series of text books for a County Board of Examination, which will entitle a graduate of the State Normal School to a diploma therefrom.

Sixtieth—To prescribe and enforce the course of study in the public schools; and the several boards of examination shall examine applicants in the branches of study prescribed by the Board; but nothing in the Provisions of such school District shall be held to be in conflict with the provisions of this section.

Sixty-first—To prescribe rules and regulations for the examination of applicants for certificates of graduation, for review or appeal, as order revoking a State certificate or diploma.

Sixty-second—To prescribe rules and regulations for the certificates of graduates.

Sixty-third—To prescribe a uniform series of text books for a County Board of Examination, which will entitle a graduate of the State Normal School to a diploma therefrom.

Sixty-fourth—To prescribe and enforce the course of study in the public schools; and the several boards of examination shall examine applicants in the branches of study prescribed by the Board; but nothing in the Provisions of such school District shall be held to be in conflict with the provisions of this section.

Sixty-fifth—To prescribe rules and regulations for the examination of applicants for certificates of graduation, for review or appeal, as order revoking a State certificate or diploma.

Sixty-sixth—To prescribe rules and regulations for the certificates of graduates.

Sixty-seventh—To prescribe a uniform series of text books for a County Board of Examination, which will entitle a graduate of the State Normal School to a diploma therefrom.

Sixty-eighth—To prescribe and enforce the course of study in the public schools; and the several boards of examination shall examine applicants in the branches of study prescribed by the Board; but nothing in the Provisions of such school District shall be held to be in conflict with the provisions of this section.

Sixty-ninth—To prescribe rules and regulations for the examination of applicants for certificates of graduation, for review or appeal, as order revoking a State certificate or diploma.

Seventieth—To prescribe rules and regulations for the certificates of graduates.

Seventy-first—To prescribe a uniform series of text books for a County Board of Examination, which will entitle a graduate of the State Normal School to a diploma therefrom.

Seventy-second—To prescribe and enforce the course of study in the public schools; and the several boards of examination shall examine applicants in the branches of study prescribed by the Board; but nothing in the Provisions of such school District shall be held to be in conflict with the provisions of this section.

Seventy-third—To prescribe rules and regulations for the examination of applicants for certificates of graduation, for review or appeal, as order revoking a State certificate or diploma.

Seventy-fourth—To prescribe rules and regulations for the certificates of graduates.

Seventy-fifth—To prescribe a uniform series of text books for a County Board of Examination, which will entitle a graduate of the State Normal School to a diploma therefrom.

Seventy-sixth—To prescribe and enforce the course of study in the public schools; and the several boards of examination shall examine applicants in the branches of study prescribed by the Board; but nothing in the Provisions of such school District shall be held to be in conflict with the provisions of this section.

Seventy-seventh—To prescribe rules and regulations for the examination of applicants for certificates of graduation, for review or appeal, as order revoking a State certificate or diploma.

Seventy-eighth—To prescribe rules and regulations for the certificates of graduates.

Seventy-ninth—To prescribe a uniform series of text books for a County Board of Examination, which will entitle a graduate of the State Normal School to a diploma therefrom.

Eightieth—To prescribe and enforce the course of study in the public schools; and the several boards of examination shall examine applicants in the branches of study prescribed by the Board; but nothing in the Provisions of such school District shall be held to be in conflict with the provisions of this section.

Eighty-first—To prescribe rules and regulations for the examination of applicants for certificates of graduation, for review or appeal, as order revoking a State certificate or diploma.

Eighty-second—To prescribe rules and regulations for the certificates of graduates.

Eighty-third—To prescribe a uniform series of text books for a County Board of Examination, which will entitle a graduate of the State Normal School to a diploma therefrom.

Eighty-fourth—To prescribe and enforce the course of study in the public schools; and the several boards of examination shall examine applicants in the branches of study prescribed by the Board; but nothing in the Provisions of such school District shall be held to be in conflict with the provisions of this section.

Eighty-fifth—To prescribe rules and regulations for the examination of applicants for certificates of graduation, for review or appeal, as order revoking a State certificate or diploma.

Eighty-sixth—To prescribe rules and regulations for the certificates of graduates.

Eighty-seventh—To prescribe a uniform series of text books for a County Board of Examination, which will entitle a graduate of the State Normal School to a diploma therefrom.

Eighty-eighth—To prescribe and enforce the course of study in the public schools; and the several boards of examination shall examine applicants in the branches of study prescribed by the Board; but nothing in the Provisions of such school District shall be held to be in conflict with the provisions of this section.

Eighty-ninth—To prescribe rules and regulations for the examination of applicants for certificates of graduation, for review or appeal, as order revoking a State certificate or diploma.

Ninetieth—To prescribe rules and regulations for the certificates of graduates.

Ninety-first—To prescribe a uniform series of text books for a County Board of Examination, which will entitle a graduate of the State Normal School to a diploma therefrom.

Ninety-second—To prescribe and enforce the course of study in the public schools; and the several boards of examination shall examine applicants in the branches of study prescribed by the Board; but nothing in the Provisions of such school District shall be held to be in conflict with the provisions of this section.

Ninety-third—To prescribe rules and regulations for the examination of applicants for certificates of graduation, for review or appeal, as order revoking a State certificate or diploma.

Ninety-fourth—To prescribe rules and regulations for the certificates of graduates.

Ninety-fifth—To prescribe a uniform series of text books for a County Board of Examination, which will entitle a graduate of the State Normal School to a diploma therefrom.

Ninety-sixth—To prescribe and enforce the course of study in the public schools; and the several boards of examination shall examine applicants in the branches of study prescribed by the Board; but nothing in the Provisions of such school District shall be held to be in conflict with the provisions of this section.

Ninety-seventh—To prescribe rules and regulations for the examination of applicants for certificates of graduation, for review or appeal, as order revoking a State certificate or diploma.

Ninety-eighth—To prescribe rules and regulations for the certificates of graduates.

Ninety-ninth—To prescribe a uniform series of text books for a County Board of Examination, which will entitle a graduate of the State Normal School to a diploma therefrom.

One hundredth—To prescribe and enforce the course of study in the public schools; and the several boards of examination shall examine applicants in the branches of study prescribed by the Board; but nothing in the Provisions of such school District shall be held to be in conflict with the provisions of this section.

One hundred and first—To prescribe rules and regulations for the examination of applicants for certificates of graduation, for review or appeal, as order revoking a State certificate or diploma.

One hundred and second—To prescribe rules and regulations for the certificates of graduates.

One hundred and third—To prescribe a uniform series of text books for a County Board of Examination, which will entitle a graduate of the State Normal School to a diploma therefrom.

One hundred and fourth—To prescribe and enforce the course of study in the public schools; and the several boards of examination shall examine applicants in the branches of study prescribed by the Board; but nothing in the Provisions of such school District shall be held to be in conflict with the provisions of this section.

One hundred and fifth—To prescribe rules and regulations for the examination of applicants for certificates of graduation, for review or appeal, as order revoking a State certificate or diploma.

One hundred and sixth—To prescribe rules and regulations for the certificates of graduates.

One hundred and seventh—To prescribe a uniform series of text books for a County Board of Examination, which will entitle a graduate of the State Normal School to a diploma therefrom.

One hundred and eighth—To prescribe and enforce the course of study in the public schools; and the several boards of examination shall examine applicants in the branches of study prescribed by the Board; but nothing in the Provisions of such school District shall be held to be in conflict with the provisions of this section.

One hundred and ninth—To prescribe rules and regulations for the examination of applicants for certificates of graduation, for review or appeal, as order revoking a State certificate or diploma.

One hundred and tenth—To prescribe rules and regulations for the certificates of graduates.

One hundred and eleventh—To prescribe a uniform series of text books for a County Board of Examination, which will entitle a graduate of the State Normal School to a diploma therefrom.

One hundred and twelfth—To prescribe and enforce the course of study in the public schools; and the several boards of examination shall examine applicants in the branches of study prescribed by the Board; but nothing in the Provisions of such school District shall be held to be in conflict with the provisions of this section.

One hundred and thirteenth—To prescribe rules and regulations for the examination of applicants for certificates of graduation, for review or appeal, as order revoking a State certificate or diploma.

One hundred and fourteenth—To prescribe rules and regulations for the certificates of graduates.

One hundred and fifteenth—To prescribe a uniform series of text books for a County Board of Examination, which will entitle a graduate of the State Normal School to a diploma therefrom.

One hundred and sixteenth—To prescribe and enforce the course of study in the public schools; and the several boards of examination shall examine applicants in the branches of study prescribed by the Board; but nothing in the Provisions of such school District shall be held to be in conflict with the provisions of this section.

One hundred and seventeenth—To prescribe rules and regulations for the examination of applicants for certificates of graduation, for review or appeal, as order revoking a State certificate or diploma.

One hundred and eighteenth—To prescribe rules and regulations for the certificates of graduates.

One hundred and nineteenth—To prescribe a uniform series of text books for a County Board of Examination, which will entitle a graduate of the State Normal School to a diploma therefrom.

One hundred and twentieth—To prescribe and enforce the course of study in the public schools; and the several boards of examination shall examine applicants in the branches of study prescribed by the Board; but nothing in the Provisions of such school District shall be held to be in conflict with the provisions of this section.

One hundred and twenty-first—To prescribe rules and regulations for the examination of applicants for certificates of graduation, for review or appeal, as order revoking a State certificate or diploma.

One hundred and twenty-second—To prescribe rules and regulations for the certificates of graduates.

One hundred and twenty-third—To prescribe a uniform series of text books for a County Board of Examination, which will entitle a graduate of the State Normal School to a diploma therefrom.

One hundred and twenty-fourth—To prescribe and enforce the course of study in the public schools; and the several boards of examination shall examine applicants in the branches of study prescribed by the Board; but nothing in the Provisions of such school District shall be held to be in conflict with the provisions of this section.

One hundred and twenty-fifth—To prescribe rules and regulations for the examination of applicants for certificates of graduation, for review or appeal, as order revoking a State certificate or diploma.

One hundred and twenty-sixth—To prescribe rules and regulations for the certificates of graduates.

One hundred and twenty-seventh—To prescribe a uniform series of text books for a County Board of Examination, which will entitle a graduate of the State Normal School to a diploma therefrom.

One hundred and twenty-eighth—To prescribe and enforce the course of study in the public schools; and the several boards of examination shall examine applicants in the branches of study prescribed by the Board; but nothing in the Provisions of such school District shall be held to be in conflict with the provisions of this section.

One hundred and twenty-ninth—To prescribe rules and regulations for the examination of applicants for certificates of graduation, for review or appeal, as order revoking a State certificate or diploma.

One hundred and thirtieth—To prescribe rules and regulations for the certificates of graduates.

One hundred and thirty-first—To prescribe a uniform series of text books for a County Board of Examination, which will entitle a graduate of the State Normal School to a diploma therefrom.

One hundred and thirty-second—To prescribe and enforce the course of study in the public schools; and the several boards of examination shall examine applicants in the branches of study prescribed by the Board; but nothing in the Provisions of such school District shall be held to be in conflict with the provisions of this section.

One hundred and thirty-third—To prescribe rules and regulations for the examination of applicants for certificates of graduation, for review or appeal, as order revoking a State certificate or diploma.

One hundred and thirty-fourth—To prescribe rules and regulations for the certificates of graduates.

One hundred and thirty-fifth—To prescribe a uniform series of text books for a County Board of Examination, which will entitle a graduate of the State Normal School to a diploma therefrom.

One hundred and thirty-sixth—To prescribe and enforce the course of study in the public schools; and the several boards of examination shall examine applicants in the branches of study prescribed by the Board; but nothing in the Provisions of such school District shall be held to be in conflict with the provisions of this section.

One hundred and thirty-seventh—To prescribe rules and regulations for the examination of applicants for certificates of graduation, for review or appeal, as order revoking a State certificate or diploma.

One hundred and thirty-eighth—To prescribe rules and regulations for the certificates of graduates.

One hundred and thirty-ninth—To prescribe a uniform series of text books for a County Board of Examination, which will entitle a graduate of the State Normal School to a diploma therefrom.

One hundred and fortieth—To prescribe and enforce the course of study in the public schools; and the several boards of examination shall examine applicants in the branches of study prescribed by the Board; but nothing in the Provisions of such school District shall be held to be in conflict with the provisions of this section.

One hundred and forty-first—To prescribe rules and regulations for the examination of applicants for certificates of graduation, for review or appeal, as order revoking a State certificate or diploma.

One hundred and forty-second—To prescribe rules and regulations for the certificates of graduates.

One hundred and forty-third—To prescribe a uniform series of text books for a County Board of Examination, which will entitle a graduate of the State Normal School to a diploma therefrom.

One hundred and forty-fourth—To prescribe and enforce the course of study in the public schools; and the several boards of examination shall examine applicants in the branches of study prescribed by the Board; but nothing in the Provisions of such school District shall be held to be in conflict with the provisions of this section.

One hundred and forty-fifth—To prescribe rules and regulations for the examination of applicants for certificates of graduation, for review or appeal, as order revoking a State certificate or diploma.

One hundred and forty-sixth—To prescribe rules and regulations for the certificates of graduates.

One hundred and forty-seventh—To prescribe a uniform series of text books for a County Board of Examination, which will entitle a graduate of the State Normal School to a diploma therefrom.

One hundred and forty-eighth—To prescribe and enforce the course of study in the public schools; and the several boards of examination shall examine applicants in the branches of study prescribed by the Board; but nothing in the Provisions of such school District shall be held to be in conflict with the provisions of this section.

One hundred and forty-ninth—To prescribe rules and regulations for the examination of applicants for certificates of graduation, for review or appeal, as order revoking a State certificate or diploma.

One hundred and fiftieth—To prescribe rules and regulations for the certificates of graduates.

One hundred and fifty-first—To prescribe a uniform series of text books for a County Board of Examination, which will entitle a graduate of the State Normal School to a diploma therefrom.

One hundred and fifty-second—To prescribe and enforce the course of study in the public schools; and the several boards of examination shall examine applicants in the branches of study prescribed by the Board; but nothing in the Provisions of such school District shall be held to be in conflict with the provisions of this section.

One hundred and fifty-third—To prescribe rules and regulations for the examination of applicants for certificates of graduation, for review or appeal, as order revoking a State certificate or diploma.

One hundred and fifty-fourth—To prescribe rules and regulations for the certificates of graduates.

One hundred and fifty-fifth—To prescribe a uniform series of text books for a County Board of Examination, which will entitle a graduate of the State Normal School to a diploma therefrom.

One hundred and fifty-sixth—To prescribe and enforce the course of study in the public schools; and the several boards of examination shall examine applicants in the branches of study prescribed by the Board; but nothing in the Provisions of such school District shall be held to be in conflict with the provisions of this section.

One hundred and fifty-seventh—To prescribe rules and regulations for the examination of applicants for certificates of graduation, for review or appeal, as order revoking a State certificate or diploma.

One hundred and fifty-eighth—To prescribe rules and regulations for the certificates of graduates.

One hundred and fifty-ninth—To prescribe a uniform series of text books for a County Board of Examination, which will entitle a graduate of the State Normal School to a diploma therefrom.

One hundred and sixtieth—To prescribe and enforce the course of study in the public schools; and the several boards of examination shall examine applicants in the branches of study prescribed by the Board; but nothing in the Provisions of such school District shall be held to be in conflict with the provisions of this section.

One hundred and sixty-first—To prescribe rules and regulations for the examination of applicants for certificates of graduation, for review or appeal, as order revoking a State certificate or diploma.

One hundred and sixty-second—To prescribe rules and regulations for the certificates of graduates.

One hundred and sixty-third—To prescribe a uniform series of text books for a County Board of Examination, which will entitle a graduate of the State Normal School to a diploma therefrom.

One hundred and sixty-fourth—To prescribe and enforce the course of study in the public schools; and the several boards of examination shall examine applicants in the branches of study prescribed by the Board; but nothing in the Provisions of such school District shall be held to be in conflict with the provisions of this section.

One hundred and sixty-fifth—To prescribe rules and regulations for the examination of applicants for certificates of graduation, for review or appeal, as order revoking a State certificate or diploma.

One hundred and sixty-sixth—To prescribe rules and regulations for the certificates of graduates.

One hundred and sixty-seventh—To prescribe a uniform series of text books for a County Board of Examination, which will entitle a graduate of the State Normal School to a diploma therefrom.

One hundred and sixty-eighth—To prescribe and enforce the course of study in the public schools; and the several boards of examination shall examine applicants in the branches of study prescribed by the Board; but nothing in the Provisions of such school District shall be held to be in conflict with the provisions of this section.

One hundred and sixty-ninth—To prescribe rules and regulations for the examination of applicants for certificates of graduation, for review or appeal, as order revoking a State certificate or diploma.

One hundred and seventieth—To prescribe rules and regulations for the certificates of graduates.

One hundred and seventy-first—To prescribe a uniform series of text books for a County Board of Examination, which will entitle a graduate of the State Normal School to a diploma therefrom.

One hundred and seventy-second—To prescribe and enforce the course of study in the public schools; and the several boards of examination shall examine applicants in the branches of study prescribed by the Board; but nothing in the Provisions of such school District shall be held to be in conflict with the provisions of this section.

One hundred and seventy-third—To prescribe rules and regulations for the examination of applicants for certificates of graduation, for review or appeal, as order revoking a State certificate or diploma.

One hundred and seventy-fourth—To prescribe rules and regulations for the certificates of graduates.

One hundred and seventy-fifth—To prescribe a uniform series of text books for a County Board of Examination, which will entitle a graduate of the State Normal School to a diploma therefrom.

One hundred and seventy-sixth—To prescribe and enforce the course of study in the public schools; and the several boards of examination shall examine applicants in the branches of study prescribed by the Board; but nothing in the Provisions of such school District shall be held to be in conflict with the provisions of this section.

One hundred and seventy-seventh—To prescribe rules and regulations for the examination of applicants for certificates of graduation, for review or appeal, as order revoking a State certificate or diploma.

One hundred and seventy-eighth—To prescribe rules and regulations for the certificates of graduates.

One hundred and seventy-ninth—To prescribe a uniform series of text books for a County Board of Examination, which will entitle a graduate of the State Normal School to a diploma therefrom.

One hundred and eightieth—To prescribe and enforce the course of study in the public schools; and the several boards of examination shall examine applicants in the branches of study prescribed by the Board; but nothing in the Provisions of such school District shall be held to be in conflict with the provisions of this section.

One hundred and eighty-first—To prescribe rules and regulations for the examination of appl

IRISH LOCAL NEWS.

From the Dublin Nation of January 15.

ANTRIM.

The death is announced of Sir Edmund Chetwode Workman Meeneghten, Bart., which occurred on Thursday week, at his residence, Dundarave, Bushmills, at the advanced age of 86 years. Sir Edmund Meeneghten at one time held the office of master in equity in the Supreme Court in Calcutta, his father having been judge of the Supreme Court in Bengal. From 1847 to 1865 he represented the county of Antrim in Parliament.

CARLOW.

At the Carlow quarter sessions his worship briefly addressed the grand jury, thanking them for their punctual attendance, and congratulating them upon the fact that there were only six bills to come before them, all, with the exception of one case of stabbing, of the simplest kind, such as petty larceny.

The quarter sessions for the Baginalstown division of Carlow county were opened on Thursday week before James A. Wall, Esq., chairman. The business consisted of about fifty civil bill entries and some few ejectments, none of which possessed any features of interest. The entire business concluded at three o'clock.

At the Tullow quarter session the business was confined to civil bills and ejectments, there being no criminal case for trial. The grand jury having been sworn, his worship congratulated them on the peaceful state of their district.

CLARE.

At the meeting of the Clare Farmers' Club on Friday week, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted: That, considering the article which arise from proposing for the land or holding of another from which any tenant is capriciously evicted, and the liability which it affords landlords of imposing rents at pleasure, for the sake of example in the public, we, the members of the League, resolve, during our connection with it, not to bid nor propose for any farm of any tenant so capriciously evicted. That we direct our secretary to call upon our representatives to declare whether they are prepared to vote when the Land Question may be introduced into Parliament for questions relative to the vital interests of the community—namely, security of tenure, fair rents and free sale."

CORK.

On Sunday a meeting of the parishioners of Queenstown was held to invite a congenial or raising funds for carrying on the works of the new cathedral at Queenstown. Dr. MacCarthy, Bishop of the diocese, presided. Resolutions were adopted carrying out the objects of the meeting, and a committee was appointed for the purpose of collecting the necessary funds. A handsome sum of nearly £1,000 was subscribed on the spot, including a subscription of £100 each from Mr. Rowayne, M. P., also the Bishop, and a smaller sum from the Rev. Thomas Hall, P.P. It was stated from the statement of accounts, £50 000 had been already expended on the structure.

The Kanturk Young Mens' Society which has been in process of formation for several months, was formally opened last week with an inaugural lecture by Mr. John George McCarthy, M. P., on "Ireland's Orators." The Very Rev. Canon Desmoby, P. P., occupied the chair. A vote of thanks to the lecturer was proposed by the Rev. O'Rourke, C. C., and seconded by Mr. M. J. Barry, Esq., which was lately said by the has been said that it is from the lives of the great orators that the youth of the country can gather wisdom at the tombs of bygone heroes, that they may emulate the torch of patriotism and valor, and take to heart the hope for worthy and noble purposes. Now, in no way with truth that our country has ever been fruitful in renowned and remarkable children; but, in an age proverbial for illustrious Irishmen, I do not know any one whom we may hold in deeper reverence, or whose genius and character we can more cordially admire, than that of him who "erected by the cradle and sat by the tomb of Irish independence." We are, it is true, a Catholic Young Man's Society—in soul, in pulse and in purpose—but this does not prevent us from seeing a high value upon truth and truth and honor, upon godly endeavor, on genius and devotion, wherever we find them—much less are we prevented from expressing our fraternal admiration and gratitude towards him whose matchless eloquence was directed, in evil time, to make Ireland free to her fathers.

FERMANAGH.

The appeal case of the Board of Inland Revenue against Mr. Anthony Cassidy, tobacco manufacturer, Enniskillen, was alleged adjudication by solicitors of gaun arable, commenced work before the chairman of quarter sessions, P. J. Blake, Esq., Q. C., and eleven magistrates, and continued the same day. Mr. Bell, Clerk of the Lobratory, Somerset House, was present. Mr. Moore, instructed by Mr. Alexander, appeared for the prosecution, and Messrs. Holmes and Colium, instructed by Mr. Graham, for the defence. Several analysts from Somerset House, who proved to finding gum arabic in samples of manufactured tobacco, secured as tobacco and juice, which had been forwarded for chemical analysis by a person only known to the Inland Revenue chemists; whereas, in portions of the samples which had been supplied at the request of Mr. Cassidy's solicitor, to Professor Hodges, of Belfast, and Professor Cameron, of Dublin, at least all the gum could be discovered. The case ended great interest, Mr. Cassidy being one of the largest tobacco manufacturers in the county. It was decided in his favor, and the nonconvenience of the decision was received with applause in Court.

GALWAY.

It has been discovered that the sword which is one of the old properties in the city are to be seen at present in Mr. West the jeweler's window, in Dublin. The Town Board has adopted resolutions for the recovery of this important relic of bygone grandeur of Galway.

At the Galway quarter sessions Thomas R. Hone, Esq., chairman, in addressing the Grand Jury said that the cases to go before them were neither formidable in character, nor were more numerous than usual. They were altogether slight, but of the number four were cases of assault—which appeared to be more prevalent than any other species of crime. The chairman proceeded to urge the abolition of juries at quarter sessions.

MERRY.

At the Listowel quarter sessions the chairman of the county, Mr. Charles Hare Hamphill, Q.C., congratulated the Grand Jury on the peaceable state of the district. He said were it not for one reason ease, he would have the honor of receiving, and the sheriff would have the pleasure of presenting him with a pair of white gloves.

At the Killarney land sessions a claim was entered by Mr. Mac y Buckley to register improvements in his holding to the value of £1 200, under the ninth section of the Act. Mr. Buckley holds an underlease, of which there are yet eight years to run. The claim was disputed by the landlord, Mr. Bernard, on the ground that the buildings were unsuitable to the farm. The chairman reserved his decision.

At the Listowel land sessions on Thursday week £60 was awarded as compensation to an old man named Moiynane, who has been evicted from a farm of eight acres at Woodford, which was lately sold by the Church Representative Body to Mr. Daniel Shine. The latter refused to allow Moiynane, who is seventy years of age, to remain in possession for any money," and the chairman, considering the eviction capricious, gave the maximum damage for the disturbance.

DOWN.

At Dromore special petty sessions on Saturday the cause in which Hudson Brown, linen manufacturer, was charged with unlawfully receiving embezzled yarns was concluded. The magistrates found Spence guilty of misdemeanor, and fined him £50 and costs, or three months' imprisonment without the fines to go to the prosecutor.

An important meeting was held in Kilkeel, last week, to take into consideration the proposed railway between Kilkeel and Carlingford. Captain Ramsay, J.P., presided, and the principal shopkeepers and farmers of the district were in attendance. A resolution, approving of the projected railway, and the pier at Greencastle, was unanimously adopted. It was stated that Lord Newry had given a free grant of land, and that he is in other ways willing to help the project.

KILKENNY.

Mr. De Moleyns, Q.C., chairman of the county of Kilkenny, presided at the sessions in Tullaroan on Thursday week to hear the case of Byrne vs. Kelly. This was an application for registration of improvements under the 5th section of the Land Act. The claimant, Mr. Martin Byrne, held a farm of thirty five Irish plantation acres, at a yearly rent called Fanthleagh, at £14 a year, under a lease made in 1851 by the late Colonel Kelly (the relatives and predecessor in title of Mr. Kelly, the respondent to the claim). The chairman intimated his decision to register the following improvements: A dwelling house, furniture, and offices attached stable, new house (No 1), and store (lofted), four-house (lofted), with car-house attached, new house (No. 2), with three piggeries attached, a new, three acres and a half of meadow, Mr. Adamson's valuation for the claimant. He said that when the lease was made the house on the farm was a mud-walled, thatched cabin, and the land waste, and his father had erected a comfortable house and numerous out-offices, which were not out of proportion to the size of the holding, and which, with the drainage, had doubled the letting value. Mr. Morgan Kavanagh stated respondent's case, which was that many of the out-buildings were of costly character, quite out of proportion to the size of the farm, and really not required in the working of it, for the use of two other farms held by claimant from other landlords. The chairman delivered judgment, which he would not read, but encouraged farmers from erecting decent dwelling-houses and good out-offices. He had himself visited the farm, and from his inspection and the evidence he had come to the conclusion that most of the buildings erected were not out of proportion to the size and character of the holding, while, from their useful and substantial character, they greatly enhanced its value. He thought that our house No. 2, one of the three pigeries, and the fowl-house were not required for working the farm, and he disallowed them. As to the rest, he would decrease that by a dwelling house (a partially rebuilt), with dairy and office attached, the stable, and the other pigeries. The valuation, after various deductions, was fixed at £50 5s. The chairman reserved his decision.

KING'S COUNTY.

Sub-Inspector Blake, who has been recently appointed a district governorship to the resident magistracy, has been assigned the district of Kilnaderry, Ballycumber.

At Tullamore quarter sessions, Mr. Hewitt Poole Jeffet, Q. C., chairman of the county, remarked that three-fourths of the cases on the calendar appeared to be those that arose from the disagreeable of parties who proposed that they purchase certain right which were invaded, and who had taken the law into their own hands, instead of seeking redress in a civil action.

LIMERICK.

At the Limerick quarter sessions the criminal calendar was exceedingly slender, none of which, however, were of a serious character, and the chairman was able to compliment the Grand Jury on the state of the city.

At the last meeting of the Newcastle West Board of Guardians a letter was received, on the motion of Mr. McCarthy, solicitor, that the trustees of the Board be given to E. W. O'Brien, Esq., Cahercastle, for his able chairmanship of the union, and especially for his recently-published letters on the land laws.

A requisition for improvements made in favor of the tenant's holding was presented to the Limerick Board of Guardians on Saturday last, by Mr. Delany proposed the appointment of Mr. Rooney, and, on a division being taken, he voted for and was declared him. The chairman declared him duly elected. This was the first Catholic appointment ever made in the distr ct.

SLIGO.

The death is announced of Mr. James Harper, who for many years was connected with the trade and commerce of the port of Sligo, and as agent for the steamers plying between Sligo and Glasgow he was found to be always desirous of fostering the trade of its port.

TIPPERARY.

It will be remembered says the Clonmel Chronicle, that during the election riots in Tipperary in February last, Mr. George McCarthy, R.M., ordered the police to seize a section of his duty upon that occasion, a blow of a stone, flung at random, which unfortunately led to the total loss of his left eye. We have just learned with very great pleasure that Mr. Stephen Moore, R.M., for this county, who had taken a very kind interest in this matter, has received from Mr. W. H. Smith, Esq., M.P., a letter addressed to the treasury, through his private secretary, Mr. W. H. Primrose, a letter announcing that a sum of £400 had been awarded to Mr. McCarthy in consideration of the very severe injury he has sustained.

The Sisters of Charity who have been acting as in Romsey nurses in the Carrick-on-Suir union sent to the Board of Guardians at their weekly meeting on Saturday, a letter of resignation. A great deal of surprise was manifested by the Board when the letter was read, the belief being that the system of their introduction and the mode of its tinues the same.

This engraving is entirely new. It has never been for sale in the printshops, and cannot be obtained except in connection with ARTHUR'S JOURNAL upon the terms and conditions given above. It will be mailed to subscribers free of postage.

D. APPLETON & CO.,
549 & 551 Broadway, New York.
jal2 tf

St. Louis and Morgan County
MINING AND SMELTING CO
WM. H. WILSON, Business Manager.
309 NORTH SIXTH STREET (under Lindell Hotel)
ST. LOUIS, MO.

Then does a general Land Agency Business. Sells Lands, Pays Taxes, Collects Rents, Makes Loans, Negotiates Exchanges, Etc. Our facilities for selling lands are unsurpassed from the fact that we propose to insert a full page of our own as soon as our list of Lands will justify, which we will distribute free through the Eastern States and Europe, thus bringing your properties before the public to their best advantage. All letters or correspondence should be addressed to

JAS. H. WILSON, Notary Public
jal2 tf W. H. WILSON, Business Manager.

TO OWNERS
—OF—
REAL ESTATE.

☞ Persons owning Real Estate that has heretofore been assessed in the former owner's name, are requested to appear personally or send their deeds to the Assessor's Office IMMEDIATELY, and have the necessary changes made for next year's roll. The work on the Real Estate Roll will commence in a few days, after which it will be too late for any changes.

ALEXANDER BADLAM, ja529 City and County Assessor.

DELINQUENT POLL TAXES.

OFFICE OF THE TAX-COLLECTOR
—OF THE—
City and County of San Francisco,
San Francisco, January 22, 1870.

☞ Public notice is hereby given to all persons who have failed or neglected to pay the POLL-TAX due for the fiscal year 1875–76, that the same has become delinquent, and been placed in my hands for collection, and if not paid on or before the first Monday of MARCH will become a lien upon their property, and be collected as provided in Section 3899 of the Political Code.

WILLIAM FORD,
Tax-Collector.
feb

EDUCATIONAL.

SAINT MARY'S COLLEGE
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
Conducted by the Christian Brothers

Offers every facility for acquiring a thorough Education, whether Classical, Scientific or Commercial.

Those who complete the Classical Course receive the degree of A. B.; the Scientific, B. S.; the Commercial, Master of Accounts.

The Commercial course has been established for the convenience of those who wish to acquire a good practical education in as short a time as possible.

While proper care is bestowed on every branch of study, the Christian Brothers make a specialty of the Classical languages, and the Professor of Elocution in Grammar, Composition and Rhetoric are publicly commended and exercised in the class-room.

TERMS PER SCHOLASTIC YEAR.
(Payable half yearly in advance.)

Board, Tuition and Washing	$200 00
Entrance Fee	10 00
Physician's Fee and Medicine	10 00
Vacation at College	50 00
Use of Bedroom	50 00
Modern languages, Music and drawing form extra charges.
Studies will be resumed on the 5th of August.

REV. B. JUSTIN, President.
1631

ST. VINCENT'S SCHOOL.

THIS INSTITUTION IS SITUATED IN SANTA Barbara, a short distance from the sea, in the most delightful and healthy part of the city. The grounds are extensive, and the building large and airy.

The course of instruction embraces the usual branches of a thorough education. Spanish is also taught.

TERMS
(Invariably half yearly in advance.)

Board, Tuition, Washing, bedding and use of Library	$200 00
Piano, and use of instrument, per month, $4 00 to	15 00
Guitar, per month, $4	15 00
Entrance Fee, to be paid but once	10 00
Tuition on piano, per month	2 00
Physician's Fee	10 00

No extra charge for Tapestry, Embroidery, Plain and Ornamental Needlework, nor for the Spanish language.

TERMS FOR DAY SCHOLARS:

Primary, per month	$2 00
Elementary and Senior, per month	3 00
Tuition on Piano, " "	6 00
Guitar, " "	3 00

No extra charge for Tapestry, Embroidery, Plain and Ornamental Needlework, nor for the Spanish language.

☞ The above establishment is also the authorized Depot for

ST. VINCENT'S COLLEGE,
LOS ANGELES, CAL.
DEGREES CONFERRED
Rev. JAMES MACHILL, C. M.
ja26 tf President.

RUSS HOUSE COACHES.

Nos. 27, 40, 48, 97 and 100.

McNALLY & SLATTERY.....Proprietors.
Orders left at the Russ House will be promptly attended to. Rates most reasonable. ap30

EDUCATIONAL.

SAINT IGNATIUS COLLEGE,
SAN FRANCISCO,
Conducted by the Fathers of the Society of Jesus.

This Literary Institution was incorporated, according to the laws of the State, on the 30th of April, 1855, and empowered to confer academical degrees and literary honors as are granted by any University in the United States.

The design of the Institution is to give a thorough Literary, Mathematical and Philosophical education, besides the classical; there is, also, a Commercial course. The College is situated for day-scholars only.

TERMS PER MONTH
(Payable in advance)

Tuition, in Preparatory Department	$1 00
" in Commercial Department	1 50
" in Higher Department	2 00

For the use of Instruments in Natural Philosophy and Chemistry, first year, per month, $1 00
For the use of Instruments, etc., second year, 1 50
For each Academical Degree

CONVENT OF OUR LADY OF THE SACRED HEART,
OAKLAND.....CALIFORNIA.
Conducted by the Sisters of the Holy Names of Jesus and Mary.

THIS INSTITUTION IS PLEASANTLY SITUated on the Contra Costa shore, directly commanding an extensive frontage on the bay, affording a view, which is unrivaled on the modern improvements—no expense having been spared to provide for the comfort of the inmates. The course of study embraces the various branches of a solid, useful and refined education.

TERMS (payable half yearly in advance)
Board and Tuition, per month, $15
Washing, " " 2
Use of bedding, without sheets if supplied by the institution, " " 1
Physician's Fee, " " 1

For further particulars apply to
MOTHER SUPERIOR.

NOTRE DAME ACADEMY,
SAN FRANCISCO.

THIS ACADEMY, WHICH IS CONDUCTED by the Sisters of Notre Dame, is situated on Dolores street, opposite the Mission Church.

The building is large and well adapted for the purpose, and favorable location in every way, the commodious grounds which it occupies affording ample room for healthful exercise and recreation. While the mental advantages of the young ladies attending the Academy, and the comforts of their physical wants, all the means for beautiful exercise during their leisure hours.

The course of instruction embraces every necessary and ornamental branch of a refined education at the present day.

The Academy of the Tenth Annual Session will commence January 3d, 1875.

TERMS:

BOARDING PUPILS.

Per quarter (payable in advance), Board, tuition, washing, with use of bedding—per session of five months
Vocal Music
Use of Piano
Vacation spent at the Academy

Use of Piano, per month
Use of Violin
Drawing and Painting
Ornamental Work
Guitar
Use of Harp
Use of Melodeon
Use of Organ
Use of Piano

CATHOLIC INTELLIGENCE.

—Sir Robert Gerard, a Catholic, has been made a peer of the realm by Disraeli.

—The Pope has presented a protest to the Bavarian Ambassador at Rome against the violation of the Bavarian Concordat by the German Civil Marriage Law.

—The Rev. Thomas H. Kinsella, C. C., Templemore, has been promoted to the administratorship of the important parish of Thurles by his Grace the Archbishop of Cashel.

—The Marquis of Ripon has presented $10,000 to the Pope, and M. Selwyns, a member of the Belgian Senate, has offered his Holiness the sum of 2 000,000 francs ($8,000).

—At the Consistory at Rome on Friday, January 21, the Pope nominated twenty-two bishops, including Cormeen, Bishop of Martinique; Pepa, Bishop of Manila, Morris, Bishop of St. Hyacinthe, Canada, and Quigg, Bishop of Pittsburgh.

—The Pope has ordered a grand organ for St. Peter's, Rome, in which basilica it is well known, there has never been an organ. It is to cost $100,000, to have 155 stops, 32 pedals, 8,316 pipes, and four banks of keys.

—A telegram from Rome announces that the Marquis of Ripon had arrived in that city, and had been received in special audience by the Pope. He attended Mass on Sunday morning, January 9th, and received the Sacrament from the hands of the Holy Father.

—The organ of the German Catholics announces that the Convent of the Ursuline Sisters in Berlin has been notified to dissolve under the Law against Religious Orders, and that the 1st of April has been fixed as the date by which the institution is to close.

—The Rev. James O'Leary, D. D., a gifted and learned Irish-American priest, died in Utica on the 23d ult., after a lingering illness. The deceased, who was well known as the author and translator of a number of valuable works, and for his strong Irish national feelings, had been for a short period assistant pastor at St. Joseph's church, Sixth avenue.

—It is expected at the Vatican that Cardinal Lodovechi, the well-known conspirator and his term of imprisonment on the 4th of next month, will go to Rome to receive from the hands of the Pope the ring and title appertaining to his appointment to the Cardinalate.

—Rev. Father O'Reilly, of Toronto, the author of "The Martyrs of the Coliseum," and of the "Outlines of the Universe," has taken charge of the Montreal True Witness, a position left vacant by the death of the late Rev. Father Murphy.

—The school problem appears to be settled in Prince Edward's Island. The Christian Brothers, having passed a satisfactory examination, have obtained teachers' licenses, and opened their schools as public schools, subject to Government inspection, and receiving pay from the public like all others.

—The Holy Father, on receiving 2,000 of the Catholic youth of Italy on the 6th of January, alluded to the Revolution of 1848, whom watchword was "Agitate," and suggested that their watchword should be "Act, but do not agitate." The Holy Father exhorted them to demand, in particular, liberty of teaching.

—The Bavarian Pfalzer Zeitung says that the Bavarian Minister of War has been strategically silly enough to refuse to compensate the ecclesiastics from the conscription hitherto accorded to priests and theological students. The Zeitung says that at the next conscription a fully ordained Catholic priest and a number of students will be expelled to serve.

—The Papal Nuncio at Vienna has signed an arrangement between the heirs of the Duke of Modena and the Pope respecting the portion of the inheritance left to the Holy Father. A yearly income will be collected from the estate in favor of the Pope without any difficulties being encountered in connection with the heirs of secularization.

—Rev. Frederick George Lee, the vicar of All Saints, Lambeth, to whom the Manchester Guardian's London correspondent credited the letter to the Cardinal Archbishop of Mantua and the Provincial of the petition to the Pope on the subject, writes in the Guardian, indignantly denying any connection therewith.

—Father Jouvencau writes to the Chicago Inter-Ocean, from Rome, January 8th, denying the opinion of the people of that section on the removal of Chief Justice Dunne, that a conspiracy of Jesuits and Irish was perpetrated against a whole body of citizens in a free country. This is the opinion of all sensible men in the community, Catholic and Protestant—all consider his removal as an attempt against the right of citizens, the foundations of our liberty, and as an insult to the Catholic community.

—Sunday, January 30th, the Feast of St. Francis de Sales, and the day previous to the one on which the first Mass was to be celebrated in the upper portion of the now completed church of St. Charles Borromeo, Philadelphia, the Rev. Father Quinlan passed away. The sad event cast a mysterious cloud over what would otherwise have been an occasion of unusual joy to the people of St. Charles Borromeo.

—The Pope tells Verità of Rome, notwithstanding the publication by the English papers of secret negotiations between the extremists of the Anglican clergy and the Vatican, looking to his submission to Rome of the whole body of Ritualists, strenuously denies the existence of any such negotiations. It may there be a powerful, but not a secret, movement among the English Protestant clergy towards a return "into the bosom of the Church."

—Saturday, January 19, Miss Helen Ortiles, our Sister Mary Patricia, of Clifton, county Galway, Ireland, received the habit of the Order of Mercy at St. Alphonsus' Convent of Mercy, in New Orleans. Rev. F. Gravesky, C. SS. R., officiated, and, as is usual with him on all occasions, preached a sermon that was both eloquent and practical. Among the reverend clergy present were Rev. H. Gissen, C. SS. R., Father Meighan, of the Cathedral, Father Finn, of St. Patrick's, and Father Reilly, of the diocese of Natchez.

—Rev. Fathers Albino and Paolo, of the order of Passionists, arrived on the 30th January to Savannah, on their journey to St. Augustine, Fla., where they are going by invitation of Right Rev. Bishop Verot. It is their intention to give some days to each of the different congregations of the diocese of St. Augustine. In Key West, which place they will visit on the 15th, they will preach a mission in Spanish, for the benefit of the many Spanish Catholics of that place.

—Pius IX. has printed daily for several the death of the most gifted priest of the diocese of Kildare and Leighlin. There are in that extensive diocese many excellent priests distinguished for prudence, piety, zeal and knowledge, but we feel we express the universal opinion of the clergy of Kildare that among them, as a body, learned and devoted priest, Rev. F. Finnemore held the first place. He was cut off in the prime of life, being in his 43d year, and of him it may be said he truly said that he fulfilled much in a short time, for never was there a more devoted, zealous, pious and laborious missioner.

—On Saturday, January 22d, the ceremony of receiving six young ladies into the Convent of the Presentation was performed in the chapel of this institution in Brooklyn, N. Y., in the presence of a number of ladies and gentlemen. Bishop Loughlin officiated, assisted by Rev. Fathers Kelly, Murray and Tormey. The postulants were: Miss Amelia Blair, Catherine Grace, Ann M. Percy, Mary Curtin, Elizabeth Cary and Ursuline McCarthy. The names by which they will be known hereafter are respectively: Sister Mary Catherine of Sienna; Sister Mary Agnes, Sister Mary Cecelia, Sister Mary Joseph, Sister Mary Augustine and Sister Mary Patrick.

—The Wahrheitsfreund gives the following startling news in an original correspondence from Southern Germany, which will be no doubt the more important as its author was once one of the leading members of the Conservative party, and is considered an able statesman even by his adversaries. Giving the gloomy outlook for the peace of Europe as one of the reasons why Bismarck did not insist on the passing of his bill about new penal laws against the Catholics, the writer continues thus: "It seems to me that just now, notwithstanding the most continued persecution, every thing else being, Prince Bismarck is inclined to widen by his hand and come to terms in regard to ecclesiastical matters. If this be true, it may be of importance to the Catholics that they unite themselves closely round both firmly and tenderly. The terms is an important one, and it may be a question whether in his hours of quietude and solitude he should not have seen that the destruction of Catholicity in Germany is beyond his power. But I would not venture to hope that on our part a skillful attempt should be made to send the slightest feeler. Such a thing would be one of the most difficult and delicate of tasks, but sooner or later it will come to some one, and it is right now God will send the right man."

—The following changes in the ecclesiastical appointments of the diocese of Cork follow upon the vacancies created by the deaths of the late esteemed parish priests of Queenstown and Kilbrittain: Rev. J. Coghlan, St. Patrick's, is raised to the dignity of Dean of Cloyne; Rev. Joseph Shinkin, of the Cathedral, becomes parish priest of Oreens; and Rev. William Murphy, C.C., Carrigaline, is appointed parish priest of Kilbrittain; Rev. F. Harley, C.C., is transferred from Blackrock to the Cathedral; Rev. Jeremiah Lynch, C.C., from Carrigaline to Oreens; Rev. James O'Neill, C.C., from Kilmurlin to Blackrock; Rev. Mr. Collins is appointed C.C., Kilbrittain; Rev. J. O'Connor, C.C., transferred from Innoshannon to Carrigaline; Rev. T. Burke, C.C., transferred from Muiterrara to St. Patrick's Hospital; Rev. Andrew Desmond, C.C., from Ballineasky to Muiterrara; Rev. Jeremiah O'Dea, C.C., from Clonteef to Ballineasky; Rev. Jeremiah O'Mahony is appointed C.C., Clontleef; Rev. John Fahy, transferred from the chaplaincy of the Cork Union Infirmary to that of Bandon; C. O'Driscoll, from chaplaincy of Good Shepherd Asylum to that of the City Jail, and to be sacristan of the Cathedral; Rev. D. Duggan, C.C., Watergrasshill, becomes chaplain to Good Shepherd Asylum; and Rev. James Brady, late chaplain to Sanury Convent, is appointed C.C., Watergrasshill.

—Limerick was on Sunday, January 30th, the scene of a most touching display of religious fervor and devotion. The reception of the Sisters in the Jesuits' church, the first in Ireland dedicated to that sacred Heart, his less than four priests attended the ceremonial—the Most Rev. Dr. Croke, Archbishop of Cashel; the Most Rev. Dr. Butler, Bishop of Limerick; the Most Rev. Dr. O'Hea, Bishop of Ross; and the Most Rev. Dr. McGuire, Bishop of Clogher. We need scarcely say that four more eminent men could not be named in the Irish Episcopate. The young and gifted Archbishop of Cashel raise his diocese with a wisdom and a zeal which seem to be the more impressive as his sister was once one of the leading members of the Conservative party, and is considered an able statesman even by his adversaries. Giving the gloomy outlook for the peace of Europe as one of the reasons why Bismarck did not insist on the passing of his bill about new penal laws against the Catholics, the writer continues thus: "It seems to me that just now, notwithstanding the most continued persecution, every thing else being, Prince Bismarck is inclined to widen by his hand and come to terms in regard to ecclesiastical matters. If this be true, it may be of importance to the Catholics that they unite themselves closely round both firmly and tenderly. The terms is an important one, and it may be a question whether in his hours of quietude and solitude he should not have seen that the destruction of Catholicity in Germany is beyond his power. But I would not venture to hope that on our part a skillful attempt should be made to send the slightest feeler. Such a thing would be one of the most difficult and delicate of tasks, but sooner or later it will come to some one, and it is right now God will send the right man."

—The following changes in the ecclesiastical appointments of the diocese of Cork follow upon the vacancies created by the deaths of the late esteemed parish priests of Queenstown and Kilbrittain: Rev. J. Coghlan, St. Patrick's, is raised to the dignity of Dean of Cloyne; Rev. Joseph Shinkin, of the Cathedral, becomes parish priest of Oreens; and Rev. William Murphy, C.C., Carrigaline, is appointed parish priest of Kilbrittain; Rev. F. Harley, C.C., is transferred from Blackrock to the Cathedral; Rev. Jeremiah Lynch, C.C., from Carrigaline to Oreens; Rev. James O'Neill, C.C., from Kilmurlin to Blackrock; Rev. Mr. Collins is appointed C.C., Kilbrittain; Rev. J. O'Connor, C.C., transferred from Innoshannon to Carrigaline; Rev. T. Burke, C.C., transferred from Muiterrara to St. Patrick's Hospital; Rev. Andrew Desmond, C.C., from Ballineasky to Muiterrara; Rev. Jeremiah O'Dea, from Ballineasky to Muiterrara; Rev. Jeremiah O'Mahony is appointed C.C., Clontleef; Rev. John Fahy, transferred from the chaplaincy of the Cork Union Infirmary to that of Bandon; C. O'Driscoll, from chaplaincy of Good Shepherd Asylum to that of the City Jail, and to be sacristan of the Cathedral; Rev. D. Duggan, C.C., Watergrasshill, becomes chaplain to Good Shepherd Asylum; and Rev. James Brady, late chaplain to Sanury Convent, is appointed C.C., Watergrasshill.

—The Bavarian Pfalzer Zeitung says that the Bavarian Minister of War has been strategically silly enough to refuse to compensate the ecclesiastics from the conscription hitherto accorded to priests and theological students. The Zeitung says that at the next conscription a fully ordained Catholic priest and a number of students will be expelled to serve.

—The Papal Nuncio at Vienna has signed an arrangement between the heirs of the Duke of Modena and the Pope respecting the portion of the inheritance left to the Holy Father. A yearly income will be collected from the estate in favor of the Pope without any difficulties being encountered in connection with the heirs of secularization.

—Rev. Frederick George Lee, the vicar of All Saints, Lambeth, to whom the Manchester Guardian's London correspondent credited the letter to the Cardinal Archbishop of Mantua and the Provincial of the petition to the Pope on the subject, writes in the Guardian, indignantly denying any connection therewith.

—Father Jouvencau writes to the Chicago Inter-Ocean, from Rome, January 8th, denying the opinion of the people of that section on the removal of Chief Justice Dunne, that a conspiracy of Jesuits and Irish was perpetrated against a whole body of citizens in a free country. This is the opinion of all sensible men in the community, Catholic and Protestant—all consider his removal as an attempt against the right of citizens, the foundations of our liberty, and as an insult to the Catholic community.

—Sunday, January 30th, the Feast of St. Francis de Sales, and the day previous to the one on which the first Mass was to be celebrated in the upper portion of the now completed church of St. Charles Borromeo, Philadelphia, the Rev. Father Quinlan passed away. The sad event cast a mysterious cloud over what would otherwise have been an occasion of unusual joy to the people of St. Charles Borromeo.

—The Pope tells Verità of Rome, notwithstanding the publication by the English papers of secret negotiations between the extremists of the Anglican clergy and the Vatican, looking to his submission to Rome of the whole body of Ritualists, strenuously denies the existence of any such negotiations. It may there be a powerful, but not a secret, movement among the English Protestant clergy towards a return "into the bosom of the Church."

—Saturday, January 19, Miss Helen Ortiles, our Sister Mary Patricia, of Clifton, county Galway, Ireland, received the habit of the Order of Mercy at St. Alphonsus' Convent of Mercy, in New Orleans. Rev. F. Gravesky, C. SS. R., officiated, and, as is usual with him on all occasions, preached a sermon that was both eloquent and practical. Among the reverend clergy present were Rev. H. Gissen, C. SS. R., Father Meighan, of the Cathedral, Father Finn, of St. Patrick's, and Father Reilly, of the diocese of Natchez.

—Rev. Fathers Albino and Paolo, of the order of Passionists, arrived on the 30th January to Savannah, on their journey to St. Augustine, Fla., where they are going by invitation of Right Rev. Bishop Verot. It is their intention to give some days to each of the different congregations of the diocese of St. Augustine. In Key West, which place they will visit on the 15th, they will preach a mission in Spanish, for the benefit of the many Spanish Catholics of that place.

—Pius IX. has printed daily for several the death of the most gifted priest of the diocese of Kildare and Leighlin. There are in that extensive diocese many excellent priests distinguished for prudence, piety, zeal and knowledge, but we feel we express the universal opinion of the clergy of Kildare that among them, as a body, learned and devoted priest, Rev. F. Finnemore held the first place. He was cut off in the prime of life, being in his 43d year, and of him it may be

STOCK BROKERS.

W. C. PARKER. J. B. BARRETT.

PARKER & BARRETT,
Commission Stock Brokers,
San Francisco Stock and Exchange Board,
112 Leidesdorff Street,
SAN FRANCISCO.

CLAY M. GREENE. HARRY A. GREENE
Member Pacific Stock Exch'ge.

GREENE & CO.,
Commission Stock Brokers,
OFFICE:
Pacific Stock Exchange Building,
423 HALLECK STREET.,

M. O'NEIL. M. S. O'NEIL.
Attorney-at-Law.

M. O'NEIL & SON.
Real Estate and Law Agency,
NO. 708 MISSION STREET,
Corner Third.....SAN F'ANCISCO.

Cheap Investments in Real Estate
LIST CHANGED WEEKLY.

Lot 52x54, with six tenements, renting for $100 per month, on Adelaide Place, off Taylor st., between Post and Geary.....$7,250
Two Lots 25x100, on east side of Hyde st., between Twenty-first and Twenty-second, on the immediate line of the horse-cars.....$1,000
Lot 45x80 on north line of O'Farrell street, between Franklin and Gough.....$1,750
Lots Nos. 272 and 300 on Gates street (Holladay tract).....$675
A number of desirable Houses and Lots on Stanislaus street, Oakland, from.....$1,000 to $2,500
40 vara Lot on Ellert street, between Bernardoe and Mission.....$1,000
N. E. corner Jones and Bernardoe, 82½x137½.....$1,000
Lot 25x100, Hyde st., between Pine and Bush.....$1,000
Lots Nos. 1196, 1197, 1198, 1199, 1200, 1201, in Gift Map No. 3. Price of whole.....$700
Corner Lot, No. 16, Block 334, Tax 106, in Bay View Homestead Association.....$150
Lots 18, 19 and 20, Block 304, in the Bay View Homestead Association.....$450
N. E. corner Sansome and Thirtieth streets, on the installment plan—lot 27x114.....$600
Lots 132x275, on Green street, east of Hyde, reaching back to Leavenworth place—each.....$100
Four good lots and improvements on Folsom st., bet. Fifth and Sixth; 1 at profit of $75 per month; 3 at $50 per month.
Lot 25x100, on west side of Webster street, between Pine and Bush, 27x100.....$1,500
Lot 25x100, Bush st., and lot 9×137½, on Larkin street near Noe.....$1,000
Three Lots 25x100, 2 near the corner of Kirkham and Eighteenth streets, Oakland. Price, $500; terms easy.
N. W. corner of Bryant and Twenty-fifth streets. Two dwelling, concrete, brick wall, new force pump. Lot 25x100.....$4,000
Lot 25x100, Bay st., between Powell and Mason, 27 feet the Berkeley University; now rented for $120 per month.....$2,500
Lot 25x100, on Jones street, south side of Bush street, west of Leavenworth; lot 27 by 137½.....$1,250
Lot 25x100, on Bush st., between Hyde and Larkin. Seventh street, near Brannan.....$1,000
Seven Tenement and Lot 25x80; rents for $70 per month.....$2,000
A promising Business (corner) with three years' lease, on rising road; a special chance.
We have numerous applications for small homes. Persons having such to sell are requested to call.
ja21

WYNNE, LOWTH & CO.
704 and 706 MARKET STREET,
OPPOSITE THIRD, AND
5 and 7 Geary Street, NEAR MARKET,
HAVING MADE LARGE PURCHASES OF
DRY GOODS
At the Great Liquidation Sale of LAZARD FRÈRES, are enabled to sell the same Goods at less than Importers' prices.
BLACK GROS GRAIN SILK, at $1 per yard.
HEAVY BLACK SILK, Cashmere finish, $1 per yard.
FINE IRISH POPLIN, $1 50 per yard.
Colored and BLACK CASHMERE, 75c. per yard.
ALL WOOL DIAGONALS, 37½c. per yard.
SPECIAL THOROUGH-FRAME HOSE, full formed, 4½ per dozen.
RALEIGH'S HOSE, 37½c. per pair.
Ladies' and Gents' UNDERWEAR.
CLOTH, SILK and LACE GOODS.
BLANKETS, SHEETING, and
HOUSE-FURNISHING GOODS
At Wholesale Rates.
FANCY GOODS in great variety.
Ladies' and Gents' FURNISHING GOODS.
Irish Tatting.
BRADFORD SERGES, in Black and White for use of Clergy and Sisters.
The celebrated seamless Bolton GLOVES, $1 50 per pair.
WYNNE, LOWTH & CO.
Central Dry Goods House.

NOTICE
HIBERNIAN SOCIETIES.
Societies or individuals requiring Flags, Banners, Scarfs, Regalia, etc., should call on the undersigned, before purchasing elsewhere. A large supply of Ancient Order regalia constantly on hand. Prices moderate.
E. PARQUALE.
ja15 1m 644 Washington street, San Francisco.

SULLIVAN, KELLY & CO.,
Northwest corner Pine and Front Sts.
Where they offer for sale
THE LARGEST STOCK OF PAINTS,
OILS,
GLASS
ETC., ETC., ON THE PACIFIC COAST,
AT THE LOWEST MARKET RATES.
101, 103 and 105 FRONT STREET,
110 PINE STREET.

DIVIDEND NOTICE.
Hibernia Savings and Loan Society,
SAN FRANCISCO, January 25, 1876.
AT a regular meeting of the Board of Directors of the Hibernia Savings and Loan Society, held this day, a dividend at the rate of eight per cent. per annum was declared for the half year ending January 31, 1876, free from Federal tax, and payable from and after the date.
EDWARD MARTIN, Secretary.
ja29

THE ARCADE,
MARKET STREET, NEAR FOURTH.
NOVELTIES IN SILKS!
NOVELTIES IN DRESS GOODS!
☞ Our arrangements for the Fall season are now complete, and we have present on exhibition the most extensive assortment of European Novelties introduced the Ladies of California.
DOMESTIC GOODS.
In this department we have now completed all our contracts for the coming season and are prepared to offer housekeepers every species of Domestic Goods at prices which cannot be approached by any house in San Francisco.
SPECIAL NOTICE.—Two-Button Jouvin Gloves, ☞ $1 50 per Pair. The immense sale of these Gloves in the past ten days is a distinct indication that the Ladies of San Francisco have now realized the fact that the opportunity now presented for the purchase of Jouvin Gloves may never again occur. Note the price—Two-Button Jouvin Gloves, $1 50 per pair. ☞ Every pair guaranteed.
J. J. O'BRIEN & CO.,
924, 926 AND 928 MARKET STREET.

IMPORTANT NOTICE!
Second Grand Annual Sale of
Ladies' and Gents' BOOTS AND SHOES.
MEN'S AND BOYS' CUSTOM-MADE CLOTHING.
NO FANCY PRICES.
Dry Goods, Etc.
JAMES O'HANLON & CO.,
725 MONTGOMERY STREET, West Side, near Jackson.
J. O'H. & CO. beg leave to inform their numerous friends and patrons that they sell for the next sixty days, regardless of cost, their IMMENSE STOCK OF STAPLE GOODS. Strangers visiting the city will find it to their advantage to call and compare prices with those of other stores; they will readily see that they can save 25 cents on the dollar. To be closed out.

1,000 pairs Ladies' Kid-lined Balmorals.....$1 25
Full Goatskin Balmorals.....1 75
Extra quality Balmorals.....1 75
Misses' Kid-lined Balmorals.....1 50
Misses' Goatskin Balmorals.....1 50
Ladies' Gaiters.....2 00
Ladies' Satin Oxford Slippers.....75
1,000 pairs Leather Slippers.....50
Men's Custom-made Boots.....$5 00

Boys' Custom-made Boots.....$4 00
Children's Calf Shoes, sizes 5 to 8.....1 00
Men's Rubber Boots (long).....3 00
1,000 white Men's Clothing, serviceable and good, from.....$12 00 to $15 00
Elegant Beaver Satin, from.....$2 00
A splendid lecture of Grant's Generals.....$1 00
Boys' Clothing a specialty. Splendid suits, $3 00.

NEW TAILORING ESTABLISHMENT.
B. FLOOD,
Fashionable Tailor
657 HOWARD STREET, Bet. Second and Third.
☞ Fine Clothing made to order at the following low prices:
Fine Business Suits, Cassimere Pants, to order.....$15 00
Fine Business Suits, to order.....$18 00
Fine Diagonal Suits, to order.....$20 00
Fine Black Beaver Suits, to order.....$25 00
Fine Spring Overcoats, to order.....$15 00
☞ All other Garments made at proportionably low rates. Full satisfaction guaranteed as to quality of goods and perfection of fit. Special attention given to Fine Livery Suits.
ja24-1y

STEINWAY & SONS'
PIANOS
Square, $475 and $550.
Square Grand, $400.
Upright, $550 $600, $800
Grand, $1,080, $1,200.
☞ Illustrated Catalogues on application.
KRANICH, BACH & CO'S (New York)
SUPERIOR PIANOS,
At a moderate cost—7½ Octaves—$300 and $375. Warranted to stand in an climates.
Sold for cash, or on the installment plan at fair rates, with one per cent. per month added on deferred payments.
MATTHIAS GRAY,
300 Kearny Street, San Francisco, and
101 First Street, Portland, O.
General Agent for manufacturers for the Pacific Coast.
mr31

Astonishment
See often been expressed at the low rates charged by Britton & Cooper at their Art Studio, No. 8 Montgomery street, Lick House block, on the first floor. Citizens and strangers alike marvel at their ability to do such fine work at such low rates. Go to the best, if you want the best. Remember the place, No. 8 Montgomery street, Lick House block.

Prompt use of delivery is a prominent characteristic in our business. Orders by mail or express receive the same attention as if given in person.
Paper Hanging, Kalsomining, Painting, Glazing, Graining, etc.
Black Walnut and Oak Graining a specialty.
Cor. Clay and Sansome sts., San Francisco.

ST. MARY'S HOSPITAL,
Corner Bryant and First Streets,
SAN FRANCISCO.
THIS INSTITUTION IS UNDER CHARGE OF THE SISTERS OF MERCY.
JAMES MURPHY, M. D.....Visiting Surgeon
JAMES H. WHITNEY, M. D.....Visiting Physician
ADOLPH BARKAN, M. D.....Consulting Physician
C. O. SULLIVAN, M. D.....Resident Physician
Terms (monthly in advance)—$10 per week in the wards; $20 per week in private rooms. Liquors and washing extra.
Children under years, $10 extra.
☞ Deceased patients not required to pay in advance.
Money always refunded in case a patient leaves before the expiration of the month.
INFORMATION WANTED—OF BERNARD DIVINE, native of Portarlington, Queen's County, Ireland, who came in the month of May, 1875, per ship Ida. If he or any one knowing of his whereabouts, will address MISS A. J. DIVINE, Washington, D. C., or J. McMANUS, 1 Front street, San Francisco, they will confer a great favor.
jy1

Tempus Proterivum Sunquam Recuperandum
"Time Past Is Never Time Present."
IF YOU WANT TO HAVE YOUR CLOCKS Watches Soap good time, and cease grumbling, go to Frossler, 116 Kearny street, and get them cleaned. He repairs Watches, Clocks and Jewelry very prices, and guarantees satisfaction. He will please, bear in mind that he never was in the United States before, and has no relations or friends or more different watchmakers, you will lose by calling on
D. A. O'CONNELL,
WATCH AND CLOCK MAKER
102 Third Street, near Howard.
He will receive your Watch and Clock for charge, and repair them at your residence, and return them free of charge. Satisfaction guaranteed in all cases or no charge. Orders by mail promptly attended to.
VESTA SLIDE—Cashmere, Soy's Cashmere and Flaxed Wave, as good and cheap as can be made. Sent by mail, 25 cents each. Give size of lamp.
Please give him a trial. You will save money and receive satisfaction.

MASON & HAMLIN
ORGANS.
The Best and Cheapest. Now Style
☞ Send for Catalogue. Pianos & Organs to rent. Tuning and Repairing done.
KOHLER, CHASE & CO.,
633 Clay Street, San Francisco
Broadway, corner Fourteenth street, OAKLAND.
J. W. FARREN,
WAGON MAKER & BLACKSMITH
101 BEALE STREET,
Between Mission and Howard.....San Francisco
Carts, Wagons and Trucks made to order and repairing done with neatness and dispatch. Horses attended to, and all work guaranteed to give satisfaction.

Over 1,000,000 Witnesses
Can testify to the superiority of the DIAMOND SPECTACLES AND EYE-GLASSES, being the most perfect artificial help to the human eye known to science. Lenses for every defect. One responsible jeweler in every town.
Get the genuine.
Trade mark stamped in the bow of the frame and inside of the Eye-Glass.
SPENCER MANUFACTURING CO.,
19 Maiden lane, New York.
California Jewelry Company (EKYMON BROS.), 124 Sutter street, San Francisco, General Agents for Pacific Coast.

$5 to $20 Per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. STINSON & CO., Portland, Me.

THE MONITOR & GUARDIAN.
The Only Irish and Catholic Journal in California.
LYONS & BARRY, - - - - Publishers.
RICHARD O'SULLIVAN.....EDITOR
OFFICE—634 CLAY STREET, between Montgomery and Kearny sts. (Rooms 2, 7 and 8, up-stairs.)
TERMS (Payable in Advance):
Served by Carriers, per week.....10c
Mail subscribers, per year.....$4 00
Six months.....2 50
Mail subscribers to Ireland or either of the British Provinces.....5 00
Single copies, six months.....5 cts
☞ Postage in each case prepaid by publishers.

VOL. XIX. SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 19, 1876. NO. 20.

"Dr. O'Meara, you know this is not allowed. I think you made too free with Prince Frenchman."

Dr. O'Meara being, like Sir Thomas Reade, an Irishman, answered rather roughly:

"I don't understand, Sir Thomas, why you mean by making too free with these Frenchmen. I know my duty as well as you do yours, and while I never deviate from that duty I always remember the behavior of a gentleman, and the customs which should be shown to a gentleman."

Count Las Casas then went on board, attended by Sir Thomas Reade and the French lieutenant. The latter did not stop long, and when they returned Count Las Casas invited them to his house, but declining his invitation they mounted their horses and started for Longwood.

I got liberty from Marshal Bertrand and Sir Thomas Reade to remain in town that night, and Sir Thomas told me to call on him in the morning on my way to Longwood. I did so, and when Napoleon he asked me a great many questions which I could not answer; he wanted to persuade me that I must know something wrong about the people at Longwood. I told him the truth—namely, that I always acted according to regulations, and I believed every other person had done the same. He then inquired if Dr. O'Meara was not always with Bonaparte or his Generals. I replied that Dr. O'Meara never went to Napoleon unless he was sent for. Sir Thomas next wanted to know how often Dr. O'Meara dined with Bonaparte, and what was the subject of their conversation when they met.

"The Doctor always dines with Bonaparte," I replied, "whenever the Generals and Count Montholon do"—and, to prevent three times a week, when Bonaparte was alone, he would leave it again when it had been copied. I was an eye-witness of this cruel outrage, for I had gone into town with a small portfolio for Young Las Casas that had been left behind. They were very grateful, and wanted to give me some money; but Sir Thomas Reade would not allow me to accept it, saying he very well knew that I would not take anything from them or any other French prisoners, he would put me in jail. Dr. O'Meara, who was present, walked down to the boat arm-in-arm with young Las Casas. He himself to go on board with them, but Sir Thomas Reade said:

"Time Past Is Never Time Present."

IF YOU WANT TO HAVE YOUR CLOCKS Watches Soap good time, and cease grumbling, go to Frossler, 116 Kearny street, and get them cleaned. He repairs Watches, Clocks and Jewelry very prices, and guarantees satisfaction. He will please, bear in mind that he never was in the United States before, and has no relations or friends or more different watchmakers, you will lose by calling on

D. A. O'CONNELL,
WATCH AND CLOCK MAKER
102 Third Street, near Howard.

He will receive your Watch and Clock for charge, and repair them at your residence, and return them free of charge. Satisfaction guaranteed in all cases or no charge. Orders by mail promptly attended to.

VESTA SLIDE—Cashmere, Soy's Cashmere and Flaxed Wave, as good and cheap as can be made. Sent by mail, 25 cents each. Give size of lamp.

Please give him a trial. You will save money and receive satisfaction.

MATTHIAS GRAY,
300 Kearny Street, San Francisco, and
101 First Street, Portland, O.
General Agent for manufacturers for the Pacific Coast.
mr31

MASON & HAMLIN
ORGANS.
The Best and Cheapest. Now Style
☞ Send for Catalogue. Pianos & Organs to rent. Tuning and Repairing done.
KOHLER, CHASE & CO.,
633 Clay Street, San Francisco
Broadway, corner Fourteenth street, OAKLAND.

J. W. FARREN,
WAGON MAKER & BLACKSMITH
101 BEALE STREET,
Between Mission and Howard.....San Francisco
Carts, Wagons and Trucks made to order and repairing done with neatness and dispatch. Horses attended to, and all work guaranteed to give satisfaction.

Over 1,000,000 Witnesses
Can testify to the superiority of the DIAMOND SPECTACLES AND EYE-GLASSES, being the most perfect artificial help to the human eye known to science. Lenses for every defect. One responsible jeweler in every town.
Get the genuine.
Trade mark stamped in the bow of the frame and inside of the Eye-Glass.
SPENCER MANUFACTURING CO.,
19 Maiden lane, New York.
California Jewelry Company (EKYMON BROS.), 124 Sutter street, San Francisco, General Agents for Pacific Coast.

$5 to $20 Per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. STINSON & CO., Portland, Me.

"Napoleon at St. Helena.

When of two literary brothers one is big and the other is small, there is generally a tendency on the part of the lesser to imbibe and reproduce some of the opinions of the greater. The late Canon Kingsley had genius; his brother Henry has ability. The Canon was an anti-Catholic bigot saturated by a spirit of downright malignity; his brother seems to feel bound to follow suit, but being rather a good-natured fellow, he misrepresents and prates about the scarp venom of his brother. In the tale, "The Grange Garden," he introduces a great deal about Catholicism, therefore, in which there is manifested a good deal more of blundering than of quality of literary ability. The interesting series of Fraser's Magazine, called "Napoleon at St. Helena," turn, in the January number, upon the opposed plot of Count Las Casas to effect the escape of the Emperor. It affords an illustration of the manner of Napoleon's jealousy.

When the H. E. I. C. ship General Kyd (Griffin written), Sir Thomas Reade and his assistant, Captain Blackeney, of the 53d Regiment, came up to Longford about three o'clock in the afternoon, to report that the ship would not be ready for the Count Las Casas and his suite on board. The carts were ordered to carry their baggage to Sir Thomas Reade's office in town. They were not allowed to take leave of Napoleon and the latter. Young Las Casas was very sorry for leaving Napoleon, and quite indignant at the manner in which his father and the others were getting something like a reprimand from the Court, to the great satisfaction of Dr. O'Meara.

Death of Hon. Ketrdy Johnson.

This distinguished lawyer and statesman died suddenly at Annapolis, Md., on Friday of last week. Mr. Johnson was on a visit to Governor Carroll, at whose residence he dined in company with other distinguished guests, and entertained the company with the recital of several anecdotes. To all appearance he was in the best of health, with an intention to remain for some time, and the prospect before him of adding, by a legal controversy in an important case, to that world-wide fame which he had through years acquired as a statesman and jurisconsult.

Mr. Johnson was born at Annapolis on the 21st of May, 1796; was educated at St. Joseph's College, and afterward Rodied the profession of law. He first held office by appointment to the State Attorneyship of Maryland in 1817. In that year he removed to Baltimore, where he resided ever since. He was the recipient of several offices, by election and appointment, between that period and 1845, when he was chosen United States Senator, in which position he served until 1849, when he resigned to accept a place in the Cabinet of General Taylor as Attorney General. When the latter died he again turned his attention to the practice of law, chiefly before the Supreme Court of the United States, where he occupied high rank among the leading legal minds of the country. He was again elected to the Senate of the Congress from Maryland in 1863, where he served till 1868. In June of the same year he was appointed Minister to England by President Lincoln, where he negotiated a treaty for the settlement of the Alabama claims, which, however, was rejected by the Senate. He was recalled in 1869, since which time up to the present he has been a retired a private citizen, but filled a large space in the public estimation of his eminent abilities as a scholar, statesman and attorney.

A HORRID COUPLE.—A couple who went from a Rhode Island town to New Bedford, Mass., to get the body of a deceased daughter and sister, died on the train drunk, on the way back, they had the coffin from the wagon, and did not intrust it to the baggage-master, but they took it in the passenger car with them. They went back and found the body in the highway with the face downward, and they had to call upon a farmer to help them replace it, they were so drunk.

ASTHMA, bronchitis, incipient consumption are negatively relieved by Dr. Hall's Breath Balm.

Reasons for Charity in Judgment of Others.

In one of our contemporaries of last week is an article on Prince Bismarck which claims our notice, from the charity and calmness of judgment which pervades it. More than once we have heard Catholics declare that the Bismarck and Gladstone are tools of the devil—Lodwes man who deserve to go to ——." Men with small minds and still less knowledge generally take a way to such language when alluding to those from whom they differ in opinion; with such persons we should not plead, because it would be a mere waste of time to do so; but there are others who, from being in constant contact with such persons, still, perhaps unknowingly, contract such a vicious mode and expression of thought that at times when we allude, To give a few incentives to charity, especially with reference to Prince Bismarck and Mr. Gladstone, is then the object of our remarks.

There is one fact which any student of ecclesiastical history must be conscious of, and that is, that a lively priest will make his congregation lively; and so, on the other hand, a worldly priest will kill in the souls of many of his people the treasure of living into life. In this land, in which God has placed us, we have a most fearful warning, which fully bears out the above statement.

In the reign of Henry VIII. the priests and bishops were, with very few exceptions, false to their trusts, false to Almighty God and to the work to which they had vowed to dedicate their lives. And what was the result? The Henry Knew went out of doors were then governing the Catholic Church, he knew that he could buy them, and he did; they came and all, with hardly an exception, by their voices to Cæsar what belonged to God. But although we honestly confess this to be the case, yet to us Catholics, who for years have witnessed laxness in life and duty, what first used to be the result? Surely they must have judged the tree by its fruits, and in too many cases have condemned it, and left the Church (Catholic Church) as unsound because they saw around them rotten branches. Prince Bismarck must be judged with charity. He was a religious man, a zealous Lutheran, and from his youth was taught to look favorably on Catholicism. In some parts of Germany, it is true, the priesthood were imbued with a spirit of worldliness, and a consequent disregard

A STUDY OF FREEMASONRY.

Translated from the French of Monsignour Dupanloup, Bishop of Orleans.

FIRST PART.

THE RADICAL OPPOSITION BETWEEN FREEMASONRY AND RELIGION.

VI.—(Continued.)

When, then, the Monde Maçonnique comes and tells us that the province of Freemasonry is to include all men, no matter to what religion they belong, I beg its pardon again; but the Monde Maçonnique does not understand itself; and little as men may be disposed to go to the bottom of things, they must see that to lay down such principles as the basis of the Masonic constitutions, and then pretend that they do not touch the question of religion, is a sinking consciousness if not a sneer.

This is what a high dignitary of one of the German lodges avowed, with a frankness which leaves nothing to be desired:

"Freemasonry and Catholicism," he writes, "reciprocally exclude each other; they are the antipodes. . . . I ask how a Catholic can remain faithful to his religion all the while professing Freemason principles? . . . A man who believes in the symbol of the Apostles, how can he allow that he is free and not bound to any religious belief? These things are direct contradictions."—Extract from pamphlet, "Vorlegegewart und Zukunft der Freimaurerei in Deutschland" (Leipzig, 1854), p. 116.

VII.

Fresh Details as to the Warfare Declared Against Christianity.—Morality without God.—Education without Religion.

Freemasonry is, then, a serious war declared against all religion. But the odious object of the Freemasons appears specially in the zeal they show in preaching morality without God, and, in consequence, in separating the instruction of youth from all religious belief.

Moral by, they declare, is the essence of Freemasonry; but the morality they are to understand shall be without Christianity. The lodges were conceived, and from Naples canonised, that impious chimera which they call "independent morality," and which is only another form of Atheism. In one sense, however, it is far from being a chimera, but a fact, which the Paris "Comunne," when triumphant, hastened to realise by turning out of the schools all religious emblems or instruction; and even recently, on calling back to the traditions of the Commune, the General Council voted in the same sense and with the same intention as the most secular education.

"Morality independent of all religious hypothesis," (1) such is the axiom of Freemasonry; and the conclusion they draw from it is this: that all religious instruction should be suppressed, and the reason they allege is, that religious belief is useless for the young, and, still more, that "Faith in God takes away the dignity of man, troubles his reason, and may lead him to the abandonment of all morality." This last heresy is expressly declared in the R.·. L.· La Rose des parfait Silencieux, Paris. To this question, in fact, "Is religious instruction to be suppressed?" the answer was, "Without any doubt," said the orator of the R.·. L.· des Vrais Amis Réunis" (Chaussé). (2) And the imaginary "Monde Maçonnique" (3) declares that "the study of a supernatural ambiguity, . . . and respect for one especially to the mind of a child," he adds, "forbids us to inculcate dogmas which might trouble his reason. (2)

Do we wish for another witness? I read again the following passage in the Monde Maçonnique: (3) "The R.·. Lodge, called the Amis de l'Ordre,' Orient of Paris, has lately propounded the following question: 'What kind of education should a Mason give to his children?'"

"All the orators declared themselves penetrated of a liberal and secular education, independent of narrow-minded religious instruction."

And the Monde Maçonnique quotes another of these speeches in no entirety; of which I will only give the following extract:

"Do not let us hear any more of that peaceful, false education, based on supernatural dogmas. . . . This method of bringing up our children has lasted too long: it is time, then, that it should come to an end. . . . The basis on which the educators of our children should rest is this: 'Let us teach them to admire and study the phenomena of nature.'" . . . and the orator adds, "without troubling their heads as to the means with which we should adorn these fine things." (4)

But here is a more paternal sentiment still, which is, we suppose, to inspire these gentlemen in the education of their children:

"Freemasonry," says Brother Massol, "in one of its allusions at the Masonic International Session held in July 1867, "ought to be, and is, only a school of morality, independent of all religious dogmas. . . . It have myself brought up children, but I have never led to them the ideas that they have saved me, 'What was meant by God?' I have answered, 'I know nothing about it.' It is time I have seized you soon." (5)

Let us see, further, how a piece of Masonic poetry of Brother Lechambaudie, read at a Masonic ban juet, treats the Christian Catechism:

"Quel est ce Dieu d'inconnu?
Est-ce un supérieur, ou le maître à tailler;
Dieu si bien. . . . ! !!!

(What is this elementary book? Superstitions, when reason is debased; a lesson.)

The Belgian lodges were determined not to be outdone in this patriotism by the French ones. Thus, in 1864, the Grand Orient of Belgium—you see, I do not quote minor Masonic authorities—put forth as a principle among the orders of the day to all the Lodges of Obedience. The lodges answered —and we shall see in what language—to Atheism by Logic, in particular, did not fear to go in the reply:—"The teaching of the Catechism is the greatest obstacle to the development of a child's faculties. The intervention of a priest in education deprives the children of all moral, logical and rational teaching." (7)

From the different answers sent by the Lodges of Obedience to the Grand Orient of Belgium, came forth a project of a Neo-Law, in 23 Arts., of which the first article was entitled, "Suppression of all religious education." And the second, "Obligation for a father or a widowed mother to force their children to school."

Remark the formidable connection between these two articles. According to them, if the wishes of these great Liberals be fulfilled, the law will force the father, the mother, or the widow, to drag their children to a school where all religious education will be suppressed. And therefore it is that, both at Paris and Brussels, they say on this subject, in the Lodge of "Bienfaisance et Fraternité," at Boulogne, on the 19th of July, 1867:

"By proper teaching, women will at last arrive at shaking off the yoke of the clergy, and freeing themselves from superstitions which prevent their receiving a education corresponding with the requirements of modern opinion. To give a proof of this, where is the English, American or German woman who, to the two questions which their children might ask them, 'Who has created the world?' and 'Do we exist after death?' would dare to answer that she does not know, and that 'no one knows anything about it?' Well, this courage is a well-taught Frenchwoman would have." (1) Is that quite clear?

And the reason of this propaganda Brother Albert Lamy (formerly professor of rhetoric, if I am not mistaken, at the Versailles Lyceum, under the Ministry of M. Jules Simon) clearly demonstrated in these terms, in a Masonic International meeting held in the month of August, 1867, at Paris. "Without women all the men together will never be able to succeed" (2)

Two contemporary and startling facts besides bear witness to this activity on the part of the Freemasons to propagate atheistical instruction without any religion. I speak of the creation of Professional Schools for Girls and of the Education League.

The Professional School for Girls.—Under no other agency than chance. Mr. them says the story was communicated to him in July, 1850, by Captain J. S. Clarke of the schooner John Hallock, then lying at Smyrna, who had it directly from Mr. Bruce himself. He adds that the John Hallock was then trading between New York and Santiago, Cuba.

Mr. Robert Bruce, born at Torbay, in the South of England, and, from his youth up to seafaring life, in 1826, when about thirty years of age, was first mate of a ship trading between Liverpool and St. John, N. B. On one of her voyages bound westward, being then five or six days out, he heard and neared the eastern portion of the banks of Newfoundland, the Captain and officers of the ship on deck at noon, asking an observation of the sun; after which they both departed to calculate their day's work. The cabin, a small one, was immediately at the stern abaft of the vessel, and the short stairway or companion, in a world, I provide, persons directly opposite to this stairway, just beyond a small square landing, was the mate's stateroom; and from that landing there were two doors, close to each other, the one opening aft into the cabin and the other fronting the stairway into the stateroom.

THE VISION.

The deck was in the front part of the cabin, close to the door, that way; one sitting at it and looking over his shoulder could see into the cabin. The mate, assuming the subject, commenced, did not result as he had expected, varying considerably from the usual reasoning, had not reasons as the great means, employed by the Masonic propaganda, the schools, teaching, perversion of young girls and of women, the so called secular, i. e., anti-Christian education.

But still more formidable than these professional schools, because the diffusion, thanks to the frivolity and indifference of the public mind, has been more rapid and universal in our country, is the League called of Education, founded in Belgium by Freemasons, and imported from Belgium into France by a celebrated Freemason whom I have already quoted, Brother Jean Macé. It was at the Congress of Lausanne, in 1867, that Brother Jean Macé announced the birth of the "International Education League," that Brother Jean Macé resolved "to induce the French to form an analogous League."

This Masonic origin of the League reveals in its object clearly enough. And as to Brother Jean Macé himself, to hearing the speech which inspired him, we need only refer to the toast on the occasion of the inauguration of a new Masonic lodge at Perigueux: "To the memory of Brother Voltaire," (3) etc. . . . Like the professional schools for girls, the Education League has two objects—one proclaimed and one hidden. The avowed object is the League's secular education. But what education? That is what they do not state, for they trust to their adepts; education without God, independent of all religion, and the result of which is to bring up men [nearly and entirely] unchristianly had never existed. This is the real object of the League.

If a number of careless or deceived persons have entered into this League, without a thought of looking further than to the outward sign, let them listen to what the Freemason press (which knows very well what it says and does) says on the same subject:

"We are happy to announce," writes the Monde Maçonnique, in its April number (1867), "that the subscriptions for the Education League and the Journal of the same name meet with the warmest sympathy in all our lodges. . . . We trust the lodges will have two subscriptions more in harmony with each other. Voltaire, that is to say, the destruction of all prejudices and superstitions" (translate religions), "and the Education League, that is to say, the building up of a new society, based on the sound and instruction alone," (that is, free from every kind of religion). "All are Brothers under standit thus." And again, a little further on: "The principles which we profess are to assure universal peace and to make respect for conjest of Brother Jean Macé."

Remember, it is the Monde Maçonnique which writes this—a newspaper which, in all its pages, declares that all religions are mere [darkness] that Freemasonry is the light of God, the soul, and a future life are only the hypothesis, phenomena; that, in consequence, man should be educated and the progress realised above and outside all Christianity and all religion. And this newspaper declared that its principles are in perfect unison with those which inspired the project of the League of Brother Jean Macé, and which adds: "Freemasons should adhere in a body to the League of Education League, and the lodges should study, in the peaceful deliberations of their meetings, how best to ensure its efficacious."

This is, after all, what Brother Jean Macé himself declared in his speech on the alliance of the League and Freemasonry, and in which he declared that all Freemasons should be leaguers, and all leaguers Freemasons; that the object, principle and aim of the League and Freemasonry were identical; and he gave the following laws:

1. To the entry of all Freemasons into the League.

2. To the entry into Freemasonry of all members of the League.

3. To the triumph of the light—the not border common to both the League and Freemasonry. (4)

And this appeal was so well responded to that, in a "Report of the First Year of the Propagation of the League in France," Brother Jean Macé boasted that all the French departments, save twelve, were enrolled in the League; "and thus," he adds, "the French League will end by becoming a great army." An educational army, certainly, which on ministers of public instruction will easily govern.

(1) Le Monde Maçonnique, May, 1867, p. 81.
(2) Ibid. October 1866, pp. 272, 273.
(3) T. xiii. May 1870, p. 16.
(4) Le Monde Maçonnique, t. xiv. pp. 14, 15.
(5) Ibid. August 1867, pp. 106, 107.
(6) Ibid. April 1867, p. 125.
(7) Journal de Session, 20th November, 1864. Quoted by M. Nyel, t. I. p. 147.

(1) Le Monde Maçonnique, August, 1867, p. 74.
(2) Ibid. August, 1867.
(3) The Monde Maçonnique, May, 1867, p. 333.
(4) The Monde Maçonnique, July, 1866.

SPECTER MANIFESTATIONS.

Dr. Hibbert has shown that specters are nothing more than ideas or the recollected images of the mind, which in certain states of bodily indisposition have been considered more vivid than actual impressions, and that the pictures of the "mind's eye" are more vivid than the pictures of the body's eye. Sir David Brewster, in his "Natural Magic," goes farther than this, and shows that the "mind's eye" is actually the body's eye, and that the retina is the common intellect on which both classes of impressions are painted, and by means of which they receive their visual existence under the same optical laws. He thinks that this is not only true in the case of spectral illusions, but that it holds good of all those recalled by the memory or created by the imagination, and that it may be regarded as the fundamental law in the science of pneumatology.

Robert Dale Owen, in his "Footfalls on the Boundary of Another World," tells a marvelous story of coincidences that one can hardly believe were brought about by no other agency than chance. Mr. Owen says the story was communicated to him in July, 1850, by Captain J. S. Clarke of the schooner John Hallock, then lying at Smyrna, who had it directly from Mr. Bruce himself. He adds that the John Hallock was then trading between New York and Santiago, Cuba.

Mr. Robert Bruce, born at Torbay, in the South of England, and, from his youth up to seafaring life, in 1826, when about thirty years of age, was first mate of a ship trading between Liverpool and St. John, N. B. On one of her voyages bound westward, being then five or six days out, he heard and neared the eastern portion of the banks of Newfoundland, the Captain and officers of the ship on deck at noon, asking an observation of the sun; after which they both departed to calculate their day's work. The cabin, a small one, was immediately at the stern abaft of the vessel, and the short stairway or companion, in a world, I provide, persons directly opposite to this stairway, just beyond a small square landing, was the mate's stateroom; and from that landing there were two doors, close to each other, the one opening aft into the cabin and the other fronting the stairway into the stateroom.

THE VISION.

The deck was in the front part of the cabin, close to the door, that way; one sitting at it and looking over his shoulder could see into the cabin. The mate, assuming the subject, commenced, did not result as he had expected, varying considerably from the usual reasoning, had not reasons as the great means, employed by the Masonic propaganda, the schools, teaching, perversion of young girls and of women, the so called secular, i. e., anti-Christian education.

But still more formidable than these professional schools, because the diffusion, thanks to the frivolity and indifference of the public mind, has been more rapid and universal in our country, is the League called of Education, founded in Belgium by Freemasons, and imported from Belgium into France by a celebrated Freemason whom I have already quoted, Brother Jean Macé. It was at the Congress of Lausanne, in 1867, that Brother Jean Macé announced the birth of the "International Education League," that Brother Jean Macé resolved "to induce the French to form an analogous League."

This Masonic origin of the League reveals in its object clearly enough. And as to Brother Jean Macé himself, to hearing the speech which inspired him, we need only refer to the toast on the occasion of the inauguration of a new Masonic lodge at Perigueux: "To the memory of Brother Voltaire," (3) etc. . . . Like the professional schools for girls, the Education League has two objects—one proclaimed and one hidden. The avowed object is the League's secular education. But what education? That is what they do not state, for they trust to their adepts; education without God, independent of all religion, and the result of which is to bring up men [nearly and entirely] unchristianly had never existed. This is the real object of the League.

If a number of careless or deceived persons have entered into this League, without a thought of looking further than to the outward sign, let them listen to what the Freemason press (which knows very well what it says and does) says on the same subject:

"We are happy to announce," writes the Monde Maçonnique, in its April number (1867), "that the subscriptions for the Education League and the Journal of the same name meet with the warmest sympathy in all our lodges. . . . We trust the lodges will have two subscriptions more in harmony with each other. Voltaire, that is to say, the destruction of all prejudices and superstitions" (translate religions), "and the Education League, that is to say, the building up of a new society, based on the sound and instruction alone," (that is, free from every kind of religion). "All are Brothers under standit thus." And again, a little further on: "The principles which we profess are to assure universal peace and to make respect for conjest of Brother Jean Macé."

Remember, it is the Monde Maçonnique which writes this—a newspaper which, in all its pages, declares that all religions are mere [darkness] that Freemasonry is the light of God, the soul, and a future life are only the hypothesis, phenomena; that, in consequence, man should be educated and the progress realised above and outside all Christianity and all religion. And this newspaper declared that its principles are in perfect unison with those which inspired the project of the League of Brother Jean Macé, and which adds: "Freemasons should adhere in a body to the League of Education League, and the lodges should study, in the peaceful deliberations of their meetings, how best to ensure its efficacious."

This is, after all, what Brother Jean Macé himself declared in his speech on the alliance of the League and Freemasonry, and in which he declared that all Freemasons should be leaguers, and all leaguers Freemasons; that the object, principle and aim of the League and Freemasonry were identical; and he gave the following laws:

1. To the entry of all Freemasons into the League.

2. To the entry into Freemasonry of all members of the League.

3. To the triumph of the light—the not border common to both the League and Freemasonry. (4)

And this appeal was so well responded to that, in a "Report of the First Year of the Propagation of the League in France," Brother Jean Macé boasted that all the French departments, save twelve, were enrolled in the League; "and thus," he adds, "the French League will end by becoming a great army." An educational army, certainly, which on ministers of public instruction will easily govern.

(1) Le Monde Maçonnique, May, 1867, p. 81.
(2) Ibid. October 1866, pp. 272, 273.
(3) T. xiii. May 1870, p. 16.
(4) Le Monde Maçonnique, t. xiv. pp. 14, 15.
(5) Ibid. August 1867, pp. 106, 107.
(6) Ibid. April 1867, p. 125.
(7) Journal de Session, 20th November, 1864. Quoted by M. Nyel, t. I. p. 147.

Peter Dwyer, "An Evangelist on his Own Hook."

(From the New York World.)

On a high modern gale, at 58 Vandam street, a tin sign bears the name: "Peter Dwyer." Opening the gate recently, a reporter of the World entered a long, narrow alley, and passing through came upon a half-tumbled-down house, the door of which stood open. Entering this shanty, he climbed up two pairs of steep and narrow stairs, and knocking upon a door on the top was admitted by an individual of whom no better account can be given than was furnished to the reporter in answer in a series of questions by the gentleman himself.

"My name is Peter Dwyer," said he, seating himself carelessly on the edge of a chair, and resting a hand on each knee, "and I am a saved man. God has seen fit to save me." He turned his eyes religiously upon the ceiling, and pausing for a moment gave the reporter an opportunity to survey the apartment. It was small room scantily furnished, a few chairs and a deal table adjoining the supply of furniture. The walls, freshly white-washed, were ornamented with highly-colored Scriptural mottoes, apparently from the hand of Holy Scripture in the matter of science was the language of men and the language of sense, which we used to the very day. We saw the rise and the sun set in spite of tradition and the Church's decree, we used the language of sense, which was the language of God, and we declared ourselves the men could understand. The question was put to us, and we answered from our own observation. We moved round the sun or the sun moved round us, and it was a matter of science which there was no revelation. We never had been any declaration of science which was in contradiction with any of the revealed truth, and those who put that theory forward, put it forward without any sort of a clear knowledge of what revelation was, and were mistaken opinion of their own which

THEY SUPPOSED TO BE SCIENTIFIC.

In like manner, in matters of history—the social and political orders and institutions of mankind—which we had been describing—had no revelation to contradict to the faith. The Church, he continued, had no claim to be afraid of the school. If the Catholic Church of England was to fear [to be raised] from the school, she would live a long time. The Catholic series matters assumed were crying out for the immediate attention of the school. He was well prepared for public opinion, speaking of the French Revolution, and established and quite at three things—infidelity, the Church and the Revolution. The infidel was the real part of the movement. It followed the rectification or sanctification of the Church. The Church had also, as regarding the knowledge of science, put it compares with revelation. Wherever science was opposed to revelation the revelation was supreme, and a follower was not possible to send the Church to Coventry, because the communion of the Church pervaded all the regions of science in some such. As the head of society gets its jurisdiction "runs," so it was with religion. They were told that revelation had nothing to do with politics; but the world ask what were politics but the cultivation of morals of men living together in society.—those moral laws which governed men as individuals, as citizens and as subjects, and which, in fact, governed the governors as well as the governed! He could not

NO DISTINCTION BETWEEN MORALS AND POLITICS,

Except that politics were morals on a large scale, and morals were politics on a narrow scale, and therefore he was told that the instruction that politics and religion were to be separated, or at least that politics and religion were to be separated, he said he could not separate morals from religion, and it would be very difficult to separate politics from religion. He held, from the natural process of reasoning, that the attempt to isolate theology from science was contrary to faith and reason; and he never yet so thoroughly felt that science had never yet so thoroughly felt anything contrary to faith. When man spoke of Galileo, he (Mr. Dwyer) said he killed the Church. What he did was to imbue some hypothesis. on, and that hypothesis was not demonstrated until long afterwards. Lord Bacon and Descartes, one of the greatest literary men of the seventeenth century, in the manner died disbelieving it, and when it was demonstrated in the fact was not effected. As soon as that demonstration was made, the Church in its wisdom at once declared that the language of Holy Scripture in the matter of science was the language of men and the language of sense, which we used to the very day. We saw the rise and the sun set in spite of tradition and the Church's decree, we used the language of sense, which was the language of God, and we declared ourselves the men could understand. The question was put to us, and we answered from our own observation. We moved round the sun or the sun moved round us, and it was a matter of science which there was no revelation. He never had been any declaration of science which was in contradiction with any of the revealed truth, and those who put that theory forward, put it forward without any sort of a clear knowledge of what revelation was, and were mistaken opinion of their own which

THEY SUPPOSED TO BE SCIENTIFIC.

In like manner, in matters of history—the social and political orders and institutions of mankind—which we had been describing—had no revelation to contradict to the faith. The Church, he continued, had no claim to be afraid of the school. If the Catholic Church of England was to fear [to be raised] from the school, she would live a long time. The Catholic series matters assumed were crying out for the immediate attention of the school. He was well prepared for public opinion, speaking of the French Revolution, and established and quite at three things—infidelity, the Church and the Revolution. The infidel was the real part of the movement. It followed the rectification or sanctification of the Church. The Church had also, as regarding the knowledge of science, put it compares with revelation. Wherever science was opposed to revelation the revelation was supreme, and a follower was not possible to send the Church to Coventry, because the communion of the Church pervaded all the regions of science in some such. As the head of society gets its jurisdiction "runs," so it was with religion. They were told that revelation had nothing to do with politics; but the world ask what were politics but the cultivation of morals of men living together in society.—those moral laws which governed

STOCK BROKERS.

W. C. PARKER. J. W. BARRETT.
PARKER & BARRETT,
Commission Stock Brokers,
San Francisco Stock and Exchange Board.
112 Leidesdorff Street,
SAN FRANCISCO.

CLAY M. GREENE. HARRY A. GREENE
Member Pacific Stock Exch'ge.
GREENE & CO.,
Commission Stock Brokers,
OFFICE:
Pacific Stock Exchange Building,
419 HALLECK STREET.

PROFESSIONAL CARDS.

THOMAS P. RYAN,
Attorney-at-Law,
Rooms 4 and 5,
Metropolitan Block, 9 Montgomery Av.
416

J. M. BURNETT,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
610 Montgomery Street,
Between Washington and Merchant streets,
SAN FRANCISCO.

J. F. SULLIVAN,
Attorney and Counselor-at-Law,
NO. 607 KEARNY STREET,
Bet. Sacramento and Commercial ..... San Francisco.
3036

F. J. MOGAN. D. J. SULLIVAN.
MOGAN & SULLIVAN,
Attorneys and Counselors-at-Law,
608 CALIFORNIA STREET. 1271

WILLIAM A. PLUNKETT,
Attorney and Counselor-at-Law,
308 CALIFORNIA STREET,
ROOM 19,
Between Kearny and Montgomery ..... San Francisco, mr17 17

M. COONEY,
Attorney and Counselor at Law.
Office, Room No. 7, Court Block,
526 CLAY and 529 MERCHANT STREET

P. CUMMINS,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
Rooms 14 and 15 Court Block,
526 Clay street and 531 Merchant street.
ap11

DR. J. O'SULLIVAN,
Graduate of Harvard University (1861), Licentiate of Harvard College (1862), Licentiate of the Royal College of Physicians, London (1864), Member of the Royal College of Surgeons, London (1864), Licentiate of the Royal College of Physicians, Edinburgh (1864), Member of the Royal College of Surgeons, Edinburgh (1864), Licentiate of the Royal College of Surgeons, Ireland (1864), Licentiate of the Royal College of Physicians, Ireland

WEEKLY CALENDAR.
FOR THE WEEK ENDING FEBRUARY 26. Yr Month.
20—Sunday—Septuagesima Sunday.
21—Monday—Feria.
22—Tuesday—St. Peter's Chair at Antioch.
23—Wednesday—St. Polycarp, Bishop, Confessor and Doctor of the Church.
24—Thursday—Office of the Blessed Sacrament. VI. qui si bi. machine.
25—Friday—St. Matthias, Apostle.
26—Saturday—Office of the Immaculate Conception.

THE MONITOR & GUARDIAN:
THE ONLY
Irish and Catholic Journal in California,
IS PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY, IN SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
SATURDAY.....FEBRUARY 19, 1876.

SUBSCRIBERS will please specially look at the printed label on the margin or wrapper of the paper; the date thereon shows when the subscription expires.

DR. STEBBINS UPON THE CATHOLIC CHURCH AND THE COMMON SCHOOLS.

Last Sunday evening Rev. Dr. STEBBINS, of the First Unitarian Church, delivered a lecture on the public school question to his congregation. The report which appeared next morning in the Alta was slim and meagre in the extreme, so that it would be hardly just to hold the reverend gentleman responsible for expressions and sentiments contained in it. Where a matter of great public importance is under discussion it is of course desirable to know the exact words of a speaker before entering upon any controversy with him. Even the most painstaking reporters occasionally err and make a sad sey things very different from what he really uttered; and, where the printed version of a discourse is a mere outline or synopsis, it is hardly fair to found an argument upon it at all. Yet, as we have no desire of engaging in a discussion with Dr. STEBBINS, we must go on further than making a few remarks upon a couple of his statements, we think we shall not do him great injustice by taking the short report we now text. Before commencing we may observe that in this instance, at all events, Dr. STEBBINS showed a commendable disposition to discuss his topic kindly and liberally, laying aside the ex-Christian reason which too often characterizes pulpit treatment of matters in which the Catholic Church is implicated, or supposed to be implicated. We smile from his discourse, Christian, Papist, the fierceness of invective and discourtesy of denunciation which are the principal component parts of all Rev. JOHN ZEMPRILL'S sermons upon Catholicism. Dr. STEBBINS' soul by instituting any comparison between him and the clerical firebrand imported from the foreign college of bigotry and intolerance in order to naturalize in this free country his peculiar style of dealing with "the errors of Romanism."

"Someone, however, Dr. STEBBINS is represented as saying that GRANT'S speech

MARCH and GLADSTONE fell, further on he seems to intimate that occasion would call for such a speech even if there were not a Catholic Church. In another place "There certainly appears to be a contradiction between these two assertions, but perhaps the reporter omitted something which would harmonize them and bring them under the rules of logic. The opinion prevailing among all classes of Americans is that the President had reference to the Catholic Church in his expressions about "ignorance and superstition," and most wise men think that by giving vent to them he merely showed how much he was under the dominion of the narrow and illiberal ideas generally among certain sections of his co-religionists. It would be hard indeed to indoce people to believe that the President had in his mind's eye some section of the Kentucky Legislature in relation to the Civil Rights bill, and we do not think that Dr. STEBBINS himself is of that opinion.

The lecturer next asserted that ecclesiastics and Americanism were in opposition. We cannot help asking—why should they be? It is easy to force an invidious meaning upon a word and then condemn it upon the strength of it; but the rhetorical artifice is not in accordance with the canons of fair play. Ecclesiasticism ought to mean, if anything, the system of moulding civil society in harmony with the laws of God and of His Church, and so far there is nothing in it calling for censure from a Christian minister. It seems to us scarcely wise for clergymen of any denomination to speak with scepticism and infidels by accepting and giving publicity to the stigma which they endeavor to attach to religion and those who teach it in any form. Now-a-days "ecclesiasticism," "clericalism," "sectarianism," must be taken as signifying something repugnant to the feelings of a free people. There is no reason why the gentlemen who reject Christian revelation should be allowed to manipulate the English language for the furtherance of their own ends.

The lecturer is accredited with saying, further on, that the Catholic Church allows no variety of opinion out of which intelligence strikes fire and kindles truth. It is not an easy matter to understand this silence, and probably we should have got more of the immediate surroundings; but if it implies that the Church curbs or restrains the thoughts of men within their proper domain, it conveys a great error. Catholics, at the very least, hold that every man has learned most of their persuasions in every field of scientific investigation, in every branch of intellectual research. But their training prevents them from accepting as science that which is only undemonstrated or undemonstrable hypothesis, and from accepting as final any theory which may be blown to the winds in a year or two by some other more plausible theory. They reject no scientific fact, because a fact is a truth, and truth is of God wherever it is found; but they never confound facts with guesses. And, finally, convinced of the absolute truth of the revelations made by God, they reject any system of natural science or philosophy which is in manifest conflict with faith. They know there never can be any true science or any genuine philosophy which contradicts revelation.

We are glad to notice that Dr. STEBBINS had the common sense and manliness to deprecate the idea that Catholic opposition to the public school system implied any hostility to the free institutions of America. Catholics glory in freedom just as much as any other people; they have fought as hard for it, and will always be ready to fight again for it if necessary. There never was a time in the history of this republic when they did not show both in word and deed unbounding patriotism. If they believe, as they must and do, that any system of education which does not provide for religious instruction is deficient and not calculated to produce good citizens, they best demonstrate their patriotism by opposing a system like the present. And they best demonstrate their tolerance and liberality by declaring that they have no illiberal wish to force their ideas upon other people, and that all they want is each party to get what suits them best, as all have to pay the same taxes and bear alike the burdens of government.

Dr. STEBBINS advises the Catholic Church to give up the tendency to complain and murmur about system of education. He very slightly he does not know, what the authorities of the Catholic Church know very well, that the secular system is annually ruining the faith of thousands of Catholic children. It is not so very long ago since a prominent minister in New York publicly boasted of this circumstance, and declared that unless the public schools were replaced or counteracted by parochial schools the Catholic Church would in time be swept out of existence in America. Now we take Dr. STEBBINS to be a sincere and devout Unitarian; if he is not, then believe that the Bible contains more necessary to the happiness of man than any system of education possibly can. If, then, he found that the common schools were undermining the faith of the young of his flock, and educating them in a kind of civilized paganism, would he not feel bound to labor for their abolition? Would he not claim to be just and moderate if he merely asked that no taxation contributed by his own people should not be used to damage their own dearest interests? It is mere folly, then, to blame Catholics for opposing the public school system; but it is the height of malicious arrogance, from which, however, he is free, to accuse them of lack of patriotism in so acting.

EVANGELIZING "ON HIS OWN HOOK."

Elsewhere we copy from the New York World an account of an amusing interview [illegible] strel, who "got religion" some time ago, and is now busy evangelizing "on his own hook." as he very elegantly phrases it. It will probably be some satisfaction to Catholicism to learn that Mr. DWYER got "converted" from the evil ways of burnt cork while in this State, returning to it as well as Alcatraz Island, where he was confined for desertion from the army. His version of experiences in "turning to grace" serves strongly of the miraculous and bigoted order of revivalistic preaching, and the saving of it was a grand an act of heroism as a Christian can share in. If the authorities at Washington are willing that the Catholic Indian should perish off the face of the earth as speedily as possible, let us who are the co-religionists, the brothers in faith, of the oppressed and despised red man display sympathy for our race by at least protesting which our creed makes obligatory. The sobjoined is the extract from the Cincinnati Telegraph to which we have alluded above:

The time has come for some of the Jesuits, intelligently and know the precious value of souls for which Christ died, to wake up to their duty as one of the interested and perishing Northwestern Indians, and to send missionaries to them. It is not to the purpose to say that the Indians are the wrongs accomplished by the Protestant Government. We are not to blame for the sins and bodies of the Indians injured by the Government. We are not to blame for the cruelty of the Indian Bureau. We are not to blame for the wrongs of the Territories, and their worthy conquerors, who have, in the cause of religion, taken the responsibility to intere the work in hand. We trust that the Catholic Bishops of the West will meet in council and hand in this to association, and that their names will appear in large letters on the list of honor. We venture to predict that if the sisters and ladies would consecrate a single month to the work, they would secure a grand object of the Association. Let the Jesuits send out missionaries to the Indians of the Territories, and, as a consequence, the pages of the Indian Bureau of the Government would be written in characters of light and be worthy of our Christian profession and name.

PUBLICATIONS RECEIVED.

GERMAN FOUR-PART SONGS. For mixed voices. By N. H. Allen. Price $1 50. Mr. Allen has shown excellent judgment in the selection of these compositions, which are from all the beauty of the older four-part glees of Donizebland, without the tinge of melancholy, which must be acknowledged as a defect. The composers are of the best. Among these we notice Schumann, Franz, Abt, Hauptmann, Gade and Hiller. Words by Goethe, Uhland, Hoffman and Rockhart brighten the scores, and titles are well chosen. "The Rosebud," "Love like the Wind," "Love like the Wind," "The Linden Tree," "Welcome Repose," and "Peace to the Slumberers," are specimens, and indicate the genial character of the poetry. The "German Four Part Songs" are just what is wanted. They are sufficiently solid and high toned, interesting, and easy enough to make the practice refreshing while it is useful.

"THE INVADERS" WILL TRIUMPH.—The Conference of Congregational Ministers, or Beecher Whitewashing Committee are in session in New York. From the make up of the council the verdict can be safely announced in advance—"not guilty." Most of them are like Minister Halliday, who said: "If an angel from heaven were to tell me that Beecher was guilty, I would not believe him."

INDIAN MISSIONARY ASSOCIATION.

In no one particular has the Radical Administration which now rules this country, to its great discredit both at home and abroad, more clearly revealed its anti-Catholic proclivities than in its treatment of the Indians of the Northwest and Southwest. Tribes which had been Christianized and civilized by the efforts of Catholic missionaries, and were as strongly attached to their faith as man can be, have been handed over to the care of Methodist ministers and other secuiries, who make it their business to thwart the priests who labor among them in the performance of their duties. The consequence is that several tribes have been subjected to downright persecution, and that the strongest efforts have been and are being made to proselytize them. Not only this, but the most unjust and heartless persecution is constantly and systematically made between Protestant and Catholic Indians. While the former are excellently cared for upon their reservations, ought promptly punished, the latter are daily and basely neglected, unprovided with shelter, and sometimes reduced to the very verge of starvation. These melancholy facts have been asserted and proved again and again by the reports and letters of disinterested persons, some of whom were in the Government employment and others were not:

We have from time to time inserted in these columns articles and communications from the secular press exposing this injustice, and calling in the most urgent terms for its redress, but to no purpose, and we certainly hoped that these reproofs would have some effect upon the authorities in Washington, but we must confess we have been sadly disappointed. It is worse than useless to deny the fact that influences directly hostile to the Catholic faith are paramount in the Executive mansion. We write in these remarks now by way of preface to a brief quotation from our esteemed contemporary, the Cincinnati Catholic Telegraph, and in order to advert to the recent formation of an Indian Missionary Association, the object of which is to save, if possible, from destruction and proselytism the remnants which still exist of once powerful Catholic tribes. The formation of this praiseworthy and most charitable Association is the result of the labors of a zealous priest, who left this coast some months since and went to Washington city, where he actually labored for the purpose of getting it effected. We are sorry to say that we have failed to learn the name of this zealous priest, but we trust that he will probably be some satisfaction to Catholics to learn that Mr. DWYER got "converted" from the evil ways of burnt cork while in this State, returning to it as well as Alcatraz Island, where he was confined for desertion from the army. His version of experiences in "turning to grace" serves strongly of the miraculous and bigoted order of revivalistic preaching, and the saving of it was a grand an act of heroism as a Christian can share in. If the authorities at Washington are willing that the Catholic Indian should perish off the face of the earth as speedily as possible, let us who are the co-religionists, the brothers in faith, of the oppressed and despised red man display sympathy for our race by at least protesting which our creed makes obligatory. The sobjoined is the extract from the Cincinnati Telegraph to which we have alluded above:

The time has come for some of the Jesuits, intelligently and know the precious value of souls for which Christ died, to wake up to their duty as one of the interested and perishing Northwestern Indians, and to send missionaries to them. It is not to the purpose to say that the Indians are the wrongs accomplished by the Protestant Government. We are not to blame for the sins and bodies of the Indians injured by the Government. We are not to blame for the cruelty of the Indian Bureau. We are not to blame for the wrongs of the Territories, and their worthy conquerors, who have, in the cause of religion, taken the responsibility to intere the work in hand. We trust that the Catholic Bishops of the West will meet in council and hand in this to association, and that their names will appear in large letters on the list of honor. We venture to predict that if the sisters and ladies would consecrate a single month to the work, they would secure a grand object of the Association. Let the Jesuits send out missionaries to the Indians of the Territories, and, as a consequence, the pages of the Indian Bureau of the Government would be written in characters of light and be worthy of our Christian profession and name.

CUTTING DOWN EXPENSES.

Assemblyman KENNEDY, of San Francisco, has framed a bill which is calculated to test the genuineness of the professations of anxiety for economical reform which our present legislators dealt out so liberally when they were appealing to the people for election. It proposes to reduce the salaries of the municipal officers of this city from twenty to twenty-five per cent. The salaries paid at present are entirely too high, and the several departments are entirely too generously supplied with deputies, assistants and clerks. The chief officers, as a rule, do little or no work for the city but attend to their ordinary avocations, making money at them just as usual. Chief deputies, it seems, were invented for the express purpose of counting the dissent offices, and making their principals to look after their own affairs. At most half the sub-deputies, and the same proportion of the clerks, are totally superfluous, and the salaried labor they ever perform is the monthly drawing of their stipends. Such extravagance is constantly perpetrated in two directions; one in paying too large salaries, and the other in providing expensive and unnecessary assistance.

There is no office of the city government which requires intellectual or educational acquirements of a high standard from the occupant who fill them. The fact is that at every election we see persons from every field of trade and commerce coming forward to obtain the offices, and claiming the right to fulfill their duties. And, it must be confessed, they succeed as well as could be expected under the prevailing system. It is plain then, that the Act of Mr. KENNEDY, the effect can, without the slightest difficulty, secure the services of plenty of individuals, fully competent to administer every department of our city government, and willing, too, to give it their exclusive attention. If the office holders were chosen for life, or during good behavior, both honesty and economy would be almost certainly attained and rendered permanent. But possibly this reform, as it would imply a surrendering of the axiom, "to the victors belong the spoils," is too much to expect during the lifetime of the present generation. The whole political system of the country must, we fear, be freely remodeled before that devoutly-to be wished for consummation can be brought about.

But the amount of reform sought for by Mr. KENNEDY is both moderate and lenity of accomplishment. We fail to understand or imagine any cogent objection that can fairly be urged against it. The bill has been referred to the San Francisco delegation, and what action these gentlemen are likely to take in the matter we leave to the future to reveal. But perhaps we might as well call their attention to a few facts which, properly weighed, may somewhat influence their decision. They were all been elected on the strength of [illegible] of getting in office and

It is absolutely necessary for them to keep faith with the people and redeem the pledges of economical election is closest hand and the prospects of the Democratic party in this State depend in a great degree, if not entirely, upon the record it makes for itself. If the delegation from this city is the very matter of retrenchment of expenses. Therefore if the San Francisco delegation are wise they will report favorably of Mr. KENNEDY'S bill, and, despite all lobbying influences, work hard to effect its final passage.

SPAIN AND CUBA.

The Spanish Government, it appears, has no intention of allowing President GRANT'S warning of the state of affairs in Cuba to go unconstradered before the world. As a corrective of what the Madrid Government claims to be misstatements in the American document, a report of the official communication has been forwarded to the Spanish Ministers at the several European Courts, with directions that it be read to, and if desired a copy be left with the Minister of Foreign Affairs attached to each cabinet. The contents are first a general and then a detailed denial of all the statements made by General GRANT, and an assurance that upon the completion of the Cuban rebellion, which, it is claimed, cannot be long deferred, all desirable reform will be introduced into the island, and slavery be abolished. The paper asserts that the insurgent army in Cuba is composed of negroes, Chinese and deserters from the Spanish forces, while the leaders are, almost without exception, foreigners. There are very few white Cubans in sympathy with the revolt, and still fewer serving in the so-called republican ranks; but thousands of them have manifested unwavering loyalty, and have voluntarily enlisted in the royalist forces. The Cuban Government, about which we sometimes read a great deal in the American newspapers, is described as a mere fraud, without location or substance, existing only in the imagination of American sympathizers. The insurgents have never been able to gain possession of a seaport or of any core of insurrection, and are probably shifting about from place to place. The some of the hostile operations, such as they are, is confined to the mountain ranges and thick forests, which impose great obstacles on the movements of a regular army. This is the sole reason why the contest has been so prolonged, and not because the rebels are strong in numbers or formidable in equipment. As there is now good grounds for expecting that the Carlist civil war will be terminated in the course of a couple of months, the Madrid Government will soon be able to concentrate all its available strength in Cuba, and utterly crush out the rebellion. The military situation is described in this fashion, and, so far as soldiers can know there is no reason for doubting its substantial correctness. Then the document deals with the financial and commercial standing of Cuba. It demonstrates the fact that the trade of the island, so far from suffering, has actually more than doubled during the last ten years, and that the value of property has not sensibly depreciated. In a few isolated and unpopulated localities the insurrectionists practiced by wandering bands of rebels has created alarm and led to the abandonment of valuable estates; but incidents of that character are unavoidable in every insurrection, however circumscribed its area or insignificant its strength. In short, this Spanish communication says exactly what we said in these columns upon good authority long ago—that the Cuban republic is simply a flagrant sham; that its army is mainly composed of run away slaves, deserters and filibusters, and that the leaders of the revolt are little better than desperate adventurers; and, finally, that were it not for the support of certain Yankee speculators who are working for annexation of Cuba to the United States, there would not be as many insurgents now on the island as would form a respectable band of highwaymen.

THE WATER QUESTION.

We have closely examined the principles of the various Water Bills now awaiting the judgment of the San Francisco delegation, and although none of them seem to embody all that is required, we believe some good to the public could be easily come out of the discussion. The Bulletin now declares that Senator ROACH'S bill is unconstitutional. We know that the attorneys for the Spring Valley Water Company, and other corporations who have got the Legislature can no more pass a law to enhance or diminish the price of water, than they can regulate the price of beer or any other commodity of commerce. This seems to us sound law and reasoning, and we do not know how it can be got over by any dexterity. Where is the use, then, of frittering away the time in the Senate and Assembly when, if a real and right end only by involving the city to long and expensive litigation? a luxury which the citizens would not exactly care to pay for.

In our opinion the only safe way out of the difficulty is to pass a bill authorizing the purchase of the property and franchise of the Spring Valley Water Company. In order to forestall opposition on the part of the Company, the bill should also give legal right to condemn the property if necessary. The company should get what a fair and impartial Commission would award, and not a cent more upon any pretense. We know the course adopted by the last Board of Supervisors with reference to the water question, and therefore we would be in favor of the Legislature appointing a Commission with power to purchase or condemn, quite independent of any action that a new board of Supervisors may take. A bill of this character would have an excellent chance of passing, and would become law without any trouble. If it did not, the people would give endless satisfaction to the citizens of San Francisco.

LEGISLATIVE.

The Senate has refused to pass the annually of $40,000 to the Colusa and Tehama branch railroad; but has allowed $4,000 to the widow of the late J. W. Mandeville, late Controller. The same body passed McCoppin's bill obliging Boards of Supervisors to fix water rates in May of each year, the bill extending the franchise of the North Beach and Mission (Railroad). And the bill requiring County Clerks to keep their offices open on election days.

Senator Lewis on Thursday of last week introduced a joint resolution that the Legislature adjourn sine die on Monday, March 13 h, and the same was carried under a suspension rule, and transmitted to the Assembly. On Monday, however, Senator Hilgard made a motion (which was carried) for its return to the Senate, which was done, and then it was indefinitely postponed. Of the 120 gentlemen comprising the Legislature there are not six of them who would sincerely favor adjournment one day short of the time allowed by law, were the period a year instead of four months.

The Harbor Commissioner bill has passed the Assembly after receiving a few minor amendments, and now goes back to the Senate.

Senator Turner has introduced a bill relating to bank deposits. It provides that all moneys on deposit at the several banks of the State, which have remained unclaimed for five years, and all moneys that may be hereafter deposited and remain for five years, shall be paid to the State Treasury.

The Senate has passed the bill districting Oakland into wards, despite the opposition of Senator Gibbons. It will now go to the Assembly, where it will doubtless be favorably acted upon, the Alameda delegation being all favorable to it.

Senator Nusan proposes to provide for homeless children on the old boarding out and apprentice plan. The bill introduced by him on the subject authorizes the Mayor to send to the Industrial School children who may be found without a home, and provide for the appointment by the Probate Judge of guardians to such children. The guardians are to have power to procure employment or homes for the children, appreciate them to suitable trades or profitable employment, and to recommit them to the Industrial School. They may make rules and regulations for the care and conduct of the children, and establish a system of premiums for distribution to such as may earn the same by good behavior or proficiency in work; and they are also authorized to spend money for board, clothing, musical instruments and mechanical tools for the benefit of the children.

Inner History of Fenianism.

We are glad to see that one at least of the Fenian organizers, one of those who were acquainted with the inside working of the movement, believes that the whole system should be laid before the Irish people to judge of its good and bad qualities. This is to raise the matter to an intelligent plane. If the thing be sanctioned, the faults will be repeated and the good points will remain in obscurity. Mr. John Devoy, writing from New York to the Dublin Irishman, says:

The facts I refer to belong to history, and I am one of those who believe they have been kept in the dark too long. The Irish people have a right to know the whole truth in relation to that movement. They cannot be able to see it just as it was—the good, the bad, the strong and the weak points of it—so that many of the foolish and ridiculous notions that prevail regarding it may be corrected. The facts can best be fairly told, notwithstanding the feuds and rash attempt at a rising in March, 1867, now all standing at the blunders and mistakes, in spite of the Nagles, the Corydons and the Masseys, the movement can bear comparison with any effort the Irish people have ever made for freedom. This is true in a special manner up to its real collapse in 1865.

Previous to September, 1865, the organization was entirely a conspiracy or propaganda—I forget after the lawless seizure of the Irish newspaper and the first arrests, it was engaged in a struggle for life or death with the Government—backed by the whole power of the Queen Rulers. It represented, for the time being, the nation, and was the only power that dared to hold and make an effort for the recovery of the national liberties. Despite all its failures and shameful and speedy was their ruin. But far more galling than the consciousness of failure was the knowledge that the movement, which for the first time in Irish history had been the property of the people, was destroyed by the treachery of a few leaders. But the movement was not dead. It was only when her vitality was sapped by the subsidized Irish nation, was precisely in the position, morally, of an army that was defeated in the field, and which could exercise such of the rights and privileges of an army as the occasion required. All the Irish elements were at stake, and on the issue of the movement depended the future of the country. The 15,000 veteran confederates in the British army—8,000 of them being at home—were ready to strike for Ireland, and we took the measures that we deemed necessary to meet the emergency.

It might also do no harm to know that a British cavalryman—to kill Nagle said Warner right in the Court-house in Cork, and that his offer was not be accepted. Perhaps the quiet citizens of Dublin never heard that on the night of the declaration of the suspension of the Habeas Corpus Act, several hundred bold men, in military order, marched through the streets for a before the suspension was passed, proceeded simply to make a demonstration, to show their strength, and make the suspension of our shem liberties the signal for a fight which they were ready for—but their proposition was rejected. I see no reason why these things should not be known, now, as I have said, they belong to history now.

RELIGIOUS PROFESSION.—On Thursday, the 10th inst., Miss Quigly and Miss Gallihan (called in religion respectively Sisters Mary Baptist and St. Michael) pronounced their religious vows at the Sacred Heart Presentation Convent, Taylor street. The ceremony was performed by the Most Rev. [illegible] assisted by the Rev. Fathers [illegible] and Rev. Bishop O'Connell was present, as also Rev. Father Gallagher and Birmingham. After an eloquent discourse by Rev. P. O'Hyne, S. J., on the text from St. Luke's Gospel, "Go sell all thou hast," etc., the two novices, having made their vows, received the black veil and ring, as emblems of their permanent consecration to the service of God and their neighbor, according to the rules of the Presentation Order. The ceremony was most impressive, witnessed the ceremony, several of whom visited the new schools and improvements on the premises, and after partaking of refreshments and children, evening pass on peaceful, that the happiest and most becoming of all deaths is to die for one's country.

The anniversary celebration was an of almost purely religious character. Commemorative Masses were celebrated in all the parish churches in the neighborhood of Boonsvil. These memorial services were performed in which the Rev. Fathers Cleod, Clondon, Carchee and Reull. After the Mass at Garcher the congregation, headed by the priest, walked in procession to the battlefield, and stopped at the first monument erected at the spot, where Father Cleod, who obeated, holy water was sprinkled on the monument, when were recited with much solemnity the prayers appointed for the dead. This ceremony has been the ravages of the Protestant tyrants that the country lies for hundreds of years desolated, and the ruins of the old churches visited by the Irish landlord and his extermination, mingled with the blood of the people of Ireland, and the ashes of their fathers, and we took the measures that common sense dictated to meet the emergency.

It might also do no harm to know that a British cavalryman—to kill Nagle said Warner right in the Court-house in Cork, and that his offer was not be accepted. Perhaps the quiet citizens of Dublin never heard that on the night of the declaration of the suspension of the Habeas Corpus Act, several hundred bold men, in military order, marched through the streets for a before the suspension was passed, proceeded simply to make a demonstration, to show their strength, and make the suspension of our shem liberties the signal for a fight which they were ready for—but their proposition was rejected. I see no reason why these things should not be known, now, as I have said, they belong to history now.

RELIGIOUS PROFESSION.—On Thursday, the 10th inst., Miss Quigly and Miss Gallihan (called in religion respectively Sisters Mary Baptist and St. Michael) pronounced their religious vows at the Sacred Heart Presentation Convent, Taylor street. The ceremony was performed by the Most Rev. [illegible] assisted by the Rev. [illegible] and Rev. Bishop O'Connell was present, as also Rev. Father Gallagher and Birmingham. After an eloquent discourse by S. J. Right Rev. Bishop O'Connell was present, as also Rev. Father Gallagher and Birmingham. After an eloquent discourse by Rev. P. O'Hyne, S. J., on the text from St. Luke's Gospel, "Go sell all thou hast," etc., the two novices, having made their vows, received the black veil and ring, as emblems of their permanent consecration to the service of God and their neighbor, according to the rules of the Presentation Order. The ceremony was most impressive, witnessed the ceremony, several of whom visited the new schools and improvements on the premises, and after partaking of refreshments and children, evening pass on peaceful, that the happiest and most becoming of all deaths is to die for one's country.

The anniversary celebration was an of almost purely religious character. Commemorative Masses were celebrated in all the parish churches in the neighborhood of Boonsvil. These memorial services were performed in which the Rev. Fathers Cleod, Clondon, Carchee and Reull. After the Mass at Garcher the congregation, headed by the priest, walked in procession to the battlefield, and stopped at the first monument erected at the spot, where Father Cleod, who obeated, holy water was sprinkled on the monument, when were recited with much solemnity the prayers appointed for the dead. This ceremony has been the ravages of the Protestant tyrants that the country lies for hundreds of years desolated, and the ruins of the old churches visited by the Irish landlord and his extermination, mingled with the blood of the people of Ireland, and the ashes of their fathers, and we took the measures that common sense dictated to meet the emergency.

It might also do no harm to know that a British cavalryman—to kill Nagle said Warner right in the Court-house in Cork, and that his offer was not be accepted. Perhaps the quiet citizens of Dublin never heard that on the night of the declaration of the suspension of the Habeas Corpus Act, several hundred bold men, in military order, marched through the streets for a before the suspension was passed, proceeded simply to make a demonstration, to show their strength, and make the suspension of our shem liberties the signal for a fight which they were ready for—but their proposition was rejected. I see no reason why these things should not be known, now, as I have said, they belong to history now.

RELIGIOUS PROFESSION.—On Thursday, the 10th inst., Miss Quigly and Miss Gallihan (called in religion respectively Sisters Mary Baptist and St. Michael) pronounced their religious vows at the Sacred Heart Presentation Convent, Taylor street. The ceremony was performed by the Most Rev. [illegible] assisted by the Rev. [illegible] and Rev. Bishop O'Connell was present, as also Rev. Father Gallagher and Birmingham. After an eloquent discourse by S. J. Right Rev. Bishop O'Connell was present, as also Rev. Father Gallagher and Birmingham. After an eloquent discourse by Rev. P. O'Hyne, S. J., on the text from St. Luke's Gospel, "Go sell all thou hast," etc., the two novices, having made their vows, received the black veil and ring, as emblems of their permanent consecration to the service of God and their neighbor, according to the rules of the Presentation Order. The ceremony was most impressive, witnessed the ceremony, several of whom visited the new schools and improvements on the premises, and after partaking of refreshments and children, evening pass on peaceful, that the happiest and most becoming of all deaths is to die for one's country.

Honoring the Fallen Brave.

The solemn commemoration held in Paris on January 19th, in honor of the defenders of the capital who fell in the late siege against the German besieger, was significant in several aspects. There have been great changes since the First Napoleon bonded he had made France a nation of glorious anniversaries. The splendid achievements of the Conquerors are immortal, but their glitter is clouded by reverse. This terrible word is never heard, and does not seem itself in singularly close alternation throughout the history of France. There is no other country of the modern world whose record is so checkered with the bright and dark of mightiness and misfortune. Terrible as her latest overthrow appeared, it was in reality less than many she has survived. Battlers were obstacles in it which made its memories peculiarly bitter to the French mind. Never before had the gage of France been picked up on her own threshold, and her armies crushed before they had struck beyond her frontier. In old days it was only when her valiant legions had marched through Europe uncontrolled," or had at least fought on foreign soil, that the subsequent reddening of such, was long and well. It was a combination of misfortunes which, even through pass or peace, that the happiest and most becoming of all deaths is to die for one's country.

The anniversary celebration was an of almost purely religious character. Commemorative Masses were celebrated in all the parish churches in the neighborhood of Boonsvil. These memorial services were performed in which the Rev. Fathers Cleod, Clondon, Carchee and Reull. After the Mass at Garcher the congregation, headed by the priest, walked in procession to the battlefield, and stopped at the first monument erected at the spot, where Father Cleod, who obeated, holy water was sprinkled on the monument, when were recited with much solemnity the prayers appointed for the dead. This ceremony has been the ravages of the Protestant tyrants that the country lies for hundreds of years desolated, and the ruins of the old churches visited by the Irish landlord and his extermination, mingled with the blood of the people of Ireland, and the ashes of their fathers, and we took the measures that common sense dictated to meet the emergency.

It might also do no harm to know that a British cavalryman—to kill Nagle said Warner right in the Court-house in Cork, and that his offer was not be accepted. Perhaps the quiet citizens of Dublin never heard that on the night of the declaration of the suspension of the Habeas Corpus Act, several hundred bold men, in military order, marched through the streets for a before the suspension was passed, proceeded simply to make a demonstration, to show their strength, and make the suspension of our shem liberties the signal for a fight which they were ready for—but their proposition was rejected. I see no reason why these things should not be known, now, as I have said, they belong to history now.

RELIGIOUS PROFESSION.—On Thursday, the 10th inst., Miss Quigly and Miss Gallihan (called in religion respectively Sisters Mary Baptist and St. Michael) pronounced their religious vows at the Sacred Heart Presentation Convent, Taylor street. The ceremony was performed by the Most Rev. [illegible] assisted by the Rev. [illegible] and Rev. Bishop O'Connell was present, as also Rev. Father Gallagher and Birmingham. After an eloquent discourse by S. J. Right Rev. Bishop O'Connell was present, as also Rev. Father Gallagher and Birmingham. After an eloquent discourse by Rev. P. O'Hyne, S. J., on the text from St. Luke's Gospel, "Go sell all thou hast," etc., the two novices, having made their vows, received the black veil and ring, as emblems of their permanent consecration to the service of God and their neighbor, according to the rules of the Presentation Order. The ceremony was most impressive, witnessed the ceremony, several of whom visited the new schools and improvements on the premises, and after partaking of refreshments and children, evening pass on peaceful, that the happiest and most becoming of all deaths is to die for one's country.

The Personality of the Dev

We hope the heading of this article will not frightened our readers. We are not changes will waste an unnecessary amount of pity in behalf of the simplicity of the man who has the impertinence to introduce so dusty a relic of medieval times, or to refurbish so rusty a tool of superstition. We appreciate their kindness beforehand, and peeket their play with all due respect, firmly determined, however, to speak our mind.

We have lately had in our midst one of the most anti-diluvian representatives of the wisdom and progress of our enlightened century; he proved to his own satisfaction, at least, that the devil in our existence was in the diseased imagination of weak religious minds. We cannot tell whether he has made any converts to his opinion, nor can we describe the effect of his system of negations on the inhabitants of the lower regions, whether the spirits of negation voted him resolutions of thanks or of censure; what we do know and affirm is, the great willingness of many persons to believe that Mr. Conway may possibly be right, and the consequent rejoicing of such, who long ardently for the end of the sweet meetings of positive truth.

We are not surprised when we hear the personality of the devil denied by persons whose mental visions have been dimmed by the cobwebs of the rational theory of myths, but we are astonished to hear an intelligent Catholic layman, or a Catholic who professes a belief in the Holy Bible. How can those persons explain, in a rational manner, the temptation of our first parents, the world, the curious demand of a certain demon, that he should be allowed to enter the herd of swine? Even the largest microscope of rationalism make cannot detect the least trace or speck of the devil, if he does not exist in the first monitor. We see possibly imagine how, by the aid of the same microscope, the terrible daring disciple of rationalism can come to the blasphemous conclusion that the devil exists only in the imagination of man, and that when he wrote a personal devil, but the "lower genius" of the fourth century, between good and evil in Christ's human nature; or again that the whole is merely a scholastic explanation of how our Saviour in resisting temptation; that it may have been the devil of the desert, or the devil of Jerusalem, or, as he was more commonly called, the devil of Galilee. Let us, however, by a like violence to our plain text, and by the consideration of the weakness of man's mind, conceive of evil as a moral Bible. Christians applauding these latest progressive rationalism concerning Christ's temptation in the desert and congratulating themselves on the nice and easy way in which they have got rid of a personal devil—from at least a portion of Holy Writ.

But how can these good souls reason the personality of the devil out of the fifth chapter of St. Luke? There the demon speaks, and then the devil departs. We must either reject this miraculous cure of a demoniac as a fable—and by doing so, put [illegible] of the Gospel—or we must believe that the actions of the devil are his own and not those of the man who is said to be the subject of the cure

IRISH LOCAL NEWS.

From the Dublin Nation of January 22.

ARMAGH.

At the last meeting of the Armagh Poor Law Guardians it was reported that a poor-rate collector, named William Spence, who had the collection of the rates in the electoral divisions of Kilkeen and Hamiltonsbawn, had left the country, being deficient in the sum of £73 19s. 6d. His sureties attended, and said they were willing to make up the deficiency if they had authority to collect the remainder of the rate. It was resolved to write to the Local Government Board on the subject, and require the sureties to lodge the amount deficient to the credit of the guardians in the meantime.

CLARE.

Rev. James Blaher, one of the curates of Rosscrea parish, has been appointed administrator of Milltown-Malbay. Rev. Edward O'Shaughnessy, P. P., has retired on pension from the latter parish.

Rev. John Haynes, formerly curate of Kilkee, from which he was promoted by the late lamented Most Rev. Dr. Power to a curacy in Nenagh, has been appointed by Most Rev. Dr. Ryan parish priest of Kiddyeast, county Clare, in room of Rev. James Cahir, who has been appointed parish priest of Mullough, Kilmurry Ibrickan, vacant by the death of the late Rev. Patrick Moran.

CARLOW.

On Friday morning week, between 3 and 4 o'clock, a destructive fire was discovered to be broken out on Mr. Michael McDonald's premises, Primrose Hill, a short distance outside Carlow, by which a number of valuable stacks were destroyed. Mr. McDonald estimates his loss by this unfortunate occurrence at something like £300, and states that he has reason to believe that the fire must have been the work of an incendiary.

DONEGAL.

At the presentment sessions for the barony of Kilmacrenan, held at Letterkenny, Mr. Greves-Greves moved—"That the Letterkenny Railway bill, now submitted to the meeting, be approved, subject to additions, alterations and variations as Parliament may think fit to make therein, provided there shall not be levied in one year under the powers of the intended Act, at a rate exceeding 6d. in the pound on the rateable value of property in the rateable districts." The resolution passed unanimously.

CORK.

At a meeting of the Queenstown Chamber of Commerce a proposal to establish a daily mail between Queenstown and Fermoy was approved of.

The twenty-fourth annual meeting of the Cork Young Men's Society took place on Sunday. His Grace Rev. Dr. Delany, Bishop of Cork, presided. The Mayor, Alderman Pearson, proposed the adoption of the annual report, which was read by Mr. J. O. MacCarthy, M. P., President of the Society. Mr. Rossyn, M. P., in seconding the adoption of the report, observed that this was a religious as well as an educational society, yet their Protestant friends had not object to attend there, because he knew well it was not an aggressive society.

GALWAY.

At the first meeting of the newly-elected council of the Galway Mechanics' Institute the election of William Fox as secretary for quarter resulted in the appointment of Mr. A. L. Ferdinand as chairman; Mr. C. P. George Joyce, as vice-chairman; Mr. Robert F. Kelley, as honorary secretary; Mr. Matthew Ulick, as treasurer; and Mr. Michael Keane, as librarian.

At the meeting of the guardians of the Loam union last week a widower of the name of Bridget Stafford came before the Board. She said that she was sent over from England by order of the Select Vestry of the parish of Liverpool. She was thirty-five years of age, and was born in Ireland in the parish of Lisdonagh, county Galway. The clerk said that he put all the particulars, and that her father and mother were still living in Liverpool; and that she left Ireland thirty years ago. She worked in England until she met with an accident, when she had to go into the workhouse, and she was in hospital eleven weeks, and after she got well the guardians of the Liverpool workhouse would not let her out to return to her work in the factory where she was previously employed, but sent her on to Ireland. Chairman—How do they keep paupers in England—don't they let them out whenever they like to go? Applicant—They do, but not Irish paupers, when they get over, and don't let them out. She was ordered to be admitted, and good care to be taken of her in the meantime and also to be conveyed there, in response to the popular demand.

WATERFORD.

The Grand Jury and associated ratepayers of Waterford presented £40 each for the erection of a free bridge across the Suir at that city.

On Sunday the new schools of the Sisters of Mercy at Kilmacthomas were solemnly inaugurated by Most Rev. Dr. Power, Lord Bishop of Waterford.

WESTMEATH.

At the last weekly meeting of the Athlone Town Board, F. Maxwell, Esq., J. P., chairman, after the ordinary business of the meeting had been transacted, Mr. Bracken introduced a deputation, consisting of the Labour Protection Committee, consisting of Mr. Dunne, secretary to the committee; A. O'Connor Buckley, Esq., proprietor of the Irish Messenger; and W. P. Kelly, Esq. Mr. Dunne explained the object of the deputation, which was to request the Board to co-operate with the Board in forwarding the Bun Testimonial to Mr. Butt, Dublin, and merely to add their names to the list, as the movement was entirely a public one. Mr. Buckley, it may be added, is a very aged clergyman, over ninety years, and has for some years past been relieved of the charge of the parish. Mr. Richard Eston was examined, and deposed that no issue other than Rev. Mr. Buckley was ever acknowledged by him, and that it was to him, and him alone, that the receipts for the rent were issued. He distinctly denied that he had ever sanctioned any other arrangement, as was sought to be proved by defendant's witnesses. The chairman gave a decree for plaintiff, with costs. It is generally understood that an appeal will be brought to the decision of the chairman.

LONDONDERRY.

The chairman of sessions at Coleraine has awarded £250 compensation to Rev. Mr. Moore, P.P., for disturbance from his house and farm.

LEITR.

On Sunday a petition in favor of the suppression of the Sunday liquor trade was signed at the close of the Rev. S. Mary's Catholic church, Drogheda. During the week the petition received the signatures of a great many of the inhabitants of all classes, both of the mercantile and trading community, the Catholic and Protestant clergymen are as one in the matter, and the tradesmen who are concerned in the matter look upon the movement as the Freeman, in a very favorable light.

The death is announced of very Rev. Eugene Feery, P. P., Riverstown. He was seventy four years of age, and forty-five in his sacred ministry. He had three chapels in his charge, and in one of those—the chapel of Looey—it was intended to bury him, a vault having been prepared for the interior of the chapel for the purpose. It appears, says a contemporary, that his parishioners in Riverstown, in consideration he should be buried in Riverstown chapel, and they assembled in large numbers to witness the removal of the remains to Looey. A hearse was placed on the coffin during the preceding night, and early next day, when the rigorous ceremonials were gone through, the Riverstown parishioners refused to allow the coffin to be removed. Dr. Gilhooley, the Roman Catholic bishop, interfered, and tried to persuade the people to allow the remains to be taken out, but it was of no use. A scene of violence and excitement followed, which ended in the people digging up a grave in the Riverstown chapel, and the remains and the deceased priest, in response to the popular demand.

TIPPERARY.

A woman named Ellen Hogan died on Saturday at New Pallas, aged 103. She had a good memory and vigorously good health, and could relate the incidents of faction fights of the "Three and Four Year Ods" 80 years ago. She used to refer to one scene particularly with nervous excitement, where shots were exchanged between the factions in the chapel yard of Oola some 60 years ago, and the priest had to suspend Service in consequence.

At the Limerick quarter sessions Court on Saturday, before Mr. Theobald A. Purcell, chairman of the county, an action was brought at the suit of the Hon. Henry Barrington Wandesforde, a lunatic, under the protection of the Court of Chancery, for the recovery of portions of the lands of Glenstal, in this county, and held by Rev. Jeremiah Buckley as a yearly rental of £17. The land in connection with the case have formed for past two years. As stated, Mr. Barrington was the tenant acknowledged by the Court of Chancery; about six years since portions of the land appear to have been sub-let by him to a man named Walshe, and Rev. Mr. Power, P. P., Glenroe. In November, 1873, owing to some dispute between the subtenants, a serious riot, in which some hundreds of people took part, occurred, and since then the proceedings arising therefrom have come before the chairman and the going judge of assize. Mr. Buckley in his evidence stated that he had never sanctioned any arrangement, as was sought to be proved by defendant's witnesses. The chairman gave a decree for plaintiff, with costs. In giving judgment he mentioned that an appeal will be brought to the decision of the chairman.

LONDONDERRY.

The chairman of sessions at Coleraine has awarded £250 compensation to Rev. Mr. Moore, P.P., for disturbance from his house and farm.

LEITR.

On Sunday a petition in favor of the suppression of the Sunday liquor trade was signed at the close of the Rev. S. Mary's Catholic church, Drogheda. During the week the petition received the signatures of a great many of the inhabitants of all classes, both of the mercantile and trading community, the Catholic and Protestant clergymen are as one in the matter, and the tradesmen who are concerned in the matter look upon the movement as the Freeman, in a very favorable light.

The death is announced of very Rev. Eugene Feery, P. P., Riverstown. He was seventy four years of age, and forty-five in his sacred ministry. He had three chapels in his charge, and in one of those—the chapel of Looey—it was intended to bury him, a vault having been prepared for the interior of the chapel for the purpose. It appears, says a contemporary, that his parishioners in Riverstown, in consideration he should be buried in Riverstown chapel, and they assembled in large numbers to witness the removal of the remains to Looey. A hearse was placed on the coffin during the preceding night, and early next day, when the rigorous ceremonials were gone through, the Riverstown parishioners refused to allow the coffin to be removed. Dr. Gilhooley, the Roman Catholic bishop, interfered, and tried to persuade the people to allow the remains to be taken out, but it was of no use. A scene of violence and excitement followed, which ended in the people digging up a grave in the Riverstown chapel, and the remains and the deceased priest, in response to the popular demand.

WATERFORD.

The Grand Jury and associated ratepayers of Waterford presented £40 each for the erection of a free bridge across the Suir at that city.

On Sunday the new schools of the Sisters of Mercy at Kilmacthomas were solemnly inaugurated by Most Rev. Dr. Power, Lord Bishop of Waterford.

WESTMEATH.

At the last weekly meeting of the Athlone Town Board, F. Maxwell, Esq., J. P., chairman, after the ordinary business of the meeting had been transacted, Mr. Bracken introduced a deputation, consisting of the Labour Protection Committee, consisting of Mr. Dunne, secretary to the committee; A. O'Connor Buckley, Esq., proprietor of the Irish Messenger; and W. P. Kelly, Esq. Mr. Dunne explained the object of the deputation, which was to request the Board to co-operate with the Board in forwarding the Bun Testimonial to Mr. Butt, Dublin, and merely to add their names to the list, as the movement was entirely a public one. Mr. Buckley, it may be added, is a very aged clergyman, over ninety years, and has for some years past been relieved of the charge of the parish. Mr. Richard Eston was examined, and deposed that no issue other than Rev. Mr. Buckley was ever acknowledged by him, and that it was to him, and him alone, that the receipts for the rent were issued. He distinctly denied that he had ever sanctioned any other arrangement, as was sought to be proved by defendant's witnesses. The chairman gave a decree for plaintiff, with costs. In giving judgment he mentioned that an appeal will be brought to the decision of the chairman.

LONDONDERRY.

The chairman of sessions at Coleraine has awarded £250 compensation to Rev. Mr. Moore, P.P., for disturbance from his house and farm.

LEITR.

On Sunday a petition in favor of the suppression of the Sunday liquor trade was signed at the close of the Rev. S. Mary's Catholic church, Drogheda. During the week the petition received the signatures of a great many of the inhabitants of all classes, both of the mercantile and trading community, the Catholic and Protestant clergymen are as one in the matter, and the tradesmen who are concerned in the matter look upon the movement as the Freeman, in a very favorable light.

The death is announced of very Rev. Eugene Feery, P. P., Riverstown. He was seventy four years of age, and forty-five in his sacred ministry. He had three chapels in his charge, and in one of those—the chapel of Looey—it was intended to bury him, a vault having been prepared for the interior of the chapel for the purpose. It appears, says a contemporary, that his parishioners in Riverstown, in consideration he should be buried in Riverstown chapel, and they assembled in large numbers to witness the removal of the remains to Looey. A hearse was placed on the coffin during the preceding night, and early next day, when the rigorous ceremonials were gone through, the Riverstown parishioners refused to allow the coffin to be removed. Dr. Gilhooley, the Roman Catholic bishop, interfered, and tried to persuade the people to allow the remains to be taken out, but it was of no use. A scene of violence and excitement followed, which ended in the people digging up a grave in the Riverstown chapel, and the remains and the deceased priest, in response to the popular demand

CATHOLIC INTELLIGENCE.

—At a second private audience, the Marquis of Ripon presented Lady Ripon to his Holiness.

—The Pope has decided that no resistance shall be offered to the inspection ordered by the Italian Government of Catholic seminaries throughout Italy.

—The numerous friends of Father Lambert in Rome have to regret the removal of that distinguished Jesuit from Rome to England. His place at the Centesimoni, in St. Ignatius will be supplied by Father Armellini, a member of the same Order.

—The remains of Bishop Fitzpatrick, of Boston, who died ten years ago, were on the 16th of February transferred from the cemetery of St. Augustine's church to the crypt in the new cathedral at Boston. Archbishop Williams celebrated the requiem Mass. There was a very large attendance of clergy and laity.

—The Italian Catholics propose to celebrate on the 29th of May next the eleventh centenary of the defeat of Frederic Barbarossa at Legnano. The twenty-four towns which shared in the victory are invited to take part in the celebration, and a deputation to go to Rome to testify their faith, gratitude and hope to Pius IX.

—The Texas Catholic says Father F. X. Weninger, S. J., is giving missions now at Hallettsville and Brushy, Texas. It is understood that he made several converts since at Fryleburg and Bernard, several converts being colored people. The old converts being colored people. converts are now all right about fifteen years ago are very glad to see him again.

—On Saturday, January 29th, all that was mortal of Dr. J. Kavanagh, P.P. Carlow, was committed to the tomb. Retiring to rest in his usual health, on the eve of the Feast of the Epiphany (January 6th), it was a dreadful shock to the entire town to find in the morning that their good master was already cold in death.

—The Rev. Father Luigi Tosti, the well-known and illustrious Benedictine, who resides generally at the convent at Monte Cassino, has just made a valuable discovery. The contents of an autograph letter of St. Thomas Aquinas, which the learned Benedictine has reproduced in chromo-lithography, and appended to it a valuable commentary.

—With mingled feelings of pride and joy we learn that the city of Tarmonne, in Belgium, in the district of Tober les Sonet, S. J., has ordered a monument to be erected in honor of the memory of the great missionary priest, to the extreme summit of the cross in the Northwest the names of Father De Smet and Archbishop Blanchet will ever stand side by side as the pioneers of Christianity on the shores of the North Pacific.

—A distinguishing feature in the charities of Rome, while it was under the rule of the Pontiffs, was the general dowries on deserving young women at the period of their marriage. The Government seems to have put its hands on the funds intended for this charitable end. The Court of Cassation has pronounced in favor of the legality of this step, declaring that if an institution of public utility was approved by the Sovereign Pontiff while he enjoyed his sovereign rights, his statute has the force of law. Hence the subsection for dowries is not subordinate to the condition of religious matrimony. Religious matrimony is not prevented by the Civil Code, when it is imposed as a condition, it should be fulfilled.

—The following characteristic paragraph appears in the Liberal Deutsche Zeitung: "The conversions of Protestants to Catholicism are increasing in a remarkable manner in Westphalia. A short time ago Baron Gisbert von Denker, Lord of Rüdigenhausen, went over to the Catholic Church. On the 6th inst. Herr Heinrich von Kraes-Maiden, Second Lieutenant in the 4th Westphalian Regiment of Cuirassiers, made a formal declaration before the District Court at Warendorf that he had renounced the Evangelical Church, and had become a Catholic. Kraes is a cousin of M. Forcade de Biaix, one of the judges of the Supreme Tribunal of the Province, who also went over to the Roman Church." Take dear look see if Ultramontanism was not its last legs."—Any one who knows the present interior condition of Prussian Protestantism, best in torn by internal dissensions, and how many have recoiled from having a new religious organization, as if it were a suit of new clothes, imposed merely by royal authority, will not look on those conversions as at all surprising or remarkable.

A SINGULAR SERMON.—Commenting on a recent sermon of Henry Ward Beecher, delivered in Plymouth church, the utterances in which would disgrace the columns of any respectable public journal, the New York Day Book says: "Beecher's friends should either muzzle him or send him to a lunatic asylum. Never, perhaps, in the history of the American pulpit (if we except exstable negro 'coon' and 'revival' meetings) has such coarse language been used before an audience presumably composed of ladies and gentlemen."

A. O. Elliot, the new Premier, of British Columbia, is a native of Ireland, a lawyer by profession, and a pupil of Christy, and has been to the province since 1859. For many years he was High Sheriff of British Columbia, and is at present Police Judge of Victoria. He also has a seat in the Legislature of the Colonies of British Columbia and Vancouver Island under each Government.

WEEK ACCELERATING.—A bonky horse in Danbury, the other day, refused to go. The owner, after trying several ways in which to get him to move, finally adopted the device of building a fire under the animal, and as soon as the horse felt the heat he moved off with a well-warmed sufficiency to bring the carriage over the flames, and there he paused, to the edification of a crowd of observing citizens and to the great satisfaction of himself. The fire, however, was speedily extinguished.

Frank H.-erford, nephew of ex Governor Foote, of Mississippi, for several years a resident of Sacramento, and who, while District Attorney of that county, conducted the prosecution against Dr. Bates, the defaulting State Treasurer, is now a Democratic member of Congress from West Virginia.

Senator Bruce (Republican) of Mississippi, has denounced Free dent Grant in most bitter terms as executive opposite. It is said Grant wants to "make up," but the sturdy negro will not be appeased with anything short of a foreign mission, or a seat in the Cabinet.

A LARGE VOLUME would not contain the mass of testimony which has accumulated in favor of Dr. Wilcox's Balsam of Wild Cherry as a safe, efficient and reliable remedy in curing coughs, colds and pulmonary disease. Many of the cures are truly marvelous.

Bowen's Proposal to Plymouth Church.

NEW YORK, February 10.—Henry C. Bowen appeared before the Examining Committee of Plymouth Church to-night in answer to the summons to appear and testify as to facts known to him in reference to the charges against Beecher. Bowen read a statement, in which he alluded to the unfairness and irregularities of the procedure, but said that as he wished to assist the Committee to make the examination thorough and conclusive, he would make the following proposition:

"I propose that three men within the congregational body be selected, distinguished for their wisdom and impartiality —such for example as President Woolsey, President A. D. Smith, President Fairchild, Judge Lafayette S. Foster, the Hon. Alphaus Hardy, or the Hon. Julius H. Seelye, men in whose decision the world will feel confidence—who shall be pledged to keep all such evidence secret, before whom only Mr. Beecher and myself shall appear with our witnesses, and before whom I will consent, without any reservation whatever, and as soon as they can meet, to give in full the evidence which has led me to say that I have no doubt that Mr. Beecher is guilty of adultery, hypocrisy and perjury. I ask nothing more than that they shall fully consider the questions which you seem to have before you, whether I deserve ecclesiastical censure for my previous silence in reference to Mr. Beecher, and whether I may now be justified in the facts in my possession in making what you call my 'ominous allegations and insinuations' about him. I made to response to your own demand for a reply to Mr. Beecher's gravestone. I am willing to submit by the censure of approval of such a body of men, if Mr. Beecher and Plymouth Church will also submit to their decision. I reaffirm everything I have stated about Henry Ward Beecher in any previous communications to you, and I am ready to substantiate it before such a tribunal. Very respectfully,

HENRY C. BOWEN."

The Committee decided not to accept Bowen's proposition, because it was not a case between Beecher and Bowen, but between Plymouth Church and Bowen, and between Plymouth Church and God, and they could not take the wisdom from the church and taken before strangers.

Bowen asked for ten days in which to consult papers and documents, dates and memorandas referring to the case, after which he said he would answer any questions that might be proposed to him. The Committee adopted resolutions to which they refused to accede to Bowen's request for further adjournment, and urge him to state any questions which the allegations against Beecher's character.

Bowen then read a paper in which he declined to answer any questions to night, after which he withdrew.

DUELS IN NEW ORLEANS.—A New Orleans special says the code of honor has been revived there with a vengeance recently. Last Tuesday night two Creoles, named Rance and Bonligny, had a personal encounter at the Opera House, and the result was a challenge to mortal combat. The meeting place was taken up by Audry and Nottingham for either party, and these two had a hostile meeting on the 12th inst. They fought with swords, and were wounded, but not seriously. Rance and Bolligny, who were locked upon the charge of continuing a duel, were released upon bonds, and met on the field of honor yesterday morning. They fought at forty paces with rifles, and after the first fire, neither being hit, the seconds interferred and succeeded in adjusting the affair. The next hostile meeting on the tapis will be between Isaac N. Stanley, editor of the Times, and George Dupree, a Democratic member of the House of Representatives from Jefferson. Affairs in this case have progressed so far that a meeting has been arranged. Rifles are chosen as the weapons, and the time is fixed for either Sunday or Monday, but which day it is impossible to ascertain. The difficulty in this case originated in publication in the Times.

A LARGE FARM.—It is asserted that Mr. Chisum, near Santa Fé, New Mexico, owns 60,000 head of cattle, roaming over 400 square miles of land, or 1,000,000 acres, an extent of country equal to that of many of the States of the Union. He can fill an order for 20,000 or even 40,000 beeves, upon ten days' notice by telegraph from the East; and to guard his immense herds he employs sixty cow-boys and as many trained horsemen.

James Lick has sent a telegram to the San José Supervisors, saying he will not pay a cent for the construction of Second and Third streets, by whomsoever the contracts are employed thereon. We approve of Mr. Lick's spirit.

A few days ago, Alice, a granddaughter of Brigham Young, and daughter of Brigham Young, Jr., was married in Salt Lake City to Mr. Hyrum Spilsbiry, a Gentile, contrary to the wishes of her parents.

Unlimited Sacramental Resources.

People sometimes suppose that Dr. R. V. Pierce's Family Medicines represent the entire extent of his resources for curing disease. This is an error. Experience proved that while the Golden Medical Discovery, Favorite Prescription, Pleasant Purgative Pellets, Compound Extracts of Smart Weed and Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, would, if judiciously and faithfully used, cure many of these complaints, there would be here and there a case which, from its severity or long standing, required still other medicines, would resist their action. These exceptional cases he has provided for, and now offers to the afflicted, as a supplement to the other means and aimed at by others, a remedy under which the patient will be astonished, and all who know of it, at the rapidity with which it cures all the above-named diseases, no matter how long standing they may be. This is not the statement of the World's Dispensary Medical Association, of Buffalo, N. Y., with its Dr. Sip of Physicians and Surgeons, each of whom is a master in his specialty, and all of whom are in general and those belonging to his own special department, associated together in the treatment of the various forms of chronic disease, but it is the statement of the chronic disorders

A STUDY OF FREEMASONRY.

Translated from the French of Monsignore Dupanloup, Bishop of Orleans.

SECOND PART.

CAN A SERIOUS MAN, OR A MAN OF COMMON-SENSE, BECOME A FREEMASON?

III.

The Works of the Table, or Banquets.

The ceremonies of initiation have something of the terrible in appearance; but to rest the minds of our readers we are now going to give them some less sombre details. I am going to speak of the "Works of the Table," as the Masonic banquets are called. Here, again, I shall copy the ritual word for word. This is the way these feasts are conducted, according to Brother Regon and another Freemason writer, both in great repute in his Order, Brother Clavel:

"The hall where the mastication takes place must be, like the lodge, sheltered from the eyes of the profane. It is basically decorated by garlands of flowers." (1)

"The Venerable says: 'Brother Inspector, give notice to your Brothers that work is suspended, and that we are going to give ourselves up to mastication.'" (2)

"B.'. I.'. let and 24 Inspectors, invite the Brethren who are under their orders to prepare themselves to charge and to put themselves in line for the first health of obligation." (3)

"During the repast they give seven healths of obligation. When they give the health, masticate sweetly.—(that is say in plain English, they cease to eat when they drink; and this is how they do it:—The Brothers rise, place themselves in order, and throw their banners (dinner-napkins, over their left shoulder. On the invitation of the 'Venerable,' the Brothers charge their cannons (fill their glasses) and when they hear the 'Venerable' say: 'My Brothers, we are going to give a health. We will fire the brightest and most sparkling of fires. My Brothers, the right hand on the sword (the knife).

"'Hligh up with the sword!'

"'Salute with the sword!'

"'The sword in the left hand!'" (4)

All the knives rise and salute each other.

After the brilliant maneuver the bands have put to the "weapons" (bat.ds, to the glasses).

"Present arms—like aim!" (here the Brothers put the glasses to their mouths).

"Fire!" (here they drink a portion of the contents of their glasses).

"A good volley!" (they drink a little more.)

"The most brilliant of volleys!" (they empty their glasses.)

To give the first health the "Venerable" orders the following exercise:

"My Brethren, attention! Shoulder arms! Present!"

First Fire. "To the health of his Majesty the Emperor."

Second Fire. "To the health of the Prince Imperial, the Empress, and the imperial family."

Third Fire. "To the glory of France." (4)

And the exercise continues as follows: "Brothers, arms at rest" (the glass is brought near the right shoulder.)

"Forward arms! Present arms!" (!)

"Ose!" (at this order the glass is brought near the left shoulder.)

"Three!" (it is brought back before the breast.)

"One." "Two." "Three." At each of these words the Brothers make a movement, whereby they gradually lower their instrument towards the table. At the third word put some and then put them down resolutely and altogether, so that only one sound shall reid be heard. The same thing is done with the "sword" (that is, the knife).

Really it is rather difficult, however, sorely one may be disposed to approve of the subject, not to smile a little at this description: and when involuntarily, while reading these things, certain proper names occur in one's memory, and one sees grave and reasonable men so engaged, one experiences a kind of sad surprise.

And how is it possible not to remember those banquets of primeval times when, at the last century so often saw in the Masonic temples, that ruler pseudo philanthropy, or, as the Constituents called it in 1852, "those good fellows in the Masonic lodges celebrating love and wine in the support of the collars!" "Since then," the Constitutionnel adds, "things have very much changed; those boon companions who had a sad soloop, after libations poured out by athelism and philosophy, woke up in the blood shed by the revolution." (5)

And how is it possible not to smile when one hears these great reformers proposing the Masonic theory of pleasure, and consecting Freemasonry as a species of island of Calypso, where reigns an eternal spring, and which no storms can trouble?

"Science has its moments of leisure: Masonry is by nature a lover of pleasure. Those which Freemasonry offers you will satisfy your heart and your sense. There is the true refuge where reigns a perpetual spring, where flowers forever bloom, and where the tempest never howls." (6)

But enough of all this: the least one can say is that, as to any real progress in virtue, humanity cannot reckon too much on this side of Freemasonry.

"What, we opened just now," said the Italian revolutionist whom I referred to a little while ago, "we too pastoral and too gastronomic, but it has an object which we ought constantly to encourage. . . . . It is on the lodges that we reckon to double our ranks." I shall come back again to a consideration of this object.

IV.

Masonic Rites and Mysteries.

We heard the Freemasons assert just now, "Let no free the imposing majesty of God from all the frivolities of external worship; from all the errors whereby the legion and not work are enslaved. There is, in fact, no form of religion which is not an intelligent being one embrace." (6)

They say this, and immediately fall themselves into humanity; for they add:

"Nevertheless, man is essentially religious. He feels the want of a form of worship which shall be worthy of him, and of the Supreme Being to whom he pays it."

"Well, my Brethren, let Freemasonry be that religion! Let us be its fervent apostles; let us initiate ourselves into its mysteries!" (9)

Its mysteries. Let us see in what they consist. In the official report of the Masonic meeting under the following exercise:

"My Brethren, attention! Shoulder arms! Present!"

First Fire. "To the health of his Majesty the Emperor."

Second Fire. "To the health of the Prince Imperial, the Empress, and the imperial family."

Third Fire. "To the glory of France." (4)

And the exercise continues as follows: "Brothers, arms at rest" (the glass is brought near the right shoulder.)

"Forward arms! Present arms!" (!)

"Ose!" (at this order the glass is brought near the left shoulder.)

"Three!" (it is brought back before the breast.)

"One." "Two." "Three." At each of these words the Brothers make a movement, whereby they gradually lower their instrument towards the table. At the third word put some and then put them down resolutely and altogether, so that only one sound shall reid be heard. The same thing is done with the "sword" (that is, the knife).

Really it is rather difficult, however

WEEKLY CALENDAR.
FOR THE WEEK ENDING MARCH 11
Sunday—Septuagesima.
Monday—Pius.
Tuesday—St. Thomas Aquinas, Confessor and Doctor of the Church. 8th Degree and Evil Day Marbles.
Wednesday—St. John of God, Confessor. Kid-ber Day.
Thursday—St. Frances of Rome, Widow.
Friday—Holy Thorn. Thursday Before Lent.
Saturday—The Forty Martyrs of Sebaste (March 9). Easter Day.

THE MONITOR & GUARDIAN:
THE ONLY
Irish and Catholic Journal in California.
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
SATURDAY.....MARCH 4, 1876.

SUBSCRIBERS will please specially look at the printed label on the margin or wrapper of the paper; the date thereon shows when the subscription expires.

TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS.

The remittances to this office have been failing off steadily for some time. Now, this is by no means as it should be. An examination can find how his account stands by simply looking at the wrapper or margin of his paper, there is no excuse for negligence or forgetfulness. No person should be allowed from rambling by the fact that his indebtedness is small. Our expenses are always the same, and have to be met punctually each week. There would never be the least difficulty in the way of doing this if our patrons who only owe a little would send on that little to us, and so keep clear on the books. As a word of advice has always been taken in good part by our subscribers, and has produced excellent effects, we trust this gentle reminder will be both acceptable and fruitful.

THE CHINESE QUESTION.

The Chinese question is once more being warmly discussed in the daily newspapers. The Chronicle makes itself specially remarkable for virility and energy in pointing out the dire evils which are sure to befall American society in consequence of the great influx of Mongolians upon the Pacific Coast. It declares the matter has now transcended in importance of a purely California question, and has reached the dignity of a national affair. BUCKLAND'S celebrated treaty is denounced, the complete abrogation is called for, and Congress is asked for legislation to prevent great calamities and disasters. In default of obtaining legal and constitutional remedies, appeal to violence is forcibly resisting the landing of any more Chinese has been recommended by a few hot-headed individuals. We have heard a great deal of this kind of thing before, and now see that it was only bluster. All the indignation expressed fails to excite us, and all the dark forebodings indulged in fail to alarm us. We remember when it was the fashion to denounce the Chinese, and to represent opposition to them as coming solely from the Irish. We can call to mind the time when they were accounted a very desirable class of immigrants, and when the almost unanimous cry of praise was lavished upon their industry, frugality, sobriety, etc. A favorite amusement of American editors was bestowing the respective merits and demerits of the Mongolians and the Celts, and the individual who did not give preference to the former thought he was very liberal, and had earned a title to the eternal gratitude of the Irish people. We have not forgotten the days when it was fashion, or rather protected, that a terrible anti-Coolie riot would take place, and prophetic pictures were drawn of a thousand or a million Irishmen arrayed in the work of burning and plundering Chinatown, and of the State militia engaged in the patriotic task of shooting down the rioters. We were of opinion at the time that what was used in discussing the question. If the Chinese were foreigners, so were the Irish; if the Chinese congregated together and worked for low wages, so did the Irish; if the one was from another, and open to all comers alike, and one class of immigrants had no right to cry out for the exclusion of another, and so on. The great anti-Coolie riot never came off; the Irish stopped quietly at home and minded their own business; and the militia never got the chance of shooting them down in the streets.

We stare most emphatically at the time that of all others the Irish were those who had the least to fear from Chinese competition. Of all classes of society they formed the one which was least interfered with by the Mongolian hordes. The branches of labor with which they were mainly concerned happened to be just those which the Chinese were naturally unfit for and did not care for engaging in. So they could afford to put up with the presence of the offscum of Mongolians with at least as much indifference as any other portion of the community, and now they do not appear to have any great cause for so doing. The excitement which is growing up at present is the work of others, and they do not even sympathize with it. Of course it would not ever occur to any intelligent Irishman that he could only be got to join in the outcry and create a disturbance. If they could only be incited to make an attack upon the Chinese, and so place themselves in the wrong, and enable others to appear in the character of champions of the oppressed, they would be served. But, happily, they have no intention of acting as "roughs," they are not going to drag anybody's chestnuts out of the fire. They think that those who are injured by the Chinese should be the very persons to devise means for getting rid of them. They can look on at the quarrel without troubling themselves about the chances of victory. Time has amply vindicated them, and they can now listen tranquilly to the discussion of the "Chinese question" by the parties whom it more intimately concerns.

A MALICIOUS "LIBERAL."

There is a little sheet published every month, we believe, in the city called the Pacific Liberal. It is the organ of the free-thinking portion of the community, and is strongly opposed to Christianity in any phase or under any denomination. It has no religious views at all, they are those of the most pronounced materialism, which brings down all action of human intelligence to the chance motion of physical particles. It professes, however, a sort of humanitarianism, or regard for the welfare of mankind in general, and of course pretends to be very just and very impartial in its treatment of all Christian denominations, and of all who put faith in divine revelation. Catholics, Methodists, Baptists and Jews are alike held to be kept in bondage by irrational and superstitious beliefs, and those alone who profess atheism, and deem it base ignorance for any more pompous name than the want of knowledge, are to be accounted as wise or scientific men.

We regret, however, to be compelled to say we have discovered proofs that these lofty professions of justice and impartiality are mere shams, and that the Pacific Liberal, like all the other exponents of unbelief, reserves it malice, its uncharitableness and its untruthfulness for the Catholic Church. We do not suppose that the Catholic Church will ever be much the worse for the hostility, for it has triumphantly withstood the assault of enemies incomparably more powerful than the Pacific Liberal; but we mention the circumstance as proof of the accuracy of the general rule. As we never make any charge that we cannot fully establish, most readers can rest confident we speculated with the libel on Catholicity perpetrated quite recently by the one named Liberal. On page eight of the issue for February is the following paragraph credited to Archbishop KENRICK of St. Louis:

> We confess that the Roman Catholic Church is infallible. The infallibility is a necessary consequence of unity. The Church is one since she is truth. She has existed from the beginning, and she will exist to the end, and every Catholic people must root it out. If we do not now persecute heretics, it is because we are weak.

Now, never, in the whole course of his life, did Archbishop KENRICK write, or utter, publicly or privately, these words, or words in any way resembling them.

We know the history of this precious paragraph well, and for the information and edification of the "Liberal" we shall summarize it. A Protestant paper, somewhere in Illinois, we think, first started it, and it was going the rounds famously, and many Baron Munchausen stories were made upon it. After a while the Cincinnati Catholic Telegraph picked it up and stigmatized it as a lie and a forgery. Then the report was set at rest by the Archbishop did not say it, this official organ did, and that just amounted to the same thing. Asked for the name of this official organ, the Protestant paper, whose name we unfortunately forget, and member at present, answered The Shepherd of the Valley. It was instantly denied that this print was ever the mouth-piece, official or otherwise, of Archbishop KENRICK, and that was declared to be no matter, for the paper was a representative sheet anyhow, and it stated the views of the Church. The next step was to prove that The Shepherd of the Valley was dead and buried more than twenty years ago; and that so far from being a Church organ, it was always under the ban of the ecclesiastical authorities, and indeed had been suppressed by them in effect if not substantially.

This knocked the last leg from under the lie, but the Cincinnati paper, furthermore, went to the trouble of verifying the quotation from the columns of The Shepherd of the Valley. Will our readers believe it? It was found out that the extract was garbled in the most contemptible and malicious manner. Right after the words, "If we do not now persecute heretics, it is because we are too weak," came in the article as it was written and published, "as we are in this country," followed by a remark that the preceding lines were intended to describe a hostile and untruthful allegation against the Church, and yet the veracious scamps journalist had no scruple against quoting garbled as an authentic declaration of Catholic principles. The gentleman who wrote the article is alive to-day, and while he is quite willing to assume all responsibility for what he did say, he detests and abhors the false interpretation put upon his words in order to defame the Catholic Church.

Now, we would ask our "Liberal" contemporary what is to be thought of the man who could wilfully make such a misquotation, for the thing must have been wilfully done in the first instance. But this is only a sample of the treatment received by every subject or matter in which the Catholic Church is concerned. Honor, conscience and truth are invariably disregarded. No lie is thought too gross or palpable to be put in circulation. The falsehood, of course, is always found out the start, and the truth finds great difficulty in overtaking it. Of twenty newspapers that assert the calumny, scarcely one will have the manliness to notice the contradiction. May we trust the Pacific Liberal will be more honorable and fair-minded?

THE DEATH OF A GOOD PRIEST.—It becomes our painful duty to chronicle the death of Rev. Father John Quinn, late assistant pastor at the San Rafael Orphan Asylum, which sad event occurred at 5 A. M. on the 26 inst. Father Quinn has been in delicate health for many years past, and has latterly been an inmate of St. Mary's Hospital. He was a native of Ireland, and aged about 47 years. Rev. Dr. Quinn, Vicar General of New York, is his uncle. Father Quinn was endowed with a most amiable disposition, which endeared him to all with whom he came in contact. He was buried from St. Mary's Cathedral at 10 A. M. on Friday of this week. Requiescat in pace.

BARRY SULLIVAN.

The new theater, on Market street, near Powell, to be known in the future as "Baldwin's Academy of Music," will be opened Monday evening next, March 6th. It is a good sign of the management of this place of amusement that the first dramatic celebrity to tread its boards and suck the sugar-plums of San Francisco audience therefrom, will be the justly famous tragedian, Mr. BARRY SULLIVAN. That he will be cordially received we have little doubt, for our fellow citizens have always shown themselves kindly disposed towards talent in every line of art. That he will speedily make himself a favorite, and win the hearty plaudits which to the eminent of his profession are even more dear than pecuniary reward, we have still less doubt, for he comes thither laden with laurels won in nearly all quarters of the globe from audiences deemed the most critical and exacting. As a delineator of Shakespearian characters he undoubtedly stands among the foremost of English-speaking actors. National sympathies, always pardonable, may place a few individuals on a level with him, but superiors he confessedly has none. At first his elocution, his gestures, his general stage mannerisms, may appear a little strange to Americans, because they do not resemble those to which they are accustomed, but soon the real genius of the man will begin to display its surpassing excellence, and the first night stepped quietly at home and minded their own business; and the militia never got the chance of shooting them down in the streets.

We stare most emphatically at the time that of all others the Irish were those who had the least to fear from Chinese competition. Of all classes of society they formed the one which was least interfered with by the Mongolian hordes. The branches of labor with which they were mainly concerned happened to be just those which the Chinese were naturally unfit for and did not care for engaging in. So they could afford to put up with the presence of the offscum of Mongolians with at least as much indifference as any other portion of the community, and now they do not appear to have any great cause for so doing. The excitement which is growing up at present is the work of others, and they do not even sympathize with it. Of course it would never occur to any intelligent Irishman that he could only be got to join in the outcry and create a disturbance. If they could only be incited to make an attack upon the Chinese, and so place themselves in the wrong, and enable others to appear in the character of champions of the oppressed, they would be served. But, happily, they have no intention of acting as "roughs," they are not going to drag anybody's chestnuts out of the fire. They think that those who are injured by the Chinese should be the very persons to devise means for getting rid of them. They can look on at the quarrel without troubling themselves about the chances of victory. Time has amply vindicated them, and they can now listen tranquilly to the discussion of the "Chinese question" by the parties whom it more intimately concerns.

LEGISLATIVE.

The Senate has passed the retrenchment bill, reducing the salaries of State officers, and the bill giving Mary O'Neal $1,000 for damages sustained by her by a rocket blinding her while she was rapturously admiring the pyrotechnical display on a bright Fourth of July night, some years ago. Poor Mary's raptures were suddenly turned into weeping, and the bright light of her lovely eyes was quenched forever.

The Senate bill by Edgerton was finally passed, including the State Capitol and grounds among public institutions in which it is a misdemeanor to sell intoxicating liquors. The same body passed the Assembly bill authorizing the Trustees of the town of Hollister to issue bonds to the extent of $15,000 for fire and water purposes. The bill confirms an ordinance of the Trustees undertaking to issue $10,000 bonds for the benefit of R. M. Shackleford upon bringing water into the town and supplying water for fire purposes, and $5,000 bonds for the establishment of a Fire Department.

The Assembly, by a nearly unanimous vote, has indefinitely postponed the bill repealing that clause in our present law of libel requiring prosecutors to give security in the sum of $500 for payment of costs if they fail to substantiate their charges. This vote may probably be accepted as indicative of the result of other bills relative to the press which have been introduced.

Assemblyman Archer's bill regulating fares and freights has passed the Assembly, but grave fears are entertained for its fate in the Senate.

A bill has passed the Assembly to fix the quality and price of gas in and for San Francisco. The price is $3 a thousand cubic feet and the quality 16-candle power. The present price is $3 75, and it is only about 12-candle.

The Assembly has passed a bill re-incorporating the town of Monterey, and has passed the bill allowing John Hinkle $350 for street work performed in San Francisco. Mr. Higgins' bill, in our opinion, was most meritorious, and should be passed by acclamation, but it was the work faithfully, but through a technicality was deprived of his just due.

Mr. Jourdan's bill fixing the rates to fare on street railroads in this city at five cents, and obliging the different companies to exchange tickets, has passed the Assembly, and as it is a most just measure, should become a law.

The Assembly has indefinitely postponed the bill extending the radius to four miles of the State University within which liquors cannot be sold.

Senator McCarthy has introduced an amendment to the Montgomery Avenue Act. This bill proposes to throw the assessment for this improvement upon the whole of San Francisco, instead of the property-owners within the limits described in the original Act. Referred to the delegation.

The Senate took up and passed, by a vote of 19 to 2, Senator Hager's bill amending section 248 of the Penal Code, providing for the punishment of assault and battery, by adding thereto that if the assault be committed on the wife of the defendant, at the discretion of the Court, might be punished by twenty-one lashes on the bare back.

Senator Hager has introduced a bill for the relief of the various orphan asylums.

The San Francisco deficiency bill has passed the Assembly, and Brosch's Dupont street widening bill the Senate.

A bill to declare the Assembly, introduced by Lambourne, to create the county of Santa Ana out of the southeast part of Los Angeles county.

St. Patrick's Day in Santa Cruz.

Active preparations are being made in the City of the Holy Cross for an elaborate display of Irish nationality on St. Patrick's Day. The celebration last year was said to be the finest witnessed in that city in beauty of arrangement and point of numbers any demonstration ever known in the county. We notice with pleasure the steady and increasing growth of the Irish spirit, Irish nationality and Catholic sentiment, which promises to keep pace with the wonderful development of the resources of Santa Cruz, and as it is now justly styled the Newport of the Pacific, we are assured that the Irish population will celebrate the 17th of March in a style commensurate with the reputation of the town, and not to be excelled on certain San Francisco's in this and various societies, both civic and military, are working with the utmost harmony and seeldous exertion. Invitations have been extended to the A. O. H. of San Jose, Watsonville and Salinas, and accepted. The oration will be delivered by N. J. O'Connell Pfrench, of San Francisco. It is a celebration well to emulate by a grand ball in the Skating Rink in the evening.

DEATH OF EDWARD MURPHY, ESQ.—It is our painful duty to chronicle this week the death of Edward Murphy, Esq., of Crescent City, Humboldt county, in this State. Mr. Murphy was a native of county Donegal, Ireland, sixty years of age at the time of his decease, which occurred last week, and was an old pioneer of California. For many years past he has resided in Crescent City, where he conducted a large and lucrative business, and where he was highly esteemed by all who had the pleasure of his acquaintance. His son, Hon. James E. Murphy, represents Del Norte and Klamath counties in our State Legislature.

Rev. Father Bachard, S.J., delivered an interesting lecture on large audience in St. Rose's Church, Sacramento, on Tuesday evening of this week; subject, "No Romanism for Free America." The proceeds will be devoted to furnishing the new College of the Christian Brothers, on K street in that city.

PUBLICATIONS RECEIVED.

THE PRIMAL SIN; or, the Sinner's Return to God. By Michael Muller, priest of the Congregation of the Most Holy Redeemer. Third edition. The Catholic Publication Society, 9 Warren street, New York. This is an excellent work, and is calculated to produce happy effects upon the minds of those who have under unsteady given themselves up to sin. The language is vivid and impressive, and the arguments introduced most telling. Perhaps the imagery with which it abounds, and the examples with which it is freely illustrated, may appear somewhat overstrained in the imagination of the generality of English-speaking people; but they are nevertheless well intended and really edifying.

THE STUDENT'S HANDBOOK OF BRITISH AND AMERICAN LITERATURE. By the Rev. O. L. JENKINS, Baltimore: John Murphy & Co. This volume is scarcely what it pretends to be—a handbook of British and American literature. The principal English writers of the present century receive but scant notice, while a host of American authors who are strictly forgotten, or deserve to be, get full consideration. Still we suppose most American students, for whom the book is intended, will sink the considerations of simple merit when patriotism claims their attention. So far as it goes the volume is passable, and no more.

THE "CATHOLIC WORLD."—The March number of this magazine has an unusually good array of articles. The "Sequel of the Gladstone Controversy" is a second installment of the important papers on that subject, and contains the conclusion very well. Wealth and morality of Catholic and Protestant countries shows some strange and unexpected contrasts. "The Priests of the Education" is a strong defense of the Christian Church against the popular charge that she is the foe of education. "Prussia and the Church" brings the history of the long religious struggle in the Prussian kingdom up to the latest outbreak of it. "Anti-Christian movements in the United States" is a timely and well-written article, giving the history in brief of the various subjects of anti-Catholic fanaticism in this country. "The Address before the Belgian Royal Academy of Medicine" gives the medical aspect of one of the most wonderful and interesting cases of our time. "Jean de Lert" and "Lights and Shades of Old Lace in Venice" are two of three bright and pithy descriptive sketches of foreign scenes in which the Catholic World is particularly happy. "Father Hecker's Paulist Fathers and Their Work" is rapidly approaching the catastrophe. The historical romances, "Sir Thomas More," and a short, sweet story with Two Varieties," complete the list of fiction. The usual miscellaneous matter will be found among as may be pleasant and its results golden.

EDWARD O'MEAGHER CONDON.

It is with much satisfaction we notice that an organized effort is being made to obtain the release of the American Government with the British Ministry for the purpose of procuring the speedy release of Edward O'Meagher Condon, who is now suffering imprisonment for alleged participation in the rescue of KELLY and DEASY at Manchester. The Circuit Court of the United States at Chicago held a very harmonious and impressive mass meeting about the matter, and it certainly will not be their fault if the unfortunate young man languishes much longer in confinement. Their example ought be followed without delay by their fellow countrymen throughout the Union. But Americans should be even more deeply interested in the matter, for Condon is a native of this country and consequently a citizen of this Republic. We have no hesitation in declaring our conviction that if a Democratic administration held office in Washington any time during the last eight years, CONDON would long since have been a free man; or if he had been the prisoner of any government but the British, GRANT'S official influence would have obtained his release ere this. A mean truckling to England and a haughty contempt for Ireland always have been and ever will be characteristics of the Republican party, although they make grave professions of honor and national spirit.

Impartial examiners of the evidence adduced on CONDON'S trial have repeatedly given their opinion that it was quite insufficient to secure conviction upon ordinary occasions, and that nothing but the intense dread and excitement prevailing about the doings of the Fenians could have induced the jury to accept it. There is consequently strong presumption of the man's total innocence, and every reason for demanding his liberation. The matter must be pressed vigorously or it will soon be too late, because recent intelligence says that CONDON'S health is failing rapidly, and the cashier's post in prison will surely kill him. It is probable, since an election is so close at hand, that the Radical Administration in Washington will endeavor to make capital for its party among the Irish voters by some pretense of intervention or appeal to Reggie Bull; but our countrymen should be vigilant to see that they are not deceived by a sham, or made victims of a false pretense. England's revenge has been full given, and she would, in our opinion, be only too happy to display the grace of policy to an earnest remonstrance made by America in the centennial year of its independence.

To the great disappointment of a large crowd of curious expectants, Governor Irwin has appointed William Blanding, a lawyer of this city, A. M. Burns, a marine surveyor of Oakland, and Bruce B. Lee, a resident of Sacramento, Harbor Commissioners.

JOHN J. MADIGAN, Esq., a gifted young lawyer of this city, has been invited to deliver the oration at Stockton on the 17th of March, but business engagements have forced him to forego the honor.

Edward O'Meagher Condon.

Monday evening, February 21st, in Robinson's Opera House, a meeting was held for the purpose of taking steps for the release of Edward O'Meagher Condon, whom most persons believe unjustly suffering imprisonment in connection with the well-known Manchester prison-van rescue. We give an epitome of the proceedings.

The Mayor said that he was heartily engaged in Condon's cause. He thought it a shame that that noble young man should have mewed up in a British prison for eight or nine years, and was ready to do his utmost for his restoration to liberty and friends. There was a man in the Ohio penitentiary who had been there for thirty years, and didn't know what he was there for. If meant to go up to Columbus and get him out. He thought that would take up about five days. (But, said his Honor, at the meeting will authorize me to go to England I will promise you that I will stop all the way.) He would be happy to do so with his purse. (Applause.) It was announced that the meeting was open for any business that might be proposed, when a young man in the audience started off most breathy to make an onslaught on the British Government for its detention of the Irish prisoners. He was immediately checked by Mr. J. W. Fitzgerald, who took the stand and said:

Mr. President—I trust the enthusiastic friends of Edward O'Meagher Condon, of which no doubt our young friend who rises to my left is one, will not, in their well-meant but ill-timed zeal, do anything to mar the success of the meeting. We are here to-night to do something, in one of its most legitimate forms, to testify our sympathy with our fellow-countryman, Edward O'Meagher Condon, who is now suffering imprisonment in a British dungeon, and to obtain his release

IRISH LOCAL NEWS.

From the Dublin Nation of February 5.

ANTRIM.

On Saturday a meeting of the shipowners of Belfast was held, Mr. Corry, M. P., presiding. It was contended that the present agitation was unwarranted, is detrimental to the legitimate interests of an important national industry, and demoralizing to seamen and others dependent on the shipping trade.

The Protestant Dean of Ross, Rev. W. Stanus, died on Sunday evening at his residence, Lisburn. The deceased was born in Queen's county, January, 1788. After completing his college course, he entered the army, but subsequently took orders in the Protestant Church. In 1817 he was appointed agent of the Hertford estate. At the death of Lord Hertford, in 1870, Sir Richard Wallace became the proprietor of the property, and appointed Mr. Clayton agent, but granted the dean Residence of £500 a year.

ARMAGH.

A long discussion took place at the meeting of the Lurgan Board of Guardians, on Thursday week, relative to the monument proposed to be erected in the public burial ground at Portmore, in memory of W. Harbinson, one of the Fenian prisoners, who died in Antrim Jail in 1867. Some of the Guardians complained that the object of the monument was not to perpetuate the memory of a Fenian martyr," and the board decided to consult the Local Government Board before giving their decision.

CARLOW.

At the last meeting of the Carlow Board of Guardians the chairman read a petition in favor of Sunday closing from Messrs. Nicolls and Wickham, secretaries to the Irish Association for the Closing of Public Houses on Sundays, requesting the signature of the chairman on behalf of the Guardians and that the petition be forwarded to some member of Parliament for presentation. Mr. Brown thought the signing of the memorial was going beyond the legitimate business which they were called together to transact. After some discussion a show of hands was called for, when eleven appeared and about six members opposed to the petition, which was accordingly signed on behalf of the Board.

CAVAN.

At the last meeting of the Coothill Board of Guardians the chairman read a letter addressed by Mr. Lanesboro, a position in favor of Sunday closing was almost unanimously adopted.

CORK.

A few days since two Government clerks arrived in Cork harbor from Woolwich, and proceeded underneath the huge sheers erected at Haulbowline, where four torpedoes" were landed—namely, two 35-inch guns, one 25-inch and one 18-inch gun—all of which will be mounted in the harbor fortifications early in spring. Several more are daily expected to arrive.

A skating rink is about to be opened in Cork, for John Aramo and Mr. D. F. Leahy have taken on themselves the responsibility of introducing the fashionable pastime, and their arrangements are already so far advanced, that the rink may be considered a fait accompli.

At a Queenstown petty sessions, a few days since, Mr. Abraham Hargreave summoned his brother, David Hargreave, for threatening him. The defendant had upon the better part of his life in Australia, and returned recently to Queenstown, and made a claim on the house occupied by his brother. He presented himself at the house, but was told he would not be admitted, whereupon he threatened to shoot the inmates with a revolver he said he carried with him. Application for postponement of the case was made by the defense and was granted, but as the prosecutor stated that his brother and sister had been obliged to leave his house through fear of defendant, the latter was required to give bail.

At the quarter sessions for the division of Cork the criminal cases were few in number, and called for no special comments from the learned chairman. Mr. Kane, however, took occasion to advert to the extraordinary verdict returned by the petty juries at the recent sessions in Kerry, and said that the impression they produced on his mind was that the panel had been selected by the prisoners instead of by the sheriff.

DONEGAL.

Mrs. Rose Gallagher, nee Boyle, died at Inishowy on the 17th inst., at the very advanced age of 112 years. During her long life she never made any medicine, and was possessed of all her mental faculties up to the hour of her death. It is somewhat remarkable that she died on the same day on which a namesake, Owen Boyle, of Glentiee, same county, died, in his 105th year.

An illicit still, capable of containing, it is said, about eighty gallons, was seized a few miles from Milford on the 17th inst.

Late on the evening a smuggler was proceeding to his home at his intended operations in the town. There are at present twenty-one children at relieved, at a weekly payment of 2s each to their nurses.

At Philipstown petty sessions last week several cases were investigated at the out side car accident in Kingscourt, when a coroner, for the north division of the King's county, and several members of the Irish Association for the Closing of Public Houses on Sundays, requesting the signature of the chairman on behalf of the Guardians and that the petition be forwarded to some member of Parliament for presentation. Mr. Brown thought the signing of the memorial was going beyond the legitimate business which they were called together to transact. After some discussion a show of hands was called for, when eleven appeared and about six members opposed to the petition, which was accordingly signed on behalf of the Board.

QUEEN'S COUNTY.

On Sunday evening a deputation from the Maryborough Church Young Men's Society, consisting of Mr. Patrick A. Meehan, Mr. William Wheiss, Mr. John Dennis and Mr. William Quaack, waited on their late esteemed President, Rev. Thomas Morris, C.C., at his residence, Abbeyleix, for the purpose of presenting him with an address from the society on the occasion of his honored removal from among them.

On Saturday a numerously attended meeting of the tenants on the De Vesci estates in Queen's county was held in Abbeyleix to consider what course should be adopted by the meeting was for the purpose of getting up a permanent and the same year there were 8,285 county-marital. Half of those gave sentences of imprisonment, and we are glad to believe that about 2,000 men were imprisoned for desertion and that about 2,000 were sent back to duty without imprisonment. No doubt there may have been extenuating circumstances, such as outrunning leave; but the number of perdons seem very large. If it lead to the notion that desertion will be lightly visited, the consequences will be deplorable. The morals and discipline of the army will be undermined, and the very foundation of assistance disturbed. At the same time, it is to be borne in mind that the real evil lies not in punishment after offense, but in the prevention of offense itself. When we lose one of every hundred men gained, we should mend the system rather than insist upon vindicating its very doubtful propriety.—Dublin Free man.

Surprising to relate, the uncommon fact is stated that that the Mayor and Aldermen of Knoxville, Tenn., have tendered their services gratuitously to the city for the year 1876.

KERRY.

There is at present living in the Killarney workhouse as inmate—a man named Daniel Mahony—who has attained the patriarchal age of 101, and is in the full enjoyment of his faculties. He was born at Poulnagun, midway between Killarney and Kenmare. He resists with much precision the arrival of the French fleet at Bantry Bay, and describes very minutely one incident in which himself and family removed seventeen firkins of butter to a cave in the mountain adjacent. He remembers to have seen the English army at the time of the arrival of the French in Bantry Bay passing his residence, which was then the principal route between Limerick and Bantry.

KING'S COUNTY.

The remains of Mrs. Fosbery and her two daughters, victims of the late terrible railway accident in England, arrived in Limerick on Friday evening week, and on Saturday were interred in the family burial place at Ogonnelloe.

The Tullamore Board of Guardians have adopted the system of sending out juvenile paupers to board with trustworthy parties in the town. There are at present twenty-one children so relieved, at a weekly payment of 2s each to their nurses.

At Philipstown petty sessions last week several cases were investigated at the out side car accident in Kingscourt, when a coroner, for the north division of the King's county, and several members of Mr. Gowing, against the Hertes. In one case Mr. Gowing was charged with so seriously beating a Mrs. Hatte that she was unable to attend in Court. A medical certificate was handed in to prove the wounded condition of the lady, but the doctor was not present to give oral testimony, the charge was stilled. Michael Hertz proved a charge against Mr. Gowing for presenting at his head a loaded and cocked pistol, and threatening to shoot him. The magistrates inflicted a fine of 2s and costs. Mr. Gowing obtained a decree against Patrick Hertz for trespass, and had him bound to the peace for threatening to kill him.

LEITRIM.

Mrs. Anne Brodie died last week in Limerick, aged 100 years. She was relict of the late Lieut. Brodie, 4th regt., and mother of Dr. Michael Brodie of Limerick, and Dr. T. Brodie, Local Government Inspector of Poor Laws, Galway.

At the last meeting of the Limerick Market Trustees a discussion took place as to what steps should be adopted to obtain the payment of tolls on corn sold outside the market. A local merchants having failed to come to an arrangement on the subject with the committee appointed to meet them. The trustees decided on offering to take half the tolls on the corn so disposed of.

The Limerick Catholic Institute was formally opened on Thursday night week. Mr. W. Spillane, J. P., occupied the chair, and the proceedings were moved by the Rev. T. O'Dwyer, C. C., Mr. Charles Dawson (High Sheriff of the city), the Mayor, Mr. R. McDonnell, J. P., Mr. Carroll, Mr. Connolly and Dr. O'Connor.

LONDONDERRY.

One morning last week fire was discovered in Hill's saddlery establishment, in the Diamond, Coleraine. The fire-engine was speedily put in use, and, with the assistance of a number of the inhabitants, the flames were got under, but not before the stock of saddlery was totally destroyed. The house is one of the only two framed ones remaining of those with which it was built during the time of the plantation of Ulster by "the Irish Society."

LOUTH.

A few days since the bark Tortola of Sunderland, laden with 550 tons of iron-ore, put into Dundalk Bay, and was purchased by their London agents for the local firm of Messrs. Smith & Smyth, and brought up the river. Not meeting living memory had any vessel at all approaching her tonnage previously entered the port of Dundalk.

Castlebellingham was the scene of much rejoicing on Friday night week, the houses being illuminated, and several bonfires lighted in and around the town. The occasion of the rejoicings was the birth of an heiress to Alex. Hamilton Russell, heir-apparent to the Dunleer estates, and heir to Sir Allen Bellingham, Bart., Dunany.

MAYO.

At the last meeting of the Castlebar Board of Guardians the chairman read to the Secretary of the Irish Association for Closing Public-houses on Sunday, asking the co-operation of the Board in favor of the movement. After some discussion, a petition on the subject was unanimously adopted.

MEATH.

At a meeting held a short time since at Trim (the Rev. Christopher Keegan, C. C., in the chair) a subscription was unanimously raised in aid of the Parochial Fund. The result is that a sum of £38 9s. was contributed.

QUEEN'S COUNTY.

On Sunday evening a deputation from the Maryborough Church Young Men's Society, consisting of Mr. Patrick A. Meehan, Mr. William Wheiss, Mr. John Dennis and Mr. William Quaack, waited on their late esteemed President, Rev. Thomas Morris, C.C., at his residence, Abbeyleix, for the purpose of presenting him with an address from the society on the occasion of his honored removal from among them.

On Saturday a numerously attended meeting of the tenants on the De Vesci estates in Queen's county was held in Abbeyleix to consider what course should be adopted by the meeting was for the purpose of getting up a permanent and the same year there were 8,285 county-marital. Half of those gave sentences of imprisonment, and we are glad to believe that about 2,000 men were imprisoned for desertion and that about 2,000 were sent back to duty without imprisonment. No doubt there may have been extenuating circumstances, such as outrunning leave; but the number of perdons seem very large. If it lead to the notion that desertion will be lightly visited, the consequences will be deplorable. The morals and discipline of the army will be undermined, and the very foundation of assistance disturbed. At the same time, it is to be borne in mind that the real evil lies not in punishment after offense, but in the prevention of offense itself. When we lose one of every hundred men gained, we should mend the system rather than insist upon vindicating its very doubtful propriety.—Dublin Free man.

Surprising to relate, the uncommon fact is stated that that the Mayor and Aldermen of Knoxville, Tenn., have tendered their services gratuitously to the city for the year 1876.

MISCELLANEOUS.

A FARM OF YOUR OWN
...AND THAT...
REMEDY FOR HARD TIMES!
FREE HOMESTEADS
...ARE TO BE...
Best and Cheapest Railroad Land
...ARE ON THE LINE OF THE...
UNION PACIFIC RAILROAD
IN NEBRASKA.
SECURE A HOME NOW. Full information sent FREE to all parts of the world. Address O. F. DAVIS, Land Commissioner U. P. R. R. Co., Omaha, Nebraska.

PLAIN DIRECTIONS
FOR ANTIDOTE, EMERGENCIES, AND INDIGNANT AND CHECK THE SICK. By a Fellow of the College of Physicians of Philadelphia. One hundredth thousand. Handsomely stereotyped. 60 pp. 12mo. This work ought to be found in every family. Sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of price.
CLAXTON, REMSEN & HAFFELFINGER,
624 & 626 Market street, Philadelphia.

ZELL'S ENCYCLOPEDIA
New Revised Edition.
AGENTS WANTED.
SPECIMENS, with map, sent for 50 cts.
BAKER, DAVIS & CO., Philadelphia.

To have good breath the Liver must be kept in order

SANFORD'S LIVER INVIGORATOR.
INVIGORATE THE LIVER,
and cure Dyspepsia,
INVIGORATE THE LIVER,
and cure all Bilious Diseases.
INVIGORATE THE LIVER,
and cure Constipation and Piles.
INVIGORATE THE LIVER,
and cure Sick Headache,
INVIGORATE THE LIVER,
and cure all Summer Complaints.
INVIGORATE THE LIVER,
and cure Cholera Morbus and Colic.
INVIGORATE THE LIVER,
and cure Jaundice and Sallowness.
INVIGORATE THE LIVER,
and cure Sluggish Circulation.
INVIGORATE THE LIVER,
and cure Diarrhœa and Dysentery.
INVIGORATE THE LIVER,
and cure Sour Stomach.
INVIGORATE THE LIVER,
and cure all Diseases of the Liver.
For Pamphlets, address H. SANFORD, New York

AGENTS WANTED—To sell Stevens' Patent Self-Sealing Wire Paper Clips. Positive, reliable, absolutely safe, and perfectly simple. Send specimen, 10 cts. Sample dozen, by mail, 25 cts. Liberal terms. Address, with stamp or postage, FOREST LAKE MFG. CO., Portland, Me.

KEEP A DAILY EXPENSE BOOK.
IT WILL PAY. Best published. Agents Wanted. Model, cloth, 300 cents. T. J. MORGAN, 41 Warren st., N. Y.

5 PACKAGES FARM SEEDS in. Garden of Beauty, Mammoth Pumpkin, Potato, Sorghum Cane, etc., sent free for two stamps. N. P. STONE, Parkesburg, Pa.

WANTED.
AGENTS for the best selling Stationery Package in the world. It contains 14 assorts Paper, 12 Royal pens, gold holder, 2 lead pencils, 1 rubber, 1 penholder and a piece of jewelry. Single package, 25 cents; 3 for $1; $10 per hundred. Sells at sight. This package has been examined by the publishers of the Monitor and Guardian, and pronounced the best. Circulars free. BRIDE & CO., 789 Broadway, N. Y.

WEBSTER'S DICTIONARY
10-000 Words and Meanings not in other Dictionaries.
3,000 Engravings, 1,040 Pages Quarto.
Price, $14.
FOUR PAGES OF UNSOLICITED PLATES.
"The most practical English Dictionary."—London Quarterly Review
October, 1875.
"Of the issue of Webster's Dictionary throughout the country in 1873 were (even) more than double as large as the issue of any other Dictionaries.
"The family of children having Webster's Una-bridged, and using it freely, and another not having it, the first will become much the most intelligent men and women. And your children will be as they are trained."—Extract from the book and use, and urge its use, freely.
G. & C. MERRIAM & CO.,
Springfield, Mass.

UNABRIDGED

Over 1,000,000 Witnesses
Can testify to the superior excellence of DR. JOHNSON'S SPECTACLES AND EYE-GLASSES, they being the most perfect artificial help to the human eye known to science. They are pebble and warranted. One responsible jeweler to every fifty or so.
Beware of glass imitations.
Trade-mark, stamped in the bow of the spectacles and bottle of the Eye Balsam.
SPENCER MANUFACTURING CO.,
19 Maiden Lane, New York.
California Jewelry Company (Levison Bros.) 134 Sutter street, San Francisco, General Agents for the Pacific Coast. 1872

SLYMYER M'F'G CO.
CRUCIBLE STEEL FIRE BRICK
Fireproof, low priced, fully warranted. Catalogue giving full particulars sent free.
SLYMYER MANUFACTURING CO.,
Corner Front and Bank Streets, Cincinnati, O.

SULLIVAN, KELLY & CO.,
Northwest corner Pine and Front Sts.,
Where they offer for sale
THE LARGEST STOCK OF PAINTS, OILS, GLASS
ETC., ETC., ON THE PACIFIC COAST,
AT THE LOWEST MARKET RATES.
101, 103 and 105 FRONT STREET,
and 110 PINE STREET.

DIVIDEND NOTICE.
Hibernia Savings and Loan Society,
SAN FRANCISCO, January 31, 1876.
☞ At a regular meeting of the Board of Directors of the Hibernia Savings and Loan Society, held this day, a dividend at the rate of eight per cent. per annum was declared for the half year ending January 31, 1876, free from Federal tax, and payable from and after this date.
J. F. EDWARD MARTIN, Secretary.

EDUCATIONAL.

SAINT MARY'S COLLEGE
Conducted by the Christian Brothers
Offers every facility for acquiring a thorough Education, whether Classical, Scientific or Commercial.
Thos. who compose the Classical Course receive the degree of A. B.; the Scientific, B. S.; the Commercial, Master of Accounts.
The Commercial course has been established for the convenience of those who wish to acquire a good practical education in as short a time as possible.
While proper care is bestowed on every branch taught in the College, our own language receives special attention. The daily exercises in Rhetoric, in Grammar, Composition and Elocution are publicly declared and carefully noted.
TERMS PER SCHOLASTIC YEAR.
(Payable half yearly in advance).
Board, Tuition and Washing.....$150 00
Physician's Fee and Medicines.....5 00
Use of Library and Philosophical Apparatus.....5 00
Use of Bed.....10 00
Graduation Fee.....20 00
Students' Language, Music and drawing form extra charges.
Studies will be resumed on the 8th of August.
REV. B. JUSTIN, President.

ST. VINCENT'S SCHOOL.
THIS INSTITUTION IS SITUATED IN SANTA CLARA, a short distance from the line of the most delightful and healthy part of the city. The course of instruction embraces the usual branches of a thorough English education. Spanish is also taught.
TERMS
(Invariably half yearly in advance):
Board, tuition, bed, bedding, washing, etc.....$200 00
Piano, and use of instrument, per month, $1 50 to $3 50
Violin, per month.....1 00
No extra charge for Piano Seeing, Fancy Needlework.
The scholastic year commences on the 1st Monday in August 16th, and terminates on the last Thursday in June.
For further particulars apply to
SISTERS OF CHARITY,
1750 Santa Barbara, Cal.

COLLEGE OF NOTRE DAME,
SAN JOSE, CALIFORNIA.
YOUNG LADIES' INSTITUTE.
THIS INSTITUTION, WHICH IS INCORPORATED according to the laws of the State and empowered to confer literary honors and grant diplomas, will RE-OPEN its Annual Session on MONDAY, August 2, 1875.
TERMS:
Entrance fee, to be paid only once.....$ 10 00
Board and Tuition, per quarter.....72 50
Physician's fee, per quarter.....2 50
Payments to be made in advance.
Not any charge for the use of bedding, nor for ordinary charges. Out there is no extra charge for the French language, nor for Painting, Drawing and Fancy Needlework.
Pupils may enter at any time, and are made half a session in advance. Pupils will find it much to their advantage to be present at the opening of the Session. au1tf

ST. CATHERINE'S ACADEMY,
FOR YOUNG LADIES.
BENICIA.....CALIFORNIA.
THIS INSTITUTION IS CONDUCTED BY THE Sisters of St. Dominic, and is situated in the most healthy and delightful part of the city. The education embraces the various branches of instruction suitable to the most approved system of education for young ladies. Pupils of any religious denomination will be received, but, for the sake of uniformity, all are required to be present at the regular religious exercises of the house.
The scholastic year, comprising ten months, opens on the first Monday in August, and closes on the last Thursday in June. Pupils will be received at any time during the session, except in case of sickness. Parents who wish their children to enter at the beginning of the session will please make early application.
TERMS PER SCHOLASTIC YEAR.
(Payable half yearly in advance).
Board, Tuition and Washing.....$150 00
Physician's Fee and Medicines.....5 00
Use of Bed.....10 00
Use of Library and Philosophical Apparatus.....5 00
Graduation Fee.....20 00
Instrumental Use, per month.....$2 00
Use of Piano, per month.....1 00
Use of Violin.....1 00
Drawing and Painting.....1 00
Lessons on the Guitar.....2 00
DAY PUPILS.
Tuition, per month.....$1 50
Tuition, Board and Washing, per session.....40 00
Bed and Bedding.....10 00
Physician's Fee and Medicines, per session.....2 50
Payments to be made in advance, and no deduction will be made for absence, except in case of protracted illness.
Pupils will be furnished by the College, for the purchase of necessary articles, a sufficient sum each month.
For further particulars apply to
REV. J. M. ROMO, C. S. J.
Benicia, Cal.

SANTA CLARA ADVERTISEMENTS.

CAMERON HOUSE,
SANTA CLARA, CAL.
MARTIN CORCORAN.....PROPRIETOR.
MR. CORCORAN, having purchased the above-named Hotel, assures the many friends and patrons of the late Mrs. Cameron that the reputation he enjoyed while proprietor of the "New York Exchange" in San Jose, and later while occupying the three succeeding years the position of Steward in the Santa Clara College, will be maintained while he presides over the Cameron House.
The Hotel is centrally located; the rooms are large, well furnished and ventilated, and the surrounding grounds are tastefully laid out.
In connection with the Hotel is a fine stable of horses and carriages, which will be at the service of the day or night, at moderate rates. au18

L. SAN JOSE MARBLE WORKS.
E. POWER,
Sculptor
SAN JOSE.
STATUARY, TOMBS, MANTEL-PIECES, HEAD-STONES, FOUNTAINS
And every description of MARBLE WORK.
DESIGNING, MOULDING, Etc.
And every style Wood and Stone-carving done. Mantel and Cemetery work a specialty. au

MENEELY'S BELLS.
WEST TROY, NEW YORK.
Established in 1826.
CHURCH, ACADEMY, FACTORY AND OTHER BELLS, made of copper and tin, warranted satisfactory. For prices and catalogues apply to MENEELY & COMPANY,
West Troy, New York

EDUCATIONAL.

SAINT IGNATIUS COLLEGE,
SAN FRANCISCO,
Conducted by the Fathers of the Society of Jesus.
This Literary Institution was incorporated, according to the laws of the State, on the 30th of April, 1855, and empowered to confer collegiate honors and grant diplomas as are granted by any University in the State.
The plan of the Institution is to give a thorough classical, Mathematical and Philosophical education, based upon the principles of Religion and Morality.
The College is conducted by day scholars only.
TERMS PER MONTH.
(Payable in advance):
Tuition, in Preparatory Department.....$ 1 00
" in Grammar Department.....1 50
" in Higher Department.....2 00
EXTRA CHARGES.
For the use of Instruments in Natural Philosophy and Chemistry, first year, per month.....$ 1 00
For the use of instruments, etc., second year, per month.....1 50
For each Academical Degree.....5 00

CONVENT OF OUR LADY OF THE SACRED HEART,
OAKLAND.....CALIFORNIA.
Conducted by the Sisters of the Holy Names of Jesus and Mary.
THIS INSTITUTION IS PLEASANTLY SITUated between Webster street and Lake Merritt, commanding an extensive frontage on the bay, the Contra Costa range of mountains, and all the modern improvements—no expense having been spared to render the Institution in every way worthy the confidence of the public. The tuition includes a full course of a solid, useful and ornamental education.
TERMS (payable half yearly in advance):
Board and Tuition (French included).....$ 50 00
Washing.....10 00
Use of bedding, without sheets (if supplied by the institution).....3 00
Physician's fee, Vocal Music, Drawing and Painting form extra charges.
For further particulars apply to
MOTHER SUPERIORESS,
jan6-6m

NOTRE DAME ACADEMY,
SAN FRANCISCO.
THIS ACADEMY, WHICH IS CONDUCTED by Sisters of Notre Dame, is situated on Market street, opposite the Mission Church.
Besides being spacious, the Academy is well lighted and contains facilities in every way, the class-rooms being large and airy, and the dormitories well ventilated. The grounds attached to the Academy, and an extensive play ground afford all the means for healthy exercise during the necessary hours.
The course of instruction embraces every useful and ornamental branch taught in the best Academies at the present day.
The second term of the Tenth Annual session will commence January 3, 1876.
TERMS:
BOARDING PUPILS,
For quarter session (payable in advance):
Board, tuition, washing and use of bedding.....$ 60 00
Music, with use of instrument.....15 00
Drawing.....7 50
Painting.....7 50
Use of Library.....1 00
Vocalism (optional).....5 00
DAY PUPILS.
For quarter session (payable in advance):
Select Day Scholar—Historic, first and second classes.....$ 20 00
Grammar and Fourth Grammar Classes.....15 00
Third Class.....12 50
Parochial Scholars, per month, throughout the session.....1 00
No extra charge for French, plain and ornamental needlework.
For further particulars apply to the Superioress, 1618 Market street.

ST. VINCENT'S COLLEGE
LOS ANGELES, CAL.
CHARTERED IN 1865, AND CONDUCTED BY the priests of the Congregation of the Mission. Terms for scholastic year, $200. For further particulars apply to
REV. CHAS. JOS. BESCHER, C. M., ap26 President.

RUSS HOUSE COACHES.

Nos. 27, 49, 48, 97 and 109.
McNALLY & BLATTNER.....Proprietors.
Orders left at the Russ House will be promptly attended to. Rates most reasonable. ap15

THE FAMINE IN IRELAND IN 1847.

The following verses were written in the year 1847 by a young lady then in her fourteenth year, on one of the unhappy scenes that presented themselves throughout Ireland during indefinite relief that prevailed at that time. They are marked by all the exuberance of fancy and poetic fire that characterize the gifted daughter of the "gentle" Adelaide Procter on many occasions, and though, like the latter, she was not a native of "the land of Destiny," they prove that she had, like her, a heart to feel for the oppressed and a voice to give utterance to its sympathies:

A mother watched her child's deep sleep
With restless pain and eyes drawn wearily;
Its slumber was as still as death,
As if now now it slept in death.

Her eldest sons alone were heard,
And tears were in her inward eye;
Yet spoke she no complaining word
To tell of her deep agony.

Worn out by watching, pale and wan,
From her young face, that none was fair,
All that was beautiful had passed away,
And sought remained but grief and care.

And as she watched, the dying child
Uttered its feeble, hungry cry;
"Oh! mother, give me food or I shall die!"
And then she sang her lullaby:

"Sleep on, sleep on, my darling one,
Upon thy mother's breast;
For though thou art so dear to me,
I would thou were at rest.

"For all is dark and gloomy here,
And hunger preys within,
And I can never, never leave
That look of agony in.

"Oh! then sleep on, my darling one,
Upon thy mother's breast;
For though I fondly love thee so
I would thou were at rest.

The mother watched her child's deep sleep
With restless pain, and then drew breath:
Its slumber was as still as sleep,
As if now now it slept in death.

She buried it beneath the sod,
And by its grave she stood and swore
Foul curses on her father's God,
To hate her or her little one.

A Jaguar Story.

One morning, just as we were at breakfast, on our farm here on the Panama, in came one of our engineers with news that one cattle, while feeding among the long grass on the other side of the river, had been attacked by a jaguar, and one of them killed. The father and his two sons had started to run for his life, and would not have escaped had there been anything on him fit to eat, or had there not been a lot ox ready to hand instead. As it was, he looked so thoroughly frightened that we thought he was a brave fellow enough), that it made us all rather serious. However, a week passed without any fresh alarm, and we were beginning to get over it, when, one suddenly in came three or four Indians in great flurry to tell us that a huge jaguar had broken into their encampment, and killed a woman and one of their children. My husband heard the story he made sure that it was the same animal that had been upon our estate; for they described it as being of a white color, and of a size which, in one of the most elementary acts of life—they could not say how—they had learned to call "the big animal." So then we all thought it full time to do something; and my husband called his men together to go out and hunt it down.

I remember that morning well, though it will be a year ago the day after to-morrow. Away they went merrily enough, every man with his gun and cutting knife, and in the blood bound, along with them. My husband turned and kissed his hand to me as they entered the wood, and then they were gone!

When I found myself alone in the house I began to feel very nervous indeed. I could not settle to anything, and every now and then I would start from my seat and listen, and then I fainted outright.

They told me afterwards that our blood-hound had struck the trail of the jaguar leading straight towards the house; and then they all set off to run like madmen, fearing some harm to me. My husband and José distanced the rest, and came up just in time to shoot the beast through the window; but he told me afterwards that when he saw it rushing about inside, he felt like one under the effect of the garrote (the instrument of execution).

As for my maid, she was so crushed that I couldn't stir a bit for weeks after. The Indians distrusted it for me, and they tell me I shall have the use of it again by and by; but I don't mind that so much as of that day. If I live a thousand years I shall never forg it.—All the Year Round.

The Trappists in Bosnia.

An interesting account of the labors of the Trappist monks in Bosnia has been forwarded to the London Times by M. Monsignac. It was drawn up by the Prefect Pleiner, the superior of the Trappist Monastery near Banjaluka, who has come to this country to solicit help for the construction of an Orphanage, which has been already commenced in consequence of the insurrection and the stoppage of the usual contributions from tiermany and Austria. It is now six years since two Trappist monks were driven by persecution from Bosnia with pickaxe and spade. They had clear the forest, make roads, build a house and bring the land into cultivation. The three monks have now increased to fifty, and this is M. Monsignac's words, is the community has done:

"A comparative wilderness near the town of Banjaluka has been turned into fields and grassing lands and vineyards; a convent large enough to contain about 100 brethren are in full swing; several bridges have been constructed, and miles of roads have been laid out and provided with heavy traffic. Two nurses and a garden have been bought in Banjaluka, where a school has been established under the direction of Sisters of Charity. An orphanage for the reception of children left destitute by the late insurrection embraces at the present time 200 children. The second term of the Tenth Annual session will commence January 3, 1876.

TERMS:

BOARDING PUPILS,
For quarter session (payable in advance):
Board, tuition, washing and use of bedding.....$ 60 00
Music, with use of instrument.....15 00
Drawing.....7 50
Painting.....7 50
Use of Library.....1 00
Vocalism (optional).....5 00

DAY PUPILS.
For quarter session (payable in advance):
Select Day Scholar—Historic, first and second classes.....$ 20 00
Grammar and Fourth Grammar Classes.....15 00
Third Class.....12 50
Parochial Scholars, per month, throughout the session.....1 00
No extra charge for French, plain and ornamental needlework.
For further particulars apply to the Superioress, 1618 Market street.

SANTA CLARA COLLEGE,
SANTA CLARA.....CALIFORNIA.
Under the management of the Fathers of the Society of Jesus.
THE SANTA CLARA COLLEGE WAS FOUNDED in 1851, and was incorporated in 1855, with the privileges of a University. Diplomas are given in the Collegiate and Commercial Courses.
The College buildings are large and commodious, and are situated in the Valley of Santa Clara, a most healthful locality. Extensive play grounds, with a swimming pool, etc., afford every facility for healthful exercise.
The College possesses a very complete philosophical apparatus, and valuable collections of Minerals and Geological specimens, Birds, Insects, Shells, Geography, Photography and Surveying. A Museum of Natural History is attached to the Chemical laboratory.
The Scholastic Year, which is divided into two sessions of five months each, commences in August and closes on the last Thursday in June.
TERMS:
(Payable semi-monthly, in advance):
Matriculation Fee, to be paid but once.....$12 50
Board, including Tuition, Washing, Bed and Bedding, Use of Library, Medical Attendance and Medicines, per month.....20 00
Use of Piano, per month.....1 00
Lessons in Instrumental and Music not in the regular course, per month.....1 00
Lessons in Painting, Drawing and Fancy Needlework, per month.....1 00
For further particulars, apply to
REV. A. VARSI, S. J., President.

FRANCISCAN COLLEGE,
SANTA BARBARA.....CALIFORNIA.
THE NINTH SESSION OF THIS INSTITUTION will commence on the first Monday in August, 1875, and continue nine months.
The course of instruction embraces the usual branches of a thorough English education, Mathematical, Classical and Philosophical Education, and the French language. Instrumental Music will be taught if desired.
TERMS.
Entrance Fee (to be paid once).....$ 10 00
Tuition, Board and Washing, per session.....150 00
Physician's Fee and Medicines.....5 00
Payments to be made in advance, and no deduction will be made for absence, except in case of protracted illness.
Pupils will be furnished by the College, for the purchase of necessary articles, a sufficient sum each month.
For further particulars apply to
REV. J. M. ROMO, C. S. J.
Santa Barbara, Cal.

NOTRE DAME ACADEMY,
SAN FRANCISCO.
THIS ACADEMY, WHICH IS CONDUCTED by Sisters of Notre Dame, is situated on Market street, opposite the Mission Church.
Besides being spacious, the Academy is well lighted and contains facilities in every way, the class-rooms being large and airy, and the dormitories well ventilated. The grounds attached to the Academy, and an extensive play ground afford all the means for healthy exercise during the necessary hours.
The course of instruction embraces every useful and ornamental branch taught in the best Academies at the present day.
The second term of the Tenth Annual session will commence January 3, 1876.
TERMS:
BOARDING PUPILS,
For quarter session (payable in advance):
Board, tuition, washing and use of bedding.....$ 60 00
Music, with use of instrument.....15 00
Drawing.....7 50
Painting.....7 50
Use of Library.....1 00
Vocalism (optional).....5 00

DAY PUPILS.
For quarter session (payable in advance):
Select Day Scholar—Historic, first and second classes.....$ 20 00
Grammar and Fourth Grammar Classes.....15 00
Third Class.....12 50
Parochial Scholars, per month, throughout the session.....1 00
No extra charge for French, plain and ornamental needlework.
For further particulars apply to the Superioress, 1618 Market street.

BANKING HOUSES.

HIBERNIA SAVINGS AND LOAN SOCIETY
Office—Northeast corner of Montgomery and Market streets.
OFFICERS:
President.....M. D. SWEENY
Vice-President.....C. D. O'SULLIVAN
TRUSTEES:
M. D. SWEENY, C. D. O'SULLIVAN, JOHN SULLIVAN, R. J. TOBIN, M. J. O'CONNOR, P. McGARN, GUSTAVE TOUCHARD, JOS. A. DONAHOE, PETER DONAHOE, EDWARD MARTIN
Treasurer.....HUGH TOBIN
Attorney.....RICHARD TOBIN
Remittances from the country may be sent through Wells, Fargo & Co.'s Express office, or any reliable banking house; but the Society will not be responsible for their safe delivery. The signature of the depositor should accompany the first deposit. A proper pass book will be delivered to the agent by whom the deposit is made.
Deposits received from $1 to $5,000.
Office Hours—From 9 A. M. to 3 P. M.

Jos. A. DONOHOE, San Francisco. EUGENE KELLY, New York.

DONOHOE, KELLY & CO.
SAN FRANCISCO,
EUGENE KELLY & CO.
NEW YORK
BANKERS.
EXCHANGE ON
NEW YORK, LONDON, AND, BANK OF IRELAND.....DUBLIN
Payable at all the Branches,
AND IN EVERY COUNTY TOWN IN IRELAND

BANK OF BRITISH COLUMBIA,
INCORPORATED BY ROYAL CHARTER,
S. E. corner California and Sansome sts.
Head Office—LONDON.
Branches—PORTLAND, OREGON; VICTORIA and CARIBOO, BRITISH COLUMBIA.
AGENTS:
New York—BANK OF MONTREAL
Chicago—BANK OF MONTREAL
Canada—BANK OF MONTREAL
Mexico and South America—LONDON BANK OF MEXICO AND SOUTH AMERICA.
Ireland—BANK OF IRELAND.
China and Japan—BRITISH LINEN COMPANY.
England—NATIONAL PROVINCIAL BANK OF ENGLAND.
England—NORTH AND SOUTH WALES BANK.
England—B K OF LIVERPOOL.
This Bank transacts a General Banking Business, receives deposits on current account subject to check, or on deposit.
Exchange on London and all the principal cities and towns of Ireland and Scotland from £1 upwards; also on New York and principal places in Canada.
Commercial Credits granted available in Europe, China, Japan, South America, Australia and New Zealand.
Approved Bills discounted and advances made on approved collaterals.
jan1-1yr WM. WILLIAMSON, Manager.

THE FIRST NATIONAL Gold Bank of San Francisco.
Office—Southwest corner of Montgomery and Sutter streets. (Nevada Block.)
Paid up Capital, $2,000,000 Gold.
Geo. F. Hooper, President.
D. Gallaway, Vice-President.
R. C. Woolworth, Cashier.
DIRECTORS:
Geo. F. Hooper, Peter Donahoe,
D. Gallaway, James C. Flood,
D. Callaghan, Leonard Rhodes,
C. O. Hooker, James Moffitt,
N. Van Bergen.
CORRESPONDENTS.
LONDON: Baring Brothers & Co.
" Bank of Ireland.
PARIS: Hottinguer & Co.
BERLIN: Prussian Bank of Ireland.
HAMBURG: Heine, Newman & Co.
NEW YORK: National Bank of Commerce.
BOSTON: Hayward National Bank.
CHICAGO: First National Bank.
This Bank is prepared to transact a general Banking business.
Deposits in Gold, Silver and Currency received subject to check or on special deposit.
Exchange on the principal cities of the United States, United Britain and Continental Europe.
Commercial Credits issued available in Europe, China and Japan.
Collections attended to and prompt returns made at the lowest market rate of Exchange.

BOOTS AND SHOES.

NOLAN BROS'
New Styles of ALEXIS TIES

ARE IN GREAT DEMAND.
The New Orleans Toe
IS ALL THE RAGE.
WE UNDERSTAND PARTIES IN THIS CITY are trying to palm off shoes

CATHOLIC INTELLIGENCE.

—It is authoritatively settled that Father Gaherty is to be Bishop of Hartford.

—It is reported that Louise Lateau died at Bois de Haine on the 25th of January.

—A conference of the Catholic Bishops of Germany is to be held in Fulda in April.

—The subscriptions for the Church of the Sacred Heart on Montmartre now amount to 2,825,524 francs.

—Monsignor Dupanloup, Bishop of Orleans, was received by the Pope on the 27th February, when he offered to his Holiness a sum of 62,000 francs, the produce of Peter's Pence.

—The erection of a monastery for French Carmelites has been begun at Mount Olivet, near Jerusalem, at the very spot where our Saviour taught the Lord's prayer.

—A number of colored youths have been sent to Rome from Louisiana, to be fitted for the priesthood, and for labor among the colored people in this country.

—The Liverpool Mercury reports that the Catholic Bishop of Southwark recently baptized seventeen converts, of whom a considerable number came from a Ritualistic church in Winchester.

—Cardinal Ledochowski is stated to have sent a long telegram to the Pope, thanking his Holiness for his elevation to the Cardinalate, and announcing that he will go to Rome as soon as he has made some arrangements in his diocese.

—The Minister of Public Instruction and Worship has informed the Most Rev. Archbishop of Rheims that he has approved of the expenses necessary to the general restoration of the Cathedral at Rheims, amounting to 2,833,411 francs and 55 centimes (about $500 000).

—There was a great gathering of German Catholics, including a large number of members of the aristocracy, on Thursday, February 24, at the hall known as the Cardinal Ledochowski was imprisoned, to welcome him from his prison.

—The Journal de Rome says Cardinal Hohenlohe has been most cordially received by the Pope and the members of the Sacred College. The many misrepresentations respecting the Cardinal's position towards the Vatican are thereby shown to be without foundation.

—The funeral of Rev. Christopher A. Pyrtek, late of St. Thomas' Catholic Church, Somerset, took place on Monday, February 21st, at St. Gabriel's Church, East Taunton, and was conducted by Father Cleary assisted by Father William A. O'Neil delivered a funeral sermon.

—Bishop Macebeouf, of Denver, Col., has publicly threatened the opposition of his congregation in the midst of the Constitution if it contains an article prohibiting a division of the school fund. He says in one dispatch. The truth would probably modify this statement considerably.

—The community of the Christian Brothers, assisted by the ladies of the county and city, intend getting up a bazaar and drawing of prizes on a magnificent scale. The proceeds are to be used towards the completion of the Presentation schools.

—On Wednesday, February 26, the remains of the dearly loved Abbess of the Convent of Kenmare were consigned to the earth in the burial ground within its enclosure. The funeral was preceded by the Office for the Dead and a High Mass, which was celebrated in the beautiful church adjoining the convent, by the Bishop of Kerry, assisted by his archdeacon and a large body of the clergy.

—Preliminary to making progress in New Zealand, Christian Brothers have arrived in Dunedin, where they will teach Catholic schools. At a meeting of the Catholics to provide for their reception, Bishop Moran stated that he had lost your received a letter from Rome, urging him to establish a seminary, but he had been unable to do anything in the matter, as he had no place available for it, or a spare priest to teach it.

—On the 23 ult. the interesting ceremony of religious reception was gone through at St. Mary's Convent of Mercy, Colton. Ten Very Rev. Dr. Hayden, V. G., Kildare, invested with the habit and white veil Misses M. A. Keane of Cappoquin, sister of the Rev. Dr. Keane, Clonliffe College, and M. Fogarty, Urlingford, who chose respectively the names of Sister Mary Paul Bernard and Sister Mary Catherine.

—At the Ursuline Convent, Thurles, February 24, at the funeral of Miss Wise, Limerick (in religion, Sister Raphael), took place amid all the pomp and ceremony of the ritual on such occasions. The deceased was one of the oldest nuns in the Ursuline Convent, Thurles. She arrived at the patriarchal age of 97 years, nearly 70 of which she spent among the sacred surroundings from the walls of which office and High Mass were held in the beautiful chapel of the convent, where the good and faithful servant of his master offered her morning prayers for so many years. His Grace the Most Rev. Dr. Croke presided.

—In the library of one of the ancient convents of Toledo are piles of MSS. consisting of old account books, and documents. The will have great value in a historical point of view. It dates from the beginning of the sixteenth century, and indicates several ancient mountains known to history, but which are at this time lost in obscurity. Full particulars concerning the discovery are to be published immediately by Signor Fiorelli, the Director of the Excavations in Italy, is about to look for the remains of the Capitol of Jupiter. The archæologists is also about to fill up the Colosseum, so as to expand the present breeding ground, and to rehabilitate the arena and the sedions of the cross, within the walls.

MR. LANGTRY'S DUALITY.

In connection with the other Methodist murders in Mr. Van Cott's church, New York, of which the Rev. E Dees is pastor. Recently one of the members of the church, Mrs. Susan Longstreth of High street, grew exceedingly excited in listening to one of the reverend gentleman's exhortations, and, rising from her seat, walked toward the aisle, saying that she wanted to be mortified. She took off one her jewelry, and, flinging it contemptuously on the altar, asked: "What are the Longstreths proud and vain of? They come from nothing." This action appeared to gratify the pastor, and he went on with his remarks and exclaimed, in an ecstasy of fervor, "Why, this is the spirit of grace. You have given all of us!" The congregation took a more prosaic view of the affair, the lady's broker-in-law giving vent to his annoyance by saying, "Come, go home and put your head in soak." On the following evening services were being conducted as usual by Mr. Dees, and he requested one of the deacons to offer a prayer. The latter declined, as did also three others. This refusal has broken up the revival service in this church.—N. Y. Sun.

How "the Nobility" got their Estates.

DUBLIN, February 6.—Before the Chief Baron and a special jury. The Duke of Devonshire vs. Neill and Fenton. The plaintiff's case having closed, Mr. MacDonagh, Q. C., stated the case of the defendant, which was that the Duke of Devonshire was not the legal owner of a several fishery on the Black water river within the limits here described, and that the ancient and immemorial right of all her Majesty's subjects to take fish from the locus in quo had been exercised from time immemorial as a privilege appurtenant to a public navigable river to the point of the ebb and flow of the tide. The learned counsel denied that any grant of this, as a new rial fishery, had been made prior to Magna Charta in 1215, and since then the Crown was divested of the right to make such a grant as the Duke of Devonshire claimed. It was true that the Lismore estate and castle were forfeited to the Crown by the rebellion of Earl Desmond, in the reign of Elizabeth, and that that monarch conferred the vast property upon her favorite, Sir Walter Raleigh, but the bed and soil of the river only attached to the estate, and Raleigh did not acquire by the gift a several fishery. On the very last day of Elizabeth's life, Raleigh, knowing that with the death of the queen his fortune and life would be in jeopardy, sold the whole of the splendid estate of Lismore to Richard Boyle, the Clerk of the Privy Council, for the miserable sum of £1,500. Boyle, who had commenced his career as an adventurer with 20 guineas, did not even pay the £1,500 to Raleigh. All the latter got was £500, and soon after the accession of James I., he was attainted of treason and committed to the Tower.

Boyle subsequently paid the balance of the purchase money, £1,000, to the King, who issued an inquisition to ascertain what estates and property Raleigh had possessed. The inquisition, which was held at the town of Tallow, in 1603, and the jury found that Raleigh, while under attainder, had possessed the Lismore estate, bounding the Blackwater river. James I. confirmed the ownership of Boyle in the estate purchased by him from Raleigh, and subsequently created him successively a peer, finishing to the fishery in the river. These patents, counsel argued, were obtained by Boyle, who was a grasping, avaricious man, to increase the value of his estate and lay the foundation for encroachments on the public rights, but the patents could not confer a several fishery that did not previously exist. The Duke of Devonshire's title was derived through Boyle, whose descendant became Earl of Cork, and the duke could claim no more than Boyle could have had so far back as human memory went it would be shown that the public fished in the river between the points claimed by the Duke of Devonshire; and "cot" fishing was notoriously carried on year after year, not interfering except to prevent fishing at the close of the season. The learned counsel then read a commissance into the facts of the case as disclosed in the previous litigation, and insisted that the Duke of Devonshire's attempt to exclude the public from fishing in the river was not based upon law nor justified by equity.

A Remorseful Deciisi.

Pal Power, of Dirngie, was a fast, robust man, much distinguished for his intemperance, and generally seen with a glowing face and a jovial countenance, an increase to a fire-setting companion, named Bill Brisco. When taking aim, he said he still had a friendship for him, and would show it. So he only shot off his left ear and top of his nor. When traveling in England, Power had many encounters with persons who were attracted by his brogue and clumsy appearance. On one occasion, a group of gentlemen were sitting in a box at one end of a coffee-room when he entered at the other. The representative of Irish manners took this nice on the English usage as a tissue of ignorance, blunders and absurdities; and when a real Irishman appeared on the scene he was quite unprepared to have the characteristics of his class, and to see a fair hair head in the room. Power took his seat in one of the boxes the waiter came to him with a gold watch with a gentleman's compliments, and a request to know what o'clock it was by it. Power took the watch, and then directed him where to let him know the person who sent it. He pointed out one of the group. Power rang the bell for his servant, and directed him to bring his pistols and follow him. He put them under his arm, and, with the watch in his hand, walked up to the box; presenting the watch, he begged to know to whom he was indebted for it. The gentleman knows it, he drew his own silver one from his fob, and presenting it to his servant, desired him to hand it to the owner of the gold one, he gave his name and address, and seemed to be preparing for a duel when he was still called for. It was never claimed.

On another occasion he ordered supper; and while waiting for it sat down to read a paper. After some time the waiter laid two covered dishes on the table, and on lifting the cover examined their contents he found they were two dishes of smoking potatoes. He asked the waiter to whom he was to be indebted for such fare; and he pointed to two gentlemen in the opposite box. Power desired his servant to bring him a knife, and having him in front what to do, quietly made a scraper of the potatoes, to the great amusement of the Englishmen. Presently, he servant appeared with two more covered dishes, one of which he laid down before his master and the other before the persons in the opposite box. When the covers were removed, there was found in each a loaded pistol. Power took up his and cocked it, telling each of the others to take up the second, asserting him "they were at a very proper distance for a sloe shot, and if not to their liking, he was ready to give satisfaction to the other." The parties immediately rushed out without waiting for a second invitation, and with them several persons in the adjoining box. As they were all in too great a hurry to pay their reckoning, Power paid it for them along with his own.

The intention of the House Committee to investigate the affairs of all the navy yards on the Atlantic Coast is a proper resolve; but why not extend its inquiries to the Pacific Coast also? The object is to find out how far these yards have been used for political purposes, and to report some measure to put a stop to the practice which no one doubts have long been practiced in them. The stories told of these abuses in the Brooklyn Navy Yard are so many, and so as they are scandalous, and if they be true, a remedy cannot be too soon applied for their correction.

The fallowest living specimen of the human race is a young man from Alcocer, in Spain, who is twenty-six years of age, and nine feet ten and a half inches in height. He is named Augustin Cepilla, and has lately been presented to the King of Spain. He is a strong young man."

REAL ESTATE AGENTS.

M. O'NEIL. M. K. O'NEIL, Attorney at Law.

M. O'NEIL & SON.

Real Estate and Law Agency,

NO. 702 MISSION STREET,

Corner Third ..... SAN FRANCISCO.

Bad Tenants quickly ejected—at very small cost.

Cheap Investments in Real Estate

LIST CHANGED WEEKLY.

Wholesale Market Report.

MONTHLY CIRCULAR, SAN FRANCISCO, March 1, 1876.

FLOUR.—We quote the jobbing rates for best Extras in bags this week at $5 50@5 75 per bbl.

WHEAT.—A rush ago average shipping was quoted to Liverpool at the close of the week, with a more marked decline from those rates—namely, to 10s 6d; 3d, at a loss of 8d. The downward course of the English market is now attributed to the weather there, and prices are softer. The transactions of the week amount to 17,000 centals, of which 12,000 were shipped and 5,000 sold. Closing rates: Shipping, $1 70@1 75 per cental; milling, $1 80@1 85.

BARLEY.—The market is dull and nominal at $1 20@1 35 for feed; brewing at 1 50@1 55.

OATS.—Quotations are $1 60@1 70 per cental for milling.

CORN.—Quotable at $1 45@1 50 ton.

BRAN.—Quotable at $16@17 50 ton.

CORN MEAL.—Table varieties, $3@3 25; feed $2 75@3 ton.

BEANS.—We quote lots from wharf as follows: Pink, $2@2 25; Bayo, $2 50@2 75; Butter, $3@3 25; Red, $3@3 50; Sieva, $3@3 50; Lima, $3@3 25; Small White, $3@3 25; Large White, $3@3 25 per cental.

POTATOES.—Sales of Early Rose reported in price from $1 50@1 75 ton, as to quality.

ONIONS.—Quotable at $1 50@1 75 per cental.

MIDDLINGS.—We quote feed at $17 50 ton from the mills.

OIL-CAKE MEAL.—Quotable at $27 50 ton.

HAY.—Wheat, $12@15; Wheat and Oat, $12@15; Oat, $12@15; Barley, $12@15; Alfalfa, $12@15 per ton.

STRAW.—Quotable at 50@75c per bale.

HIDES.—We quote California dry at 14@16c; wet salted, 10c for light and 8c for heavy. Dry kip and Calf, lighter salt kip, 14@16c; do Calf, light, 16@18c; heavy, 12@14c.

WOOL.—The amount of Fall remaining unsold is very trifling; nominally unchanged at 18@20c.

DAIRY PRODUCE.

BUTTER.—California, in good demand in choice; fine, 27½@30c; packed rolls, 24@25c; brick, 25@27½c.

CHEESE.—California, 12½@13c; Eastern, 20@22½c. EGGS.—California, 20@22½c per dozen.

FRESH MEATS.

BEEF.—For first quality, 10@10c; other grades, 7@9 c.

MUTTON.—For first quality, 10@10c; other grades, 7@9 c.

VEAL.—Small, 10@12½c; large, 7@8½c per lb.

PORK.—Fresh large, 8½@9 c; Brothers, 9½@10c; small, 10@10½c per lb.

CURED MEATS.

Hams—California, 13½@14c; Eastern, 16@16c. Bacon—California, lighter, Eastern, 16@16c. Pickled Pork—Boston, 12½@13c; Chicago, 12½@13c per lb.

POULTRY AND GAME.

Poultry—Young turkeys, 27 @30 5 ea; Brothers, 27 @ 30 5 ea; Gobblers, 25@27½c.

Geese—$1@1 50 per pair.

Ducks—$1@1 50 per pair; Mallard, 2@2½c per lb.

Game—$1@1 50 ea.

Rabbits—Cottontail, 25@30c per dozen.

Quail—$1 00@1 75 dozen.

Wild Geese—$1@1 50 dozen for small and $2 50 @3 for for large.

Wild Ducks—Canvas Back, $3@4 00 per dozen; Mallard, $1 50 @2; Sprigtail, 75@$1; Teal, $1@1 25.

REAL ESTATE AGENTS.

M. O'NEIL. M. K. O'NEIL, Attorney at Law.

M. O'NEIL & SON.

Real Estate and Law Agency,

NO. 702 MISSION STREET,

Corner Third ..... SAN FRANCISCO.

Bad Tenants quickly ejected—at very small cost.

Cheap Investments in Real Estate

LIST CHANGED WEEKLY.

Lot 82x12, with six tenements, renting for 100 per month, on Adelaide Place, 450 Taylor st., between Post and Geary $7 250

Two Lots 24x120, on east line of Jones street, 51 feet 1 inch Twenty first and Twenty-second, one block southwest from $1 500

Lot 60x80 on north line of O'Farrell street, between Hyde and Broderick $1 750

Lot 25x 87 6 on south line of Sutter street (Halliday Grant) $1 500

A number of desirable Houses and Lots on Sixteenth street, Oakland; from $1 800 upwards.

25 Vara Lots on Addy street, between Jones and Broderick $1 000

E. Corner Powell Hyde and Bernard sts., 82x137½; can be subdivided $5 000

Lot 25x100, on Bernard, 82½137½, on Hyde $1 000

Lots Nos. 1158, 1127, 1126, 1125, 1130, 1131, in Gift Map No. 3. Price of whole $2 000

Water Lot, No. 18, Block 237, 75x120, in Map "C" Contested Association $1 000

Lot 25x100, on Block 50, in the Haley Tract $1 000

N. E. corner Vasquez and Thirtieth streets, 100x 120, with two cottages, rented for $24 ..... $1 000

Lots 100x170, on Green street, east of Hyde, running back to Union Street Railroad $1 000

Four Water lots and Improvements on Folsom st., Nos. 1, 2, 3 and 4 ..... $4 000

Lot 25x100, on Bernard, between Hyde and Larkin $1 000

Lot 25x100, on Bernard, between Hyde and Larkin $1 000

Three Lots 75x120, near the corner of Kirkham and Eighteenth streets, Outside Pales, four blocks from Mission Road $1 000

Lot 25x100, on Bernard, between Hyde and Larkin

THE CROPPY.

A TALE OF NINETY-EIGHT.

Woes out with hunger and fatigue, a Croppy lays him down,
One smiles ere in Ninety-eight, upon a hillside brown:
From Kenturkly town a fled since noon before the fire,
But now exhausted and fatigued, he can no further go.

He gently lays his blood-stained pike beside him on the ground,
And soon his present woes forgets in blissful slumber sound;
And visions of his youthful days in dreamland vales appear,
Like glimpses of his country's face—as shadowy and as clear.

He sees again the lowly cot where first he saw the light,
And revels along the sloney's banks bedecked with daisies bright;
He sees the tapering village spire, he hears the vesper bell
Ring out upon the balmy air its sweet, melodious swell;

The dance, the pastime and the fair, with merry May-pole,
He revels in; but ah, alas! they vanish from his view,
And dark and dismal scenes appear—he sees his cottage blaze,
And fellow-peasants ranged at rest, who meekly met his gaze.

He sees the mother and the wife he dead upon the ground,
And trembling, shrinking to her side the children crouch around:
He sees a savage redcoat stoop, who tangles with bellish joy
As with his lay'net from the ground he lifts a helpless boy,
And high in air, from man to man, that child of tender years,
Is tossed about amid fiendish shouts and cheers.

He sees—O, glorious sight!—he sees the green flag flout on high,
And "neath it march a thousand men, undaunted to do or die.

He rushes forth with glist'ning pike to join that hero band,
Who fiercely trend in war array to free their native land.

He sees the red ranks of the foe, he hears their curses hear,
But what reck they? Onward they rush, like break-ing billows, no earthly power can stem
And England's veteran troopers, the glory of King George.
Fly hard and fast, o'er hill and dale, before their headless charge.

His fellows swift upon their track, advance a headless troop,
And shouting loud, "Down with the knaves!" in search of prey from on high.

And lo! before him—horrid sight!—with laughter on each face,
Some fifty hundred troopers fierce of England's hated race;
Their guns are leveled at his breast, their bayonets glisten bare,
And loud their shouts of Scottish joy arise upon the air.

Though brave is he, yet pales his cheek, and to his God he mainly bends,
Who hears the clamors of his voice, the blood flies with a start;
But for an instant only, then calm as summer sky
He stands before the fiercest foe, defiance in his eye.

He, rebel!" speaks a bold dragoon, the leader of the band,
"Prepare to answer with your life for your bloody deeds of treason done."
"No! I'm an Irish freeman, and as a freeman brave I've striven to lift my country from dark slavery's unmerited grave—
To banish from her emerald breast the foreign tyrant hordes
Who long her smiling valleys waste with flaming torch and sword,
But half hearted as your work of death, your weapons are no match for you;
And you will see how fearlessly a free born man can die!

And then good pike, my trusty friend, we now must part full soon—
To rest shalt be in staple fight there breathes not one dragoon."

Loud laugh the Saxon troopers all, in scorn at his reply,
They fiercely grip their ax-lenions and brandish high their swords;
Blood-light shines in angry clash of lightnes and of tongue,
Like tempest-blast so loud and shrill, their leader's voice outrung!
"I take thee, rebel, at thy word, and if there be the Christ in Heaven, upon my soul, thou shalt depart hence!"
But if thy bounding pores survive, then by yon azure sky,
Here shalt thou rest in sight to embrace a cruel death thou'lt die."

Then down the field they swiftly speed, each his vale below,
Without thy one, the Croppy forth before the foes he;
His weapon is in his hand, defiance in his eye—
He looks like one who is resolved to conquer or to die.

Soon from the flames troopers force outriden a bold dragoon,
His mantle jostled and smoke of steel bright shining in the sun—
His fleetfoot steed is in his hand—fired blood in hour and soul.

And gracefully he sits upon his swift, impatient steed.

Then down upon the Croppy bold a whirlwind man he goes,
How can he meet that he-to-shock with naught but pike in hand?
The sword is wrench'd in his chest, the earth shakes 'neath its chest,
But ne'er it from the Croppy hero stands like a rock unmoved!
With one swift stroke he cuts the reins, then with a sudden bound
He grasps the saddle by the neck and pulls him to the ground.

Then turns he towards the foemen rave and wounds around him fell,
He stands before the Saxon foe, defiance in his eye.

Ah, rebel!" speaks a bold dragoon, the leader of the band,
"I'm ready to meet him here—I'm ready for you all;"
Front and defiant are his looks, his pike is gleaming bright,
But soon spring forth from yon dragoons to dare him to the fight.

"Brave rebel," cries their leader then, "a brave! never yet was seen;
Then may it be part—thy life is thine—shout loud thy watch word,
And though a rebel in our king, there breathes not in the land

One whom I honor half so well, I swear by my right hand."
Out spoke the gallant Croppy then, "Now by my father's sword,
Right nobly hast thou, brave dragoon, risen to thy gighted word;
I thank thee for thy kindly speech and for the life thou giv'st,
And though thou believ'st for the wrong, might be the years thou hast,
Perhaps fall soon ev'n I not again upon the field of fight,
Then with a cheer for Ireland he bounded from out their sight.
—New York Irish Citizen. J. BEAN.

ABOUT SLEEP.

DREAMING—WALKING—TALKING, PLAYING ON MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS, ETC.

Dreaming is now not such a puzzle as it once was. We know by careful study and experience what it is. No one dreams when he is sound asleep. Dreams take place only during an imperfect or perturbed sleep. The imaginative faculties are less or more awake, and being unchecked by the reflective faculties or judgment, the wildest conceptions are formed, and these half-waking fancies we call dreams. Usually these fancies are ill-assorted shocks of mental remembrance, or of something that has made a strong impression on the mind. There is nothing supernatural about them, and any attempt to explain them is simply ridiculous. Persons have been found to tell the meaning of dreams, are either impostors, or weak, self deceived individuals.

Yet, there are some curious phenomena about dreams. The half-waking mind, in an unchecked imaginative condition, can do things that appear a little surprising. Musicians have composed, and heard in their dreams, and so have persons of a poetical fancy composed verses, which they wrote down on waking. When we pass from the phenomena of dreaming, and enter

THE DOMAIN OF SLEEP WALKING,

Or somnambulism, a higher psychological curiosity is reached. Here we shall find it convenient to adopt some kind of classification, so varied are the forms in which the action presents itself. Many cases are on record, for instance, in which the sleep-action is a direct continuation of wakeful-action, without any break. Coachmen, postilions and gentlemen are known to have continued driving even after they had fallen into a drowsy stage; the muscles and nerves continue to act in a sort of automatic manner after consciousness has lapsed into slumber. M. Plazar, the celebrated guitarist or lute-player, one evening dropping asleep while playing, after having of an unusually liberal supper, he continued to "discourse sweet music," correctly and beautifully, until roused from his drowsy nap by the noise of his lute falling on the floor. Still more remarkable are cases of somnambulism in that which can be brought about by

THE INFLUENCE OF OTHER PERSONS OF THE SLEEPER.

External voices and sounds can move him to action and to speech, consciousness is seleep. Dr. Carpenter and other physiologists have recorded many instances of this kind. A young lady officer, constant to Admiral Lord Hood, at Toulon, would converse with him on matters for eighteen or twenty hours at a stretch; going to his berth, and falling instantly to sleep, his mind was nevertheless so drawn, to on one particular subject, that if a confused whispered "signal" in his ear, it aroused him at once and irresistibly. A young military officer voyaging with his clothes, and slept soundly for ten hours. The servant continued the joke not to disturb him by any sudden noise during his strange somnambulistic wanderings, as it might injuriously affect his mind. A young lady, when nervously ill, was prone to walk about the house in a state of sleep, never failing over the furniture or other obstacles; her eyes were open, but she did not see in the ordinary way, for no winking or movement of the eye took place when a strong light was held to her face. In a part of France where men are much accustomed to walk on stilts over swampy ground, a somnambulist one night walked across a swollen torrent on stilts; on awakening he found himself too much afraid to recross the same torrent by daylight.

A man dreamed that he saw a child fall into a river; he got up, threw himself again on his bed as if

IN THE ACT OF SWIMMING,

Salad bold of a bundle of clothing at the corner of the bed, treated it as if it were the drowning girl, held it with one hand, while seeming to swim with the other, and put it down as safely landed on the river side; he began shivering and teeth chattering and said out audibly, "It is freezing cold! let me have a little brandy!" and finally returned to bed again. A young military officer in the citadel of Brunsiein was seen by his brother officers to rise from his bed in his sleep, go to a window, open it, clamber to a roof by the aid of the window sash, take hold of a magpie's nest with its young, descend to the room, wrap the young birds in a cloak, and go to bed with them. Prof. Huslan apothecary, had a pupil named Castelli, who was much accustomed to somnambulistic influences; more than once the young man was seen to rise from his bed while asleep, go down to the shop, and serve out medicine to imaginary customers. Muratori relates the discovery that Archbishop of Bordeaux, expert-ments were made to ascertain what kind of vision was being acted. A sheet of white paper was quickly and cautiously substituted for that which he had written, and had placed before him; he did not recognise the change, if the two sheets were similar in size and appearance—he passed the sheet between his eyes and the paper, but he wrote just the same. In another case, a young poet not having finished some stanzas before he went to bed, rose in the night, went to his table and finished them—so much to his satisfaction, that he appiended the own genius and taste; in the morning he remembered nothing of the matter.

Marshot speaks of an Italian nobleman, Signor Antonio Fronti, who was much prone to sleep-walking, especially during the waning of the moon. One evening he played cards with some friends, and went to bed early. He servant told the guests that, from symptoms already familiar to him, he believed that his master would walk in his sleep that night; Fronti was lying on his back, with staring but unconscious eye, cold hands, and slow pulse. At midnight he drew aside his bed curtains, rose, dressed; put on his hat and sword-belt, went to the fire as if to warm himself, went to a table and lighted a candle, locked the door and put the key in his pocket. The watchers held a lighted candle before his eyes, but he took no notice of it, and did not seem to see it. He went downstairs, out to the stable, stroked his horse, bridled it, and appeared confused when he failed to find the saddle. He mounted him, but gave up his intention of riding on finding the gate locked; he led his horse to a water-trough, and allowed him to drink, led him to a post, and returned into the house. Going into the billiard room, he made a few movements of a cue, as if playing, then touched a few keys of a harpsichord, threw himself on the bed in his clothes, and slept soundly for ten hours.

A STRONG-MINDED PRINCESS.

The telegraph recently informed us of the death of one of the most prominent members of the Russian Imperial family, and probably the most strong-minded person among the female members of any royal or imperial household. The deceased was the eldest daughter of the Czar Nicholas, and the sister of the present Emperor, of whom she was only one year the junior, having been born in 1819. If there is any blood of Catherine the Great at all in the present generation of the Romanoff house, it must have been all concentrated in the veins of the Grand Duchess. From her very childhood she showed an extraordinary intelligence and uncontrollable temper, which only the despotic nature of her father proved capable of mastering. The Czar Nicholas is said to have been passionately fond of her, yet the violence of her nature seems to have caused him agonizing grief, and even to lift his hand against her. She was certainly the most studiously disposed member of the family, but she could never be made to attend the class-room of the palace. She was the bitter terror and despair of all her governess and teachers, yet when she beams of age she showed more erudition than any of her preceptors, and was the most liberal woman in gratifying, as soon as she came into possession of money, the wishes of the learned. Having heard what had happened between the priest and the officer, she sent for the latter and ordered the marriage to be set free and the offance to be pardoned.

We have only given a couple of cases out of a vast number. If those Protestant people who call the Grand Duchess Olga Nicolaievna a saint would but read what Gaetani Ambrosoli—by no means an "ultra and over Ultramontane"—has to say on "Heroes in Cassocks," they would conceive a very different opinion of the Russian princess than those they are taught by their Protestant leaders in keeping up hatred and prejudice against the Church of which she disappeared in the wake.—London Universe.

Heroes in Cassocks.

German Protestants call the persecution of the Catholic Church that has been going on these four years a "struggle for restitution." No more wretched misnomer could ever have been invented. Without the Catholic Church, mankind would still be groping in the dark as it was eighteen hundred years ago: and in our own time the organs of the Catholic Church have always been the real foglemen of civilization, and may be looked upon as the real emblems of a leveling intitudinarian age.

In no page of the history of our own time is this civilizing character of the Catholic priest more apparent than in the late Franco-German war. Whoever read the accounts of the battles that occurred during the siege of Paris must have a vivid recollection of the heroic doings of the Brothers of Christian Doctrine. They are styled freres ignorantins by their revilers, but on that occasion they deserved the name in so far as they ignored all possible danger, and which their paths were beset, and used to rush into the very thickest of the battle to carry away the wounded, French and Prussians alike. Their doings have been celebrated—sung, we were going to say—by M. D'Arsac, in a special work on the subject, but to those who would be recommended to any one as an efficient antidote of the poison constantly diffused in the minds of the British people by Lord Palmerston, Russell, et hoc genus omne.

But the French and Belgian Masons are here in perfect accordance with M. Louis Blanc. Thus, at the anniversary festival celebrated at the "Orient" of Marseilles by the Lodge of "Perfect Silence," an influential Freemason in the Order, Brother Brémond, while giving a sketch of the history of Freemasonry, said:

"How can we fail to admire the perseverance of those Brothers, who, in the midst of persecutions and prejudices, braved all religious prejudices, and prepared the successive for the struggle in darkness and the silence. They consecrated their days and nights to the work, and sometimes sealed it with their blood. Their courage was not shaken by the hatred of the Church, by the anathemas of the Sovereign Pontiffs, by the bans and interdicts launched against them by the Catholic priesthood. Their successors, who have inherited their spirit, have followed in their footsteps, and have not been afraid to brave the whole world.

II.

The Question as to the Right Strategy which Brethren must possess to occupy themselves with Politics.

The Attitude to be observed upon in the Affirmative in their Lodges.

But what must be clearly understood at this day, and what we have already said and have heard do not permit a doubt on the subject, is that these speeches are not the result of inter-excited of isolated instances, among individual Freemasons which might be counted by others; they are much more than this: the whole system has been officially brought forward for discussion, and in particular upon affiliation to the Masonic authorities; and the result of all the latter solutions is that Freemasonry will not limit itself to leading men in the lodges; that her object is to get possession of the whole people. They consider society as a vast mine for struggle in the political field.

This is probably what the "Grand Orient" of Belgium—the most violent of all—means by saying in the following important Masonic document:

"A Masonic candidate shall be first proposed by the lodge within whose jurisdiction he resides, but he is not to be made, by the royal and solution of the "Grand Orient," —the thousand heads and the hundred thousand arms—of which Brother Grisar spoke above.

That is what is textually prescribed in the following important Masonic document:

"Let us set to work, my dear brethren," says Brother Albert Joly, "and study these great social questions; for then the salvation of our cause will be secured."

And at the head of the project, what do we find? The palpitating question of labor, and more especially of workment; and, in a word, all democratic problems.

Taxe, this circular, when imparting its views to the Lodges of Belgium:

"Let us identify ourselves with the democratic ideas which must triumph in the end."

"The candidate himself shall be compelled to make a profession of faith in the lodge, and he shall not be put on the ballot-list."

"It will be invited to have recourse to the lights afforded by this lodge or by the "Grand Orient" in all serious cases which may occur during the time of his mandate.

"Every Mason must swear to employ all his influence to insure the return of the chosen candidate.

"The candidate himself shall be compelled to make a profession of faith in the lodge, and he shall not be put on the ballot-list."

"It will be invited to have recourse to the lights afforded by this lodge or by the "Grand Orient" in all serious cases which may occur during the time of his mandate.

"Every Mason must swear to employ all his influence to insure the return of the several candidates chosen candidate.

"Every lodge finding it useful to help its cause by publicity, shall convene means of inserting articles in the public press in which the "Grand Orient" will recommend such articles as may possess its confidence." (1)

But this is not all. If the candidate, when once elected, should be found wanting in obedience to the orders issued and his oath, this is what the "Grand Orient" has decided, with what powers it entrusts the lodge, and what guides she devises for them.

The "Grand Orient," without hesitation, decides that not only the lodges have the right to watch over and control the acts of the public life of those deputies and their members whom they have caused to be elected to any political functions, but that their duty is to reprimand, and even to cast off from the Masonic body, such members as may have been wanting in the duties which their position as Masons imposes upon them, especially in their public life, etc." (2).

Thus not only do the lodges occupy themselves with politics, but they watch their members into political functions; and they claim the right of investing, watching and judging the way in which those functions may be fulfilled.

As to the details of the questions which Freemasonry claims as belonging to it in the first place, let us listen to the following:

"To Masons belongs the question of popular education, to them the examination and solution of the question.

"When ministers will shortly bring before the legislative chambers the question of suppression of charity, to us, Masons, the question of public charity!

"The country is covered with establishments which are called 'religious.' It is high time that the Masonic institutions should be rid of them, even should it employ force."

And these words were followed by riots in Brussels, Mons, Antwerp, Liége, Verviers, etc., and by the expulsion of the king to escape a revolution.

The question is still under burning character are claimed and agitated by Freemasonry—social questions, and in the first rank those regarding the organization of labor.

Of this we find a proof, among many others, in an important Masonic work, a circular which the Lodge "La Perseverance" of Antwerp, in March 1846 (two years before the revolutions of the February, 1848), addressed to all the Belgian lodges, with a view to their co-operation in a project developed in the feast of the Order by the orator of this lodge whom we lately quoted, Brother Lemaire.

"It is high time," says this circular, "that the Masonry should occupy itself seriously in the great and stirring questions which are now agitating the whole of modern society.

"Let us set to work, my dear brethren," says Brother Albert Joly, "and study these great social questions; for then the salvation of our cause will be secured."

And at the head of the project, what do we find? The palpitating question of labor, and more especially of workment; and, in a word, all democratic problems.

Taxe, this circular, when imparting its views to the Lodges of Belgium:

"Let us identify ourselves with the democratic ideas which must triumph in the end."

WEEKLY CALENDAR.
FOR THE WEEK ENDING MARCH 18, 1876.
12—Sunday—Second Sunday in Lent.
13—Monday—St. Gregory I., Pope, Confessor, and Doctor of the Church.
14—Tuesday—Feria.
15—Wednesday—Feria.
16—Thursday—Feria.
17—Friday—The Holy Name and Nails.
18—Saturday—St. Cyprian, Archbishop, Martyr.

THE MONITOR & GUARDIAN:
THE ONLY
Irish and Catholic Journal in California.
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
SATURDAY.....MARCH 4, 1876.

SUBSCRIBERS will please specially look at the printed label on the margin or wrapper of the paper to see their names when the subscription expires.

TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS.

The remittances to this office have been falling off steadily for some time. Now, this is by no means as it should be. As every subscriber can find how his account stands by simply looking at the wrapper or margin of his paper, there is no excuse for negligence or forgetfulness. No person should be deterred from remitting by the fact that his indebtedness is small. Our expenses are the same, and have to be met punctually each week. There would never be the least difficulty in the way of doing this if our patrons who only owe a little would send on that little to us, and so keep clear on the books. As a word of advice has always been taken in good part by our subscribers, and has produced excellent effects, we trust this gentle reminder will be both acceptable and fruitful.

THE THIRD TERM PHANTOM.

There is no longer any reason for entertaining dread of the Third Term Phantom. It has been exorcised, and fled away into the outer darkness, whence it will never again return to fright the people out of their sense of propriety. Strange to say, it was not the Democrats who expelled it; nor was it the Republicans that banished it, no section or party, as such, can claim the praise of having done that excellent deed. GRANT and his friends, his Cabinet officials and his sycophants are the individuals to whom the credit should be given, only for the unlucky circumstance that it was their corruption and not their honesty, their avarice and not their patriotism, which rendered the much discussed Third Term a moral impossibility. Henceforward there need be no speeches made about it, for the thing is as dead and gone as issue as ever was buried in the sepulcher of general oblivion. The revelations made from time to time concerning the dishonesty and venality of Attorney-General WILLIAMS, of Secretary DELANO, of Secretary BORIE, of Minister SCHENCK, of Colonel BABCOCK, of Attorney-General PIERREPONT, and latest and worst of all, of the crowning infamies of Secretary BELKNAP, have been of such a character, and shocked the country to such a degree, as to place an insuperable barrier in the way of GRANT'S re-election to office.

It is now as clear and distinct as a mathematical demonstration that General GRANT has got all the honor of preferment he ever will get out of the citizens of this republic. He has forfeited, and voluntarily forfeited as far as evidence goes, all his chance of winning an honorable name for himself and of establishing a stainless record in the history of his country. One by one he drove away from his presence the able and reputable leaders of the party to which he owed his nomination and election, and he surrounded himself with persons of uncertain antecedents, of suspicious character, and of questionable honesty. The attempt has been repeatedly made to describe him as a frank and confiding man, devoid of guile, in himself and disinclined to imagine it in others, who, in consequence of his easy good nature, has been duped by his designing friends. But it has always been a retched failure. Pleading like this always ails to cost a stride upon the credulity of the generality of mankind, and it invariably succumbs down, it cannot possibly be reconsidered or accident that the representative man of a powerful party disagrees or quarrels with the best and most respected men of that party and draws to his side only those who are rapacious, corrupt and incompetent.

Unkind as it may appear to General GRANT, poor return as it may seem for his generous services in the field, most rational persons will strongly maintain that the President's selection of officials was guided solely by his sympathies, and if he has been surrounded by rogues they will say that happened because he preferred their company. WILLIAMS, DELANO, JAY, SCHENCK, BORIE, BABCOCK, and BELKNAP had more affinity with him, and were more congenial to his humor, than men of breeding, culture, polish and honor. The latter he has never in the course of his life moved among; he would naturally feel uncomfortable with them; he could not understand their ways or appreciate their principles of action; so he chooses companions and associates from those of his own kidney. Most of them have found their level already, and he will find his very soon. If he passes out of office without being impeached for high crimes and misdemeanors it will be in our opinion because he is more fortunate than innocent. But even if he does pass out unchallenged by justice, he will pass into a private life which will not certainly be cheered by the consciousness of having secured the respect or gratitude of his fellow-countrymen. When he retires from his office, and has no extraneous dignity to command attention, or to conceal his deficiencies of character and principle, who will there be found poor enough to do him reverence? Never since the foundation of the republic has there been a President who quitted the White House with a gloomier or less enviable prospect before him.

THE FOLLY AND FALL OF BELKNAP.

It is no mere figure of speech to say that the whole country was startled last week by the disclosures of CALEB P. MARSH, which furnished for utter the fair fame of Secretary BELKNAP. The story of official malfeasance and corruption is not, unfortunately, a strange one to the American people, for they have heard it told too often within the past ten or twelve years. The whole record of the Radical party since it got possession of the government is little better than a catalogue of crimes against the national honor and against the popular welfare. It, therefore, required something more than ordinarily flagrant and scandalous to reproduce that thrill of alarm and indignation which, following the course of the telegraphic wires, passed over the face of the whole Union a few short days ago. And, indeed, it was something more than ordinarily flagrant and scandalous and humiliating. Hitherto the charges affecting the honor and probity of our high officials came in the shape of innuendoes, or strong suspicions, or rare accompanied by circumstances that rendered defense possible. The man impugned retired from public life without passing through the State prison and party's well as many heads and some kind of a blanking case for him. But the tale of MR. MARSH was so straightforward, so full of detail, so free from inconsistencies or improbabilities that it was for the moment beyond the reach of conference or accident that the representative man of a powerful party disagrees or quarrels with the best and most respected men of that party and draws to his side only those who are rapacious, corrupt and incompetent.

Unkind as it may appear to General GRANT, poor return as it may seem for his generous services in the field, most rational persons will strongly maintain that the President's selection of officials was guided solely by his sympathies, and if he has been surrounded by rogues they will say that happened because he preferred their company. WILLIAMS, DELANO, JAY, SCHENCK, BORIE, BABCOCK, and BELKNAP had more affinity with him, and were more congenial to his humor, than men of breeding, culture, polish and honor. The latter he has never in the course of his life moved among; he would naturally feel uncomfortable with them; he could not understand their ways or appreciate their principles of action; so he chooses companions and associates from those of his own kidney. Most of them have found their level already, and he will find his very soon. If he passes out of office without being impeached for high crimes and misdemeanors it will be in our opinion because he is more fortunate than innocent. But even if he does pass out unchallenged by justice, he will pass into a private life which will not certainly be cheered by the consciousness of having secured the respect or gratitude of his fellow-countrymen. When he retires from his office, and has no extraneous dignity to command attention, or to conceal his deficiencies of character and principle, who will there be found poor enough to do him reverence? Never since the foundation of the republic has there been a President who quitted the White House with a gloomier or less enviable prospect before him.

THE FOLLY AND FALL OF BELKNAP.

It is no mere figure of speech to say that the whole country was startled last week by the disclosures of CALEB P. MARSH, which furnished for utter the fair fame of Secretary BELKNAP. The story of official malfeasance and corruption is not, unfortunately, a strange one to the American people, for they have heard it told too often within the past ten or twelve years. The whole record of the Radical party since it got possession of the government is little better than a catalogue of crimes against the national honor and against the popular welfare. It, therefore, required something more than ordinarily flagrant and scandalous to reproduce that thrill of alarm and indignation which, following the course of the telegraphic wires, passed over the face of the whole Union a few short days ago. And, indeed, it was something more than ordinarily flagrant and scandalous and humiliating. Hitherto the charges affecting the honor and probity of our high officials came in the shape of innuendoes, or strong suspicions, or rare accompanied by circumstances that rendered defense possible. The man impugned retired from public life without passing through the State prison and party's well as many heads and some kind of a blanking case for him. But the tale of MR. MARSH was so straightforward, so full of detail, so free from inconsistencies or improbabilities that it was for the moment beyond the reach of conference or accident that the representative man of a powerful party disagrees or quarrels with the best and most respected men of that party and draws to his side only those who are rapacious, corrupt and incompetent.

Unkind as it may appear to General GRANT, poor return as it may seem for his generous services in the field, most rational persons will strongly maintain that the President's selection of officials was guided solely by his sympathies, and if he has been surrounded by rogues they will say that happened because he preferred their company. WILLIAMS, DELANO, JAY, SCHENCK, BORIE, BABCOCK, and BELKNAP had more affinity with him, and were more congenial to his humor, than men of breeding, culture, polish and honor. The latter he has never in the course of his life moved among; he would naturally feel uncomfortable with them; he could not understand their ways or appreciate their principles of action; so he chooses companions and associates from those of his own kidney. Most of them have found their level already, and he will find his very soon. If he passes out of office without being impeached for high crimes and misdemeanors it will be in our opinion because he is more fortunate than innocent. But even if he does pass out unchallenged by justice, he will pass into a private life which will not certainly be cheered by the consciousness of having secured the respect or gratitude of his fellow-countrymen. When he retires from his office, and has no extraneous dignity to command attention, or to conceal his deficiencies of character and principle, who will there be found poor enough to do him reverence? Never since the foundation of the republic has there been a President

REVOLUTION—OR WHAT?

There is very small advantage in discussing the plague of official dishonesty with which the nation is afflicted unless we at the same time consider what means are to be taken for its extinction. All the virtuous indignation in the world will not save one dollar from the clutches of the thieves, and practical reform is the chief thing wanted. There can be no doubt that the emergency is pressing, and that the evil has reached such a point of development that it will destroy our republican institutions if it be allowed to run unchecked any longer. Already, indeed, intelligent people are asking each other—is not our government a failure? What has it brought us but dishonesty and incompetency in high places? It seems to us beyond question that there is no civilized race or people who would so tamely submit to plunder and degradation as we are doing at the present moment. They may talk as they will about despotism or tyranny, but where are the rulers who show less regard for the wishes or welfare of their subjects than the high officials at Washington exhibit for the wants or desires of the citizens of the United States.

However absolute or arbitrary the kings and kaisers of Europe may be, there is among them a sentiment of honor, a sense of their own dignity and responsibility, which prevents them from plundering their country or robbing their people, or permitting their subordinate functionaries to do it. The taxation levied by the most rapacious and exacting of them does not even approach that annually demanded from the toiling masses in this country, and not one over it is honestly expended for the purpose for which it is required. Here, unfortunately, everything is carried on on the grand principle of each man must grab for himself, so that the bigger the rogue, the heavier his profits. At least twice as much money as is necessary is taken from the earnings of the people, and this huge surplus is then spun into a fatal appliance; all was left honestly to depend upon his own merits and the intelligence of the audience. It was fortunate for him that a better audience, one more truly representing the culture, refinement and artistic taste of San Francisco, than that which greeted him on Monday evening, could hardly be gathered in any theater. Undemonstrative at first, almost of actual coldness, they were soon won to the heartiest applause, and ended by giving MR. SULLIVAN an ovation of which any monarch might lawfully feel proud.

MR. SULLIVAN'S impersonation of "Richard" is finished and artistic in the highest degree. It is smooth, even and well conceived, depicting the tyrant king as SHAKSPEARE drew him. Some actors interpret the character as that of an impetuous, overbearing prince, and are therefore given to rant; but MR. SULLIVAN depicts a scheming, crafty yet bold dissembler, led on by ambition to the crimes of the most appalling darkness. The latter rendering we believe to be the truer to every scene, and it certainly gives us the finer personage on the stage, while it requires much closer study for its successful portraiture. "Hamlet" is the best play in which MR. SULLIVAN will appear on the boards. Those who have already seen him in the title role have confessed that it is one of the subtlest intellectual treats that he enjoyed in the auditorium of a theater. "The Gamester," "Rebellion" and "The Stranger" are also in preparation, and will be presented to the public in due time. It would be unfair to speak of MR. SULLIVAN'S engagement without alluding in terms of praise to the new theater. It is a perfect bijou; no expense has been spared upon it. The fittings and decorations are in excellent taste, and the seating accommodation is very comfortable. The means of exit, unfortunately, not sufficient, and in the case of alarm would render a catastrophe more than probable.

A New Seminary in the Western Addition.

A meeting of gentlemen of the parish of St. John the Baptist was held at the church on Eddy street, last Sunday, to adopt a plan for rendering assistance to the Sisters of the Order of St. Dominic, who propose to establish a seminary in the western portion of our city. The ladies of this Order have for more than twenty years conducted a seminary in Benicia, the reputation of which is favorably known throughout this coast, and they now intend, if the needed help be obtained, to open a branch here which shall equal and if possible surpass in merit the parent institution. The meeting was presided over by the Most Rev. Archbishop, who addressed those assembled on the merits of the undertaking. He said he considered a large valley lying east of the Lone Mountain range is being covered with dwellings at a rapid rate, and in a few years will be filled with a dense population. As there was at present but a limited number of Catholic families, the heads of whom will prefer for their daughters the education within the sisters limpit. Our non-Catholic friends do not seem to understand our religious position on the question of education, but we understand it. We are fixed in the belief that morality and religion are essential parts of education, and that it would be unreasonable for us to expect from us that the youth of our country should be instructed in the knowledge of God as well as in that of earthly things; and we know that in the long run our people will decline to undertake this high duty as those who, prompted by a heavenly vocation, withdraw themselves from the world and devote their whole lives to the training of the young.

Rev. Brother Justin was the next speaker. He exposed the sophistry of the argument so frequently urged against the Catholic plan of education—namely, that the religious instruction of youth should be left to the family and the Sunday school. Can the head of a family, he said, be expected on returning home from his daily labors, fatigued in body or perplexed with cares, to study for its successful portraiture. "Hamlet" is the best play in which MR. SULLIVAN will appear on the boards. Those who have already seen him in the title role have confessed that it is one of the subtlest intellectual treats that he enjoyed in the auditorium of a theater. "The Gamester," "Rebellion" and "The Stranger" are also in preparation, and will be presented to the public in due time. It would be unfair to speak of MR. SULLIVAN'S engagement without alluding in terms of praise to the new theater. It is a perfect bijou; no expense has been spared upon it. The fittings and decorations are in excellent taste, and the seating accommodation is very comfortable. The means of exit, unfortunately, not sufficient, and in the case of alarm would render a catastrophe more than probable.

A New Seminary in the Western Addition.

A meeting of gentlemen of the parish of St. John the Baptist was held at the church on Eddy street, last Sunday, to adopt a plan for rendering assistance to the Sisters of the Order of St. Dominic, who propose to establish a seminary in the western portion of our city. The ladies of this Order have for more than twenty years conducted a seminary in Benicia, the reputation of which is favorably known throughout this coast, and they now intend, if the needed help be obtained, to open a branch here which shall equal and if possible surpass in merit the parent institution. The meeting was presided over by the Most Rev. Archbishop, who addressed those assembled on the merits of the undertaking. He said he considered a large valley lying east of the Lone Mountain range is being covered with dwellings at a rapid rate, and in a few years will be filled with a dense population. As there was at present but a limited number of Catholic families, the heads of whom will prefer for their daughters the education within the sisters limpit. Our non-Catholic friends do not seem to understand our religious position on the question of education, but we understand it. We are fixed in the belief that morality and religion are essential parts of education, and that it would be unreasonable for us to expect from us that the youth of our country should be instructed in the knowledge of God as well as in that of earthly things; and we know that in the long run our people will decline to undertake this high duty as those who, prompted by a heavenly vocation, withdraw themselves from the world and devote their whole lives to the training of the young.

Rev. Brother Justin was the next speaker. He exposed the sophistry of the argument so frequently urged against the Catholic plan of education—namely, that the religious instruction of youth should be left to the family and the Sunday school. Can the head of a family, he said, be expected on returning home from his daily labors, fatigued in body or perplexed with cares, to

MR. BARRY SULLIVAN.

MR. BARRY SULLIVAN opened his engagement at Baldwin's Academy of Music, last Monday evening with the play of "Richard III." This drama, although affording great scope for the display of histrionic ability, will never be a popular favorite unless embellished with scenic effects for which the Market street theater is rather unfitted on account of its meager dimensions. To the high genius of MR. SULLIVAN has established in this section a name has been handsomely acknowledged by the press. There was evidently no welcome prepared for the distinguished tragedian, there were no decorations engaged to be strewn upon him a feigned applause; all was left honestly to depend upon his own merits and the intelligence of the audience. It was fortunate for him that a better audience, one more truly representing the culture, refinement and artistic taste of San Francisco, than that which greeted him on Monday evening, could hardly be gathered in any theater. Undemonstrative at first, almost of actual coldness, they were soon won to the heartiest applause, and ended by giving MR. SULLIVAN an ovation of which any monarch might lawfully feel proud.

MR. SULLIVAN'S impersonation of "Richard" is finished and artistic in the highest degree. It is smooth, even and well conceived, depicting the tyrant king as SHAKSPEARE drew him. Some actors interpret the character as that of an impetuous, overbearing prince, and are therefore given to rant; but MR. SULLIVAN depicts a scheming, crafty yet bold dissembler, led on by ambition to the crimes of the most appalling darkness. The latter rendering we believe to be the truer to every scene, and it certainly gives us the finer personage on the stage, while it requires much closer

LEGISLATIVE.

The Assembly passed Jourdan's bill to compel an interchange of tickets of street railroads.

Senator Edgerton has introduced three additional sections to the code of Civil Procedure, giving hotel and lodging house keepers a lien upon the baggage of their guests for board, lodging, and room rent. Also allowing proprietors of hotels, etc., to sell baggage left on their premises after the same has remained there for six months. Referred to the Judiciary Committee.

Judge Archer's bill for the support of the orphans of the State makes the allowance to each orphan $100, and gives $75 to each half-orphan and abandoned child. Self-supporting institutions are exempted from the operations of the bill. The Governor, Attorney General and Secretary of State are constituted a Board of Asylum Commissioners, with visitorial powers, and they are to visit, either by themselves or by their clerk, the beneficiary asylums once every three months. When the orphan receives the age of eighteen it is to cease, and when no orphan shall receive a grant for whose support $10 a month is paid by his or her guardians.

Senator McCoppin's bill relative to water rates as now amended provides for the supply of water by corporations at reasonable rates and without discrimination; gives the fixing of rates to the authorities of cities or counties; and provides that no rates shall be charged to or collected from any consumer except the rate so fixed and established for the current year. Violation of the bill is to result in a forfeiture of the franchise and privileges of the company. The bill is framed to take effect on the 20th of April next.

The Assembly passed Kennedy's bill to require ex Tax Collectors to pay into the Treasury of San Francisco all moneys collected as taxes and retained by them. Failure to do this is made a felony.

LOCAL CATHOLIC.

Some sacrilegious wretches entered the Catholic Church, Brooklyn, after Mass on Ash Wednesday, and stole the altar cloths and two vases. Two young men were seen soon after with the articles under their overcoats, but the police saw them, not suspecting anything wrong, didn't stop them. A search afterwards failed to find them. The same evening the house was entered, presumably by the same persons, and the two remaining vases were stolen. This is the third time that the church has been feloniously entered and articles purloined. There are hopes of the guilty being brought to justice.

The Sisters of Charity have bought a tract of land in Carson consisting of fifty-three acres. On the farm are a fine two-story dwelling, stables and outhouses. The land is in an excellent state of cultivation, and the water is pure and abundant. The people of Carson City have been very fortunate, indeed, in having the Sisters settle in their midst, as securing such a valuable tract of land. There will be established there a ladies' seminary that will reflect credit upon the city which the Sisters have selected. The site is extensive recreation grounds, pure mountain air, health and comfort combined with a thorough accomplished education, will doubtless be a grand success.

THE Oakland Democracy have made the following nominations: Mayor, John A. Stanley; Justice of the Peace, Judge of Sausalito Police Judge, Frank J. Brearly, a popular and able lawyer; City Marshal, J. E. Price; City Attorney, R. A. Redmond; Superintendent of Public Schools; Mark W. Brier. School Directors—First Ward, Rev. B. Ackerly; Second Ward, H. A. Craig; Third Ward, John Hackett. Councilmen —Second Ward, Captain H. Watson; Third Ward, F. Knight; Sixth Ward, Captain J. Callaghan. This is generally regarded as a very strong ticket, and if supplemented by equally good ward nominations, Oakland, Republican as it is, may be won over to the Democracy. Democratic City Central Committee—First Ward, P. McQuade; Second Ward, S. B. Crosby; Third Ward, John Hackett; Fourth Ward, Major Riley; Fifth Ward, A. F. Moore; Sixth Ward, Thomas O'Neil; Seventh Ward, L. Wintringer.

The Oakland Argus, in a fit of virtuous indignation, terms that handsome suburb a "mere whistling station for the Central Pacific Railroad, and a lodging house for San Francisco." We thank the Argus for the San Francisco who there perch "roost-ers," he verges on the indelicate.

CLERICAL CHANGES.—Rev. Father Cushing from St. Patrick's to be assistant at Oakland; Rev. Father Nugent from Oakland to be assistant at St. Patrick's to this city.

WE call the special attention of our readers to an advertisement in another column of one who is truly an artist in his profession. We refer to MR. H. CHIRON, who has opened a merchant-tailor store at No. 35 Third street, where he will be pleased to wait on his old friends and the public, and give them perfect fitting garments with style and elegance, at moderate prices.

The Earl of Dunraven has sailed for England, but the young woman he ran away with hasn't been made Reven yet.

THE LATE REV. JOHN QUINN.

Rev. Hugh P. Gallagher's Sermon.

Rev. Father John Quinn, whose decease, on the 1st inst., we announced last week, was buried from St. Mary's Cathedral on Friday morning (the 3d), and his remains were followed to their final resting place by scenes in the open. The mother did not bother her head much about the matter; as considered it one of those thousand and ne's allings to which all sucklings are subject. As this was one day remaining she child in her arms, a doctor, an old family friend, stepped her to take a peep at master Peter. "His eyes trouble him somewhat," said she. "What a fine boy you have," exclaimed the good physician; "but what is his eye affair? Let me have a look." He examined the state of the case attentively. After an anxious scrutiny he declared the result to be Mima Retinosa. "Your child is becoming blind!"

The poor mother was thrown into consternation. "You are not in earnest; can it be possible?" The doctor answered her by lifting the eyelids of the child so as to disclose the seat of the evil. The pupils were in a frightful condition; they appeared to be simply balls of flesh, reddened with a bloody-like color, and enveloped in a film of purulent matter. Mrs. Eustonet remained some while longer in her seat. A gleam of light suddenly burst in upon the darkness; faith reanimated hope; the waters of the grotto would save the eyes of the child.

She nevertheless consulted another physician. "The case is serious, very serious," was his decision. "It is greatly to be feared that sight will be destroyed; medicine will come too late. Why have you waited till this extremity? Oh, my God! I little suspected this," added the mother. A prescription is committed to paper. Every day, upon the rising of the sun, Mrs. Eustonet would proceed to the grotto, and, having poured a drop of a very active liquid compound, which would in a short time set away the injured tissues.

Mrs. Eustonet was possessed of rare decision of character; she was more than a woman of ardent, lively faith. She had soon determined on the course to pursue. All her confidence centered in Mary. "A way with medicines! You, O Mary, you alone will cure my child by the water of the grotto." The doctor's prescription was thrown into the fire. She sometimes again the eyes of the child: they appeared to be in a truly lamentable condition; she clearly saw the injury of the evil. Trembling with fearful apprehensions, she cast herself on her knees, before a statue of Mary, and long and earnestly repeated her prayer, "Cure him, cure him for me."

With a trembling hand she let a few drops of the miraculous water fall upon the eyes of little Peter. The eyelid remains closed. She begins to lose hope. "Oh, he will not be cured: no, no, it is not to be. I am unworthy of a miracle."

She was in the greatest fever of anxiety. After a while, unable to control her impatience, she snatches the child from his cradle, leaves his eyes sown with the miraculous liquid, and she holds him up close to her own eyes, so the intensity of her longing gaze could force a responsive ray from the pupils of the child to her own eyes. Her father-in-law and a member of the household were in the room. She conceiving it unjust the name of the child, and fondles him, with all the enduring fit of a mother's caresses, in order to draw from him an answering look, but the slightly unclosed eye eyelids, and languidly turns his head towards the side whence the voices came. "Alas! alas! he will be blind," she uttered in despairing mother. "Not at all; see, madame," said the doctor, "he is beginning to distinguish objects. He must be troubled with the old rheumatism." The iron grasp of the disease so far relaxed as to allow him to remove the child from the mansion. With patient zeal he tolled in his vocation to its cure, though appearing the final sentence upon her. Sight was restored without a scarcely neither did him her redness were to be seen. "It became worse with joy," said she to the missionary who heard the story from her lips. "I all promises before the Virgin; what I said or did after that, I do not know. This one thing I recollect: at a certain moment I sprang on the neck of my Mother's statue, and imprinted many a warm kiss upon the beloved effigy. Had she not restored my child to my heart?"

The doctor made his appearance. Mrs. Eustonet showed him the boy saying, "I am happy. I believe that he is cured. But remain a little yourself, and give me your judgment." The doctor, after a few moments of close observation, replied: "True; his eyes betray no symptoms of disease. You will be cured, and handing her the little present, the token of his affection, and copies of the prescription, the gracious benefactress of the noble Christian mother, that she was consoled and compensated, if not rewarded, for her many anxieties.

The state of desolation of the lonely mansion often and often was broken in upon into the domain of death, increasing, of course, the merit of the sacrifice. Time was by these means made to fly, as unto her one makes no remonstrance, and service pays requisitions of those from whom none when "dead compos" he would have freely recoiled with becoming disgust. His attentions simply to the sick, and to the dying, and supported him in the sanctuary while offering sacrifice for the living and the dead—learning lessons in the Holy of Holies. The giving of a son to the altar is to complete assistance of the parent and child—the golden band that clasped them to domestic oneness is snapped—they lay down a willing victim on the altar, as Abraham did Isaac. The sacrifice is here nominal; no substitution, the final solemn act transports himself from friends and home that he may acquire the science and the piety and the discipline and the distinguishing grace could force a responsive ray from the pupils of the child to her own eyes. Her father-in-law and a member of the household were in the room. She conceiving it unjust the name of the child, and fondles him, with all the enduring fit of a mother's caresses, in order to draw from him an answering look, but the slightly unclosed eye eyelids, and languidly turns his head towards the side whence the voices came. "Alas! alas! he will be blind," she uttered in despairing mother. "Not at all; see, madame," said the doctor, "he is beginning to distinguish objects. He must be troubled with the old rheumatism." The iron grasp of the disease so far relaxed as to allow him to remove the child from the mansion. With patient zeal he tolled in his vocation to its cure, though appearing the final sentence upon her. Sight was restored without a scarcely neither did him her redness were to be seen. "It became worse with joy," said she to the missionary who heard the story from her lips. "I all promises before the Virgin; what I said or did after that, I do not know. This one thing I recollect: at a certain moment I sprang on the neck of my Mother's statue, and imprinted many a warm kiss upon the beloved effigy. Had she not restored my child to my heart?"

The doctor made his appearance. Mrs. Eustonet showed him the boy saying, "I am happy. I believe that he is cured. But remain a little yourself, and give me your judgment." The doctor, after a few moments of close observation, replied: "True; his eyes betray no symptoms of disease. You will be cured, and handing her the little present, the token of his affection, and copies of the prescription, the gracious benefactress of the noble Christian mother, that she was consoled and compensated, if not rewarded, for her many anxieties.

The state of desolation of the lonely mansion often and often was broken in upon into the domain of death, increasing, of course, the merit of the sacrifice. Time was by these means made to fly, as unto her one makes no remonstrance, and service pays requisitions of those from whom none when "dead compos" he would have freely recoiled with becoming disgust. His attentions simply to the sick, and to the dying, and supported him in the sanctuary while offering sacrifice for the living and the dead—learning lessons in the Holy of Holies. The giving of a son to the altar is to complete assistance of the parent and child—the golden band that clasped them to domestic oneness is snapped—they lay down a willing victim on the altar, as Abraham did Isaac. The sacrifice is here nominal; no substitution, the final solemn act transports himself from friends and home that he may acquire the science and the piety and the discipline and the distinguishing grace could force a responsive ray from the pupils of the child to her own eyes. Her father-in-law and a member of the household were in the room. She conceiving it unjust the name of the child, and fondles him, with all the enduring fit of a mother's caresses, in order to draw from him an answering look, but the slightly unclosed eye eyelids, and languidly turns his head towards the side whence the voices came. "Alas! alas! he will be blind," she uttered in despairing mother. "Not at all; see, madame," said the doctor, "he is beginning to distinguish objects. He must be troubled with the old rheumatism." The iron grasp of the disease so far relaxed as to allow him to remove the child from the mansion. With patient zeal he tolled in his vocation to its cure, though appearing the final sentence upon her. Sight was restored without a scarcely neither did him her redness were to be seen. "It became worse with joy," said she to the missionary who heard the story from her lips. "I all promises before the Virgin; what I said or did after that, I do not know. This one thing I recollect: at a certain moment I sprang on the neck of my Mother's statue, and imprinted many a warm kiss upon the beloved effigy. Had she not restored my child to my heart?"

The doctor made his appearance. Mrs. Eustonet showed him the boy saying, "I am happy. I believe that he is cured. But remain a little yourself, and give me your judgment." The doctor, after a few moments of close observation, replied: "True; his eyes betray no symptoms of disease. You will be cured, and handing her the little present, the token of his affection, and copies of the prescription, the gracious benefactress of the noble Christian mother, that she was consoled and compensated, if not rewarded, for her many anxieties.

The state of desolation of the lonely mansion often and often was broken in upon into the domain of death, increasing, of course, the merit of the sacrifice. Time was by these means made to fly, as unto her one makes no remonstrance, and service pays requisitions of those from whom none when "dead compos" he would have freely recoiled with becoming disgust. His attentions simply to the sick, and to the dying, and supported him in the sanctuary while offering sacrifice for the living and the dead—learning lessons in the Holy of Holies. The giving of a son to the altar is to complete assistance of the parent and child—the golden band that clasped them to domestic oneness is snapped—they lay down a willing victim on the altar, as Abraham did Isaac. The sacrifice is here nominal; no substitution, the final solemn act transports himself from friends and home

The Wonders of Lourdes.

LITTLE PETER RESTORED.

The date of the following facts is 1861. Peter Eustonet was a plump, chubby-faced babe, whose experience of life had but very recently begun; yet in this brief career the little fellow was afflicted with a sore disease, whose experience of life had but very recently begun; yet in this brief career the little fellow was afflicted with a sore disease, which threatened to deprive him of sight. As this was one day remaining she child in her arms, a doctor, an old family friend, stepped her to take a peep at master Peter. "His eyes trouble him somewhat," said she. "What a fine boy you have," exclaimed the good physician; "but what is his eye affair? Let me have a look." He examined the state of the case attentively. After an anxious scrutiny he declared the result to be Mima Retinosa. "Your child is becoming blind!"

The poor mother was thrown into consternation. "You are not in earnest; can it be possible?" The doctor answered her by lifting the eyelids of the child so as to disclose the seat of the evil. The pupils were in a frightful condition; they appeared to be simply balls of flesh, reddened with a bloody-like color, and enveloped in a film of purulent matter. Mrs. Eustonet remained some while longer in her seat. A gleam of light suddenly burst in upon the darkness; faith reanimated hope; the waters of the grotto would save the eyes of the child.

She nevertheless consulted another physician. "The case is serious, very serious," was his decision. "It is greatly to be feared that sight will be destroyed; medicine will come too late. Why have you waited till this extremity? Oh, my God! I little suspected this," added the mother. A prescription is committed to paper. Every day, upon the rising of the sun, Mrs. Eustonet would proceed to the grotto, and, having poured a drop of a very active liquid compound, which would in a short time set away the injured tissues.

Mrs. Eustonet was possessed of rare decision of character; she was more than a woman of ardent, lively faith. She had soon determined on the course to pursue. All her confidence centered in Mary. "A way with medicines! You, O Mary, you alone will cure my child by the water of the grotto." The doctor's prescription was thrown into the fire. She sometimes again the eyes of the child: they appeared to be in a truly lamentable condition; she clearly saw the injury of the evil. Trembling with fearful apprehensions, she cast herself on her knees, before a statue of Mary, and long and earnestly repeated her prayer, "Cure him, cure him for me."

With a trembling hand she let a few drops of the miraculous water fall upon the eyes of little Peter. The eyelid remains closed. She begins to lose hope. "Oh, he will not be cured: no, no, it is not to be. I am unworthy of a miracle."

She was in the greatest fever of anxiety. After a while, unable to control her impatience, she snatches the child from his cradle, leaves his eyes sown with the miraculous liquid, and she holds him up close to her own eyes, so the intensity of her longing gaze could force a responsive ray from the pupils of the child to her own eyes. Her father-in-law and a member of the household were in the room. She conceiving it unjust the name of the child, and fondles him, with all the enduring fit of a mother's caresses, in order to draw from him an answering look, but the slightly unclosed eye eyelids, and languidly turns his head towards the side whence the voices came. "Alas! alas! he will be blind," she uttered in despairing mother. "Not at all; see, madame," said the doctor, "he is beginning to distinguish objects. He must be troubled with the old rheumatism." The iron grasp of the disease so far relaxed as to allow him to remove the child from the mansion. With patient zeal he tolled in his vocation to its cure, though appearing the final sentence upon her. Sight was restored without a scarcely neither did him her redness were to be seen. "It became worse with joy," said she to the missionary who heard the story from her lips. "I all promises before the Virgin; what I said or did after that, I do not know. This one thing I recollect: at a certain moment I sprang on the neck of my Mother's statue, and imprinted many a warm kiss upon the beloved effigy. Had she not restored my child to my heart?"

The doctor made his appearance. Mrs. Eustonet showed him the boy saying, "I am happy. I believe that he is cured. But remain a little yourself, and give me your judgment." The doctor, after a few moments of close observation, replied: "True; his eyes betray no symptoms of disease. You will be cured, and handing her the little present, the token of his affection, and copies of the prescription, the gracious benefactress of the noble Christian mother, that she was consoled and compensated, if not rewarded, for her many anxieties.

The state of desolation of the lonely mansion often and often was broken in upon into the domain of death, increasing, of course, the merit of the sacrifice. Time was by these means made to fly, as unto her one makes no remonstrance, and service pays requisitions of those from whom none when "dead compos" he would have freely recoiled with becoming disgust. His attentions simply to the sick, and to the dying, and supported him in the sanctuary while offering sacrifice for the living and the dead—learning lessons in the Holy of Holies. The giving of a son to the altar is to complete assistance of the parent and child—the golden band that clasped them to domestic oneness is snapped—they lay down a willing victim on the altar, as Abraham did Isaac. The sacrifice is here nominal; no substitution, the final solemn act transports himself from friends and home

WORK CORRUPTION IN GRANT'S CABINET.

Secretary of War Belknap Admits that he Accepted Bribes—He is Impeached by the House, but Grant Shields him by Accepting his Resignation in Advance.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—Caleb T. Marsh of New York has testified before the House Committee on Expenditures in the War Department that he paid Mrs. Belknap $10 000 for the post-tradership of Fort Sill, and $6,000 yearly since. Secretary Belknap has admitted the truth of the charge, and implored the Committee to save his wife from dishonor, and to suppress some of the most damaging proofs, offering to suffer the whole consequence, providing the record of corruption be withheld. The Committee, however, were inexorable, and the Secretary has tendered his resignation to the President. H. E. Crosby, Chief Clerk of the War Department, who is by law made the Acting Secretary of War during the absence of the Secretary, is to-day acting in that capacity. There are no positive indications as to who will succeed Mr. Belknap; it is, however, generally believed that John C. New, of Indiana, at present United States Treasurer, will be tendered the position. The position has been tendered to Judge Taft, and Secretary Robeson is acting ad interim.

The House of Representatives have acted with great promptness, but impeachment in this country going only to removal from office and disqualification for holding future public offices of honor or trust, General Belknap's resignation, and its prompt acceptance by the President, will, it is thought, forestall this mode of procedure. Of course he can be prosecuted criminally the same as other wrong doers.

That there has been systematic trading in official patronage the following rather circumstantial statement fully confirms:

MORE DISGRACEFUL EXPOSURES OF GRANT AND BELKNAP'S MACHINATIONS.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—The Times to-morrow will contain the testimony of more than one witness before the Belknap Committee to the effect that there were some very interesting facts connected with this business. It seems that Orville Grant, brother of the President, has been interested with Belknap in disposing of trading posts for many years. Grant, after the appointment of Belknap as Secretary of War, visited one of the posts in the Frontier, and testified at Belknap's request by Secretary Rawlins. Durfee & Peck, who had the post-tradership at Fort Sill, were in San Francisco on their way to Washington to transact some business with the Interior Department. Belknap requested them to call on Orville Grant, and found that Orville Grant had full authority from the President to transact business at the War Department as he thought fit. Peck applied to Grant for authority to transact business with the War Department, and large sums in buildings and goods, and he would agree to it only in terms of so much cash down, and a certain share of the profits—precisely the same arrangements that Caleb P. Marsh testified to having made at Fort Sill. Peck refused to comply with these terms, and left Washington in disgust. Subsequently Orville Grant and Belknap's wife appointed Settler upon the terms proposed by Orville Grant. Peck, however, refused to have anything to do with them, and afterwards settled to sell to Durfee & Peck. He had first to obtain permission to sell from Grant. This Grant refused, and made easier terms with Durfee & Peck, who paid the money down, and being gone could force a responsive ray from the pupils of the child to her own eyes. Her father-in-law and a member of the household were in the room. She conceiving it unjust the name of the child, and fondles him, with all the enduring fit of a mother's caresses, in order to draw from him an answering look, but the slightly unclosed eye eyelids, and languidly turns his head towards the side whence the voices came. "Alas! alas! he will be blind," she uttered in despairing mother. "Not at all; see, madame," said the doctor, "he is beginning to distinguish objects. He must be troubled with the old rheumatism." The iron grasp of the disease so far relaxed as to allow him to remove the child from the mansion. With patient zeal he tolled in his vocation to its cure, though appearing the final sentence upon her. Sight was restored without a scarcely neither did him her redness were to be seen. "It became worse with joy," said she to the missionary who heard the story from her lips. "I all promises before the Virgin; what I said or did after that, I do not know. This one thing I recollect: at a certain moment I sprang on the ne

IRISH LOCAL NEWS.

From the Dublin Nation of February 12.

ANTRIM.

At Newtownards session on Saturday a man named McMinn, convicted of having in his possession a whisky still in full work, was fined £125.

The half-yearly meeting of the Ballymena and Larne Railway Company was held in Belfast on Saturday. The engineer's report indicated that the line can be completed within eighteen months.

The annual election for five harbor commissioners for Belfast took place on Thursday week, and on no previous occasion was such interest manifested in the contest. The commissioners returned were James Musgrave, J. P.; Alexander Maclaine, Dr. Ritchie, J. P.; William Robberson, Wakefield H. Dixon.

At the Ballymena land sessions last week Rose Ann Orton claimed, under the Ulster tenant-right custom, £700 from her landlord, Samuel Allen, in respect of a holding at Darryhaigen, Barony of Upper Dunluce. The chairman gave a decree for £555. Another claimant, John Taggart, whose claim involved the same legal points, sought £150 for disturbance by the same landlord, and the chairman awarded him £60.

ARMAGH.

A curious discovery has been made in the Slieverbidge shooting affair, which will, no doubt, tend to explain the rapid recovery of the wounded man, James Rafferty, though he life had been despaired of at the time. According to report, the bullet, after penetrating his left side at the back, lodged somewhere in the opposite side. It now appears that a woman who was about to wash the shirts worn by Rafferty at the time of the occurrence found the bullet between the two shirts. It is now in the possession of the constabulary at Silverbridge, and appears to be a piece of iron about three-fourths of an inch long. The singular incident has created some astonishment in the district.

At the meeting of the Lurgan Board of Guardians, last week, a letter was read from the Local Government stating that, with regard to the erection of the tombstone at the grave of Harbison, in Portmore, the Guardians must await further instructions on the motion from the Board. The chairman, Mr. Hancock, in reply to some of the Guardians, said that the matter on the monument was not in a very good way and a serious one. The letter (he said) was becoming very common, now that the Armagh Cricket Club had adopted it under the patronage of two Primates.

CAVAN.

Mr. J. G. Tallow, J. P., Secretary to the Cavan Grand Jury, has announced that the county Cavan has just received a sum of £3,500 from the Church disestablishment fund, as a first installment towards the asylum charges on the county cess, and that a sum of between £2,000 and £3,000 per annum is likely to be available from the same source for county cess purposes.

CLARE.

A large meeting of the parishioners of Kilfarboy was held on Sunday in Miltown, over which Mr. Kenny, of Freagh, presided. The meeting was attended also by many persons from a distance, as also by Rev. Mr. Wade, P. P., and Rev. Mr. Sweet, C. C. of Scariff. Several speeches were made in praise of Rev. E. O'Shaughnessy, and in favor of a testimonial to be given to the parishioner, the Very Rev. Dr. Begley. A sum of over £100 was subscribed on the spot as a testimonial to Very Rev. E. O'Shaughnessy.

CORK.

A distressing suicide was committed a few days since at Brooklodge, near Cork. An old man named Lloyd, who had been in receipt of a pension from the colonial government as an officer of the constabulary in Australia, and who lived in a cottage with his wife and son near Brooklodge, went into a field about noon and deliberately cut himself from ear to ear.

DONEGAL.

A preliminary meeting of the inhabitants of Dunkineely and its vicinity was held at the market-house, for the purpose of devising the best means of relieving the distress of the poor fishermen of St. John's Point. Those hardy and adventurous people are entirely dependent on the bounty of the ocean for a means of supporting themselves and their families—but since the appearance of the dog fish in the bays, they cannot follow their usual avocations, as no one dares to venture to sea, and so the poor fishermen are left without employment, and the families without food. A very respectable man was elected among the gentlemen who attended the meeting. Other subscriptions have since been received.

DUBLIN.

At the fortnightly petty sessions of Swords, on Saturday, there was a communication before the court-house from one of the county coroners, Dr. Davys, inclosing the following verdict of a coroner's jury:—"That deceased, James Carberry, aged forty years, came to his death accidently in Launestown, county Dublin, on the 23d January, 1876, from injuries received by his having fallen under a heavily laden cart, said deceased being at the time under the influence of intoxicating liquors. From the frequent number of accidents, and many of them of a fatal nature, that occur from time to time to carters in charge of heavily-laden carts coming or proceeding from Dublin to the surrounding agricultural districts, we consider it absolutely necessary that some rules should be enforced to prevent carters getting intoxicating liquors in the various public houses, and that the licensing petty sessions court should take into consideration the issuing of orders to the police, and the cautioning of publicans in reference thereto." The board adopted the following resolution, a copy of which the clerk was directed to inclose to the coroner: "That we are fully sensible of the increasing evil referred to, that we have hitherto been most cautious in the granting of licence, and we shall be for future adopt every means in our power to check a habit fraught with danger to life and property." The chairman mentioned that all persons charged with intoxication while in charge of vehicles, or furious driving, would henceforth be punished most severely.

KERRY.

Captain Robert Leslie, D. L., of Tarbert House (a Protestant), has presented Most Rev. Dr. Moriarty, Bishop of Kerry, with a site for a parochial house adjoining the chapel at Tarbert, together with six acres of land, at a nominal rent, and has also given a lease of the same for 2,000 years to Rev. Daniel Foley, P. P., in trust for himself and the future priests of the parish, with the approval and recognition of the bishop of the diocese for the time being.

At a meeting of the Kerry Tenants' Defense Association, last week, Mr. Jonathan Walpole in the chair, Mr. O'Rourke, the Secretary, said he was glad to be able to tell them their testimonial to their President, Mr. J. J. Long, was most gratifying to them personally, and highly redounding to the credit of the association. He read a large number of letters speaking warmly of the movement, and inclosing subscriptions. Those letters were loudly applauded. The subscription list now amounted to £50. Mr. Walpole said with such encouraging assurance before them the farmers of Kerry should now show they were men.

KING'S COUNTY.

There was not a single case entered for hearing at the last Parsonstown petty sessions, and the Bench was of opinion that the unheard of in the petty sessions annals, and the magistrate who attended declared the state of the opposite to be as surprising as it was creditable to the people.

Nearly all the inhabitants of Parsonstown, Tullamore and Kilbeggan, have signed a petition to Parliament in favor of closing public-houses in Ireland on Sunday. A house-to-house canvass was made in these places by a member of the Sunday Closing Association. Eight traders in Parsonstown refused to sign the petition.

LIMERICK.

The death is announced of Rev. Thos. Fitzgerald, the parish priest of Fedamore. The deceased clergyman was one of the few remaining of what is affectionately remembered as the "old school," and was no more esteemed and respected by his co-religionists than by those who differed with him in creed. It was mainly by his exertions that Limerick Diocesan Seminary was first started.

The Limerick Harbor Commissioners last week ordered such improvements to be made in the lighting of the Shannon, in accordance with the recommendations of their engineer. A colored light is to be erected at a suitable point on Cane's Island, another at Cranford Point, and two on the present white light, but a little apart from it, and a similar arrangement is to be made for the opposite side of Rolleal Rock, and also for the light at Clonmacken, if necessary.

LONDONDERRY.

The usual monthly meeting of the council and general committee of the Londonderry and Lough Swilly Railway Company was held in Draperstown on Thursday night last week, when the formation of a new council and committee for 1876 was proceeded with. With the exception of two additional members, the council is composed of the same gentlemen as last year, with John O'Hagan as chairman; James McBride, Vice-President; Joseph Kelly, Secretary, and Bernard Rogers, Treasurer. At this association has got itself affiliated with the Dublin League, and is supplied with the National Roll card, they have great hopes in the spread of the movement throughout the county Derry.

LOUTH.

At the last meeting of the Drogheda Board of Guardians a letter was received from the Local Government Board in reference to "Paddy Ward's" tombstone, the inscription on which was recently erased and recut, asking the Guardians if they had taken the advice of counsel.

At the last meeting of the Ardee Board of Guardians a letter was read from the Secretary of the Permissive Bill Association, requesting the Board to adopt a petition in favor of the Sunday Closing Bill. The Board unanimously adopted the petition, which was accordingly signed by the chairman and clerk on behalf of the Board. The clerk was directed to forward the petition to Mr. Sullivan, M. P., with a request to have it presented in the House of Commons.

MAYO.

The inhabitants of Ballinrobe are taking steps to establish a night-refuge, mainly to obtain railway accommodation to that town. A large and influentially-signed meeting has already been convened with a view of its prompt furtherance. Captain Knox, the landlord of the town, and Mr. Arthur Guinness have been communicated with, and is expected a favorable reply will be received before the meeting with reference to forwarding the undertaking.

At the Claremorris quarter sessions, last week, there were only four appeals; jury cases entered, but only one came before the Court—that in which the late lamented bishop of Tuam, and Very Rev. Dr. Thos. MacDaide, D. D., Irish College, Paris, as trustees of the estate of the late Rev. Dr. Peter Cooway, P. P., Headford, deceased, who died in 1870, sought to dispossess the Catholic Curate Regan (his wife) defendants—for a sum of £40, the alleged value of a watch which had belonged to the deceased, and which he had bequeathed by his will, made in 1865, to Martin A. Moore, son of the late Mr. Moore, of Kilcloher, Moore, Ballina. Mr. Daly appeared for the plaintiffs, and stated that the action was brought by the executors of the legatee, Mr. Moore, who insisted on getting the watch or its value. Rev. Regan was represented by Mr. Griffin. Mr. Regan which he stated that the value of the watch was not in any way in question with him, but that his wife desired to retain it as a souvenir of her deceased brother; and that Mr. Geoghegan, Headford Castle, to whom the deceased had bequeathed his plate, at once presented the watch to Mrs. Regan, and Mrs. Regan was the proper person to have it. The jury retired, and, after a short deliberation, returned a verdict for plaintiffs to £6.

QUEEN'S COUNTY.

A search has lately been made by a party of constabulary, consisting of a headconstable, a sub-constable and two constables, at the house of a farmer, Mr. John Downey, living in the neighborhood of Mayborough, during his absence. Mrs. Downey, on her husband's return home, informed him of what happened. Mr. Downey at once indignantly went to the Maryborough-warrant issued, relative to a threatening letter received by some person in the neighborhood, and, in order to assist in the search of the premises. Mr. Downey, on being informed uot it may be the eleventh hour. Let us, then, accept the invitation of our Heavenly Master, and labor in His vineyard by faithfully corresponding with His graces, and strictly observing His commandments. Let us, in imitation of our forefathers' in the faith, the Magians from the East, "go back by another way to our true country." If hitherto we have strayed away from it by neglecting the duties of our state of life, if parents as pastors have neglected to teach the children committed to th ir care Christian doctrine, let them in future teach or have them taught Catechism, prepare them for confession when they shall have attained their seventh year, and for Holy Communion from the age of 10 or 11. Let parents edify their children by the practice of morning and evening prayer, saying grace before and after meals, punctually attending Mass on all Sundays and holy days and frequenting the Sacraments.

BISHOP O'CONNELL'S PASTORAL.

(Continued from First Page)

It is not only the young, but also adults we are obliged to edify by our example. The great Apostle, St. Paul, inculcated the Gospel of Christ, by his example, no less than by his words and epistles: "Be ye followers of me"—not merely followers—"as I am of Christ." And our Divine Master whose word should be sufficient to enlighten our paths, and guide our steps, vouchsafed to leave us an example, in order that the tenor of our lives might be conformable to His. "I gave you an example," said He, after He had washed the feet of His disciples, and even of Judas, "that as I have done to you, so ye do also." Thus, Jesus "began to practice, and teach," (Act. i. 1), looking on this example of the charity of Christ, we may entertain a lo ophision of ourselves, and always believe that our brethren have better and higher qualities.

Our forefathers in the faith, the wise men from the East, made offerings of gold and myrrh, as well as of frankincense, to their infant King and Saviour. Their prayers and adoration were accompanied by alms and fasting—thereby teaching us to sanctify our prayers by the like exercises. "Prayer is good," says holy Tobias, "with fasting and alms, more than to lay up treasures of gold, for alms deliver from death and purge away sins and make one find mercy and life everlasting." (Tob. xii. 8, 9) The Vicar of Christ has been sacrilegiously deposited of his temporal power, but not provide an asylum for exiled bishops, feed the poor, send missionaries to pagan countries, or afford a refuge to the religious who have been ruthlessly expelled from their convents and monasteries. He needs the alms of the faithful for himself and for the persecuted lambs and sheep of the fold committed to his care. Let all, then, generously contribute Peter's pence, relieve, according to our ability, the suffering members of Christ's mystical body, "and despise not our own flesh." As a reminder to the faithful in each congregation, I request the pastors to have a box in their churches, for Peter's pence, as also for the Propagation of the Faith. Besides, we have the Grand Valley Male and Female Orphan Asylums, and the Virgin City Orphan Asylum to provide for. In order to give all an opportunity of contributing generously to both institutions, we appoint the second Sunday of Lent for the annual collection, in favor of the faithful to come to the rescue of these destitute children and to co-operate with the women who are devoting their lives to the service of the poor. For the sake of the latest Saviour who suffered such privations through love of us, let us, make Him the best return we can, in the person of his destitute members. "Let those who have much, give abundantly; if you have little, even so, bestow willingly if also. According to your ability, be merciful; for thus thou morsel up to thyself a good reward for the day of necessity." We shall have great confidence before the most high God, and the face of the Lord shall not be turned away from thee." (Tob. iv.)

Pause be unto you beloved brethren, and charity with faith from God the Father, and the Lord Jesus Christ, and the Holy Ghost. Amen.

✠ EUGENE O'CONNELL,
Bishop of Marysville.

CATHOLIC INTELLIGENCE.

—A very successful mission, conducted by Rev. Fathers Hennebery and Neill, C.P.P.S., was recently given at Cedar Rapids, Iowa. At its conclusion a large number took the pledge, thus giving evidence of the practical result of the good priests' labors.

—The Count de Chambord has just sent the Pope ten thousand francs in gold by the Princess Massimo. The Count has for a long time past forwarded a similar sum annually to his Holiness. The subscription for the Pope's benefices, which for some time ago, amounting to 125,000 francs.

—The archbishopric is no longer vacant at Vienna. The Abbe Gruscha, D.D., Canon and Vicar-General under the late Cardinal Rauscher, has been solemnly nominated Archbishop of Vienna. He signed with the sanction of the Holy Father, to the general satisfaction of the Austrian people.

—A Madrid letter states that Don Alfonso received recently a deputation of bishops who presented to him a petition begging that Catholicism should continue to be recognized as the State religion in Spain. No less than sixty thousand names were appended to the petition, and among them those of twelve Generals, sixty Generals, nobleness, and fifty of the lesser nobility.

—It is believed, says the Dublin correspondent of an exchange, that the decrees adopted at the Maynooth Synod have not only, ere this, been examined at Rome, but have been adopted by the proper Congregation of the Sacred College, and that the Bishop of Cork will bring them with him on his return to Ireland from the Eternal City. I may here note a report, for which, of course, I do not vouch, but which I find to be common in certain circles here, that Dr. Moran is very likely to be transferred to Dublin as coadjutor to his Eminence Cardinal Cullen.

Catarrh is a common disease—so common that sneezing, spitting and blowing of the nose, meet us at every turn on the street. We are used to these nasty exclamations on the sidewalk and in the public conveyances; and its disagreeable odor, accompanying the breath of the afflicted, renders them offensive to their associates. There is the hideous, continual gagging and hawking and spitting, and if you have a bottle of them afflicted with Consumption, or the Lungs, the chances are that Catarrh is in the case or head, the next step being to the throat, and from that to the lungs—and then you have important cause to give early and prompt attention to it. Catarrh, in this country, has sometimes become very obstinate by using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which, we know it, is a remedy that will break the diseased glands by a specific influence, and thereby heal the sores, and the patient is soon made healthy and well. Dr. Pierce's Pellets, Little Wonders, are very small in size, and are the best cathartic for the purpose ever used. Sold by druggists.

Don Carlos is described at Folkestone from Boulogne. When he left the Southeastern Railway Station for London a large crowd assembled. Some cheered and others hissed and groaned. He reached Charing Cross station, in London, at 7:30 P. M. on the 6th.

ST. PATRICK CROSSING THE ATLANTIC.

He hath heard the pitiable sommons of the Western wailers ringing;
Ah! rarg, O sacred Erin, from thy verdant isle of yore,
And he comes with swift and eager to the land of sunset, bringing Blessed boons of grace and mercy to a rich, unfailing store.

Cometh he to far Columbia's Leaves he, then, the shining legions
That repose within the glory of the great, eternal Throne!
From the fearful rest of Heaven, from the fair celestial regions,
Doth he reach upon the earthland, serpent blighted, chill and lone!

In the faith-blossomed spirits of thy sailthy sons and daughters,
O, thou loveliest island jewel, set within the sparkling sea!
In vanis beats the blest apostle hearth in the Western waters
Forest altar-flames only log that he kindled once by thee.

Ayr, their souls, sustained and loyal, are the shrines wherein he keepeth
Blessed hoins of grace and mercy for the healing of the West;
In vain prayers are pleading rises, by their earnest hands he reapeth
Beneficent store from seeds they walked o'er the wild waste's crest.

MAGEE.

San Francisco.

General Sherman's Opinion of Secretary Belknap and Washington Society.

CHICAGO, March 4.—The Tribune's St. Louis correspondent had an interview with General Sherman yesterday concerning the recent startling exposures of Belknap's official delinquencies. The General's indignation was unbounded beyond measure. I have known Belknap a long time and never had occasion to doubt his integrity. I know that his previous record is without a blot. He has always been regarded as a man of scrupulous honor. Of course I do not know the cause of this demoralization, but having lived in Washington during his tenure of office, I can form a pretty good idea of it. In my opinion, his downfall is due more to the vicious organization of Washington society than anything else. I refer to the ridiculous extravagances of those who move in the first social circles at the Capital. Very few Cabinet officers are able to live within their salaries. While I was there, the only member of the Cabinet who could stand it was Fish. With his salary of $200,000 a year he could afford to pay most any price for social privileges; but ordinarily it cost him $70,000 yearly. Mr. Chandler, who has gone into the Cabinet since I came to St. Louis, is another case whose private fortune is so ample that his salary is no object to him. Outside of these two, none of the public officials in Washington can live within their salaries. I left Washington chiefly for this reason. My salary would not support me, and because I did not consider it a proper place in which to rear a family. There has been a good deal of dissatisfaction about Belknap's post tradership. Some of these fellows were regarded as suspicious characters, and their society was not desirable; but the question has been taken seriously out of my hands, and I could say nothing in connection with it, for the reason of the Secretary of War. There are more than one hundred and fifty trading posts on the frontier, and I expect there is a good deal of fraud yet to be developed."

The House for Aged People" in Brooklyn Destroyed by Fire.

NEW YORK, March 7.—The Home for Aged People, conducted by the Catholic community, known as the Little Sisters of the Poor," and located in the Eastern District of Brooklyn, was completely burned this morning. The house comprised a four-story building, and had 181 inmates. When the fire was made aware of the fire a panic seized them, and the Sisters losing control, they ran through the building, some escaping to the street, others making down the unheated, overcome by fright, smoke and pain. The firemen rescued all these, but a number who could not get out to the lower floors by reason of the smoke and flames, ran for the roof. All were reached there and were rescued; but some of the inmates who were too feeble to run or clamber were left to their fate, while two who threw themselves from upper windows were fatally injured. Four bodies have been taken from the ruins. Loss on the building and furniture $25 000; insurance, $20,000.

The origin of the fire is not known. It makes it more disastrous in its results than as first stated. It seems the fire was discovered in the south wing, which was occupied by the male portion of the inmates, and contained 120 persons. The number of inmates ranges from 98 to 105 years. The fire was discovered by a person on the street, who gave the alarm. Before the inmates of the institution, awaking the Sisters and the aged inmates. By the time the firemen arrived the flames were sweeping through the south wing in every direction, and it was not supposed that any would escape. The fire had been reduced to smouldering embers in the basement, that the firemen were enabled to go there to examine the upper stories of the burned wing. They found several bodies in the rooms. The beds in the upper story. The bedsteads were made of iron, and reared on the charred beams, and the bodies were burned to a crisp, rendering them quite unrecognizable.

It is said that thirty inmates are missing, and it is feared that the burnt bodies of some of them may be found among the debris of the fire in the basement. The fire men succeeded in saving the main building on the south wing, which is occupied by about sixty old women.

An acrimonious debate took place in the House of Representatives last Wednesday on the impeachment of Belknap. Blaine was the figure on the Republican side of the House at which all the shafts of eloquence were launched from the Democratic side. The Republicans contended that the witness (Marsh) had been allowed to escape the country through connivance, a view which the Democrats had, and it was charged on the Democratic side that the President and Cabinet were instrumental in driving him out of the country through intimidation. His escape was characterized by Beebe as that of a cowardly obscure petty thief, and he suggested that the Democrats were by intent on greater game than that of a single miserable offender to slip through their hands through the machinations of the President and Cabinet officers. The Democrats, however, propose to pursue not the Marshes, who were mere "vitalities," but the villains in high place. The gentlemen on the other side might pursue their fleecoming if they pleased, but the Democrats would drag from the turbid waters of pollution the whales, and would suppose ment, perhaps, by dragging out the invisible himself, exposing him to the indignation of an outraged community.

REGULATIONS FOR LENT IN 1876, For the Diocese of San Francisco.

1. All the week days of Lent, from Ash-Wednesday, the 1st of March, till Easter Sunday, are fast days of precept, on one meal, with the allowance of a moderate collation.

2. The precept of fasting implies also that of abstinence from the use of flesh meat, except by dispensation, which is granted to the sick during the entire Lent, except on the following days, to wit: the Wednesdays and Fridays, the Embertides, and the Thursday and Saturday of Holy Week, on which days there is no leave to use flesh meat, except by dispensation from the respective pastors, which they are hereby authorized to grant in cases of necessity, to be judged by them. All Sundays are also days of abstinence, but not of fasting.

3. The proclamation one of the said Book must at the same time is forbidden in Lent, on Fridays, on Ember Days, prayers, at public, are recommended to the faithful universally on those days to which flesh meat is used.

4. Lent being a penitential time, the pastors are requested to lay before the faithful the importance of Christian mortification, and also the grievous obligation of complying with their Easter duty, which may be fulfilled from the first Sunday in Lent; they will frequently and earnestly impress upon their minds that the Divine Bounty is the necessity of attending, before all other things, to the salvation of their souls, and that they will find the best, the infallible discharge of their Christian duties, the only thing that can secure to us the everlasting happiness of heaven. For this purpose they will hold religious exercises in their churches several times a week, according to what their peculiar means may deem expedient.

✠ JOSEPH S. ALEMANY,
Archbishop of San Francisco.

San Francisco, February 24, 1876.

Church Services During Lent.

ST. MARY'S CATHEDRAL.—During Lent, on week days, Mass at 5:45, 7 and 9 o'clock every morning; rosary and sermon every evening, during all the week; sermon and benediction every Wednesday evening; way of the cross and benediction every Friday evening.

ST. FRANCIS' CHURCH.—The Lenten services at St. Francis' church, Vallejo street, will be as follows: Masses at 7 and 9 o'clock; sermon and benediction; Friday evenings, stations of the cross and benediction. Catechetical instruction will be given in the afternoon at 2 o'clock, on Sunday, Wednesday and Friday, from 1 to 2 o'clock.

ST. JOSEPH'S CHURCH.—Rosary and benediction every evening during Lent, except the cross and benediction; Mass on week days at 6½, 7½ and 8 a. m.

Meetings have recently been held in Cincinnati, Chicago, the city and county of Cincinnati, Chicago, the city and county of Cincinnati, Chicago, the city and county of Edward O'Meagher Condon, the young Irish-American Fenian, who is confined in a British prison for participation in the attempted Fenian movement at London a few years ago. In each case was referred to to the House of Commons on Monday last that the prisoner's case was now said that the Queen's Government had received no communication regarding it from the authorities, and that they were disposed to believe, on several grounds, that a request by his friends to commute Condon's sentence or pardon would meet with a favorable response from the Disraeli Ministry, or that his sentence would be secured by the passage of a resolution in his behalf through the House of Representatives. At one time General Sickness made a show of taking up the matter, and wrote several letters about it to Condon's father, who is now dead; but he neglected it himself, and assigned it to a subordinate, who did not take much trouble with it. Unless an opportune time for him to get such interference as will compel his attention. We would here say that the managers of such meetings are duty bound to see that one-half in this country should be governed by discretion. At the present time, excitement, and at some others, the speakers indulged in strong denunciation of the British government, and still they are confining of British law to Condon's case. This is the way we must look for perfect sympathy for Condon can be released from prison only by favor of the British authorities, and this should be made to feel as well as all, in a way that will command advantageous consideration.—N. Y. Sun, March 1.

We call the attention of our readers to the advertisement of Dr. Jordan's Museum of Anatomy, who are manufacturing a superior preparation for applying to hard-wood finish.

Prompt Reinforcement.

When the physician's forces are overtasked or far through weakness or disease, they need prompt reinforcement. Succeed vigor is more speedily supplied through the agency of a tonic stimulant, and among medicinal resources of this class, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters assuredly fearless a pre-eminent place. Weakness, whether constitutional or arising from disease, is a condition that cannot be better compensated for than by a return to the primitive strength-giving tone. The stomach is the nerve, the convalescent and the aged and the infirm find sustaining source of vigor and comfort. Its combined tonic and alterative properties also contribute an invaluable aid to the digestive organs, the source of the organs of nutrition, circulation, and secretion, and to the kidneys, the great depurative agents of the system. Appetite, sleep and general malaise, as well as the symptoms of stomach and bowel.

Wholesale Market Report.

MONTHLY CIRCULAR, SAN FRANCISCO, }
THURSDAY, March 9, 1876. }

FLOUR.—We quote San Joaquin extra at $6 12½ @ $6 37½; superfine at $5 @ $5 75.

WHEAT.—Prices in Liverpool are the same as last reported, viz: Spring, 9s. 10d. @10s. 2d.; Winter, 9s. 10d @10s. 2d. for average shipping. There has been but little inquiry during the past week, and transactions are only a moderate business in milling. Prices have gone down to $1 60 @ $1 62½ for shipping, and $1 65 @ $1 67½ for milling, with $1 68 paid in a few instances for choice.

BARLEY.—The market is quotable at $1 30@ $1 35 for feed shade; $1 40 @ $1 45 for brewing.

OATS.—Feed are quotable at $1 10@ $1 25, and $1 30 @ $1 50 for milling.

CORN.—Prices are unchanged at $1 30@ $1 35.

RYE.—Quotable at $1 @ $1 05.

CORN MEAL.—Sales varieties, $3 75@ $4; fine do. $3 25@ $3 50 free from mill.

BRAN.—We quote ground from wharf as follows: Bran, $16 @ $17; Middlings, $20 @ $21; Shorts, $18 @ $19; Feed, $18@ $19; Rolled Barley, $20 @ $21.

VEGETABLES.—Onions, $1 @ $1 25; Potatoes, $1 @ $1 25 for common to fair; $1 50 @ $1 75 for choice; Sweet Potatoes, $1 @ $1 25; Tomatoes, $1 @ $1 50; Cabbage, $1 @ $1 25; Garlic, 2½@3c.; Turnips, $1 @ $1 25; Beets, $1 @ $1 25; Carrots, $1 @ $1 25; Parsnips, $1 @ $1 25; Dried Peppers, 10@12½c.; Green do. 10@12½c.; Dried Okra, 10@12½c.; Green do. 10@12½c.; Egg Plant, 10@12½c.; Cucumbers, 10@12½c.; Green Peas, 5@6c.; String Beans, 5@6c.; Lima Beans, 5@6c.; Green Corn, 10@12½c.; Marrowfat Squash, $1 @ $1 25; Hubbard Squash, $1 @ $1 25; Pumpkins, $1 @ $1 25; Mushrooms, 10@12½c.; Artichokes, 10@12½c.; Asparagus, 10@12½c.; Rhubarb, 5@6c.; Green Peppers, 10@12½c.; Celery, 10@12½c.; Cauliflower, 10@12½c.; Sprouts, 5@6c.; Dried Peaches, 5@6c.; Dried Apples, 5@6c.; Dried Plums, 5@6c.; Dried Figs, 5@6c.; Dried Grapes, 5@6c.; Dried Nectarines, 5@6c.; Dried Pears, 5@6c.; Dried Apricots, 5@6c.; Dried Blackberries, 5@6c.; Dried Huckleberries, 5@6c.; Dried Currants, 5@6c.; Dried Raspberries, 5@6c.; Dried Strawberries, 5@6c.; Dried Gooseberries, 5@6c.; Dried Cherries, 5@6c.; Dried Quinces, 5@6c.; Dried Pineapples, 5@6c.; Dried Bananas, 5@6c.; Dried Mangoes, 5@6c.; Dried Guavas, 5@6c.; Dried Papayas, 5@6c.; Dried Persimmons, 5@6c.; Dried Pomegranates, 5@6c.; Dried Olives, 5@6c.; Dried Dates, 5@6c.; Dried Cocoanuts, 5@6c.; Dried Almonds, 5@6c.; Dried Walnuts, 5@6c.; Dried Filberts, 5@6c.; Dried Pecans, 5@6c.; Dried Chestnuts, 5@6c.; Dried Peanuts, 5@6c.; Dried Pistachios, 5@6c.; Dried Cashews, 5@6c.; Dried Brazil Nuts, 5@6c.; Dried Hickory Nuts, 5@6c.; Dried Butternuts

A STUDY OF FREEMASONRY.

Translated from the French of Monsignour Dupanloup, Bishop of Orleans.

THIRD PART.

CAN A SERIOUS MAN, OR A MAN OF COMMON SENSE, BECOME A FREEMASON?

III.—(Continued.)

People are sometimes astonished to find, that, the very day after certain revolutions, formidable questions are suddenly brought forward in the press and throughout the country, of which the public never dream the night before; as, for example, the organisation of labor, after the February revolution—a question which was treated in to amusing a fashion at the Luxembourg Palace by a body of workmen, under the presidency of M. Louis Blanc, and of which the revolution of the "Days of June" was the result. Take, again, the instance of the separation of schools from religion—a question which was acted upon instantly by the Commune, who cut the knot by driving away the Brothers and Sisters of Charity everywhere, tearing down the crucifixes and holy pictures from the walls of the schools, etc. etc. . . . Not those things which burst upon us so suddenly, had been for a long while agitated in the heart of the secret societies and the Masonic lodges. After having been duly hatched in those laboratories of revolution and of new ideas, the moment a favorable opportunity presented itself, they exploded out of doors; the entire propaganda of the lodges disseminates them far and wide; and then the Colossus with the thousand heads and the hundred thousand arms comes on the scene in the elections, whether national, provincial, or municipal, of the men who personify these ideas.

Thus all of a sudden the country is roused and knows not how. It is the sudden explosion of a mine which our Masonic orator spoke so eloquently just now; and then, at a given moment, the catastrophe comes about. Take, in all revolutions, behind the immediate and visible causes, there are others which pull the strings—men who were more far-sighted than their neighbors, and who burrowed at greater depths: these are the real authors of revolution, although invisible and hidden from the eyes of the world at large.

IV.

Perceptory Facts borrowed from Contemporary History.

Let us require a little further into this subject, and consult contemporary history.

I have just mentioned the February Revolution; does any one think, bye the bye, that the only eminent were the organisers of the recent banquets, and those poor National Guards who cried out "Vive la Reforme!" It would require a wonderful simplicity to believe this. Others, who waited to show themselves till the favorable moment came, had prepared it in the dark; and no sooner was the victory won than they hastened to claim the credit of it. It was these men who gave it its true character; and its socialist spirit, which very soon horrified France and the world, and which caused torrents of blood to flow in the streets of Paris. Well, in the first rank of those workmen were the Freemasons.

"The combatants," (wrote the Freemason's Journal) "only needed a few hours of struggle to conquer that liberty which Freemasonry has been preaching for ages. . . . We, workmen of the Confraternity, have laid the foundation stone of the Republic. (1)

One sew them, in fact, almost the very first days which witnessed the February catastrophe (i. e. from the 10th of March, 1848) pass in review, marching through Paris with their banner flying to the Hotel de Ville, and there, to the number of three hundred Freemasons of every rite, representing the whole body of French Freemasonry, offer their homage to the Provisional Government of the Republic, and proclaim out loud the part they had just taken in this glorious Revolution.

M. de Lamartine made them this answer, which was received with enthusiasm by the lodges:

"It is from the depth of your lodges that the ideas have emanated, fires in the dark, then in the twilight, and now in the full light of day, which have led the founders of the Republic, the heroes of 1789, 1830, and 1848. (2)

But even that was not enough; and Free masonry was determined to make a more official manifestation than this spontaneous demonstration of the Freemasons of all the rites. In consequence, fifteen days later, a new deputation, composed of members of the "Grand Orient," adorned with their Masonic scarfs, repaired to the Hotel de Ville. They were received by M. Crémieux and M. Garnier-Pagès, who equally wore their Masonic emblems; and the representative of the Grand Master spoke as follows:

"French Freemasonry could not contain the universal burst of sympathy with the great social and national movement which has just been effected. . . . The Provisional Government has with joy the triumph of their principles, and boast of being able to say that the whole country has rose-red through you a Masonic consecration. Forty thousand Freemasons distributed in free banished workshops, offer you not the heart and one soul!"

Brother Crémieux, member of the Provisional Government, replied:

"Citizens and Brothers of the Great Orient, the Provisional Government receives with pleasure your useful and complete adhesion. . . . The Republic exists by Freemasonry. . . . The Republic will do as the Freemasons have done; it will become the living pledge of union with all men in all parts of the globe, on all sides of our triangle" (3)

"The Republic is in Freemasonry," says Brother Crémieux; "what universal Republic, which tells to-day of making Europe into a kind of United States. Eugene Sue saw to it other things; he saw in it pure Socialism. In fact, the Lodge 'Le Prevenue' of Amboyt, having offered to the "noble and courageous writer who the pen is who was the great precursor of our Socialist explosion of 1846—a gold pen, Eugene has thought he could not better reply to the 'flattering sympathy' then by making the following compliment to the Belgian Freemasons: 'My Brothers—By the extreme and just influence which the Masonic lodges have acquired day by day in Belgium, you are now at the head of the Social Art Party.'" (4)

And do we not see that the most eminent Freemasons place in the first rank of questions to be discussed in the lodges, the organisation of labor, that formidable question which has been the war cry of the too famous "national workshops" organised by M. Louis Blanc?

Such a triumph was assuredly not likely to slacken the activity of the lodges. The Coup d'Etat of 1855 came to remind them for a little while of the necessity of prudence. But if the Empire, by introducing itself into Freemasonry, thought thereby to have subdued this formidable power, great and short-lived was its delusion. This is a specimen of the Masonic enthusiasm with which, in 1858, an orator of one of the most influential of the Paris lodges expressed himself: describing, as no one knew better how to, do, the hidden seething of contemporary democracy, and announcing "that a whole world of new actors were preparing themselves to come upon the scene;" that "unheard of mischiefs were being employed," and "that a nameless shudder gave warning that the hour was at hand." "In this frightful labor," he exclaims, "which is about to give birth to the society of the future, let us glorify ourselves at being able to march together in the first ranks, among the pioneers of free thought." (1)

And to see a little more closely how these "pioneers of free thought" carry on their work! how from these heights and from these general principles, where the dupes of Freemasonry imagine that it innocently remains, these men of the lodges descend in the region of polemics and daily politics, let us say one word of the Revolution of 1871 and the Commune.

A solemn Masonic manifestation took place during the Commune, a month before the entry of the troops into Paris; but was it in favor of Versailles and the National Army? Certainly not. It was in favor of that horrible Communist insurrection, "the greatest revolution," according to the Freemason Tibaldeq, "which has been given to the world since the Christian era." (2) The official organ of the Commune has given a full account of this demonstration and Brother Tardif, one of its principal authors, has described it, on his side, in a Masonic paper, published at Bordeaux, which I have before my eyes. (3) There is then no doubt whatever as to the spirit with which it was animated. I will not abridge the details, and some directly to the point; but I will give the gist of them, (4) in consequence of an appeal made all the lodges of the "Orient" of Paris, the immense crowd of Freemasons, carrying sixty-two Masonic banners, proceeded for a long time through the streets of Paris de Ville, preceded by five members of the Commune. The whole body of the Commune was present at the inauguration of the Balcony of Honor to receive them. The statue of the Republic, a figure, one of its principal authors, has described it, on his side, in a Masonic paper, published at Bordeaux which I have before my eyes. (3) There is then no doubt whatever as to the spirit with which it was animated. I will not abridge the details, and some directly to the point; but I will give the gist of them, (4) in consequence of an appeal made all the lodges of the "Orient" of Paris, the immense crowd of Freemasons, carrying sixty-two Masonic banners, proceeded for a long time through the streets of Paris de Ville, preceded by five members of the Commune. The whole body of the Commune was present at the inauguration of the Balcony of Honor to receive them. The statue of the Republic, a figure, one of its principal authors, has described it, on his side, in a Masonic paper, published at Bordeaux which I have before my eyes. (3) There is then no doubt whatever as to the spirit with

WEEKLY CALENDAR.
FOR THE WEEK ENDING MARCH 25.
March.
19—Sunday—Third Sunday in Lent. St. Joseph Cos. Spouse of the B. V. M., and Patron of Island. Several Martyrs.
20—Monday—St. Patrick, Bishop and Confessor of Ireland.
21—Tuesday—St. Benedict, Abbot.
22—Wednesday—Feria.
23—Thursday—Feria.
24—Friday—The Five Wounds of our Lord.
25—Saturday—Annunciation of the B. V. M.

THE MONITOR & GUARDIAN:
THE ONLY
Irish and Catholic Journal in California.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

SATURDAY.....MARCH 4, 1876.

SUBSCRIBERS will please specially look at the printed label on the margin or wrapper of the paper; the date thereon shows when the subscription expires.

TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS.

The remittances to this office have been falling off steadily for some time. Now, this is by no means as it should be. As every subscriber can find how his account stands by simply looking at the wrapper or margin of his paper, there is no excuse for negligence or forgetfulness. No person should be deterred from remitting by the fact that his indebtedness is small. Our expenses are always the same, and have to be met punctually each week. They would never be the least difficulty in the way of doing this if our patrons who only owe a little would send on that little to us, and so keep close on the books. As a word of advice has always been taken in good part by our subscribers, and has produced excellent effects, we trust this gentle reminder will be both acceptable and fruitful.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY.

We have delayed the publication of THE MONITOR this week in order to be able to insert a full report of the St. Patrick's Day celebration, with its accompanying processions, banquet, balls, etc. While there may be some difference of opinion with respect to the best way of commemorating the national anniversary, and a parade on the public streets may find its opponents as well as its advocates, there can be no question as to the propriety of Irishmen displaying, during at least one day in the year, the attachment they have for the land of their fathers. It would, we think, be a ridiculously needless display of foolish and sycophantic criticism which could blame them for indulging in such a demonstration of patriotism. Properly speaking, of course, St. Patrick's Day is simply a religious festival, and is devoid of political significance of any kind; but custom so powerful that it cannot be overruled has made it a national anniversary, acknowledged by all creed and classes. Even the British Government recognises it as such, and on every 17th March a great review is held in Dublin Castle. There is more of less of a military parade, bands play in the Castle yard, and the Lord Lieutenant, however Tory or anti-Irish he may be in his views, makes his appearance on a balcony and spouts an enormous bosh of shamrocks either in his hat or on his breast. The people, however, are not deluded by this piece of sham. It does not make them love foreign usurpation anything the better, and frequently they treat the high preliminary functionary to an exhibition of their sentiments in a way that necessitates his speedy disappearance. At all events, the day is there celebrated as a national festival more than a religious festival, and so we suppose it will be until Ireland can boast of such an anniversary as the Fourth of July.

Let the future, however, bring forth what it may, our concern is with the present. There is no national festival that we are aware of celebrated so cordially and so universally. Of course every little hamlet in Ireland will have its celebration. There is scarcely a town of note in either England or Scotland in which a sufficient number of Irishmen cannot be got together to honor St. Patrick, and the same thing may be said of the British dependencies in Africa, India and Australia. In the republics of South America, especially in Buenos Ayres, strong and prosperous colonies of Irish are to be found and they never fail to celebrate the glorious day. Of these United States it is hardly necessary to speak, for every one knows that the national anniversary is celebrated all over the republic with unexampled enthusiasm. In Paris, St. Patrick's Day is always honored with a grand banquet. Around the festive board gather not only ones of Irish birth, but representatives of the historic families which are in their origin, though French by birthright through two centuries, and even more. O'NEILLS, O'DONNELLS, O'BRIENS, MACMAHONS, DILLONS, BOURKES, NUGENTS, TUITES, ROCHES, who never saw the land of their ancestors, yet are proud of their blood and race, pay cheerful homage to Ireland. Even in Vienna there are enough representatives of old Irish families—the Austrian service was at one time so much a favorite with the Irish as the French was—to occasionally make up a distinguished party for the day. In Rome, as a matter of course, Ireland is always well represented, and the religious services on St. Patrick's Day are more than usually brilliant and imposing. It is a great satisfaction to know that as of San Francisco have not been behind hand, but have done all in their power to do fitting honor to the anniversary of Ireland's patron saint.

St. DOMINIC'S CONVENT, STOCKTON.—On yesterday (Friday) his Grace the Archbishop dedicated the new convent for the Sisters of St. Dominic at Stockton. The building is a very fine one and an ornament to the city. The people of Stockton deserve to be congratulated upon their public spirit, and their high appreciation of the administrations of the pious and gentle Sisters.

APPRENTICESHIP.

We devote to day a couple of columns in our inside pages to part of a very interesting article on "Apprenticeship," written by Hon. JOHNAY CRAMER, and in the Catholic Record, and we shall complete its republication in our next issue. The great and pressing importance of the subject discussed will be our best excuse for sacrificing so much of our space to it and obliging it so closely under the attention of our readers. Indeed, we make no doubt that all men of reflecting minds will acknowledge this matter of apprenticeship to be more intimately related to the future welfare of our country than nine tenths of the things about which partisan journalists and politicians are fond of wrangling. It is, we insist, of far more moment to society at large, and to heads of families in particular, than any of the questions about which we are unluckily called to hear so much during the forthcoming Presidential campaign. And the fact that it is not more impressively debated, only shows how prone men are to lose sight of solid and substantial interests and give their attention to matters which are purely speculative if not entirely visionary. It is conceded that to the towns and cities of America the influx of foreigners is hardly necessary to speak, for every one knows that the national anniversary is celebrated all over the republic with unexampled enthusiasm. In Paris, St. Patrick's Day is always honored with a grand banquet. Around the festive board gather not only ones of Irish birth, but representatives of the historic families which are in their origin, though French by birthright through two centuries, and even more. O'NEILLS, O'DONNELLS, O'BRIENS, MACMAHONS, DILLONS, BOURKES, NUGENTS, TUITES, ROCHES, who never saw the land of their ancestors, yet are proud of their blood and race, pay cheerful homage to Ireland. Even in Vienna there are enough representatives of old Irish families—the Austrian service was at one time so much a favorite with the Irish as the French was—to occasionally make up a distinguished party for the day. In Rome, as a matter of course, Ireland is always well represented, and the religious services on St. Patrick's Day are more than usually brilliant and imposing. It is a great satisfaction to know that as of San Francisco have not been behind hand, but have done all in their power to do fitting honor to the anniversary of Ireland's patron saint.

EDWARD O'MEAGHER CONDON.

We are glad to notice that our suggestion with reference to the advisability of holding a meeting of Irish citizens in protest against the continued imprisonment of EDWARD O'MEAGHER CONDON, has already been taken up and acted upon. The assemblage in Irish-American Hall, Tuesday evening, was a fair representation of the mass of our countrymen in San Francisco, and the speeches delivered were, as a whole, correct in tone and sentiment. CONDON'S case stands upon a different footing from those of the other Fenian prisoners, and the reasons for his liberation are even more just and forcible. There is a very strong impression, amounting to positive belief in the minds of many, that he was totally innocent of the "crime" with which he was charged, and for which he is suffering. We should think nothing the worse of O'MEAGHER CONDON if he were "guilty." On the contrary, our good opinion of him would be considerably heightened if we knew he formed one of the party who planned and achieved the gallant rescue at Manchester. We have never considered that famous deed as a crime, although we concede the perfect right of England to punish the men who perpetrated it, as any other country would under similar circumstances. Nor have we ever attached importance to the consideration as to whether Police Sergeant BRETT was killed accidentally or intentionally. The men who rescued KELLY and DEASY, once they decided upon going at all, should have gone to do the work determined and well prepared to overcome resistance even by the taking of life. And if, instead of a solitary constable, a whole regiment of her Most Gracious Majesty's troops had been mustered on the occasion, our regret would not have been very poignant, and our admiration for the bravery and devotion of ALLEN, LARKIN, O'BRIEN and their companions would not have been sensibly diminished. Indeed, if we thought for a moment that they set out to stop the police-van with the intention of abandoning the attempt in the event of armed resistance, or of pausing before sacrificing one policeman, or a thousand, for the success of their enterprise, we should never place their names in our list of patriotic heroes or martyrs.

However, we do not imagine that our opinions on this subject would be indorsed by her Majesty's ministers, and we do not bring them forward as arguments to be addressed to the British Government. We place CONDON'S claim on the strong probability that he was not in Manchester at all at the time, and had no hand whatever in the rescue. There was some terribly strong swearing upon the trial by the Government witnesses, and it may be remembered, that the most pointed evidence was given by a depraved woman who had passed more than half her miserable existence in prison for drunkenness and other offences against the law. The man MCCURRA was sworn as emphatically and directly against as poor CONDON, and yet his complexion becomes as afterwards contended by his prosecutors, and he was released from prison. Taking all these things into account, it cannot be denied by any reasoning man, whatever his political sentiments, that it would be grossly unjust to allow CONDON to suffer any civilized nation should be ashamed, to keep O'MEAGHER CONDON longer in confinement. There is a great deal of honest sympathy felt for him in the United States, the recent action in the California Legislature, and, still more, the action of Mr. THURMAN in Washington, are remarkable proofs of this, and we trust they will not be without their effect. Indeed, it was reported a few days ago, by a New York Herald telegram, that the British Government had received to release all the political prisoners, but we have seen no confirmation of it, and we are inclined to regard the story as simply a sensational rumor. However, it may be true, and we sincerely hope it is. After all, the release against which the Catholic heroes had from the fact that the alarm and jealousy she formerly felt towards France have been transferred to Germany since the late war, so it is not likely that the Duke of NORFOLK will suffer fine or imprisonment for assisting German "brethren," or for encouraging ecclesiastics in "opposition to the laws of their sovereign." If he had the will he would have a powerful Prussian subject it would go hard with him without doubt; but Queen VICTORIA, with all her German proclivities, will scarcely play the constable for Kaiser WILLIAM.

THE NEW IDRIA MINES.

In the beginning of this week a telegraphic dispatch was received from San Francisco stating that the protracted and hard-fought suit between Mr. WILLIAM MCGARAHAN and the New Idria Mining Company had been brought to an amicable conclusion. The report said that the mines had been surrendered by their present possessors to Mr. MCGARAHAN on condition of the latter's paying them the sum of one million dollars—four hundred thousand dollars to be handed over at once, and the remaining six hundred thousand dollars to be provided for out of the first proceeds of the mines. All things being taken into consideration, the proposed settlement was not by any means an extravagant one for either side, and was, moreover, to probable that it found many believers in San Francisco. There has not been since any telegraphic confirmation of the report. The persons connected here with the mines strenously deny that any such arrangement has been come to; but their declaration simply amounts to an assertion that they have as yet received no information about it. Come quietly, they are not in a position to authoritatively contradict the statement, and the public need place no confidence in what they say. But when they go farther then mere denial, and declare that no such settlement as that indicated has ever been in contemplation, they exceed their brief in the case, and what is in open contradiction to known facts. It is no secret that for a long time the idea of buying out the New Idria Mines in favor of MCGARAHAN has been entertained by certain parties in the East, and that overtures have been made to that direction. So there is, at all events, some likelihood that the telegraphic dispatches were correct in the chief particulars. We trust they were, for we should regard it as a happy termination of a most distressful and wearying struggle against injustice and fraud.

BISMARCKIAN INSOLENCE.

Prince BISMARCK evidently wants to play the role of supreme dictator in Europe. He meddles in the affairs of every nation in a most insolent manner, especially whenever he fancies himself or his anti-Catholic policy is in any way attacked. And, strange to say, he finds aiders and abettors in every place, who are willing to forfeit self-respect, honor and patriotism for the sake of toadying the great champion of "modern liberalism." BISMARCK'S contempt for America is perfectly notorious, for he takes no pains to conceal it; and yet there are journalists and public men in this country who never tire of speaking about him in terms of the most fulsome adulation. They forget his despotism, his disregard of all national rights, his hostility to republican freedom, because he abuses the Pope and is a deadly enemy to the Catholic Church. Possibly they never analysed their ideas in this manner, but if they had the moral courage to do so, they would find out just what we say at the foundation of them. The latest example of his high-handed intermeddling comes from England. Of course the great Prussian Chancellor would not for the world be openly in the business; there is no need of that, since he can always find creatures mean and bigoted enough to do his dirty work for him. Although he has not succeeded, but there can be no mistaking his influence in the affair, and his presence is plainly visible. Our readers are aware that large numbers of priests have been of late years imprisoned in England for the crime of opposition to the FALCK laws, and many of them, being without means of their own, have been reduced to actual destitution. In England, Catholic sympathies, in spite of Norfolk, having made careful inquiry into the matter, was so horrified at the facts he discovered, that he appealed to his countrymen for funds to relieve the distress prevailing among the plundered ecclesiastics, and he succeeded in directing public attention to their sad case. Money came pouring in from all quarters, and subscription list of every kind was freely promised. The being purely and simply a work of charity, it is difficult to understand how any man with a human heart in his bosom could find fault with it, much less oppose it. But the pliant creatures of Prince BISMARCK are capable of any baseness, and they make an outcry at once against the Duke of Norfolk. If the great Chancellor, the stern man of "blood and iron," wanted to starve a few hundred priests, who, indeed, dared say him nay? Who dared stand between him and his intended victims? It is stated that the attention of Parliament will be called to the movement set on foot by the Duke, and we trust that Gracious Majesty will be called upon to stop it.

Evidently some weak-headed and bigoted fools in England are afraid that Prince BISMARCK will be offended, and they want to show him that they will have nothing to do with relieving the priests whose attachment to their Church has put them under the ban of his anger. It seems to us that these timid individuals will have all their trouble for nothing. Prussia is not popular in England at the present day, and Prince BISMARCK is more foes than friends there. This does not arise from England's having any compassion for the persecuted priests, or any sympathy with the Catholic Church in itself, but from the fact that the alarm and jealousy she formerly felt towards France have been transferred to Germany since the late war, so it is not likely that the Duke of NORFOLK will suffer fine or imprisonment for assisting German "brethren," or for encouraging ecclesiastics in "opposition to the laws of their sovereign." If he had the will he would have a powerful Prussian subject it would go hard with him without doubt; but Queen VICTORIA, with all her German proclivities, will scarcely play the constable for Kaiser WILLIAM.

Baldwin's Academy of Music.

The complete success of Mr. Barry Sullivan's engagement can no longer be doubted. Immense audiences greet his entrance with hearty applause each repetitive evening. The press, without exception, acknowledges that his rendition of the four characters in which he has already appeared, have never been surpassed for scholarly study and artistic finish on this coast, and possibly not elsewhere. We have spoken of his "Richard" and we shall only mention his "Hamlet" and "Richelieu." In the impersonation of "the melancholy prince," Mr. Sullivan displayed much originality of conception and made much new play, giving the stamp of his own mind to the entire role, and although he diverged in many points from long-established usage, and, as it were, challenged his audience to criticism, he was warmly encouraged and the rendering cordially accepted. "Richelieu," in our judgment, however, is the best character he has sustained as yet. If Mr. Sullivan can claim any special merit, it is a careful avoidance of rant or exaggeration, and an honest endeavor to act and speak with the freedom and grace of nature. This expose him to at least one disadvantage, for it is only those who follow him closely and intelligently that can get a proper idea of his genius. There is nothing showy or meretricious about his acting; he does not, so to speak, introduce himself upon the audience, but prefers to work his way into their good opinion by quiet, yet thoroughly polished and artistic, renditions of character, in strict accordance with his idea of his author's scope and intent.

The curative effect of Dr. Hall's Bronchitis on the throat, chest and lungs, is truly marvelous. 7:7 h.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY CELEBRATION.

(Continued from the first Page.)

reference to those workers and sufferers in the old country, and to the duty of sympathizing with them in the hour of their need. The next toast, "Ireland's Future," was responded to in a most excellent manner by Mr. MCCARTHY, who spoke in a hopeful tone of the future of Ireland, and of the duty of Irishmen to do all in their power to assist her in the struggle for her rights. The next toast, "Ireland's Exiled Children," was responded to

ONE OF THE LIGHT BRIGADE.

A paragraph some days ago in THE MONITOR announced the death of John Fitzpatrick, one of the Light Brigade, who died of starvation in England. He had received a pension of sixpence a day, which, however, was withdrawn several years ago, and he endeavored to eke out a miserable existence by riding in spring pageants. Old age and disease reduced him for this or any other work; the only refuge for the disabled soldier was the poorhouse, from which he shrank in horror. The verdict of the Coroner's jury was: "Died of starvation, and the case a disgrace to the War Office."

Spread the news! Spread the news!
Spread the news around!
Of the six hundred
One who has just died
Will to the Light Brigade,
When through the vale of death
Rode the six hundred.

Dead to the right of him,
Dead to the left of him,
Dead all around, for
The veteran knew not fear,
And when the word was said
"Charge!" and when the word was "Charge,"
Shrank not one hundred.

-Of in the workhouse, yes!"
Here is shame by fame,
Poverty by virtue knew
When cannon thundered,
His not to mind, or ask,
His but to carve and die,
And so to answer duty's call
Rich with a host of wealth
That through the years of death
Rode the six hundred.

Hooper his name by day,
Sunday and working day,
Where'er he was called and made,
Name to the nation!
Hooper with sticks and mats,
Sank by disease and pain,
At in Workhouse bed.
Dead of starvation!
Hooper with pride
Thin of the wasting ride
Of the six hundred.
Wife, you are waiting still,
Wife, by the laborers hope,
Where no one has laundered,
Let us with bated breath
Tell how our married in death
Of the six hundred.

What can that horrible hiss?
Of the dread death be?
Well may men wonder,
One of the Light Brigade
Can't be that terrible bird made
Most of short beaks!

Alexandre Dumas' New Play, "L'Etrangere."

Monsieur Morineau is a rich tradesman who formerly kept a shop in the Rue St. Denis under the sign of "The Three Sultanas," for signs over shop doors are still rather the rule than the exception in France. Monsieur Morineau, having retired from business with a fortune of about twenty million francs, more or less, resolves to marry his only daughter to a nobleman. He is first introduced to the audience as a blatant, objectionable old fellow, far too full of health and wine; and he explains the reasons which induce him to invest in a titled son-in-law, just as he would explain the motives which had decided him to buy into a particular stock in the money market. Mademoiselle Morineau asks M. Morineau how he contrived to find a marriageable nobleman for sale, inasmuch as he, Morineau, was not of an age or character to find one's self next to high society. Morineau replies that he purchased the nobleman in question from Count Clarkson, a stranger lady, who resides in Paris, and who negotiates all such bargains and pockets her bounty and her wit. Morineau observes that although he really paid 210,000 for the nobleman, in the shape of a necklace ("de chez Mortimer") which he bestowed upon Mrs. Clarkson, that article of jewelry could not be regarded as the price of his nobleman, but must be rather considered as the grateful acknowledgment of his social obligations to Mrs. Clarkson—L'Etrangère.

The nobleman thus bought and paid for in compliance with the usual mode of making matrimonial alliances in France is the Duc Maxime, and M. Alexandre Dumas has elected rather great pains in the delineation of the character which he (quite new to the stage. The young man is a very curious study, and perfectly true to life, makers it. Pas precisely, yet with a certain sort of naughtiness and chivalry about him; and if his conduct is bad his manners are excellent. He is a nobleman of the most ancient and proud of the higher aspects of French nobility side by side with its scandalous.

The business of the play opens by Mrs. Clarkson (L'Etrangère) sending a letter to the Duchess Maxime, who is patroness of a charity, offering 25,000 francs for permission to drink a cup of tea in her Grace's drawing-room. The Duchess writes in answer that if Mrs. Clarkson can find any gentleman among the friends or relatives of the lamnity to introduce her she will be welcome, not otherwise. The letter is not sealed before the latter read is perused aloud, and then the Duke rises and says, not without a little gallantry, that either nobody else will volunteer for so honorable a service, he himself will offer his arm to the unwilling lady, and lead her in the presence of his wife. The Duchess, thus constrained to receive the adventuress, bends her a cup of tea, and after a brief passage of womanly arms dismisses rather than takes leave of her. When she is gone the enraged wife crushes the cup from which her unwelcome visitor has drank upon the floor, and smashes it to atoms. Then she cries: "Fling wide the house doors to purify the air! all the world may know that the mortals has been on the fire floor, the part of the angry Duchess being played by Mlle. Croisette, the reigning Duchess of the French stage, and that of L'Etrangère being powerfully rendered by Sarah Bernhardt.

Mrs. Clarkson, who had her own reasons for seeking the Duchess, now insists on a return visit; and their second interview is by far the great sensation scene of the play. The Duchess, to whom her husband has been both odious and contemptible, feels her affection revive for Gerard, the son of a former governess, by whom she had felt a girlish attachment before her marriage; and it happens that Mrs. Clarkson, who has saved the life of the young man in Italy, has also fallen in love with him. The adventuress, therefore, warns the Duchess to leave Paris at once with her husband, or to dread her vengeance in case she dares to dispute the love of Gerard with her. In order to show the terrible sort of revenge she could take if aroused to hostilities, she explains that she is the daughter of a slave who has been publicly sold by her father and master, whose property she was, and that she has passed her existence in aiding and abetting a series of murders and atrocities in hatred of mankind at large, considering that she has no affinity with the human family and is a born alien. Gerard she declares is the only human being she ever loved her with love, and she will never consent to give him up to a rival. The Duchess, having calmly heard this fearful account of Mrs. Clarkson's antecedents, defies her, and she was between the two women begins in earnest.

Mrs. Clarkson puts the Duke on his guard against Gerard, and he is thus enabled to intercept a letter in which the Duchess avows her love for her former playmate. This brings about another sensation scene between the Duke and his wife. The Duke offers to forgive and forget the letter if the wife will promise him that some day by repentance and atonement he may induce her to write such words to him. His acknowledges that he has not hitherto appreciated her, because he never knew how beautiful and good she was till now that his eyes and heart were o opened. But it is too late, and, after heaping insults and scorn upon him, she flings him away forever in a hurricane of passion. This scene is the gem of the piece. The Duke, now reduced to despair, determines to challenge his wife's lover; and sends to Mr. Clarkson (husband of L'Etrangère), an American speculator of fabulous wealth, who is passing a few days in Paris, to act as his second. M. Morineau having in vain tried to dissuade him from that wrong will become a public scandal, compromise his daughter and deprive her of her dearly-bought title, determines to checkmate the Duke's move by acting as second to Gerard, thus publicly asserting his confidence in his daughter's innocence. The duel is arranged to take place next day, but meanwhile a quarrel occurs between the Duke and Gerard, which ends outside all risking gallantry, that when Mr. Clarkson arrives to act as second to the latter he finds that the Duke has already been killed by Gerard in a duel. Mr. Clarkson, who is a gentleman of honor, but a savage at heart, then declares that he will himself fight the survivor, and he and Gerard are about to engage when the latter reels and falls in a swoon. Mr. Clarkson, who had her own reasons for seeking the Duchess, now insists on a return visit; and their second interview is by far the great sensation scene of the play. The Duchess, to whom her husband has been both odious and contemptible, feels her affection revive for Gerard, the son of a former governess, by whom she had felt a girlish attachment before her marriage; and it happens that Mrs. Clarkson, who has saved the life of the young man in Italy, has also fallen in love with him. The adventuress, therefore, warns the Duchess to leave Paris at once with her husband, or to dread her vengeance in case she dares to dispute the love of Gerard with her. In order to show the terrible sort of revenge she could take if aroused to hostilities, she explains that she is the daughter of a slave who has been publicly sold by her father and master, whose property she was, and that she has passed her existence in aiding and abetting a series of murders and atrocities in hatred of mankind at large, considering that she has no affinity with the human family and is a born alien. Gerard she declares is the only human being she ever loved her with love, and

The Road to a Father's Heart.

Jacob Bilteens is a young man who lives in Allegheny. He was desperately in love with Amelia S——, and Amelia was cold to fully reciprocate the youth's attachments. Jacob thought it was time to broach the subject to Amelia's father, who was unaware that Bilteens' uncle had died two weeks before, leaving Jake a handsome legacy. The young man, with Amelia on his arm, came into the awful presence of the father.

"Good evening, Mr. S——," said Bilteens, beatiatingly, while Amelia grew scarlet.

"Eh!" exclaimed the old gentleman, screwed to lay before the fatisfied impertinence of Christian mortification, and also the grievous obligation of compelling with the Rural Code; which will be fulfilled from the 8th Sunday in Lent, to the Thursday next succeeding Trinity Sunday, inclusive, both the assembling of the people, before all other things, and the reading of their souls, and they will exhort them to amendment of their lives. Moreover, the only thing that can excuse to the Curate the absence of the young ladies is that they will hold religious exercises in their churches at that time a week, according to what Bull prescribe may deem expedient.

JOSEPH S. ALEMANY,
Archbishop of San Francisco.

San Francisco, February 2, 1876.

Church Services During Lent.

ST. MARY'S CATHEDRAL.—During Lent, on week-days, Mass at 5, 6, 7 and 8 o'clock every morning; rosary and spiritual reading every evening at 7 o'clock; sermon at 8 o'clock every evening; Wednesday evening: way of the cross and benediction every Friday evening.

ST. AGNES'S CHURCH.—The Lenten services at St. Francis' church, Vallejo street, will be as follows: Wednesday evenings, rosary, sermon and benediction. Saturday evenings, instruction and benediction. Catechetical instruction will be given in this church on the afternoon of each Saturday, Wednesday and Friday, from 2 to 4½ o'clock.

ST. JOSEPH'S CHURCH.—Rosary and benediction on Wednesdays; on Fridays, stations of the cross and benediction; Mass on week days at 6, 7½ and 8 a. m.

Spencer Decker, twelve years old, is held in five thousand dollars' bail in Boston, charged with causing the death of Charles H. Prouty, a playmate, nine years old.

REGULATIONS FOR LENT IN 1876.
For the Diocese of San Francisco.

1. All the WEEK days of Lent, from Ash-Wednesday, the 1st of March, till Easter Sunday, are fast days of precept, on one meal, with the allowance of light refreshment at night.

2. The precept of fasting implies also that of abstinence from the use of flesh meat. But, by dispensation, the use of flesh meat is allowed to the diocese during Lent, except on the following days, to wit: the Wednesdays and Fridays, the Ember-days, and the Thursday and Saturday of Holy Week; on which days flesh meat is not to be used, except by dispensation from the respective pastors, which they are hereby authorized to grant in cases of necessity to be judged by them. All Saturdays are also days of abstinence, but not of fasting.

3. Young persons under the age of 21 and sick persons must be considered as absent during confessions, nor for Nonfulfilment.

4. Every person who shall be guilty of any breach of the above regulations, without a dispensation, shall be considered as having incurred the penalty of mortal sin.

5. Least being a penitential time, the pastors are required to lay before the faithful the importance of Christian mortification, and also the grievous obligation of complying with the Rural Code; which will be fulfilled from the 8th Sunday in Lent, to the Thursday next succeeding Trinity Sunday, inclusive, both the assembling of the people, before all other things, and the reading of their souls, and they will exhort them to amendment of their lives. Moreover, the only thing that can excuse to the Curate the absence of the young ladies is that they will hold religious exercises in their churches at that time a week, according to what Bull prescribe may deem expedient.

JOSEPH S. ALEMANY,
Archbishop of San Francisco.

San Francisco, February 2, 1876.

Church Services During Lent.

ST. MARY'S CATHEDRAL.—During Lent, on week-days, Mass at 5, 6, 7 and 8 o'clock every morning; rosary and spiritual reading every evening at 7 o'clock; sermon at 8 o'clock every evening; Wednesday evening: way of the cross and benediction every Friday evening.

ST. AGNES'S CHURCH.—The Lenten services at St. Francis' church, Vallejo street, will be as follows: Wednesday evenings, rosary, sermon and benediction. Saturday evenings, instruction and benediction. Catechetical instruction will be given in this church on the afternoon of each Saturday, Wednesday and Friday, from 2 to 4½ o'clock.

ST. JOSEPH'S CHURCH.—Rosary and benediction on Wednesdays; on Fridays, stations of the cross and benediction; Mass on week days at 6, 7½ and 8 a. m.

Spencer Decker, twelve years old, is held in five thousand dollars' bail in Boston, charged with causing the death of Charles H. Prouty, a playmate, nine years old.

MISCELLANEOUS.

HATS. HATS.

For a Stylish Hat, get up of the best materials, call at

McGANN'S,

PRACTICAL HATTER,

820, 822 THIRD STREET, 822

and has every one made to order, or select one out of an immense variety of styles, including the very latest and fashionable, at reasonable prices.

Spring Style Just Received.

P. S.—I make a specialty of visiting all in price of style. mr18

To have good health the Liver must be kept in order

SANFORD'S
LIVER INVIGORATOR.
INVIGORATE THE LIVER,
and cure Dyspepsia.
INVIGORATE THE LIVER,
and cure all Bilious Diseases.
INVIGORATE THE LIVER,
and cure Jaundice.
INVIGORATE THE LIVER,
and cure Sick Headache.
INVIGORATE THE LIVER,
and cure Constipation.
INVIGORATE THE LIVER,
and cure Cholera Morbus and Colic.
INVIGORATE THE LIVER,
and cure Sluggish Circulation.
INVIGORATE THE LIVER,
and cure Heartburn and Dysentery.
INVIGORATE THE LIVER,
and cure that Disease of the Liver,
For Pamphlets, address DR. SANFORD, New York

LOUIS KRAUSE FARM SEEDS. Circulars of Ornamental Trees, Shrubs, Hedge Plants, Bulbous Roots, Seeds, Implements, &c., sent free for two stamps. H. F. KRAUSE, Parksburg, Pa.

HARD-WOOD FINISH.
What is apply to preserve and beautify it. Send for circular (formerly sent free). H. SELLEY & SON, 114 to 122 Bowling Slip, New York. mr11-1y.

A FARM OF YOUR OWN
—IN THE BEST—
REMEDY FOR HAND TIMES!
FREE HOMESTEADS
—AND THE—
Best and Cheapest Railroad Land
—ON THE LINE OF THE—
UNION PACIFIC RAILROAD
IN NEBRASKA.
SECURE A HOME NOW. Full information sent FREE to all parts of the world. Address O. F. DAVIS, Land Commissioner U. P. R. R., Omaha, Nebraska.

PLAIN DIRECTIONS
—FOR—
ALL ACCIDENTS, EMERGENCIES, AND POISONS, AND CARE OF THE SICK. By a Fellow of the College of Physicians. Be not at a loss a moment when you can obtain an overruling Providence."

6. It establishes a monopoly of business in the individual employer and the immediate control of parents.

7. The principles on which it is justified will last fly with great force the claim of the Communist to labor and bread.

THERE is a fine distinction between poverty and pauperism, and Cardinal Manning, when recently making an appeal for the Little Sisters of the Poor, pointed it out in the following forcible and beautiful terms:

"Poverty," he said, "was a holy state, which pauperism was hateful. Poverty and innocence were two things that must go together. Poverty was the property of virtue and sin, of crime, drunkenness, of disease, and of the intellectual and moral, which are transmitted from parents to children, from generation to generation. And this pauperism existed under the light of the greatest splendor that the world had ever seen. Pauperism was a plague, an ulcer, from the sole of the foot to the crown of the head of England. He was not going to speak of that pauperism, but he was going to speak and call their sins for honest poverty."

UNDERTAKERS.

TERL FLANAGAN. E. J. GALLAGHER.

FLANAGAN & GALLAGHER,
(Successors to J. Kelly)
Undertakers,
No. 624 HARKET STREET,
Near opposite Fourth ..... San Francisco

EVERYTHING NECESSARY FOR Funerals Kept constantly on hand. Orders by telegraph will receive prompt attention, at moderate charges. mr11

MASSEY & YUNG,
Undertakers,
PRACTICAL FURNISHING UNDERTAKERS, Barnes's Burial Caskets always on hand, and Agents for Pike's Metallic Cases.
Everything necessary for Funerals Kept constantly on hand. Orders by telegraph will receive prompt attention, at moderate charges.
No. 26—31 Second street, between Mission and Howard Sts.

JAMES McGINN,
UNDERTAKER,
HAS REMOVED TO
968 Market Street, (opposite Powell)
Everything requisite for Funerals at the shortest notice. ja15-3

SULLIVAN, KELLY & CO.,
Northwest corner Pine and Front Sts.,
Where they offer for sale
THE LARGEST STOCK OF PAINTS,
OILS,
GLASS
ETC., ETC., ON THE PACIFIC COAST,
AT THE LOWEST MARKET RATES.
101, 103 and 105 FRONT STREET,
and 110 PINE STREET.

$12 a day at home. Agents wanted. Outfit and terms free. TRUE & CO., Au gusta, Maine.

EDUCATIONAL.

SAINT MARY'S COLLEGE
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
Conducted by the Christian Brothers
Offers every facility for acquiring a thorough Education, whether Classical, Scientific or Commercial.

Those who complete the Classical Course receive the degree of A. B.; the Scientific, B. S.; the Commercial, Master of Accounts.

The Commercial course has been established for the convenience of those who wish to acquire a good practical education in a short time as possible.

While proper care is bestowed on every branch taught in the College, our own language receives special attention. The daily exercises of the Students in Grammar, Composition and Rhetoric are published and corrected in the class-room.

TERMS PER SCHOLASTIC YEAR,
(Payable half-yearly in advance).

Board, Tuition and Washing.....$150 00
Entrance Fee.....20 00
Physician's Fee and Medicines.....10 00
Graduation Fee.....40 00
Modern languages, Music and drawing form extra charges.
Studies will be resumed on the 5th of August, 1875. BRO. R. JUSTIN, President.

ST. VINCENT'S SCHOOL.

THIS INSTITUTION IS SITUATED IN SANTA BARBARA, a short distance from the sea, in the most delightful and healthy part of the city. The grounds are extensive, and the building is large and commodious.

The course of instruction embraces the usual branches of a thorough English education. Spanish is also taught.

TERMS
(Invariably half yearly) in advance):

Board, tuition, bed, washing, use of library, per annum.....$200 00
Entrance fee, for use of instruments, per month, $1 50 to $3 00
Guitar, per month, $1.....$3 00
Violin, per month, $1.....$3 00
No extra charge for Tapestry, Embroidery, Plain and Ornamental Needlework, or the Spanish language.

TERMS FOR DAY SCHOLARS:

Primary, per month.....$2 00
Elementary and Senior, per month.....$ 00
Music, per month.....$ 00
Use of piano, extra charge for Tapestry, Embroidery, Plain and Ornamental Needlework, or the Spanish language.
Payments are required to be made in gold or silver coin, or its equivalent, and in advance, and will be expected at the opening of the Session. ap7-tf

ST. CATHERINE'S ACADEMY,
FOR YOUNG LADIES.
BENICIA.....CALIFORNIA.

THIS INSTITUTION IS CONDUCTED BY THE Sisters of St. Dominic, and is situated in the healthy and accessible town of Benicia. The plan of education pursued in this Academy is that of the best institutions for young ladies. Pupils of any religious denomination are received. The terms are made known on application, and are required to be present at the regular religious exercises.

The scholastic year, comprising two sessions of five months each, commences on the first Monday in August and on the middle of June. No deduction will be made for pupils entering after the middle of the session, except in case of sickness. Pupils will be charged from the time of entrance.

TERMS.

For session (payable half-yearly in advance):

Board and Tuition.....$125 00
Washing.....10 00
Physician's Fee.....5 00
Use of Piano.....10 00
Drawing and Painting.....10 00
Vocation spent in the Academy.....25 00

Terms per month in Extras.

Select Day Scholars, Primary, first and second grammar Classes.....$1 00
Third Grammar Classes.....1 50
Preparatory and Primary.....2 00
Use of Piano.....1 00
Tuition charge for French, plain and ornamental needlework.....1 00
For further particulars apply to the Superioress. ja8-tf

SANTA CLARA COLLEGE,
SANTA CLARA,.....CALIFORNIA.

Under the management of the Fathers of the Society of Jesus.

THE SANTA CLARA COLLEGE WAS FOUNDED in 1851, and in 1861 was incorporated, with the usual powers of a literary institution. It has now five departments—the Classic and Scientific, the Commercial, the Law, the Medical and the Academic, while extensive play grounds, with the various gymnastic apparatus, afford ample facilities for healthful exercise.

The College possesses a very complete philosophical apparatus, and a well-selected library of 8,000 volumes and upwards. It has also, practical models of Telegraphing, Photography and Assaying; the latter even is taught in a thoroughly fitted chemical laboratory.

The Scholastic Year, which is divided into two sessions, commences on the first Monday in August and closes towards the beginning of June.

TERMS.

(Payable semi-monthly, in advance):

Matriculation Fee (paid but once).....$15 00
Board, Lodging, Tuition, Washing, and Medical Attendance and Medicine, Baths, Use of Library.....$30 00
Modern Languages, Drawing and Music form extra charges. Graduation Fee.....$10 00 and the like, no advance made by the Institution for further particulars apply to
REV. A. VARNI, S. J., President.

FRANCISCAN COLLEGE,
SANTA BARBARA,.....CALIFORNIA.

THE NINTH SESSION OF TH INSTITUTION will open on the 1st of August, 1875, and will continue on the first Monday of each month.

The object of the institution is to give a good English education, with Classical and Commercial Education, at the lowest possible cost, and thereby bring it within the reach of all.

TERMS.

Entrance Fee (to be paid but once).....$5 00
Tuition, Board and Washing, per session, of about ten months.....$200 00
Music, French and German form extra charges.
Graduation Fee.....$10 00
Patients will pay for medical attendance, and supply their clothes, &c.

Money will not be advanced by the College; for the purchase of anything articles, all such must be deposited.

For additional particulars apply to
REV. J. M. ROMO, O. S. F.
1f19

SANTA CLARA ADVERTISEMENTS.

CAMERON HOUSE,
SANTA CLARA, CAL.
MARTIN CORCORAN.....PROPRIETOR.

MR. CORCORAN, having purchased the above-named property, has spared no pains or expenditure throughout the State that the Cameron House should be a comfortable home for Visitors to Santa Clara county, and particularly the students of Santa Clara University. Omnibus to and from the House.
Rates reasonable. ja24-3m

NOTRE DAME ACADEMY,
SAN FRANCISCO.

THIS ACADEMY, WHICH IS CONDUCTED by the Sisters of Notre Dame, is situated on Dolores street, opposite the Mission Church.

Besides being located in one of the most healthy parts of the city, the Academy has the advantage of a fine yard in which to breathe the purest air, and the social advantages of the young ladies attending this Academy, are such as to enable them to acquire all the means for healthful exercise during the recreation hours.

The course of instruction embraces every useful and ornamental branch taught in the best Academies at the present day.

The second year of the Tenth Annual Session will commence January 3, 1876.

TERMS.

For quarter commencing from date of admission:
Board, tuition, washing, with use of bedding.....$60 00
Half Boarders.....15 00
Vocal Music.....10 00
Drawing and Painting.....10 00
Vocation spent at the Academy.....25 00

Terms per month in Extras.

Primary Classes.....$2 00
Elementary Classes.....2 50
Senior Classes.....3 00
Use of Piano.....1 00
Bed and bedding, without sheets (if supplied by the Academy).....10 00
Piano, Guitar, Vocal Music, Drawing and Painting, extra charges.
For further particulars apply to
MOTHER SUPERIORESS.

NOTRE DAME ACADEMY,
SAN FRANCISCO.

THIS ACADEMY, WHICH IS CONDUCTED by the Sisters of Notre Dame, is situated on Dolores street, opposite the Mission Church.

Besides being located in one of the most healthy parts of the city, the Academy has the advantage of a fine yard in which to breathe the purest air, and the social advantages of the young ladies attending this Academy, are such as to enable them to acquire all the means for healthful exercise during the recreation hours.

The course of instruction embraces every useful and ornamental branch taught in the best Academies at the present day.

The second year of the Tenth Annual Session will commence January 3, 1876.

TERMS.

For quarter commencing from date of admission:
Board, tuition, washing, with use of bedding.....$60 00
Half Boarders.....15 00
Vocal Music.....10 00
Drawing and Painting.....10 00
Vocation spent at the Academy.....25 00

Terms per month in Extras.

Primary Classes.....$2 00
Elementary Classes.....2 50
Senior Classes.....3 00
Use of Piano.....1 00
Bed and bedding, without sheets (if supplied by the Academy).....10 00
Piano, Guitar, Vocal Music, Drawing and Painting, extra charges.
For further particulars apply to
MOTHER SUPERIORESS.

COLLEGE OF NOTRE DAME,
SAN JOSE, CALIFORNIA.

YOUNG LADIES' INSTITUTE.

THIS INSTITUTION, WHICH IS INCORPORated according to the laws of the State and empowered to confer collegiate honors, will commence the Twenty-sixth Annual Session on MONDAY, August 9, 1875. The course of instruction embraces all the branches of a thorough education.

TERMS.

Entrance, to be paid but once.....$15 00
Board and Tuition, per month.....$ 00
Washing, per quarter.....$ 00
Physician's Fee, if required.....$ 00
Payments will be required to be made in gold or silver coin, or its equivalent, and in advance, and will be expected at the opening of the session. No deduction will be made for pupils entering after the middle of the session, except in case of sickness. Pupils will be charged from the time of entrance.

TERMS.

For session (payable half-yearly in advance):

Board and Tuition.....$125 00
Washing.....10 00
Physician's Fee.....5 00
Use of Piano.....10 00
Drawing and Painting.....10 00
Vocation spent in the Academy.....25 00

Terms per month in Extras.

Select Day Scholars, Primary, first and second grammar Classes.....$1 00
Third Grammar Classes.....1 50
Preparatory and Primary.....2 00
Use of Piano.....1 00
Tuition charge for French, plain and ornamental needlework.....1 00
For further particulars apply to the Superioress. ja8-tf

SANTA CLARA COLLEGE,
SANTA CLARA,.....CALIFORNIA.

Under the management of the Fathers of the Society of Jesus.

THE SANTA CLARA COLLEGE WAS FOUNDED in 1851, and in 1861 was incorporated, with the usual powers of a literary institution. It has now five departments—the Classic and Scientific, the Commercial, the Law, the Medical and the Academic, while extensive play grounds, with the various gymnastic apparatus, afford ample facilities for healthful exercise.

The College possesses a very complete philosophical apparatus, and a well-selected library of 8,000 volumes and upwards. It has also, practical models of Telegraphing, Photography and Assaying; the latter even is taught in a thoroughly fitted chemical laboratory.

The Scholastic Year, which is divided into two sessions, commences on the first Monday in August and closes towards the beginning of June.

TERMS.

(Payable semi-monthly, in advance):

Matriculation Fee (paid but once).....$15 00
Board, Lodging, Tuition, Washing, and Medical Attendance and Medicine, Baths, Use of Library.....$30 00
Modern Languages, Drawing and Music form extra charges. Graduation Fee.....$10 00 and the like, no advance made by the Institution for further particulars apply to
REV. A. VARNI, S. J., President.

FRANCISCAN COLLEGE,
SANTA BARBARA,.....CALIFORNIA.

THE NINTH SESSION OF TH INSTITUTE will open on the 1st of August, 1875, and will continue on the first Monday of each month.

The object of the institution is to give a good English education, with Classical and Commercial Education, at the lowest possible cost, and thereby bring it within the reach of all.

TERMS.

Entrance Fee (to be paid but once).....$5 00
Tuition, Board and Washing, per session, of about ten months.....$200 00
Music, French and German form extra charges.
Graduation Fee.....$10 00
Patients will pay for medical attendance, and supply their clothes, &c.

Money will not be advanced by the College; for the purchase of anything articles, all such must be deposited.

For additional particulars apply to
REV. J. M. ROMO, O. S. F.
1f19

CONVENT OF THE
IMMACULATE HEART OF MARY
—FOR THE—
EDUCATION OF YOUNG LADIES
GILROY, SANTA CLARA CO.
Conducted by the Sisters of the Most Holy and Immaculate Heart of Mary.

TERMS FOR BOARDERS:

Board, tuition, washing, bedding, per annum.....$200 00
Entrance fee, to be paid but once.....$00
Tuition on piano, per annum.....$00
Use of piano.....$00
No extra charge for Tapestry, Embroidery, Plain and Ornamental Needlework, or the Spanish language.

TERMS FOR DAY SCHOLARS:

Primary, per month.....$2 00
Elementary and Senior, per month.....$ 00
Music, per month.....$ 00
Use of piano, extra charge for Tapestry, Embroidery, Plain and Ornamental Needlework, or the Spanish language.
Payments are required to be made in gold or silver coin, or its equivalent, and in advance, and will be expected at the opening of the session. No deduction will be made for pupils entering after the middle of the session, except in case of sickness. Pupils will be charged from the time of entrance.

TERMS.

For session (payable half-yearly in advance):

Board and Tuition.....$125 00
Washing.....10 00
Physician's Fee.....5 00
Use of Piano.....10 00
Drawing and Painting.....10 00
Vocation spent in the Academy.....25 00

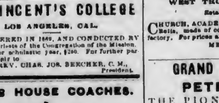
Terms per month in Extras.

Select Day Scholars, Primary, first and second grammar Classes.....$1 00
Third Grammar Classes.....1 50
Preparatory and Primary.....2 00
Use of Piano.....1 00
Tuition charge for French, plain and ornamental needlework.....1 00
For further particulars apply to the Superioress. ja8-tf

ST. VINCENT'S COLLEGE
LOS ANGELES, CAL.

CHARTERED IN 1865, AND CONDUCTED BY the priests of the Congregation of the Mission. Terms for scholastic year, $180. For further particulars apply to
REV. CHAS. JOS. BERCHER, C. M., President.

RUSS HOUSE COACHES.



Nos. 27, 46, 48, 97 and 109.

McNALLY & SLATTERY.....Proprietors.

Orders left at the Russ House will be promptly attended to. Rates most reasonable. ap15

TO IRELAND.

My country, wounded in the heart,
Thou'lt find thy death day through thy land
Electric power is rive apart
The thunder-recedes that round thee roll,
And by my burning words spirit!
Thy life from out death-dealing hand,
Till the full splendors of our age
Shame round thee for thy heritage—
As Miriam's by the Red Sea strand,
Clashing proud of psalm, so my hand
Would strike thy harp,
Loved Ireland!

Who flung her triumphs to the stars,
To gladden the dark hearts of serfs and slaves!
While over Pharaoh's gilded cars
The fierce, death bearing waves rolled on:
I can but look in God's great face,
And pray Him for our fated race,
To come in final thunders down,
And, with His mystic radiance, crown
Some Prophet leader, with command
To lead the children of Egypt's band,
And be our hire,
Loved Ireland!

New sources, from higher source,
Men mean the mighty thoughts that flow,
As Alpine glaciers to their course
Stir the deep currents 'neath the snow.
The woman's voice dies in the surfs
Of liberty's everlasting strife,
And the born heart is dead,
The brain that can guide as soon,
And settle with its speed, stronger hand,
Though towering up the path withstand,
Thy golden day,
Loved Ireland!

For I see breathe no trumpet call,
To gather the wandering sons of their;
I only lift the funeral pall,
And bid us God's high height look thine eyes,
Seeing the silver prayer-bell clear,
To the cloister, and the cross on her!
Yet, if in death my heart has erred,
Even with sacrilegious word,
Let me not die,
Loved Ireland!

St. Patrick and the Druid.

After St. Patrick, with the youth Benignus and eight companions, under cover of a garment of invisibility, had safely passed through the ambuscade set for his destruction, he addressed himself to the task of evangelizing Ireland, before King Laeghaire and the princes and chiefs who were there gathered banqueting and drinking, celebrating the great annual festival of the Feis of Tara. Luchat Mael was one of the king's chief Druids or Magi, and he proposed to try his powers of wonder with the Christian missionaries. Those Magi were skilled enchanters, and exercised great control over kings and people. The circumstances and occasion would not permit Patrick to refuse the challenge. When setting out he had said: "I will go forth, my readiness may be manifested before the men of Erin. I shall not make a candle under a bushel of myself, I will see who will believe in me, and who will not believe." So as he led out out with the resolution to manifest himself to the people, he could not risk the success of his mission by thinking that the boasting of the Druid. At the very outset of the display of power, Luchat Mael sought to poison Patrick and thus obtain an easy victory by effectually stopping the mouth. Giving Patrick a drink, Mael dropped poison into the goblet. Divinely warned of his danger, Patrick made the sign of the cross over the goblet, and, holding it upside-down, the ale shared in it, with the poison which he threw out on the ground. Replacing the goblet in its proper position, he again blessed it, and the ale retook its liquid form.

Then Luchat Mael proposed that the assembled company should go forth from the banqueting hall to a pitched battle out, and look up their station outside of Tara. "Let us work miracles," said Luchat, "before the eyes of the men of Erin and the men of China and Japan, it crosses the Pacific and Atlantic oceans, and the millions of Europe. From the peaks of the Rocky Mountains to the slopes of New York, through the large cities of the Union, and the millions of Irish people, there is but one grand irresistible sentiment, and that is in favor of Ireland.

But this aspiration for freedom has filled with its maligned victims many an early tomb; it has consigned many an Irish field with the noblest blood of her children; it has filled many a home with sadness, and filled many a felon's cell in England prisons with the sigh of blasted hopes. Too strongly to reach a man's grade; and at last we wondered drowsily.

"Now," Patrick said, "was see this; send it away, if you can." To which the Druid answered: "That thing I cannot do; but by this time to-morrow will I fly my chariot," said the angry Druid, "and sell in my power, and not to good." And then turning to the people, he blessed the plain, and the snow immediately disappeared, without rain, without sun, without wind, at a word.

The Druid, next, by his incantations caused a thick darkness to cross over the face of the earth, which raised the cries of the whole multitude. "Infantile tenebrosi"—"expel the darkness," said Patrick, and immediately that Mael was unable to control the power. So he was raised; but Patrick raised his prayers in the Lord and blessed the sun, and the darkness fled away, and the sun came forth in its splendor.

Then they were for a long time contended for before the king, who then proposed a trial by a certain kind of ordeal. He and both the Christian and the Druid should be thrown into a fire of wood; adding the declaration, that he would adopt the faith whose books should come out sound and uninjured. The Druid objected, saying that he would not go to the judgment of water like him, as he had water for a God," in allusion to the use of water in the rite of baptism. The king then proposed a test by the Irish goddess Tailtiu, and a mutual fortune smiled in triumph on their cause.

Oh how I recall the bitter tale
My heart has been full
Of Roman's deeds of shame and wrong,
Then dark and deep
Have with quivering voice heard tell
Of Irish's fall!
Before their will stagnated might
The Irish people fell,
Till from its bearing steel
Their hearts and lives were dashing eye,
The deadness of that moment
Was the deepest misery high.

But the smoking ruins of Irish homes, the piles of scattered mounds of Irish dead, are the simple records of failure; for Ireland's destiny was still in the hands of Him who ever rules both her and her tyrant.

Thus in 1593 comes the tragicfate of Hobart Gordon, a youth of fine bleeding fun and refinement, and this noble youth urged even another struggle on his hapless countrymen. Banished from the halls of Trinity College for his love of Ireland, he, too, found room for his fate cause in the very councils of the French metropolis. Napoleon, then First Consul of the Empire, gave him fleeting promises but no assistance, and when he had doomed the patriot to the gallows; he was hung in the streets of Dublin, the noblest and most honored victim of our nation's desire for freedom.

With the exception of a few faint signs of eruption in the volcano of Irish liberties '48 and '98, these quarters of a century rolled on in undisturbed plunder of Irish resources, in insult to Irish faith and exile of the people; a period when the Irish had an event of happy misery—the Emancipation of O'Connell. A great deal was then achieved, but not all. The aspirations for freedom, the longings of the national heart still throbbed, as it does to day for complete emancipation.

It is not core to pause over the propriety or prudence of the expression given to the cause of freedom by the patriots of '48, when even those of our own time we know that every failure lightens the cross of thraldom; but we also know had the patriots of those desperate efforts succeeded, their names would have been emblazoned in immortal honor on the tablets of our country's history, and a grateful posterity would celebrate their victory with centennial honors, such as now garland the memories of American independence.—Montreal True Witness.

Be Sure to Get Haskell's Teas.
TRADE G S H MARK.
THEY ARE ALWAYS THE FRESHEST AND finest flavored in this market, consisting of the following choice varieties:
CHOICE NATURAL LEAF JAPANS,
JUBILEE AND PONCHOW OOLONGS,
ENGLISH BREAKFAST SOUCHONGS,
ORANGE PEKOE,
YOUNG HYSON,
GUNPOWDER,
IMPERIAL, etc.,
In packages of 1 pound, 5 pounds, 10 pounds and upwards. In store a choice assortment of GROCERIES.
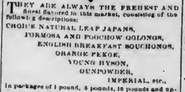
HASKELL & Co
605 Market Street,
Under the Grand Hotel. SAN FRANCISCO.
Agents for the BOSTON HOP YEAST CAKES. mr4

The Harvest of 1876.
FARMING MACHINERY,
At Cost of Importation.



TREADWELL & CO., San Francisco,
ARE PREPARED FOR THE COMING HARvest with the largest stock of Improved Machinery ever offered to the farmers of California. Also, a full assortment of Vineyard and Orchard Implements, and most just being received from the factory. The best Agricultural Warehouse in the State.

XENIA MOWERS.
Price, $150. Extra Knives and Sections always kept on hand. Weight about 1,000 lbs. Cuts 4 feet, 4½ feet or 5 feet. Has Double-acted Spring to raise, and is the best machine ever used in California.

XENIA AND KIRBY REAPERS.
At from $150 to $200. We have a large stock on hand, and are determined to sell them, regardless of cost.

TREADWELL'S PATENT SINGLE-GEAR HEADERS.
Made by J. I. Case & Co. The best ever sold in California. Ask any man who has used one. We will be thirty of them.

HOADLEY ENGINES.
The new style Hoadley Steam Thresher is the finest threshing engine in the world. Price, $1,700. The standard 15 horse power; Hoadley, $1,650; 12 horse power, $1,350; 10 horse power, $1,100. All with heavy governor gear, and all improvements.

THE WHITEWATER THRESHER.

Written for THE MONITOR.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY.

Hark! high and proud along the crowded streets
I hear the sounds of martial music swelling—
I hear the chime of joy-bells tolling sweet,
And every note they breathe a gladsome tale seems telling;
And sainted saints of auncld men come on,
With prancing steeds and chargers brightly gleaming,
And high o'er men and horse and flashing steel
Old Ireland's Standard shines, Old Ireland's green is seen-ning.

How grand, yet tall, ring out the old-time lays,
Their magic chords a flood of memories waking
Of days gone by—of boyhood's glorious days.
When for an Ireland's sake we watched the day-dawn breaking!

We watched, and searched through tangled brake and glen
To find the chamrock clustering lowly there;
Though well we knew 'twere treason dark to love,
And darker still for him who dared to wear.

But hush! what voice is that? or was it Fancy's dream
That made me think I heard a piercing wail—
A sobbing cry, a shriek it almost seemed,
Wafted from far away upon the whispering gale;
High as the bronze throats here form their strains—
High as the cymbals clang and trumpets call—
That voice rings higher still above the din,
Above the crowd's wild shout, the city's hum and all,

Ah! 'tis no dream nor work of Fancy's power!
'Tis Ireland's voice that utters through the air;
'Tis Ireland sobbing on her exiled sons!
'Tis Ireland's breaking heart that speaks in dirge despair.

For, far away beyond the sea she stands—
Her sons of saints dares echo there to-day!
Her head is bowed, and fettered, chained her hands,
She wails beneath the hated despot's sway.

No martial pomp, no flash of steel is there,
Though few or why did not dare, as oft in days of yore;
No long mustache through her feeble plains,
Nor waft of sword or requiem of the wars that wash her shore.

In chief, hapless land, where freedom reigns no more,
No sons peal forth and pomp is he'r name,
While she can but watch on with hoarsest woe,
Crushed by the tyrant grasp that glories in her shame.

Ireland! my country and my heart's first love;
Ireland! the name of her heart's every throne;
The idol of proud manhood's highest hope—
O! would to God soon there'd be her Freedom atone!

Watch on, and o'er Atlantic's heaving wave
A light shall shine, whose hope will never set
Until the power and land has held them slave
Is blasted through the land whose blood her hands will wet.

Your fame or valor have she forgot, but well
Into a deathless and a curse blow!
And when the hour of vengeance comes at last,
Should strife or will or mood taint our mother's foe!
We'll bring the chains from off thy tortured hands—
We'll heal thy bleeding wounds, tho' deep they be;
We'll plant the green flag on the mountain peak,
And, spite of hatred's worst, we'll say Old Ireland's free!

KATE DOWLING.

Edward O'Meagher Condon.

A mass meeting of citizens was held Tuesday evening, at Irish-American Hall, for the purpose of taking action in the matter of the release of Edward O'Meagher Condon, an American citizen, at present confined by the English authorities, for an offence alleged to have been committed by him in connection with the Manchester Fenian outbreak. The hall was crowded to its utmost capacity, and much enthusiasm was manifested. Judge Cooney was unanimously elected Chairman, and M. F. Cummings, Secretary. Judge Cooney, in opening the proceedings, stated briefly the importance of the matter which they were about to deliberate. It involved in principle's not only the rights of one American citizen, but the rights of every citizen who has sworn to support the Constitution of the United States. He then called attention to the action taken by the Legislature of California in regard to the matter. After he had concluded, an unanimous vote of thanks was tendered to the California State Legislature for their action. On motion of Captain Rockrohde, the Chairman appointed a Committee of three to prepare a series of resolutions. The Chair thereupon appointed Captain Rockrohde, Francis Tobin and John F. Congreve as said Committee. After a recess of fifteen minutes the Committee returned and reported, through Mr. Congreve, that they had appointed the subjoined preamble and resolutions, which were unanimously adopted:

Whereas, Edward O'Meagher Condon, an American citizen, has been confined in Chester Castle since November, 1867, for alleged complicity in the rescue of Colonel Kelly and Deasy from the authorities of the town of Manchester, England; and

Whereas, The most searching proofs exist that the said Condon was, and is, innocent of the charge on which he was convicted; and

Whereas, The Government of Great Britain has refused to grant a writ of Habeas Corpus in the case of Condon, although the writ has been issued in the case of Legation of the Chief Justice of Ireland, who was perfectly innocent, as the whole case of Condon, declared to General Grant, by the Chief Justice of England himself, the crime of which he was convicted; therefore,

Resolved, His conviction was obtained by the verdict of a jury composed entirely of Englishmen, contrary to law and precedent, which entitled him to a representation of American citizens on the jury; and

Whereas, At the time of his conviction, the English mind was greatly excited against the people of American citizens, which made an impartial trial of one of their countrymen impossible; and

Whereas, The British Government, virtually on the eve of a general election, in the testimony on which he was convicted, and upon which alone his conviction was obtained, by corrupting Edmund Power, a prisoner in the British custody, named Maguire, convicted by the same jury that convicted Condon, and by the basest perjury, at the same time and place. Be it therefore

Resolved, by the citizens of San Francisco, in mass meeting assembled, That the Government of the United States has failed to do its duty in one of the most glorious cases ever presented to the world for the majesty of the Union—by failing to protect a citizen of the United States who has given evidence of which he was convicted, the belonging American citizenship under the Constitution; and

Resolved, That in view of the facts above set forth, and considering the long and, as we believe, unjust imprisonment of Condon, it is the duty of the Government of the United States to request his immediate release.

Resolved, That our Senators and Representatives in Congress be earnestly requested to urge this matter on the Government, to the end that the gallant citizen and soldier of the United States may be set at liberty, and thus even tardily vindicate the rights of American citizens abroad.

On motion of Mr. Congreve, the Chair appointed a Committee to wait upon his Honor the Mayor, and request him to call a mass meeting of the citizens of an early date, for the purpose of taking further action in the matter. The Chair appointed Captain Rockrohde, Francis Tobin and John F. Congreve. On motion, the Chairman and Secretary were added to the Committee.

It was resolved that copies of the proceedings be forwarded through the members of Congress from California to Ulysses S. Grant, President of the United States.

The meeting then adjourned, subject to the call of the Chairman.

So prevalent and so fatal has consumption become that it is now everywhere dreaded as the great scourge of humanity. And yet to their marvellous power all pulmonary complaints may be readily removed and restored to health and prosperity by Dr. Sigmund's pure and scientific preparation of Hoarhound—a remedy specially adapted, by its combination, and power to control inflammation, and loosen and remove all obstructions. It is a certain remedy for asthma, and for coughs and colds. Cross & Brigham, San Francisco, wholesale agents.

BENEFITS OF DENTISTRY.

Preservation, Restoration and Replacing of the Teeth Accomplished at a Moderate Expense.

One of the leading requirements of the period, quite as important as the provision of staple articles of food, clothing or other prime necessities of life, is a dental practice that will place within the reach of all classes in the goals of affluence the benefits of the most skillful appliances and perfect arts. It unfortunately occurs that no class of humanity is exempt from a most inconvenient irregularity in nature's provisions, the premature decay of the teeth; but the rapid progress which dental science has made in the past few years, with constantly succeeding improvements in its various arts, has encouraged an extravagant scale of charges, more particularly in the large cities, until the repairing of teeth is to some extent a luxury only enjoyed by the wealthy and the inserting of a partial or full set of artificial teeth, a provision which a large portion of the people in need of such appliances are disposed to defer, either on financial or theological grounds, together and more perfect life. Drs. Richmond and Cochrane, who have recently fitted up elegant apartments at No. 850 Market street, corner of Stockton, are endeavoring to assist in reducing dentistry to a common patronage, by reasonable charges, while at the same time supplying the utmost skill of the advanced principles that is one of the prime requisites to perfect success. Their system of operations, and especially their method of inserting artificial teeth, is on a plan that enables them to place their reputation on each and every operation with entire confidence. These gentlemen are graduates of the most reputable institutions of dental science in the United States, while their diplomas are accredited with the commendations of scores of prominent citizens of San Francisco, who have used the profession of their art and efficacy of their skill.

Drs. Richmond and Cochrane have determined upon the establishment of a great popular business in dentistry, by placing the charges for all orders on a moderate scale, and their business is increasing at a rapid ratio as the test becomes known in connection with the exceptional excellence of their work. All orders for artificial teeth are executed either personally or under the constant supervision of one of the firm, and no work is permitted to leave their rooms not fully guaranteed for superiority. During the practice of these accomplished dentists in San Francisco they have accomplished positive results in the regulation of children's teeth, reducing many cases of painful deformity to perfect symmetry. In the restoration of decayed teeth they have been equally successful, and to numerous individuals they have restored to their countenance a long lease of ease and comfort, so far as effective powers of mastication and comely appearance were concerned, after other practitioners of dentistry had declined the responsibility of the task. Drs. Richmond and Cochrane are among the few dentists who undertake the manufacture of artificial teeth on any description of plate and the system known to the arts, and they are thus enabled to execute orders for work ranging from the lowest scale upward, and to guarantee satisfaction in every instance. Their skill in the filling and preservation of teeth has received unbounded praise, and they are enabled to fill in from a mere toy a perfect tooth capable of fulfilling the functions of the original molar for an indefinite period of time. In short, it is confidently asserted that Drs. Richmond and Cochrane are employing all the advantages which the spirit of the times and scientific skill known to the profession, and offer those advantages to the people of San Francisco at the most moderate scale of charges established in any city in the United States.

The Water Question.

Assemblyman Sullivan's Water bill came up for consideration in the Assembly on Wednesday, and was debated on at great length. Following is the author's speech in advocacy of the measure:

Mr. Speaker—The importance of securing the passage of a bill to give the City of San Francisco a right to secure a supply of water to meet the wants of the present and future population, has induced the Legislature and the Board of Supervisors for a number of years past to appoint committees to report on the best and the cheapest source of supply, and to report on the employment of engineers to report on the best practicable method of bringing the water supply of water and at reasonable rates. At the last session of the Legislature the Democratic State Convention declared in favor of the passage of a bill to give the people the power to vote upon the question of the issuance of the bonds for the purpose of procuring a supply of water. Both the Democratic and Republican State Platforms

THE LEGEND OF GRIMAN HILL.*

The mangled form of moor and stream, red blooms the purple heather's pride;
Here stains the ashes from Ardmen's brow or drops from Idra's side;
They linger, like a child's curse, around the hoary Sorcise;
That only marks the stronghold now where Niall hewed Tyrone.

A princess of the ancient line was she who moved in the circle
And none the Hebert's haughtiest clans lay honor with more pride;
Far northward up the winding Foyle, and westward to the shore
Of that clear lake where shadows fleet and change for evermore;

But none so proud, and none so fair, and none so cold as she.
From either twilight to the Pople that sought the Atlantic sea;
She wore no wealth from her stately manor that the sun had not won from the sea;
But its gray walls crumbled long ago—none knew of her youth it grew.

There sleeps a troop of well-armed horse in the heart of Grimon Hill,
That hark but waited for hostler's call nor the blast of bugle shrill;
By the harvested steeds their warriors wait, all mailed in proof array—
A thousand warriors—till the note of charge be heard at day.

They say that once in the dark era's month a man that knew not came,
And one of the sleepers woke! His sword was like the lightning flame;
For his helm he said; but the feint beat fled, as though from cold steel knew,
And the sleepers woke and the warriors rose, and all stemb-ering to fall down.

O bewitching hour! whose deep, dark curse do scorn with a rage sublime—
With a spell-bound night of love and joy that can not wait its time!
It is by these that the tale of life thins lasting pity.
When the meanest breaks thy darkening spell and plays free for strife.

O soul! whose mystery is the charge thy powers thy passion sees,
Behind the standard of their war, the banner of the cross.
Then with them no the valleys rolt with a strange and solemn flood,
But they charge bold to rescue life that once was bought with blood!

Oppose! O soul! yet thou must call, for love is spell!
And they who know these not—they who know these not—they
Are for away, though near.
Till the world shall be the theme for Erinnon's harp, shall fall thy buried stones
And love shall live, and death shall die, o'er all thine emerald plains.

* County Donegal. † Lough Swilley.

APPRENTICESHIP.

Its Importance Individually and in General—Its Relations to Public and Private Prosperity.

[CONCLUDED.]

In the able and most instructive report of the Inspectors of the Eastern Penitentiary of Pennsylvania, it is stated that the whole number of convicts admitted to that institution in the year 1874 was 278; and the following statement shows

THE EDUCATIONAL RELATIONS OF THESE PERSONS:

Illiterate, that is, unable to read or write, 62, being 22 30 per cent.; read and write, 216, being 77 70 per cent. Of these 278 there were 74 persons 26.61 per cent. that never attended school, and 195, 70.15 per cent. who attended public schools, and 9, 3.24 per cent. who attended private schools.

Learning, then, did not keep these prisoners out of the penitentiary. Not even the highest degree of education attained in this country is sufficient to prevent the commission of crime. Now let us see what the penitentiary report for 1874 shows relative to apprenticeship as an element in the argument in which we are engaged. Of the 278 persons there were unapprenticed, 230, or 82.16 per cent.; apprenticed and left, 7, or 2 53 per cent.; apprenticed and served until 21 years of age, 12, or 4.63 per cent.

Such an exhibit is really deserving especial notice; we are, however, compelled to pass on to the further consideration of the general question, adding only our conviction that this simple statement illustrates and represents the presence in favor of regular apprenticeship as a means of individual, social and public good.

The youth, that fails to obtain an apprenticeship on account of the combination of workmen in the trade in which he aspires to membership, is therefore deprived of what should be considered a natural, and what ought to be a legal right, to the violation of which he may have no redress, but for which he has just cause of complaint; and society is now wronged in the same sense, because it is made to suffer from the wickedness of a neighbor unjustly shifted labor of the man, and suffers still more by the social disturbance which ensues upon such a procedure. Society should, therefore, seek by whatever means are lawful, to put down some means of warfare that are not yet sanctioned by legislative provisions, to prevent to individuals and to itself collectively the evils consequent on the prohibitory action of the combination of journeymen mechanics.

But the evil is not limited to the domestic and the social circle disturbed by vices induced by enforced idleness, or the example which to labor where skill is not a requisite, and where natural ingenuity has no stimulus. The results of diminishing the number of apprentices is deplorably extensive. It touches the individual, who suffers from a want of permission to acquire an art of which he is capable, and the community suffers of which would insure to him ownership if established by industry and economy; and especially would it lessen, in time, a kind and amount of responsibility which is not often acquired by the unskilled laborer. From the individual it becomes on society (beyond what we have said of the evils of view) by withholding from the state that occasion of just pride which successful art labor invariably creates. The wrong is national in its deteriorating effects, and calls for national prevention.

Before the late civil war in the country, our nation stood only second, and very little behind the first, in her mercantile marine fleet; and wherever the flag of her Union flowed, the number of our ships was best seen the wonder of mercantile men; then were their models and construction and finish the admiration of

MECHANICS WHO PRACTICED SHIP ARCHITECTURE.

Twenty years ago many of our ships of war that arrived at a foreign port were visited with a curiosity, by naval seamen and ship-builders, that showed how worthy of admiration the ingenuity and the mechanical labor of our countrymen had made.

Those ships were planned, their shapes modelled, the timber hewn, and their planks laid by men who had served long apprenticeships under master carpenters, who understood how the work should be done, and knew how to teach others to do that work. Masters and journeymen, all were capable of appreciating the beauty of good work, and in turn each class showed itself capable of preserving that adaptation, but strength, finish and beauty of work which deserves the accomplished mechanic.

Americans who have resided in foreign seaports have not unfrequently all classed, from the king to the mechanic, have sought to obtain an invitation (or at least how willingly they have accepted it) to visit the United States ships of war that entered the harbor, and each American will confess to some national pride when they heard the commendation of people of judgment upon the model, the ship and the mechanical skill exhibited in the completion of every spar.

One instance is recalled at this moment. During the revolution in Italy, in 1860, the United States ship Wabash, commanded by Admiral Lavalette, visited Naples; the harbor was crowded with the largest and best ships of war of foreign nations, and the Wabash was admired by every officer of the different fleets. And the admiral commanding the British squadron seemed to admit that his own ship of one hundred and thirty guns would stand a poor chance against the Wabash of SIXY Dahlgren guns. There was beauty and strength in the Wabash, and adaptation of length and height above water to give her great advantage. And the Dahlgren guns were splendid and dangerous instruments, and they discovered with the game of the other ships in frequent salutes, in a tone that enforced attention. The ship was visited every day by the serious and the understand ng.

But here is another argument. At the present time the city of Philadelphia has stirred up the country to a grand Centennial celebration of the

DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE—

The birthday of the nation. And other nations are invited to share in the great jubilee. How much is the mode adopted by which a proper celebration is to be had? It is of all modes the most patriotic, and of course the most appropriate. It is as attempt to show what advances the nation has made in the brilliant pairs of her independent existence; what she has done to encourage making individual life more valuable by multiplying its comforts, and making national existence more honorable by commanding the respect of nations, and by maintaining a consequence among countemporary peoples.

And here are other nations seeking to show their importance and their means of rivality, or their success as a means of national distinction, greatly—if not entirely very greatly—by an exhibition of the evidence of their success in the mechanic arts. The beauty of the structures erected and being erected for all the cities of the Union; of those indeed in which the grand exhibition of the Centennial is to be held, are offered to the criticisms of foreign visitors as the result of the mason, the bricklayer, and bookmaker will be in the sample of mechanic skill and ingenuity. All American; all following apprenticeships; all showing the result of education and well-directed native talent; all illustrating the importance and benefit of instruction in the acquirement of an art—a trade.

Our visitors, of course, cannot present specimens of their success in architecture, but they will lay before the [requesters of the exhibition specimens of the results of the labor of their mechanics and artists. Diamonds polished and cut by skilled labor, that was perfected only by long apprenticeship. The product of the loom at which the "accuracy to the one thread" before he was recognized as a master. Chronometers that defy the test of regularity and movement and correctness as indicators of time. Watches and clocks that owe the wonderful perfection of their work to the skill of the master, disciplined by seven years apprenticeship.

In superiority in American production of the like kind (if any it here) to more recent, more skilled labor, we have not to be called for its great success to the careful instruction by distinguished masters and the docile disposition of the faithful, ingenious apprentice. There will be

CERTAIN AND MATTER TALENT,

Cred t for superiority of material, credit for special and extraordinary application, but the credit, the unquestionable credit, will be due to the cultivation of talent, the improvement of skill, the severe direction of time and attention, and the reward of honor given when the disciplines of the shop was the natural sure result of such instruction, and the natural, the sure and cause of such powers.

The success of that part of the Centennial Exhibition which comprehends the superiority in workmanship will be due to early discipline, to improvement of time, and to the judicious care of their powers by the apprenticeship.

We must not forget that the Centennial Exhibition is to become a species of international competition, for prizes and medals are to be awarded to the most deserving, and due to genius than to disciplined industry; less to the operation of mind than to the skill of the hand of the artisan has become important to appear where it was not before. There should, therefore, seek by whatever means are lawful, to put down some means of warfare that are not yet sanctioned by legislative provisions, to prevent to individuals and to itself collectively the evils consequent on the prohibitory action of the combination of journeymen mechanics.

But the evil is not limited to the domestic and the social circle disturbed by vices induced by enforced idleness, or the example which to labor where skill is not a requisite, and where natural ingenuity has no stimulus. The results of diminishing the number of apprentices is deplorably extensive. It touches the individual, who suffers from a want of permission to acquire an art of which he is capable, and the community suffers of which would insure to him ownership if established by industry and economy; and especially would it lessen, in time, a kind and amount of responsibility which is not often acquired by the unskilled laborer. From the individual it becomes on society (beyond what we have said of the evils of view) by withholding from the state that occasion of just pride which successful art labor invariably creates. The wrong is national in its deteriorating effects, and calls for national prevention.

Before the late civil war in the country, our nation stood only second, and very little behind the first, in her mercantile marine fleet; and wherever the flag of her Union flowed, the number of our ships was best seen the wonder of mercantile men; then were their models and construction and finish the admiration of

MECHANICS WHO PRACTICED SHIP ARCHITECTURE.

Twenty years ago many of our ships of war that arrived at a foreign port were visited with a curiosity, by naval seamen and ship-builders, that showed how worthy of admiration the ingenuity and the mechanical labor of our countrymen had made.

Those ships were planned, their shapes modelled, the timber hewn, and their planks laid by men who had served long apprenticeships under master carpenters, who understood how the work should be done, and knew how to teach others to do that work. Masters and journeymen, all were capable of appreciating the beauty of good work, and in turn each class showed itself capable of preserving that adaptation, but strength, finish and beauty of work which deserves the accomplished mechanic.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY, 1876.

IN GOLD HILL, NEVADA.

Gold Hill, March 18, 1876.

The celebration of St. Patrick's Day in this town was a grand success. The original intention was to have a joint celebration with Virginia City, but the lateness of the season placed the streets in too poor a condition, and the idea was abandoned. The Ancient Order of Hibernians (No. 2) of this place sent the Shefield Guard conducted to have a grand celebration in Gold Hill, and carried out their intention to the letter. Division No. 1 of Virginia City were invited to participate, and voted to do so, turning out some two hundred members, and as fine a body of men as could be seen anywhere.

The procession marched from Misers' Union Hall to St. Patrick's church, where High Mass was sung by Rev. L. Haupts, after which a beautiful panegyric on the occasion was delivered by Father Coleman of Virginia City. To say that it was an eloquent sermon would be doing but simple justice to the Rev. Father. From the church the procession marched back to the hall, where the literary exercises of the day took place. They consisted of an address by the President of the Day, P. H. Keating, Esq., which was full of that spirit of true patriotism which on occasions can so stir up the feelings of an Irish audience. At the conclusion of the President's address, Master John C. McCarthy delivered a "Union Oome Again," in a very interesting manner, after which Master Patrick O'Leary rendered "Self-Reliance," and he, like the previous speaker, drew from the audience hearty applause.

The next in the order of exercises was the recitation of Thomas Davis' celebrated "Fontency" by Miss Julia A. Keenaly. Her rendering of the poem was such as to call forth the wildest applause, and, though but a young lady of sixteen, her rendering of this poem was equal to the efforts of many a professional lady. The poem of the day was next delivered in a very creditable manner by Master A. J. Hyde, and he won for himself much applause. The Oration was delivered by Wm. P. Doyle, and was listened to with wrapt attention.

Oration.

MR. PRESIDENT, LADIES AND GENTLEMEN—We are assembled this day, the anniversary of Ireland's deliverance from the bondage of the Egyptian monarch, to celebrate the birth day, the name and baptismal of Ireland's patron saint. In every section of this great country are assembled on this day, the sons and daughters of Erin, their hearts beating more glad by the shortened aire of their native land, and their eyes beamed by the reflected purling of Erin's pride, the flag of green, borne by loyal hearts through the arrears of this great and free country, as the signet mark of the Irish race. In the monstrous shops, here we assembled with pride to the memories of our patron saint, welcome to our ears, and welcome to our hearts, as the voice of darling and cousins is welcome to the exile.

On this day it is expected that every faithful son and daughter of Erin will meet to do honor to the memories of the day. Every sober day should be a day of thanksgiving to the Most High for the gift of the great section of the world you are found, but not the less should we remember the land of our birth, and watch for its coming, and that [illegible] prayer that every true Irishman can exercise, for we can confer it upon the land of our birth. Ireland's present condition from its name to its remotest part, is not to inspire us to do honor to Ireland. In the great struggle in which the Irish people are engaged, they are not left to struggle alone. Millions of hearts throughout the world are with them in their struggle, and it was on such of daring and courage in the past that Ireland's hope of to-day is founded. The courage of the Irish soldier has never been questioned in the history of the world, and his name and deeds in the face of an enemy historical proofs of his valor. The Irish soldier is a soldier of peace, and he who has seen can easy either by the land, I am proud to say that I am one of the number who has had the honor of being a parishioner of

THE REV. FATHER O'BRIEN.

Which they can call five and independent—it is the only parish in the city of Philadelphia that is blessed in one grand harmonious body, and roams through the world as one family, and friend resembles of struggling looks very singular in a man who has been a parishioner of another church, and natives as brothers, to friend as strangers and as to the parish of Father O'Brien, and to say for myself that I am proud of the name of being a parishioner. There are aching, through their depressed and sorrowful hearts, that the day will come when we will get it back again. I am satisfied that we should all very much. I am somewhat astonished with the Irish people, that they have not long ago had an inaugurated with the spirit of the people of Ireland, and that they have not long ago become a second nature. How rooted the schemes of the Irish people have become impertinent to appear where it was not before. There should be a

RACKED IN BY THE SPIRIT

England can not do it. Her people are suffering hunger. At one time her soldiers are coming infants on the streets, and her people are starving. Her people are bleeding prisoners from the famous month; and this is the land of which we are to look for help, and this is the land from Home Rule to Ireland. Is it possible, that we are to look for help from the land of the dead? I can't defend its hands with the blood of innocent victims, and its heart with the spirit of tyranny and oppression, and expecting to find any true friendship for Ireland, practice the strength of its oppressed distributed in the British Parliament? I am afraid that those who are expecting help from England will be disappointed. Ireland must help herself. She was also an appraiser in connection with Irish Parliament, and when she was robbed of her liberties, Tom Steuart was called to in take goods to pay. Ireland is to be disappointed if she expects England to come to her aid. She must be her only help—good, and prayers to God. Ireland has been a nation for centuries, and has been a nation for centuries, and has been a nation for centuries, and has been a nation for centuries over other nations of the world, a great deal longer than the United States has been a nation, and she has stood and survived all

WEEKLY CALENDAR.
FOR THE WEEK ENDING APRIL 1.
March
25—Sunday—Fourth Sunday in Lent
27—Monday—Feria. 28—Tuesday—Feria.
29—Wednesday—Feria. 30—Thursday—Feria.
31—Friday—Most precious Blood of our Lord.
April.
1—Saturday—Feria

THE MONITOR & GUARDIAN:
THE ONLY
Irish and Catholic Journal in California.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

SATURDAY.....MARCH 25, 1876.

SUBSCRIBERS will please specially look at the printed label on the margin or wrapper of the paper; the date thereon shows when the subscription expires.

TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS.

The remittances to this office have been failing off steadily for some time. Now, this is by no means as it should be. As every subscriber can find how his account stands by simply looking at the wrapper or margin of his paper, there is no excuse for negligence or forgetfulness. No person should be deterred from remitting by the fact that his indebtedness is small. Our expenses are always the same, and have to be met punctually each week. There would never be the least difficulty in the way of doing this if our patrons who only owe a little would send that little to us, and so keep clear on the books. All a word of advice has always been taken in good part by our subscribers, and has produced excellent effects, we trust this gentle reminder will be best appreciable and fruitful.

ADDRESS BY THE ARCHBISHOP.

We lay before our readers to-day a verbatim report of the address delivered by his Grace, the Archbishop, on the occasion of the dedication of St. Agnes' Convent, Stockton. Like all the public utterances of his Grace, it is dignified and unimpassioned in argument, and replete with precious words of wisdom. Every sentence shows how thoroughly the Archbishop appreciates the importance of Christian education, and how firmly he believes it to be the best and truest safeguard of civil society. The authorities he quotes, embracing as they do the greatest minds produced by pagan and Christian civilization, must have considerable influence on the judgment of all who really think and are not mere creatures of prejudice. Purely secular education is not a modern idea, or a newly made invention, for it has been tried and found wanting centuries ago. And so indeed, it is with most, if not all, of the theories and speculations and projects which are now depended upon to regenerate society and introduce the millenium. It would seem as if the progress we are making, and of which we boast so much, even confined to discoveries in arts and mechanics—is, to say, purely material. In everything else we are only swinging round a vicious circle that is bringing us back to the absurdities from which our forefathers escaped two, three, four years ago. Our "science" has departed from the true science its path, where alone certitude was to be reached, and is wandering about in a maze of audacious guesswork. Our "philosophy" has flung reason aside, ignores logic, and is now guided by atheistic prejudices. And all this is done in a vain endeavor to justify the rejection of Christian revelation! It is plain we must retrace our steps, or else we shall bring about social convulsions such as formerly destroyed the civilization of Rome, Greece and the more ancient nations. In Christianity—and in Christianity alone, we repeat—are those principles and those influences which can preserve States and peoples from decay and degeneration, and direct all in the path of genuine progress. Therefore the men who oppose secularism and advocate Christian education are combatting the forces of ruin and disaster, and defending the maxims of patriotism. They are fighting the cause of our country, endeavoring to save our institutions, though the blindness and fanaticism of the present generation will not give them credit for it. It should be the proudest boast of an Catholics that our prisons and priests are to a man on the right side, and that their voices are ever raised in defence of the principles of true liberty and real progress.

CARDINAL MCCLOSKEY.—We have received from the publishers of the Irish Citizen, 39 Warren street, New York, a finely executed photograph of his Eminence Cardinal McCloskey. It is from the gallery of Gurney, and that is testimonial to stamping it as a first-class work of art. The likeness, of course, cannot be called in question. The picture is presented to the readers of the Irish Citizen and must prove a most acceptable gift. It is, we believe, the intention of the publishers to shortly issue the photograph of Charles O'Conor. The Irish Citizen is a high class paper, and has our warmest wishes for its success. Under the new management it has become a journal that might be welcomed in every household.

The secret of the unpopularity of the trade dollar is found to lie in the fact that it chose turned out at the Carson mint were two and two-and-a-half cents under the standard prescribed by law. The indignation at this discovery can easily be imagined. The Superintendent of that institution explains the "mistake" by saying that his employés were inexperienced! A lame excuse certainly. In consequence there is a proposition now before Congress to abolish that mint, and reduce it to the rank of a mere assay office. It is said that the Chinese were the first to detect the fraud.

The Senate has agreed to the House bill reducing the President's salary to the old standard of $25,000 per annum, after the expiration of the present incumbent's term.

OUR CATHOLIC SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES.

The Catholics of San Francisco, lay and clerical, may point with legitimate pride to the many religious, benevolent and educational institutions which adorn and benefit our city, and which we may regard as so many monuments of the piety, generosity and public spirit of our people. In proportion to their means and resources and opportunities, they may safely challenge comparison with the Catholics of any other city in the Union as to the results achieved and the progress effected during the last twenty or five-and-twenty years. Laying aside for the present the consideration of many things connected therewith that might be discussed with profit, we will today confine ourselves to a few remarks on a subject which has become one of the public questions of the time—the subject of Catholic education.

The position and attitude of Catholics on the vital question as to how their children shall be educated are quite clear and intelligible to themselves, though, unhappily, anything but clear or intelligible to a number of others. In the first place, they cherish no feeling of hostility or unkindness towards the public school or State University, though the contrary is often asserted in ignorance or malice. They prize the knowledge and acquirements which such institutions afford, and are determined to send forth their children to fight the battle of life with at least equal knowledge and acquirements.

They set as high a value on secular instruction as any non-Catholic can; but are convinced that every education embraces something much more valuable than the best fruits that mere secular instruction can mature. They hold that the affections of the heart as well as the faculties of the brain should be disciplined; that youthful training should be moral as well as physical and intellectual; and, in short, that religious teaching is a necessary and essential part of a Christian education, and should therefore never be wholly divorced from it. They believe that it is their duty to provide for their children a safer and better education than that which may be procured in any school or college where their religion is condemned or ignored. Acting on this belief, they have made and are still making many individual sacrifices. Some of the fruits of these sacrifices are manifest in the numerous schools, convents and colleges which have arisen under the directing hand of his Grace the Archbishop, and in the educational advantages which our children and youths now enjoy—advantages so decided, even from a worldly point of view, that many non-Catholics are found to pay considerable sums for the education of their children in these institutions. If no other evidence of superior teaching were at hand, this of itself is claimed here. The collegiate department, divided into six classes, would be creditable to any educational establishment in the country. The recent examination of the students in classics, natural philosophy, chemistry, mathematics pure and applied, English literature and the other branches of a sound English education, gives hopeful promise that many of the young gentlemen who distinguished themselves shall be heard of hereafter. The attention paid to English composition and to elocution is shown by the extensive merit of the essays written, and the effective manner in which many of them were delivered. Sacred Heart College is, in short, a fact. Archbishop Alemany promised it should be, a credit to the city and the State.

We have entered into these particulars to show that the sacrifices of our co-religionists have not been fruitless. Apart from the inestimable benefit of religious training, the students in our schools and colleges, when brought to the rigid test of impartial public examination as to their rapid progress and real acquirements in secular knowledge, are found to be superior to most others, and not inferior to any.

THE NEW IDRIA MINES.

Exactly what we said last week has turned out to be the case with respect to the New Idria mines. They have been sold for the small sum alleged to be paid in installments after the manner most common. It is to the purchasing party we now refer. MR. WILLIAM GARNAHAN, but it is safe to assert the purchase was made in his interest and for his advantage. General B. F. BUTLER and MONTGOMERY BLAIR are the individuals for whom the valuable property has been sold for the comparatively low figure of one million dollars, and both of them have been closely identified as the promoters of Mr. GARNAHAN'S claim. They have been always on his side, and have invariably acted in a friendly manner towards him. If now appears a company has been formed by the work and develop the mines, and MCGARNAHAN'S title has been acknowledged by the voluntary going to him of a large interest in the property. All this has been done in accordance with an agreement made by the respective individuals more than six months ago. Such being the fact, what becomes of the assertion of the 12th claim in the mines of this city that no sale was contemplated, and no compromise even thought of. Why, it was simply a gratuitous assertion, or else a confession of complete ignorance, and in either event it was a deception of the public. We have given this prominence to what might be regarded as merely a transfer of valuable property, interesting alone to those immediately concerned, because THE MONITOR was nearly the only paper on the coast that defended MCGARNAHAN'S claim when it was assailed in sticks and shifts by which the New Idria Company kept possession. We regarded the matter as a gallant struggle against high-handed usurpation, and we knew the strength of a powerful and unprincipled clique of wealthy men. Its almost unprecedented length was a proof of how difficult a matter it is for one, single, weak, ill-supplied with money, to obtain justice by legal means from capitalists who are banded together for their own aggrandizement. If ever the history of the New Idria Company comes to be written by any one who knows the facts and can get the documents, it will furnish some of the most astounding chapters upon fraud, bribery, theft, forgery and general chicanery that ever came under the notice of an intelligent people. But we do not suppose it will be written, for there are too many persons who would prefer to have the whole affair pass out of observation, and, probably, the new owners of the mines will be contented to let by-gones be by-gones.

THANKS.—We have to thank our contemporary the Alta for an article on the Irish race, which appeared a few days ago in its columns. Merely as a piece of composition, it was of the highest merit, and showed that the writer was a man of culture and polish. But the kindly and generous sentiment it evinced, so different from what Irishmen usually expect to see in American journals now-a-days, the hearty appreciation of the virtues and patriotism of our people manifested all through it, are matters that call for our grateful acknowledgment.

USEFUL INFORMATION.—The Chronicle of Thursday, charging the Call with pilfering from its columns, says that one of the things it does was an account of the expulsion of "Mr. Bishop of Rotterdam" from Holland. Some future day, we trust, our contemporary will complain of the absence of interesting intelligence about "Mr. Archbishop of Canterbury!"

A very large amount of our space is unavoidably occupied to-day by the Patriot's Day proceedings in the interior, to the exclusion of other interesting matter. We will devote some space to Marysville and Petaluma next week, if our correspondents will only favor us with reports.

J. J. Babcox, late Colzer of the United States Mint in this city, is charged with the embezzlement of between twenty-five and fifty thousand dollars; and it is rumored that his official superiors have so far succeeded in screening him. The political atmosphere is reeking with corruption.

The testimony of C. K. Peck of the firm of Durfee & Peck, extensive post traders, implicates the President and his brother Orville in the sale of fifteen privileges. Many more witnesses are yet to be examined.

Eastern papers laugh at the appointment of Judge Taft to the position of Secretary of War. It seems that his chief claim upon the regard of the President was the delivery, a short time ago, of a violent anti-Catholic speech.—Virginia Chronicle.

THE NEW CHURCH AT SAN JOSE.

On last Sunday, St. Joseph's Day, Most Rev. Archbishop Alemany laid the corner stone of the imposing building destined to take the place of the wooden church at San José, which was burned down about a year ago. The ceremony was the occasion of a genuine celebration by the Catholic population, who saw with undisguised pleasure the progress which, in spite of the very unfavorable weather, has already been made on their new church. Long before the hour appointed for commencing the ceremonies, the spires inclosed by the walls of the church, which are already several feet above the floor, was filled with people; and Market street in front was thronged with carriages and wagons, bringing in the residents of the country to the ceremony.

THE PROCESSION.

At 3 o'clock the procession was formed in the schoolhouse, which temporarily serves as a place of Divine worship for the Catholics of St. Joseph's parish. The St. Joseph's Benevolent Society of the parish led the way with four handsome banners, and were followed by the Building Committee and the architects of the Church. The Archbishop in cope and mitre followed, attended by the following clergymen: Fathers Congiato, S. J., Brito, S. J., and Coeta, S. J., of the parish; Fathers Mastiala, S. J., and Accolli, S. J., of San Francisco; and Fathers Varni, S. J., Verzi, S. J., Pinasco, S. J., Legalo, S. J., and Young, S. J., with several scholastics, from Santa Clara College. The building, in which a temporary floor had been laid, was filled to its utmost capacity. It seemed literally that a way was made for the procession, but the utmost order prevailed, and a dejutation of the members of St. Joseph's No. 1 Building Association, with the arrangements and succeeded in keeping back the crowd. There necessary. The psalms and prayers of the Church Ritual. Solemn Vespers chanted at the altar-end of the church, the Archbishop ascended to lay the corner stone, a solid block of freestone, in which a metal casket had been enclosed. The casket contained statuettes of the virgin of Notre Dame, San José, St. Ignatius and Santa Clara, and of the San Francisco Monitor, photograph of the Holiness Pius IX., some coin dated, and a following Latin inscription on parchment:

In nomine Patris et Filii et Spiritus Sancti. Amen. Anno Domini MDCCCLXXVI Pontificatus Sanctissimi Domini Nostri Pii Papæ IX. Anno XXX. Regnante in Republica Americana Ulysse S. Grant. Archiepiscopo Sancti Francisci Joseph Sadoc Alemany. Ad laudem et honorem Sancti Joseph Hanc primum lapidem Ecclesiæ Sancti Joseph Benedixit Archiepiscopus Sancti Francisci Joseph Sadoc Alemany.

Petrus Becks, Scotlatte Jose Victorius Modernis. Architectis.
Procuratore Sacræ Expeditionis Californiensis
Antonio Guetti, S. J. Josepho Rubio, S. J.
Francisco Bianchi, S. J. Antonio Varni, S. J.
Rectore Collegii Sanctæ Clarensis
Antonio Maraschi, S. J. Josepho Caballeria, S. J.
Ministris Ecclesiæ Archiepiscopalis
Anno Religionis Restauratæ sexto decimo.

Guglielmo Irwin, Præside Californiæ
Bernardo Murphy, Magistro Societatis Hibernicæ
C. Mecredino, Præside Italorum Archiepiscopi Sancti Francisci
Joseph Sadoc Alemany
Dni. Brydage, Anno Sancti Patricii Præside
Mich. Kenny, Dan. Leddy, Fabrica Moderatis

Which may be thus translated:

In the nineteenth of March, 1876.
Pontificate of the most holy Father Pius IX.
Thirtieth year.
Reigning in the American Republic
Ulysses S. Grant.
Archbishop of San Francisco
Joseph Sadoc Alemany.
For the greatest Church of St. Joseph
This first stone was blessed
By the Archbishop of San Francisco
Joseph Sadoc Alemany.

Peter Becks, Scotlatte Jose Victorius Modernis, Architects.
Procurator of the Sacred Expedition of California
Antonio Guetti, S. J. Joseph Rubio, S. J.
Francisco Bianchi, S. J. Antonio Varni, S. J.
Rectors of the College of Santa Clara
Nicholas Congiato, S. J., Pastor of the church
Antonio Maraschi, S. J. Joseph Caballeria, S. J.
Ministers of the Archiepiscopal Church
P. J. and Bernard Murphy, Masters of the Irish Societies
Guglielmo Irwin, President of the American Republic
Bernard Murphy, Master of Irish Societies
C. Mecredino, President of the Italians
Murphy, C. McMahon, William Abel, J. M. Chabot, Archbishop of San Francisco
Joseph Sadoc Alemany
Brydage and August Sahl, Presidents of the Hibernian Societies
Michael Kenny and John Leddy the Master Masons.

A very handsome silver trowel, of San Francisco manufacture, was then handed to the Archbishop by one of the architects in the name of the builders of the work. The stone having been lowered into its place, the procession proceeded again round the church, chanting the Litanies prescribed in the Ritual. The ceremonies being concluded, the Archbishop addressed the congregation and warmly congratulated them upon the zeal they had shown in commencing so noble a temple to the worship of the Most High. The ceremonies and addition occupied nearly two hours; but, notwithstanding the length of the time, the attention of the vast congregation remained to the end of the Archbishop's address. The contribution of between four and five hundred dollars was made during the progress of the ceremonies.

THE NEW BUILDING

Stands on the ground formerly occupied by the wooden building which was from the Market instead of San Fernando street, and will be, when finished in the most solid manner, by Messrs. Keasey & Lodge after Mr. Lodge's plans. It will be 80 feet front by 120 feet deep, and will have in its centre a tower, which in shape is that of a cross with three equal sides, the fourth having one bay longer and flanked at the end by two towers, each about twenty-two feet square, and a buttressed and strengthened by the highest point. Between and projecting sixteen feet in front of the tower will be a portico of the Corinthian order, supported by four columns and as many pilasters. This portico, however, will not be erected for the present from motives of economy, nor will any third story be built on the towers, but both towers will, it is trusted, be made at no very distant day.

EXTERNAL FINISH.

The walls are built externally by pilasters into arched bays; the corners being plastered in brick, the whole surmounted with a solid moulding in cement, and supported by ills, and having a projection of nearly four feet. The intersection of the arms will be covered with a dome, the upper part of which, however, like the portico, will be omitted for the present, the owner of the building being covered with an octagonal roof.

The interior will be a spacious one of the usual Catholic form of a nave and aisles, which, like the exterior, will be only partially finished four years hence. The nave is 80 feet in length by 40 feet wide, and will contain when the still future completion of the building is effected, 2,000 persons. There are to be no galleries, and the whole will be on the ground floor. The aisles are 12

A STUDY OF FREEMASONRY.

Translated from the French of Monseigneur Dupanloup, Bishop of Orleans.

THIRD PART.

[CONCLUSION.]

II.

What are we to Conclude for our Practice.

These, then, are the facts. I have simply pointed out what is said, and what is done in Freemasonry. Do I mean thereby to assert that all Freemason things are anti-Christian, and that all Freemasons are impious? I here make the necessary reserves and distinctions. Yes; there are Freemasons who do not even know that the Church has condemned Freemasonry; among whom, through ignorance," as Pope Pius IX. expresses it, "the false idea has sprung up that Freemasonry is inoffensive, and has no other object but benevolence," philanthropy and morality; and who, not being initiated into the inner science of the Masonic Society, have not the smallest conception, under the grand phrases which are always sounding through the lodges, of the impiety, the war declared against Christianity, the support given to all social and political revolutions, which are the real essence of the Order.

Well, I will address myself to these Freemasons who are still deceived by the high-sounding pretensions of the Society. If it be philanthropy which attracts you, why do you want to become Masons? Be Christians, and that is enough. Does not every species of benevolence exist in Christianity? Is it not Christianity which has taught the world the meaning of the word charity, (1) charity — that fertile virtue, which gives man independence and self-devotion, such as pure philanthropy never equalled? Yes, divine charity carries philanthropy to heights where of itself it never could have climbed, whence new and unlimited horizons are discovered; in a word, Christian charity ennobles the poor human heart to the utmost depths of self-devotion, such as pure philanthropy never knew. Go, divine charity carries philanthropy to heights where of itself it never could have climbed, whence new and unlimited horizons are discovered; in a word, Christian charity ennobles the poor human heart to the utmost depths of self-devotion, such as pure philanthropy never equalled? Yes, divine charity carries philanthropy to heights where of itself it never could have climbed, whence new and unlimited horizons are discovered; in a word, Christian charity ennobles the poor human heart to the utmost depths of self-devotion, such as pure philanthropy never knew. Go, then to the heart of God, and without seeking aside any of the purely human motives to love one another, she gives it the love of man as ideal as pure, as fertile, as infinite, as the love of God Himself or humanity.

And especially! To make men more virtuous! Certainly, if this pretension be a genuine one. Christianity could not but approve of it; for it is what she seeks herself, long before and long after the Freemasonry. But let us be a little more explicit. How is morality understood by them? I do not mean by such or such a degree among the Freemasons, who has never been initiated into the different degrees of the Order, and never will be; but by real Freemasonry, and by its chiefs whose words I have quoted. It is a morality which dispenses with every kind of religion; a morality without God or any form of worship; in other words, Freemasonry wishes to live without prayer, without altars, without God, and without Christ on this earth.

Well, what is this doctrine, it is be no practical Atheism? Do not, therefore, let us hear of any more pretexts.

You have to choose between one of two things. Either you know what Freemasonry really is, or, kept down in its lower grades, you will never know. Therefore, either you labor effectually in the work of Freemasonry, or you do not. In the first case, you act directly against your conscience and your Christian faith; in the second, what business have you there? It really needs an era of philosophical despondency like the present to forgive such glaring contradictions, or understand such extraordinary inconsistencies.

If you are a Christian, then do not ever set foot in those lodges under any pretence whatsoever; or even, if you happen to be a man of a serious turn, and consequently an enemy to these ridiculous phantasmagoria and magnificos in printers, keep away from them; or if, seduced by their watchword and your good intentions, you have been induced to join them, withdraw yourself as quickly as you can. In spite of you, a work is carried on in these lodges which is radically anti-Christian, lamentable for the welfare of souls, and the interests of all order and morality. How many times have we not the sorrow of seeing, alone at hand, its fatal results!

How, in a general way, do people gain into these lodges? A young man of a warm heart, pierced, ardent, generous, has some friends a little older than himself who have already been received by the Masonic propagandas.

"Why shouldn't you come with us?" they exclaim. The young man hesitates at first. "What do you do there?" he inquires. They describe their gatherings in glowing colors; they boast of the object of the society, the friends, the good cheer that you meet with. They talk to him of philantropy and progress; little by little they draw him on by fine words. He yields at last, and consents to go to with them once to see what it is like. There he is caught, and the first step taken, the initiation has received, the links of the chain tighten around him, and if he should ever wish to leave with some religious principles left, very soon the spirit which sustains the lodge will infuse itself into his mind, all faith will depart from his soul, and all religious observance from his life.

And, in fact, in the daily practice of life, what do we see? That, among the immense majority of the members, Freemasonry takes the place of all religion; that the men who frequent the lodges are never to be found in Christian temples. The lodge takes the place of the church. It is all at an end with more faith, no more prayers, no more Gospel, no more sacraments. For them religion has ceased to exist.

These vague aspirations, this morality without God, these vain ceremonies, these empty symbols, suffice them, and very soon they are content to have no other religion and no other worship. Should they be initiated into some Masonic function by charge, and decorated with some insignia, it is a thousand times worse; the bonds are more drawn tighter and tighter, the estrangement from every description of religion increases, the lodge absorbs them forever; and when the hour of death comes, when the family, who have not ceased to interest themselves in the safety of their souls, too often, alas! their entreaties are in vain.

I have seen the most inexplicable instances of this obstinacy in men, who were, nevertheless, touched by the zeal and affection of a good priest, inclined by him to return to Christianity, and to whom nothing was wanting but that last step, that one act of faith, that necessary adoration of Jesus Christ; but no, the secret sense of their resistance was always the same — it was there, and nowhere else. Freemasonry had made them its prey; its heavy yoke was on their souls, and they dared not, even on their death-beds, throw it off, and be once more free. How many Christian families know that I am saying now what is but too strictly true, and owe to Freemasonry alone this supreme sorrow!

For us, pastors of the flock, it is certainly no small sorrow to see in this century so many souls, so fit to become good Christians, and so disposed to be, yet estranged altogether; from us, and seeking, in vain and simply falsehoods, the light, the virtues, the progress of which the Saviour of the world is the fertile source, and the only real and powerful Inspirer.

What misery, said what a subject of bitterness is it to see so many among those we love waste their strength and lose their lives in the vain struggle to build without God and to fight against Him!

I here conclude this study of Freemasonry. I have done it without bitterness against individuals, but not without a profound sadness at seeing the deplorable descent of so many of my countrymen into that religion in the bosom of which they were born, and the powerful Organization which exists in the world to promote either unbelief or religious indifferentism. What causes me also much inconsolable sorrow is to see, in consequence, so many generous natures and such noble efforts thrown away; men of sincere good will deceived in their object; the progress of the world going the wrong way, in direct contradiction to its true interest; the increased division, in fact, instead of the union of humanity. Ah! this temple of unity, this fraternity that you wish to build, my poor deceived brethren, it exists; but it is a building raised by the hand of God, and not by the hand of men. Its foundations are not laid on ruinous essences, but on the rock, on faith which is as firm as it is fertile. It is the great Catholic Church, Master than all, you will find your place marked there. The temple of God invites all men to take shelter in its walls. Jesus Christ has closed for you as well as for us. He is the Saviour, the illuminator of all the human race. Come then to Him. Work for Him with us; for to partake in building without God and against God, is rage. It — is the Divine Word itself — is a labor which will be in vain, barren, and is an attempt as vain as it is culpable:

"Nisi Dominus ædificaverit domum, in vanum laboraverunt qui ædificant eam."

(1) It is impossible to repeat too often that Freemasons have declared here to reason or to be one of the least essential characters of Freemasonry; it practically nothing can be so little charitable as Freemasonry. A very fine Pastoral, recently addressed by Mgr. Amat (the Father), to the clergy of his diocese, on the subject of Freemasonry, in the name of "Grand Orient de France," Freemasonry, according to the last Article of the Constitutions, has philanthropy as one of its main objects. But with the exception of our "House of Refuge" (of which the Pastoral says, with reason, that I wonder that they should be mentioned at all in a Masonic Feast), I see nothing whatever which attests the manner in which Freemasonry exercises any form of benevolence." See the Univers & Monde Réview, t. ii., p. 183.

Some "Capital" Questions.

Every now and again, by official fits and starts, we hear mysterious allusions to the investment of English capital in the United States. Why there were there. That is all that is required; we are told — only that and nothing more. It is possible that the people who promise such things are innocently led to believe in their own fables, as we have sometimes known to be without much reflection. If they reflected with a zeal according to knowledge they would appreciate the popular incredulity, and share it. There was peace in Ireland from the enthronement of William to the declaration of Irish Parliamentary independence. Did British capital flow in? British capitalists petitioned the British monarchy to destroy the Irish capital that was growing, and to restore factories flourish, so that they best the English. And the British Monarch solemnly assented the British petitioners, and at the end of all he like power to destroy the manufactures were of Irish people. Accordingly the English king and capitalists did destroy them. That is the advantage Ireland obtained from the investment of English capital in peace!

When Parliamentary Independence was declared, of course British capital could not think of flowing in. "Who will stop that enormous, [illegible] Burke and the British capitalists shook their heads at the "more judicious" distribution of business now indeed to join them, withdrew yourself as quickly as you can. In spite of you, a work is carried on in these lodges which is radically anti-Christian, lamentable for the welfare of souls, and the interests of all order and morality. How many times have we not the sorrow of seeing, alone at hand, its fatal results!

How, in a general way, do people gain into these lodges? A young man of a warm heart, pierced, ardent, generous, has some friends a little older than himself who have already been received by the Masonic propagandas.

"Why shouldn't you come with us?" they exclaim. The young man hesitates at first. "What do you do there?" he inquires. They describe their gatherings in glowing colors; they boast of the object of the society, the friends, the good cheer that you meet with. They talk to him of philantropy and progress; little by little they draw him on by fine words. He yields at last, and consents to go to with them once to see what it is like. There he is caught, and the first step taken, the initiation has received, the links of the chain tighten around him, and if he should ever wish to leave with some religious principles left, very soon the spirit which sustains the lodge will infuse itself into his mind, all faith will depart from his soul, and all religious observance from his life.

And, in fact, in the daily practice of life, what do we see? That, among the immense majority of the members, Freemasonry takes the place of all religion; that the men who frequent the lodges are never to be found in Christian temples. The lodge takes the place of the church. It is all at an end with more faith, no more prayers, no more Gospel, no more sacraments. For them religion has ceased to exist.

These vague aspirations, this morality without God, these vain ceremonies, these empty symbols, suffice them, and very soon they are content to have no other religion and no other worship. Should they be initiated into some Masonic function by charge, and decorated with some insignia, it is a thousand times worse; the bonds are more drawn tighter and tighter, the estrangement from every description of religion increases, the lodge absorbs them forever; and when the hour of death comes, when the family, who have not ceased to interest themselves in the safety of their souls, too often, alas! their entreaties are in vain.

I have seen the most inexplicable instances of this obstinacy in men, who were, nevertheless, touched by the zeal and affection of a good priest, inclined by him to return to Christianity, and to whom nothing was wanting but that last step, that one act of faith, that necessary adoration of Jesus Christ; but no, the secret sense of their resistance was always the same — it was there, and nowhere else. Freemasonry had made them its prey; its heavy yoke was on their souls, and they dared not, even on their death-beds, throw it off, and be once more free. How many Christian families know that I am saying now what is but too strictly true, and owe to Freemasonry alone this supreme sorrow!

For us, pastors of the flock, it is certainly no small sorrow to see in this century so many souls, so fit to become good Christians, and so disposed to be, yet estranged

POST-TRADERSHIPS.

What a Veteran Army Officer Knows About the Traffic in Them.

(St. Louis Globe-Democrat, March 4.)

In probing for news at military headquarters yesterday a Globe-Democrat representative met with General McCook, the most genial and accommodating of General Sherman's staff. General McCook (General by brevet) is an old army officer, "grown gray in the service," who has seen, perhaps, a score of years of active military life, a large share of which has been devoted to teaching Lo the efficacy of powder and ball, and the beauties of civilization, at one end the same time. He has traversed the territory from the headwaters of the Missouri to the Rio Grande, time and again, and having been so long engaged in frontier service is generally regarded as sound authority upon all matters relating thereto.

"Your long service on the frontier may have given you insight into these post-trading transactions that will prove of interest to the public, if you should see fit to make any statement pertaining thereto."

"I confidently expected the exposures, and knew that it must come sooner or later."

"Do you mean to say that the frauds alleged were known to you?"

"Yes, to me and to every officer who has held garrison duty to perform in the West, for several years past. It is not a matter of secret among the people, nor could it well be to them, that the widespread corruption should have been exposed."

"But in your opinion does the corruption extend beyond the post-tradership at Fort Sill, which is alleged to have been purchased away?"

"There are 193 posts yet to bear from, and none secured the reserve have not begun to come in yet. Dropping the question of fact, you can plainly see that Fort Sill is in this game of barter and trade that has been going on? Does any one presume that this fact affords the only corrupt exception, and that a rule of honest management as to tradership prevailed elsewhere? Why should Fort Sill have been alone chosen for a transaction of the character alleged, when other posts may do as readily manipulated by those at the head of the War Department?"

"These are all grave questions, no doubt; but, General, let me understand. Do you believe that the public sentiment demands that to have been engaged in by the Secretary of War stand to other posts other than Fort Sill?"

"Do I believe so? Yes, I do. Nay, I think I might with propriety say that I know so. Now that this investigation has been commenced by Congress, it there is really a desire to oth matters to the very bottom, let them send for the post-traders in all quarters, and there will come to light dozens of corruptions as will dwarf the case already revealed into nothingness. Take up but the entering wedge, which, if given the force uncensure, will rend the entire system of post-tradership to its very foundation."

"The matter of appointing post-traders, then, lies with the Secretary of War?"

"Entirely. Formerly, the Council of Administration at a post — this Council was made up of the three officers next in rank below the commanding officer — chose a man for the position of post-sutler. Their selection was a mere matter of form, as they had a reputation for honesty that be valued; one who was their equal, and with whom they could associate on terms of equality. This selection was approved by the commanding officer, and the matter was then promptly referred to the War Department, the appointment was made."

"What is the process now?"

"In the year 1869 Mr. Hugh Campbell, of St. Louis, a most reputable gentleman, recommended a man to me for the post-sutlership at Fort Laramie. The candidate had a foundation of good words spoken for him; his case was considered by the Council of Administration, was approved by the commanding officer, and was duly sent to be appointed. He came to St. Louis, and, procuring a stock of goods, and a wife to keep the Fort, but, before he could become settled in the new position, along comes a Mogul gentleman and buys the post-sutler in his pocket, upon which the value was scarcely any."

"Was this a representative from the War Department?"

"Precisely. But the officers, with one accord, maintained that they had some rights in the premises that should be respected, and took steps to uphold the man whom they had recommended. The case was laid before General Sherman, with the customary promptness, issued an order upholding the first appointee, and leaving the latter to prosecute a recourse save through the War Department."

"And did that terminate the matter?"

"By no means. Tole may be properly said to have been the commencement of the trouble between Generals Sherman and Belknap, which is due, as much as to anything, the present location of army headquarters in St. Louis. The issue of this simple case for the post-tradership of Fort Laramie involved the principle that the world is to be told that, because there is a scrimmage in some country corner, British capital whose has flourished — whose has been and on them — which has gone to Turkey, Egypt, anywhere but to this poverty-stricken country — has no word of those Irish millions in the Irish banks.

